SLAINTE! The Pipes and Drums are a Corps asset, made up of both Regular and volunteer soldiers from throughout the Corps. Units may not be aware that they have bandsmen in their midst. Those that do support the band are thanked as the Pipes and Drums is currently unfunded and travel costs for training fall onto parent units. Remember - the future's bright - the future's tartan! (Slainte is a Gaelic word meaning to your good health - as in 'cheers'. It is pronounced 'slange'.)

THE CORPS TA BAND

NRPS SSgt J. Robinson

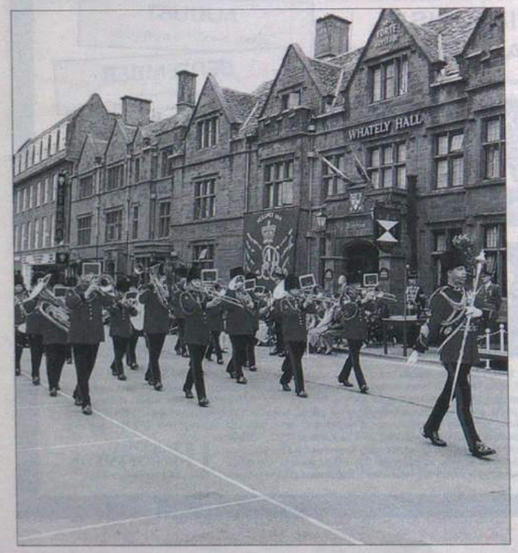
After a long and arduous campaign against proposed SDR cuts to TA Bands, I am pleased to report that the Corps will retain its only TA Band. This is mainly due to the determined efforts of the CO 34(N) Sig Regt (V) in recruiting the support of the SOinC, Comd 11 Sigs Bde, and many more prominent members of the Corps, to put forward to HQ Land new proposals in order to retain the Band. The success of the campaign means that the Band will become an integral part of the Corps and will retrain in a new secondary role as Driver/Lineman. The primary role is being retained as Musician.

Having survived the cuts and in recognition of the tremendous support from the Corps in doing so, it only seems fitting the Band should in future be known as The Royal Corps of Signals TA Band. In addition to this, the Band has adopted the music to the film ' The Great Escape' as their own!

The engagement forecast for 1999 is, as ever, very busy. There have been several Corps events at which the Band has performed already this year and many more throughout the next few months. The most prominent of these will of course be the RSA weekend in June in Blandford, where we will join forces with the regular Corps Band and the Corps Pipes and Drums to perform a display and Retreat Ceremony. The current strength of the Band is 36, 22 are ex regular and there are 9 female members. Recruiting is good and there is currently a waiting list for musicians to enlist into the Band.

The Band Annual Camp this year will be in two phases. Phase One will incorporate the retraining as Dvr/Lnm and Phase Two will take the Band to Jersey to perform at the Island's major attraction 'The Battle of the Flowers'. The photograph is of the Band leading the Freedom Parade for 39 Signal Regiment through Banbury.



SWANAGE RAILWAY

Ex Topham Hatt is the long standing Exercise which encourages Royal Signals Units to assist the Swanage Railway in Dorset. During the past 15 years the Corps has played a major part in the installation of a comprehensive Strowger telecom system.

EXERCISE TOPHAM HATT

It has been an extremely good year for the Exercise as a whole. In spite of, and arguably because of, the heavy commitment to Kosovo there have been three visits to Swanage. In January, 222 Sig Sqn from 3 (UK) Div Sig Regt spent an extended weekend on two main tasks. Following the lead from 11 Sig Regt more work was carried out on Project Herston. Herston is in fact a railway halt one mile out of Swanage. When 30 Sig Regt installed the first one mile cable route to the location it was the terminus of the railway and extremely busy! As the Railway has extended ….. the 'End of the World' has moved on which has resulted in ten years of minimal attention.

Project Herston identified a full programme of work which could, in the main, be carried out in a general DIY vein. It commenced with a huge bank-side clearance campaign over a quarter of mile of the track which has now been 'adopted' by the Corps. The boundaries of this area are marked by posts as would have been done a hundred years ago by the original track gangs; guess what colours the posts are! The Railway then re-fenced the track-side area, the passenger foot crossing has been rebuilt, all the plain (vertical wooden) fencing has been replaced and the whole area landscaped. The finishing touches at this stage were completed in May during a second visit by 222 Sig Sqn. The major part of that effort saw 37 litres of paint splashed everywhere, a good deal of sign-writing and eight flower-beds lined in Purbeck stone; these have since seen the arrival of shrubs and plants thanks to the generosity of the Purbeck Hotel.

May was planned to be a busy month for the Exercise and three units were due to visit during the month. Regretfully 16 Sig Regt had to cancel their visit. However 30 Sig Regt were able to send a party of 11 under the direction of Capt Mike Grearson from 256 Sig Sqn. The Regiment had been encouraged to attend as it was the first unit to undertake an Exercise on the Railway, all be it under the guise of Ex Cygnet Train! During their visit 256 Sig Sqn were set to task removing and then building 60 metres of wooden fence at the top of the main street in Swanage; a high profile job if ever there was one. As the world turns circle it is ironic that Cpl Steve Nelson was a Junior Sergeant Major on the Exercise which last worked on that particular task when Junior Soldiers from Kohima Tp visited in 1992. Despite all the many comments from the locals and some not so local, impressive progress was made and only the gloss coat remains to be done. The fence is a vast improvement and totally enhances the area. The many generous comments since received are a credit to the Squadron.

TELECOM

The first major telephone pole replacement programme in 16 years was completed in January when 222 Sig Sqn assisted with help from SSgt 'Shuggy' Hughes and LCpl Karl Francis, installed 12 poles during a long and arduous day. During the most recent telecom history we have only lost one pole. In 1995 a new route was installed between Corfe Castle and Norden most of which sees the track proceed round gentle curves next to the Castle. These were stayed and left in a steady state by 4 Bde Sig Sqn. However, the ferocity of the wind flowing through the Purbeck Hills and round the Castle was underestimated and a pole was literally picked up and blown away! The efforts of Cpls Paul Lester, Steve Nelson and Sig Andy Carvin should ensure this does not happen again. As this was proceeding 15 now redundant poles (since the arrival of underground cable) were removed and taken back to the pole stack.

April saw the commissioning of a third Strowger exchange at Herston. It has been installed in a large wooden hut provided by Officer Cadets from Southampton UOTC, and then erected by the old Charlie Tp at 11 Sig Regt. Having been switched on there was some quick work to transfer telephones off the two other exchanges and onto Herston. A number of 'old faithfuls' assisted in this task including Frank Nevens and Daz Watts, both of whom left the Corps last year and Lt Guy Garatt PWRR and 2Lt Jason Cropper soon to be R SIGNALS.

May saw a good deal of maintenance on telephone and fax machines in Swanage. Sgt 'Little John' Simons and Cpl Adam Burman managed to check and repair nearly 60 phones and 12 fax machines of different varieties, most without handbooks! Following the Herston Switch-on, many of the Swanage extensions have been moved around. That work was completed during a four day period which saw a number of new facilities and a good deal of cable ducting installed by LCpl 'Herbie' Hyde and Sig 'Max' Holland. Finally the bells; the techs had to be called in for them; Cpl Adam Burman for Herston platform and LCpl Hayley Moore for Swanage.

MERCURY GROUP

The Mercury Group are a Group of 130 soldiers who have, as individuals, joined the Swanage Railway, In addition to a number of other objectives one aim is to meet in Swanage once a year and test all social attributes; to the full.

1999 marks the fifteenth anniversary of the working association between the Corps and the Railway, and in true style members of the Group decided to celebrate this occasion on Saturday 12 June 1999. Previously this year Maj Gen (Retd) A. C. Birtwistle CB CBE DL had agreed to become the Hon President of the Group, and he was invited to attend and unveil a large piece of Purbeck stone at Herston Halt on that day. This special event in fact formed the focal point of many weeks of work at the Halt.

THE ARMY TAUGHT YOU NEVER TO GIVE UP, SO DON'T

So there you are in civvy street doing the same old thing day in, day out. But…why?…If it's the Army you're missing, then how about joining the TA? It's a vital part of the British Army.

There are two options open to you. First, you can join one of the Territorial Army Independent Units based in the TAVRA region in which you have decided to settle. An ideal route for those who wish to serve locally. Which Unit you join will depend on those available in the area you live in. Second, if you are leaving a Corps, you could retain your cap badge and become a member of either an Independent Unit as above, or a TA Specialist Unit. In either, you can maintain and develop the special skills that you have learned.

The minimum commitment as a member of the Independent TA is 6 weekends, a two-week Summer Camp and some weekday evenings. As a Specialist we ask only 2 weekends and a 15 day annual camp. In return, you will earn Army rates of pay and an annual tax-free bonus of up to £1050.

Planning for the day had been proceeding all year in spite of the Kosovo go or no-go situation. It is pleasing to report that 'Gen Archie' (the ex Master of Signals) and all those who were able to be present had an excellent day. Many members of the Group were able to attend including some from Bosnia, Germany and one from Cyprus. They were joined by 43 members of the Railway, members of the Royal British Legion (in particular George Louden and John Burt, both ex members of the Corps) and several local councillors. Many Royal Signals units were represented including 11 Signal Regiment by the CO, Lt Col T. W. Canham and the Second in Command Maj R Brown.

The Group, the Swanage Railway and the involvement of the Corps has an interesting future. Despite heavy commitments on the shoulders of most units, there is still a need to entertain short breaks for small parties of soldiers - even if only for retention purposes. A massive effort over the past two years has ensured that authority for Ex Topham Hatt is authorised, that administration is streamlined and minimised, that health, safety and security are clarified and that logistic support is provided. This has now been done. Units are invited to release parties of up to eight under the leadership of Sergeants or Corporals to assist with this Corps project; further details from the Second in Command, 11 Sig Regt.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

SSAFA Forces Help is a leading National Services charity, established to relieve hardship and to assist Service and ex-Service personnel and their families. We care for over 86,000 people every year.

Caseworkers, visitors, team leaders, treasurers and fundraisers are required in many parts of the UK.

Our volunteers are the last line of defence for the 14 million people entitled to call on us for help. In 1997 our Branches in Merseyside and Manchester helped, advised, supported and made visits on 4,266 occasions.

RED WINDS FROM THE NORTH

By Norman 'Taff' Davies

Just before dawn on 25 June 1950, the North Korean Army crossed the 38th Parallel and invaded South Korea. It was the start of the 'Forgotten War', one of the bloodiest wars of the 20th Century. On 27 June the United Nations voted in favour of intervention and over the next weeks troops were mobilised in many member countries and embarked to Korea. The first British troops, the 27th Brigade from Hong Kong, arrived in South Korea at the end of August 1950. At the very beginning of November 1950, the 29th Independent Infantry Brigade from Britain arrived. The war lasted well into 1953 when an armistice was signed. The two Koreas are still divided and their forces still face each other across the 38th Parallel. The British Army fought some of its biggest battles since World War 2, above all on the Imjin River in April 1951.

This book recalls the memories and personal experiences of a young nineteen year old regular, Royal Signals, Junior NCO who served in the 29th Brigade from October 1950 to August 1951 and then in the 1st Commonwealth Division until April 1952.

About the author: Norman Davies was born in 1931 in the Welsh town of Bluith Wells. In 1948, at the age of seventeen and a half, he signed up with the Royal Corps of Signals. Over the next twenty years he served in the Korean War, Germany, Singapore and Malaya. He finally took early redundancy in 1968 leaving the Corps with the rank of Warrant Officer 2. In 1968 he emigrated to South Australia where he worked for the Postmaster General's Department. Finding life too tame, he took a contract as a mercenary with the Zambian Defence Force serving from 1970 to 1972. After a short spell in Rhodesia he went back to South Australia to take up his old job in the Post Office. He remained there until 1975 when he returned to the UK. Joining the British Aircraft Corporation he worked on communications for the Rapier Ground to Air Missile System. In 1979 he made a move to Portsmouth taking a position with Marconi Secure Radio Systems and remained there until he took early retirement in 1992. He is a member of the Wessex Branch of the British Korean Veterans Association, the Royal British Legion and the Royal Signals Association.

The book is dedicated to the Royal Corps of Signals especially those who served through the Korean War. The book is 'a labour of love' and the proceeds from the sales will be donated to the Royal Signals Association.

ARMY CADET FORCE EXPEDITION TO SOUTH AFRICA 1999

by Cpl Scrase

EXERCISE WILDERNESS CHALLENGE 1999

Twenty-one members of the Army Cadet Force, selected from the whole of the UK, made final preparations for their trip to South Africa (11 July to 2 August 1999). They had just completed four days pre-expedition training on the South Downs that included time to bond as a team, to check fitness and equipment, discuss how they would work with the Zulu Schools at Rorkes Drift when they got there. They also compared notes on their efforts to raise the £1600 necessary to fund their individual places on the expedition. The task of raising money remains the most difficult one for most of the cadets, and for Cpl Scrase 11 Signal Regiment. Individuals, organisations, trusts and companies have been very generous but there was still some way to go before everyone could be sure of achieving their target. Still more help was needed and we appeal to those who can appreciate the value of this sort of expedition and its affects on those taking part to support the cadets. Past experience has clearly shown how much the individual cadets have benefited. The schools at Rorkes Drift appreciate the growing bonds of friendship and a proportion of the cost of sending a cadet to South Africa is used to sponsor a township African on a similar wilderness course.

Col C. Blessington (centre) with the expedition members

THE EXPEDITION

The group would spend ten days on walking trails with the Wilderness Leadership School in the trackless wilderness areas of the Black Umflozi River, and the Drakensberg Mountains. They would carry all their own food and equipment, but not tents, watches or soaps and deodorants. A field officer and experienced Zulu game-guard accompanied them. For the period they were in the wilderness they relied entirely on their own resources and were free from any human contact, other than their own sub group of six to eight people.

During their time in the low veldt of the Black Umfolozi valley they were in intimate contact with all the wildlife of the area. This includes elephants, rhinos, lions, leopards, crocodiles and all the other small game indigenous to the area. In the mountains they explored the rugged heights, lived in bushman caves and navigated their way across the vast emptiness of the wilderness landscape.

A wilderness journey is a unique personal experience, a physical, mental and spiritual adventure that the cadets will never forget. They discovered a sense of wonder, re-examined their personal priorities and realised that the wilderness is only a part of what they came to discover. Somewhere, out there in the bush they discovered themselves. After their wilderness trail in the mountains they visited Rorkes Drift to meet and work with the young Zulus of the area. They renewed the close friendship already forged by previous ACF expeditions to the area. They exchanged gifts of sports equipment and school text books and presented two trophies (ACF Wilderness Challenge Trophies) that will be used as prizes by the schools for their own sports tournaments. They also visited the battlefields of Isandlwana and Rorkes Drift and listened to David Rattray's account of the events.

For the final phase of the expedition they travelled north to Timbavati in the Eastern Transvaal where they took part in a game ranger's course, learnt to track game and identified indigenous animals and birds. At Swandini they spent time learning about snakes and other reptiles, and how to handle them. They saw crocodiles and hippos in the Blyde River Dam and visited the famous animal rehabilitation centre at Moholoholo to learn about the problems facing Africa's endangered wildlife. Cpl Jason Scrase from 3 (Harrogate) Squadron, 11 Signal Regiment has been assisting Sussex Army Cadets Force since he joined the Royal Signals in 1986, and was offered a position on the expedition by Col Blessington last year. He, along with Cadet SSgt Oliver Stowe from the Warwickshire and West Midlands Army Cadet Force will be the only Royal Signals going on the expedition.

TEAM UPDATE

by the Team Capt, Gordon Newell

Since taking over the role of Team Captain last year I have found that there are many misconceptions about the White Helmets and what they do. I was told that riders didn't get promoted and that it was a bad career move for soldiers to spend time in the Team. Nothing could be further from the truth and I have found an environment full of talent from every trade group in the Corps. Since September I have seen five of my 26 Team members get promoted and watched them disappear off on upgrading or other career courses. In this issue of The Wire I have let Team members write their own thoughts and feelings about the White Helmets and the Army. I expect that after reading this article many questions will be answered and any members of the Corps interested in doing something unique, challenging, interesting and above all fulfilling can approach the Team for a tour.

THE WHITE HELMETS OPENING SHOW - 23 APRIL

by Sig Marcus Fiddes

The 1999 Royal Signals White Helmets Motorcycle Display Team put on a spectacular opening show in front of the SOinC (A), Brig J. H. Griffin here at Blandford Camp on St George's Day, Friday 23rd April. The day started for the team in appalling weather conditions at 0800hrs. The pre-show nerves were all too apparent, would the rides get round the rain-drenched arena? Would the tricks slip from beneath the riders when cornering? In a matter of hours these questions would be answered. In the mean time the team spent their time prior to the show making final adjustments to uniforms and bikes. The atmosphere in the garages, nerves aside was positive. As the bikes were wheeled out for the line up, a photographer from the Classic Motorcycle Magazine could be seen snapping away. Any problems had to be sorted out now or the mistakes could cost the team dearly in the arena. At 1030hrs Sgt Don 'Where's my hair going' Brebner gave the word to move. The Triumph Tiger 750's moved on to Hawke Square just out of sight of the viewing dignitaries. As Sgt Brebner called the team around the show board for a final brief the band of the Royal Corps of Signals made their way on to Hawke Square. The key points from the briefing were, 'Make it good, make it safe, and ride to the conditions'. This in mind the team moved to their bikes, while Sig Marcus 'Full head of hair' Fiddes and Sig Scott 'Sad Sack' O'Neill prepared to lay the arena out on the Honda ATV.

The SOinC (A), Brig J. H. Griffin then arrived on Hawke Square in his vintage Jaguar flanked by four Triumphs of the White Helmets. Riding were LCpl Tonka 'What! Do I look like a storeman?' Richardson, LCpl Paul 'Fozzy' Forster, LCpl Scott 'E' Eccott and LCpl Jason 'Gypo' Hooper. He was then greeted by Sig Tony 'Smart as a guardsman' Annetts and LCpl Baz Fullerton. As the SOinC (A) and his wife were shown to their seats by SSM Mantelow the Band of the Royal Corps of Signals marched off the square and the ATV moved out. With the arena being set, it was time for Lt Col Amberton to give the opening address. Tension was now at a high - this was it - all the months of training had to pay off, today of all days. The first year riders were eager to get the coveted White Helmet. Lt Col Amberton gave the words ' I'll now hand you over to Sgt Don Brebner', With that Sgt Brebner signalled the bikes to fire up. The Triumphs rumbled forward with the opening ride going straight out and the trick bikes taking their respective positions. Cpl John 'Not out of my stores' Strachen and Sig Kev 'Big as a house' O'Leary prepared for the first trick of the opening show, the Double Jimmy, with Sigs O'Neill, Hodgson and MacDonald waiting next to them ready to perform the Four Tees. The show ran smoothly up to the half way point when the Three Bike Fan dismantled in front of the SOinC (A). The first year riders moved into their positions awaiting the presentation of their prestigious White Helmets. Once the presentation was over the second half of the show started in earnest. The weather was unrelenting throughout but this didn't dampen the spirits of the team. The show was going well and no one wanted the dreaded 'Black Peak', which is presented to the rider who crashes or falls off in front of a public audience. As the world-famous Six-Bike Fan made it's way around the arena the show was almost over. Only the closing ride remained awaiting the final trick 'The Angel' to come in. Sgt Don Brebner along with Capt Gordon 'Kick Start' Newell led the pennant bikes into position to take the final salute. Capt Newell said he 'Wanted to stay behind after the other bikes had pulled off because his Big Mac was almost ready. When told 'This isn't a drive through' Capt Newell started his bike and joined the others pulling off the square.

The show over, The team formed up waiting the SOinC (A)'s address. He expressed his feelings about the show, which, in his opinion was 'The best he had ever seen'. He didn't keep the team long, knowing how keen they were to get to the post-show reception. With that the Triumphs were moved back to the White Helmets garage. After a quick change it was off to the reception in the function rooms of the Semaphore Arms. The afternoon reception was attended by the SOinC (A), Mayor and Mayoress of Blandford, and sponsors of the White Helmets along with family and friends of the team. Chief Mech. LCpl Tonka Richardson and his fellow mechs were presented with the Elson Trophy for the biggest contribution to the team over the 1998 season. The speech for the Elson Trophy saw ex-team OC, Maj Keith Russell make a return and the presentation was made by 'Elly' Elson's Mother, Mrs Pat Barnsfield. 'Twelve Monkeys', Zoro, the Terminator, a gangster, two dodgy looking girls, and Lilly Savage attended the evening reception. The monkeys were seen dancing late into the night and one of the dodgy looking girls (Sig Hodgson) seemed to be putting it about a little too much. The night faded into a haze but the day will be remembered as a complete success.

THE RHEINDAHLEN SHOW - 15/16 MAY

by Sig Gaz Fisher

Our second show of the season gave us the opportunity to venture abroad to JHQ and the Rheindahlen Show. The show was to take place on the 15 and 16 of May so to allow for travelling and show preparation we departed from Blandford on the morning of the 12th. We got the ferry from Ramsgate to Ostende and following the four hour drive to JHQ, saw the team drawing into the camp gates at 4am. As expected the following day saw nothing more than a typical Army bed and quilt for most people.

The first show day began promisingly with the sun appearing early on. The show-ground was very well laid out with attractions for all the family from craft tents to fairground rides to vehicle sales. Our first show saw a couple of incidents - firstly the '4 tees' by Sig Marcus 'Sky-scraper for a head' Fiddes who decided to eject his three passengers half way round the arena to display their recently received White Helmets to the very appreciative crowd. Secondly Sig Gary 'Fish' Fisher struggled to hold the 'Reverse Jimmy' in the arena and brought it down early as the crowd dispersed from their viewing point. After the show a few experienced words from Sgt Don 'I'm getting a parrot, I'm getting a parrot' Brebner about the ground conditions put us in good stead for an excellent second show later in the afternoon.

The evening saw the Team Capt, Gordon 'Judge' Newell's display his mixing antics on his disco equipment while the team made the American Rodeo Team feel welcome with burgers and alcohol. The barbecue (made by LCpl Gaz 'powerlifter' Ryder) stood up well and as the evening wore on the team were challenged to a game of American football by the yanks. The game ended in a win for the White Helmets with the Americans saying that they no longer wanted to play as we were a bit too rough for them. Maybe they need to stick to riding wild horses and wrestling bulls! On the second day the shows were very successful with only Sig Matty 'kite' Adams and LCpl 'Scotty' Eccott colliding in the '4cx' after Matty's bike cut out 10 metres from the cross-over point. A broken heel and bruises were the result but the show carried on without further incident. Although many of the local soldiers were away on duty in various parts of the world their families and other members of the public were very appreciative and made the whole show worthwhile. The team also got to catch up with past friends and acquaintances they know, such as the RAF Flying Falcons Parachute Display Team with whom we shared a photo shoot. Again the night dwindled into a haze with only headaches as a reminder of the previous evening. All that was left to do was top up on duty free and endure the long trip back to Blandford ready for our next show in Driffield, Yorkshire.

THE SEASON SO FAR

by LCpl V Mal Hildreth

The Team finds itself in the busiest part of the year with all weekends between April and October spent out on the road at various shows around the country. No doubt the Royal Tournament will be a highlight of the season - especially since it is expected to be the last one ever. Our appearance at the Yorkshire Water Fun Day marked the first public show of the season, and the first road trip. Many of the team were suffering from a mix of nerves and excitement, especially the new members of the team. On arriving at the show ground early on the Saturday morning even some of the more experienced members of the team started to have doubts as to how well the show might go. Our designated arena couldn't have been much worse. The arena sloped quite severely from the bottom right corner to the top left corner. This would mean the bikes would struggle to carry some of the heavier tricks out of the pits and find it difficult to stop on the way back in. If we could put on a good show here then we shouldn't have a problem with better arenas over the rest of the season.

We had two shows to perform, a morning show and an afternoon show. Those members of the team who have family in the north had invited them along which added to the anxiety of some. Fortunately the first show went reasonably well with only a few minor problems due to the team getting used to the way the bikes were running on the difficult ground. Sig Marcus Fiddes made his debut car jump during the first show but injured his back slightly and was unable to repeat the jump for the second show. The second show went much smoother with the team adjusting to the conditions after finding their feet (or wheels) during the first show. Once the show was over it was some time before the team could concentrate on getting the bikes loaded due to autograph hunters, reporters and admiring girls. This was certainly something that the new members of the team had never experienced before and was perhaps an insight into one of the many aspects of life with the White Helmets.

The Yorkshire Truck Spectacular at Driffield being on the Sunday and Bank Holiday gave the team a chance to sample York's night life on the Saturday night due to the team having to be near the show ground the day before. A good night was had by all, the beer being cheap and the locals friendly. The Truck Festival itself was a fairly large event with appearances by the actress who plays 'Kelly Windsor' in Emmerdale Farm (who now sports a White Helmets baseball cap), and the actor who plays 'Boycie' in Only Fools and Horses (who agreed kindly to a photograph with the team).

The show itself was a little shorter than usual, as the organisers didn't want us to scorch the arena with the fire jump. Both shows went well and the team enjoyed watching the many other events that were taking place in the main arena. At one point the team had to help clear the arena prior to the second show, due to it being littered with debris from two caravans that had been squashed by a monster truck. Again the weather had been kind and was enjoyed by team and public alike.

TRADESMEN IN THE TEAM - THEIR OWN PERSPECTIVES

Telecommunications Operator (Spec)

by Cpl Adam Malin

People always seem surprised when they find out that there are Telecommunication Operators (Special) in the White Helmets. Some people that have talked to me have been under the impression that only certain trade-groups can apply for Team selection. So, to finally dispel such rumours - Yes the team is open to any trade within the Royal Signals and Yes I am one of three 'Spec Ops' currently attached to the White Helmets. I started life as a Tele Op (Spec) in 1988 with my first posting to 13 Sig Regt in Birgelen, Germany. Eleven years, four postings and five tours of Northern Ireland later I am a Class One Cpl and have been to 15 Sig Regt (Lisburn), Communications and Security Group U.K. (Loughborough) and 223 Sig Sqn (JSSU) Digby) before coming down to sunny Blandford. I began my attachment to the White Helmets in January 1998 after completing the November 1997 selection course.

My first year with the team was a little bit of a culture shock, having previously been quite sheltered as a Tele Op (Spec). In the past I had rarely come into contact with people from the other trade groups within the Royal Signals and initially the thought of leaving a work atmosphere, that I had become very used to and comfortable with over the last eleven years, was a bit daunting. It didn't take long to get into the swing of things and before I knew what had hit me, it was April and I was standing in front of a crowd of people, including my parents, being presented one of the very coveted White Helmets alongside my new work colleagues. Now, halfway through my second year and after two training seasons with an amazing learning curve, I probably now feel as comfortable with my new job as I did in a communications set room sat in front of a computer or on an isolated hill top detachment in Northern Ireland.

I still get a lot of questions from people, especially old friends from previous posting, who are probably itching to have a crack at Team selection themselves but like me worry what will happen if they make the move. Well it's simple....nothing! You won't forget your morse Code, computers won't suddenly become alien to you and you won't be left behind. I have been with the team for 18 months and have seen three Signallers promoted to LCpl and a LCpl to Cpl. So now, after over 150 public performances, 'What's it like to be a 'Spec-Op' in the White Helmets?' Well..initially probably just as daunting as being a Technician, Electrician or Radio Operator but really no different than being a Radio Relay Operator, Systems Operator or a Lineman.

DRIVER LINEMAN - by Sig Tony Annetts

I joined in 1988, postings include 1 ADSR, Verden, Gulf, 1 Canadian Sig Regt (attached), HQ Britfor Sig Sqn (Op Grapple 1-2), 7 Sig Regt, and Royal Signals Public Duties Squadron (Buckingham Palace Detachment). I then volunteered for selection for the White Helmets in the November of 1995. I wasn't sure what to expect. I knew an ex-team member who just advised me that 'every time you fall off, you get up straight away (if you can) and get on with it.' So four years later, what's it been like? Well I thought the Palace Guard experience would take some beating, but this has proved to even better.

I originally joined up as a Combat Lineman, which soon after took on the role of Combat Driver and Combat Signalman, hence Driver Lineman. The first posting to a 'Div' did me well, learning the trade for real didn't take long. As people are aware a Div main set up requires plenty of cable. Then there was a small matter of Saddam Hussain to deal with - ruined my Xmas leave in 1990! Bosnia came along, which was an excellent tour, if not a little hairy at times. 1993 was a volatile year out there. I came back to a posting to 7 Sig Regt. I was fortunate to spend a good bit of time with the Rugby team. That went on to achieve the Army Cup in 94 under the guidance and the outstanding coaching of Maj Andy Hickling. Volunteering for the Palace Guard was really, I thought a once in a lifetime chance. It proved to be a superb tour, different to normal chores of BAOR. This is what spurred me into joining the Team. Being in the public eye did something to flick my switch - this was a superb opportunity. Four years down the line, performing to over 2 million people, Royalty, Heads of State, all of which exceeds superlatives. Something that people don't realise as well as being a display rider we all have other roles in the team to maintain the slickness, smoothness and effectiveness of the team. I for one drive the team coach and deal with First Aid matters. The team is 73 years old now. It is without doubt the best of its kind. So if you'd like to be part of a real team, have the courage and the heart of a Lion. Join us.

TEAM FOCUS - THE MECHANICS

Chief Mechanic	LCpl Tonka Richardson
Mechanics	LCpls 'Fozzy' Forster
	Baz Fullerton
	Ricky Ross
	Sig Malcolm Cooper

The 1999 season started at full speed for the mechanics. We returned from our annual Christmas leave on 11 January 1999 fully refreshed from our well deserved break, ready to tackle a fleet of 20 Army Harley Davidson motorcycles which had been used for the 1998 selection course, and had been left to rot over the leave period. After overcoming several admin problems i.e. no spares, we gave up on the Harleys and started training season preparations on the Teams Triumph Tigers. The preparation includes a service, replacement seals and clearances as required, however some bikes need some special attention by the mechs. Such as front end replacement and engine rebuilds because of their leaking and smoking abilities. At present LCpl 'Fozzy' Forster is on his third engine rebuild in as many months.

Now its time to pack the mechs bay onto the truck in preparation for our annual camp at Chester. The MT flight at RAF Sealand thankfully provide us with ample garage space, which is gratefully appreciated. The lads there are very helpful and willing to provide us with any service that we are unable to perform ourselves such as welding. During the month long training camp, we were expected to not only train ready for the coming show season, but also do daily maintenance and overcome any unforeseen mechanical problems that arise. This resulted in Tonka and Baz not seeing the airfield for the first two weeks except for when they wanted a brew.

Eventually a very wet (which is normal for Blandford) Opening Show went off without a hitch, due to the smooth and efficient running of the Triumphs. A very big pat on the back to all of us mechanics. This was further endorsed by the fact that the Chief mechanic, Tonka received the 'Elson Trophy' for the biggest contribution to the Team in the last year and asked all the mechs to join him in receiving it, as it is a team effort. A big thank you goes out to all of them for all their efforts.

REGULAR SIGNALMAN, LANCE CORPORAL OR CORPORAL

WANT AN EXTRA £250 BEFORE TAX

!!?!! NO CATCHES!!?!!

The Royal Signals were included in the Satisfied Soldier Bounty Scheme (SSBS) at the end of last year. The scheme is designed to improve recruiting and Regular Corporals and below are eligible. The scheme is very simple, you obtain SSBS cards from your unit (each card has a serial number and are NOT the old Royal Signals Committed Soldier Card), write your details in the card and give it to a potential Royal Signals Recruit.

Once the individual completes Phase 1 training, you receive £250 before tax.

RECRUIT PREFERENCE CARD

Keep this Card Safe

Take it with you to all interviews with the Army Careers Staff and Recruit Selection Staff

There is no upper limit to the number of cards you can issue, so if you know a lot of people that want to join the Corps, you could earn yourself 'LOADS OF MONEY'. You can use the card anytime, however, why not go out as a Satisfied Soldier for a one/two week attachment at an Army Careers Office and you could top up your bank balance. As explained, the scheme is open to Regular Corporals and below, however, if you get promoted to Sergeant after issuing the card, you still get the money! Obtain details from your Unit Recruiting Officer or if you are having problems contact Capt (Retd) Tony Reynolds at Soldier Recruiting in SORLS on Blandford Military 2132.

NEWS FROM HEADQUARTERS

REGIMENTAL HEADQUARTERS ROYAL SIGNALS

SIGNAL OFFICER IN CHIEF (ARMY)'S RECRUITING AND LIAISON STAFF – EXERCISE LIGHTNING STRIKE 1999

Ex Lightning Strike is an annual Royal Signals Competition run by the SOinC (A)'s Recruiting and Liaison Staff (SORLS) for the nineteen University Officer Training Corps (UOTC) around the country. The aim is to introduce the Officer Cadets to the many facets of signalling in the Corps and hopefully to have some fun at the same time. The format involves the teams doing a round robin of nine Unit stands, finishing off with a final race. This year, eighteen teams competed over the weekend 26 - 28 March 1999 at West Down Camp on Salisbury Plain. Visitors to the Exercise included Brig Verey, the Brigadier TA, and several UOTC Commanding Officers.

264 (SAS) Sig Sqn's Survival Stand required teams to provide their Team Captain with basic survival clothing, made from materials at hand, and to build a one man shelter. The final test was for this newly tailored individual to compete a mini obstacle course. Marks were then awarded for how much clothing was still in place. 264 (SAS) Sig Sqn provided an impressive display of shelters and survival aids as a backdrop to the stand. The OCdts enjoyed a light snack of roasted pig's head and a cup of dandelion tea before leaving the stand.

'The rabbit comes out of the hole around the tree and.....damn!!'

216 (Para) Sig Sqn's stand was based on the theme of 'Airborne Signalling.' This year, 2Lt Tom Day replaced the normal log shaped, wooden 'antenna' with a quick Bergen race culminating in a competition to kit up in complete parachuting gear. The result was a lot of sweaty people practising bondage on each other. Some UOTCs are clearly physically fitter than others and we know that the PSIs will be trying to remedy this for next year.

39 Inf Bde HQ and Sig Sqn, headed up by Lt John Fraser, assisted by 2Lt Forbes Guthrie of 3 Inf Bde HQ & Sig Sqn (203), gave the students a chance to see and use Cougar radios, before using them to deal with a terrorist incident. The casualty simulation was extremely realistic and led to a lot of running about and confusion. Good command and control of the incident was essential.

The students had a chance to use satellite communications in the form of Inmarsat terminals, run by Lt Dhan Gurung and the Gurkhas from 30 Sig Regt. The teams had to work out how to use the terminals, get a lock onto the satellite and establish a call to another station. The stand demonstrated how easy the establishment of a satellite communications link can be.

No 43 Troop Commander's Course from the Royal School of Signals ran the traditional 'It's a Knockout' stand. This is normally very competitive as the stand prize is a crate of lager. This year's event involved a race under, across and around obstacles and crash mats after retrieving objects from a bucket of flour with their teeth, while being squirted with water pistols. 2Lt Phil Waddell came a cropper when his old UOTC from Birmingham took revenge and attacked him with water and flour.

'But my mobile phone is smaller than that.'

How many Officer Cadets does it take to make a telephone call?
30 Signal Regiment's Stand

24 Airmobile Bde Sig Sqn's Stand, led by Lt Dan Ashton, required the teams to rig up a Landrover and trailer ready for underslinging from a helicopter. The students were given the chains and sticky tape and a set of instructions and told to crack on. Some of the UOTCs produced quite workable results whilst those who used the tape as Landrover graffiti fared less well.

14 Sig Regt's stand, led by Lt Hervey Scott, required the teams to intercept and analyse 'enemy' transmissions. The stand demonstrated the other face of the Corps and was very educational for the OCdts.

Royal Signals Leadership Troop from the Royal School of Signals provided a novel and rather difficult command task for the teams. All blindfolded bar one, the teams had to be guided through a course by the power of voice. This was an especially entertaining event for spectators and left many of the students without a voice for the rest of the day. Capt Richard 'Toddy' Todd and Sgt 'Sid' Barrass spent most of the time disentangling blind, groping students from each other. Situation normal!

The Royal School of Signals, headed up by 2Lt Ally Lawson from the Troop Commanders' Course, challenged the teams to a line race. Teams had to set up a pole-crossing according to the model provided, in a straight head to head with each other. The links had to be proved by a quick field phone call. Part of the course went under a large tarpaulin, beneath which the rivalry often broke out into hand-to-hand combat.

The Final Race, run by the new Royal Signals Mobile Presentation Team, commanded by Capt Jack Jennings, required five teams at a time to collect a trailer each and race it uphill, through a slalom course. Easy, apart from everyone but the team captain being blindfolded. Even the Team Captain was handicapped by having to shout through a respirator and over the top of Frankie Goes To Hollywood singing 'Two Tribes' on the PA system. The smoke grenades and thunder-flashes provided additional excitement and confusion. Capt Sophie Davis and Caroline Moore, our video camerawoman, particularly enjoyed the sight of the kilted Tayforth and Edinburgh hordes gaily bounding down the hill towards them. It was good to see that the chaps were all true Scotsmen.

All the teams competed strongly thoughout a very hot and dusty day on Salisbury Plain. In the end there could only be one winner and this year, the kilted Tayforth UOTC took the top honour. The Lightning Strike trophy was presented to them by Col Cliff Walters, the Regimental Colonel. Later the same day, the teams emerged scrubbed and black-tied for the evening function in Blandford. After a fine spread, and entertainment provided by the Corps Band, the UOTCs danced the night away. Several of the PSIs, particularly WO2 (SSM) Maxted, impressed the younger OCdts with their 'unique' dancing syles. Much better were the two young ladies from Cambridge UOTC (who shall remain nameless) who impressed everyone with their table dancing. Peter Stringfellow will be in touch. Not everyone caught the bus back to West Down Camp that night. OCdt Karl Franks, who nose-dived the dance floor early on, spent the rest of the evening in casualty getting his jaw stitched and reset.

Once again, Ex Lightning Strike's unique combination of competition, military (Royal Signals) education and sheer enjoyment made it one of the highlights of the year, for both SORLS and the UOTCs. It brought together UOTCs from across the United Kingdom and would not have been possible without the support and enthusiasm of the units who provided stands and administrative support.

HEADQUARTERS 2ND (NATIONAL COMMUNICATIONS) SIGNAL BRIGADE & COTSWOLD GARRISON

NATIONAL VOCATIONAL QUALIFICATIONS

by Roland Manning, Comms Offr 1

HQ 2nd (NC) Sig Bde has been working in conjunction with the Communications Officer Grades Head of Profession, Mr S. Slade, and his Professional Qualifications Office, on a scheme to implement NVQs for CO Grades. This venture began in 1997 and by February 1998, the registration of the first candidates for NVQ Operating Telecommunications Equipment at Level 3 (OTE3) was complete. This included the establishment of a team of qualified assessors from the CO Grades themselves. At the forefront were staff from Army Communications Information Systems Group (ACISG), part of HQ 2nd (NC) Sig Bde. Candidates were assessed against national standards set by the TVSC by providing evidence of workplace activities to their respective assessor. May 1999 saw the first awards to ACISG personnel. They were Mrs Tina Brudenall (COMMCEN Corsham) and Mrs Nichole Rennie (COMMCEN Bulford) who, working with their assessor, Mr Barry Lister, of 243 Sig Sqn, completed their assessments between February and September 1998.

EXERCISE SUMMER EAGLE.

In April, Venning Barracks, Donnington saw elements from all units of the Brigade assemble for Ex Summer Eagle. This was a CPX that formed part of the preparation for the annual FTX, Ex Able Condor. The Exercise utilised the barrack square for most of the players who were vehicle based and the Robert Cook Building for those who were not; along with EXCON, HICON and LOCON. The Exercise was split into three three-hour slots of real time each representing 12 hours of Exercise time. Fast moving, interesting and dare I say enjoyable, the Exercise was a great success. It is the type of total training that everyone, at all levels, who missed it this year should ensure they attend next year as it is a 'must'. It was the culmination of many long days for the Brigade staff and especially our civilian typist Mrs Robbie Bragg whose normal busy day got longer and fuller as the weekend drew nearer. One could write a book covering the way some of the scenarios developed, especially toward the end of the third phase during a period of free play, as confidence and experience amongst the control staff increased and enterprise took over!

The first day culminated in a most welcome and enjoyable Smoker exceptionally well organised by 33 Sig Regt; who now have the richest PRI in the Corps. Just joking, I know that you were giving the beer away at £1 a can even if they were marked 69p! They also organised the entertainment which took the form of a Karaoke and I would like to report that:

The Brigade Commander led the way (as always) with, 'I did (do) it my way' - by Sinatra followed by:

Maj Phil Daisey SO2 LOG singing - 'Portaloo' - by ABBA

Maj Paul Hudson COS - 'Its all over now baby blue'

Maj Mike Wise DCOS - 'I've got to get out of this place' - by the Animals while not to be out done;

The Ops Room staff joined together to sing -Bohemian Rhapsody by Queen - all very, very frightening. and:

Flt Lt Farid Khan having had three ice cubes in his orange juice let loose with - ' I'd like to fly right up to the sky' - by Orville. It was a nice touch to wear the white scarf and flying helmet but painting himself green and wearing a nappy in that company was pure commitment to his art! but I can't report this - because it did not happen!

On the Sunday morning the Commander's 'O' Group for Ex Able Condor kept the 'head-shed' away while the remaining 200 plus enjoyed a static equipment display of the Brigade's communications equipment with BATES and ADCIS courtesy of the Royal Artillery. The morning finished with a short parade, an address by the Commander and the presentation of the Greenhill Trophy. Most will be aware that this trophy was presented by the late Col Greenhill and awarded to the officer ajudged to have made the greatest contribution to the TA in general and his or her Regiment in particular. This year against strong opposition it was won by Lt Ruth Middleton-Powell of 34 Sig Regt (V). The photograph shows the Deputy Commander, Col Douglas McLay, congratulating Lt Middleton-Powell on her award.

The week-end was a baptism of fire for our new SO1(V) Lt Col Steve Potter who joins us from 37 Sig Regt (V) on promotion. We welcome him and wish him an enjoyable, rewarding and busy tour.

BRIGADE AWAY DAY - 19 MAY 1999

A report on the Brigade staff day out from our Chief Clerk, WO2 Kath 'Why should I write for another Corps magazine' Fenlon AGC. This outing, meant as an informal break for Military and civilian staff, took several weeks of planning before the destination could be agreed upon. The final selection was an exploratory visit to the Montgomery Canal system followed by a visit to a stately home. Surprise, surprise it was left to the Chief Clerk and her merry band, namely Sgt Nigel Jones and Mrs Robbie Bragg to organise. Three vehicles left Donnington for Welshpool on 19 May; Powys Castle was to be invaded by members of HQ 11 Sig Bde.

Maj (Retd) Rollo Rumford G1/MS,
WO1 YofS Graham Pardew Bde Yeoman

The day started with a leisurely stroll along the steep inclines of the Montgomery canal, the Brigadier with much foresight brought a loaf to feed the bird life - Cpl Nigel Weir thought his share was elevenses and proceeded to demolish it with gusto. Cobwebs removed - coffee was next on the agenda. Nigel and I discreetly left the coffee drinkers in order to check that the Curator of the Powys Museum had actually remembered to open up for our party. After trying to remain calm at the locked entrance I frantically found a side door and reminded the Curator of the Brigade invasion. Brigadier approaching, door just opening - phew! I can live to tell another tale. The museum is a display of the history and development of life in Montgomeryshire from the earliest prehistoric settlers to the 20th Century Population, so you can imagine the shock as an exhibition of football memorabilia was the introduction to it. The Brigadier was fascinated by the notices and descriptions given for stolen sheep and Robbie was chagrined to find that kitchen items she remembers using are now museum pieces - I might add most of the staff remembered using them but would not admit to it. Lunch was at the Old Station restaurant which was situated amongst some quaint little shops. Shopping was a must for some members and I recall golf clubs and clothing to name a few items being loaded discreetly onto the vehicles. The Brigadier and his faithful driver Cpl Simon Emmett had to depart after lunch which left the rest of us to invade Powys castle (which has strong connections to Clive of India) and its lovely gardens for a few hours. A gentle and relaxing day away from the office; a good time was had by all.

FAREWELLS

At the end of April Maj Steve Bellerby RLC reverted to full TA status after having been a full time staff officer in the Headquarters for two years. Although strictly speaking he does not leave the Headquarters, his change in status is well worth a mention. His unending humour, helpfulness and ability to produce the goods while suffering constant harassment from the uninformed, will be greatly missed. He goes back to part time soldiering in order to devote time to his new business venture, in which we all wish him the best of good fortune. Another 'Wire Notes' period is over and so we begin the frantic preparation for the deployment on Ex Able Condor, maybe we can even deploy further afield .....Kosovo sounds good!

TRAINING

THE ROYAL SCHOOL OF SIGNALS

DATA AND SECURITY WING
INTEGRATED SYSTEMS MANAGEMENT GROUP

COMMAND DIVISION
EPILOGUE – TELE OP (DATA) RIP 12 MAY 1999
FROM TELEPRINTER OPERATOR TO TELE OP (DATA)
by Sgt Maughan, Tele Op (Data) - still/just Another historic moment occurred on Tuesday 12 May 1999 when the final Tele Op (Data) Class 1 Upgrading Course graduated at Blandford. Course ODUR 0298, were gathered together, before they returned to their Units, and photographed with the Chief Instructor Trade Training Division, Lt Col Peter Richards, OC Data Wing - Maj Andy Stokoe, Course Co-ordinator - Mr Mick Altham and instructors from Procedures Section.

The Tele Op (Data) trade, as we know it, evolved before the 2nd World War from the General Post Office (GPO) clerk/typist and was split into two types of operator: the Teleprinter Operator and the Signal Centre Clerk. At the end of the war these two trades were combined into one, which was called the Signal Centre Operator (Sig Cen Op), who had the job of transmitting and receiving formal signal messages and also the manning of large telephone exchanges. These were the days of COMCAN, 7B teleprinters, perforators, chad and chadless tape and Class 3 typing skills of 40 wpm plus.

Sig Cen Ops kept that name until around the end of 1961, which coincided with the run-down of National Service and the changeover from COMCAN to DCN. To move with the times the trade was re-named Communications Centre Operator (COMMCEN Op); also the job specification broadened with the introduction of new systems. Some of the first of the new professional 'soldiers of the 60's' who found themselves in this trade would have been delighted to find that they were working on the Siemens T100 teleprinter and the Electronic Perforator, both of which were capable of producing punched paper tapes at the previously unobtainable speed of 75 bauds!

Siemens T100R - known and loved by many

During training, many COMMCEN Ops were creamed-off to become Cypher Operators (referred to affectionately as 'Queenies' – or not as the case may be). One of the major attractions to becoming a Queenie was that on completion of basic trade training, the successful trainee was automatically promoted to full corporal (technicians, eat your hearts out!)

By 1972, with the increasing introduction of on-line crypto systems and one of the periodic declines in recruiting, a trade review took place and it was decided to revamp the image with another change of trade-name to Data Telegraphist, (DTG), 'data' being the catchword to attract people to the cutting edge of electronic communications techniques. The Cypher Operator as a separate trade was phased out. The DTG's main role was the running of the Communications Centre (COMMCEN), but as the word 'data' suggests, they were also being employed in an increasing way outside the COMMCEN in areas covering the handling of 'data', eg Satcom in the Falklands conflict, new computer systems, particularly in Northern Ireland, and also in the introduction of the Ptarmigan system, including in the early days, Wavell.

Diversity in employment
(Spot the D11 and the RY's on the test tape)

In the mid 80s, it was again necessary to review and update the employment roles of the trades in the Corps and a major career employment review took place, which resulted amongst other in the 'birth' of the Systems Op and another name-change for existing trades. The DTG was renamed Telecommunications Operator (Data) (Tele Op (Data)). The Tele Op (Sys) took over the main responsibilities for message centre operating and switching within the Ptarmigan system, whilst the Tele Op (Data) returned to their original role of predominantly static COMMCEN work – although any Tele Op (Data) posted to 30 Sig Regt in the last ten years or so might well disagree. Also during this time period, the Switchboard Operator ceased to exist as a separate trade and the vast majority of girls in this trade were absorbed into the Data family.

With the electronic revolution during the 90's and the onset of digitisation, it became feasible to pass secure message traffic from desktop to desktop via computer; the traditional COMMCEN was rapidly becoming obsolete, even more so when first of all fax machines and then Email as a daily routine became commonplace. As a result of progress, and the latest R Signals trade review (TRITT), the Tele Op (Data) trade has been consigned to the history books.

THE BRITISH ARMY COMBAT SHOOTING TEAM (B.A.C.S.T)
EXERCISE WALTZING MATILDA - AUSTRALIA 1999
Some notes from a wandering correspondent licensed to shoot and happy to travel.

This team was selected from the 12 best firers in the British Army from achievements of the Army 100 Queens Medal competition held in July 1998, which all Regiments, Units and Battalions can shoot pending the high standard required and achieving a consistent level of marksmanship.

Capt N. B. Navindra, the Officer Commanding Cable Systems Section and Sgt D. Copley, a Line Sgt Instructor with Cable Systems Section, both serving with the Royal School of Signals based in Blandford Garrison were selected for the BACST as members of the International Team shooting for Great Britain. The team were deployed to Australia from 7-29 May 1999. A tremendous achievement in service rifle competition shooting by the Royal Signals and the Queens Gurkha Signals, one that demonstrates that the Corps can fight on equal terms at close quarters with the best, with little or less time on training than their infantry counterparts. The training started whilst at Bisley by shooting in newly fitted barrels and partnering both the LSW and Pistol teams prior to deployment to Belmont and Greenbank ranges, Brisbane, Queensland. On arrival, the first day involved administration and the start of acclimatisation, which varied from monsoon season to climates that differed immensely compared to UK weather. At this stage the 'cool dude glasses' were donned by all with temperatures of 35°C +. This differed around our tented living accommodation area that was constantly muddy and Goretex was a must.

Too soon the competition was under way. There were several matches ranging from all distances and varied marksmanship principles, which involved many types of obstacles. The Australian Army applied some tactics throughout the competition that hindered the British Army Team, this was the disqualification or score penalties for those individuals that rested the magazines at any stage whilst in practices. After a little coercion from the team coach all firers adapted their positions to satisfy the Australian Range staff. The first event was the Pistol and LSW matches followed by a 6km Biathlon in extreme conditions with full kit. Four members were entered for this arduous match that proved to be a challenge. The following results were achieved out of 387 entries:

Match 5 'Director of Infantry'	Capt Navindra	5th place 189/200
Match 11 'inc Matches 1-10' (Australian Army 100)	Capt Navindra	20th Place 310/400
	Sgt Copley	25th Place 308/400
Match 28 'Team Snapshooting'	Sgt Copley	2nd Place 153.8/170 (Bronze Medallions)
Match 70x 'Applied Marksmanship 250/300 Practice'	Sgt Copley	8th Place 281/300
	Capt Navindra	52nd Place
Match 71x 'United States Chief Of The Army Reserve'	Sgt Copley	2nd Place 113/1500 (Silver Medals)
Match 76 'Military Biathalon' (6km inc six shooting stands)	Sgt Copley	6th Place 49.15min
Match 80x 'Section Match' (2 miles - 18 min)	Maj Dowell (R Irish)	541/570 1st Place (Trophy, Pennants & Silver Medallions)
	SSgt Yam Kumar (QG Signals)
	CSgt Gourley (R Irish)
	Sgt Copley (R Signals)
	Cpl Cousins (R Irish)
	Cpl Doak (R Irish)
	Cpl Mombahadur RGR)
	LCpl Bharat (QG Signals)
Match 85 'International' (Great Britain Team)	Maj Dowell (R Irish)	2160/2500 1st Place (Trophy, Miniature, Trophy, Pennant, Centrepiece, & Miniature)
	SSgt Yam Kumar (QG Signals)
	Sgt Copley (R Signals)
	Cpl Doak (R Irish)
	Capt Navindra (QG Signals)
	LCpl Bharat (QG Signals)
	RFN Dipesh (RGR)
Match 87 'Vicors Trophy' (Inc. all matches)	Capt Navindra	830/1000
	Sgt Copley	852/1000

All four non-infantry represented the British Army Combat Team to a successful result winning the highest of honours. Thereafter the selection from the team of 12 firers to compete in Match 85 as the Great Britain Team of eight firers, was a competition second to none which developed great pride and a successful win.

Once the awards were over arrangements were made for the two days R & R period which consisted of various visits throughout the geographical scope of Australia, thus the Gurkhas took advantage by travelling 12 hours to Sydney spending little time sleeping, only sight seeing was on their agenda. Overall a memorable occasion, even the tuition on surfing (which became painful), but the whole tour was a success for the British Army Combat Shooting Team and those selected to represent the Great Britain Team. There remains no doubt - top level sport is still alive and well in the Royal Corps Signals and Queens Gurkha Signals.

THE ARMY SERVICE PISTOL CHAMPIONSHIPS
BISLEY SATURDAY 5 JUNE 1999

The following individuals were selected from within the Corps to represent the Royal Corps of Signals, this involved firing the Service Pistol in Matches 11 (Practices 1 - 5) and Match 12. The scores and results were as follows:

Lt Col Hoole	Stage 1 – 265/300		1st place
	Stage 2 - 256/300		3rd place
	Total 521/600	overall	2nd place
SSgt Johnston	Stage 1 - 201/300	Not Qualified for Stage 2 (Pistol 30)
Sgt Copley	Stage 1 - 226/300		16th place
	Stage 2 - 227/300		9th place
	Total453/600	overall	10th place
Sgt Nirmal	Stage 1 - 176/300	Not Qualified for Stage 2 (Pistol 30)

ARMY HOCKEY CUP WINNERS

Well, yet again there we were, 11 Sig Regt in the last four of the Army Hockey Cup, this time though along with two other Signals teams…and some fellas from the Royal Artillery. No mean achievement for the Corps.

Although we had beaten 3(UK) Div and Sig Regt already this season there were several cautionary tales going around the minibus on the way to the game. Apart from anything else, we were missing three players from the regular team, Lt 'Splitter!' Simpson, Sgt Gary Duffy and Sgt 'Pieman' Sanderson. Nonetheless spirits remained high as we started the game. It soon became apparent that space in the midfield would be at a premium, with at least 75% of the central midfielders closing space down quickly and our own Maj John 'Steadying midfield influence' Stuart playing more of a holding/static role.

Regardless of this, it was 11 Sig Regt who made the brighter start and threatened with some nice passing and movement off the ball. Unfortunately after about 15 minutes we lost our way a little and let 3 Div back into the game. Although the back four were not unduly worried by what the opposition could throw at them, there was little anyone could do about the first goal. 3 Div had possession, about two yards from the goal line in the corner of our 'D'. Now there is no immediate danger in that, unfortunately a desperate shot took a cruel deflection of Sean 'They'll never score from a short corner!' Sutton flew over Sig 'I'm never late for a meet' Daniel and into the side of the net. Controversy strikes! The umpire immediately disallowed the goal for dangerous play, as 3 Div were celebrating. However several seconds later, after some thought, he reversed the decision and awarded the goal!!! Not surprisingly, we were not happy, but there was not a lot we could do about it and just had to get on with it which we did.

The game flowed from end to end with both sides creating chances, and some notable contributions from Sean 'Defensive Rock', Sutton, Sig John 'Hero in waiting' Edge, SSgt (SQMS) 'Where did I put that ball?' Moore, and Cpl Steve 'You're a big lad, now use it!' White. Unfortunately during the course of the second half Maj John 'TWANG!' Stuart pulled his hamstring, probably bending down to tie his shoelace, and was forced to move out of midfield and worry 3 Div from up front. In the end this may have been something of a blessing in disguise.

Half way through the second half we broke from midfield, moving the ball wide left and then as Maj Stuart turned, he played the ball into the 'D', where it fell to 2Lt John 'Admin King' Lyons, coming through from midfield, and onto the penalty spot. Stopping the ball, just long enough to control it and have a small heart attack, he slipped the ball low and to the keeper's left, rounding off a lovely flowing move. Following this both sides had chances to win the game but it was not to be, and extra time beckoned. As fatigue set in, the game opened up and more chances came and went until at the end both sides were spent and it came to the dreaded Penalty Flicks!! The five ~~un~~fortunates stepped forward: 2Lt John 'Has anyone got a stick?' Lyons put the ball past the keeper; Maj John 'Keep it low boys' Stuart put his over the keeper…and the crossbar...and the car park beyond!!; Sig John 'Tiff's anyone?' Edge and SSgt (SQMS) 'Blinding haircut!' Moore dispatched theirs. Leaving only Sean 'The Icemen cometh' Sutton to seal the victory.

This left us with the none-too-easy task of beating 16 Sig Regt in the finals. Having seen them in the other semi-final, they looked a pretty slick outfit. As happened the day before it was a game full of chances and some sustained periods of pressure for both sides, thanks to some committed and intelligent play. Again our game plan was to stretch the opposition, by moving the ball quickly through the midfield, then wide and to the forwards. Looking for support arriving late from the midfield, to unlock a compact and experienced defence.

However, at the other end 16 Sig Regt had their chances, notably when they had a good flick at goal denied by the shoulder of Sean 'Maradonna taught me everything I know' Sutton. As the game went on, the adrenaline flowed and tempers began to fray. Although to be fair one or two interesting umpiring decisions made life difficult, and unfortunately Cpl Paul 'I'm on first name terms with the General Staff' Evans was 'sin-binned' for sportingly passing the ball back to the opposition! Following this WO2 (SSM) Neil 'Do as I say, not as I do' Fisher was seen to be telling 2Lt Lyons to calm down, as we could not afford to have another player sin-binned for dissent. The young officer took the advice to heart; although not because of the Sergeant Major's years of experience, but because WO2 Fisher had just returned to the field after committing the same offence!

Although we felt we had done enough to win it in normal time, it was not to be and extra time was on the way again. Yet again it was 11 Sig Regt who led they way, using fitness and teamwork to produce the more attractive hockey. However the spectre of flicks came upon us again. The same five team members came forward for the slaughter one more time.

The officers, leading from the front, stepped forward and promptly missed both of them! This left us 2-0 down, as Sig John 'Cool as you like' Edge stepped up to make it 2-1. Then Sig 'Big man' Daniel faced their third penalty, having narrowly failed to save the first two, and made a great save. Following this the scores remained 2-1 as Sig Daniel moved into the goal and made a second save. It was now down to Sean 'No pressure!' Sutton to keep us in the match, which he duly did. Then following more heroics from Sig Daniel it was down to sudden death. The pressure was really on and as some could not watch it was Sigs Edge and Daniel who earned their money. 16 Sig Regt selected to go first and the experienced, Ex Army and Corps playing CO stepped forward to take the flick, Sig 'I'm not at all nervous' Daniel dived low and to the right saving a solid flick (then danced all the way back to the team bench). Sig Edge walked to the spot with confidence and with a well taken flick easily beat the keeper to win the Cup for us.

There were naturally some serious celebrations and the night was long, but distinguished – just like the pit stop we had on the way home, for details you should see the two heroes of the piece, after they've cleaned the minibus.

ARMY WOMENS VOLLEYBALL CHAMPIONS

by Sig Hampton

After qualifying for the ARMY volleyball championships, the Regimental female volleyball team put in a lot of hard training on Tuesday evenings with the Regimental male team. The championships were held in Larkhill on 4 February 1999. Unsure of what to expect the team consisted of SSgt Lindsey 'Lets Go' Manktelow, Sigs Emma 'Rab C' Brown, Lisa 'Who said white girls can't jump?' Lawton, Sophie 'Farmer' Giles, 'I don't talk much but can hit' Yule, and Steph 'Legs' Jackson. We were quite nervous especially when arriving at Larkhill the three other teams were warming up and looking very professional. Once the games got under way it was apparent the Cooks were quite good but not unbeatable. We fought to the end and eventually went on to win the ARMY championships. SSgt Manktelow, Sig Brown and myself were all selected to play for the Army in the Crown and Inter-Services tournament which was to be held over two weeks.

CROWN AND INTER-SERVICES VOLLEYBALL

The Crown Services is a competition between The Army, Navy, RAF and HM Prison Service. We commenced training with The Army men's team on Tuesday 4 May at Grantham. The team worked very hard between 0900 and 1600 daily and after only a short time improved beyond recognition. We all played well and enjoyed the games especially as some of the quirky on-court calls like '747 WHOOSH' helped to motivate the Army 'VIXENS' team. The Inter-Services competition was held on 14 May 1999 at Larkhill and although we had already played the Navy and RAF in the Crown Services we gave them both good games. We managed to take a set off the RAF, who play together on a regular basis in a civilian national league, which was a great morale boost for the team. As a beginner at the Inter-Services Championships I thoroughly enjoyed the whole experience. Next year expect the Army to be Inter-Service Champions!!

The Team

TECHNICAL MAINTENANCE TROOP

The Troop recently said goodbye to Maj Dick Offord on his retirement after 39 years service. Dick was OC TM Tp for three years and his farewell took up most of the day, starting with a bowling competition for all members of TM and Support Workshop. Dick donated a trophy to be awarded to the individual scoring the most points in a single game. A battle royal between Mr Percy Burgess and Sgt Duncan Shaw ensued, with Percy taking the Trophy with his last bowl. A Dining out was held that evening in The Langton Arms, where SSgt (FofS) Steve Davis 'dished out the dirt' on the Boss, and Dick let us all in to some previously unknown secrets that even his wife was unaware of!! An excellent evening was had by all, in a fitting tribute to a very popular OC. The Troop wish both Dick and his wife Marilyn all the very best for the future - we'll all be up for the barbecue soon!!

The Troop is now commanded by FofS Steve Davis and Mr Colin McIntosh moves up to be Workshop PTO. A major thrust on Specification testing has led to some very busy times for the Troop, though we have also managed to fit in some sport. Cpl Ady Worsdall has picked up yet another golfing trophy while Sgt Duncan Shaw hasn't - yet again! Cpl 'JR' Whitmey made the mistake of finishing second in his 110m hurdles heat at the Inter-Squadron Athletics competition - congratulations on being selected for the Regimental team! SSgt (FofS) Steve Davis is enjoying a successful start to the Sea Angling league, currently lying in fifth place in the District league - as well as providing a supply of fresh fish for the Troop! Finally, a warm welcome is extended to Mr Brian Mower (ex-Corps) and Mr Ted Pounds who have recently joined us.

EXERCISE GRID IRON 2 16-21 MAY 99

by Sig Rees

Sunday – The group assembled to the discordant tones of Sig John Parry and Sig Jim Rees. Sig Gail Evans parted with her stick insects ('Jodie' and 'Kate'), and then we were off to Capel Curig for a week's adventurous training. We arrived, were briefed on what was happening for the week and proceeded to organise our equipment for the following day.

Monday – We set out on our two-day expedition in the Snowdonian Mountains with Sig Barry White navigating the first leg. After carefully analyzing the map we took the path, upwards. The climb was long with a breathtaking view from the summit, unfortunately we had none left to give. Our joys were short-lived as Cpl Tony Brown pointed out the two other mountains, which stood between our chosen hilltop campsite and us. Points of interest were grass, boulders and dead sheep, all glazed over by Cpl Kerr Laye's trivia of the local surroundings. At the top of the final mountain we found that 36 German tourists had already laid out their towels on the summit and claimed their place. After some quality photographs we made our way down, Cpl Tony Brown ensuring we avoided all the gentle slopes on the way. The day was finished off with an in-depth lesson on ropes, climbing and safety.

Tuesday – Upon wakening up to a swipe from the fresh air cricket bat we emerged from our tents to a marvellous view of the foot of the mountain and wondered why we couldn't see the top! All was to become clear as we started up TRY FAN. Halfway up we were enthralled by Cpl Dave 'Eco-I am the Spider-Warrior' Allen's explanation of the formation of the surrounding area. At the top there were mixed feelings of joy and fear, not so much of falling but of landing. By the time we got to the bottom the mountain was 3km high (and I caught a fish this big)!

Wednesday - Today is rock-climbing day and as we emerge from the mini-bus the rock-face loomed like a big looming thing that has just come first in a looming competition. After a quick lesson on technique and safety Cpl Dave 'I am The Spider' Allen let us get on with it. It's amazing how some people can change when on a rock. Cpl Allen turns into a spider, Sig Morley takes so long he gets sunburned and turns into a lobster and Sig Parry turned into a limpet, getting half way, stating his personal definition of scared had changed and becoming at one with the rock. Cpl Kerr Laye did some impressive leading and Sig Gail Evans put us to shame when she went on to attempt bigger and steeper rocks.

Thursday – To canoe or not to canoe, that was the question posed by Sig Gail Evans as she was not too keen about water. Cpl Tony Brown explained some key features of the canoe, techniques and safety before letting us loose on the water. Sig Jim Rees was the first to go in, not happy with this he turned Sig Barry White's canoe into a submarine. In the meantime Sig Gail Evans got to grips with her canoe and conquered most of her fears about water.

INTER-SQUADRON FIVE-A-SIDE FOOTBALL

Thursday 13 May 1999 was the date given for the 1st round matches in the Inter Squadron five-a-side football competition. So with a few days to go it was time to organise some training and select teams to represent each Troop. WO1 Mark Elliot took on this task, ably assisted by Cpl 'Alfie' Alford. After a training session in the gym and two on the all-weather sports pitch two teams of similar ability were chosen. The first game of the evening was between Beaufighter Tp and Ulster Tp from 3 Sqn. A bout of early pressure saw Beaufighter Tp go into an early three-goal lead. This had the desired effect and Ulster Tp never recovered. By half time it was 4-0. The second half was a lot more even and Ulster Tp restricted the opposition to only two goals to make the full-time score a resounding 6-0 to Beaufighter Tp.

Next was a thrilling encounter between Iron Tp and Kohima Tp (organisers) from 1 Squadron. The first half saw some excellent attacking football from both teams countered by some even better goal-keeping. The half-time 0-0 score-line was a fair reflection on the amount of possession enjoyed by both teams. The second half started where the first had left off, with both teams playing open attacking football and trying to get that all-important first goal. As the match progressed mistakes started to creep in through sheer exhaustion and opportunities to clinch the tie came and went. The final whistle brought relief to the players and a well-deserved ovation from the watching supporters. A 0-0 draw was a fair result after such a fine exhibition of guts and determination.

Beaufighter Tp were back on again, this time against Rhino Tp from 1 Squadron. The previous match would be hard to live up to but this turned out to be just as exciting, and frustrating as the last. The award of a penalty to Beaufighter Tp failed to break the deadlock as the keeper managed to smother the ball. The first half was a well-fought contest and the teams were only separated by a wickedly deflected goal from Rhino Tp. All attempts to close the deficit in the second half were either superbly saved or agonizingly close. Rhino Tp defended their lead admirably and managed to hang on until the final whistle. Having won one match and lost the second Beaufighter Tp had to hope that Ulster Tp could win against Rhino Tp and rely on their goals scored in the first match.

To complete the involvement of both Squadron teams in the league phase of the competition Iron Tp were next on against Lightning Tp from 3 Squadron. After drawing their first match they knew that anything less than a convincing win would see them come runners-up in their league. The game got off to an excellent start with two early goals to settle the Iron Tp nerves. Lightning Tp managed to close the deficit to 2-1 with a well-taken goal, despite the enthusiastic support of OC Iron Tp WO1 Keith Fisher MBE. A settling down period followed and the game flowed from end-to-end. Iron Tp finally took hold of the game and put it beyond doubt with a further two goals to complete an excellent 4-1 win.

Once again the fate of a Squadron team would rest with the outcome of the match between the other two teams in the league. Iron Tp had to hope that Kohima Tp and Lightening Tp would either draw or one team would win by the odd goal. As it turned out Ulster Tp did Beaufighter Tp a favour and defeated Rhino Tp by 2-1 thereby leaving Beaufighter Tp top of their league and in the final the following week. The hopes for Iron Tp faded when Kohima Tp took a 3-0 lead against Lightning Tp in the final match in their league. That turned out to be the final score and Iron Tp won their league on goals scored! An all-2 Squadron final was just reward for the time and effort put in by all concerned.

With maximum points secured towards the Harrogate Cup it just remained to decide which team were to be winners and which to be runners-up. The game started at a furious pace as each team tried to impose their superiority over the other. Beaufighter Tp had a chance to take the lead when awarded a penalty early in the first half. A superbly taken kick unluckily rebounded off the post and Iron Tp were let off the hook. They took heed of this warning and after some excellent passing slotted the ball home to take a 1-0 lead. Half time gave the players and the crowd a chance to get their breath back. No sooner had the second half started than Iron Tp increased their lead to 2-0. A comeback of Manchester United proportions would be required if Beaufighter Tp were to recover. A well-worked goal half way through the second half saw Iron Tp's lead cut to 2-1. This meant the final five minutes would see Iron Tp trying to kill the game off by getting a third goal and Beaufighter Tp trying to get an equalizer and take the game to penalties. The equalizer came with two minutes left on the clock and while everyone was looking forward to penalties Beaufighter Tp had other ideas and won the game 3-2 with almost the last kick of the match. Thanks go to Kohima Tp for organising the event and Sgt Mark Meadows (RMP) for refereeing ALL the matches.

2 SQUADRON SPONSORED BOWLATHON

by Sig Lucking

Q. How do you raise money for charity and enjoy yourself at the same time?

A. Have a sponsored bowlathon of course!

Tuesday 27 April 1999 saw 2 Sqn hold a sponsored bowlathon at the Denbury Bowl on Blandford Camp in aid of Breast Cancer Awareness (Scotland). WO1 Keith Fisher MBE and Cpl Steve Riley had carefully organised the event to ensure there was always someone bowling and no one missed any trade training. Both Iron and Beaufighter Tps were heavily involved and various 'personalities' took part throughout the day. Bowling shoes definitely brighten up a uniform although the RSM may not agree. The idea was to get sponsorship for taking part or for the number of strikes and then bowl until you drop. Sig Crooks had the top number of strikes with 47 and Sig King raised the most amount of money £145 – Well Done!

The day was split into two periods, morning and afternoon, with various courses and individuals putting their skills on display. In the evening anyone could take part for a small charitable donation and a lot of the daytime bowlers returned for more 'finger torture'. This also had the added bonus of 'the bar' which made the competition a little more interesting as with 'Lager guided' sights the bowls didn't always go in the intended direction. Thanks go to everyone who helped organise the event and those that took part, a great time was had by all. With £2500 raised for the charity the day was a tremendous success.

EXERCISE LIGHTNING FOLLY 1999

On the weekend of 16-18 April 1999 the Squadron embarked on another series of annual exercises. These run in conjunction with Ex Lightning Warrior and Ex Lightning Challenge, confusing enough for the staff who run them, so obviously totally confusing for the trainees! This particular series (Lightning Folly) are run over a weekend period on Salisbury Plain Training Area. They enable the trainees to get out of the classroom and hopefully enhance some of the skills taught in Phase 1 training.

After the initial move out and Friday night sorting out their admin, Saturday is spent rotating around various stands. Whilst most of the stands are intended as revision ie: First Aid and Map Reading others introduce variety like self-defence and clay pigeon shooting (invariably these are well received by the trainees). Saturday night is taken over by the night Navex enabling those who paid attention during the Map Reading lecture to get a good night's sleep as it only takes them a couple of hours to complete the course. For others, well isn't it frustrating going through the same checkpoint two or three times wishing you had paid attention or even asked questions!

Sunday usually involves a day on the ranges before returning to Blandford. The problem with this is that we have to rely on a civilian bus company turning up at the right time in the right location (that would be a novelty). After some frantic communications on those forbidden mobile phones the transport did eventually turn up on time to return everyone to camp. Roll on Ex Lightning Folly 2/99!

THE LIGHTNING TROPHY

In late 1997 14 Signal Regiment (EW) presented The Lightning Trophy to 3 (Harrogate) Sqn. It is to be awarded to any Telecommunications Technician (Radio) Basic who achieves an 'Outstanding' result on completion of their course. Sig Bartrip received his award on 14 May 1999.

11 SIGNAL REGIMENT FEMALE TEAM LANYARD TROPHY WINNERS

by Sig Gough

The team: Capt Sophie 'Boss' Davies, SSgt Tina '2nd time loony' Edwards, 2 Lt Lindsay 'fancy a stroll' Calderhead, 2Lt Mogs 'anyone for hockey' Southern, LCpl Sarah 'Mad Medic' Jordan, Sig Jackie 'Look at Me' Davies, Sig Tammy 'Don't mess with me coz I'm hard,' Whalley, Sig Carol 'fitness freak' Barrett, Sig Liz 'Oh Lovely' Burley and Sig V 'Follow that bum' Gough.

Admin Team: Cpl Ian 'Dr Death' Bibby, Cpl Elaine 'Admin Star' Ralf and Cpl Mac 'I'll tape your feet' McArthur.

The training had been long and hard, but the day had finally arrived. Nerves soared and bladders weakened. Our brilliant blue T shirts almost glowed in the early morning sunlight as we tried the impossible not to be seen squatting behind bushes.

'30 seconds to start.' The teams sped off all fighting to get ahead. The start pace was hard and fast but that was nothing compared to what lay ahead of us.

'Just jog it down the hills girls,' shouts Capt D.

'That's not a hill, its a slight slope downwards - are you trying to kill us?'

Over stiles, through fields and woods, narrow paths, wide tracks, roads, up and downhill, windy and straight. You name it we walked it.

'Don't follow them they have gone the wrong way!'

'But it's downhill that way, I'm sure no one will notice'

'No, up the hill we go. Dig in girls!'

Check point 1 - 'Drink, eat, we're not stopping' The sweat streamed down the reddened faces as quick water refills and grabbing of food bags took place. The heat rose in our boots as blisters began to form. At this stage we were right on the heels of 30 Sig Regt trying to 'psyche' them out. We had, however, seen no sign of the female team from 15 Sig Regt.

The feeding station- 'Sig Jackie Davies is yelling for a water refill and decides to do a quick camera interview, Sig Carol Barrett is shouting for scissors with her boots off and Cpl McArthur's magic hands set to work retaping them, whilst she is holding food in one hand, a fag in the other and trying to drink at the same time. Sig Tammy 'No shame' Whalley blatantly pulls down her trousers and rubs deep heat into her legs whilst staring at the video camera. Captain D is yelling in one word sentences for everyone to eat and drink. LCpl 'Mad medic' Jordan skillfully dishes out enough painkillers to numb the aches and pains and in a flash the team once again were off. The route from the Feeding Station to Checkpoint 2 was one of the longest and dullest legs and we were very glad to see that 30 Sig Regt were still only just ahead of us at Checkpoint 2.

Our team was now down to eight and we were all determined to finish. Our spirits rose as we were told at a crossing point that 30 Sig Regt now had only seven people in their team. At least we'd be runners up! Just as we approached the last checkpoint knowing that we only had just over an hour to go, Cpl Ralf came running down the hill shouting that both 15 Sig Regt and 30 Sig Regt had only got seven people in their teams. Our spirits soared - we could win this! After 12 hours, 16 minutes and 40 miles of sheer hell, 11 Signal Regiment were the winners. 'We came, We saw, We conquered' What a feeling!

The new term kicked off on 3 May, a Bank Holiday Monday (such is College life!), with the seniors continuing with their education and the arrival of the new intake, 99B. This term, the College adopted a policy of a 'soft' introduction into the Army for the new intake to reduce injuries at the early stages, with the first week (induction week) consisting mostly of lectures and theory lessons, and the Apprentice Tradesmen (ATs) wearing trainers. Also this term we warmly welcomed Lt Sarah Pedder from 259 Sig Sqn, Cyprus who took over as OC Penney Tp from Capt Kyra McAnulty. She is still trying to get used to the weather back home, having spent an 18-month tour in Cyprus, even though it is summer here!

THE VIEW SO FAR FROM INTAKE 99B OF SCOTT TROOP

Six weeks have passed since the day we all arrived, for some probably the scariest day of their lives. We were greeted at the Military Training Wing with a mass of smiling faces from the instructors and less smiling faces from the new recruits. We signed loads of paper work and received £20 for actually turning up! The next week which was called induction was filled with loads of sitting around and listening to lectures, oh .... and yet more paperwork. On Wednesday of the induction week we were introduced to our military kit which would be our only source of clothing for the next six weeks. We tried it on, we tried our boots on, we tried to come to terms with it, all our efforts failed and we were stuck with it!

We think that the first time any of us began to miss our mothers was when we were taught how to iron and look after our kit. How many times did we see tramlines representing the M6 running up our lightweights, or white sleeves where we had over starched them to death? If we weren't in our green kit, we were in our Corps tracksuit and Silver Shadow trainers. We don't think one person had a tracksuit that fitted properly.

The next four weeks went really slowly and were mainly days full of lessons and lectures; Education, Skill at Arms, Health & Hygiene, Security and loads more. It was really only in the fifth week when you could notice a real team being formed from the ranks of Scott Tp and this was clearly demonstrated on our OC Squadron's inspection and 'Passing off the Square', at which we all performed really well. Now we have our civvys back and are allowed to go into Reading. The next question is, when does it all get taken off us and they take us back to Week One again! The staff would do it!

EXERCISE SPRING SPLASH (TIGER) 99 – 16-25 APRIL 1999

by Capt Tom Jeffries

This was a Sub-Aqua Diving Adventurous Training Expedition for Apprentice Tradesmen (ATs) from the Army Apprentices College (AA Coll), Arborfield to Estartit, Spain. Estartit is a well known diving resort on the Costa Brava featuring the 'Illes Medes', a group of unpopulated offshore islands designated as a marine reserve. Dive sites range from 5metre plateaus to 30metre plus drop offs and a wide variety of locations in between. Fish-life is plentiful and varied with several large species, visibility is 8-10metres and water temperatures are reasonable. Following the new training programme for the BSAC Club Diver course, 12 senior term ATs and six members of staff were ready to go diving in the week following the end of term. Easier said than done, just a minor thing of the Pass Off Parade to complete first. Somehow we all made it!

Friday morning we assembled and loaded the minibuses for the long haul to Spain. It was through the Channel Tunnel and miraculously out the other side on the 'wrong' but correct side of the road! Whilst the non-drivers squirmed and burrowed their way into ever more contorted sleeping positions around the seats and luggage, the drivers 'stagged on' for 2 - 3 hour stints of driving, navigating and sleeping in rotation.

Saturday we at last reached Estartit, checked in with our dive charter company and the apartments. The afternoon was spent resting, admin and briefings. Also the novel experience for the majority of being issued with their CILOR money and going shopping for food to live on. No Mum, Army Cookhouse or even a 24hr compo pack – Help, what do we do? Does it really cost that much! How much do we need?!

One day's diving is very much like the rest but with two outings a day we were all kept busy. As the week progressed the diving skills improved and more challenging dives were undertaken. Sig 'Tour de France' Burr finally stopped peddling underwater, whilst Cpl 'Lawrie' Askin went hunting for his two REME underwater Leopard crawling specialists! Meanwhile SSgt 'Adie' West (JSIO Chicksands) was still trying to coach his REME students in the art of rescue techniques on the surface, resulting in more real drownings and green floating bits than rescues! Underwater as the confidence grew so did the encounters with the fish-life and the tales - 'It was this big!!' Octopus and Sea Cucumbers for some reason seemed to be of most interest especially to Huw Richards (L & IT Wing)! By Wednesday the pace of the week was beginning to tell and Sig 'Pte Benjamin' Thornton was suffering with 'sea sickness', again! Sig 'H' Harrington became an expert in maintaining the dive slate and snorkelling. The final day's diving featured a cave swim through rock arches and a wreck dive. So good experience was gained by all and at last we were all getting used to the fish-life demanding food from us and not being so panicked when they were constantly in our face.

All that was left to do was get home following the last night party. All that 'Block Job' training paid off; all apartments cleaned, bags packed and Pigs ready to fly by 1000hrs. Well nearly! As usual the minibuses seemed even more cramped on the way home but everyone managed to squeeze into a space somewhere and settled into the long haul home. The trip was relatively uneventful except that there seemed to be no end to France.

EXERCISE SARAH SANDS SECTION ATTACK

As we patrolled through the sand track and got further away from our friendly forces, the realisation that I had been given the position of Section 2IC finally came to mind. Everything I had been taught passed through my mind and before I had time to piece together the information, we came under fire. I flashed back through our practices and used them as a model basis for what I was about to do. Within seconds I had emptied a magazine before I remembered it was wiser to conserve ammunition. ' Stop!!' came the order from the Section Comd and the next thing I knew Charlie fire team were about to peel off to the right. As Delta fire team commander, I was shouting orders so as to facilitate the best possible covering fire for the attack. The assault team began to crawl towards the enemy and as they charged forward, weapons switched to automatic, screaming war cries with their best war faces, I had to remember to switch fire left to avoid a 'blue on blue'. The Section Comd gave the command to 'RE-ORG!!' and we all ran up the hill, sweating but excited, to join our section. As we reached the back of the destroyed enemy position we came under fire again! We were already rushing with adrenaline and soon saw the next pestering foe dealt with. A quick search of the enemy dead and we were left with the jubilation of success.

EXERCISE SARAH SANDS - OBSERVATION PATROLS (OPS)

by AT Hardy

After a briefing from our Tp OC, Capt Holloway, we set off on our Operation led by Cpl Cullen. We drew close to the enemy position using the wind to cover our noise and allow us to move faster through the undergrowth, which was quite thick. After bumbling too fast and making too much noise we decided to pull back and advance again from the right flank.

We established our first RV and it was decided that I, AT Hughes and AT Haddock were to wait in all-round defence while ATs Harrison and Handley went in closer for the Forward Observation Point. They quietly moved away on their hands and knees. It seemed about an hour before they came back. They had observed two people in DPM clothing, armed with SA80s and sat around a fire eating rations. The conversation was kept to a minimum although later OPs claimed they had French accents and addressed each other as 'French Fry and Rost Bif'.

We thought we had enough information so we tactically withdrew back to our harbour to report our findings to the Troop Commander.

The Squadron has been quiet on a sporting front over the last two months but is about to start the next round of competitions. Already members of the training teams are being urged to try their hand at a number of sports. What is quiet on the sporting front is made up for on the administration of the Squadron. If it seems like there are a lot of changes in the ORBAT there are. If you lose track you should try working here! As ever the Troops are continuing to cope with full Troops of up to 50 soldiers at any one time. With a pass out every two week the pace is as hectic as ever. The 2IC Sqn, Capt Mick Boyle, still manages to find time to keep up his creditable performance at triathlon and has recently returned from the Army Triathlon Training camp in America. He also took part in the Army Sprint Distance Triathlon Championships held at Bassingbourn. The team from Bassingbourn won the minor unit competition an improvement on their second place last year. He also took part in the Army Olympic distance Triathlon held in Bournemouth and was part of the minor unit winning team.

ALPHA TROOP
Tp Comd Lt J. Balfour
Tp Sgt Sgt B. Clark

The Troop would like to say goodbye to Sgt B. Turner who has moved across camp to Echo Tp and welcome Sgt 'Where's my lunchbox' Clark posted in from 7 Sig Regt. The Troop would also like to say goodbye to Cpl 'Geordie' McBean who is off to 249 Sig Sqn AMF (L) at the end of July. The Troop has recently climbed the height of Snowdon on the indoor climbing wall in aid of The Princes's Trust. They are hoping to beat their previous total of £1600 raised for the Army Benevolent fund.

BRAVO TROOP
Tp Comd Capt C. D. Roberts
Tp Sgt Sgt P. Matheson

The Troop would like to say goodbye to Cpl 'Ritchie' Richardson and Cpl Young who have moved on an inter Coy/Sqn transfer to C Coy the Queens Division and 28 Engr Sqn respectively. Many thanks for all your hard work during the time you have been with the Troop and good luck setting the example at your new Coy/Sqn. Cpl Young in addition has continued to perform well as the Cpls Mess PEC. Not an easy task with the diverse number of Cap badges at an ATR. We look forward to welcoming into the Troop; Cpl Ramsden and Cpl Payne on their arrival in the near future. Cpl Henry our exchange Corporal from New Zealand has been travelling the length and breadth of the UK visiting units and getting to know most of the train stations the country has to offer. In particular she has watched the Trooping of the Colour and almost met the Queen, but not quite. Capt Roberts continues to linger in his office and plan his next sailing trip and looks forward to a posting order in the near future (hint, hint MCM Div). Sgt Paula Matheson is down at Pirbright learning the finer points of a good right turn at the halt on her drill course. We look forward to her return and the subsequent drill lesson that will follow just in time for pass off. Cpl 'Take two extras ' Mackenzie is particularly looking forward to her return so that he can hand over the reins of Troop Sergeant to her.

CHARLIE TROOP

Congratulations to Capt Liz Allan on her promotion from Lt. She was presented with her Captains rank slides by CO ATR Bassingbourn Lt Col I. A. J. Condie Royal Signals on the 14 June 1999. In true fashion the sound of popping champagne corks followed shortly.

DELTA TROOP
Tp Comd Lt Bates
Tp Sgt Sgt Park

The Troop says a fond farewell to Sgt Smithurst who has departed for 19 Mech Bde and welcome to his replacement Sgt Parke from 3 Inf Bde N.I. Internal Regimental moves are, Cpl Kelson who has moved upstairs to Bravo Troop for a short time before her posting to MCTC (not as an inmate). Her replacement is Cpl Perry R Anglian from C Coy The Queen's Division. The Troop has recently raised £1200 for Leukemia research.

ECHO TROOP
Tp Comd Lt A. Flay PWRR
Tp Sgt Sgt B. Turner

Welcome to a new Troop OC, Lt Andy Flay PWRR who has moved across from C Coy the Queen Division. Lt Simmonds has moved across to 28 Engr Sqn and will no doubt settle in quickly with her quiet, unobtrusive manner. Other moves are Sgt Carter who has now moved to Wray Coy and been replaced by Sgt Turner from Alpha Tp, Cpl Cleworth has moved to C Coy and been replaced by Cpl Kidd from Charlie Tp. Congratulations go to Lt Simmonds on her passing flight grading and good luck with the course.

FOXTROT TROOP
Tp Comd Lt S. Coeshott
Tp Sgt Sgt Graham

Foxtrot Tp welcome Cpl Rob Usher, his wife Sharon and nipper Krystal into the Troop after posting from 28 Engr Sqn. Goodbye to Cpl Gav Wilson and his family who are moving to Wray Coy. Also a goodbye to Cpl Brain Sheard who after passing 'P' Coy and Jumps, getting the tattoo and shaving his head is taking himself and his wife Nikki to 216 Para Sig Sqn in Aldershot. This should be a welcome break from all the hard work he used to do. They will both be missed. Congratulations to Cpl Steve Stoker's wife Michelle, on the birth of their son Kieran. Hopefully Steve will be able to find his way back to work after such a hard time.

NEWS FROM THE BALKANS

1 (UNITED KINGDOM) ARMOURED DIVISION HEADQUARTERS & SIGNAL REGIMENT

A missed (our fault) entry from 1 Div in Bosnia which is worthy of inclusion!

Being based in the Banja Luka Metal Factory is not much fun as anyone who has been there will know, and the opportunity to leave the complex is very limited, but when the opportunity to pick up a project, that was started by our predecessors, arose it was grabbed with both hands. The school at Kulijana, just a few kilometres from the HQ, was in a sorry state of repair. There were no useable toilets, no water and other than the decorating work done in the classroom, little effort had gone into the upkeep of the school for many years. It was in grave danger of closing, as the local education director could not fund the repairs, and the prospect of a 10km round walk for the first grade pupils was fast becoming a reality.

The effort started with a Christmas Day visit to the school with toys and presents for everyone and a year's supply of stationery kindly donated by Dudley Stationery and shipped out with the help of RSM 'Blod' Godwin of 71 Signal Regiment. The QM, Maj 'Butch' Maycock, took his team to spend the morning with the kids who put on a great show and sang Christmas songs, (even though the Orthodox Christmas was some days away). Cpl 'Taff' Phillips and LCpl Eddie Law tried to join in but their Serbo Croat left the kids mystified, After the celebrations they were bombarded with snow along with LCpl Jules Cope who was to later blame this on him getting stuck in a ditch for two hours on the way back. The next day the QM's team organised a Free Jumble Sale for the villagers who went away with clothes, shoes and toiletries - but true to form, no Combat 95 was given out! Sig Louisa Rodriguez became very broody handling the baby clothes but at the time of writing is still without child.

The task to make good the repairs on the school was taken up by RSM Mark Schofield. He and his helpers, Sigs Trev Reilly, Mark Neelings and Cfn Phil Jerwood scraped, filled and painted everything in sight. Assisted by Turners' Geordie the Plumber, European toilets were fitted and local 'Chippie' Morno made and fitted new double glazed windows and frames. Fund raising for the project went on apace thanks to the efforts of SSgt 'Ginge' Morgan and his Sgts Mess quizzes and the Charity Football Auction run by Cpl Daz Chantler ACC. Practising his best Serbo Croat, the QM mobilised the teacher, Gordana Erceg and the villagers to dig the trench and fabricate the manhole so that the water company could connect the mains supply. The QM staff raised funds to buy and present a new TV set to complete the Educational Aids package for the school and on the final farewell visit the news that funds had been raised for the start of the refurbishment of the second classroom was met with great delight.

Dragocaj Psychiatric Hospital for geriatric patients also benefited a great deal from the Regiment's G5 work. Hundreds of clothes and blankets were delivered by the CIS Sqn and SSgts Jina Hook and John Leach each led teams to decorate and refurbish benches for the summer. Deliveries of food, wood and other goods were made on a regular basis and a great many soldiers volunteered to help and talk with the patients. Medical facilities at the Banja Luka Central Hospital are scarce and the delivery of Volumetric Infusion Pumps, Pulse Oxometers and a great many boxes containing thousands of syringes, pipework and other medical paraphernalia was effected by the QM and Sig Trev Reilly. All the equipment was donated by UK hospitals and the staff at the Banja Luka hospital were very grateful,

The QM Dept with the teacher and kids of Kulijana School (L-R): Sgt Alec Dack, Sig 'Chad' Chadwick, Sandra Arsenic, Cpl 'Alfie' Garnett, LCpl Jules Cope, Sig 'Rodders' Rodriguez, Sig 'Rat' McLean, Cpl 'Taff' Phillips, Gordana Erceg (Teacher), Maj 'Butch' Maycock

The day before departure and hand-over to 1 Mech Bde HQ & Sig Sqn left time for one more final run into town to see the Herceg family of six young kids and one more soon to arrive. Cpl Alfie Garnett managed to keep his hands off all the chocolate but we couldn't stop Sgt Alec Dack from playing with the cuddly toys. After delivering the clothes, toys and shoes the convoy returned, separately, much to the annoyance of the CO 1 QRI, who wanted the drivers hung, drawn and quartered after being split up by a Serb policeman with a weird sense of humour. Despite Sig 'Chad' Chadwick bringing the city's traffic to a standstill the two Rovers could not make the journey back together and this called on the very suspect map reading skills of Cpl Garnett to find the way back - or was it Angie, the interpreter, who showed him the way? A great deal of thanks must go to the many soldiers who helped in the projects both practically and by fundraising. The people of Bad Salzuflen gave most generously to the fund raising and the children of Kulijana will now keep their school as a result.

Inspecting the trench for the water connection for the school. (L-R): Maj Butch Maycock, Gordana and Sinis, WO1 RSM (now Capt) Mark Schofield, Sig Trev Reilly, Cpl Brad Swinton (kneeling), Miss Erceg

Maj 'Butch' Maycock and the kids of Kulijana School, the maths isn't correct but the drawings are good!

ON TOUR WITH 7 SIGNAL REGIMENT
THE INTREPID ADVENTURES OF 3 (UK) DIV HQ & SIG REGT

The first of April saw the second deployment of troops from the Regiment out to Macedonia. Of course, we all hoped (incorrectly) that it was an April Fool's joke. Many hours later and after a near miss with a Tornado we were stood in a huddle at Petrovac waiting for someone to come and tell us what was going on. In fact no-one from the Regiment came out to meet us as they were all eating donuts at the American base (more from Lt Dave 'Pass me the fried chicken' Jackson's San to follow) but someone else duly arrived and shortly we were at CP7 at Skopje.

After a day spent testing kit our San (The glorious Fourth, shortly renamed 678) had to deploy to the refugee handling centre at Brazda, just 5kms from the Kosovo border. The deployment was of course at midnight and just to make things complete it was raining. As dawn came we were able to see the camp we would be calling home for the next two weeks. As the days progressed the camp steadily grew in size and at it's peak over 30,000 refugees were living there. Members of the San crew often helped out during the distribution of food, in particular such unlikely Samaritans as LCpl Andy 'I do it for the kids' Bennett, LCpl Stevie 'The body' Joyce and Sig 'Really new' Melia. As would be expected the service provided by the San was first class and LCpl Andy 'Why do I have to be in charge?' Wright was soon a familiar figure in the HQ. Everyone else spent their time wisely, playing Goldeneye on the N64 until we completed it just days before we packed up. A quirk about 7 Sigs is that the Squadron we worked for (232 Sqn) has a tradition of playing music during early morning conference calls. Full marks to Radcon's Cpl Danny 'Marmite King' Adams, playing 'We've got to get out of this place' by the Animals.

As soon as the two week jaunt at Brazda finished it was time for 3 Div to save the day again with an immediate deployment to Albania to help AFOR by providing some immediate communications capability. Leading the composite 3 Div/7 Sigs team was Capt Alex 'OC SCS' Fennell, accompanied by Sgt Jim 'I want action' Watt, Cpl Mick 'Liaison Officer' Preece, Cpl Danny 'Get me out of CP7' Adams, LCpl Andy 'Love Machine' Bennett and Sig Bob 'I get lots of mail' Rankin. Even with the distraction of being filmed by a Polish News crew, for most or the trip, the OC didn't get lost on the ten hour drive and we arrived at our destination to discover that the HQ was not set up and we were the first people there. In true Corps style we grabbed the best rooms, set up a Tacsat link back to Macedonia and hit the bar. More people began to arrive and by the second night nearly half of the team (now calling itself Independent (UK) Radio Troop) deployed to locations round Albania to help deal with a major Refugee problem. As this is written we have moved locations twice (we are now by the beach) and we are still the only Unit here to provide a secure theatre-wide comms system. The Americans are now feeding us and this is miles better than the Italian camp next door, we have just about got our accommodation sorted and we will have met the Secretary of State for Defence by the time this is printed. No doubt the detachments at Kukes (led by Sgt Watt and including LCpl Bennett and Sig Rankin) have already been on TV. In short, the sun is shining and life's a beach man.

4 ARMOURED BRIGADE HEADQUARTERS & SIGNAL SQUADRON (204)

OSCAR TROOP
Tp Comd — 2Lt P. McTurk
Tp SSgt — SSgt Johnson

Life in sunny Macedonia is improving slowly. Day by day more people arrive and although catering for such a large headquarters is placing a large strain on the Troop, the staff have shown their appreciation by laying on an impromptu barbecue for the Squadron. Appreciation was also shown after a short CPX during which the Troop went back to their roots and moved the basic armoured complex very quickly, several times simulating one of the contingency plans for the move North. After the Exercise Sgt 'Titch' McGiffen organised another barbecue with Leprechaun racing and an Irish Band care of the Irish Guards Battle Group. It was an excellent night even though Sig 'pot-bellied' Dinsdale's version of Riverdance left a lot to be desired.

May has been particularly busy with loads of visitors, in addition to the high ranking military and political visitors which included the PM, we were visited by children from Petrovac school who spent the day climbing all over the various armoured vehicles and operating a Foden to recover a bag of sweets from a minefield – decidedly more interesting than a helicopter when you are 10. When their transport arrived to take them home they practically refused to leave. Overall a good day enjoyed by the lads almost as much as the children and with coverage on national TV which all helps relationships with the Macedonians.

Brig Baxter, made an informal visit to speak to all the Signallers. He covered future plans for the Corps and took away numerous suggestions about how to improve the lot of a Brigade Signal Squadron. We have been very grateful for the help of the augmentees from 1 and 3 Div as well as some new members to the Squadron from training. We hope the occasional supersonic booms and other strange noises don't worry them too much.

The temperatures are now reaching into the thirties every day and frequent, violent thunderstorms make life interesting for the RRBs. Despite the rising temperatures we are fast approaching the half way point of our tour and everyone is now looking forward to getting the job done.

PAPA TROOP
Tp Comd — 2Lt Dave Hill
Tp SSgt — SSgt Norm Finnegan

On deployment to Macedonia on Op Agricola, Papa Tp was spread to the four winds to do a variety of different tasks, however we still have a few hellos and goodbyes to say. Firstly we would like to say goodbye to Sgt Tim Hopkins who leaves us for 7 Sigs, Cpl Mick Preston and LCpl Del McCallion who both leave the Army this summer and LCpl 'SS' Smale-Saunders who heads off for CAFTC (G). On a happier note we welcome Sgt 'Swany' Swanston, Cpl Scott Day, LCpl 'Mac' McKenna and Sigs Fraiser Anderson, Dan Tooke, 'Dinger' Bell and 'Taff' Evans.

RADIO TROOP

Another day another dollar or Troop depending on where you are standing. As we're currently in Macedonia this means that the Squadron needs a Troop of rebros so here we are. The Troop is comprised of the Squadron's three armoured rebros and four others, kindly lent to us by 3 Div. So here we go with the largest of all welcomes to, Cpls Nav Elliott, Phil Oulton and Shean Richardson, LCpls Jim Kemp and Glen Shepard and Sigs Steph Catney, Charlotte Driscoll, Dave Durward, Sam Hall, Steve Keogh, Iain Johnson and Matt Scott. We are also lucky to have a helping hand from 1 Div so we also say hello to Sigs Simon Burns and Jim Freear. We hope you will all enjoy your time with the Black Rats!

WHAT A START!
by Sig 'Taff' Evans

On arrival in Macedonia on 20 May, we (Sigs Tooke and Bell) received our first impressions of the Balkans. After a detailed brief at the Theatre Reception Cell we were ushered into the waiting transport and sent on our way to meet the Squadron for the first time.

After becoming acquainted with the local mosquito population during the night, the first task was to 'acquire' some mozzie nets before an introduction to the Squadron and being sent off to our first jobs. Having just arrived from Phase 2 Training in Blandford we quickly found out we were actually called Sprog, NIG and Novice instead of Bell, Tooke and Evans. We were soon given a slot in the squadron working under the watchful eye of Cpl Jim Pearsall who introduced us to the new disease of 'panzer rash' and the Alternate Headquarters vehicles that had just arrived from Germany.

After our initial introduction to 43 vehicle maintenance life picked up pace with a two day FTX and the post exercise turn around in the Macedonian heat, 35 degrees C! I'd better get back to work before I get roped into another pack lift!

REAR PARTY
OC — SSgt Tony Waite

The valiant few 'Rear Party', who were left behind to administer the needs of the Headquarters and Signal Squadron's families whilst their spouses are away on duty, have been extremely busy ensuring that the Squadron is in good order when the troops return, hopefully in September. The social scene has picked up to such a degree; HRH The Duke of York came to check out the local NAAFI Bar 'Munroes'.

The ladies of the Squadron were in good humour and took the opportunity to voice their concerns over back to back tours and other contentious issues. The GOC, Maj Gen Watt, visited the families in 'Munroes', where he held open and frank discussions with the ladies of the Squadron; over commitments being the main talking point, with Sgt Stu Leadbeater hovering in the background. The month finished off with a visit to the Squadron Families Centre by the Deputy Garrison Commander for a meet and greet coffee morning. Judging by the visitors it is obvious that Osnabruck is the place to be as I am sure the Lads and Lasses on operations would agree.

ATTER SCHUETZENFEST 1999 - by Sig Simon 'Lost and' Found

The day started with SSgt Tony Waite, Sgt Stu Leadbeater, Cpl Kev 'Where's my wrestling pants?' Swallow, LCpl's Rueben White, Dougie Douglas and myself. Firstly a little history about Schuetzenfest. A few years ago the Sqn 2IC became a member of the Atter Shooting Club and every year at the crowning of the King and Queen he invited a few members of the Squadron along and the tradition has carried on ever since.

It all started on a Sunday morning when, after a little improvised map reading via mobile phones (we are signals after all) we found ourselves in a field in Atter. There were a few closed stalls and a Warsteiner beer wagon, so that seemed a good place to meet up. We met Frau Gudrub Mulder who welcomed us to the Schuetzenfest and proceeded to buy us a round. At 12 o'clock some bearded guy with a great big sword started to shout something in German and people were running around forming into line, we were then ushered into the file. With Sgt Stu Leadbeater whispering the translations to the drill commands, we found ourselves setting off to a band. The march itself only lasted around 20 minutes and we found ourselves outside the King and Queen's house. After a bit of ceremony everyone moved into the backyard and started to mingle, there was a very good spread put on (apart from the raw mince on bread – yuk!!) and people walking past with trays of beer to pass out. A second group turned up and we thought 'we are off', but then we noticed the old boys in the corner taking off their jackets, placing them on chairs, a trick they developed from beach towels.

Outside the bearded bloke with the sharp sword started to shout again and everyone once again moved into file, the ceremony started again, then everyone moved back into the garden, all I can say is there weren't enough chairs (remember the old boys, a lesson learnt here). After about another hour the bearded bloke started shouting, we found ourselves marching off around the estate. At every mile a woman turned up with a schnapps bottle and forced us to drink it and definitely boosted morale while we were marching (RSM's take note). On return to the field all the stalls were now open. We paraded in front of a stage area so that the president of the shooting club could make a speech. Speeches over, it was back to drinking German style. About 6pm the duty driver came to pick us up and take us home. I was in bed for about 1830 and that was me until 7am the next morning. Well that's not bad for my second day in Germany, roll on next year.

BACK TO BACK IN THE BALKANS - by Capt Paul Buck

I was on Exercise within 48hrs of arriving in the Squadron in March, and the pace of life doesn't seem to have let up at all since then. Everybody in the Squadron has been working exceptionally hard and there isn't much that we don't know about erecting or moving tents. Eventually we have settled into some semblance of routine as we await for the latest news of a move North. Things are becoming easier as more augmentees are assigned to help us out – it almost seems like old days for myself and the 2IC, Capt Sue Barnard as so many of 1ADSR have 'volunteered' to join us here. Finally, we wait! Will we or won't we? The one consolation in recent days has been the arrival of 216 Sig Sqn and 5 Airborne Bde. Instead of dashing into Kosovo within hours of arriving and stealing our glory, they now have to sit in the same field as us and watch the view. We now have some friends to sit and wait with. Welcome boys!

1 MECHANIZED BRIGADE HEADQUARTERS & SIGNAL SQUADRON (215)

COMMS TROOP
Tp Comd — Capt A. J. R. Stead
SSgt — SSgt D. Gosney

The Troop like birthday candles are now firmly in place and burning brightly on the hill tops and in COMMCENS throughout our slice of Bosnia-Herzegovina. The move in was a complex operation of crew swapping, handovers, and route finding. With the 1 Mech personnel in place the summer refurbishment started and has not stopped with more inspections than weeks in the tour. When our predecessors departed they left the snow behind leaving Sjertokosic and Vitarog inaccessible until June. The Resup Team has been on the go since day one with routine re-supply and the odd bizarre request. The altitude has obviously effected some more than others, LCpl Campbell and LCpl Appleby to name a few. The COMMCENs in the foreign camps are having some interesting experiences especially with the food, mixed showers and the inevitable language barrier. COMMCEN Ljubja speak more Czech than English now and entertain themselves at night with guess the meat for dinner. Cpl 'Gaz' Williams and LCpl 'Wills' Williams have persuaded Sig 'Penfold' Andrews to join the brotherhood and he is changing his name over R&R. Congratulations to LCpl 'How many minors?' Miners on the birth of his son, Patrick. With a shortened tour everyone is staying on the same site for the duration so the great escape is R&R. Those that get a couple of days in Banja Luka Metal Factory, see how much fun it is and realise why they are better off out of the way.

MOBILE TROOP
by LCpl Lawrence 'Loz' Clegg
Tp Comd — Lt P. R. D. Muir
SSgt — SSgt P. Storey

On 15 March, Sabre Troop reformed as Mobile Troop and with the rest of the Squadron deployed to the Balkans on Op Palatine. The movement from Split to Banja Luka was an eye opener for those driving for the first time in theatre, Sig Sean 'Cheesy' Knight managed to use more than just the road on the journey. During our short time in theatre the Troop have been tasked with many details and two Exercises. Two of the Troop require map reading courses when we get back to Tidworth. Lt Frank 'Magellan' Muir who took a bearing whilst stood on top of an AFV436 and got two completely different readings and LCpl Tim 'Pathfinder' Cooper who was pleased to return back to Banja Luka after a day driving the CO around Zagreb City Centre. We also have two new SFOR radio DJs, Cpl Aidan 'Smashie' Williams and Cpl Austin 'Nicey' Gambles, who are helping Media Ops blast the air waves with their renditions of Aqua and the Spice Girls. Keep up the good work fellas.

The Troop would like to welcome Cpl Phil 'Pip' Crowther from 20 Armd Bde, Cpl Sean 'The mouse' Kelly from 14 Sig Regt, Cpl Charles 'Gadget' Smith from JCUNI and finally LCpl Scott 'Slimboy' Devenay from 7 Armd Bde. Congratulations to SSgt Paul 'Maggott' Storey and his wife on the birth of their newly born son and to Sgt Neil Pollitt on being promoted on posting to 1ADSR. Finally a special thanks to Sgt 'The love doctor' Pollitt for writing to various Newspapers in the South of England for pen-pals, I wish we could put some of the photo's in The Wire, but we wouldn't want to offend.

HEADQUARTERS TROOP
Tp Comd — 2Lt P. Brunton
SSgt — SSgt B. Watson

After nearly three months in theatre life is calming down enough to take stock of what we have done so far. As 2Lt Pete 'The slightly built ginger officer' Brunton was assured by our predecessors that 'nothing ever happens in Bosnia' the NATO air strikes began. 1(UK) Div were last seen giggling on the bus to Split as it disappeared out of the camp gates. Since then SSgt Bob Watson has been attempting to break the NATO free style chain smoking record. The alert state rose steadily with the temperature and the workshop was kept busy deploying FRTs. Sgt Ian Kingsbury did his bit for local relations by taking a wrong turn and driving through a riot. After 4 FRTs, 2 Engineer taskings and a helquest Sgt Arun discovered that the lack of SCR coverage in Razrvje was due to 3 (UK) Div removing the repeater a year ago. Sgt 'Scott' Margison continues to challenge the Child Support Agency's monopoly by writing to a vast collection of middle aged single mothers with 'bubbly personalities'.

The shift workers continue to develop huge eyes and pallid skin from spending too much time in Div HQ. Cpl 'Kev' Tharby and his RADCON team provide the shop front for the Regiment with the daily conference call, with back room support from Sgt 'Bernie' Steadman and the SYSCON crew. Sgt Sean Meadows maintains his reign of terror in the COMCEN ensuring a constant flow of both signals and coffee whilst cultivating his yeti-like haircut. The ISM team, under the watchful guidance of SSgt Steve Owen, have been building their own empire to the rear of the workshops, as the various organisations in theatre offer anything they have to get their computers fixed. Equally in demand were Cpl 'John' Kelly and LCpl 'Matt' White's Line and Telemech det who haven't had a spare moment in-between installing phone lines and fibre-optic lays throughout the AOR.

SPLIT AO TROOP

Tp Comd — Capt R. Sellwood
Tp SSgt — SSgt McNeill

The 14 strong Split AO Tp, 'The Dirty Dozen', was formed for the tour from 3 (UK) Div HQ & Sig Regt and 30 Sig Regt. All have settled in well, gaining modest sun tans and a taste for barbecues. All are finding the workload demanding compared to our normal working environments. The Troop has had the odd chance to get out, flying with 7 Sqn RAF produced a photo opportunity as LCpl Phill 'Mr Wobbly Guts' Browne lost his last three meals. Congratulations to Capt Rick Sellwood on his marriage, Sig Ed 'Old School TG' Brown on the birth of his daughter, Franchesca.

226 SIGNAL SQUADRON GROUP HEADQUARTERS 4 ARMOURED BRIGADE

OPERATION AGRICOLA

Sqn Comd — Maj Rob Meinertzhagen
SSM — WO2 (SSM) Al Jenkins

The Sqn Op finally managed to deploy in late March with the help of the RAF, LUFTWAFFE, Civ Air and a favourable head wind. Like all great military plans, our deployment did not last first contact with the enemy. The enemy in this case being the RLC movers. This resulted in vehicles deploying in the wrong order and half of the Squadron being flown to Greece. On arrival at Thessaloniki the move to join the rest of the Squadron Group can only be described as the 'convoy from hell' as we charged through Greece at break-neck speed in the company of the Greek Civil Police, Greek Military Police and two DROPS wagons carrying ammo, the briefing given, 'Stay close, go as fast as you can and don't stop for anything.' However, we arrived unscathed and following the normal Gateaux and posterior social event, all elements of the Squadron are now deployed, with dets in the British, French, Italian and German AOR.

Notable events so far have included Sgt Andy 'McNab' Davies deploying his dets to the top of a mountain and not being able to get down without the RE building a track, SSgt (SQMS) Glen 'What do you want that for' Kitchen and his blossoming romance with the BOWO, Sgt Jez Ward's det learning the difference between Alpha, Bravo and Zulu time and LCpl Davie Kerr getting a brick to the back of the head while driving - the locals are so friendly!

HEADQUARTERS 4 ARMOURED BRIGADE

by SSgt Mark Wilson

Personnel: Ops: WO2 (Yeoman of Signals) Dick Rutherford
Int: SSgt Nobby 'Full Mooney Looney' Clark
SSgt Al 'Joe Sociable' Grundy
SSgt Mark 'Smut King' Wilson
Tech support: Cpl Paddy 'Duty Driver' Garvey
Comms det: LCpl Davie 'Wan' Kerr
Sig Richie 'Smokin tabs an' drinkin beer' Cranswick
Sig Graham 'Junior' Ludditt

The Squadron has several personnel employed within HQ 4 Armd Bde, which is in a field at a secret location in Macedonia. Only known to 12000 NATO troops, the population of Macedonia, the entire British press corps and a chap called Bernard. Although, its location still eludes the SQMS. Within Headquarters, the Squadron Cell is housed under canvas donated by Billy Smart which contains all the G2 assets (all those Int types). This is connected to the Headquarters elements, canvas by Chipperfields, where all the important things happen. The Cell responsibilities include liaising with KFOR, the BDE and various foreign Liaison Officers on the deployment of our assets and replying to as many pen pals as the postal system will allow. In our short time here we have managed to move four times, always at least six inches to the left, by the end of the tour we should be on the Kosovo border.

HQ 4 Armd Bde Cell

POSTINGS IN AND OUT

Posting in: none, but anyone is welcome. Postings out: we would all like to wish Sig 'Junior' Ludditt all the best on his posting to the Admin Support Element, after cutting his teeth on his first operational tour at this location. We must also mention the earlier departure of the OC, WOI Thirsk and WO2 'Squirrel' Jordan, who after a few days of comfort here, decided it was best to 'rough it' at ARRC, oh, those slippers really hurt!

On the sporting front a start has been made on the silverware collection. LCpl Kerr, organised a Squadron team to play in the Brigade five-a-side football tournament, he was unable to witness their magnificent victory, as he was spammed for pan bash moments before kick off.

280 (UNITED KINGDOM) SIGNAL SQUADRON (LANDCENT)

Sqn Comd — Maj Hutchinson
RSM — WO1 (RSM) McKenna

Life continues apace in the Squadron. Our commitment to Bosnia has increased once more – the irony that we held our Bosnia End of Mission Parade last November has not been lost on many. With the exception of one individual, we have not as yet been sucked into the commitments of Albania/Macedonia, although there have been rumblings of deployments from our NATO lords and masters.

ALPHA TROOP

It's been all change for Alpha Tp recently with the OC, Lt 'Queeny' Todd being replaced by new arrival 2Lt Higgs, who we would like to welcome and wish all the best. The Troop has also managed to lose SSgt Tony Barker to the Training Wing, he'll be greatly missed for all the work he has done for the Troop over the last two years. SSgt Roberts has just arrived at 280 and taken over the Troop, we would also like to welcome him and hope that he settles in quickly.

Inter-Troop Athletics took place at the end of April, with winning performances from Sgt 'Trev' McSween and LCpl 'Jez' Greenlee, giving us second place on the day and keeping the Troop on top of the Commanders Cup. The majority of the Troop have been involved in Ex Combined Endeavour 99 during May, which was held down at Lager Aulenbach, near Baumholder. The remainder have stayed on camp preparing the Troop's fleet of vehicles for their annual TUV inspection.

Congratulations to Sig Thompson for passing his PTI course and becoming the latest 'gym queen' in the Squadron. Congratulations also to Cpl Steve Slaughter on getting married at the end of May, the Troop would like to wish them all the best for the future.

EXERCISE COMBINED ENDEAVOUR 99

by LCpl Neil Wright

Members of 280 (UK) Sig Sqn have recently returned from Ex Combined Endeavour 99, held at Lager Aulenbach between 6-20 May. Combined Endeavour is a CIS interoperability workshop, under the United States European Command (USEUCOM) Partnership for Peace (PfP) programme. The aim of the workshop is to identify and document Communication Information Systems interoperability between NATO and PfP nations from Europe and Asia. The objective is to gain a greater understanding of the equipment used by these nations in order to allow the future deployment of a joint or coalition headquarters with complete CIS interoperability. 280 (UK) Sig Sqn under LANDCENT deployed two switches and associated personnel to Lager Aulenbach, home of the German 345 Artillery Battalion, where it joined the thirty other nations, each with their own communications equipment.

Cpl Caban, 280 (UK) Signal Squadron, performing the daily ritual of 'FLYING THE FLAG'

Senior members of 280 played a key role in making the Exercise a success, Capt Dave Stewart was Chairman of Switch interoperability testing, while WO2 (FofS) Martin Flather was OSC for one of the four multi-national divisions. The remainder were split between operating our own switch and working for the Joint Interoperability Test Command (JITC), which involved testing switches, transmission systems, LAN/WAN, VTC and also assessing Network Management procedures. Away from the rigours of the Exercise, several social events were organised, including a day trip to Trier, a river cruise along the Rhine and Bavarian theme evenings which were especially enjoyed by everyone. A 30km speed march also took place that was well supported by 280, with Cpl Ian Wells finishing third and Sig Lesley Ryall striding into first place in a time of 2hrs 35mins.

BRAVO TROOP

Tp Comd — Capt Richard Craig
Tp SSgt — SSgt Graham Weavers

The last couple of months have been a busy time for the Troop preparing for the annual TUV inspection. On the sports front, the Troop has also been busy, storming to victory in the Inter Troop Athletics Competition with notable performances from Cpl 'Barnie' Barnett in the 100m, Cpl 'Ronnie' Radford in the 400m and the Troop Captain, Cpl 'Stu' Wilkinson in the long-jump and 4 x 100m. The whole event was decided in the final race, with the Troop winning the 4 x 100m, claiming full points and beating Alpha Tp into second place. Staying on the physical theme, six members of the Troop took part in the Sqn's entry in the Lanyard Trophy, the R. Signals annual 40 mile march. Everyone enjoyed the event, despite some terrible blisters. The team achieved a very good result, finishing 13th place out of 30 teams who entered.

On a sad note, the Troop said a fond farewell to Sgt 'Baz' Eglington, who has moved to become Families NCO at Colchester, goodbye and good luck in your new job. The Troop is presently busy preparing for deployment to various areas of the FRY, such as Banja Luka, Mostar, Macedonia, Albania and in Greece, where Sgt Chris Read is living it up in a hotel, trying to blend in with the local population (Chris get those side burns up).

CHARLIE TROOP

Tp Comd — Lt Emma Rae
Tp SSgt — SSgt Heath Baker

TROOP HELLOS AND GOODBYES

Firstly, welcome to the new members of our Troop: just arrived from Blandford LCpl 'I'm writing the notes so I won't give myself a nickname' Drummond (advise from Tp Ed – it's always better to choose your own name, or else!); and from 30 Signal Regiment Cpl Crawford 'Sammy' Samuel and his wife Lisa.

Sadly, we have to say goodbye to two older members of the Troop: Sig 'Jurgen – I must apologise' Richens, who after getting married on 5 June 99 will join 14 Sig Regt in Brawdy. The Troop wish you both the best for the big day and Pad's Ville and we will all miss your laugh! Also, farewell to Sig 'Cat Killing' Wild who is joining 15 Sig Regt. Their leaving do took us to the 'Lukvllus' Greek restaurant; a night with plenty of beer and ouzo, followed by plenty more beer. The drive home was quite profitable (Wasn't it Sig 'Memorabilia' Wildridge?) Good luck to you both.

DEPLOYMENT

The past month has seen a change round of personnel out in Bosnia; returning from Mostar Sig Matt Wild and Sig 'Nobby' Styles; and from Banja Luka Sig Si Richens and LCpl 'Interesting' Theobald, along with a brief visit from Sgt 'Short Tour' Dunbar for the Morrison Cup. And, out to replace them went LCpl 'Swampy' Rickard and LCpl 'Cookie' Cook to Mostar, and Cpl Crawford 'Sammy' Samuel to sunny ol' Banja Luka. Anyway, let's hear what they have to say:

CHARLIE TROOP FORWARD

BANJA LUKA KA KA KA: Detachment personalities are as follows: Sgt Wayne 'Lord Lucan' Dunbar, Cpl Andy 'Admin Vortex' Hunter, Cpl Featherstone 'Year cheers for that!' Haugh, Cpl Sammie 'Where's the bar?' Samuel, Sig Phill 'Pokeman' Clarke and goodbye to Sig Simon 'Penpig' Richens. Well, summer has started here in sunny Banja Luka and the Det is now getting proficient in the fine art of sunbathing and the delicacies of fobbing off Staff Officers. After many welcome trips to the re-opened CD stand and viewing the local sites, morale remains high. Of course, this has nothing to do with the fact the Det is going home in about 20 days!

Life, as always, remains extremely busy; and the amount of graft that the Det members are putting in due to computer illiterate 'customers' is on an all-time-high. The following crew (yep, our replacements from B Tp!) can look forward to installing the new exciting system which we are sure will give the SOs something to chew on in the not-so-distant future. The famous 'Two Can Rule' is still strictly enforced in this location, but there was some entertainment recently – a local band, 'Balkans Express', provided much needed musical distraction in the Tent, oops, I mean Bar, no Tent..... Well, life goes on as slowly/quickly as one can take it and we are all looking forward to returning home in the disguise of bronze gods!

MOSTAR: In April the Troop's commitment to Operation Joint Forge doubled with the re-introduction of the Mostar Det. The HO/TO was swift and sure - not surprising considering it was the team we trained and handed over to 6 months ago!! The Operations and Maintenance team in MND (SE) currently consists of the following personalities: Sgt 'Baby Oil' Rigby, Cpl 'Gimp Trek' Simmonds, LCpl 'Milk Bottle' Rickard, LCpl 'Chicken Legs' Cook and Sig 'There goes the Teddy – again' Anderson. Recently relieved and sent homeward were Sig 'Not so' Wild and Sig 'Nobby' Styles after completing a mere fleeting visit to theatre! And further changes will occur when Sgt Rigby gets his new posting to 3 'Civ' Div in July.

Although the week days seem long with all this hot weather, the weekend soon comes around and we enjoy a barbecue with our American and German friends. Unfortunately, once the barbecue is lit the British weather turns up without invite. The team also enjoys the weekly trip to Sarajevo on the Admin run and this is also a chance for decent food. Who started the rumour the French are good chefs? Despite being in Bosnia with the dangers of Ops, the Det still takes part in regular activities such as wholesome running and training in the French and German gyms. However, the team are perplexed as to how LCpl Cook achieves unaided movement with those legs! Anyway, enough of legs (and the lack of them) and onto arms: all members have to perform 50 press ups when coming on shift – although Cpl 'Hercules' Simmonds breaks his down to manageable five rep packets. Unfortunately, the almighty Charlie Tp will be handing the Det over to Bravo Tp in a few weeks time – let's hope the standards and comms don't drop TOO much – eh lads!

INTER TROOP ATHLETICS

28 April and who could have picked a hotter day for the Inter Troop Athletics. By the end of the day the Squadron was a Squadron of sunburned faces (and heads for the balding members) and aching bodies. With six 'Troops'/Departments entering in the event it was a close contest from the start to the finish. Unfortunately Charlie Tp did not do as well as we should have done (actually achieving sixth place) but with only five people in the Troop who were able to enter (the rigours of being deployed) we put up a good fight. Sig 'Sunny' Lowe was our Troop champion, entering in almost every event there was to enter. Sig 'Heed' MacDonald, our muscle man, did a great job in all our throwing events: Hammer, Javelin, Shot Put etc. LCpl 'Kurt' Molden entered all of the Jumping events (failing miserably) and a few running events, but watched everyone pass the finish line before him. Sgt 'Christoff' Porter did a great job in all of his events, especially the final dash to the finish line in the 4 x 400m relay, which was a close event. Finally, Lt 'Emma' Rae did her bit too. As the day came to an end and the trophies were all handed out, it was back to the barracks for a Squadron barbecue where everyone got stuffed, sociably happy and listened to a few tunes from the Squadron band 'The Happy Flowers'.

AND FINALLY

A special goodbye to one of the happiest members of our Troop, LCpl Kurt Molden – 'lover of women, leader of men' (his chosen words) who took everything with a smile, never bothering to moan when things got him down. Good luck at 1 (UK) Div.

BERLIN HALF MARATHON 26 – 29 MARCH 1999

SUNDAY – THE RACE

We were all up early, as we had to commute across the city for a race start of 1000hrs. Not too hot for the beginning of the race, and everybody felt good (apparently). First over the line from 200 was Sgt Ned Kelly, closely followed by Cpl Matt Baber and SSgt Tony Barker. Potential PTI Sig 'Tommo' Thompson came in with a time of 2hrs 8mins and very bad food poisoning. After the race we went back to get changed. From there it was all out for an Italian meal, everybody that was apart from Sig 'Tommo' Thompson who still complained from a dodgy stomach. A big thanks to WO1 (RSM) Mick McKenna for organising the event, which was a great success.

MECHANICAL TRANSPORT TROOP

MTO Capt Kev Jones
Tp SSgt SSgt Rick Nolan

MT Tp would like to say a few farewells, to LCpl, now Cpl Dave Lewis, off to sunny 14 Sig Regt, Sig 'Taff' Brown to 3 Inf Bde Sig Sqn, keep your head down mate, and to Sig Charlie Lister off to 15 Sig Regt slipper city. Hello's go out to LCpls Steve Gator, Mack McGennity, Sig's Rick Sinclair and Scott Johnson. Best wishes to everyone. Congratulations go out to SSgt Rick Nolan and Janine on the birth of their baby daughter Leah. Now that the football season has finally finished, and the MTO and Cpl Keith Betts are now on speaking terms, the final score on the crate chart is 12 crates to nil. (The boss being a Man United fan and Cpl Betts an Arsenal fan). Never mind, Chelsea will be top next season up the blues. Well done to all the lads in the Troop for coming first in the Inter-Troop Orienteering Competition, who says we can only read road maps. The Troop has a very busy two months with TUV, the German inspection of all vehicles within the Squadron, and setting up for the Morrison Cup, we are now looking forward to our summer leave.

NEWS FROM NORTHERN IRELAND

XV HEADQUARTERS NORTHERN IRELAND & 15 SIGNAL REGIMENT

CO Lt G. J. T. Rafferty
RSM WO1 (RSM) A. Balsdon

The last couple of months have seen the work rate increase within the Province with the annual panic to complete visits and such prior to the marching season. Many projects are now nearing completion but yet more seem to suffer delays. Amidst all the chaos the Regiment has just won the Birtwistle Pennant for Sporting Achievement which just shows that it pays to enter all sporting events.

HQ Sqn conducted an Illegal Vehicle Checkpoint Drills (IVCP) course 5-7 May 99 in Thiepval Barracks and at Ballykinler Training Centre. The aim of the course was to revise members of the Regiment on IVCP Drills and pistol fire and manoeuvre, and to promote confidence in working in pairs with live ammunition. Students were drawn from 225 Sig Sqn, 233 Sig Sqn and 39 Bde Sig Sqn, all of which undertook pistol weapon handling tests, competence shoots, APWT (NI) and the NI Advanced shoot prior to the live firing exercise. Cpl 'Ash' Ingham then undertook to blow their minds with an afternoon of Tactical driving theory and a map reading from vehicles exercise.

Day Two saw the course discovering the delights of IVCP theory, with the move to Ballykinler for practical demonstrations and practice. WO2 (SSM) Russell and Sgt Carter then demonstrated practical car drills while the students looked on and pondered on their ability to suppress the enemy with fire power. Suffice to say we will not be using 9mm BFA's again! With enemy deployed on the training area, it was now the turn of the students to find out just how difficult it really is to drive, react, manoeuvre, fire and extract. Congratulations go out to LCpl Hamilton of 233 for his outstanding driving during the course and Sgt 'Ginge' Davey of 225 who discovered that his car had five gears, all of which worked in reverse! During the afternoon, confidence and drills improved dramatically, and joined by Cpl Temple and the MTO, Capt Howell-Walmsley, scenarios were increased to include the most varied of 'actions - on', which in one instance, left LCpl Wade of 39 Bde Sig Sqn hanging upside down from his seat belt.

Day Three saw students taking part in the live firing battle exercise conducted by WO2 (SSM) Russell. This was a great success, both students and DS agreed that more live firing should be incorporated into the next course. Our thanks to the enemy that assisted us on the day, and the students, who's hard work and commitment, led to a successful conclusion to what was a very important and worthwhile course.

Another busy month goes by in the Province with new systems coming on line and going live with the Squadron heading up most of the projects installation and training. Preparations for the Marching Season go on with evaluation of training and testing of all equipment's and personnel in case we need to deploy to assist the Troops on the ground. Capt Jules Walster tied the knot with Maj Ewan McColl, Army Dental Corps on 4 May 99. Capt McColl we wish you and Ewan the best for your future together. There have been too many new arrivals and departures to mention but Maj Giles thanks all those departing for their hard work and loyalty during their time with the Squadron and welcomes those who arrive in the Province during an ever changing and challenging time.

TM TROOP

Tp SSgt SSgt Shaun Cook

Once again we start with welcomes, goodbye's and congratulations to several members of the Troop. Welcome to Sgt Kev Wood, LCpl's Rachel Jacklin and Chris Renshaw on arrival to the Province we all hope that you have a safe tour. Congratulations go to Sgt's Billy Belshaw, Lee Norman, Cpl's Chris Holt and Amanda Verrall on promotion, and a well done and pat on the back to Sgt's 'Selly' Selkirk, Paul Cleet and their wives Jackie and Suze on producing two new members of the Corps. (One way of reducing the manning problems in the Corps!)

With the major changes going on within the Province this is a very busy period for the Troop this in turn has led to SSgt 'Bod' McDonald losing more than his fair share of hair, juggling ongoing projects with the normal fast balls and then trying to fit in Rugby, Athletics and leave, well this has taken its toll on the poor lad. Sgt 'De De' Watts is doing his best to prepare for life with child by trying to tunnel his way out of camp (last seen heading west) and taking with him our entire H&S kit (white helmet). Perhaps this is also to do with the personnel he has to work with as you can see many in his section have their own cross to bear and Sig Steve Allan has a bigger one than most as the photograph bears testimony.

Despite the normal work commitments the Troop has also organised a very successful Charity Car Boot sale in aid of the Station Riding for the Disabled Branch of the saddle club (no way was the sale organised so that SSgt Cook could see off his dodgy gear!). A very successful day was had mainly due to Sgt Micky 'I can sell sand to Arabs' Mann and his committee of LCpls Paul Harris, Rachel Jacklin Sigs Daz Mugford and Kev Orr. A total of 250 English Pounds was raised, and those who had stalls also managed to off-load some tat to unsuspecting members of the public.

Sig Orr – down a hole

The inter Unit Athletics competition held on 29th of April was held during a day of bright sunshine (yep the Met Lads get it wrong at times) and all our aspiring Seb Coe's were wheeled out. There were some notable performances but I will not steal the thunder of the person who will write the notes for the Squadron, suffice to say WHERE WERE YOU 225?

COMMCEN TROOP - HORSE RACING EVENING

In order to boost inter troop relations the Squadron holds a function/ competition night every month. Staff 'Jacko' Jackson asked for volunteers to organise the event and Cpl 'Taff' Davies (having had some small experience in the past) volunteered. The time was mid February and Taff thought that there was plenty of time to sort out the function and decided to go for a 'Horse Racing' night. The Squadron 2IC, Capt Jules McColl (Nee Walster) had set the date for Thursday 22 April and it was now mid March. Time was slowly running out for Taff! Finally, with two days to go, Cpl Davies is still waiting for the other Troops to give their numbers for who is attending and how much food they require. With some help from Sgt Phil 'The Horse Man' Robson the finer details of the event were soon completed.

On the night of the big event, it seemed as if there was going to be a pretty poor turnout but soon all of the Seniors came flooding in from a mess meeting and there were soon fifty or so members of the Squadron in attendance. Each race started off with the horses being sold to the prospective owners. Once all of the horses had been sold, people were allowed to place their bets and the starting prices were then worked out (we didn't want to lose any money!!) The event soon turned into an Inter Troop competition, with a Trophy to be won (and a more important crate of lager) by the Troop that owned the most winners. It was an eventual draw between SHQ and India Troop. Capt McColl generously decided that India Troop could take the Trophy as SHQ had won most of the cash. The prize giving finished just before closing time, allowing some celebrations and many people drowning their sorrows over the 'Donkeys' that they had backed.

NORTHERN IRELAND SKILL AT ARMS MEETING (NISAAM) 1999

Over the period 12-16 Apr 99, the Regiment entered a team into the NISAAM competition, held at Ballykinler Training Camp near the Mourne mountains in the south of the Province. The Regiment had to provide a team of ten 'crack shots' to compete in the NISAAM, but unfortunately had a team of ten willing volunteers instead. Starting in early March and leading up to the event, a number of training days were held at Magilligan Ranges and on the Lisburn indoor range under the expert eyes of team coach Sgt Dave Scanlon.

The NISAAM started on the evening of the 12th, with a brief in Ballykinler from the Team Captain, Capt Gareth Oliver. After encouragement from both the Captain and the Coach to shoot well throughout the week, the remainder of the team then set off to find our beds and 'recce' the limited NAAFI facilities.

The first day of shooting was a practice and zeroing shoot and proved to be a thorough introduction to the different weather patterns that Ballykinler could throw at us. Between the hail, snow, rain, high winds and periods of bright sunshine we practised all of the competition shoots, including FIBUA, Moving Target and Pistol. On the Wednesday, the competition began in earnest. We were competing against 2 RMP, 25 Engr Regt and 21 Log Sp Regt in the Major Units (Iron Sights) category. Within minutes three of the teams had decided that they had to beat a certain other team (the odd one out wore Red Berets). Between each shoot there was ample time for NAAFI breaks (and for Sig Hannam to eat yet another grease burger) and luckily we were finished by mid afternoon.

Thursday proved to be a more productive day, with a positive start provided by the emergence of hot water from the taps for the first time. The team had four shoots to complete throughout the day. The best (but non-scoring shoot) was the Clay Pigeon stand where we all tried mostly without success to hit the strange breed of Day-Glo orange birds. The CO Lt Col Rafferty and the new RSM, WO1 Balsdon visited us in the morning. In the vastly improved weather, subtle remarks from SSgt Rob Allen about RHQ issue raincoats and the X-files were almost ignored by the wearers. The final day meant an early start and a two mile march and shoot with a 0730 report time. The finale of the week was the falling plates competition, with the CO, RSM and OC 233 (Maj Giles) amongst the spectators. Our hopes were high with potential snipers in the form of LCpl Wayne Meeds, Sig 'Simmo' Simpson and Sig Andy Pennock competing for us. Everyone tried their hardest but unfortunately both our A and B squads were knocked out in the semi-finals. Soon it was time to return to Lisburn. We had achieved a credible third out of the four teams, but, more importantly, everyone had had an enjoyable time and had improved their shooting - which we all admit, was in need of improvement.

ARMY SEVEN-A-SIDE RUGBY COMPETITION

by WO2 (SSM) Doz Day

The Regimental Rugby team received an invite to the annual Army seven-a-side tournament, sponsored by Primary Management, which was held in Aldershot on 19 May 1999. On a dull and wet Northern Ireland day the ageing but experienced team left to pit our skills and know how against the best in the Army. This included teams from each Division and Germany. The team got off to a flying start with a win against 1 RRW, from Germany, with excellent work from Capt Guy Bennett, WO1 (SMI) Ian Shaw and the constant threat of our speed man Capt Nick Yardley. We came unstuck against seven Fijian soldiers who made up the team from ITC Catterick who tackled like bulldozers and showed dazzling skills and superb support play to run out winners 24-12, although Capt Nick Taylor and LCpl Chris Renshaw took the game to them head on. The next game was a decisive win for the team beating 6 Bn REME 33-12 with strong tackling and running from Capt Nick Massey and Cpl George Sutherland. Both ITC Catterick and 1 RRW had also won two games a piece so this meant it all went down to tries scored with the Regimental team going forward to the Plate Competition. Disappointed but determined we breezed our way to the final with convincing wins over 1 PWO and Troops Hereford leaving us a game in the final, once again, with 6 Bn REME who we had earlier beaten. We went into the final with high expectations but where slightly surprised by the resolve and determination of the REME side. With some strong running and good distribution from WO2 (SSM) Doz Day and Sgt Brian Hands we got a pattern going and slowly broke down their defence. With good all round team play points began to appear on the board. WO2 (SSM) Doz Day scored a solo try from within his 22yd line, throwing two horrendous dummies, that even fooled the crowd, before dotting the ball over the try line completing the 33-7 win over 6 Bn REME and taking the Plate Trophy, not bad considering the average age of the team is 30.

BRITISH ARMY REFEREE OF THE YEAR 1999

by Cpl Steele

Ten years ago Maj A. Dobson, the Army FA Secretary, donated a trophy to the Army Football Association, on the understanding that it was to be awarded every year to the referee who has contributed the most to the game of football within the Army – ie: commitment to the game, encouraging junior referees and potential referees etc. Every district - from NI to Cyprus - puts forward one nomination.

When I began refereeing in September 1997, I never thought I would be the Regional nomination for NI, never mind the overall winner of such a prestigious award. My refereeing stemmed from a life-long love of football, and in my two years I have progressed to being a Class 2 Referee (the higher the class of Referee, the higher the standard of games which you can officiate). The Northern Ireland Referees' Committee advised me in March this year that I had been put forward as their nomination for the trophy, but even then I didn't really expect to win - I was up against some pretty experienced competition.

The Dobson Trophy was the last thing on my mind when I was marched in to the CO's office. Yet the unbelievable had happened - I had won! The presentation of the trophy was in Aldershot. I was to referee a match - 3 Div Referees v 4 Div Referees (believe it or not, referees can play dirty from time to time), followed by the chance to watch the Army Challenge Cup Final - 1st Bn Cheshires v 3 Bn REME at Aldershot Military Stadium. That evening, the Referees' Annual Dinner took place at St Omer Bks. It was following a delicious meal that I was presented with the Dobson Trophy.

Picture the scene, if you can, the next day at Heathrow Airport. I'm sure they have had some strange hand luggage, but the box containing my trophy must surely have been the strangest seen that day! Unfortunately, I have to hand the trophy back next year but I will get to keep a replica and to have some wonderful memories of my year 'at the top'.

Cpl Steele receives the Dobson Trophy

LANYARD TROPHY

It all started in January after Christmas leave, with a rather touching phone call from the Troop Commander:

Capt Walster: Hello Sgt Mundy. Did you have a good leave?

Me: Well.....

Capt Walster: Good, good. And..... you're OK are you, health wise? No problems at all?

Me: I.....

Capt Walster: Excellent, excellent. Just checking, you know. Like to make sure my senior NCO's are all right.

Me: But.....

Capt Walster: Not at all. Speak to you later then. Oh.... and... I'll put you down for Lanyard Trophy training shall I?

Me: What?

Capt Walster: Good, good. Knew I could rely on you. Just see if you can jack up a few more female soldiers from the troop. Well done. Carry on.

It was the beginning of four memorable months for the twenty poor, misguided souls who found themselves on the Mourne Mountain Training Programme from Hell, enthusiastically led by Capt Jules 'It's just over the next hill' Walster for the female team and Capt Guy 'I'm just nipping up this mountain, back in a minute' Benson for the male team. Did I say training? Anyone who has any experience at all of the Mourne Mountains will realise immediately that I use the term loosely. Perhaps it would be more accurate to say that we stumbled blindly along behind our leaders once or twice a week, for six or seven hours, usually in a blizzard or a gale, with aching hearts and feet, desperately trying to remember why we had agreed to take part. It has to be said it was a comprehensive programme. There was no particular type of terrain that we aimed for - as long as it was wet, steep and likely to break your ankle it was deemed suitable, and we were helped along by the cheerful advice of those experienced. members of the team who had done it before. advice like - 'try to jog down the hills, it's easier than walking' - was particularly useful, always assuming of course that the downhill does not consist of huge boulders strewn across the side of a mountain and the soles of your feet do not feel like they have just been treated with one of those hot air paint strippers.

To be fair, though, mountain training is definitely the way to approach this competition and we arrived at Shorncliffe Training Camp in Folkestone on Wednesday 5 May, brimming with enthusiasm and armed with enough zinc oxide tape to mummify the whole Regiment, confident and that we would be able to achieve a respectable result. Even a 0300 hours reveille on Thursday morning to be force-fed greasy eggs and bacon did not dampen the spirits of the teams. At 0530 hours, twenty eight teams, of which four were female, set off from the Kent County show-ground to cover the forty gruelling miles to St Martin's Plain Camp in Folkestone, carrying 40lbs for the male teams and 25lbs for the female teams. The terrain was quite hard on the feet, being mainly tracks and tarmac, and by the 20 mile point most people were already enduring a blister or two under the zinc tape but by 30 miles nobody cared about blisters any more, since knees, hips, shins, ankles and every known muscle in the body had diverted their attention somewhat. By the last checkpoint, at about 37 miles, all that mattered was getting to the finish point. Here I should mention our long-suffering and seriously compassionate admin teams led by SSgt 'Jacko' Jackson and Sgt Abbey Hilton. It is no mean task to deal simultaneously with twenty calorie-crazed team members staggering into the checkpoints screaming wild instructions like - 'Plug my bottle in', 'Where's my Nutri-grain'? and 'I need bananas! Give me bananas!' Without the admin teams not even the mountain training would have been enough for any of us to finish the course. And finish it we did - with the male team achieving fifth place in a time of 10 hours 58 minutes, while the female team came in twelfth overall and first out of the females teams with a time of 11 hours 37 minutes (sadly having to take second prize because they finished with only seven team members instead of the required eight).

A round of thanks and congratulations is in order - first to Capt Benson and Capt Walster for coaxing, enthusing and deceiving where necessary and, more importantly, for providing the excellent training. Thanks also to the admin teams - SSgt 'Jacko' Jackson, Sig 'Mac' Macfarlane, Sgt Abbey Hilton and Sig Claire Lydon for their endless patience and totally convincing sympathy. Finally, well done to the teams themselves: Male team: Capt Guy Benson, Capt Guy Bennett, Capt Ritchie Newhouse, SSgt Jim Duncan, SSgt 'Q' Rose, Cpl 'Hutch' Hutchinson, Cpl Nichols, Cpl Wardle, Sig 'Huggy' Huggett, Sig 'Rodders' Rodwell. Female Team: Capt Jules Walster, Capt Liz Dallyn, Sgt Steph Geeson, Sgt Daisy Mundy, Cpl 'Sunny' Hardy, LCpl Glo Fagan, Sig Pippa Henderson, Sig Linda Shields, Sig Jenny Read, Sig Tracey Walker. Extra congratulations go to Capt Walster for remaining reasonably calm throughout, despite Sig 'Are we there yet?' Walker, and for risking serious blisters two weeks before her wedding.

EXERCISE CRYSTAL FINN 26 MARCH - 11 APRIL 1999

by Lt N. Baker

Ex Crystal Finn was a 15 Sig Regt adventure training skiing trip organised by Lt Nat Baker to the French Alps resort of Morzine. The elite squad who volunteered to partake in this trip consisted of nine 225 Sig Sqn personnel, these being Capt Robin Carpenter, SSgt Fiona Fielder, Sgt Michelle Watkins, Cpl Roy Venables, Cpl Tony Cecil, Cpl Jay Aldred, LCpl Billy Kirkwood and LCpl Andy Liddle. After a bit of last minute sorting out, ie: Cpl Cecil only joining the trip the day before, we were ready for the off and so we set out from the Squadron lines on Friday 26 March in a reliable 15-seater MT minibus with no roof rack. We were about to ensure an overnight trip from hell with conditions you would expect on a two week exercise rather than a 10 hour journey down the motorway to Gatwick. With two officers in the front seat armed with a map our only hope was that we could navigate by fast food joints from the 'cheap seats' in the back. Apparently it was the most 'cost effective' way to travel and we are all for saving the Army a few quid.

When we arrived at Gatwick things went smoothly with everyone getting through check-in eager to jump on the plane to Geneva. After touching down in Geneva we were soon to realise that being first on the plane does not mean that you are going to get your bags first. As the terminal was emptying and the cleaners were doing their rounds they decided to unload our baggage. Still, unperturbed we headed out to the coach only to be given the wrong number and direction by the tour rep so we took 15 minutes to find it, (sounding more and more like an army exercise all the time). Eventually we were heading off through the beautiful French countryside towards Morzine and after only an hour and a half we were pulling into the resort to see snow, snow and more snow. The best snow they had had in the resort for 20 years. Lucky us! Better was to come though, and after our welcome meeting with the rep in the Bowling Bar we sampled some of the local delights. The sensible ones in the group went for a meal about 9pm but three stalwarts (names withheld) stayed until the bitter end before finding the most expensive eating establishment in France. Three pizza and chip family meals and £105 later, need I say more.

Next day once we had sorted out our skiing gear it was a quick ride up in the 'telecabin' onto the nearest mountain to assess our skiing standard, (or lack or it!). There were plenty of green faces and snowplough was the style of the day for many of the group, however Cpl Venables won the trophy for the 'Plough King' a record which he held for many, many days to follow. Cpl Cecil was the only person on the slopes who managed to snowplough with 205cm racing skis. After surviving day one with barely any style, we spent most of the night in the apartment talking of imaginary parallel turns and jumps that we thought we had made.

Day two was much of the same, LCpl Kirkwood and Cpl Aldred spent the mornings at ski school while the rest of us finely tuned our skills. Whilst negotiating a particularly tricky blue run the 'Plough King' (With the stopping circle of the QE2) somehow managed to find the only man in France who was walking his dog around the piste. He couldn't turn in time, and managed to pioneer the new technique of the wipe out stop and the remainder of the group were so jealous that we tried to out-bid him for the, 'most spectacular fall' competition for the rest of the Exercise.

The rest of the week was spent enjoying the glorious sunshine and fantastic skiing, in fact the ski area was so big that we barely skied the same run twice, the runs varied from long easy blues and greens to some challenging reds and suicidal black mogul fields. One run in particular which straddled the border between France and Switzerland was called the 'Wall of Death' for the simple reason that 13 people had died on it the season before, we enjoyed doing this run from the safety of the chairlift. The skiing was fantastic, as was the resort. On the Wednesday night we were invited to a Savoyarde night at a local eatery, free wine and plenty of meat were the order of the night. Saturday night was a different occasion when we all trooped down to the sports centre to watch the Morzine Penguins take on the Brussels Ice Cubes at ice hockey, Morzine lost but the highlight of the night was when we bumped into 'Serge' in a local club. Serge being the Penguins shotstopper who didn't manage to stop many shots that night but we still treated him as a hero.

Week two was spent mainly in the mountain resort of Avoriaz, only a cable car ride away from Morzine and we were in sight of the Swiss border. It made it a more interesting week being able to 'do' lunch in Switzerland one day and then stay in France the next day. Cpl Kirkwood and Cpl Aldred stayed on at ski kindergarten for another week and managed to come away with some bronze and silver stars and ribbons. The rest of us turned into Franz Klammers and skied around the piste 'tut tutting' at all the novice skiers. Unfortunately, like all good things the trip had to come to an end, so on Sat 11 April we embarked on our 24 hour journey back to sunny Northern Ireland. Once again an uneventful flight back to Gatwick after stocking up on some well earned duty frees and a short wait (2 hours) for the MT transport before once again climbing into a foetal position for the 10 hours drive back up the motorway, the only highlight being a stop off in Carlisle for an Indian meal, oh to be back to English food! Then followed a comfy night's sleep in the back of the minibus before getting the first ferry back in the morning.

The Exercise was a resounding success as everyone's skiing had improved dramatically in preparation for the next Corps Championships. We returned back to Lisburn with great suntans and a host of PXR points for future Expeditions. The most important of which was never stop for a curry on the way home if you still have four hours left in a very cramped minibus!

SQUADRON DINNER NIGHT

The annual Squadron Formal this year took place on Friday 30 April and the occasion was used to show our appreciation and make farewell presentations to Sgt Maurice Moates and LCpl Lesley Harbinson. Sgt Moates served with the Squadron for 19 years and LCpl Harbinson for 13 years during this time they made many friends in the Squadron and it was sad to see them go but we wish them both well for the future.

EXERCISE GLOBAL WARRIOR I

It was off to Ballykinlar for Ex Global Warrior 1, which took place during 14-16 May. With demonstrations on Site Recce and Clearance, EAN Deployment, NBC Recce, Duties of a Sentry and Clansman Radio, it was a busy time with a lot to take in but the hard work was still to come. Putting these lessons into practise during an enemy attack was where Capt Robin 'Rambo' Finlay and SSgt Tommy 'Trigger Finger' Johnston showed their true natures firing at anyone who stood in their way. For Capt Finlay this included the SVWO WO1 Barry 'Running Shoes' Skinner, who would be hard to miss anyway, and for SSgt Johnston it included two of his own QRF! The Exercise was enjoyed by everyone who attended and indeed was most beneficial to the Regiment in preparation for Annual Camp, which is almost upon us.

PRE CAMP TRAINING

Over the weekend 16-18 April 1999 the Squadron took part in 11 Sig Bde's Ex Summer Eagle. The Squadron deployed to the Ballykinlar area and established CNR and RATT nets with a RATT link to 11 Bde at Donnington via 94(BY) Sig Sqn. 14-16 May again found us in Ballykinlar with 5 FFR RATT dets, participating in the regimental Ex Global Warrior conducting more intensive tactical training in preparation for annual camp.

COMBINED CAVALRY

The pre-camp build up was interspersed with periods of ceremony and celebration when on the 8-9 May Pipe Maj Taylor accompanied members of the Squadron along with members of D Sqn NIH and the Old Comrades Association to London to take part in the NIH OCA England Branch dinner. They paraded in Hyde Park at the Combined Cavalry 'Old Comrades' parade and memorial service. This year the salute was taken by HRH The Prince of Wales.

HITLER LINE PARADE

The busiest weekend in the Squadron's social calendar is the 21-23 May when the annual Battle of the Hitler Line Parade is held. The parade commemorates the occasion the North Irish Horse led the Canadians into battle in Italy in 1944. It was celebrated on Friday at the Officer's dinner night and on Saturday at the Regimental Association dinner and on Sunday the Guidon of the North Irish Horse was paraded through the ranks of the Squadron and old comrades by members of D Sqn NIH from Belfast.

Members of the Squadron also found time to participate in Ex Executive Stretch in Kirkcudbright, Scotland with 107(U) Bde turning young executives into soldiers to give them a brief insight into what their employees do at the weekends.

EXERCISE PIED PIPER

Ex Pied Piper, which took place over the 7-9 May, is a military skills competition involving all the sub-units of 107 (U) Bde. This year 40 Signal Regiment (V) entered two teams, one from 66 Sqn led by Lt David Wilson and one from 69 Sqn led by 2Lt Deirdre Caldwell.

After much preparation and training the 69 Sqn team set off for a challenging weekend. During the first day we completed six stands. We were a bit taken aback at the first stand, a simulated medical emergency. A screaming woman appeared and insisted on throwing her baby at us however we quickly regained control of the situation and treated all the casualties. SSgt Cammack found a new use for a stretcher discovering that it could double up as a splint. The NBC stand went very well with the team conducting a chemical recce and survey. Then we had a real team effort in the chamber when we carried out decontamination drills. Competition rules insist on the inclusion of a less experienced team member and as they had never been through the chamber before it was something similar to 'The Generation Game'. Other stands on day one included command tasks, military knowledge, weapon handling and map reading.

On the Saturday evening the exercise became a little more demanding. At dusk groups of four set off from the peak of Binevenagh on a night navigation course. The terrain was heavy underfoot and teams were ready for a night's sleep when they finished.

This left only one part of the competition left to go, the march and shoot. Teams were paired to run against each other in the four mile march. We could hardly believe it when one of the leading teams in the competition mistimed their arrival and were fifteen minutes late for their run. The team were in high spirits throughout this event and they really worked together. I knew that the team had given their best when they vomited in unison once they crossed the finish line. After the Roupell shoot there was long wait while the organisers worked out the final results. We achieved two second places for the NBC and March and Shoot finishing seventh overall.

CORPS ORIENTEERING CHAMPIONSHIPS 28-30 MAY

Sgt Daz Welch thought that orienteering required a bit of a boost within the Regiment. So what better way to start than by entering teams in the Royal Signals Orienteering Championships. The first challenge was to get the team over the water and to 14 Sig Regt by 2000hrs on the Friday to register. We only just missed it by five hours - 0115hrs Saturday. Day 1 and it's the Team Individual event getting off to a good start. Four members of the Regiment at the start all about to go on a different course starting at the same time and, YES! We are on time. Things are looking up. Cpl Heather Moore decides when having been just given her map that this is a good time to ask Daz, 'Where are we?' We had some good points to discuss over a well-earned refreshing drink at the end of Day 1. One of them being that we were already acclimatised to the South Wales weather and another was Sig Ian 'I talk in my sleep' McKeown proving that we don't always require a compass. Day 2 and we all feel so much better after that early night. However, no rain today, and wet trainers from Day 1 are not going to put us off. Sgt Paul 'It's here somewhere' Brannon decided to take a back seat on this one and the other lads have a go. What's this? 40 not disqualified after Day 1, and running in third place in both the Male and Female events. Things really were looking up. Sig Mark Taylor took over from Sgt Daz 'I'm getting too old for this' Welch with a sprint on the relay event. Then a voice appeared from the background 'I bet he won't keep that up on the way round'. I must admit that the only thing in the back of our minds on Day 2 was did we have enough time to fit in the relay, have a shower, visit Burger King and make our return flight. I'm glad to say that we were successful overall and accomplished the following results.

SQUADRON ANNUAL DINNER

The Squadron held it's Annual Dinner in April. This event was particularly special as it was the last dinner to be held in the TAC in Newtownards. The Squadron is due to move to a new location in Bangor where we shall have the luxury of occupying our very own TAC.

The Squadron said farewell and congratulations to SSgt (SQMS) Linda Whitley as she moves to Sp Sqn to take up the SSM appointment. We thank her for all her service to the Squadron and wish her every success in the future.

As part of our departure from Newtownards the TAC Officers' Mess held a farewell lunch on Sunday 9 May to mark the end of our links with Crawfordsburn Road TAC. OC 85 Sig Sqn Maj Cathy Sutherland presented the Mess with a Regimental print and received a farewell gift from the TAC Mess to the Officers of the Squadron. It was an enjoyable occasion, which was attended by the previous OC of the Squadron and the previous BC of the resident Battery RA (V).

SDR

With the effects of SDR upon us we have emerged from it in good order. We have a number of Royal Engineers transferring to us when their unit disbands. We started training them as Royal Signals tradespersons in April. They will go to camp with us where they will complete a Royal Signals trade course. We extend a very warm welcome to them all as they join the Corps, Regiment and Squadron.

SQUADRON MOVE TO BANGOR

Sunday 23 May saw the start of our move to Bangor TAC 'Exodus Day'. This was marked by the OC presenting a cheque for £1000 to Mr Bill Haddick of Killard House Special School. The event had press coverage from the local paper on our departure and also by the local Bangor paper on our arrival at the TAC. Praise must go to all the Squadron for their hard work during this phase of the move. We arrived without a hitch.

EXERCISE SCOTTIE MACFINN IV

The Squadron ventured to the Cairngorms at the end of February for our Annual Winter skiing Weekend. This time we were accommodated in the stopover hostel in Granton-on-Spey some 12 miles North of Aviemore. Lady luck was on our side as the snow had been ordered. Many of the Squadron's failed skiers tried their luck at snowboarding. LCpl Clarke, Sigs Spoerri and Elliott even walked all the way up the Cairngorms with their boards (the T-bar proved a bit of a problem). All three said they had a fantastic time and cannot wait for next year. Cpl Anderson and LCpl McQuillan eventually mastered the art of the T-bar much to the delight of SSgt Linda Whitley and had the bruises to prove it. They eventually made it as far as the middle station. Cpl 'I will, I will, I will' Campbell and LCpl Dickson had their own interpretation of downhill skiing, just aim the skis down the slope and go for it! Now at least they have perfected getting up.

OFF PISTE NEWS

The Squadron visited the local British Legion and helped out with the entertainment. LCpl 'Monty' Montgomery singing at the top of his form, entertained the members. Okay, so he's not Frank Sinatra but at least the Legion didn't have to pay him.

Tp Comd Lt F. D. Guthrie
Tp SSgt SSgt R. Wallace

COMMUNICATIONS SECTION - 'THE SENDERS'

Work is starting to liven up for the COMMCEN, Syscon and Crypto alike with the ever approaching 'Marching Season'. There has been plenty of movement within the Troop, as we say a farewell to Sgt Sam Parke and his family on their move to ATR Bassingbourn and LCpl Mick Leet and his family as they go to 241 Sig Sqn, Donnington. Also off to pastures new is SSgt John Ainsworth who, with Kate and family leave us for 1 Armd Div in Germany. Fortunately we've had several new members into the Troop recently. Sgt Robin McCorkell who joins us as our new Troop Sergeant from Aborfield and SSgt Carl Hindson and family from 220 Sig Sqn as the BTLO. Straight in fresh from 'sunny Blandford' we have Sig Lee 'Babyface' Shaw and Sig Kerry O'Connor, just in time. We also welcome Sig Bruce Morrisson and family from 20 Armd Bde and Sig Tim 'Tiny' Sluman from 1 Armd Div.

Comms Tp were well represented in a recent Brigade 'friendly' Triathlon, which involved each Unit within the camp from Brigade HQ to the Royal Ulster Constabulary and of course, the Signal Squadron. We fielded three teams in all, two male and one female team, the only female team in the competition. Capt Helen Bosley, 2Lt Sonia Hughes, Cpl Sarah Staff and LCpl Kerry Davis made up the female team. Unfortunately, though, due to injury we were unable to finish with a full team. For the Mens' we had an 'Oldsters' team and a 'Youngsters' team. Both fought valiantly against the 8km cycle, 2km row and 4.5km run, but the oldsters held it together well with WO2 (Fofs) Mick 'Thigh' Cowie, SSgt Andy Lothian, SSgt Bob Wallace and Cpl Paul 'Sally' Webster storming into a victorious first place overall in the competition. The youngsters also had a good race not far behind, with Lt Forbes Guthrie, Sgt Rob McCorkell, LCpl Gaz Jennings and LCpl 'Nelly' Nelson who all finished in a good time.

The Belfast Marathon was also another event that we managed to persuade ten lucky individuals to participate in. Fortunately it was only the relay, although some of the team members felt the urge to run more than one leg of the race. We had one male team and one female team, so there was a bit of competition as to who would finish first. Sgt Billy Boston stepped in at the last minute to make up the team, which saved Sig Albert Finney and Sig Chris Moore deciding who would run that extra five miles at the end. The weather was absolutely scorching, which would have been fine if LCpl 'Nelly' Nelson had remembered his 'Factor Duffle Coat' sunscreen. In the end the boys' team beat the girls' team in by three minutes, although we nearly had to send out a search party for Sig Emma Jones. She was lost somewhere at checkpoint three (we still say she was hiding from us!) so our second runner, LCpl Karen Glenister, just kept going. The Troop had a party in June and it was enjoyed by all. The night started off with free punch on the table, which disappeared really quickly. The Elvis impersonator was excellent, the karaoke went well and the barbecue was fantastic. Lt Guthrie decided to share his barbecue with everyone on the minibus. The night ended up with a free for all on the dance floor and everyone just about resisting the temptation to take their clothes off to the 'Full Monty'.

TECHNICAL MAINTENANCE SECTION – 'THE MENDERS'

TM Section has been very busy over the last few months with preparation for the move to Mahon Road Barracks, Portadown. This has finally started after many delays and a move by the beginning of July is hoped for, just in time for the marching season. There have been a lot of changes within the Section, with Cpl 'Brummie' Baker going on his re-trade to Driver Electrician. LCpl Iain Pearce has seen the light and retraded from Driver Lineman to Telemech. Joining the Section recently has been Sig Gordon 'Gee' Pyrah and Sig Jim Wright both from 220 Sig Sqn and for there sins they were both selected to attend the Province Cadre Course, which was held in the Isle of Wight. More recently Sig Steve Brown joined the Section for a fortnight and then beat a hasty retreat to the MT Section, all of this before his arrivals sheet was dry.

In May the chosen few of the Section, Sgt Gary Mathieson and LCpl 'Moggsy' Morris went on an Adventure Training Exercise to the Lake District which consisted of walking up large hills during the day and then socialising in the local villages at night. The main thrust occurred on the Thursday when a gruelling 20km walk took in the scenic view from the top of Scaffel Pike.

Congratulations to Cpl Paul 'Sally' Webster for his achievements in the inter-services Karate Championship and a credible attempt at the Lanyard Trophy; better luck next year. A big well done to the Squadron Orienteering Team which was led by WO2 Mick Cowie to win the team event in the UK Championships. Mick was accompanied by his able team members Sgt Lee 'Billy' Boston and as usual Cpl Paul 'Sally' Webster. Finally, a sorry loss to the Section will be Cpl Cec Mason who leaves us for Civvy Street at the end of June.

SUPPORT TROOP

QM	Capt F. S. Payet
RSM	WO2 (RSM) A. Strudwick

The Troop has been busy lately completing its ITD's during a long weekend at Ballykinler Training Centre. Along with some clerks from SHQ and Brigade HQ we were put through the new ITD training including, the BPFA and AM 1. With that all done, we were treated to a 'Texas Scramble' golf competition and a barbecue. Thanks go to Sgt Paul 'Admin' Coates for organising the weekend and everyone who instructed or organised the other activities. A mention must go to Pte 'You talking to me' Frazier for her excellent results in the Moral Understanding lecture. The Troop bids a fond farewell to Cpl Craig Turner, LCpl 'Scouse' Latham and LCpl Ian Pearce (Re-trade) - We wish you and your families all the very best for the future. Welcomes go to Cpl Chris Dee, Sig Shaun Brock and Sig Andy Hall. And finally congratulations go out to LCpl Latham and LCpl Gordon Stewart on their promotions.

SUPPORT TROOP - WATERSPORTS DAY

The Troop had an excellent day on the lake, jet biking and being hurled off the banana by the RQMS, WO2 Andy Strudwick. The 'Banana Team' led by the SQMS, SSgt 'Taff' Drew still think they can hang on, the gauntlet is down so standby! Thanks to the QM, Capt Fred Payet, for a great day and to Cpl Si Ferrer for the barbecue. And finally a welcome is extended to our attached officer, 2Lt Sofia Hughes, we hope you have enjoyed your time with the Troop and good luck for your Troop Commanders Course.

NORTHERN IRELAND ATHLETICS CHAMPIONSHIP
by Cpl Nelson

The month of May saw the Northern Ireland Athletics Championship descend upon us once again. As always, the Gentlemen of the Squadron were set the task of gaining a place in the semi-finals at Aldershot. We all knew it would be a close heat in the Minor Units Competition with worthy opposition from MU, JCU and Depot Royal Irish. The team was off to a good start with victory for Sgt Billy Boston in the 1,500m, closely followed by overall second in the hammer competition for LCpl 'Nelly' Nelson. This was closely followed by Cpl Billy Bremner's second place in the high jump. All eyes were on the scores as Depot edged into the lead with JCU and 3 Bde snapping at their heels. A stunning performance was demanded of Sgt Chris 'Shergar' Bailey in the 110 high hurdles. However, he was to become another victim of beechers brook. Good effort anyway. Respectable performances were seen from Cpl 'Chuck' Henson in the shot, Maj Mannings in the discus, LCpl Gaz Jennings in the 200m and Cpl Sally Webster in the 5000m. With the spot for second and a trip to Aldershot, hanging finely in the balance, all eyes were on Cpl Si Ferrer in the javelin competition. He did not let us down and gained second place. With just the relay races to go, depot were the were the clear leaders and a lot hung on the final races. The team performed well and we were left in suspense as to the result until the final prize giving. Luckily, we pipped JCU to the post and once again, gained a place in the semi-finals.

LANYARD TROPHY 1999 - by SSgt Wallace

The 'Old boys' team with an average age of 39 consisted of one Officer, seven Seniors and two Corporals. The team started off at a rip roaring pace and got to the first checkpoint much quicker than the admin team expected. They arrived and grabbed water bottles, bananas, had mars bars shoved into their mouths and headed straight off. Everyone started in good humour and it was amazing how SSgt 'Call me Bob in the bar' Wallace managed to sneak to the front every time the cameraman appeared.

Banana Power

As the forced march progressed the humour disappeared. even SSgt Andy 'Beavis' Lothian and Sgt Paul 'Butthead' Coates stopped sniggering. 2Lt 'Soapy' Hughes tried to encourage the team by informing them that the team in front was only a short distance away but realised that she was on to a loser when SSgt 'Taff' Drew gave her a look that would kill a lesser mortal. The RSM, WO1 Chesletts map reading skills were called in to question when he stated that there were only 9km left to go and 10 miles later they crossed the finishing line. At the end everyone was vowing never to do it again, however, after tending to their wounds and screaming as the hot water hit the bergan rash and blisters some of the boys started planning next year's campaign. The evening was spent with us all going out for a curry when Cpl 'Sally' Webster showed just how alert he could remain, even after 40 miles, when he fell asleep in his beer.

NORTHERN IRELAND SWIMMING CHAMPIONSHIP
by Cpl Staff

3 Infantry Brigade Headquarters and Signal Squadron finally, at the very last minute, managed to gather a full female swimming team together for the Northern Ireland Swimming Championships being held at Lisburn Station on Monday 24 May. After a few last minute changes to the team, our first two to go were Capt Bosley in the 50m Breast-Stroke and then 2Lt Hughes in the 50m Back-Stroke. Both managed to finish second in their respective races. LCpl Michelle Cochrane had a good race in the 50m Freestyle and Cpl Staff in the 4 x 25m Individual Medley; yet again they were just beaten into Second Place. LCpl Kerry Davis and Pte Lisa Wilkinson made up the final two places of the team, and after some nail biting relays, we finally managed a third place overall, missing out on second place by just four points.

EXERCISE JERSEY FINN by Sig Frost

39 Bde's Cadre Course lived up to all the stories I had been told back in the Squadron bar, from day one to the end it was both physically and mentally gruelling. We turned up at Marchwood, got changed, got on a landing craft and began to attack the Isle of Wight. Trouble began the moment we left, as the boat didn't seem to want to float. Five days of Exercise later, the well-deserved Adventure Training Phase began which included water-sports, mountain biking and sailing. The best bit was the Karaoke one evening, in which we showed the locals exactly how much a group of highly training Signallers could hold a tune. Naturally we won the Karaoke Competition rounding off an excellent week.

EXERCISE KESWICK FINN 1999

Ex Keswick Finn was an Adventure Training Exercise comprising hill walking, mountain biking and orienteering undertaken by eleven soldiers from 3 Inf Bde HQ and Sig Sqn (203). The Exercise took place in the Lake District and all personnel were accommodated in Warcop Military Training Centre.

DAY 1 FELL SIDE - PETER'S HOUSE FARM by Sig Shaw

Lt 'Donnie Osmond' Guthrie had briefed the group the previous evening on the walk, which we would be doing. We were told that we would be hiking for 20km over the hills and peaks of Cumbria. I did not think that I would enjoy myself, as my motto has always been, why walk when you can drive. I was greatly mistaken as it turned out. I had a thoroughly enjoyable day. We set off with our packed lunches and bottles of water to see us through the day. The walk began at Fell Side and within the first half an hour the instructors were asking us where we were on our maps. Most of us had not followed our maps to begin with and ended up having to work out exactly where we were. After that moment we followed our route cards and maps diligently. One of the aims of the walk was to practise our map reading and we certainly did. The first spot height we climbed up to was spot height 627 and from there we climbed up to Coombe Height. The climbs were not too difficult but we knew that today was the first day. We went through fields, over fences and into some boggy ground. As the day went on the weather began to pick up and it started to blow a gale. This did not worry us too much as everyone stayed close together and we were all enjoying the walk. We had our lunch in a small bothy to escape the wind. The most memorable moment of the day was when Lt Guthrie nearly lost his right arm to the shelter door by trying to open it slowly in the gale. After lunch we carried on walking and made our way over to Skiddaw House. At this point Capt Bosley and 2Lt Hughes wanted the challenge of running up Skiddaw peak, no one else wanted to go so they took off their fleeces and shot up the mountain. The rest of us led by Lt Guthrie carried on the planned route. We eventually finished the walk at Peters House Farm. As a new soldier in the unit it was a good opportunity for me to get to know the people I would be working with, so on the walk I found out a lot about my job and the various things people had done with their lives.

DAY 2 - MOUNTAIN BIKING AND ORIENTEERING COMPETITION by Sig Marshall

Day Two started off early with a hearty breakfast prepared by our jolly chef. We loaded our mountain bikes into the back of the van and minibus. It took an hour to reach the Country Park where we were going to do our mountain biking and orienteering. We seemed to have brought the good weather from Northern Ireland with us. After some fiddling and tinkering with the bikes we finally set off. 2Lt Hughes chose the steepest way to the top and within minutes sweat was pouring off all of us. In fact at one point the track was so steep that many of us had to get off our bikes and push them up the last little bit. Then came the fun part because what goes up must come down. I won the first prize for not using my brakes and Capt Bosley and 2Lt Hughes won joint last prize for riding their bikes up the hills then pushing them down some of the steeper parts. After some off track proper mountain biking it was time to head back to Whinlatter Forest Park Centre to eat our lunch and prepare for an afternoon of orienteering.

It was decided that for the Orienteering Competition it would only be fair to pick names out of a hat. It had already been established who had used Orienteering maps before and who had not. The teams were then formed. We were given a set time to run or walk around the course and collect as many points as possible. It was a good map reading exercise and we were able to practise all the skills like pacing, taking bearings and following a map. When all the points had been added up the winners of the competition were Sig 'Shoulders' Moore and 2Lt Hughes (obviously Sig Moore had done the map reading in that team).

DAY 3 BROTHERITKELD - SCAFELL PIKE by Sig Moor

The Group had an incredibly early start today, as the drive to the start point was a long one. Sgt McCorkill had arrived the night before to join us for a few days. We started the hike at Brotheritkeld and instantly found ourselves climbing up. The climb was gentle to start with then all of a sudden it became more difficult as we headed up to the Three Tarns. After the climb we sat down for a hearty lunch. After lunch we made our way up to Bow Fell then over to Esk Pike then up again to Great End, it was at this point that we could see the highest peak in England. The climb up to the top was a steep one and several breaks were taken on the way up to appreciate the beautiful scenery. The stepping stone rocks made our journey up to the top somewhat harder but more enjoyable. When we reached the top the view was fantastic. We had group photos taken and sat down for a well-deserved break.

Scafell Pike

On the way down the group split up, as Capt Bosley needed to go and catch her flight so Lt Guthrie, Cpl 'Mr Enthusiasm' Jennings and Capt Bosley ran down the mountainside leaving the rest of us to enjoy the walk down to the bottom with 2Lt Hughes. When we reached the end of the walk there was a fantastic little pub which welcomed us all in.

DAY 4 COMB CRAGS - HELVELLYN by 2Lt Hughes

Once again we had an early start so that we could fit in everything that we had planned for the day. Today's walk was relatively short compared with the other walks. The weather had been kind to us all week however that was to change once we hit the top of Helvellyn. We started the walk and headed up to Comb Crags, the climb was a gradual one. Once we got to the top of Helvellyn we did not hang around as the weather was closing in and we had a date with a Brewery Tour. When we arrived back at our minibus we jumped in and headed off to Keswick scoffing our sandwiches on the way. We made it to the Jennings Brewery mid afternoon, just in time to go on the Tour. It was a fascinating tour and everyone enjoyed the trip around. We were shocked at the hospitality of the Brewery who encouraged us to sit and drink the various brews free of charge. The entire group except the chef (driving) took full advantage of the free beer. That evening was spent carrying on the motion in Penrith and brought an end to a very enjoyable and worthwhile week.

39 INFANTRY BRIGADE HEADQUARTERS & SIGNAL SQUADRON (213)

Sqn Comd	Maj N. J. Borrill
RSM	WO1 (RSM) S. F. M. Lawes

OPERATIONS TEAM

This is the Ops Team debut in The WIRE and the reason why it's taken this long can only be put down to the hectic workload borne by this fine body of men. The nucleus of the team is fronted by Capt Gareth Marsh ably aided by YofS Dave Brudenall and FofS 'Aidy' Glover. The whole team runs on the ethos of 'Work Hard, Play Hard', but it has to be said 'some are playing a little more than others' (no names). As ever on the work front its fast and furious, with the whole Team now masters at prioritising and dealing with that all too often fast ball, but being professionals let's not linger on the negatives but concentrate on the positives. On the plus side of life it has to be said that the majority of the Ops Team has been involved in some kind of extra curricular activity, whether it is on the sports field or adventure training, and some are worth a mention.

FofS 'Aidy' Glover has just about been on every adventure training exercise going with the excuse he needs it for his log book to get his JSMEL qualification ('Top Blag'). Also SSgt Si Jones organised a very successful skiing trip to Bavaria and to his surprise didn't use his RMA 3 qualification once. At a more grass routes level Capt Marsh, the YofS and SSgt 'Rennie' Renshaw formed the backbone of the Squadron Rugby Sevens team which reached the semi-finals of the Brigade Rugby Competition. The last mentioned has to go to Capt Gareth Marsh and Cpl Nigel Rogan who have been putting in endless hours of Tabbing in preparation for the Lanyard Trophy ('Good Luck').

FAREWELLS AND HELLO'S

A sad farewell goes to FofS 'Aidy' Glover who is leaving the Squadron for 33 Signal Regiment (V), a definite loss to the Team, give it two weeks you will wish you were back. A big hello to FofS 'Sid' Sideras who has joined us from 15 Signal Regiment, beers for the lads.

TM TROOP - by Cpl Wedge

As always we start off with our farewells and welcomes, all we have to announce is two welcomes. These are to LCpl Temple and LCpl Davies who have both come from Germany to strengthen the Rigging Section. The Troop would also like to offer our condolences to LCpl Beedon and LCpl Tonks who have both taken the plunge and got married. The Troop would like to wish them and their wives all the best for the future. Well done to Sgt Lougher on passing his RSSC course and Sgt Avery on passing his RMQ 1 to 3 now that he has recovered from the coma he incurred while on his Sgt's course. However, we must say unlucky to Sig 'Salty Sea Dog' Lawrence who has to go back and pass his Competent

No that's not two microwave dishes on the mast its the YofS' ears

Crew. Finally the whole Troop is celebrating the delayed signing off of Cpl 'Leo Sayer' Dupree as he chooses to live his life as a Karaoke King in the Province.

HELLO'S AND GOODBYE'S

It has been a very busy period with new arrivals in all departments. Firstly, we would like to welcome Sgt Paul Parkes who has travelled all the way from BRB to join us, Pte 'Val' Vallentino from 522 Sqn Bicester, LCpl Charlie Wood also from Bicester and finally but not least Cpl 'Gaz' Howe who has moved to Rover Group. Obviously there are a few 'characters' leaving 'THE GROUP' namely, LCpl 'Geordie' Owens who is posted to 4GS Abingdon, LCpl 'Ribs' Watkinson to the mainland, posting dependant on the local magistrate, Rover Group Sgt 'Scottie' Cain who somehow manages to get a second posting to Cyprus and LCpl 'Fergie' Ferguson who now becomes a 'Mr', Good Luck to them all!

After all that we finally have our own farewells from upstairs in Syscon/COMMCEN LCpl 'Charlie' Walledge who has seen sense to join the AGC and LCpl, now Cpl 'Lester' Richardson who has moved 200m up the road to 15 Signals. We welcome Cpl Sam Lee-Davis who has joined our Crypto Team from 15 Signals and Sigs 'John' Bell and 'Jamie' Buyers straight from Blandford. What talent they release from the School of Signals now! Just to finish we would all like to welcome Andy Aitchison back to Rover Group.

REGIMENTAL QUARTERMASTER'S DEPARTMENT

by Sig Kev Pack

With the trauma of the LSA1 and PRE Inspection over and done with now, there was an air of tranquillity drifting through the Department, but not for very long though. No sooner had we started to pat ourselves on the back, than people started to disappear to tournaments, adventure training, the zoo and other less fortunate Regiments. As the saying goes 'lead by example' well if that's the case we would all be sitting upstairs and calling ourselves RSM because unfortunately we seem to have lost WO2 (RQMS) Lawes, fortunately we have found a WO1 (RSM) Lawes wandering around upstairs, congratulations boss.

In the last couple of months Sgt 'Seanie' Hyland has brought himself out of a long retirement to coach the Brigade Rugby 7's Tournament and allegedly he took his hands out of his pockets to shout at his team in the Brigade SAAM and the NISAAM as well. A big congratulations to Cpl 'No snow, No go' McGuinness on his promotion and now, according to Cpl 'ain't no mountain high enough' Selby, he is operationally important. While at the working end of the scale, Sig 'Long-haired General' Edwards had a rather enjoyable day at Belfast Zoo with the Youth Activities Group, (Faye later said 'I liked the funny monkeys the bestest'). As for myself, nothing but work, apart from the constitutional week in the Lake District, where sights were seen, mountains were conquered and blisters were popped.

Finally, a huge farewell to our RLC contingency LCpl 'Jerimiah' Binney and Paula who has returned to driving for a less stressful life and Cpl Paul Selby and Mitch, who is also off to 21 Signals for a nice quiet rest!!

NISAAM 1999 - BALLYKINLER

NISAAM 99 and it was back down to Ballykinler Ranges. Team Captain for this excursion was Sgt Sean Hyland who accepted the task as soon as it was offered, followed up by LCpls Kev Brown and 'Charlie Henry' Wood, Sig Hilton and finally Pte 'Richie Stavros' Vallentino.

We arrived at Ballykinler on the Wednesday all up for the ranges ahead. The competition we attended was the 'Roupell Cup' where all the lads managed to obtain reasonable scores apart from, LCpl Kev Brown who found out that someone had tampered with his weapon, then it was back to where we were to spend most of the week SANDIES. The next shoot was the FIBUA Shoot and that was the last of day one.

Day Two saw us back down in SANDIES bright eyed and bushy tailed early on Thursday for the 9mm Pistol Match, a few nice double taps later and it was back to the above for another 10 brews and a sleep, the rest of the day was made up of a Snap Shoot, Moving Target and a Pistol Tile Match where the team made it to the quarter finals.

Deja Vu starting to kick in now and it's Friday and its off to 'Tin City' for the March and Shoot, with Sgt Sean Hyland making a command decision and sitting this one out. The team started well but Sig Hilton's fence jumping skills at the end of the tab left a lot to be desired and we had to unplug his barrel before advancing to contact down the range where some good scores were collected. The final shoot of the day was the Falling Plate where the team again got to the quarter finals, we were put out by some Fusiliers from Derry, it was now time to make one fast trip to SANDIES and then head back to Lisburn for a few well earned beers; no doubt we'll be back next year for another crack with Rover Group making up most of the team, with a little help from Syscon and the Team Captain from RQ's Dept

TOUGH GUY '99 - by Sig 'Jase' Manton

On 30 January 1999, Lt John Fraser, Capt Liz Dallyn and myself set out for a journey into the unknown. All started very well until that is, the pilot decided to land at West Midlands Airport, instead of the intended Birmingham International. Although this put an extra two hours on our journey time, our spirits were not too dampened. On arriving at Wolverhampton the ever handy mobile phone came out and got us to our final destination.

Several Tough Guy '99 competitors were staying at our hotel, so needless to say some came out with horror stories of previous Tough Guy encounters, others were full of encouragement for the unknowing first timers. As we were to find out, a hot curry the night before is not exactly the best preparation you can have for an eight mile cross country run followed by a two mile obstacle course. An early start on a brisk January morning and we were off to book in. As we arrived all we could see were thousands of people and cars. The ground was already churning up (which, really, should have been an indication of what was to come).

At around 12 o'clock, we eventually got under way. With so many people taking part (around ten thousand), you couldn't go at your own pace, you had to go with the flow. The first part of the course was mainly running up and down steep hills, but after a mile and a half, we encountered marshes/bogs. This was to prove a greater inconvenience to myself, due to the very first bog claiming my left trainer. The rest of the course was to prove very painful. After plenty of hills/marshes/bogs/swill swamps/streams and lots and lots of mud we finally hit the obstacle course. This took around one and a half hours to complete due to everyone waiting on the obstacles at the same time. However, this was an obstacle course to remember. The cargo nets were approximately 30ft high (there were two of them, one after the other), then it was through bogs that came up to your chest if you are six feet tall. God help you if you were 5ft 4ins. Across more cargo nets, ducking under logs and crates (kindly put on top of the bogs), then onto the leopard crawl, a run through blazing hay bails, wade through some streams, and a final run up yet another hill to the finish, for medals and tea (that is, if you can actually stop shivering enough to drink the tea).

All in all it was a taxing course which also had a mental aspect to it, with the freezing water (ice cream headaches wot!) really getting at you. However, all who took part did enjoy it.

EXERCISE BRAEMAR FINN - Sig Jamie Buyers

Ex Braemar Finn took place in the highlands of Scotland and was used as a training exercise for the 39 Bde Lanyard Trophy team. The team deployed from the ferry and made the four hour drive to a small Scottish town called Ballater, where we were accommodated in the local barracks. The town itself was close to Balmoral Castle and also not far from the Glenshee Ski Centre. The kit lay out, all that we took was military and there were a few added essentials to make life easier on the bills

The Exercise itself consisted of five days of hill walking over various long arduous terrain. The training was run by Lt John 'Let's go this way and get out of the wind' Fraser. Day one was a 20km route that was designed to gently lead us into the swing of things. We covered the said distance, but our legs felt like we had covered about 50km, due to the fact that most of the walk had been through knee deep snow! That's Scotland for you. Day two was much the same distance except we had a 2½hr climb, firstly up a waterfall, then onto a rather steep ridge. After we stopped for lunch we were navigated back down by Sig Billy 'Dangerous Brian' Ellam, which I can only describe as 'an experience in itself'. Then it was back to the beautiful sight of the minibus and an excellent dinner by Chef Jason 'Chocolate Salted Balls' Webb. After these first two days we all were very stiff and agreed that more preparation should be taken in the future when training in such arduous and cold conditions. That night we all took a trip down town for a swift pint or seven, and were back in bed before eleven. (well some of us were). Day three was our longest route, going on for just over 30km, but there was a lot less snow this time, so the going was not as difficult on the legs as the previous two days. However, the wind made up for that, and there was no escaping it either, as the OC found out when he tried to get us out of it, but thanks to LCpl 'are we nearly there yet?' Gallagher's navigating we ended up walking face first into a howling gale, and knee deep in snow again lucky us.

The end of the route was finished, with the last 9km being on flat road and as I was leading the group at the time I decided to pick up the pace, bad idea as I was to discover the next day. The last day was a long route but it was mainly over land rover tracks, and people were suffering from various injuries, so the pace was quite steady. But the main point about the last route was that it was more closely allied to the actual course on the day. That night was Karaoke Night at the local bar in Ballater, the night sparked off by a stunning duet from SSgt 'Get those headphones off' Robinson and LCpl Kev 'Longshanks' Board, of the Tom Jones hit Delilah. The show was stolen by Cpl Tony 'Daydream Believer' King when he sung the line 'Home Coming Queen', the two officers walked in the pub door perfect timing gents. As the night wore on it was announced over the microphone that breakfast was put back until ten the following morning for obvious reasons. The final day was just a stretch off day and everybody's mind was on the last nights shindig in Aberdeen. But you know what they say what happens on tour stays on tour.

The Exercise was a great success and enjoyed by all, but it was also very beneficial training as the competition is arriving soon, and we hope to do better than last year but we will wait and see.

MERCURY CUP ATHLETICS - APRIL 1999

by SSgt Jim Coupland

The Team was selected in a similar way to that of most of the Squadron's sporting competitions, in a concise, careful and methodical manner. 'If you are not on shift, BART, Maint, driving detail, duty, course or leave then you are in the team!' Due to the pressure of operations and the severe lack of females our overall position was never going to be representative of our raw talent. The Male Team enjoyed an excellent day of sport in weather that amazed me. Since I arrived in the Squadron eight months ago I have lived under a shield of Goretex and welly boots, so it took me by surprise to get sunburnt, especially in April!

All team members put in a great deal of effort in their events for which they should be congratulated. However, the following deserve special mention: Cpl Glen Ruscoe - 5000m slog, Pte Richard Street - Shot Putt, Sig Craig Buckingham - Javelin and Discus, Sig David King - Long Jump winner, LCpl Nick 'Noo Noo' Mier - Last leg of 4 x 100m relay - Fantastic effort! The Squadron 2IC Capt David Seymour said that in achieving the same result as last year proved beyond doubt that the following equation is true: 'The final points tally is inversely proportional to the square of the sum of the amount of recreational facilities combined with the amount of work done per head of men or women!'

QUARTERMASTER'S DEPARTMENT - by LCpl Sam Shillto

RQMS	WO2 (RQMS) Kev Tunstall

Members of the QM Dept took part in Ex Richmond Challenge the bi-annual ITD training week at a local training area. The juniors hoped it would be a peaceful few days away from certain members of the RQMS staff, but how wrong they were as all the senior ranks attended. No peace and quiet! The department was well represented in the Squadron Competition. The competition was run over six weeks and included a BPFA, Saxon driving and commanding, ranges, games night and a quiz night. Our own entry into the final was Sgt Eddie Porter who after a well-fought final round came in 4th. The RQMS pulled out just to make everyone else look good. Maj Jake Thackray won the competition however he gave the prize to a needy charity, namely LCpl James Bond who finished in second place. The next few weeks will be busy with the upcoming adventure training and PRE.

We say goodbye to Cpl Jase Steen who leaves the QM Dept to go to ATR Pirbright. Also Cpl Mike Harvey who leaves us to retrade to photographer. He is posted to the Joint School of Photography at RAF Cosford. We wish them and their families all the best for the future.

THE LANYARD TROPHY - by Cpl Glen Ruscoe

LANYARD TROPHY TEAM

Lt Jo Stewart	LCpl Gavin Welch
Sgt Pete Mills	Sig David King
Cpl Glen Ruscoe	Sig Steve Baxter
LCpl Ronnie Cuthbert	Sig David Bateman
LCpl Eddie Stojanovic	Sig Craig Buckingham

The Lanyard Trophy race is organised annually. It covers on average 40 miles over arduous terrain and requires fitness, stamina, navigational skills and a sense of humour. This year the North Downs Way was selected. The teams consist of ten individuals who must carry a certain weight, males 40lb and females 25lbs. The team was led Lt Jo Stewart who was chosen from a cast of thousands (1) and the team 2IC, Sgt Pete Mills who was also chosen from a cast of thousands (2). The route was relatively simple with the majority on tracks or roads. There were three check points and a feeding station along the route. At each check point teams have to check in, replen food and water and report casualties. To successfully complete the teams must start with ten members and end with eight one of which has to be the team captain or 2IC. The team started training in February tabbing round camp and up to local training areas for longer distance sessions. A week in Scotland was organised for some longer and more intensive training. From the initial 19 volunteers the team was whittled down to a stalwart squad of 13, with the final team picked a few days before the race. On Thursday 6 May at 0430hrs 290 people congregated for weighing in and the massed start.

The Lanyard Trophy Team

Our team set off and were quickly in their stride. As the miles rolled by the physical effort began to show. Most suffered from blisters on the feet and back. By the 20 mile point the team were going well and were well within the first ten teams. At the 28 mile point we had dropped two team members which meant that we could not afford to lose any more. Although beginning to tire we pressed on and concentrated on the next few miles. By the 30 mile point and the third check point we had chipped away and overtaken 3 Brigade Signal Squadron, our arch rivals from the south. The support team LCpl Nick Mier, LCpl Dave Healy and Sig Allen Oliver did an excellent job providing food, water and motivation. Cpl 'Ma'am offered to carry my Bergen' Ruscoe and LCpl 'Stoggy' Stojanovic also kept spirits high with jokes and banter. We approached the final check point feeling strong so we decided to push the pace all the way to the finish. We marched up the last hill, blisters popping, backpacks rubbing and most of us promising never to compete in this gruelling event ever again.

We crossed the finish line in seventh place overall and fifth out of the regular units. The greatest achievement for the team was finishing before the two other Brigade Signal Squadrons in Northern Ireland and being the first mixed team across the line in an impressive time of 10hrs 49mins. An excellent effort all round and a promise by all of the team to try harder next year. Any volunteers?

NISAAM

by Sgt Eddie Porter

On 12 April 1999 the Signal Squadron's NISAAM shooting team travelled to Ballykinler to take on the provinces finest and to show them how it should be done. The team consisted of: team manager MTWO (WO2) Tom Hair, team coach Sgt Scott Pringle, Team Captain Sgt Eddie Porter, and team members Cpl Al MacDonald, LCpl Dave Healy, Sig 'Geordie' Harrison, and team loud boy Sig 'Don Juan' King. On arrival we met the manager and coach playing table tennis and drinking tea in the NAAFI, in fact that is where they spent most of the week and they still can not play it to a decent standard.

The first shoot was FIBUA. However not being the brightest of teams we forgot what it consisted of. The competition organisers being good eggs allowed us another shoot later in the week. We also had a go at Clay Pigeon shooting where Sig David King proved he was an excellent shot. We were more than a match for major units in the pistol shoot. Well done Cpl Al MacDonald. We managed to get to the semi-final but were unfortunately beaten by 4 R Irish. One of the hardest parts of the week was the march and shoot, even the MTWO ran faster than me!

To round off an interesting week we competed in the falling plate shoot. Unluckily we were narrowly beaten by RGJ, but we did manage to beat 2 Para!

COMMUNICATIONS TROOP
by LCpl Gavin Welch

Tp Comd	Lt Jo Stewart
Tp SSgt	SSgt Tony Taylor

Comms Tp, the back bone of the Squadron would like to say a few warm welcomes and some sad goodbyes. Starting with LCpl Marcus Bartrip, who swapped stockbroking in London for a tour in Londonderry and LCpl Duncan Gourlay. They have just arrived from the Royal School of Signals and are looking forward to a rewarding first tour. Welcome also to Sig Daniel 'Smudge' Smith, Sig 'Geordie' Fearon, Sig Mary Anderson, Sig Danny Critchlow. But unfortunately we have to say goodbye to Sgt Tim 'Mouse, I'm so covert' Lever who is posted to CIS at Blandford to play with computers and to Cpl Mark 'Guido' Benson who is off to 24 Air Mobile. Good luck to Sig Graham 'Wingnut' Lafferty who is posted to 15 Sig Regt on promotion. Congratulations to Sig Andy Herd and Sig Dave Dowson who depart on promotion .

EXERCISE RICHMOND CHALLENGE 1/99 APRIL 99
by Sgt Scott Pringle

Ex Dtr	Maj Jake Thackray
Ex Ctler	WO2 (RQMS) Tunstall

Ex Richmond Challenge 1/99 started a new era of training for the Brigade Headquarters and Signal Squadron with the start of the new ITDs. The new training objectives that have been introduced Army wide were successfully completed during the exercise. The majority of instructors were from the Signal Squadron with the exception of Rev Robbins who provided an excellent lesson covering ITD 11, Moral Understanding. Some volatile debate followed thank goodness the debates were held inside the classroom and not a boxing ring. Cheers Padre!!! We hope you have a good cheery posting to the mainland.

One of the major changes that has been introduced with the ITDs is the new battlefield first aid training, which was covered by Sgt Kev Cooney, Sgt Pete Mills and LCpl Andy Green. It did not take long for the students to get used to the new Battlefield First Aid Aide Memoire. However if a soldier was faced with a fellow member of his section injured on the battlefield would he really say, 'Hang on a mo while I whip out my Aide Memoire and cover drills 1 to 10!'

As well as the ITDs some theatre specific training was incorporated. WO2 MTWO Tom Hair, Sgt 'Stan' Stanley and Cpl Mark Guest provided an excellent stand on CMV drills. Sgt Stanley's informative introduction set the scene for some hands on experience. All students participated in the scenario, testing their reactions to IVCPs. Some pertinent questions were raised during the lesson, the most amusing but frightening for the DS was from someone who will remain nameless. 'Is it really safe to use live rounds on a live enemy!?' She/he will be sent on an ammo recognition course. We now look forward to exercise Richmond Challenge 2/99 where the remainder of the Brigade HQ and Signal Squadron will participate.

The Training Wing would like to welcome Cpl 'Brum' Flute who since arriving has announced the birth of his new baby boy Alan. Many congratulations! Also congratulations go to Sgt Scott Pringle and his wife Tina on the birth of their little girl, Ashton.

MOTOR TRANSPORT TROOP - by LCpl Stuart Palmer

Tp Comd	WO2 (MTWO) Tom Hair
Tp Sgt	Sgt 'Stan' Stanley

We have had a busy couple of months especially getting all the vehicles ready for the PRE inspection. A special congratulations to LCpl Andy 'Claude' Green on coming top of his driving instructors course at DST Leconfield. Welcome to Cpl 'Johno' Johnson, LCpl Amanda Rowlands and LCpl 'Brummie' Reed. Farewell to LCpl 'Gaz' O'Hara who has left us and joined the big outside world of civvy street. Finally, congratulations to LCpl Paul Lawler and LCpl Nathan Reed on their well deserved promotions.

NEWS FROM THE REGIMENTS

1 (UNITED KINGDOM) ARMOURED DIVISION HEADQUARTERS & SIGNAL REGIMENT

201 SIGNAL SQUADRON

Sqn Comd	Maj Colin Lawrence
SSM	WO2 (SSM) Kev Simmons

On 1 April (bad choice of date) the Regiment amalgamated 201 and 208 Sig Sqns into a single Trunk Squadron. The new 201 Sig Sqn, capable of deploying four Ptarmigan Trunk Nodes, is now the largest Trunk Squadron in the Corps. The OC, Maj Colin Lawrence, totally overwhelmed by his new command, immediately disappeared off to Kuwait for three weeks leaving his new 2IC, Capt Jo Evans, to get on with sorting out the Squadron. Despite over 40% of the manpower only joining the Squadron on 3 May, we have already deployed all four trunk nodes on a very successful Squadron Exercise, have a Squadron Battle Camp planned and have 50% of the Squadron deployed on, or warned for, operational deployments. To all the new members of the Squadron, welcome and the OC will give you your initial interview when you return from operations at the end of the year!

FALCON TROOP

Tp Comd	Lt Chris Biddulph
Tp SSgt	SSgt A. J. Robertson

April saw the soldier's of 'Mighty Panther' Troop paying homage to what was and looking forward to a new beginning. From the embers of the old Panther, rising like a phoenix from the ashes came the 'Fighting Falcon'. The herald of a new beginning, a more efficient, capable and robust fighting force than has ever been seen before, man and machine working in perfect harmony, the start of a new era in military excellence. 'Why, these boys and girls are mad for it!'

Best wishes and regards from the Troop are sent to Sig 'Crash Test Dummy' Keers and Sig 'Penfold' Brown, both serving in Macedonia, hope you're enjoying yourselves.

Now for a sad moment, the Troop is saying goodbye to SSgt 'LS and GC, 17 years a Royal Signals Stormtrooper' Robertson after three years of exemplary service with 201 Sig Sqn. During his time with 1 (UK) ADSR, SSgt Robertson has completed operational tours to the Falklands with JCUFI and to Bosnia as part of KFOR. The Troop bids you a fond farewell and extends best wishes for a happy and successful time in Krefeld to your wife Agi and children Ben and Sam.

ARMY BASKETBALL TEAM TOUR 1999 - by Sig Hogarth

The Army Basketball Tour 1999 took place at Fort Hood, Texas (260km South of Dallas). Whilst it was an enjoyable and relaxing time, temperatures of 36 degrees every day took some getting used too. The team's aim was to develop a strong athletic and professional bond between the two organisations, and I think we were successful in doing so. The hospitality of the Red Coats and members of the 27 Main Support Battalion was amazing, anything we needed, they got. Before each game, Army colours were presented and handshakes given, we were even presented with individual certificates and trophies upon our departure from Fort Hood. The tour maintained a busy schedule including time to play the home nation sports of Football and Softball. The team managed to win one Basketball match, however, each game was played with intense, yet sporting professionalism, making every one enjoyable and rewarding.

The Americans seemed to have spent a long time preparing for our visit which showed in the fantastic welcome we received on our arrival. In addition to our sporting activities, we spent a lot of time touring the Fort Hood campus. This included visits to the Simulation centre, vehicle parks and museums. An afternoon was spent relaxing at a barbecue hosted by the Commanding Officer and his wife.

Several days were spent in the cities of Dallas, San Antonio and New Orleans towards the end of the tour. On our departure, the Americans accepted our invitation to repay the compliment and play us on our own soil. In summary, the trip was highly enjoyable and a great success. We left on excellent terms with our American counterparts, and we certainly gained some new skills, however, the Credit Cards did take a battering.

KESTREL TROOP

Tp Comd	2Lt Alan Foote
Tp SSgt	SSgt 'China' Cooper

It has been a hectic couple of weeks in TN 071 with the Troop taking part in Ex Premier Link, its first as a new Troop. The Troop was under the superb direction of 2Lt 'Subbies Friend' Foote who got things off to a flyer by missing two tac signs on arrival into location. Everybody in the Troop was sparking especially in cluster 407 who were breaking records when it came to camming up (two days, well done lads!) It was a learning exercise for all including Sig 'Abbo' Abbott who learnt the skill of driving with a trailer jockey wheel up next time 'Abbo'. Sig Lizzy Brown had an eventful exercise getting to grips with the concept of comms Kestrel which left Sigs Thompson and Exall feeling a bit left out. The Exercise was a success, Kestrel Tp providing by far the best comms and everybody enjoyed it especially the end-ex debrief.

Finally, welcome to our new Staffy 'China' Cooper and family, congratulations to Sig 'Goon' Southwood on his first stripe, God help us and good bye to Sig 'Seth' Howarth who is sadly leaving us but will be coming to a Medical Centre near you soon.

HAWK TROOP

Tp Comd	2Lt Angela Aylward
Tp SSgt	SSgt Kev German

The last few months have been a busy time with the forming of the new troop, not to mention the new Squadron. However life has now begun to settle down to a frantic pace. Ex Premier Link was an excellent opportunity for the Troop to get to know each other and to shake out a few cobwebs. Looking to the future many of the Troop will soon be deploying on Op Agricola in support of 3 Div. Good byes go to Cpl Nigel Howard and Sig Michael Richards who have been moved to other Troops within the Regiment.

EXERCISE PREMIER LINK - by Sig Hosking

Ex Premier Link was our first Exercise as the newly formed super Trunk Squadron. It was also the first Exercise for us all since returning from both Bosnia and the Falklands. The Exercise was split into two phases, phase one was 201 Sig Sqn deploying and exercising its four trunk nodes. The trunk assets were then joined by the headquarters elements during phase two. As this was our first exercise in ten months problems inevitably arose but over all the exercise was a great success. The first week was an unique opportunity for us to practice and learn new skills. TN 041, to all our amusement took this a bit too far, while every other node was up and radiating and practising our comms skills 041 were digging in, stagging on and honing their infantry skills. 15 hours later after every one else had established comms 041 were finally setting up. After that slow start the Exercise ran smoothly. Following the Exercise we all returned to camp for a few drinks to celebrate.

SUPPORT TROOP

Tp Comd	Capt Jo Evans
Tp SSgt	SSgt Ian Lee

After returning to sunny Herford from various destinations around the globe, Sp Tp were straight back into the old Ptarmigan way of life supporting two extra Trunk Nodes to make the new style Trunk Squadron. The Techs and EDs flew into action on the first Exercise motivated by the mystery of where they will be in a few months time. A fresh intake of Sys Ops appeared in the Troop to take over both OSCs and SCCs under the control of LCpl Chris Doe with several EDs to take on the mammoth task of looking after all the generators in 'Surplus Equipment'.

Good bye to SSgt 'Chippy' Chapman and SSgt Ian Lee who are both off to Blandford and welcome to Sgt Ian Conlan in to the Troop. Congratulations to Cpl 'I love monkeys' Parkinson on her promotion and most of the Troop who are either engaged, getting married or having babies!

211 SIGNAL SQUADRON

Sqn Comd	Maj Julian Bunce
SSM	WO2 (SSM) Angus Palmer

RADIO REBROADCAST TROOP

Tp Comd	Lt A. D. Shakespeare
Tp SSgt	SSgt D. Cox

Well, the Troop is back after a temporary absence due to Bosnia and you would never have known we have only just reformed. The hefty task of building new RRBs out of our new Wolf fleet has gone well and just in time for the Regimental Ex Premier Link. The Exercise went well with our new recruits getting to grips with the intricacies of a Radio Rebroadcast Vehicle.

We must unfortunately say good bye to SSgt Graeme Wharton once we can find a way of cutting the umbilical cord! I believe a Tp Comd originally signed for him back in 1960! He is going off to a part time job as OIC Fishing Tp somewhere in Nottingham… A younger SSgt Dean Cox is taking the helm just in time to take the fine 'volunteers' of the Troop to Kosovo. I am sure he will end up enjoying his new position. As always, a sad farewell must also be mentioned… Cpl Andy Allen who is off to 7 Bde in July along with his wife Karen. The chuckle brothers will never be the same without you and LCpl Blackmore is off to sneakier things….

Congratulations must go to Sig McCormack who is to be a father of twins in December. My advice is best start getting some sleep and congratulations must also go to LCpl Blackmore and LCpl 'Del' Spry on their recent promotion to LCpl.

COMMAND TROOP

Tp Comd	Lt Karl Jeeves
Tp SSgt	SSgt Kev Innes

The Troop have now returned from Bosnia in various states of health and waistlines vary after an extended leave, all ready for action and the prospect of new adventures to lands yet uncharted and civilisations yet to have a MacDonalds. Instead we might just re-sign for all our old vehicles and prepare for Ex Premier Link, the Regimental Reconstitution Exercise. During the Exercise, we were honoured with a visit from the Chief of the General Staff, Sir Roger Wheeler, who found time to chat with all the boys in Diamond 1 and 2, the message essentially one of praise for the hard work of the Regiment. The rest of the Exercise was conducted without staff involvement and was a real chance for the Troop to shake out and practice our own SOP's under the guidance of the new Troop OC, Lt Karl Jeeves and new SSgt Kev Innes, who is the first Tele Op RR to hold the post. A welcome is also due to a number of other new faces who have joined the international Armour Fraternity.

Since the exercise the majority of the Troop have moved to 72hrs NTM for the big K and are now frantically trying to remember when they last had a dental inspection and where they put their mess tins. The feeling within the Troop is one of excitement, but also apprehension at the necessity to deploy again straight after a tour. Congratulations to Sig Sharon McMurray who was due to marry on the 11 June.

212 SIGNAL SQUADRON

Sqn Comd	Maj M. W. G. Adams
SSM	SSgt (SSM) Harry Kemp

Welcome Back! Seems to be the theme for the majority of the Regiment, and holds true for the Squadron too. Finally the two halves of the Squadron met once again, in April this year, after some well earned leave. This gave an opportunity for the recent Bosnia Warriors to invite those new members of the Squadron (of the Late Harewood Ops Group) to 'pull up a sandbag'…This was great (for 15 minutes…)

Welcomes must go to the new 2IC, Capt Jase Nichols and the new SSM, Harry Kemp who have joined us over the past few months. Hi to Sig Beazley who joins us from the good School - he had a birthday on exercise and had an interesting experience with his cake ingredients… Good luck should be given to SSgt (SQMS) 'Chalky' White and SSgt Mark Bentley who have just departed for several weeks of EFP2, missing some of the most crucial time in the Squadron (and the time when all the hard work is needed!) A sad farewell and good luck must go to Cpl 'Gazza' Dine, who, after much pleading and bribing has managed to get posted to the UK, and the area he really wanted to go (Blandford…god knows why…but that's another story!). Farewell also to SSgt Breheyney, who after a short stint as SQMS of the new sparkling Computer Tp (oops, sorry, IS Tp…!) leaves us for pastures greener…

The Squadron now faces collapse again, as we are launched into operations once again. The Squadrons major focus is heading up JCUFI once more, and also supplementing Bosnia and Kosovo - this may be the only 212 entry this year….

SPECIAL TASKS TROOP

Tp Comd	Lt Lou Henderson
Tp Sgts	Sgt 'String Bean' Sims
	Sgt Shaun Arundel

Once again reconstitution is upon 1 Div, all change and a new troop is born. Special Tasks Troop, 212 Sig Sqn rose from the ashes like a dodo. After trying (and mostly failing) every scam in the book, the dets were finally signed over, courtesy of our trusty storemen Sigs Baz Harvey and Dave Vakalala.

The Troop then deployed independently on a shake out exercise. This seemed to go well until the night move when Sgts 'Honestly, we did recce it' Sims and Arundel directed one of the vehicles into a quagmire! After a speedy self-recovery, thanks to Sig 'Jugs' Wilson's glow in the dark tow-rope, it was time for Soft Tac's first set up after it's aesthetic overhaul. All looked good in the dark but it's amazing what a bit of daylight can do. During the second week of Ex Premier Link the dets were spread to the four winds, with Soft Tac initially deploying with Alt HQ. On moving and setting up in 211 Sig Sqn location Sig 'Dead arm' Harvey had a nasty experience involving a Landrover, a trailer and his arm. Thinking it was broken he was dispatched to the Medical Centre looking very green. On arriving he suddenly declared 'Oh, I can feel it now!' so he returned, not with the expected cast but with a mere blue Elastoplast.

Ex Premier Link was Spec Tasks Troop's first and last Exercise of the year. The Troop are now separating to Kosovo, Falklands and Bosnia; only to do it all again next spring! We would like to say a sad farewell to LCpl's Law and Lamb who are both posted. Recent update; due to recent commitments, Spec Tasks Tp now no longer has enough people to exist alone – it was a fair ship and she sailed well…

COMMUNICATIONS TROOP

Tp Comd	2Lt S. Gunson
Tp Sgt	Sgt L. Balmforth

We would like to welcome all the new faces into the Troop and are glad to see some of the old ones back again. To begin with we would like to congratulate LCpl 'Scouse' Wilson on his recent and well earned promotion. There has been a lot of hard work done since the Troop reformed followed by some well deserved playtime. The maintenance of the vehicles, after months in LCP, has taken up most of the Troop's work schedule, but after some hard work and a few late nights they have been brought back up to their usual high standard. Just in time to put them back into mothballs for the JCUFI and Balkans deployments. Sgt 'Barney' Balmforth's famous barbecue made an occasion for the Troop to get to know each other. A great night was has by all and we look forward to the next such get together.

With little time to do anything but work, we started prepping the wagons for Ex Premier Link. This was a Squadron level Exercise to test out all the equipment on the vehicles and give some experience to the newer members of the Squadron. It got off to a roaring start when Sig 'Geordie' Ayre's 439 burst into flames and the unlucky 'Geordie' was taken off the Exercise with minor burns, all recovered now. It seems everyone in the Troop was trying to get on the morale bandwagon when on his first Exercise Sig Wayne Hobbs left his bergen behind on the first move. Not wanting him to feel down for too long, Lt 'Gunny' Gunson thought that he would wear everybody else's webbing apart from his own. Apart from the usual glitches the Exercise went very well for all involved and all members of the Troop gained valuable experience.

The Troop had an impressive string of results at the Inter-Squadron Athletics with our very own running machine Sig Martin Potter winning the 800m and the 1500m easily. LCpl 'Windy' Millar won the Javelin and Sig 'Jimbo' Callendar coming second in the shot. Especially well done to Sig 'Red' Stables winning the Ladies Javelin and continuing to represent BA(G) in the Army Championships.

As you can see it has been quite a busy time for us and we are looking forward to when things get back to 'normal'. Or is this becoming normal now? Finally farewells, I would like to wish all the best to LCpl Chamberlain and wish him all the best at 24, thanks for your help in your whole week with the Troop!

INFORMATION SYSTEMS TROOP – by LCpl Si Vickers

Tp Comd	Capt Purves
Tp SSgt	SSgt Breheney

With the implementation of the COs Fourth directive, computers, the new Information Systems Troop was formed on the 5 May 1999. The Troop consisted of personnel from all three Field Squadrons, Tele Op Sys from 201, Tele Tech Sys from 212, and the finest operators from 211. The Troop set about it's primary role of ATacCS LAN Management, with Sgt Tony 'Commander LAN' Rosen leading the way, having recently completed his LAN Managers Course. The first task for the newly formed Troop was to prepare for Ex Premier Link, a Regimental Exercise designed to teach detachment level drills. The Troop was divided into two teams to cover both Oscar and Papa HQs.

Team one was deployed with Oscar HQ for the duration of the Exercise. Led by Sgt Rosen with his merry men Cpl 'Porky' George, Cpl 'Inch' Harper-Ronald and LCpl 'Mad Dog' Barker. After the initial deployment to Sennelager the Team's first mission was to deploy a LAN in divisional Oscar HQ. Laying fibre optic cables in temperatures above 28°C it was a welcome relief to get back to the box body and switch on the ACU. Due to man power problems within the Squadrons Cpl George and LCpl Barker had to move to PAPA HQ to command 436s, leaving Sgt Rosen and Cpl H-R to fend for themselves, which they managed with ease. The next phase of the Exercise saw us move to Blomberg and the now 2-man Det setup the LAN. Our thanks go out to the lads of 211 for lending a hand when needed.

Team Two was deployed with 212 Papa HQ, led by Sgt Mark Smith with Cpl Daz Holman, LCpl Si Vickers and our only Signalman, Matt Rees. Their task was to deploy a LAN at Papa HQ. The format of the Exercise was the same as 211 Oscar HQ, except the team was boosted to eight with the arrival of the Troop OC, The Yeoman and the two 436 commanders. Needless to say the Papa HQs LAN was deployed much faster. The Exercise acted as a valuable learning experience, with all members of the Troop gaining valuable experience for the future. On our return from the field, the Troop was again split in to two teams. The first team concentrating on our primary role ATacCS management. The second team taking care of Regimental IS support and Millennium bug issues.

Sadly Sgt 'Stretch' Barnes could not attend the Exercise due to his well-timed fibre optic course, looking forward to seeing his new skills on the next Exercise! We would like to take the opportunity to say farewell to SSgt Bob Breheney who is sadly leaving us and we wish him luck at 34 Sig Regt (V).

During the last 10 weeks we have seen the Squadron swell from 130 personnel to over 170. With the rest of the Regiment on or about to deploy on operations, HQ Sqn have been thrown into a frenzy of growth and re-organisation receiving personnel from all trades who would normally serve in the field. We have been kept extremely busy with 'Race the Sun', Adventure Training and ITDs.

On 14 May 99, the Regiment gathered on Kohima Square to say a very fond farewell to WO1 (RSM) D. Whitaker who is off to 21 Sig Regt on commissioning. Keeping with his tradition of being a 'courses man' he recently qualified as a Demolitions Safety Officer, an extremely useful course for a Families Officer! Best wishes for the future to you, Sue and the boys from 2 Sig Regt. A very warm welcome to the new RSM, WO1 (RSM) S. D. Keilty who arrived just in time to see the Regiment deploy on Op Agricola. We hope you have a very sucessful tour with the Regiment and welcome you, Ella and family to York.

We also welcome Capt R. Anderton-Brown as the Adjt, Capt 'Beanie' Lloyd as the new 2IC, and Lt Julie Richardson, AGC Det Comd.

members from HQMT participated in Ex Key Baseline to up date ITDs at Warcop. Arrivals within the department include LCpl Davison from 9 Mech Bde, LCpl Adams from 3 Div, Sig Jarusek and Sig Johnstone from 11 Sigs and Sig Coburn from 1 UK Div. Departures include SSgt Chadwick and Sig Pybus who has gone to Civvy Street, and LCpl Evans who was posted to 15 Sigs. Finally congratulations go to LCpl Amrit and Man on promotion to Cpl.

RACE THE SUN

Saved from cancellation an abridged version of the annual Charity Event Race the Sun went ahead on 20 May 1999. The event organiser WO2 (SSM) McGarry was put through his paces organising the event with limited manpower and resources. However, in spite of operational commitments he managed to successfully organise a scaled down version from 16 to 8 legs, and everyone who attended commented that they were pleased that the event went ahead. In its 11 years 'Race the Sun' has raised over £80,000 most of which is donated to local children's charities. Once again the event was kindly sponsored by Nestlé UK Ltd.

Teams travelled from as far afield as Welbeck College, who entered four teams, to DST Leconfield, totalling 16 teams. The event covered 110 km and involved running, tabbing and biking over some demanding sections of the North Yorkshire countryside, culminating in a 900 metre swim across the Great Lake at Castle Howard. Thank you to all the 166 competitors who took part and congratulations to 30 Sig Regt who won the competition for the second year running. The Best Effort Trophy was awarded to Welbeck College 'A' Team with a time of 8:11:49 and the Trophy for most money raised went to 2 Sig Regt. Sponsor money is still being collected and is estimated at over £4000 this year. The results of the competition were:

Second place	DST Leconfield	7:49:51
Third place	2 Sig Regt (HQ Sqn)	7:57:44

EXERCISE MIKE EBOR

The Lake District may recover one day from 'The HQ Sqn Experience' - future generations depend on it. Those not sunning themselves in France were treated to Ex Mike Ebor; rockclimbing, abseiling, gill scrambling, mountain biking and lashings of Quality Mountain Days in the Keswick area for two weeks. Home was a campsite nestled in the shadow of Skiddaw; accommodation was 12x12s to prevent homesickness. Moral fibre was put to the test as peaks were 'bagged' in weather conditions ranging from arctic winds to scorching sun, which broke the monotony of rain. Log Books return brimming with Scafell - Great Gable - Van Halen (aka Helvellyn) and the Langdale Pikes. There was plenty of 'good chat' in the evenings in Keswick and a few Men of the Match emerged over the two weeks. In Week One Son of 'Geordie' (aka Sig Sworowski) was almost blown away, he was only saved by the weight of his Bergen, which kept him on the ground. In Week Two duo Sgt 'Bog hopping' Hutchinson and Cpl 'Flash' Carter were almost swallowed up by the Langdales. They were pipped to the post by two 'Players of the Year; Sig 'Otter Trainer' Cleghorn and SSgt 'That's expensive for steak' Ratcliffe who both contributed some classic quotes (unprintable). A big hand to SSgt Keen, SSgt 'Calculator' Wood, the 'Super chefs', Sig Manby the motor-cross minibus driver, the school girls, the Kings, the pet hamster and all the others who made the whole thing possible...

EXERCISE KEY BASELINE

by Cpl Longworth

In April, those of us not deploying to Kosovo were whisked off to Warcop Training Area to brush up individual military skills and pass annual ITDs. It was a punishing schedule, day one started with a quick refresher on section attacks followed by a CFT. A quick word to the PTI before the start confirmed my fears, the landrover used to recce the route was struggling up some of the hills! After the CFT, one section was down one man, LCpl Gaz Evans now reduced to a slow hobble in trainers, thanks to his blisters.

Day two started with everyone zeroing for their APWT, however, the weather may have been partly to blame for some of the scores; at one point we all stopped firing and crouched in the fire trenches to let the snowstorm pass. Anyway that's what Sig 'Jonah' Jones will tell his grandchildren one day. However in contrast the following morning the sun came out to play so much so that I needed sunglasses on the Section in defence range, well, that's my excuse for not seeing the targets. That evening Sgt Shane Carnell had to re-shuffle the sections due to the number of dropouts and we welcomed Cpl 'Jobbo' Jobson, LCpl Bri Wallace and Sig Emma Clayton to the Section. Then it was straight off to attack the skills house which was heavily defended by all the injured and sick. Section 1 led the assault armed with ladders and ropes looking like a gang of angry window cleaners after our money! First in the window was Sig 'Spice' Cinnamon followed by Sig 'Scouse' Salter, it was all going well until 2 Section came on the scene and were promptly wiped out whilst trying to take the stairs.

Next was the CQB, command tasks, and then pairs fire and manoeuvre, just where did the RQ get all this ammo? Finally Friday arrived and with it the snow, all that remained were two final section attacks and then back to York for well earned tea and medals.

VIKING TROOP

Tp Comd	Lt Peter Hale
Tp SSgt	SSgt Terry Shiels

The Squadron remains on 72 hours notice to move and Viking Tp anticipate the call to arms, as we watch the unfolding events in Kosovo and the terrible scenes emerging from the media. Whilst we wait we have not been idle. With a new training year comes a new round of ITDs to complete, all with the added emphasis and the realities of an impending deployment. In addition the Inter-Troop Competition provided more physical, military, trade and driving tests. With our title to defend the pressure was really on, but once again the Troop did exceedingly well. The scores were all very close and we waited with bated breath as the Commander 11 Bde, on a recent visit, announced the results. Viking Tp had once again won this section of the competition.

There has been very little movement within the Troop. However, it was with great sadness that the Squadron had to bid a fond farewell to Cpl Carl Crofts. After serving nearly 22 years in the army, he had a deserved send off with a Corporal's Mess dinner involving good food and drink with the entertainment being provided by a very funny Hypnotist. Needless to say most finished the night with a firm wish of never again wanting to be hypnotised in front of a large crowd. For some members of the Squadron and 'their fairies', they found it hard to believe what all the fuss was about.

P.S. The next instalment of Wire notes will be reported from the Balkans, the Squadron deployed as this goes to Press.

RACE THE SUN - by Sig O'Connor

Armed with zinc oxide tape and plenty of water, our elite 214 Sig Sqn team turned up early to check the competition out and at a glance knew it was going to be a tough day with all 16 teams being of a very high standard.

The first leg got under way at precisely 9 am, a 12km tab with 35 pounds along winding roads and over killer hills. It was a disappointing start for the team with LCpl Kynaston coming in thirteenth after sustaining an injury. Over the next few legs and with sheer determination we clawed our way through the rest of the day gaining time with every leg. The fell run and half marathon were extremely tough going, leaving Sig Pember and Sig O'Connor footsore and dehydrated. The cross-country bike race severely tested Sig Mackay, but despite being bogged down at one point he still managed to finish with an excellent time. In the full heat of the day Sig Jeynes made up time across the Yorkshire moors and Lt Hale completed the forest run in a good time. With superb map reading and gigantic thighs LCpl Hinchliffe breezed through the cycle orienteering race gaining the best time of the day. The final leg of the day was a dreaded 900m swim across the lake of Castle Howard. Dressed to thrill in his wetsuit Sig Glass took the plunge and when he did finally surface the look on his face said it all - 'Thank God that is over with'.

By the end of the day the team had managed to fight their way back from thirteenth to a very respectable ninth place. More importantly everybody had enjoyed themselves and had survived a very challenging day.

TORNADO TROOP

Tp Comd 2Lt Graham Wills
Tp SSgt SSgt Neil AC Cooper

The Troop has recently said their goodbyes to Sig Graham Rennie on promotion and Sig Kenny Waring on posting. The Troop will soon be losing on promotion Sgt 'Cass' Cassidy and it is expected that the Troop will have a few hellos shortly, as we still anticipate the deployment on Operation Agricola.

The beginning of April brought some bad news to the Troop. One of our soldiers was badly injured in a road traffic accident. She was taken to Pinderfield Burns Unit, Wakefield Hospital, West Yorkshire for treatment. The Troop decided to help this extremely useful unit with a sponsored charity. The fund-raising was a fete with an 'It's a Knockout' competition. One of the local teams had dropped out and our services were required to fill the slot. Sgt Dave Uttley, Cpl Billy Morrison, LCpl David Morris (Team Captain), Cpl Gaz Taylor (REME), Sgt Bev Lumb (AGC), Mrs Kara Uttley (Sgt RE Cadets Instructor), Sig Sarah Elliot and Mrs Cerys Bragger (RHQ CR Clerk) formed the 2 Signal Regiment 'Imphalmaniacs'. Unfortunately, an ankle injury did not allow SSgt Neil Cooper to take part but he did manage to have a good laugh at the team's expense. Sig Sara Elliot was volunteered to get into a spherical cage to be rolled up and down a field. The rest of the team did not tell her that they had already seen this ball in action and the occupant steps out of the sphere and immediately reveal their breakfast. Sgt Dave Uttley and his wife represented the team at the 'Bar Bungee', luckily, they both have had some practice at some of the other Bars in York and this gave the team a winning run. Cpl Morrison was put to the test in the 'Sumo Wrestling' as he has trained for years to mature his fine tuned physique. He managed to gain points by falling over as the opposing team member ran at him. The team had a great chance in winning when the 'Joker' was played on the 'Tug of War'. Luckily the team were wearing boots which gave an added advantage, there were complaints, but the organisers just asked 'What else would the Army be expected to wear'. Mrs Cerys Bragger was entered into the fun bikes competition the team made a consolidated effort and pushed her all the way up the hill, unfortunately the bike wheels were off centre giving a very bumpy ride, but she seemed to be enjoying it! LCpl David Morris who brought the team together put himself in for the 'Welly Throwing'. He hurled the wellington outside the end of the marking area, obviously having had a lot of practice in rubber! The day's events were won by another team, not because they were any better, but they managed to 'cheat' better than us!

Another fund raising event was to run thirteen miles as part of the Leeds City Half Marathon for sponsorship. The event took part on Sunday 16 May and fifteen members of 214 Signal Squadron stepped out with an air of confidence in their stride. The race organiser was Sig 'Geordie' Mitchell who thought it would be a good idea to run in combat trousers and military boots, after all it was only a little bit of pain! Cpls 'Slacky' Slack, 'Billy' Morris and Sig 'Griff' Griffiths were not content with this handicap so they decided to take it a little further by running with Bergen's. All fifteen runners finished in under two hours thirty minutes, with the fastest time of one hour thirty nine going to the combined effort of Sgt Paul Richards and Capt 'Scottie' Scott. The whole day was, if not a little painful, a complete success. We are now in the process of collecting all of the monies and anticipate raising around a thousand pounds.

ROMAN TROOP

Tp Comd Lt Adam Honor
Tp SSgt SSgt Chris Symonds

Roman Tp has continued in its preparation for its imminent deployment to the Balkans region. This has been through a series of range packages and information briefs that have further enhanced the readiness of the Squadron. Morale has been kept high with a number of non related comms tasks and social events. The most enjoyable of these tasks was the presentation of a £1200 cheque to Northfield School. The school provides for disabled children and those who suffer from learning difficulties. The Troop deployed to the school with a number of vehicles, expecting to run a mini comms exercise for the kids. On our arrival it became very clear the children were more interested in the vehicles themselves than the comms link that was established across their playground. For three hours the children rotated through the seats of the vehicles, all having a good press of the Bedford horn. Lt Honor presented the cheque to the headmaster, Mr Bill Ford, in the school assembly and the entire school sang a song they had written about Lt Honor and for the first time the Tp Comd was seen to be upstaged and he actually blushed. It was a fantastic morning spent with the school, for the children and the soldiers.

A fond farewell to SSgt 'we are all doomed' Morrison who is moving to HQ Sqn as SQMS. He has long been a 'Roman' and served the cause well. We wish him all the best for the future. The Troop welcomes SSgt 'drill master' Symonds to the fold, he recently arrived from 1 (UK) Armd Div. Our best wishes go to Cpl 'getting his knee down' Leek, who is now the proud father of a bouncing baby girl Charlie. Apparently Charlie is already destined for the England rugby back row. In anticipation of the future the Troop sticks by its motto, 'Shields Up Romans!'

3 (UNITED KINGDOM) DIVISION HEADQUARTERS & SIGNAL REGIMENT

REGIMENTAL HEADQUARTERS

CO Lt Col N. D. Couch
RSM WO1 (RSM) G. J. Stoker MBE

Heartfelt congratulations go to the Technical Adjutant, Capt Nigel Cullen on his recent award of the Joint Commander's Commendation for Op Palatine which was announced in May. At the time of writing the CO and about 40 Regimental personnel are deployed at FYROM with the GOC at HQ COMBRITFOR. The grouping which is based on 206 Sig Sqn, provides the forward planning headquarters deployed at spectacularly short notice and seems to be constantly being reinforced. The rear party, led by the Second in Command, Maj Adam 'Bulford' Ewell as usual, remains poised to deploy whichever of options 1 to 10 is required, today it is Option 3.

202 SIGNAL SQUADRON

Sqn Comd Maj R. J. Quinlan
SSM WO2 (SSM) S. G. Jackson

The Squadron has been in a state of flux for the last two months. Following a busy period of communications exercises in direct support of 3 (UK) Div HQ, the Troops launched into an optimistic period of post exercise season turnaround. No sooner had we managed to drain all the hulls and consolidate our exercise losses than Op Agricola was upon us. The Squadron surrendered a large amount of manpower in support of this operation and, in line with contingency planning being conducted by the Regiment, prepared the vehicles for any subsequent deployment. The Squadron is not solely immersed in operational preparation. We still hope to be able to deploy on Ex Lion Sun 9/99 next month and there remains a certain amount of work to be done if we are to deploy to Cyprus. Although the work rate in the Squadron remains stratospheric, so to does morale. SSM 'Steve' Jackson has compiled a comprehensive training programme for any eventuality that Squadron personnel may face during the year. The result has been a number of sweaty bodies, smiling faces and bionic Signallers.

OVERLOON TROOP

Tp Comd 2Lt K. J. Grice
Tp SSgt SSgt A. J. Crawford

To say that Overloon Tp has undergone a metamorphosis over the last two months would be an understatement. The old OC Troop, Capt 'Jimmy' Hendricks has stepped up to become the Squadron 2IC. 2Lt Kelvin 'Don't you throw those spears at me' Grice has taken over as Troop Commander. There have been several new faces arriving since March. LCpl Fielding and his family arrived from Germany. The Royal School of Signals has sent us a plethora of new trades persons: Sig Allen, Sig 'Pingu' Bryant, Sig 'Pocahontas' Greenhalgh, Sig Simpson, Sig Fowler and Sig 'Tommo' Thompson. Those currently without nicknames will not escape the wit of the Troop jesters for too long. Any personnel named in this month's Wire will pay the usual forfeit.

Congratulations must go to LBdr 'Manners' Manley who has recently passed his Regular Commissioning Board. He has been fortunate enough to be selected to attend RMAS and complete Basic Training all over again. We all wish you luck in the future and hope you see your way to applying for a commission in the Royal Corps of Signals. The Troop also says farewell to its long-suffering Troop SSgt, SSgt Andy Crawford who is posted to ATR Bassingbourn next month as a CQMS. Go placidly; you deserve the rest! Sig 'Richie' Richardson also leaves us to go to 39 Inf Bde. Good luck 'Richie'!

The Overloon Tp Div Main experts proved their worth in April during Ex Lion Sword. The Artillery Detachment, however, showed that they could be effective jokers even in the most trying conditions. Bdrs 'Gladys' Fayers and 'Larry' Loates were both successful in plunging the complex into complete darkness for several minutes. The truth surrounding the incident is highly classified. For a small price Bdr Fayers may agree to tell you, but then he'll have to shred you.

BUSSACO TROOP

Tp Comd 2Lt P. Simpson
Tp Sgt Sgt M. Brown

The Troop remains relatively unchanged since April. We say a warm hello to our new Troop Commander, 2Lt 'Bart' Simpson, or we would do if he weren't always off playing hockey. We also congratulate the newly promoted Cpl 'Max' Maxwell.

The Troop has recently returned from the fast moving and extremely tiring Ex Lion Sword at Ludgershall. Viewing the Wiltshire countryside from Ludgershall on a warm, sunny spring day made you forget that you were on exercise. You had to listen very closely to hear the steady pulse of generators, frantic activity in the complex and sudden alarms announcing changes in the NBC state. We deployed to Ludgershall in direct support of 3 (UK) Div HQ to test our capabilities and revise trade skills. During the exercise, the Troop's Linemen were tested to the limit, laying cable from hangar to hangar throughout BVD Ludgershall. Cpl 'Windy' Millar was adamant that the job would be done correctly; the cable lays were the smartest we'd all seen since Blandford. The EDs worked continually to repair faults that were created to test them by the considerate operators of Overloon Tp. Thanks for all their help in the development of our trade knowledge.

Approximately 30 Troop members managed to secure a helicopter ride in one of the Lynxes that were used during the exercise. Despite the pilots' best attempts at reintroducing us to our last meal, which by the way was superb thanks to the efforts of Sgt Daniels' Chefs, we managed to hold onto our lunch.

MONS TROOP

Tp Comd Lt Gardner
Tp SSgt SSgt Bell

May began with LCpl Dai Mundy's return from FYROM! It was a brief yet educational visit to the Americans. The accommodation wasn't exactly five star but the food was. Personnel took part in cross-training with all types of American equipment and introduced the Americans to the finer aspects of Ptarmigan! The Troop also took part in a demonstration of the newly acquired SAN APs to a representative from the Sultan of Oman's forces. The Troop also made a visit to Normandy in June for the D-Day Remembrance Services. This month the Troop would like to officially welcome Lt Gardner as Tp OC and also welcome back Sgt John Batts, who comes to us after a long awaited promotion and we also warmly welcome Sigs Pollard, Kerridge and Smith. We also bid a sad farewell to SSgt 'Richie' Bell and we hope he enjoys himself in his new part-time job, suitable for a man of his age – sorry calibre!

RADIO TROOP

Tp Comd Capt A. Fennel
Tp SSgt SSgt S. Bartleet

The Troop was formed in February 1999 when elements of the Regiment were put on 72 hrs Notice To Move (and still were in May) on Op Agricola. Personnel were drafted in from 202 and 222 Sig Sqns to join the members of 206 Sig Sqn. By mid Easter approximately 46 members of the Troop had left us for warmer climates under the leadership of Capt Alex Fennel taking with them their detachments to join the forward elements of 7 Sig Regt and 4 Armd Bde Sig Sqn. The remaining members of the Troop are left behind under SSgt Steve Bartleet awaiting our call up papers to join the sunshine tour in the Balkans. As well as the usual vehicle maintenance and preparation the Troop has been kept busy with military training. 222 Sig Sqn were joined for two weeks of FIBUA training, this ended with a military skills patrol competition. Congratulations Cpl Ben Rigby and his team on winning this event, hard luck to Cpl Chris 'I've been beaten by a tech again' Jones for coming a close second. An excellent time was had by all.

Trying to keep everyone's mind focused on the job in hand is hard especially as the vehicles have been ready to deploy for three months. More varied training is planned thanks to Cpl 'Gunny' Russell. We also have Summer Camp and the Dunk Tank at RNAS Yeovilton to look forward to if we are still here by then. Since being put on standby the escape committee have the pleasure to report the following successful escapes from sunny Bulford on posting, LCpl 'Smudge' Smith, LCpl 'Lucky' Stewart, LCpl 'Shacks' Shackleton, Sig Fox and soon to leave us Capt Alex Fennel who was replaced in theatre by Capt Phil Newton. Finally congratulations to LCpl Shaun Thomas on passing his Class 1, NBC instructor and Detachment Commander's Courses back to back.

Elements of the Troop have been preparing for the 'is it on/off' Kosovo deployment. The Troop had a night out in Bournemouth where Cpl 'the tramp' Anderson spent the night outside the night-club due to his bonehead hairdo. Trainspotters Sgt Simons, Cpl O'Hara , Sigs Holland and Warner all deployed to Swanage for a bit of 'steam training' with WO2 (SSM) 'toot toot' Roberts.

Congratulations go to SSgt (YofS) 'Eddy' Yates and SSgt (FofS) Rick Gorman on their promotions to WO2. Sgt Neil 'Oohaarr' Sorley on his well deserved promotion to SSgt. SSgt Pete 'Who's the new boy' Curtis who played rugby (as usual) for the Army at Twickenham against the RAF and Navy, and in his own words 'what an outstanding performance it was too'. Congratulations also go to Cpl Grant 'Have I told you lately' Duncan for being selected to play golf for the Army.

Farewells go to SSgt (FofS) Rick Gorman and his wife Sharyn, posted to Ireland, SSgt (YofS) 'Eddy' Yates and family also off to Ireland. Sgt Neil 'Oohaarr' Sorley is off to the darkest depths of sunny Wales, SSgt Pete 'Didn't know he had arrived' Curtis and his fiancée Catherine back to York, Cpl Andy Carnegie and family, Cpl 'Angry' Anderson and LCpl Nick Adams and family. Hellos and welcomes go to SSgt (FofS) Rick Dickinson and fiancée, SSgt Jase Meek on his move from SHQ fwd and Cpl Martin Warner and family. The Troop has also seen an influx of new baby technicians, welcome to LCpls Gudonis, Perrin and Prowse.

OMAN TROOP

Tp Comd Lt I. Hemy
Tp SSgt Sgt Hayler

Another exciting time for the fighting Oman Tp. Firstly another reshuffle, involving SSgt Bru 'An operational tour, me?' Baker next door (to replace the noisy one!). Lt 'Guess What' Hemy stayed put, with Sgt 'H & S' Hayler coming in from the former Aden cadre. The Cpls remain intact – Cpl 'Escape to Swanage' Hoggart, Cpl 'Fireman Sam' White and Cpl 'I'm an IT guru now' Catney still with us. The Lance Corporals are busy, too – LCpls 'Central Expert' Burgess, LCpl 'Johnno' Johnson and LCpl 'Herbie' Hyde in fine form. Not forgetting those whom we do not see, LCpl 'Gym, say no more' Wilson-Cochrane, also LCpl 'Not too busy to send blueys' Appleby in Bosnia.

What has the Troop been up to? Sig 'Fitness Animal' Jackson putting in an excellent performance on the Lanyard Trophy, Sig 'Water-Bowser Genius' Lewis (Geordie) considering the potential of Wings in his next posting, Sig 'Just having a General round the house for tea' Brewer entertaining the hoi-polloi and Sig 'Keys' Alcock providing the accent. Goodbye to Sig 'HQ' Swailes and welcome to Sig 'Father' Abrams, fresh from darkest Blandford.

A healthy number of the Troop has been busy train-spotting with the SSM, WO2 Frank 'Toot Toot' Roberts down at Swanage Railway, even daring to return with smiles and tans. The visit of a Colonel from Oman prompted interest – if our Troop vehicles had been on show, he would have been impressed with our palm tree. However, he did get the Troop history, thanks to Sig Jackson's excellent research! Speaking of vehicles, yes we've still got the lot, anything you want – offers on a vintage four-tonner?

MASIRAH TROOP

Tp Comd Lt E.J. Fawcett
Tp SSgt SSgt Baker

Back from Easter Leave with no casualties the Troop threw themselves into more Kosovo training, together with other personnel in the Regiment on 72hrs notice, in the form of Ex Arabian Defender. A week of fun and frolics at Copehill Down FIBUA village with many a war story, particularly Cpl 'D*m that barbed wire' Ireland sustaining an interesting injury. The FIBUA (or FIPAD - Fighting in Pubs and Discos) phase of the exercise was followed by a comms exercise where Cpl 'Baz - I can get comms in 30 minutes' Cadman had slightly lost the plot. Obviously, we just couldn't leave without being beasted around the confidence course, though it was a tough course everyone enjoyed it!! The second week comprised of ITDs and culminated in a patrol competition and of course a final get together in the Sportsmans Bar to give out prizes to the winning section, sadly not from the Troop.

Some individuals of the Troop enjoyed a different type of 'work' while on Ex Topham Hat in Swanage courtesy of SSM 'Choo Choo' Roberts. Despite this busy time the Troop, as always, managed to make time for a Troop 'do', this was in the form of a barbecue and some amateur volleyball, though not according to Sig 'Fish' Salmon and Sig 'Iron-man' Robb who took the game far too seriously. The function was also a way for us to say 'See ya wouldn't wanna be ya' to the infamous Sgt 'Small but outrageously noisy' Emmerson as he leaves to join 34 Sig Sqn as a SSgt, we wish him all the best. We also say a goodbye, but only to across the corridor, to Sig 'Dusty' Miller and Cpl 'Serious war wound' Ireland. Newcomers to the troop are SSgt 'Do they have hockey pitches out there' Baker, LCpl 'Do I get to stay this time' Morris and Sig 'Crazy Mike' Buttery.

SHARJAH TROOP

Tp Comd Lt Adrian Johnson
Tp SSgt SSgt R. Lang

Easter leave was uneventful for Sharjah Tp and on return we were in much the same order of battle as when we left. Welcomes and farewells are, like the rest of us, on standby until a more solid state of affairs is reached on the manning front. I will say cheerio to Sgt Steve 'the peoples poet' Pickering who has gone into SHQ after being with us for such a short time. 'It is better to have loved and lost than to have never loved at all'.

Most of April was spent on Ex Red Tricorn 2/Lion Sword which saw us as a Trunk Node plus extra Switches and minus a relay deploy to Ludgershall camp for two weeks. It was to be a static exercise in which we established comms and then had to move. We moved because a member of the public who had purchased a house next door to an Army Camp complained about the noise! After our long and arduous move some 900 metres away we got comms established and solid very smoothly. Well done. Lt Johnson had and interesting discussion about batteries with LCpl 'I bet you a slab' Morris regarding how long his Switch would last on batteries. LCpl Morris was subsequently found to be bluffing or he must have been asleep on his Class 1! (possibly both). Sig 'Clark Kent' Searle had broken his hand. He says he was going flat out on his mountain bike and bailed out. I have it from a reliable source that he was flat out on his back in his pit watching Baywatch!

3 (UNITED KINGDOM) DIVISION HEADQUARTERS & SIGNAL REGIMENT'S FORT BOYARD EXPERIENCE

by Lt Hemy, 222 Sig Sqn

Promised ten days in France, Dirty Den and Melinda the noble 'Fort Boyard' Team was formed. Rumour had it that they were more likely to be in for two days in a fort in the Southampton channel, with spiders, crystals and Lycra (well, there have to be some perks). Notwithstanding the fact that Lt 'You'll love it' Hemy might have stretched the truth, SQMS Dave 'A Corps leotard, please' Allan, Sgt 'Physical Challenge' Thompson, Cpl 'Windy' Gale, Cpl 'I'd be delighted to move the panzer another inch' Hoffman, LCpl '60 reverse dips OK?' Burgess and LCpl 'Pressganged by the office' Kidd filled in the forms, willing volunteers for TV stardom

As if declaring your darkest phobias on paper wasn't enough (and thereby guaranteeing an encounter), they were required to attend an audition soonest and no chance of a make-up artist first. Friday 14 May 1999 started with our willing team posing in front of one of 202's panzers (whose idea was that?). The photographer, in pursuit of excellence, took several shots but no one could quite disguise the vehicle, even using the Unit's flags. Then a swift move to Bristol, where the team were number 91 (?) amongst 90 hopefuls who had been selected from a cast of four thousand. A quick bit of phys (those civvies didn't stand a chance!), some mental work (on a Friday afternoon?) then it was time for a Lycra fitting!. As it transpired, the gentlemen were more suited to shorts and T-shirts, and the girls the gear. At least the television company staff had some useful advice as regards underwear, tightfitting and secure for males, slight and uplifting for females – not the sort of thing usually seen on the CO's Run anyway.

The Unit's team came in the top 30, but was unfortunately not selected for this series. Better luck next time, fame and fortune still beckons (they are keeping your details on file). Thanks to those who supported the effort, but especially to the Team itself, all volunteers who unselfishly committed time and effort. Just too good for Channel 5!

EXERCISE TOPHAM HATT - MAY 1999

by Sgt Steve 'Piccasso' Pickering

The exercise started with a white knuckle ride provided by Andy 'Schumacher' Carvin, who assured us that he wasn't speeding because the speedo was reading only 5mph. The off coming chain gang had warned of ferocious rain storms, however all was looking good so far. After the welcome brief and Paddy 'Egon Romeo' Poole's Pie Chips and Gravy, it was time to hit the sack, all the long term inmates went out to taste the local ales, and try the local talent.

Day One proper and we were given our tasks, to say that Rome wasn't built in a day is a slight understatement, Frank's Job List started on page one, and never really found a last page, it probably never will. His key phrase for every day was 'And when you've finished that I've got another LITTLE JOB for you.' Everyone got stuck in to their own tasks with great gusto, this was day one after all. Ray 'Stay out of MY corner' Lang was busy building the railways answer to a pelican crossing, all who went within the three yard exclusion zone had to have a good reason or feel the wrath of Ray. Mark 'Chain Gang Leader' Eades spent all his time watching me walk up and down the platform and shimphing about it, 'He'd make someone a good mother-in-law'. The Bungee Twins 'Scraff' and Mark spent the day demolishing weeds, they were told to leave the Techs alone but they just wouldn't listen! Herston Station changed shape rapidly over the next few days and the boys were getting visibly more tired as the days went on, whether this was from the work, the amount of beer drunk or John Simons' express train like snoring, is open to debate.

The signs that I 'Piccasso' Pickering had to produce were coming along although a bit slower than Frank would have liked, he just doesn't understand that we artists have to feel the vibe in the work before it can truly be produced. This however was not the case with the Squadron 2IC who took his painting classes on the same course as the play school presenters and failed miserably! It also didn't help that the list was being added to before the first signs were even dry, with the comment 'I've just thought of a few more signs that I'd like Steve.' That's the way it is down at Swanage, never a dull moment. Key moments were, Adam 'Emergency Bells' Burman finally getting the right ringing sound which gave him and the station operators great delight, Geordie 'Smokestack' Jenning finishing the Taj Mahal Chimney (Just as well he wasn't a brickie on the great wall of China!). Self Catering for breakfast due to Romeo 'I'll bin her tomorrow Honest' Poole not making it back in time.

The finishing of the Platform at Herston Bank, a feat of engineering that even Brunell would have been proud of! The weather held out for the whole time that we were down there even though the weather man predicted rain every day, this made for an excellent week where a lot of the 'Little Jobs' on Frank's never ending list were completed, and a good time was had by all. Well the 'Gang' that I went down with had an excellent time and an enormous amount of work got done, well done to all those involved.

INTER-CORPS HOCKEY TOURNAMENT 1999

by Sgt 'Goalie' Walton

INTER-CORPS LADIES FINAL RESULT
ROYAL SIGNALS 2 - AGC 0

The week started with the Corps team congregating on 1 May at 'stupid o'clock' - yes the Bank Holiday weekend! Cpl Tracey Hoffman, LCpls Cathy Burgess, Tracey Prowse and LCpl Laura Smith turned up late as they had a prior engagement at MacDonalds and also to make flash cards for the team. The rules included offences such as swearing on the pitch, being a dirty stop-out and any other offence team members deemed to be finable, hence the total money raised was a staggering £84. LCpl Cathy Burgess (whose idea it was to make the cards) seemed to be the one who actually paid the most fines. Sgt 'Cozzie' Calabreze was the social secretary for the week, and organised the spending of it.

On a blistering hot Saturday we ran around like headless chickens under the superb coaching of SSgt 'Bru' Baker! Only stopping for lunch and then back to the hard work for another couple of hours. Which is not too bad if your wearing shorts and T-shirts but the poor goalkeepers were somewhat uncomfortable in the full goalies kit - kickers and all. The stripey suntan on the back of the legs was extremely attractive though! That evening Sgt 'Cozzie' Calabreze had organised a team meet-and-greet in the NAAFI only to discover that, as it was a Bank Holiday, it was in fact closed. A quick change of venue was required and where better but the local pub for a few sociable ones. Sunday followed the same routine as Saturday; training, training and yet more training. Monday was classed as a sort of rest day, we only ran around for half a day with the evening given over to bowling. LCpl Julie Portlock reverted back to her childhood-she decided to crawl up the stairs on all fours rather than walk up them (either that or she had had one too many lemonades!). Our 'official' rest day saw us travelling to Sandhurst to play against the RMA who didn't have a full team and had to use several of ours.

The actual tournament started on Wednesday 5 May but we were now into our fifth day of continuous hockey. We won our matches (R Sigs vs AMS 4-0, R Sigs vs RLC 5-2)-.fortunately someone wrote it down, otherwise it would have been forgotten in the haze of continuous hockey (or socialising). We were now guaranteed to go through to the semi-final but we still had one more game to play the following day. Again a triumph, R Sigs 4 - RA 1. We finished top of our group, which meant we had an excellent starting position for the semi-finals. This all proved to be too much for the team captain, Lt Caroline Woodbridge, who fell asleep at the edge of the astro-turf. Either that or she had had one too many late nights. After winning the semi (R Sigs 7 - REME 1), we then returned the following day for the final. The final was a coup, the team winning 2-0 against the unfortunate AGC. The Corps Ladies team was victorious!.

Our hat-trick heroes were Cpl Tracey Hoffman and Capt Jane Dart, the team awarding the Best player of the tournament to Cpl Tracey Hoffman. Best newcomer was Kelly Johnson and most improved player went to Tina Whalen. Although it was hard work a very enjoyable week was had by all. A special thanks to Jo Evans for bringing over the girls from 1 ADSR just for the training. Unfortunately they had to return to Germany and were unable to stay for the competition itself. Dedication to the Corps or what!!

The successful Inter-Corps Ladies winning Team Captain's recipe for success!

EXERCISE KIWI IRON COOK - by Capt F. E. Hargreaves

Ex Kiwi Iron Cook was a 3 (UK) Div Sig Regt Level 3 adventure training expedition based in the South Island of New Zealand between 9 March and 1 April 1999. It's aim was to qualify nine novices on both Summer Mountaineering Proficiency and Rock Climbing Proficiency. These qualifications give a basic overview of the skills necessary to walk and climb with other personnel of the same experience before attempting the entry qualification course of Mountain Leader Training and Rock Leader Training. The Exercise began with the longest journey in the world: two hours to Heathrow, arriving the requisite three hours early, a 22-hour flight via Singapore to Christchurch, NZ and finally a 45 minute coach ride to Burnham Military Camp - the home of 3 (NZ) Sig Sqn. The following day (or is it night?) we set off for Arthur's Pass National Park for the hill walking phase. On arrival we pitched tents and went to sample the local nightlife of one cafe and a petrol station. Not much different from Bulford really!!

The culmination of this phase was an arduous four day 'expedition' through the most unspoilt, remote, picturesque scenery ever encountered. During the 60km journey we met maybe another ten people, crossed over twenty rivers - by foot, rope bridge and 'self propelled cable cars', climbed tremendously steep hills and enjoyed every minute of it (now it's over). On completion of this trek, we invaded the lone café and entertained the locals with our singing and beer drinking capacity. Fortunately we all escaped unscathed and unmolested, ready for a ten hour drive to Queenstown for the next instalment of our adventure. Queenstown is the outdoor enthusiasts dream city. It is the focal point for all travellers to New Zealand and as such is one of the best and most cosmopolitan party towns in the world. But we were there for the climbing... Staying in a YMCA style 'backpackers' hostel, we spent the next five days being taught basic rope techniques, climbing and safety throughout the days, sharing a lovingly prepared meal (thanks Q), and exploring every watering hole in town. After passing our assessments it was time for the R&R phase.

Every outdoor activity you can think of was on offer in Queenstown. We chose only three: bungy jumping, white water rafting and jet boating. The bungy jump was on a purpose built bridge over a river 105m below - 'The Pipeline', and is the highest in New Zealand. Most of the group were bungy 'virgins' and were quite nervous; one even wore his heart rate monitor which rose to 160 beats per minute as he stood on the ledge. The same evening we did a bungy jump overlooking Queenstown just as the sun was setting over the mountains - one of the most amazing sights we encountered and a perfect end to the day. The white water rafting and even the jet boating, whilst a good laugh, did not come close to the adrenaline rushes of the first day. After this it was back in the bus to return to Christchurch, via Mount Cook, to finalise our admin and attempt a quick 'panic tan'. The New Zealand Signals were brilliant hosts, laying on two barbecues and plenty of cold beer. It was with a fair amount of regret that we boarded our bus for the journey to the airport for another marathon travel session. Every member of the group returned home with the most fantastic memories, a store of exaggerated stories and to a much smaller bank balance.

EXERCISE REDCOAT STAMPEDE

Ex Redcoat Stampede was the British Army Triathlon Associations 1999, Spring Training Camp which took place in North Carolina USA from 22 April - 8 May 1999. The aim of the Exercise was to train individual and Army team tri-athletes for competition and to broaden the appeal of the sport within the Army. Of the 50 Athletes who participated in the Exercise, six were from the Royal Signals, they were:-

Maj Bert Appleton (ATA Coach)	-	MOD
Maj Paul Robertshaw	-	HQ 5 Div
Capt Mick Boyle	-	ATR Bassingbourn
SSgt Andy.Iones	-	1 (UK) ADSR
Sgt Mark Chivers	-	7 Sig Regt
Sgt Daphne Clash	-	251 Sig Sqn
Cpl Angie Richardson	-	15 Sig Regt

The Exercise started with an overnight stay at Browning Barracks, Aldershot to finalise all administrative details before boarding an American Airlines plane from Gatwick to Raleigh Durham in North Carolina. On arrival in the USA we were greeted with very sticky, warm temperatures (which weren't to last) and the advance party who drove us to our accommodation at Fort Bragg. The first full day in the States started with an early morning coaching session in the indoor pool before breakfast. We were then on our way to Camp Leynne on the Atlantic Coast to compete in the Surf and Turf Triathlon at Surf City, North Carolina. A five o'clock start reminded us all that we really were on Exercise as the convoy of eight minibuses and cargo vans drove towards the coast and the race start area. Unfortunately as daylight appeared it soon became apparent that the sun would not. Heavy winds and dark clouds were the order of the day.

On arrival in Surf City everyone unloaded their bikes and race gear and began to mentally and physically prepare for the 750m open water sea swim, 20kms bike ride and the 5kms run. Having racked the bikes in the triathlon area the brave - or foolish - went to recce the beach and the swim route. The waves crashing onto the beach and the high sea swell was enough to put the more experienced athletes off the sport never mind the novice, who had never taken part in a triathlon let alone swam in open water! The race eventually got under way and all competitors survived the conditions. The 'British Army' team collected more than half of the trophies on offer and more notably Paul Robertshaw was placed first in his age category (by a long way). The day after the race started with a pre-breakfast swim session coached by Bert Appleton followed by a three hour drive back to Fort Bragg. The 150 athletes were then separated into three groups depending on ability (elite, intermediate or novice) and had an easy bike ride to recce routes for the week ahead.

The next five days were spent training in and around Fort Bragg with two physical sessions a day and a lecture which typically covered subjects such as nutrition, hydro dynamics, swim theory, sports psychology, use of heart rate monitors, focusing and attention control. On Saturday 1 May the day began with a pre-breakfast swim session before all three groups drove the five hour journey to Lake Lure which is at the foot of the Appalachian Mountains. This time the advance party met the groups with the keys to five lake side holiday homes instead of the 26 man transit rooms. The holiday homes ranged from very nice to millionaire status and with them having their own private jetties into the lake they made a perfect setting for the next five days of training. The next morning we had the short sharp shock treatment forcing us back into the real world with the convoy departing at 0500hrs for the University town of Clemson in South Carolina for our second sprint distance race of the training camp.

This time the sun came up and the lake was like a mirror. Not surprisingly most athletes bettered their time over this course from the week before due to the better conditions plus the week of expert coaching and training. Angie Richardson collected a first place as part of the British Army ladies relay team. The next couple of days had the athletes swimming in Lake Lure every day and cycling around the 'undulating' (hilly) roads around the Blue Ridge Parkway. It was common for groups to cycle for four hours during a session but the panoramic views and tremendous scenery made the rides even more enjoyable. The highlight of the week was the 'Assault on Mount Mitchell' which is the highest peak in the Eastern USA rising to over 6800 feet above sea level. Athletes were dropped off at different start points depending on choice and rode either 26 miles, 18 or 14 miles uphill to the summit. Fortunately it was an overcast day with the occasional light rain flurry which made the cycling more pleasurable. After 2hrs 10minutes the summit was reached followed by the compulsory photo shoot and seventeen cups of hot chocolate, six double cheeseburgers and anything else the restaurant had to aid our recovery.

The final day was spent getting last minutes shopping from the PX and entertaining our American hosts at a Lakeside Barbecue. The Exercise was a huge success for all athletes who attended and hopefully the results of all the hard work and effort put in by the triathletes and the coaches alike will be rewarded by some fine results in the season ahead. The six athletes from the Corps would like to thank their units for releasing them for the exercise and would like to thank the Corps for the financial assistance given.

This year the event was hosted by 14 Sig Regt (EW) in its delightful South West Wales location. As well as putting on two days of top class Orienteering we hoped to introduce the rest of the Corps to where we are, and try to dispel some of the Brawdy horror stories. Certainly most competitors found the reception location most welcoming (Brawdy Lanes - the Regiment's bar and bowling alley) and made the most of the provided facilities.

Day 1 was initially bright and clear, however, it lasted only long enough to lull most competitors into lowering their guard and into not taking their waterproofs. WO2 Flather, of 280 (UK) Sig Sqn, was the only runner to come in before the downpour started, and was heard to be less than sympathetic to those competitors yet to depart. A succession of sodden competitors and papier-mâché control cards followed making the stats team job particularly awkward. Many teams sampled the delights of Haverfordwest that night, and were no doubt well impressed by the numerous hostelries and night-spots.

Day 2, however, soon brought more unsettled (although dry!) weather for the relay event. The Minor Units competition was particularly close after the first day, eventually being narrowly won by 3 Inf Bde HQ and Sig Sqn. The 14 Sig Regt team had good runs on both days aided by SSgt (FofS) 'Ski' Sharp (who won both events and was awarded the Corps Open Champion Trophy) and SSgt (Supvr R) 'Jacko' Jacklin who was second on the C course. WO2 (Supvr R) Andy Jensen when not organising and running the event, had time for a head to head duel with Sgt James Hunt to settle a matter of honour over who should represent the Regiment on the 'A' Course. Sgt Hunt gracefully gave way to his elder and let 'Q' Jensen win. SSgt 'Olly Magellan' Campbell failed to impress on the first day, but after receiving some navigation hints and tips from JT 'First Event' Westley did considerably better on the second day (viz. not every TA Female competitor beat him). LCpl Bobs Ennis did exceptionally well on both days and received the Female Champion Medal. Sgt Paul Taylor excelled on the relay event and was first on his course, while LCpl Burton had less luck on hers.

A rather confused prize giving ended the weekend with the President of Corps Orienteering, Lt Col Richards, presenting the prizes (including one to himself. Our thanks must go to all the Units who made the long trek to Brawdy on their Bank Holiday (especially 216 Sig Sqn who decided to commute from Aldershot each day) who made the event such a success. The Regiment's success in the Major Unit Championships made the hard work more than worthwhile.

KILO TROOP

Tp Comd — Lt Fraser Reid
Tp WO — WO2 (Supvr R) Speirs

After only two years of Kilo Tp's formation in Brawdy, we find ourselves handing vehicles and manpower to the four winds of the Regiment. The reason for this is the Troop is disbanding and our manpower is being shared with the recently formed light care and preservation Troop, and the remaining Troops of 237 Sig Sqn. Due to the hard work that has gone into getting the vehicles to their best condition, all members of the Troop deserve much credit for their work, which has meant many a missed NAAFI break!

Lt Fraser 'Mac' Reid has settled in and completed a week long bread making course in the field; he is very reluctant to return to the signals environment and is considering a transfer to a bakery troop in the RLC. Congratulations on promotion WO2 Jim Speirs, you must be able to afford some biscuits now. The remainder of the Troop is either in Macedonia, Bosnia, training for Bosnia or if we are lucky in the garages here in Brawdy. The Troop for some time has been short for manning and we wait apprehensively for the return of our borrowed personnel from their six month tour of Bosnia, we cannot wait to hear the same old war stories! Also manning has helped with the return of LCpl's Clubb and Parsons from their successful class one course at Blandford.

From the MT side of the Troop we have mixed results! Sig 'Richie' Richardson decided to take his own NAAFI break and came back to us a few days later. It is nice to see you return safely. Congratulations to LCpl Camphell on passing his Driving Instructors course, we all hope to be legally driving every possible vehicle under the sun soon. As normal we can't prise Sgt Keenan from his desk, even when on leave. There have been rumours that he's been sleeping there. Farewell to Sig 'Alright mate' Russell as he ventures to Macedonia to steal as much off the refugees as possible being a 'Scouse'. So Kilo Tp will no longer exist, but the last two years have been extremely rewarding and there has rarely been a Troop with such character. Within the next few weeks, everyone should know where they are off too. The remaining vehicles are to join Tango Tp with at least it seems some of the guys to operate them. So final goodbyes from all members of Kilo Tp as we plan our disbandment drinks down that kicking town Haverfordwest. Good luck to all the guys

SNCO IC — SSgt 'Happy' Campbell

It has been a relatively quiet period for the Troop. We say a sad farewell to Cpl Martin 'Gadgets' South off to brush his SCROAT skills tip at Beaconsfield. We welcome to the Troop Cpl 'Chris' Doud and soon Cpl 'I live for running Richie' Bretherick. The LEWT cadre is to be run in the summer and is open to DISI trades. Preparations are underway to ensure all conscripts (or should that be volunteers) enjoy themselves to the maximum!

VICTOR TROOP
Tp Comd — WO Matthews
Tp SSgt — SSgt (Supvr R) Watters

It has been a hectic time operationally for Victor Tp over the last four months, seeing Sgt 'Rob' Tones, Sgt 'Taff' Willlumsen, LCpl Zoe Wainwright, LCpl Danny Wilkins and Sig Willie Hayes deployed in Bosnia to fulfil the Troops commitment there. The events in Kosovo have also meant that Sgt Andy Davies, Cpl 'Tommy' Tucker, LCpl 'Paddy' Neill and LCpl Dave Orme are at the moment in Macedonia to aid the NATO operations. Cpl 'Foxy' Slater has recently returned from detachment with HMS Westminster and it's humanitarian efforts in Sierra Leone.

The Troop has been active in the local area with Cpl Tracey Dean, Cpl Gareth Davies, Cpl Nicky Collins aiding other members of the Squadron and the local community to paint Roch Primary School before the Easter holidays were over.

Victor Tp said farewell and congratulations on promotion to the OC Capt Rob Smith who was posted to Cyprus, also farewell to SSgt 'Dags' Dagnall, Sgt 'Kit' Clements and Sig Purves. A special farewell was said to Mr Gavin Sutton on his leaving the Army. The Troop briefly welcomed Sgt Rob Tones and Sgt 'Taff Willumsen before they went to Bosnia. Finally Congratulations to LCpl Wilkins, LCpl Wainwright and Cpl Wright for being selected on this year's Lance Corporal to Corporal promotion board.

TANGO TROOP
Tp Comd — Lt Thornson-Swilth
Tp SSgt — SSgt Kitchen

With the operational commitment of 14 Sig Regt the Troop is down to a skeleton staff, however, Lt Thomson-Smith still found time to go adventure training in Jordan and was having such a good time he forgot to book his flight back. He did say the travel agent was at fault but which one do you believe? The Troop would like to wish its members the best of luck on Op Agricola and Op Palatine. On that note we would like to welcome our members back from Op Palatine and hope they enjoy their four weeks' leave so they can come back and start training again to re-deploy for the Millennium, only joking I think! Farewell and good luck to Cpl Andy Staff and his family who has been posted to Arborfield, training will never be the same again. Farewell and good luck also to Cpl S. Mulvaney and family who is off to R.A.F Digby for a two year posting in the gym, (jammy sod). The Troop would like to welcome Sig Danny 'I don't want to do that' Watson and Sig Julie 'I got lost' Parry.

Sqn Comd — Maj Owen
SSM — WO2 (SSM) Fisher

Life continues at a hectic pace at the sharp end. The beat up to the trials for the new kit continue with frequent displays, demos and exercises. The Squadron welcomes the new Second in Command, Capt Graham 'Boggy' Ingram who immediately upset the delicate balance of politeness, decorum and stability in SHQ. In an afternoon of complete mayhem, the RAF cell was kicked out of their office and into W Troop's so the new 21C could get closer to the coffee machine.

WHISKEY TROOP
Tp Comd — Lt Stewart
Tp SSgt — SSgt Clarke

March saw the long awaited arrival of Odette and within no time the new equipment and vehicles were being tested on Ex Moullon Spring. A valuable lesson in navigation was learnt by Sgt Pete 'New Boy' Farrel, who decided to use his own initiative when locating his intercept platform. WO1 Phil 'Bulldog' Ashworth kindly pointed out to him that it would be better if he went to the grids he was given. Nevertheless a thoroughly good time was had by all those not quick enough to get a leave pass in from Chicksands. A huge welcome back to the lads and lasses from Op Palatine and Op Agricola.

Since the last Wire the Troop has been busy keeping the Armour on the road and juggling of manpower for inspections, operational tours and the Out Of Use Troop. The Troop would like to welcome into the 'fold' Sig New Boy' Crooks. We would like to say farewell to the following: Cpl

'Jas' Quilter off to sunny Cyprus, Sig 'Handsome' Young and Sig 'Tel' Bacon both off to Colchester.

Hello to Cpl Andy Nicholls, Cpl Russ Ryin, LCpl 'Fluff' Foyle, Sig Chris Lloyd.

GOODBYES

A FEW WORDS BY CPL RUSS RYAN (NEW BOY)

Well what a place! A first glance at the Troop and one might think that its not real, but it is. Antique kit, no people, and a really big garage, but other than that it¶s a really nice place!

TROON DRIVER TRAINING

'A nice day out to Sennybridge,' that's what they said. It turned out to be knee deep in snow, nice weather for polar bears. LCpl 'The drive' Wright showed off his skills as a Driving Instructor, or should that be a U-boat commander, by driving in to the deepest puddle you have ever seen. A few splutters from the landrover and some wet feet later he found the steepest slope (or should that be cliff?) and told Sig 'Sore Wrist' Higgins to drive or fall off it. So with a bit of persuasion he did. Cpl Russ Ryan, however, was at the time in the back of the falling Rover. The rover landed with Cpl Ryan right on top of LCpl Wright. In the meantime Sig 'Bacon' Rolls, who is incidentally a professional driver showed of his amazing driving skills by getting stuck up to the axle, after all of the younger members of the Troop had gone before him with no problems whatsoever, including Sig 'But, But' Taylor. The day ended with no serious injuries but a few embarrassed individuals. The whole idea of the driver training was to get the newer members of the Troop ready for the conversion to our new vehicles. The all singing all dancing Pinz-Gauers which will soon be fitted with the best part of our EW kit. Replacing the series three landrovers at last! The Troop is as busy as ever with all that the move from vehicle to vehicle brings.

ROMEO TROOP

Tp Comd	Lt Scott
Tp SSgt/OpsWO	SSgt Jacklin

The Troop's manning continues to resemble a roller coaster, as we received a slack handful of operators following the demise of Hotel Tp, only to lose all our EDs to the newly formed SHQ Tp. Impending goodbyes are due to SSgt 'Jacko' Jacklin, who leaves us for an equally rainy climate, in July (after spending less than a year in the Unit), and LCpl Davies, who is off to 30 Sig Regt. Newly arrived from Hotel Tp are Sgt Andy Ball, who brings with him his Boy Racer car, and Sgt Chris Dunn, who is due to attend his Army Pilot's course at the end of the year. He can often be heard muttering about 'soaring with the eagles'. Also from Hotel Tp are Cpl Nicky Dawson and her crossed swords, Cpl Di Mulvaney who is posted to JSSU Digby, and Cpl's John Pankhurst and Lee Holmes, who promptly left us, temporarily, for the bright lights of London. SSgt Burke's escape tunnel is also progressing well, while Lt Scott is telling anybody who will listen, that he is available for detachment. The Troop participated in Ex Whale Splash in Folkestone, earlier this month. This was a rigorous Exercise, designed primarily to provide trade training and detachment familiarisation. The secondary aim, to encourage team spirit and bonding, was carried out with much gusto.

QMT - KARTING GRAND PRIX
by Sig 'Scouse Git' Caine

Cpl Coward arranged an afternoon trip out Go-Karting. On 24 May the QMT Department set out to Letterston for the afternoon. When we arrived we all got kitted out with coveralls and helmets ready to start racing. The first race was a warm up to get us all used to the track. With everyone adjusted to their race-karts the qualifying heats were ready to start. The first race passed with no major problems, but the second race saw the real fun begin, because up stepped LCpl John 'The Head' Blowes. He managed to crash spectacularly in every heat that he competed in, rearranging the track each time. Next it was Sgt Tony 'Say Again Over' Bland's turn to wreak havoc. He decided that because he was in first place no-one was getting past, which ended in disaster when Sig 'Scouse' Caine attempted to pass. Sgt Bland managed to hook his rear bumper around Sig Caine's front bumper and sent them both hurtling into the trees. Meanwhile, RQMS 'Daz' Newton decided to take his chances over the grass to avoid the carnage.

QM(T) Karting Grand Prix

Things calmed down in the next couple of heats, until, from the bottom end of the track came a terrible crashing noise followed by tyres flying in every direction. Cpl 'cowy' Coward had spun across the track causing Dave 'Porno Tash' George to lock up his wheels and assume the crash position. At was at this point that Sig 'Simply the Best' Brennan came around the bend like a Japanese Kamikaze and added to the already moaning pile of bodies and flying tyres. After minor mechanical work and first aid the race was ready to proceed again, with the strictest of warnings! With all the cars safely back into the pits we all stood, waiting with anticipation for the results. With seventeen racers and only sixteen positions in the semi-final RQMS 'There's no necessity for this speed' Newton had to sit out the finals. The semis passed without any major problems and four racers qualified for the Grand Final. These included Sig 'Caz' Baddeley who qualified even after spending most her time on the grass and other cheats. Unfortunately they didn't include Sig 'not so hot now are we?' Brennan who even after many protests was told to go away in not such polite words. With Dave 'where's my sea canoes' Thorn sitting in pole position and driving the fastest car one can only wonder how he pulled away so slowly. Sig 'scouse' Caine started second but quickly took the lead passing 'Chuggin' Dave. The fight for Third and Last position was Sgt 'Denise Van' Haughton and Sig 'Caz' Baddeley which ended in tears for 'Caz' spinning off onto the grass once again. After a nail biting, action packed, thrill a minute final the scouse git emerged the champion and was duly presented with his Trophy and Sparkling Wine. The day was rounded off by a visit to the Letterston Chip shop. reputed to be the best in Britain. If you want to keep that reputation boys you want to stop using frozen chips and drop the massive prices!

16 SIGNAL REGIMENT

CORPSAAM 1999 - by LCpl Fatchett

Despite the deployment of most of 16 Sig Regt's personnel, two teams were put forward to represent the Regiment at the annual CORPSAAM.

The teams were - 'A' Team Capt	LCpl Fatchett
	SSgt Dixon
	Cpl Turnbull
	LCpl Atkin
	Sig McGrouther
'B' Team Capt	Cpl Durrant
	Lt Hutchinson
	Sig Pearce
	Sig Cole
	Sig Williams

SSgt 'I have lovely blue eyes' Dixon put together a gruelling training package prior to the competition. After two days of zeroing at Arsbeck Ranges in Germany, the teams departed for the UK for serious training. The journey across the Channel did not prove as smooth as expected: When arriving at customs, we were challenged with the usual question 'Anything to declare monsieur ?' The reply was, 'Yes, twelve rifles, four LSWs and five pistols!' We were then swiftly ushered into a searching bay where thankfully, the relevant paperwork was produced, before the cavity searches began!

The 'A' Team

The arrival at 'Stalag' Folkestone was not a welcome one and the camp accommodation could hardly have been described as first class. The catering staff could not find a smile between them, but we settled in and made the most of what we had. The training at Hythe and Lydd was a combination of the application of fire and Tom Berenger. SSgt 'Andy' Dixon's training strategy was two fold. On the ranges by day and an 'occasional' beer at night. It was mainly due to his influence, that the whole Team was dragged out on an evening. He would then confront the Team at the end of the night with the immortal statement, 'You'll all be sorry in the morning,' and he was right. The 'gun run' in combination with the 100m dash in respirator for the 'Roupell Cup' soon took its toll, as Sig 'Pavement Pizza' Pearce demonstrated. After one 'heavy' night SSgt 'Andy' Dixon sacrificed his own shooting time, so he could coach the lads. The fact that he did not feel very well, had nothing to do with it of course! On the same day, Lt Steve Hutchinson demonstrated his skill at drill by saluting with the wrong arm. Apparently he has applied for his all arms drill course!

Lt Steve Hutchinson also had problems. Apart from trying to fill his magazines from the bottom, his shooting ability did not make him a candidate for 'Sharpe's Rifles'. Now we know why Officers are issued swords! Admin King Cpl 'Rev' Counter who entered as an individual, kept our spirits up with both his 'banter' and his shooting skills. By the end of week one he could not hit a barn door. By week two he could hit the barn. The only female on the team was Sig Cathy Williams. She found shooting harder than expected. Remembering the format of the shoots was even harder! Cpl Mick Durrant heard her saying, 'All these shoots and I'm confused!' It has been said that she regarded every range day like a wedding, so chose to be late! Cpl 'Golden Blanket' Turnbull, showed that apart from his devotion to his bed, his enthusiasm for shooting was just as great. While dosing off during a 'relaxed' evening brief, he suddenly woke shouting 'Figure twelve targets at two hundred metres, phwoor!' Then continued 'Only five seconds, cor!' 'Go back to sleep Richy', and he did! LCpl 'Skinflint' Fatchett, showed how much of a scrooge he was by constantly asking for all the cheap drinks when out in Folkestone and also insisting he got his 'free' packed meal from the cookhouse.

After two weeks of intense training, the teams were ready for the CORPSAAM. Despite the present operational commitments, the competition was tough. Obviously no Gurkhas had yet deployed! All members of the team managed to achieve positions in the top fifty. The competition proved good experience for 'young blood' and 'old sweats' alike, giving a good basis for a future 16 Sig Regt team for the coming UKSC(G) competition and next year's CORPSAAM. For the coming competitions in the year 2000, the Gurkhas had better watch out!

SALTASH SOLDIER RECEIVES ROYAL WARRANT FROM HRH THE DUKE OF KENT

Pictured receiving his Royal Warrant direct from HRH The Duke of Kent is Saltash soldier Alan Churchward (36). Alan, whose parents, Ernest and Mary still live in Cornwall, gained his Royal Warrant on promotion from Staff Sergeant to Warrant Officer Class 2. He serves with 16 Signal Regiment at Rheindahlen in Germany. The Duke of Kent was paying a flying visit to meet the soldiers and families of British Army units involved in the NATO operation in Macedonia.

DONATION TO ARMY BENEVOLENT FUND

Maintaining the Regiment's links with the City of Leicester (born from the twinning with Krefeld, when the Regiment was stationed there) the 2IC, Maj Jonathan Turner attended the annual East Midlands Branch of the Army Benevolent Fund luncheon, in the presence of the Right Worshipful, Lord Mayor of Leicester, Cllr Phil Swift. This year, the function was held in the grounds of Thorpe Lubenham Hall, near Market Harborough. At this function, Maj Jonathan Turner took the opportunity to present a cheque for £200.00 to the ABF from the Regiment. Accepting the cheque, the Regional organiser, Col (Rtd) David Ronald, asked that his thanks on behalf of the Fund were passed on to all ranks of 16 Sig Regt.

SAN 872 OPERATION AGRICOLA

The SAN group is currently deployed on Op Agricola in Tetovo, 'sunny' Macedonia. The group consisting of 22 young warriors, including a 501 detachment from 30 Sig Regt, are ably providing communications to 12 German Panzer Brigade. International relations so far are going well but the language at times has proved problematic. LCpl Nat Kemp found this out to her embarrassment whilst trying to purchase some dental floss in front of a crowd of German onlookers, only to be presented with a packet of three condoms instead! The SAN group established itself well with its host nation, with the only gripe being food. With bread, ham and cheese for breakfast and supper (only slightly more stale) one can understand why! Consequently many pounds and ounces have been shed and several belt loops tightened. A distressed LCpl 'Biff' Fisher declared he could feel his ribs for the first time in years and subsequently indented for an Exercise Loss..... for three of his chins!

On a more serious note, several members of the detachment have been involved in the preparation of refugee camps at Brazda and Bojane, this was an incredibly humbling but thoroughly rewarding experience. Tasks included the erection of tents, the distribution of bread, the digging of latrines and the collection of rubbish. During their time at the camps each soldier also made time to play with the children and listen to the accounts of the adults. Despite the ordeal most of the refugees have endured, they were in amazing high spirits and constantly thanking the soldiers for their efforts.

21 SIGNAL REGIMENT (AIR SUPPORT)

CO Lt Col John Terrington
RSM WO1 (RSM) John Williams

STOP PRESS

The 40th anniversary of the formation of the Regiment was celebrated during our annual Regimental Open Day on 10th July 1999. The Open Day was a huge success, and congratulations go to Maj Chas Dale and WO2 Mead-Male RLC who did make a sterling effort to keep the event alive, despite the large deployment of troops from the Regiment to the Balkans and elsewhere. The White Helmets, as ever, gave an outstanding performance and the all arms military display, recruiting and youth teams were extremely popular. No photos yet, but a full write up in the next Wire.

OPERATIONS AGRICOLA/PALATINE/SPOONER/BELL et al

The Regiment now has personnel deployed on three operations and on short notice standby for deployment to a fourth (unless the volcano on Monserrat has erupted since preparing these notes in which case they've now deployed)! There are also significant numbers of both regular and TA personnel working on tasks in the Falkland Islands and on Ascension, proving the capability of this unique unit to integrate the capabilities of full and part-time soldiers.

Clearly, however, the focus is now on the Balkans, where 21 Sig Regt (AS) detachments were amongst the first to deploy. There is a sizeable detachment already on Op Agricola, providing communications for the Support Helicopter Force across the theatre, and also significant numbers of Tele Mech crews building the CIS fibre optic and cable infrastructure for various allied headquarters. Personnel are also in Albania, providing communications for the Mobile Air Operations Team (MAOT) deployed on Op Spooner.

The SH Force Signal Troop in Split and the Tele Mech crews in Banja Luka continue to provide sterling support to Op Palatine, and this remains a significant long term contribution to UK forces in Bosnia and Croatia. For those on the Rear Party, life will remain hectic providing the home end of the long logistic tail supporting the deployed troops. Most are already warned for roulement and those who aren't, are likely to be soon! It is not, and never has been, an easy option being stuck on rear details, and there is a hectic sequence of activity planned, including a battle camp in September. With over half of the regulars deployed from the Regiment, the TA element will be at the forefront of Battle-camp, so start training now!

HEADQUARTERS SQUADRON

Sqn Comd Maj Chas Dale
SSM WO2 (SSM) Nick Organ

Another period of frantic activity is drawing to a close with yet another change in squadron personalities. Capt Guy 'Wanna buy some ski's' Richards has left us and exchanged his beret for a brighter coloured one. I know I speak for both the soldiers and the families here in Colerne when I wish him and his family all the best for the future, his sense of humour, bad ankle and dedication to welfare were a credit to him. Best wishes to Guy and Fran and stay in touch!

TECHNICAL MAINTENANCE TROOP

TM Tp's personnel have stayed much the same over the last few months with the only new Troop member being Sgt Mick Heasman who has been internally transferred from 244 Sig Sqn. The troop is now preparing for the departure of WO1 Martin Drake who leaves us in the near future having served 22 years of undetected crime, all of us would like to say goodbye and good luck in the future to both him and his family. Arriving in time to allow WO1 Drake to partake in the maximum resettlement package is WO1 Ady Knight, welcome. As usual the technicians have lived up to their reputation with LCpl Dave Bentham forgetting to take his boots on the Lanyard Trophy competition and LCpl Jim Harrison going on leave with the workshop keys. A special mention to Cpl Shaun Allsopp with best wishes for his forthcoming driving test (I'm sure he could drive??). Finally congratulations to Sgt Chris Gearing and Cpl Dave Clayton-Batty on the recent addition to their families and to LCpl Ed Chwieseni on the 'B' grade achieved on a recent PTI Course.

MOTOR TRANSPORT TROOP

If the current hectic pace of life could be increased then, what do you need but everyone's favourite event, the PRE inspection. Preparations had been frantic and Cpl Andy 'Forget me not' Doyle the designated AD88 Register Holder was heard to say 'AD88 what's that?' This seemed to set the theme for the day. The vehicle chosen was 'Steptoe and Son's' SQMS wagon, the oldest in the fleet and as usual the troops were tasked elsewhere. Still life goes on and our thanks go the LAD and in particular WO2 Wallace for his invaluable guidance and suggestions. Despite the fast pace various personalities have completed courses and congratulations go to SSgt Mark Sala (EFP course) Sgt 'Mac' Macdonald (RSSC) and Cpl 'Esky' Eskdale (DI, god help the students). Our best wishes go to Cpl (now Sgt) Pat Howie on his promotion and posting to Catterick and Sig Sharon Loftus on her first operational tour.

WO2 (SSM) Trev Beeley in his squeaky clean new Wolf just signed it out of stores!

HQ and FAC Troop Volunteers have had a very busy start to the training year. A successful Regimental exercise in January formed the stepping stone for some positive joint training with both the regular elements of the Regiment and 43 (Wx) Sig Sqn (V). The first bounty qualification training of the year took place on Dartmoor National Park, a very well attended venture by both Squadrons and a high pass rate from the first attempt at the new ITD training. Trade training is a key feature for this year's training programme. We will be qualifying Radio Operator Class 3 during two courses organised for the second half of the year. Tech, Line and ED training are also meeting with increased success.

Congratulations go to the HQ Tp Shooting Team who were placed second overall at the RSAAM with the team taking a large handful of match trophies. Excellent performances by Sgt Paul Morse and LCpl Damein Black, and Damien also went on to take the best overall B Class shot at the Corps SAAM. Pipped at the Butts Eh! Paul! We look forward to some well deserved adventure training in August prior to deploying onto the Regimental Battle Camp in September.

SSM WO2 (SSM) Gerry Ward

Congratulations to SSgt Mick 'Old Man' Franks, Sgt Jeff Scott, Cpl James Jackson and LCpls Phil 'Mafia' Edis and Laura Watson on their promotions. Congratulations also to Sig 'Fozzie' Foster on Best Field Soldier and Sig Andrew Miller for Best Academic on their recent recruits course at Blandford.

43 (Wx) Sig Sqn (V) and HQ Sqn (V) were mobilised in the SW of England on ROLEX 1/99 in May. The scenario for the Exercise incorporated both Squadrons supporting the RAF Support Helicopter Force in a UN peacekeeping mission - of course - and the following are some of their stories.

Visit of CNN Reporters (by Capt David Sleigh). In line with the scenario the SH Force HQ had a visit from CNN reporters, giving Capt David Sleigh and WO2 (SSM) Gerry Ward and opportunity to be grilled. A well briefed CNY team went to town with some very awkward questions and showed an inate ability to split the briefing team and visit areas not programmed on the visit. We kept them away from the sensitive areas, but gave them access to various areas of the complex and to personnel who were specifically selected and briefed! They did, however, manage to find and question LCpl Straniski, who was not briefed, but he responded superbly, giving them a well reasoned and informative brief without, really, telling them anything!

VISIT OF GENERAL (I WAS A 2LT ONLY YESTERDAY)
MARTIN WILLIS - by Capt David Sleigh

RADCON received a fleeting visit from a rapidly promoted 2Lt Gen Martin Willis (promoted and later stripped of his rank by SSgt (YofS) Paul White). He was treated to a VIP briefing on the operation of the Squadron by Capt David Sleigh and Capt Dick Atterbury, leaving him in no doubt over who the aforementioned Captains believed was the premier Squadron in the Unit - at least at weekends, they said!

REMOTE ACCESS/RECIPE FOR DISASTER
by Cpl John Brennan

Any detachment commander not familiar with the VRC 353 Secure Remotes may wish to take heed of the following advice: it may save you looking like an idiot and then save you from being obliged to write Wire Notes about it! 'Oh, the indignity!!'

First, check you have packed all remoting kit before you deploy, thus saving a journey to another location to collect it or another one. Second, remember to tell someone you've actually sent someone to this other, said, location so that they won't feel the need to send a second vehicle, to the same location, for the same kit. Third, when you get your one-way interview, without coffee, and then another one from someone else, remember, they're only doing it twice to get their own back! Still, at least once you've got the kit, it's easy to assemble and the staff and especially the YofS suddenly seems to be much happier.

220 SIGNAL SQUADRON (LAARBRUCH AND BRUGGEN)

Sqn Comd Capt (TOT) N. E. Baugh MBE
SSM WO2 (SSM) Ged Robinson

The past two months have witnessed a frenzy of activity in the Squadrons' three locations of Laarbruch, Bruggen and Rheindahlen. Work to draw down Lima Tp and SHQ from its RAF Laarbruch location continues apace, while the continued requirement for Tele-Mech manpower in support of numerous operations gives our soldiers a varied and challenging (albeit rather hectic!) lifestyle. If the current climate is a taste of things to come then the Communications Installation Technicians and the deployable Troops forming from the remnants of this Squadron will be in high demand for the foreseeable future.

Notwithstanding our operational commitments, which presently see the Squadrons' manpower working in up to ten different locations world-wide, those of us here in Germany continue to support a range of sporting and military activities. The Squadrons' scratch team for the Morrison Cup came a very creditable third, behind 280 Sig Sqn (and their ringers) and the mighty 7 Sig Regt. (Where was 16 Sig Regt?). Many thanks to the Team Manager, Sgt 'Scouse' Deegan for doing the donkey work and to Sgt Andy 'Akabusi' Draper whose grossly over exaggerated athletic prowess kept the team amused all day. Socially we stay very active in no small part due to the efforts of the SQMS, SSgt John 'Disco' Williams and his family.

ASCENSION ISLAND COMMUNICATIONS PROJECT

Throughout the period 12 April to 28 July 1999 members of 220 Sig Sqn and 81 Sig Sqn (V) have undertaken major projects to replace and enhance the communication infrastructure on RAF Ascension. The existing network of approximately twenty five kilometres of surface laid armoured cable has weathered and degraded rapidly in recent years, to the extent that the entire network now requires replacing. In order to complete this extensive rebuild a cable and duct system linking RAF Ascension and the Travellers Hill complex has been constructed.

SSgt Jonah 'Suntan' Jones has supervised the project from conception to completion with input from CPD in Blandford. It has been divided into six consecutive stages, each two to three weeks in duration. The first three stages involved the installation of Telegraph poles and support stays around the Travellers Hill accommodation Areas, the construction of an aerial network to feed these accommodation sites and the installation of a poled aerial route to feed further accommodation areas. The fourth stage of the project saw the laying of both copper and fibre optic cables in the ducted route between the Airhead and Travellers Hill. The final stage has been the connection of two new GPT Realitis exchanges, (installed with CPD to replace the islands' ageing Monarch exchanges) and bringing on line the new copper and fibre cable infrastructure.

SSgt 'Taff 'here's one someone prepared for me earlier' Bryant imparts his knowledge of trip-flares to the Mechs, while Sig Johnny 'Interested' Miller concentrates so hard he can't keep his eyes open

In total this project has seen the installation of nineteen kilometres of underground cable, three kilometres of aerial cable, five kilometres of dropline and eight kilometres of fibre optic cabling. Throughout the project twenty-seven personnel from 220 Sig Sqn, one driver lineman from 7 Sig Regt and ten TA Telemechs from 81 Sig Sqn (V) have rouled through Ascension. Once the work is complete the new infrastructure will continue to be maintained by Ascensions' two resident Telemechs from 220 Sig Sqn.

1999 WELSH 1000 METRE PEAKS RACE

The Welsh 1000 Metre Peaks Race is a demanding 31km fell race organised annually by the Gorsphwysfa Fell Runners Club, and is open to both military and civilian competitors. The route begins at Aber on the North Wales coast and takes in three of Snowdonia's highest peaks (Llewellyn, Carnedd Dafydd, Crib-y-Ddysgl) before finishing at the summit of Snowdon. This year was the 29th time the race had been run, and was also the second consecutive year that 220 Sig Sqn had entered a team. Our team consisted of Lt Jim Lambeth, Cpl Dave Heath and LCpl Martin Ferguson.

Having only seen the route drawn on a map, and thus not quite fully appreciating the enormity of the task ahead of him, Cpl Heath was somewhat taken aback to see a rather large set of mountains stretching out into the distance ahead of him. Lt Lambeth and LCpl Ferguson were less fazed having entered the event the previous year. The start bell rang at 07.30am, and off we ran. Our tight knit three-man team stayed within sight of the eventual winners, a team from the Royal Ghurka Rifles, for a good 300 metres, and remained together for all of five minutes, which was about the time we hit the first hill. The 2IC, Lt Jim 'The Rake' Lambeth, disappeared over the horizon not to be seen again until the end of the race, leaving Cpl Dave 'Mountains aren't my bag Baby!' Heath and LCpl

Martin 'Red Ring' Ferguson plodding along together at the back. Several hours and two mountains later the team had all passed through the Pen-y-Pass half way checkpoint in varying states of disrepair. Our Admin Support/Photographer, Sig Dave 'Dangerous Driving' Butler greeted us here with a much needed water replen.

The second half of the race was as strenuous as the first, particularly for Cpls Ferguson and Heath who decided that the whole thing was just not difficult enough, and immersed themselves waist deep in a bog to increase the challenge. The team regrouped at the finish point, the cafe on top of Snowdon, where tea and medals all round were the order of the day. Looking back over the route there was much cursing of Lt Lambeth for having entered the team, but nonetheless a real sense of achievement that three 'airfield-dwellers' from the very flat Dutch-German border had completed it using muscles which had previously been mothballed from basic training. The 2IC (who had clearly become deranged with all this fresh air and the opportunity to escape from his office) voiced the opinion that it would be a marvellous idea to enter a team again next year. Fortunately for Germany's Tele-Mech Troops he's posted in August and won't be able to volunteer them for any more of this stupidity!

Finally the team wish to extend their thanks to Cpl Dave 'Fat Guts' Cascarino and SSgt Mark 'Yeah Right' Sherwood for volunteering LCpl Ferguson's services, and to SSgt 'Taff' Bryant for helping Cpl Heath make up his mind to take part.

UKSC(G) SKILL AT ARMS MEETING 11-12 MAY 1999
by Cpl Gaz Place

As seems to be the way with many military competitions, the 1999 UKSC(G) SAAM crept up on us rather sooner than had been expected, leaving only two weeks to select, prepare and nurture the Squadron's crack shots into a competition winning team…that was the dream anyway. The reality was a two-day shoot down at Arsbeck Ranges with whoever could be spared from Bruggen and Laarbruch to determine which of the Squadron's soldiers were most familiar with the difference between the sharp and blunt ends of a rifle. Despite a serious outbreak of poor shooting from those who had heard nasty rumours of a Fire-team Assessment, the SSM, WO2 Ged Robinson was able to assemble a team, ably managed by Sgt 'Scouse' Deegan.

On the morning of the first day's shooting Sgt Deegan had his heart set on a victorious return, laden with silverware. For a brief moment this dream looked as though it could become reality as our first firer, LCpl Matt Pope, chalked up a very credible score of forty-three. We were soon brought back down to earth though as LCpls Ian 'La La' Lawson and Matt Stowell scored slightly less impressive twenty-sevens and twenty-nines respectively. This was followed by Sig Shaun Mitchell, who despite having spent hours in the NAAFI developing the physique for a firm position and hold, only managed a paltry score of thirty. It was left to the LSW gunners, SSM Ged 'Sniper' Robinson and Cpl Gaz 'Targets to your front' Place to drag the teams overall score back to something verging on the respectable. The Fire-team Assessment proved less of a physical challenge than had been expected, but unfortunately our top rifle shot LCpl Mat 'Heavy-breather' Pope suffered from the fog of war as his respirator steamed up, rendering him virtually useless for this shoot.

Day Two of the SAAM saw our erstwhile team manager with his mindlessly optimistic sights firmly re-aligned on victory in the falling plate competition. Regrettably these hopes were dashed as well, but all was not lost. Cpl Gaz 'Tin Can Alley' Place was lying third in the LSW shoot, and despite very generously firing his first ten rounds into his neighbours target still managed to win the individual LSW event.

The teams' final results were a third in the LSW match, sixth in the Fire-team Assessment and overall seventh. Despite being knocked out of the falling plate competition by the eventual runners-up, Sgt 'Bounty Hunter' Deegan caught a glimpse of the winners trophy and has already declared his intention to return next year to secure it for pride of place in the Bruggen trophy cabinet…Now now 'Scouse'…, size isn't everything!!

L TROOP – SENSATION SEEKERS - A Brief Résumé
by Cpl Dave Cascarino

Life is becoming quieter despite remaining busy as always at sunny RAF Laarbruch. As with the rest of the Corps, most of the Troop are on deployment, scattered to the four corners of the globe. The ongoing project on Ascension Island is to blame for the mid-spring suntans currently sported by numerous members of the Troop. Former Yugoslavian Republics are currently one of the 'Happening' places for Royal Signals Telemechs to spend their summer holidays, along with the obligatory Big Fl Fun Factory, Greece, Asi and not to be forgotten, the Royal School of Signals. Laarbruch draw-down is now in full swing and postings are flying around twenty to the dozen. For those left here on the airfield ASM pits are the place to be seen, but we're still managing to get a few courses in as well.

Well done to Sigs Geoff 'Dumb' Leather and Ronny 'Dumber' Warwick on passing their FA Coaching Courses, pity they couldn't do the same with their three to two upgrading exam eh!!!! Further pats on the back are awarded to Sigs Joey 'Licker' Dunlop, Dave 'Calling Earth' Butler and Jimmy 'Grotbags' Wilson for achieving what Geoff and Ronny didn't. LCpls Marc 'Dump Truck' Quinn and Chris 'It's a relationship' Bain wait with baited breath for the results of their Q test. (At time of going to press news has just reached the Squadron that Chris passed and Mark failed on account of not being able to add up).

As part of our continual draw-down L Tp have said goodbye to a few more bods; LCpl Matt 'Immac' White, Neil 'Bambi' Bamforth and Neil 'Scouse' Emmison have moved down to H Tp in Bruggen, and last but not least, Sig Brendon 'Brother of Butler' Quinn is off to inflict himself on Civvy Street. Big hellos and welcome backs are extended to Sig Sean 'Terminator' Peart, who comes to us from trade training in Blandford (actually he only stayed a day, then went to Bruggen) and to LCpl Martin Ferguson and Sig John 'Jesse' James on their return from the Falklands. Finally the whole Troop would like to congratulate Marc Quinn and Michelle and Chris Bain and Kate on their recent, and wholly fictitious engagements – nothing like a bit of unsubstantiated rumour and a double wedding to boost morale!!

REGIMENTAL JNCO CADRE
EXERCISE YOUNG BEAUFIGHTER

On Monday 26 April the Regiment managed to assemble 29 from an original cast of 41 students, in the Training Wing, to receive their arrivals brief, prior to commencing the Regimental Junior NCO Cadre. This years Cadre would be conducted over two weeks, the first week in Colerne and the second on Sennybridge Training Area. During week one, students received an extensive session of lectures and training lessons, with the odd morsel of early morning PT thrown in by WO2 (QMSI) Gary Pither and his staff. All this was in preparation for the Field Firing and Final Exercise phases, which were to be conducted during week two. Also during week one, students were given the opportunity of testing their leadership skills during some taxing command tasks, with Sig Liesa Howson producing an excellent result, which proves it pays to have paid attention at Harrogate.

The Cadre also provided an excellent test bed for the Regiment to try out the new genderfair and genderfree physical tests. A storming performance by Sig Neil 'Forest' Hunter secured his position as the fittest student on the Cadre. Unfortunately for the others, it soon became apparent that the ACFT 1, is a very demanding test, with several students arriving outside the qualifying time. Another part of the test that all students found difficult, was the Jerry-can carry, again the time and distance proved too much for some people. The final assessment was Kit Inspection and Drill, which had LCpl Jonny Nicol finishing in first place, although LCpl 'Don't worry the RSM will just give me five again' 'Thruster' Thurston, held him at bay throughout the inspections. Before they knew it, the late nights and early mornings and no time to eat of week one, was behind them and it was time to start the gentler second week. Sig 'Budgie' Burgess had booked the usual appalling weather for Sennybridge, but he failed to deliver. Instead we had to put up with glorious sunshine. Throughout an excellent five-day Field Firing package, which was conducted by Maj Chas Dale and WO2 (SSM) Steve Dickson, the Cadre based itself in Farm 3, much to the delight of the students who enjoyed their 6'x 6' Section rooms. The limited sleeping arrangements were soon forgotten when the students realised the benefits of centralised cooking after a day's training.

Assisting on the range package were Capt Dale 'I've got a green beret' Ikin, who seemed glad to get out of the office and SSgt (SQMS) Tony Lee. They both showed the rest of the mere mortals what it was like to live on the edge, when you're Stage 4 - 5 trained. The best Battle Shot was again a closely fought competition, but the clear winner with some exceptional shooting was Sig Ben 'Sherman' Smy, who also came runner up to the best student. Prior to the test exercise the Cadre said farewell to two of the student's, due to their involvement in the Lanyard Trophy, LCpl 'Boots' Bentharn and Sig 'soft ankle' Beal.

During the final exercise, enthusiasm and team spirit were severely put to the test, especially during the casualty evacuation, where Sig 'Hulk' Macalister came off second best when he tried to wrestle with a tree branch (or was it a twig). Even the jovial Sig 'T' Turner was seen throwing his teddy in the corner just because the stew containers were full of cold water. However, everyone saw the funny side when 2Lt Sarah 'Snow White' Richards, and her seven dwarfs walked straight through the dawn attack. This affected people so much that Capts Steve Abram and Bill Holbrook, decided to have a 'lets see how much I can carry in my bergen party'. After a final gruelling tab, the sections made their way to the car park which just happened to be next to the Assault Course. There to meet them, along with the CO, was the QMSI. Before we knew what had happened we had an inter-section competition. This called for a lot of people to dig deep into their reserves. For some, even this was not enough, demonstrated vividly at the Monkey Bars as they got the better of Sig Andy 'Little hands' Day, who eventually had to be helped across. After some very welcome hot soup and road side change, it was time to head back to Colerne for the pass-off parade and prize giving. This allowed the remainder of the Regiment to see Sig 'Sorted' Seymour collect a very well deserved prize for top student and Sig Joey Deacon, from 220 Sig Sqn collect the prize for most improved student. On speaking to the top student several students asked his advice on how they could be top, to which he replied 'just get yourself on a three month attachment at MCTC prior to the cadre starting'!!

Sig Leisa 'wet T-shirt' Howson' wish I were somewhere else

Sig Clare 'Hawk-eye' Blades 'Watch it mate, I'm trained to kill!'

Whose section is this!?? And who is on the stretcher?

RUGBY: ARMY MINOR UNITS CHAMPIONS 1999

A highly successful season for the Regiment rugby team was capped on Wed 12 May 1999 when Sig Steff Gibbs the Regimental rugby captain lifted the Army Minor Units Cup after beating 42 Survey Royal Engineers by 27 - 17. The cup run started in October (prior to a few of the 'stars' being posted), when the lads gained an excellent win against the Petroleum Company RLC. This game was won on pure spirit with a very young Regimental team pulling through against a larger and more experienced RLC side. December saw the side bolstered by new arrivals Cpl Lee Francis (Army & Combined Services) and Cpl 'Taff' McTavish (Corps) easily overcome HQ Land.

The quarter-final was played at Lynham against the defending champions and firm favourites 29 Regt RLC. In a dower, bad tempered game played in atrocious conditions the Regiment pulled through courtesy of a try from Sgt Tim Tomkinson. The semi-final was played at Hermitage home to our future co-finalists against 23 Para Field Ambulance, this was another game which was not for the spectator. The Regiment was unsettled by the commitment of the opposition (you only had to see Cpl Lee Francis' eye to see their commitment) and could not settle into our game plan. However, we just held on and managed to struggle on to the final,

So on 12 May 99 the whole squad made its way to Aldershot. The game plan for the final (as for every other round) heavily resolved around the forwards, how wrong could we get it. Although around the park our young forwards were far more mobile than the Engineers (less a few notable exceptions), we struggled to hold our own in the scrum. LCpl 'Rhino' Richardson had a bit of a baptism of fire soon realising that the transition from back row to prop takes a few years. However after going down in the first half we managed to regroup and two tries from LCpl Dave Benthani (a winger !!!) helped us to a workmanlike victory. As with all team sports it is the team performance which wins the day however special mention should go to Cpl 'Bobby' Sands and Cpl 'Taff' McTavish (courtesy of Regimental Ops via Macedonia), who both had outstanding games. Thanks should go primarily to WO2 (SSM) Steve Dickson who has managed, coached and played for the side for the past few years. In a Regiment heavily committed by both exercises and operations, Steve has managed to keep the spirit and commitment within the side even if he felt he was banging his head against a brick wall much of the time. From all the team thanks for all you have done for us Steve and the best of luck on your future posting as RSM of Birmingham UOTC. Finally thanks to all members of the Regiment and Corps who made their way to Aldershot, your support undoubtedly raised the spirits and helped the team gain the victory.

MORRISON CUP

The team left Colerne in the rain and arrived at Blandford, also in the rain - oh no! Not a repeat of last years competition?! Despite the extremely busy activity relating to Op Agricola, the team had been able to complete at least some limited training and arrived in buoyant mood looking forward to a good days competition, weather permitting. The day got off to an excellent start - the rain stopped and Sgt Tim Tomkinson had a resounding will in the 400m hurdles event. The team continued this excellent performance throughout the day, the lowest position of any team member during the day being third. Of course, with only three teams taking part in the Minor Units' competition, bronze medal position was not going to be too difficult! Special mention must go to Sig Wezley Vegh, Sig Neill Hunter and Cpl Lee Francis for their excellent personal performances.

The competition was close all day, with only one or two points separating first and third positions. The final event of the day was the 4 x 400m relay race, the team comprising both youth and experience - experience in the name of WO2 (QMSI) Gary Pither. From the pop of the starting gun it was a one horse race, with our team racing home to an emphatic victory over 216 (AB) Sig Sqn and 210 Sig Sqn. Sadly, it was not enough, with victory going to 216 (AB) Sig Sqn overall. The 21 Sig Regt banner remains held high, however, congratulations to the winners and also to 21 Sig Regt - be proud of ending the day in an excellent second place - and the rain held off!

FOOTBALL: 3 (UK) DIV MINOR UNIT LEAGUE AND CUP CHAMPIONS 1999 – 1ST XI END OF SEASON REPORT

The football season is over and it is time to reflect on another highly successful season for the 21 Sig Regt (AS) 1st Xl. The Team won the 3 (UK) Div First Division and 3 (UK) Div Minor Units Cup Competition and reached the Quarter Finals of the Army Minor Units Cup.

True to his word the Boss Capt Paul Smith organised a pre season tour on his home territory, Edinburgh. The fact that the five-day tour coincided with the Edinburgh Festival and the Military Tattoo was a mystery to most of the team but not to the team's other two Jocks, LCpl's Stuart Johnson and Andy Miller who were completing their fourth and fifth Edinburgh tours respectively. The tour began with a convincing 5-1 win against our hosts 1 KOSB and the standard of football went downhill thereafter. A combination of liquid refreshments and late nights took its toll and on the following two days we were beaten 2-1 by ATR Glencorse and narrowly lost 4-3 to 1 A and SH. A big thanks go to 1 KOSB for looking after us so well and the Boss for organising a fantastic tour.

Having been promoted into the 3 (UK) Div First Division it was anticipated that it would be a hard season. It proved to be, as operational commitments impacted upon the availability of key players at critical times, namely, LCpl Andy Miller and Sigs Kevin Mason, Ben Scott and 'Geordie' Singlewood who deployed on Ops Agricola and Palatine. Highlights of the League programme included a 1-0 win over RSS B team and 6-1 win against WTC within three days and the season ended with two matches against Army School of Avn and 3 (UK.) Div Sig Regt B Team on the same day. We kicked off at Middle Wallop at 2pm, won 5-1, drove to Bulford and kicked off at 5pm, losing 4-1 mainly due to tiredness. It was, however, enough to clinch the League Title.

On the cup front it was again a busy season and the biggest disappointment was losing 4-3 away at ATR Winchester in the Quarter Final of the Army Minor Units Cup. We did however win the 3 (UK) Div Cup scoring 24 goals and conceding only three over four matches, beating CATC BG LAD 2-1 in the final at Warminster. The season ended with the 3 (UK) Div League Winners Cup Final against 14 Regt RA, the Premier League winners. Notable additions to the team are Sgt Dean Morgan RLC, LCpl's Joe Collins, Johnny Nicol, Sigs Neil Coyle, Murray Hunter and Mick Young. We said farewell to Cpl Cooper RLC and Sig John Marlborough and the management staff of Capt Paul Smith and SSgt 'Groucho' Marks, both departing on posting and unlikely to hang up their boots just yet!

On the representative front, LCpls Collins and Johnson have continued to represent the Army and Corps and LCpl Miller is the current Corps Goalkeeper. There have been some outstanding performances throughout the season and the players Player of the Season award was to LCpl Al Taylor, with LCpl John Nicol in second place. Well done to everyone involved with the 1st Xl.

LANYARD TROPHY COMPETITION 1999

During the month of May the Regimental Lanyard Trophy team was desperately trying to keep together a team that could compete in the Competition. Due to all the Regimental commitments which like a lot of other units included getting ready for Kosovo, the Regiment was also busy running a JNCO Cadre in Sennybridge at the same time. Both of these activities had members of the Lanyard team in, so it wasn't until the day we left for the competition that we knew who was in the team.

The team left for Napier Barracks with a support crew of Sgt Jackie Herbert and Sgt Kim Castledine who had us all organised for the event with our energy drinks and bananas to keep us going for the first part of the competition. The first night, after Capt Matt Graham had given the team brief, LCpl Dave Bentharn informed us that he had forgotten his boots! Relatively important with only 40 miles tab to complete!! Lucky for us we were in a position to bring in a reserve - step forward, boots 'n all, Sig Skelhorn.

OC 216 (AB) Sig Sqn started the race and everyone attempted to get a good position to cross the busy dual carriageway a short way from the mass start. After about six miles, Sig Steve Beal went over on his ankle, which immediately ballooned and looked very nasty. The choice: back to the start, or carry on to the next check point - anything else would be instant disqualification. Choosing the latter option, he was dropped off (gently, mind!) at the next check point. At Check Point 2, LCpl Paul Richardson was also lost due to a bad ankle, but the remaining eight Team members continued, hoping not to lose any more. The Team eventually arrived at the finish point, in seventh place, which was a great achievement considering the problems encountered during the race. Next year, next year!

30 SIGNAL REGIMENT ON OPERATIONS
OPERATION UPMINSTER/AGRICOLA
FROM RUMOUR TO AIRSTRIKES

All was quiet in the hangar and offices of 256 Sig Sqn come mid November 1998. The beginning of the silly season was almost upon the Squadron and seasonal parties were well into the final planning stages. The serene (ish) life was disturbed by word from Ops that the OC, Maj Jules Swindells, was to go to the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia (FYROM) to carry out a SATCOM recce to support UK interests as part of the Multi-National Extraction Force (EF). Before we knew it the Boss was back and we were plugging up the largest DCISLI that we had ever seen including ISIS, NSTN, CUTG, ASMA, x2 Pt-Pt Fax, Patron lines and G2 systems.

On 15 December 1998 after several delays and the much hoped for possibility for Christmas and New Year at home the 18 strong team (2+16) plus VSC 501 (Jasper) left for Skopje and pastures new. On arrival the challenge was unique and very new for the whole crew. We had to get from the APOD to the Panorama Hotel (our home for the next three months) find a suitable location that would supply power, security and line of sight to our primary satellite. Luck and the extreme hard work of the crew were certainly on our side during the initial phase as few problems were experienced that effected the critical systems anchored by the 501. These first months were difficult for all members of the UK EF as everything was new and administration at all levels and in all ways was at times extremely complicated. An example was the provision of adequate accommodation, supply of petrol (the British Army is all Diesel except for some 30 Sig generators) and the provision of clean and safe kitchen facilities.

During this period 20 Fd Sqn RE were extremely busy constructing the UK EF HQ complex, located at Petrovec Airfield. At the same time a team of TeleMechs from 220 Sig Sqn under SSgt Chapman installed both Black and Red trunking throughout the HQ building. This would eventually allow the full Deployment of ISIS for the UK EF Staff and the correct Tempesting of all other secure systems throughout the HQ. However for this to happen the 501 and its associated tails had to be relocated from the Panorama to Petrovec. The whole move to Petrovec was controlled by the Sqn FofS, WO2 Phil Court and the Sqn YofS, WO2 'H' Lloyd, new arrivals from the UK to help carry out this critical task. Consequently the move went extremely smoothly and all major systems were available to the staff well within our own self-imposed time scale.

The Crew of VSC 501 Lime relax and contemplate life alongside 4 Armd Bde

Life, as the tour progressed, became a mix of high excitement and methodical routine. An example was the detainment of 21 KVM monitors in February. All went from a quiet afternoon one minute to the entire Coy Gp fully bombed up and ready to deploy, with our own Capt Nick Peet to Kumanovo as UKLO to the EF Bde HQ and LCpl Mick Laughran as INMARSAT Op in the OC Coy Gp Warrior. Another example was 22 unidentified Helicopters heading towards Petrovec Airfield just after the Airstrikes began (Heliborne Assault?). The Coy Gp was deployed in defensive positions around the perimeter and all other personnel, including the 501 crew who had sent an emergency evacuation signal to the UK, to the Hardened Aircraft Shelters (HAS) for cover. The whole episode turned out to be 18 UN helicopters without IFF transponders but the reality of potential Operational activity instead of Exercise play was brought home to all.

As the Airstrikes continue at the time of writing there remain some 100+ members of the Regiment with x10 VSC 501s in theatre, many of whom have been in theatre since the first deployment on 15 Dec 98. The best wishes of the Regiment go to all of these men and women as they continue on Operation Agricola.

ROYAL SIGNALS SKILL AT ARMS MEETING 1999

This has been an excellent year for the Regiment on the shooting front, becoming the Champions at the Corps and Brigade SAAMs.

Regimental Shooting Team 143 Bde SAAM

The Royal Signals Skill At Arms Meeting was held during the period 12-16 April 1999 at Ash and Pirbright Ranges. The aim of this competition is to assess the standard of shooting skills within the Royal Corp of Signals. Despite the heavy commitment to Operation Agricola, in which all Royal Signals Units are involved, a total of 19 teams took part. Those units that were unable to form a team came as individuals.

30 Sig Regt entered two five men teams consisting of a Young Officer, soldier and three other shots, and was led by Lt (QGO) Krishna Gurung. The competition consisted of five rifle matches, a gun match and a pistol match. The 30 Sig Regt team yet again won most of the matches, becoming the Corps champions for the sixth consecutive year! SSgt Yamkumar Gurung had an excellent result; winning most of the individual prizes and becoming the Champion at all Arms. Lt Alexander had a successful start in shooting, becoming the Best Young Officer.

43(WEST MIDLANDS) BRIGADE SKILL AT ARMS MEETING 1999

The 143 (WM) Brigade SAAM was held between the period 15-16 May 1999 at Kingsbury Ranges. A total of 16 teams participated and there was a fierce battle with our opponents, mainly with 1 Staffords and ATR Lichfield. However, we won all of the matches except Match 4, and became the Brigade Champions for the third consecutive year!

In summary, we have had an excellent year in shooting. SSgt Yamkumar and LCpl Bharat have represented the Army in the International Shooting competition in Australia. The shooting team had the pleasure of our CO, GM and other Regimental Officers witnessing the event and providing support for the team. We are looking forward to upholding our reputation next year.

'So Sir, you're the Rugby Officer, how do you fancy a good kicking from the boys?' spoke Cpl Cox. 'What?' replied Capt Hill. 'Seniors and Officers v the boys Rugby match' challenged the aggressive young fool, little realising the task he was about to accept. Half hour later, with clearance from the CO, 'but only with a proper ref', Cpl Cox was granted his wish. 'Alright, it's your idea, you organise it'. 'Oh*?!' came the reply. So it came to pass that on a sunny Wednesday afternoon, ruined only by moments of arctic rainstorms, 30 of the Regiment's finest, of all ranks and ability, met on the field of battle to right wrongs and settle old scores in 80 minutes of hard but fair rugby. 'Cox, you!!? We've both got the same colour strip on and no spare ball,' muttered various officers and SSMs. 'Yeah, but we do have a 9 x 9 and beer,' came the retort. The Regimental hockey strip (don't tell OC PR1) was rapidly fetched and the game eventually kicked off at around 1500 hours. The toms started with only 14 men and were facing a stiff breeze in the first 40 minutes allowing the seniors to apply the pressure direct from the kick off, but some resolute juniors defence kept them at bay. An early penalty was awarded against the tom's for killing the ball, but the kick was sent wide by Sgt Mark Armstrong. The juniors had managed to find the largest and strongest pack possible, which revelled in the rough and tumble of hard physical mauling. Unperturbed, the seniors calmly took control of the game. The definitely older, and maybe wiser, heads played for quick ball so as to unleash the back line.

The first half continued to be mainly pressure from the seniors. A couple of fine breaks by Sig Andy Doughty could have brought tries but WO2 Andy Campbell stopped him just short of the line. Then shortly before the half time whistle the seniors scored their first try but missed the resultant conversion. Next was Capt Hill with a short burst round the back of the scrum to score between the posts. Injuries were now starting to appear. Capt Peet's right eye ballooned (the 'I don't care whose side you are on - just get away from the ball' Adjt's knee apparently to blame), SSM 256's nose was heard to go, and Maj 'I'm a teacher, please don't hurt me' Patterson's ribs will never be the same again. Ed, is it just me, or are all these injuries a bit one sided? After the restart the Toms started to put the pressure on and after a quick penalty by LCpl Lee Hepworth and a barnstorming run down the centre managed to bring a short spell of pressure to the seniors line. A long kick over the top turned the game around and the seniors were again camped in the toms half. Shortly before half time the seniors scored their second try under the post when a kick through was not cleared and was chased down by SSgt Jamie Alleyne. The resultant conversion was stroked through.

The second half started and the juniors had a full team at last when Cpl Dean Rawlings made up the fifteenth man, and he made all the difference with a couple of crunching tackles, and excellent runs. But the toms came unstuck when SSgt Jamie Alleyne intercepted a stray pass by LCpl M. J. Holt, leaving the toms defence trailing and scoring under the posts. The Toms' moment did finally arrive when a lineout move led to Cpl Greg Cox crashing over in the corner. The final score was 3-5 in favour of the seniors. A very enjoyable day was had by all and hopefully this will be the start of an annual fixture.

All is forgotten with a beer after the match

Holt, Cpl Jase Curley, LCpl Fred Hazzard, Sig Baz Still, LCpl Lee Hepworth, Sig Oscar Phillips, LCpl Al Harris, Sig Andy Doughty, Cpl Wayne Heaton, Sig Sanj Sanjeev, Sig Steve Worthington, LCpl Phil Dransfield, and eventually Cpl Dean Rawlings.

Seniors Team: Anyone who bothered to turn up.

LANYARD TROPHY

30 Sig Regt entered a male and female team for the Lanyard Trophy event which was held in the North Downs over the period of 5-7 May 1999. Training for the event started in February with the WO2 (QMSI) John 'Splinter' Morton planning a training programme for the months ahead. The training consisted of two sessions per day with the morning invariably being circuit training and a swim, followed by the evening session concentrating solely on running. The commitments for the Squadrons and soldiers during the lead up to the Lanyard event were quite considerable with each department losing manpower daily to the Balkans. Fresh faces continued to appear on training from different departments with soldiers being gently persuaded that this was undoubtedly the way forward. WO2 (SSM) Miles 'I am not leaving until you give me your soldiers' Webb cruised the camp pouncing on individuals who he felt could do the job.

LADIES TEAM

After having trained hard for a couple of months under the direction of LCpl Kaz 'tabbing queen' Burrows, 30 Signal Regiment female Ladies team led by Lt Teri 'determined to win' Downes recruited a few extras at the last minute, including Cpl Sarah 'gwa' Falconbridge and LCpl Ingrid 'Tech' Toft. We arrived at Folkestone and were mothered by our fantastic Admin team which comprised of WO2 (QMSI) 'Swahili' Morton and Cpl 'zinc foot tape expert' Howe and Sig Faye Wood. The food and drink was 'sorted', feet zinced up and the energy levels topped up all ready to rock 'n' roll. After an early start, WO2 Mel 'banana on toast for breakfast again' Crowther and Cpl Tracey 'happy smiley' Main were keen to get on with it. There was just enough time for a quick team pee stop behind some bush before the massed start - wish someone had had a camera.

With the massed start the idea was to get in front of the other female teams - this we managed, but only just, Sig Ruth 'second timer' Phillips was keeping a close eye on the opposition. The regular Ladies teams were taking it in turns to follow each other and were neck and neck for the first third of the race. Unfortunately, we had to drop someone at the first and second checkpoint due to horrid, large blisters. The check point changeovers were professional and rrrrr - ap - eeeed, with Sig Faye 'admin' Wood running around with refilled water bottles and food. After 16 miles we were down to a robust and determined team of eight people, therefore the pressure was on everyone to finish. Everyone battled on, fighting the physical pain and aching limbs. All were insanely jealous of 2Lt Katy 'Tigger' Taylor's never ending supply of energy - was she ever going to tire? Unluckily for us, one team member began to suffer greatly from an old injury and had to drop out at checkpoint three - bugger - which was us out of the running for the Trophy. During the race nearly everyone had a quiet little whinge, except tough as old boots Sig Cilla 'hard as nails' Black who determinedly battled on throughout, albeit high on Brufen! We crossed the line in a credible time of 12 hours 10 minutes, with two Queen's Gurkha Signals pipers from the Regiment there to march us in and lift our spirits. Until that is the boots came off. Many thanks for the tasty Gurkha curry. Next time can we please have a vegetarian meal for our recently promoted member of the team who shall not be forgotten in the write up this time, LCpl Kate 'Congrats' Deal. As our team was incomplete (only seven finished) we were not considered in the overall results. This was most unfortunate as everyone in the team put in 110% effort, well done to everyone.

The winners of the Lanyard Trophy will always be the strongest overall team on the day. This year it was not us, but just wait till 2000 - revenge will be ours!!

MALE TEAM

SSgt 'Doc 'Don't stop me now' Halliday and Sgt Des 'No distance is far enough' Holroyd both pulled the team together and continually worked to improve the team. Cpl Rob 'Work harder' Howe took the team away on training weeks to the Downs, Brecon Beacons and hills around Shrewsbury. All this training was progressive, starting with light bergens and progressing to no more than 30lbs. The Lanyard Team also decided that they needed to go away to compete in the Nijmegen qualifying marches at RAF Benson over the weekend of 24/25 April 1999. The 25 miles covered each day certainly hardened a few feet!! Lt 'Kangaroo Bruce' Lee arrived into 258 Sig Sqn only to be asked what his BFT time was. 20 mins later he was in the Gymnasium training for the Lanyard Trophy.

The Officer Corps were also substantially boosted by the team captain Capt Rich 'Ironman' Carter and Capt Harvey 'landed gentry' Woods. All three Officers not only helped towards the construction of the team but also provided the team with considerable morale (especially when Capt Woods brought his slippers to the RAF Benson marches weekend)!! Sig 'Calm and collected' Mackay and Sig 'Wobbly' Lucas won the record for training session attendance.

The administration team, consisting of WO2 (SSM) Miles Webb, Sgt Phil 'Smiler' Joyce and Cpl 'Taff' Lean bought two Tesco trolley loads of Energy foods and drinks for the event. Recces were carried out on three occasions before the race to time checkpoint-to-checkpoint routes and spot the best pitches for administration stalls. Eventually, all was in place and the team set off for Napier Barracks. That evening in the accommodation the atmosphere was tense with the whole team concentrating on the race ahead. Individual drinks were mixed and food stocks were filled into respective bergens and pouches. The three Gurkha soldiers, Sig 'smile forever' Deepak, Sig 'Guinness' Ganesh and Sig 'Sig' Nal showed their professionalism in remaining cool and preparing well. This preparation proved to be well worth it in the following hours. The start of the event took place NE of Maidstone in the Kent County Showground, finishing at St Martins Plain in Folkestone, a distance of 40 miles. Throughout the preparation, 216 (Para) Sig Sqn looked poised and confident with 249 Sig Sqn and 15 Sig Regt equally keen. The start was a mass race around the show-ground with 216 and 249 pushing forward. 30 Sig Regt wanted a fast start and managed to move out of the showground with these two units. From the start to the finish, 30 Sig Regt, along with 216 and 249 battled against each other, 216 and 249 keeping the lead with 30 Sigs following closely. The determination and guts produced during the event by the team was a privilege to watch. Each individual pushed their team members on when they themselves felt strong resulting in the team maintaining a lead with 216 and 249.

The final hill

30 Sig Regt forced marched up the hill to the sound of the two Gurkha Bagpipers who then led them through the finish, where a silver service lunch awaited. 30 Sig Regt finished in 3rd position with a time of 9hrs 20mins, approximately 30 mins behind the winning team. The next team to finish after 30 Sig Regt were over one hour behind. This was a fantastic result: Well done to all.

RAF BENSON MARCHES 24-25 APRIL 1999

by WO2 (SSM) Miles Webb

Members of 30 Sig Regt entered a marching team for the RAF Benson marches. These marches were the qualifying marches for Nijmegen in July of this year. 14 soldiers travelled down on the weekend of the 24-25 April 1999 to take part. WO2 (SSM) 'Motivator' Miles Webb persuaded the Regiment that this would be a fun weekend, subsequently names came flooding in. The final briefing on the day before brought the reality home to one and all and the volunteers were left with no illusions about the event that they had to undertake. The Marches required 12 soldiers to march a marathon (25 Miles) each day carrying 10kg. The evening of our arrival saw everyone preparing their feet and sorting out their admin for the two days ahead. Capt Harvey 'Smoking Jacket' Woods, never one to be outdone, unpacked his slippers. Needless to say, WO2 (SSM) Miles Webb walked into the NAAFI towards the end of the evening and asked the whole NAAFI if someone had lost their slippers. Time for a sharp exit!! Both girls who took part, LCpl Caz 'Whippet' Burrows and Sig Cilla 'dont stop me now' Black marched both days without even a murmur of pain. Cpl Jase 'shorty' Curley and Sgt Phil 'Smooth' Joyce amused everyone each day cracking jokes until the 18 mile point when suddenly the blisters kicked in and the jokes stopped. Sgt Des 'Iron Man' Holroyd spent most of the day reminding us all every five miles that we had only 5kms to go; this went on each day even when the finish came into sight. The team put in an excellent two days marching, achieving the fastest time of any team on the second day. 30 Sig Regt have now qualified for Nijmegen and are looking forward to participating in the event itself in July 1999.

THE HIGH LIFE
A PERSONAL VIEW OF THE LONG NEPALI COURSE

by Lt Mark Davis

As a proud member of the Queens Gurkha Signals I am eligible for one of the most well located courses in the British Army. Namely the Nepali Long Language Course, run for young Officers in the tranquil surrounding of the British Gurkha Camp Pokhara, Nepal. The camp is a throwback from the days of the Raj, with white clad orderlies bringing Mars bars on silver trays. Tea, in a small silver teapot, would appear by your bed each morning to welcome you into the new day. It took me slightly under two weeks to master enough of the language to explain that I didn't actually like tea. It was a further week before I was believed, as all members of the British Army must like tea as far as they were concerned.

The course was split into two parts; the main lesson based language part and the three week, unfortunately obligatory, welfare trek. The course was quite intensive with vocab, numbers and Nepali letters to be learnt each night. The written language was the most painful to learn, luckily our instructor was a firm believer in learning through suffering. Once we had passed the 'My name is' stage we progressed unevenly for two happy months in Pokhara. The nightlife was based around the local tourist area beside the lake. Once firmly ensconced with an ice cold beer, we would try to impress female tourists by chatting to the waiters and barmen in Nepali. They, the waiters and barmen, generally were very understanding in our attempts at their language, and happily taught us the rude slang our instructors seem to have omitted from the course.

After completing the course we were all dispatched to check on the spending of British Aid money about the country. I opted to go east, near Ilam, and having been issued three porters I set off for the best part of three weeks. I gained a great insight into the hill life, gaining a healthy respect for the farmers who hacked a living out of the steep 3,000m foothills. I also learnt to be highly wary of local buses and the few roads which wind into the hills. The roads fall away regularly and the buses generally seemed to rely more on prayer than maintenance. Three weeks of two meals of curry, a day later I returned to the capital Kathmandu for last minute shopping and impressing tourists before getting onto a plane for the UK. Needless to say it was bucketing it down when I landed, the first rain I had seen for three months, life can be hard!

THE 1999 SYDNEY TRAILWALKER

by Lt Dhanbahadur Gurung

Trailwalker began in Hong Kong in 1981 as a military exercise run by the Queen's Gurkha Signals, and was opened to the public in 1985 to raise money for charity. Eighteen years later Trailwalker has become a major international event that attracts thousands of participants each year. To date Trailwalker has raised over 10 million pounds for different charities and is held annually in Hong Kong and the UK. 1999 saw Australia's first Trailwalker held in Sydney from 28 - 30 May. Community Aid Abroad (CAA) Australia, with the support of the Australian Army organised the Sydney Trailwalker, and an estimated 100 teams of four people competed over a 100km trail, to be completed within 48 hours. The event took place along the Great North Walk in the northern suburbs of Sydney, traversing one of Sydney's most scenic and beautiful walking tracks.

On 22 May, on the invitation of the CAA, six soldiers from 250 Gurkha Sig Sqn flew to Sydney to compete in the first Australian Trailwalker. In it's eighteen years history, Trailwalker has been won by a team other than the teams from the Brigade of Gurkhas on only one occasion, so we were not surprised when the press and the TV media followed us before and during the race.

Our team strategy was to run everything - uphills, the downhills, the flats - and stop no longer than two minutes at each checkpoint, and it worked, as it has worked on many occasions in the past. Our team completed the 100km trail in 15hrs 5min, and finished 3hrs 51min ahead of the second team (The Berowra Bush Runners) winning the first Australian Trailwalker in great style.

The following day we found ourselves on the national TV, and suddenly we had become celebrities overnight. The team consisted of the following:

Lt Dhan Gurung	-	Team Officer/Reserve
Sgt Ek Pun	-	Team 2IC/Reserve
LCpl Tirtha Rai
Sig Hari Limbu
Sig Bharatmani Limbu
Sig Deepak Rai

A three days R&R followed next, so it was now to explore Sydney, and perhaps more than anything to take the time to have the few beers that we had so longed for before the race. A visit to the Darling Harbour, Bondi Beach, The Opera House, The Harbour Bridge, Toronga Zoo, and finally visits to the Exotic restaurants and clubs in King's Cross added extra flavour to our R&R. It was wonderful to win and achieve our aim, and it was also an opportunity of a lifetime to go and visit Sydney. As with all good things the end comes pretty quickly and with this there was no exception. So with proud feelings and overwhelming contentment we flew back to the UK on 2 June 1999.

Sydney Trailwalker Start Point

VICTOR TROOP

As our imminent deployment to Macedonia approaches, V Tp is in a frenzy of courses, leave and preparation. With over half the troop on leave at any one time, the only time everyone comes together is for troop functions. That said, V Tp has had a good month on the whole, despite small numbers in the Squadron. The Tp OC has recently returned from three months in Nepal, and LCpl Dhir has successfully completed P-Company. The Tp OC, Cpl Anjan and Sig Lalit all took part in the Regimental Shooting Team, beating all comers at the Brigade SAAM. On the Exercise side V Tp ran its own Exercise to train our DE/DLs in the basics of CNR. Other Exercises in the pipeline are either aimed at deployment or for Trailwalker, another rapidly approaching Squadron responsibility. A V Tp barbecue on the wet evening of the 29 of May rounded off a generally hectic month.

EXERCISE TOPHAM HATT

Ex Topham Hatt saw 11 members of the Regiment deploy to Swanage as part of the on going Corps support to the Swanage Steam Railway. 30 Sig Regt was the first Unit to undertake Ex Topham Hatt in 1984, and has been the last Unit to work on the Railway prior to the 15th Anniversary of Corps involvement, on 12 June 1999.

It's my train and I want to play with it

With the majority of the Sqn out in the Balkans the problem of keeping the rear party busy is a challenge. After a day of persuasion by Cpl Steve 'Red Head Metalsmith' Nelson and WO2 Frank Roberts (222 Sig Sqn, Topham Hatt Liaison Officer), Capt Mike 'Chippy' Grierson was convinced that the chance of deploying ten members of the Squadron to Swanage was not to be taken lightly. As the Exercise has been running for 15 years the preparation and organisation need has been streamlined. With one minibus, one DAF and a Chef, the workers left the Barracks on Sunday 23 May 1999. The DAF driven by Cpl 'Mac' McMullen left some 2½ hours prior to the minibus. Under the careful navigation of Pte 'Blacky' Blackmore, the Chef, they arrived some 30 minutes after the minibus after sightseeing tours of Bath and Poole.

The group arrived to find a hard standing which would be home for the next week. The tents were erected next to a large warehouse that contained one shower, two toilets and three dismantled steam locomotives. With the Chef back at his trade setting up the kitchen, Capt Grierson, Cpl Mandy Nolan and Cpl Tracy 'No! I really am a Soldier' Main, were shown the tasks in hand. These were to strim a large area around Herston Halt (which is being dedicated to the Corps on 12 June), to rebuild the main fence around the main station in Swanage and build a new comms shed next to the warehouse. Monday morning saw the groups start working. Cpl Pete 'Man Utd forever' Smedley, Sig Johnny Devine and Sig 'Scotty' Chamberlain were put to work levelling the ground ready for the prefabricated shed. Cpl 'Mac' McMullen and Sig 'Robbo' Robinson set about strimming and the rest of us started to strip the existing fence. After a few hard days graft, the toll was beginning to show. Nearly all the group volunteered to remain in on Tuesday Night and guard the admin area. After the European Cup Final on Wednesday there was still a large amount of work left to be done. With a few sore heads and blurry eyes the work continued on Thursday. By the close of play we had finished the strimming and the Shed. The fence had been fully erected and only required the top coat of paint to be applied.

Cpl 'Mac' McMullen and Cpl Steve Nelson on panbash again

Friday saw the clean up and return to Barracks. The Exercise was a great success and everyone was pleased with their achievements. It proved to be an ideal opportunity for the JNCOs to practice leadership skills outside the normal military environment, whilst helping the local community.

258 SIGNAL SQUADRON

Sqn Comd	Capt Harvey Woods
SSM	WO2 (SSM) M. A. Webb

SQUADRON NEWS

258 Sig Sqn has been as hectic as ever in recent months, but who hasn't in this Corps of ours? If the Prime Minister is looking for proof that the Armed Forces are heavily committed, I suggest that he might want to begin by looking at the commitments being juggled around in the Squadron Operations room. Fortunately, WO2 (YofS) Jim 'Continuity Man' Knight has been on hand throughout to organise the multiple exercises and operations that have been thrown our way, while the Operations Officer, Capt Richard Carter, has been off swanning at Headquarters 11 Sig Bde. Progress with our new role as Joint Task Force Headquarters (JTFHQ) Signal Squadron has been slow but steady, with at least one major exercise with the Staff to confirm that things are definitely moving in the right direction. There are certain to be operations happening in the near future that will test us for real. In amongst all of this organised chaos, the Squadron has still had time to win most of the Regimental inter-Squadron competitions and get four students in the top five on the Commanding Officer's JNCO's Cadre Course. These are but a few of the impressive achievements that confirm 258 Sig Sqn's position as the self professed best in the Regiment.

A major event in SHQ had been the departure of Maj George Odling and Louise, off out of the Army and on to pastures new. The Squadron bid you a fond farewell and thank you for all of the groundwork that you have laid in getting the new-look JTFHQ Signal Squadron off the ground. Temporarily taking over as OC Sqn is Capt Harvey Woods, who should be able to bluff his way through to the autumn until the arrival of Maj Joe Cooper.

EXERCISE ZIRCONIUM MERCURY/JOCS ORE
15-21 May 1999

Mid-May was a typically busy time for the Squadron, with Ex Zirconium Mercury and a JOCs operational trial taking place simultaneously. Delta Tp thought that they had the best part of the deal and were all looking forward to running a Joint Task Force HQ (JTFHQ) exercise in South Africa. Closer to the time and plans started to change drastically, due to a lack of RAF aircraft. South Africa became France, which became Carlisle, which became....Longmoor Training Camp! Foxtrot Tp meanwhile were tasked with trialling JOCs, the very latest IT equipment, and making it work over everything from HF and Satcom to digital telephone lines and Ptarmigan. Unfortunately, Foxtrot Tp's location for the exercise was even less glamorous... Hangar 2, Bramcote!

Delta Tp's first challenge was to get to grips with the brand-spanking new tentage provided by MOD Plc. After an intensive two days tent training under the watchful eye of 'the civvy' from the tent company, the 'fleet' of trucks was packed and we were ready to go. Upon arriving at Longmoor, tentage was again the first priority. Thanks to the troop from 23 Pioneer Regiment, proudly led by Sgt Langridge, the tents did not present many problems. On the Sunday morning, the Troop were brought back to reality by a 'gentle jog' around Longmoor Training Area, directed by WO2 (SSM) Miles 'More PT' Webb. It was then back to the camp for final titivation and preparation before the JFHQ Staff Officers arrived.

It wasn't all tents, tents, and tents though and comms played its part too. The INMARSAT and TRC 522 crews did a good job, but the hardest workers of all were those involved in making the JOCs work in the HQ. Cpl Voyse in particular earned his pay over those few days. The exercise also gave us an opportunity to trial the latest 'Gucci' HF kit, the Racal Adaptive Communications Equipment (RACE). Two suited civvies turned up from Racal to show how it was done and LCpl 'big boy' Hepworth and his motley crew did the rest. Needless to say, we can't wait to get the kit for real and no-one was too happy about having to give it back at Endex.

Needless to say, the JFHQ Staff were very happy with what they had seen on the exercise and both us and them developed a better mutual understanding as the days went by. As is traditional, the exercise was rounded off with a barbecue and bar (guarded and served by Sgt Jill MacKay and Sgt Pete Crawford). Free beers and a brief pause in the rain made for an excellent evening. Meanwhile, back in Hangar 2, Foxtrot Tp had been hard at work getting to grips with the nitty-gritty of JOCs. The boffins from EDS achieved all that they were hoping for and all appeared to go smoothly under the expert direction of SSgt Paul 'Admin' Boughey and his team of top communicators, including Sig 'Bonnie' Langford. There must be more to say about the Exercise, but in the absence of any Wire notes, that'll have to do.

EXERCISE ARDUOUS CYGNET - 18-30 April 1999

by LCpls Kate Deal and Dave Kyle

Ex Arduous Cygnet was the Commanding Officer's JNCO's Cadre Course run at Beckingham Camp and Proteus Training Area between 18-30 April. After weeks of intense preparation (!) we arrived on the parade square, 23 of the most highly tuned and motivated soldiers that the Regiment could muster. The first week was mostly classroom work consisting of various lessons such as first aid, map reading, NBC, BITS (to name but a few) and, of course, PT. What would a cadre course be without an hour of PT at 0600 hrs every morning with an over enthusiastic PTI, Sig 'I don't know the meaning of heavy breathing' Hari.

After a week in the classroom honing our field-craft skills, we deployed to our field location to put it all into practice. The field exercise took place at Proteus Training Area near Mansfield and gave each of us the chance to put into practice our leadership skills. Each of the tasks we were given led us to the final assault. Things didn't go entirely according to plan due to a severe breakdown in communications, but then we are in the Royal Corps of Signals after all. Just when we thought it was all over we noticed the ominous figure of the WO2 (QMSI) Morton and his gym staff standing by three stretchers laden with full Jerry cans. We were promised that this would be the last exercise before returning to camp and enjoying a well earned beer. For once the DS were right.

The two week course tested everyone's abilities. It was certainly tough, especially when the sleep deprivations set in, but everyone successfully completed the course and two of us are now wearing tapes because of it, so it must have been worth it!!

DELTA TROOP

Tp Comd	Lt Teri Downes
Tp Sgts	Sgts Gill Mackay and Gaz Middleton

Operations have taken their toll on Delta Tp with almost everyone being on Op Palatine, Spearhead R1, TFHQ R1, or whatever else they throw at us! So apart from Ex Zirconium Mercury, we haven't really had time for much else. There has however been time for a promotion recently, with congratulations going to LCpl Dave Kyle, who came equal top on the Regimental Cadre Course. Congratulations also to Sig Bridger on the birth of her baby - hope to see you back soon. The Troop has to make room for more beers as we say goodbye to Sgt Ken Barker, Sigs Steve 'Speedy' O'Rourke and Justin 'Horse' Fortner and 'Mrs' Leach (and James). We would also like to warn off the following: Sigs 'Midge' Phillips, 'Beaker' Griffiths, 'Courses' Climpson and Richard Maybank. Arrival's crates are now due.

ECHO TROOP

Tp Comd	Lt George Alexander
Tp SSgt	SSgt 'Doc' Halliday

We would just like to say our usual hellos and goodbyes. Firstly, hello and goodbye to Lt 'Bruce' Lee, who has just joined us from Australia for four months on Ex Long Look and who will probably be back Down Under by the time this reaches print. Hello also to Sgt Al Barker, who has just been posted in from 94 Sig Sqn (Windsor), and to Sig Paul Burns, who joins us from Blandford. We also sadly say goodbye to Sgt Mark Reeves, LCpl Roy Constable and Sig Lee Stuchbury, who are all off to civvy street. Congratulations to Sig George Chandler and Emma and also to Sig Gav Williams and Sally, who have been or are just about to be married. It has been a busy and active time for the troop recently, with most of us on duties or Spearhead R1 commitments. Life in the Troop is otherwise pretty normal, with everyone trying to get as much sport in as possible and some weirdoes even volunteering for Trailwalker. However, with a Birmingham UOTC Exercise and also a Troop adventure training week in Devon forthcoming, it shouldn't be all work and no play.

FOXTROT TROOP

Tp Comd	2Lt Katy Taylor
Tp SSgt	SSgt Paul Boughey

We say farewell to the following: Cpl Sarah Faulconbridge to 15 Sig Regt, Cpl Wayne Hunt off to 35 Sig Regt, LCpl Stevie Binks to 8 Inf Bde, LCpl John Wozniak to 7 Armd Bde, and Sigs Frankie Eversfield, William Ferguson and Robert Ward off to Civvy street. Also, a warm welcome to the following: Sgt Stu Fidler, Cpl Curley and LCpl Lindsey Payton. Finally, congratulations to Kate Deal on finding the lucky dip bag with the stripe in it.

It's been a busy few months for Foxtrot Tp (AKA Guard Tp). Its not all been duties though as the Troop has been busy with JTFHQ and other exercises, the JOCs ORE to name but one. The Troop has also recently had a day out in York on which everybody had a fabulous day visiting the museums and places of local interest (ha ha). Well done to those members of the Troop who participated in the Lanyard Trophy, Race the Sun, Regimental Athletics and the Morrison Cup.

31 (CITY OF LONDON) SIGNAL REGIMENT (VOLUNTEERS)

REGIMENTAL HEADQUARTERS - SOUTHFIELDS

CO	Lt Col Linda Harrison TD
RSM	WO1 (RSM) John Gibson

The Regiment has been kept exceptionally busy over the last couple of months with a Royal Visit, two Executive Stretch exercises, Range Days, trade training, sports competitions and social events.

HELLOS AND GOODBYES

Good luck to LCpl Mick Taylor and Emma who have moved onto pastures new at 249 (AMF(L)) Sig Sqn. Welcome to LCpl Dave Wynne straight in from 19 Mech Bde HQ & Sig Sqn, who takes over as CO's driver. LCpl 'GPS' Wynne certainly had an interesting first two weeks navigating around London. It is still a mystery to RHQ how he ended up at Heathrow when trying to find the CO's house in Twickenham!! Farewell to SSgt Roy Messenger who moves to 2 Sig Regt. Although the move north may temporarily locate him closer to his wife in Carlisle, the 'system' has ensured that this is only temporary as he deploys to the Falklands next month - good luck & enjoy!! Welcome to his replacement SSgt Alfie Kirkham fresh from 14 Sig Regt (EW), we hope you settle quickly and enjoy your tour.

MAYOR OF WANDSWORTH'S DINING OUT

Throughout her time in office Cllr Prof Elizabeth Howlett, the Mayor of Wandsworth has provided tremendous support to the Regiment. Therefore it was considered only right and proper that a delegation should be sent to her dining out - oh no not another posh dinner! The CO, Trg Maj, Adjt and RSM all donned their Mess Kits and spent a very enjoyable evening at Wandsworth Town Hall. One custom that the Mayor resurrected was that of the 'Loving Cup'. A large gold cup is passed around the room with each diner drinking from it before passing it on with great amounts of pomp and ceremony.

Adjt and Trg Maj demonstrating the Passing of the Loving Cup!

ROYAL VISIT - HRH THE DUCHESS OF GLOUCESTER

On Tuesday 25 May 1999 HRH The Duchess of Gloucester visited the Regiment at Kensington Town Hall. The occasion was the 200th Anniversary of the Presentation of Colours to the Kensington Volunteers, the only surviving element of which is 41 (Princess Louise's Kensington) Signal Squadron. A total of 200 guests attended including GOC LONDIST, Maj Gen Sprackling, Maj Gen Stokoe, Brig Hughes, as well as serving and ex members of the Regiment and councillors from the Borough of Kensington. The original Colours were presented by the then Duchess of Gloucester in 1799, so it was only fitting that 200 years later it was the current Duchess of Gloucester who came as the guest of honour. There was an exceptionally good turn out from the Regiment. Particular mention goes to LCpl Laurel Allot, Cpl Manns, Sig Farquarson-Roberts, Sig 'CB' Coleman-Brown, Cpl Simon May, Sig Scott Fisher who all performed brilliantly as Pikemen. Well done to WO2 (AQMS) Andre Scrivener who somehow managed to make his way through the crowds to shoot a Regimental video of the occasion. The evening was a tremendous success with many old acquaintances renewed and numerous tales told. With the formalities completed at Kensington Town Hall it was time to adjourn to Mercury House for supper and a couple of relaxing jars of well earned ale. These were certainly enjoyed by the Adjt, Capt Mel Rayner, who had spent most of the evening at Kensington Town Hall trying not to fly at 30,000 ft whilst organising more than her fair share of senior officers!

ROYAL SIGNALS ORIENTEERING CHAMPIONSHIPS 29/30 MAY 1999

Who in their right mind arranges the Corps Orienteering Championships to take place on a Bank Holiday weekend in deepest darkest Wales?!!! Equally, who in their right mind actually goes!! Well six members of 31 Sig Regt (V) braved the bank holiday traffic to fight their way out of London and drive the entire length of the M4. As competition time arrived on Saturday the heavens opened, the thunder and lightning started and all competitors knew it was going to be a very wet and soggy afternoon. The 31 Sig Regt (V) female team comprised Capt Mel Rayner, Capt Sarah Streete, Lt Linda Davies and Cpl Becks Strickland. By the end of Day One all were soaking wet, but this seemed irrelevant when they were enjoying a 44min lead over their nearest rivals. Sigs Chris Cox and Chris Hanlon both competed as individuals on Day One. Both would like to thank the Regimental Orienteering Rep, SSgt Neil 'Snake Hips' Fisher for entering them on the longest course again!! All competitors managed to dry out in time for the evening activities. The girls challenged some of the 16 Sig Regt male team to 10 pin bowling - another resounding success!! Gentlemen - despite your protestations of cheating, we didn't need to, you were beaten fair and square - twice! Well done Lt Linda 'Aussie' Davies who scored a staggering 154 points! Back to the orienteering. Day Two saw the teams competing in the Relay. An excellent run by the Ladies Team saw them increase their lead and win the overall team competition by over an hour. The final total was two trophies and ten medals between the four members of the team!! Well done to Capt Sarah Streete for becoming the Corps Ladies Champion (and managing to beat all the TA men on her course as well!!) Congratulations to Lt Linda Davies for winning the D Course and to Cpl Becks Strickland for coming second on it. The weekend was a tremendous success, great fun and very well organised by 14 Sig Regt (EW) - I guess we can't blame them for their location!!

Capt Sarah Streete with her clutch of trophies as the 1999 Royal Corps of Signals Ladies Orienteering Champion

MAYOR MAKING DINNER

It is a Regimental traditional that following the local Mayoral Elections a dinner is held in Southfields TAC for all the new Mayors of the boroughs in which the Squadrons are based. This year's Mayor Making Dinner took place on Thursday 3 June 1999. The field officers paraded in their Mess Kit and the Mayors in their formal attire ensuring that the event was a colourful and formal affair.

SQUADRON NEWS

The Squadron life continues to hurtle along at the hectic pace dictated by the Forecast of Events. A number of new faces have turned up recently, mainly as a result of SDR. So welcome to all those unfortunate people whose units are closing down, we hope that you settle in quickly to your new home in HQ Sqn.

FAREWELLS

It is with great regret that the Squadron says farewell to Sgt 'Taz' Campbell who has decided to leave the TA. Tanya will be missed by all the Squadron and indeed the Regiment. All who worked with this very capable SNCO will know how much of a pleasure it was to do so. All ranks wish Tanya and Mike all the very best for the future and hope to see you both at some of the social events.

THE REGIMENT V THE WORSHIPFUL COMPANY OF INNHOLDERS SHOOTING COMPETITION - 8 MAY 1999

The Shooting Competition is an annual event which took place this year at both Bisley and Ash Ranges. The Innholders are the Regiment's sponsoring Livery Company and close ties and good friendships have developed between the two organisations. The shooting is just one of many annual joint ventures.

The day began early for the soldiers of HQ Sqn who were tasked to assist their PSI, SSgt Craig Bruce BEM. He had been picked from a cast of thousands as the event organiser - well done Staff! After a guided tour of Southern England the Squadron arrived at Bisley (we could say we got lost but that was left to the new CO's driver, time on recce seldom wasted LCpl Wynne?).

At Bisley the PSI had a few nervous moments trying to track down one of the civilians who was running one of the ranges. However, assisted by 2Lt Paul Ukpai the problem was rectified without anyone knowing (well almost). The three ranges taking part were a 7.62mm civilian range run by a member of the Bisley Shooting Club, an archery range, again run by the club, a shotgun range, expertly run by the QM, Maj Ken Clark and the QM(V), Capt Fred Southey and an LSW range run by the SSM HQ, WO2 (SSM) Chrissie Stanton. All ranges were run totally professionally, well done to all concerned. Vital to the success of the weekend were the efforts of LCpl 'Am a Londoner ain't I' Ford and his side kick LCpl 'do you want some gear' Mackay. They were tasked with the job of ensuring that the children who took part in the children's archery shoot required no first aid. These two JNCOs successfully achieved their mission much to the delight of the TM, the RSM and the PSI as their children were doing their 'Robin Hood' bit.

WO2 (SSM) Chrissie Stanton, Sgt Martin Oliver, Cpl Becks Strickland and indeed all the team from the Squadron deserve a massive pat on the back for the excellent way they handled both themselves and the guests on the day, well done. The prizes were evenly split between the Regimental Association, the Worshipful Company of Innholders and the Regt. Fortunately though the winning team was RHQ (mainly due to the contributions made by Lynne, Kay and Pamela - the better halves of the TM, RSM and SSgt Bruce respectively!) Well done to everyone for a very successful day, especially SSgt Bruce for his excellent organisation. We now look forward to next year's event.

THE FLORA LONDON MARATHON 1999

Three of Southfields' finest took part in the London Marathon. They were WO2 (FofS) Bob Wymer, running for the 'Anthony Nolan' Appeal, SSgt Craig Bruce BEM and Sgt 'Taz' Campbell running for the 'Find Your Feet' Charity. After months of training, the Troops were suitably ready for the challenge ahead. In the build up to the event as much time was taken to raise money for the respective charities as it was to physically train for the distance! Incidentally, the runners would like to thank everyone who donated their 'hard earned cash' for the various good causes. The runners all started from different locations and 'mingled' in with the thousands of other hopeful runners. The atmosphere was superb. There was a plan to meet up on route but it never happened due to the mass of people taking part on the day. All three runners enjoyed the run, unfortunately SSgt Bruce picked up an injury at the 15 mile point but managed to soldier in a painful 4 hours 30 minutes, raising £600. WO2 (FofS) Wymer ran an excellent 3 hours and 27 minutes and raised a superb £1000 for his charity and Tanya completed the marathon in 4 hours 47 minutes and also raised £500.

REGIMENTAL RUGBY - 31 SIG REGT (V) V 47 SIG SQN (V)

Two months ago the CO was challenged by OC 47 Sig Sqn to a game of Rugby. Apparently the match had been a permanent fixture in the Regimental Calendar up until a few years ago. The CO a keen Rugby fanatic (although obviously does not take the sport seriously, as she supports Wales) immediately agreed to the game and passed it over to the RQMS, WO2 George Coffin. Having been given the task, the RQMS and SSgt Roy Smith set about trying to find volunteers for the event. After much trawling and arm twisting, 20 fine young-blooded men were found to take up the challenge. A full weekend of training was decided upon. However the date chosen was also one of the many Trade Training weekends that the troops love to attend, or are told that they would love to attend. Unfortunately the training had to be cancelled, because when the 'squad' arrived of the seven who turned up, one was on crutches and two were in collar and tie having forgotten their kit!

One week later on a warm Sunday in May the team gathered at RAF Uxbridge. Having spent the previous evening drinking orange juice at two going away functions, everyone felt fit and raring to go! A quick training session was called for, so that everyone could get used to each other's names, and the shape of the ball. The RQMS decided that as it was a friendly game the team would be on first name terms on the pitch. However, because of the two officers in the team it was decided that their names would be 'BOSS' for OC 83 Sqn, Maj Mike Jackson and 'RUPERT' for 2Lt Kieron Francis. That way, the opposition would have no idea who they were and would not target them - honest! The game commenced and 31 Sig Regt overcame the opposition and won the game 12pts to 5pts, with two superb tries that would have put the All Blacks to shame. The second try (scored by Sig Hulin) was an excellent worked try involving nearly every member of the team handling the ball, sometimes quite competently!

One message of commiseration goes to SSgt Dez Eldridge. He passed the limit of his endurance, when as a result of finding himself at the bottom of a pile of rather large human beings he tore his neck muscles. Unfortunately he is still suffering - nice collar though Staff! Thanks goes to OC 47 Sig Sqn for hosting the event and providing excellent refreshments before, during and after the game.

HELLOS AND GOODBYE

Hello to our new PSI, SSgt Kirkham, who comes to us from 14 Sig Regt. Goodbye to SSgt Roy Messenger, who is off to 2 Sig Regt and a couple of months in South Georgia. We wish him all the best with that. We welcome five new members to the Squadron who have transferred from the now closed 6/7 PWRR in Horsham. SSgt Holman and Cpl Bedwell have quickly made an impact on N Tp, Cpl Taylor and Sig Grant have joined J Tp, and Sgt Thomas has come into our recruiting cell. We hope they will enjoy wearing a Royal Signals Cap badge.

200 ANNIVERSARY OF THE PLK COLOURS

25 May 99 saw the 200th anniversary of the presentation of Colours to the Kensington Volunteers. 41 (PLK) Sig Sqn is the only surviving element of the old Infantry Regiment. The Princess Louise's Kensington (PLK) name was added to the Regimental title when Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll gave consent for her name to be used in 1908, three years after the Regiment had been granted permission to use the arms and motto of the Royal Borough of Kensington and Chelsea, and had become known as the 'Kensington Rifles'. The name and colours were passed down to 41 Sqn in 1967, when the Kensington Regiment was finally disbanded.

The reception to celebrate the 200th Anniversary was a grand affair at Kensington Town Hall. HRH The Duchess of Gloucester came as the guest of honour. During her visit she managed to meet many of the serving and ex members of the Squadron. Some of the more senior guests (in terms of age and service with the PLK) had a fascinating tale or two to tell. Most notable was Col Wood who served with the Kensington's. During the war he had rescued the Colours and placed them in a chapel and it was his wife, who after the war stitched the necessary repairs to return them to their former glory. The younger members of the Sqn certainly left the Town Hall puffed up with pride for their history and with a greater insight to their heritage and the Colours. The PLK soldiers clearly stood out from everyone else due to their distinctive red and grey stable belts. The Duchess was charming and certainly had an impact on those people fortunate enough to engage her in conversation. It was generally considered to be a very fitting way to celebrate the Bicentenary.

EXERCISE COURAGEOUS COMMUNICATOR

On 22 May, the Squadron deployed on Exercise in order to test and carry out fault finding on all Troop equipment in preparation for Annual Camp. We spent a sunny Saturday afternoon in Meredith Woods successfully establishing secure and insecure comms. Then on Sunday morning the Squadron tackled the new TA CFT, once again proving the variety of activities that can be packed into one weekend. Everyone completed the CFT in good time, despite a few blisters and sore shoulders.

LONGHAUL WEEKEND 15-16 MAY 1999

Whilst the Bde Comd, CO and OC 56 Sig Sqn were enjoying a liaison visit to the USA, the Squadron took part in a comms exercise with the 1108th US Sig Bde in Washington. Members of the Squadron spoke to fellow Signallers from across the water. This gave us an opportunity to fully exercise our new Lanward equipment and to put into practice all those hours spent training up on the new system. After the hours of training, the Squadron technician, Sgt Nick Tuck, should be an expert on this by now!

KEEPING BLANDFORD BUSY

Members of the Squadron have been keeping the teaching staff at Blandford busy these last couple of months. LCpls Traynor and May successfully completed their det commander's course in February. Hard work, but I think both girls enjoyed it..... Sgt Stanton passed his Class 1 Tele Op (Tg) in April - although they did have a bit of trouble siting their antennas. You would think by the time they reached Class 1 they would know to avoid cows when siting in a field!

NEWS FROM THE SQUADRON

Congratulations to Cpls Light and Harding on their recent promotion. Welcome back to WO2 Paine, Sig Coleman-Browne and Sig Baldwin who have just returned from a 6 month stint on Op PALATINE - by all accounts a good time was had by all. Welcome to Sgt Hall, Cpl Young and Sig Burgess who have all recently transferred into the Sqn - we all hope that you settle quickly into life on the sunny (!) South Coast here in Eastbourne. Congratulations to Sig Wood who has now been appointed as an Officer Cadet after successfully passing his MTQ2 course last month. Next stop Sandhurst - good luck 'OCdt Wood'!

REGIMENTAL HOCKEY V 47 SIGNAL SQUADRON (V)

Having challenged the men to a game of Rugby, 47 Sig Sqn then threw down the gauntlet and challenged the females to a game of Hockey. In the space of three days, Seven willing (?) volunteers (including the CO) agreed to dust of their boots (what boots?) and borrow sticks to represent the Regiment. Several had not played since their third year at school (a long time ago!) so it always promised to be an interesting game.

The opposition scored two quick goals in the first half, despite the brilliance of our goalkeeper, LCpl Jo Reader, who would not have looked out of place on a county side. After half-time, we found our feet and got on the score card thanks to two goals by Capt Sarah Streete, playing up front and being well supported by Aussie Lt Linda Davis. Lt Liz Fitzpatrick and SSgt Chrissie Stanton defended expertly despite not having held a stick for 30+ years between them and Cpl Becky Strickland proved to be very adaptable, playing every position on the pitch. Sadly, although we conceded one more goal before the final whistle and so went down 2-3, we certainly did not disgrace ourselves.

EXERCISE EXECUTIVE STRETCH

56 Sig Sqn were tasked to provide a stand and a command task for around 80 executives trying out at being soldiers for a weekend. We deployed in the field to set up an interesting scenario, brought to life by the imagination of WO2 (SSM) Kevin Godden and then spent the next day, putting the civvies under pressure. Sgt Micky Dowds was a superb 'blind' radio operator who had to give instructions for setting up and tuning the radio to people who did not even know what a radio looked like. In fact, one started to take the fuse box to bits before Sgt Dowds miraculously regained his sight very briefly! LCpl Eric Gardyne, who remained remarkably cheerful throughout the day, despite having had both his hands 'blown off', managed to instruct each group in how to erect a radio mast and antenna in order to send that all important message. Our two refugees, Sig Trish O'Sullivan and Sig Evershed enjoyed the day, dressed in ragged clothes and basically being disruptive, although one group did solve the problem by tying them up! The executives were not quite sure what to do when Sig O'Sullivan beckoned for them to follow her in a rather seductive way, even though she only wanted them to mend the telephone line! Cpl Jason Light did well, chivvying the executives on in the various tasks. Sig Richard Baggs had a great day, firing off the rounds to signal a new attack by the enemy and throwing the smoke bombs and thunder flashes to end the scenario.

To add to the interest, one executive was asked to lay out a helicopter landing pad and learn how to bring a helicopter in as the stores were due to arrive. They got a shock when they found that they had to do it for real! 666 Sqn AAC were with us for the day and really brought the scenario alive when they flew in. We did get some valuable advice from one Major, acting as DS, who suggested that we used a remote control helicopter to make it more realistic, only to find that five minutes later, a real one flew in!

On Sunday, we set up a command task and tested the executives on their ability to set up the field telephones and then send messages using the phonetic alphabet. They looked absolutely shattered and many were suffering from blisters and sore and aching limbs and they still had the assault course to do! Capt Tony Potter and Sgt Martin Cooper had a thoroughly enjoyable weekend (I'm having a laugh) out in the field with the inexperienced and unprepared executives, acting as their DS. They were certainly pleased to know that next time they were going out on exercise, it would be back with 56 Sig Sqn.

SSM	WO2 (SSM) Jim McMahon

Welcome back to the PSAO, Capt Dave Thomas, who has finally returned from his jolly to Nepal with 238 Sig Sqn - good job if you can get it!! Congratulations to SSgt Dez Eldridge and his wife Denise on the recent birth of their son Liam. Congratulations as well to Cpl Ahluwalia on his well deserved promotion. Welcome to 2Lt Andrew Lowther, a recent transferee from 10 Para (V).

VISIT OF THE MAYOR OF KENSINGTON CLLR DR J. MUNDAY 20 APRIL 1999

83 (London) Sig Sqn (V) were honoured with a visit from the Mayor and Mayoress of Kensington at their TA centre on the night of Tuesday 20 April 1999. The Mayor, Cllr Dr J. Munday was briefed on the future commitments of the Regiment and talked to members of 83 and HQ Sqns. He then took a tour of the TAC observing lessons in weapon handling, physical training and trade training. A presentation was then made by the Commanding Officer, 31 (City of London) Signal Regiment (V) Lt Col Linda Harrison TD to the Mayor of a painting depicting the last time the Regiment exercised its Freedom of the Borough. Amongst the guests present were Cllr and Mrs Corbet-Singleton who were Mayor and Mayoress at the time. The evening was rounded off with a curry supper and the chance to chat less formally.

A FAREWELL DINNER - 22 MAY 1999

The Squadron said 'farewell' to its longest serving member SSgt Ben Ferguson at a formal dinner held in his honour. After 30+ years of dedicated service, missing only one Annual Camp, SSgt Ferguson amused us with tales of old and words of wisdom. For a man who has served longer than many of us have been living, that's a lot of talking! SSgt Ferguson who was famed for this sharp wit and hot sauce will be missed by a Regiment which has benefited over the years from his knowledge, experience and charm.

The opportunity was also taken to say 'Goodbye' to 2Lt Kerianna Houia, a Reservist with the New Zealand Royal Signals Corps. Having spent the last year on attachment to 83 (London) Sig Sqn (V) gaining valuable experience commanding C Troop, she is now on her way back to warmer climates. 2Lt Houia made a parting gift of an engraved hand carved wooden plaque and a poem that she wrote about her experience.

We wish both SSgt Ben Ferguson and 2Lt Kerianna Houia every success and happiness in the future.

33 SIGNAL REGIMENT (VOLUNTEERS)

55 (MERSEYSIDE) SIGNAL SQUADRON

Sqn Comd	Maj Micah Cummings
SSM	WO2 (SSM) Paul Williams

By the time this reaches the hallowed pages of The Wire a great change would have taken place in the Regiment; the renaming of HQ Squadron to 55 (Merseyside) Signal Squadron (V). This change in title retains the historic nature of 55 Squadron in its new home here in Huyton. So to mark this change I thought it worthwhile allowing the rest of the Corps, including the retired members, time to digest the history as the Aintree chapter of life closes and a new era begins in Huyton.

55 Signal Squadron (V) was formed on 1 April 1967 as a unit of the Territorial Army and Volunteer Reserve (TAVR). This was the date on which the TAVR itself was formed on the demise of the Territorial Army. The Squadron was the only complete unit of the Special Army Volunteer Reserve, the'Ever-readies', which were introduced by Mr Harold McMillan, the then Prime Minister, as a measure to reinforce the Regular army quickly in the event of an emergency. Members of the Squadron were recruited from the former Territorial Army units and from the Army Emergency Reserve. The Squadron Headquarters was established at Townsend Avenue, Liverpool with troops at the Duke of Yorks Barracks, Chelsea (Airhead Troop) and Park Street, Cardiff (Port Troop). The first Squadron Camp was held at Crowborough, Kent. In 1968 the Squadron deployed overseas for the first time when it went to Cyprus in support of the United Nations (UN). During this deployment members of the Squadron wore the famous 'Blue Beret' of the UN. The Squadron then passed through a phase of being without a role, a situation in which it was to find itself on several occasions in future years.

In 1970 Airhead Troop was detached to form the basis of 44 Parachute Brigade Signal Squadron (V). However, a new Radio Relay Troop was formed, at the same time, and based at Old Street, Ashton-Under-Lyne. With this reconfiguration came a new role which was to provide communications and administrative support to HQ Logistic Support. The Liverpool Troop took on the responsibility for the Logistic Support Force (LSF) while the Cardiff Troop were responsible for the Logistic Support Group (LSG). At this time the superior administrative command HQ and head of arm for the Squadron was HQ 11 Signal Brigade (V) who were also located in Liverpool.

1971 saw the Squadron in BAOR for the first time exercising in support of HQ LSF and HQ LSG with 3 Division and 2 Transport Group. It was in the following year, 1972, that the Squadron moved to Grace Road and shared a TA Centre with 'A' Company, 4th Battalion the Parachute Regiment. With the additional room provided by the move the Radio

Relay Troop was moved from Ashton-Under-Lyne to Liverpool. The Logistic Support role continued with camps in BAOR and UK. However, this role was passed to 30 Signal Regiment, a regular unit, in 1977 on conclusion of a very successful final exercise in Denmark.

In 1978 the Squadron had a new role, or rather several new roles together with a major reconfiguration. Support Troop provided administrative support for HQ 8 Field Force, who had a home defence role. 'A' Troop provided Rear Link Detachments (RLD's) for the TA Infantry Battalions of 5, 6, 7 and 8 Field Force whilst 'B' Troop and 'D' Troop provided identical communications support for HQ 8 field Force. Support Troop, 'A' and 'B' Troop were all based in Liverpool whilst 'D' Troop was the former Port Troop in Cardiff. As a direct result of the change in role command of the Squadron was passed from HQ 11 Signal Brigade (V) to HQ 1 Signal Group in Tidworth, Ex Crusader 80, the largest exercise since the end of the war, saw the Squadron fully deployed within its role. The RLD's of 5, 6 and 7 Field Forces deploying to BAOR and the remainder providing support for 8 Field Force in their home defence role.

In 1981 the role in support of 8 Field Force was transferred to the expanded all Regulars 8 Field Force Headquarters and Signal Squadron. Although the Squadron retained the role for providing RLD's for the TA Infantry Battalions of the now re-titled 1, 5 and 19 Infantry Brigades and 'D' Troop in Cardiff took on the provision of Radio Detachments in Support of Tactical Air Command Posts (TACP's), there was a Troop in Liverpool without a role. During a major redeployment of the Army, which included the move of 2 Division from BAOR to York, the Squadron was given the responsibility for providing additional RLD's. This brought the total RLD commitment to 17, the majority in support of the 2 Infantry Division Battalions. At the same time an additional Troop, 'E' Troop, was formed in Cardiff to provide radio detachments for the mobile air operation teams (MAOT's). As a result of their increasing involvement with air support the Cardiff troop was transferred in 1983 to 244 (Air Support) Signal Squadron, a regular Squadron based at RAF Brize Norton. This left 55 Signal Squadron based entirely in Grace Road with a Support Troop and 2 Radio Troops, 'A' and 'B' Troops. The role now was to provide 17 x 6 man RLD's.

In 1984 the Squadron left the cramped and decrepit accommodation of Grace Road for a new TA Centre in Aintree. The barracks was formerly a 'Mothers pride' bakery which, after a £1.8million rebuild gave 55 Signal Squadron one of the newest TA centres in England. Various changes to the RLD's supported by the squadron occurred over the next ten years with assistance given to; 4 and 10 Para, 4 RGJ, 1 Wessex, 3 Staffs, 3 PWO, 6 RRF and 4/5 Rangers.

With 'Options for Change' came a new role for the Squadron and its assignment to the ARRC. Its role was firmly established its RLD detachments deployable worldwide, its parachute trained communicators able to support AB operations and its pool of Radio Rebroadcast Station available in support of any operation.

In 1998 'The Strategic Defence Review' SDR took place and once again a change was to take place for the Squadron. A new Squadron was to form in Aylesbury to be called 60 Signal Squadron and it would undertake the role of 55 Signal Squadron resulting in the TA Centre being closed. This was the most dramatic change in the Squadron's history, however, the trained communicators were not lost to the TA, rather, they transferred to 33 Signal Regiment (V), a Ptarmigan Regiment. The Squadron's title and pennant has also been saved as HQ Squadron of 33 Signal Regiment and been renamed 55 (Merseyside) Signal Squadron, so keeping the title alive in the North West of England.

59 SIGNAL SQUADRON - MAINTENANCE WEEKEND

The Squadron is now in full flow preparing for annual camp. A recent Squadron maintenance weekend proved very successful both in equipment availability and manpower. This was the first weekend that the influx of personnel from 55 Squadron were able to integrate.

Cpl Lorna Brierley and LCpl Kev Tilley showing that integration is being achieved with a smile

There was much work required to ensure our vehicles would be ready and the REME FRT gave good support as can be seen from the photo.

Will this one be going to camp Cpl?

MILITARY SKILLS WEEKEND

The Squadron had a particularly successful weekend at Halton Training Centre recently where soldiers took part in Pistol Shooting, Orienteering, Clay Pigeon Shoot and the obligatory assault course. The Squadron 2IC, Capt Alan Richardson, proved he was a good impersonator of Mel Gibson when given a pistol. In line with the CO's directive on returning to camp all those attending received a substantial meal.

An update from 'muddle mansion'.

Lt Col 'More energy than a 5 year old' Hargreaves continues to do 300 things all at once but always asks for results on the 301st issue. Maj Simon Green remains planning everything but managing very little except a release from the Trg Maj's slot in the very near future. Maj Les Wood is still the major focus in Corps athletics proving that an excellent RQMS is vital! Capt Mark Brookes has finally got his wish in that he is going to the Balkans and his position as Tech Adjt has been dis-established. WO1 (RSM) Norman Yarwood remains focused on his BA while maintaining his golf handicap at 28 by playing the 18th hole in 30 shots. El BANDITO! The FofS, WO2 Kev Sturman, is counting the days to his departure and the pennies in his wallet! Finally the Adjt, Capt Dave Wilson, (or as some would say 'Problem Child') continues to give his own brand of moral guidance and has finally announced his resignation.

EXERCISE MOORS CHALLENGE

HQ Sqn is located in Middlesbrough, an area which to most people who have not been there conjures up an image of smoke and acid rain (this is only when the wind is coming from the east). In fact the North Yorkshire Moors are right on our doorstep, so it was decided that Ex Moors Challenge would be the Lyke Wake Walk. The aim of the Lyke Wake Walk is to walk from Osmotherly to Ravenscar via Scarborough, in under 24hrs. A distance of some 40+ miles.

The weather was cold with the odd snow flurry, so rest stops tended to be kept short. Dawn saw us at the Lion Inn on Blakey Ridge, just as those who had a 'lock in' were leaving. Never mind Sgt Faulder would be just up the road waiting at the check point with the mini-bus. 'I'm sure you said you wanted breakfast at the next check point sir'. 'Did I really. Tell you what then you drive on to the next check point and we'll have hot tea and bacon sarnies there'. (Not the exact words used but the end result was the same). 'Some people do this walk in ten hours and some do the return trip in 24 hours', explained LCpl Julie Wilkinson. At last the sea, and the weary walk down the road into Ravenscar. We didn't break any records, but the scenery was great and we completed the challenge.

WELCOMES

The Squadron would like to welcome the following transferees; the new 2IC, Capt Richard Lenton, also Cpl Mayfield, Cpl Malloy, LCpl Franklin, LCpl Wimpenny, Sig Barrett, Sig Basford and Pte Mathieson to Leeds and Hull and we hope that the transition is not too painful. We would also like to officially welcome the new recruits upon successful completion of their recruit training. Well done to Sig Best, Sig Buck, Sig Crayton, Sig Goldthorpe, Sig Hall, Sig Osbourne, Sig Padgett, Sig Sinclair and Sig Stead.

SQUADRON RANGE WEEKEND

The Squadron, along with 90 Sqn, conducted a Range Weekend on 15/16 May at Strensall Ranges. The aim was to complete ATD Training for the APWT, First Aid, NBC and the LOAC. The Battlefield First Aid proved quite interesting with the soldiers having to cope with an unconscious casualty, a burn victim, a perforated chest wound, a nail bomb injury and finally they had to search for a missing arm. The most arduous part of the entire weekend was the chasing of the sheep off the butts and 100m point. Luckily we have a few imported Welshmen who for some reason seemed to revel in the task.

The weekend culminated in an inter squadron falling plate competition. Maj David 'my weapon isn't zeroed' Sixsmith was to lead his team against the experienced Capt 'Taff 'this is my last year' Watts. 49 Sqn went first and almost knocked all of the plates down. 90 Sqn went second and did knock all of the plates down, apparently that means that they are the winners. Well done 90 Sqn, but watch out for the new rules next year. A special mention to Sgt Dave 'briefing' Carr whose planning and preparation made the weekend a great success.

DUE SOUTH

Our thoughts go out to LCpl Terri Collict currently serving on attachment with 'A' Troop, JCUFI. We are thinking of you in your Chinese fighting suit, supping lots of tea and doing bags of PT. Best wishes and see you soon from the Squadron.

RAF BENSON MARCH – 24/25 APRIL 1999

The RAF Benson Two Day March is a qualifying march for the Nijmegen Marches. It was decided this year that a Regimental team would be entered. As the name implies the RAF Benson March is conducted over two days with 25 miles being marched each day. Between 800 and 1000 military personnel take part in this qualifying event, including members of the Dutch Armed Forces. The event is not a race, teams being disqualified for racing, but a team marching competition. The male members of the team are to carry 10kg plus water and the female team members are to carry water. The original list of volunteers contained thirty names, but with other commitments that was reduced to the nineteen who arrived just south of Oxford in the early hours of the Friday morning. With reveille at 0430hrs there wasn't much time for sleep and it was a case of finding a dry space in the tent and getting some rest.

The team leader 2Lt Keith Williams was not too happy when he discovered that his helpful 2IC, SSgt (FofS) Steve Moore, had laid his kit on the newly painted white lines. The Foreman's kit, surprisingly, did not have a single mark on it. Cheers FofS! Everybody was surprisingly awake at 0430hrs and ready to hit the road. It was decided to use the smallest member of the team as the pacer and they don't come any smaller than Sgt Rob McCluskey, who provided a good pace throughout the two days. One of the great traditions of the marches is the singing, it is even possible to purchase a songbook for a small fee. It was with some trepidation and many delaying tactics that the team leader finally got round to joining the dawn chorus. There is no doubt that the singing helped the team through some of the less interesting periods of the two days, although a greater repertoire will be needed for Nijmegen.

The second day saw the team walking gingerly to the start line, but once they got warmed up the feet didn't feel too bad, looking back on it that is. No one found the two days easy and most would admit that it was harder than they had anticipated. The real strain is caused by the constant pounding of the feet on the road, blisters being the order of the day. All but three finished the two days, a groin strain and blistered feet causing the casualties. A well done to all those that took part and for those that didn't quite make it, there is always next year.

LANYARD TROPHY

FofS Steve Moore, on initial interview, told the RSM that he would love to be 2IC for the 1999 Lanyard Trophy. 2Lt Keith Williams shooting the breeze with the aforementioned Foreman declared, 'Oh, I've done it before, the Team that I was in came second'. That is how the Team Leader and 2IC were decided for 34(N) Sig Regt (V). The competition this year was to be along part of the North Downs Way. We decided to tell everyone that the North Downs Way is in Kent and therefore must be a totally flat course. The volunteers came thick and fast, well if a trickle can be called fast. It was decided to try and get an even mix between TA and Regulars. The team was:

OC	2Lt Keith Williams 2IC	SSgt (FofS) Steve Moore
	Capt Dave Wilson	SSgt Rob Eden
	SSgt Mick Ginty	LCpl Si Clayton
	Sig Rob Crayton	Sig Ben Martindale
	Sig Rob Parkes	Sig Adie Sutcliffe

Things did not begin too well as we had to climb over the gate at the Kent County Show-ground to reach the start line. Not to worry, the normal Lanyard reunion conversations began and then we were off. The start was more exciting than any Grand Prix with teams changing positions many times before the show-ground circuit was completed. The route itself was fairly straight forward although our thanks go to Capt Sophie Davies whose team showed us the way on one tricky little section. It certainly wasn't completely flat. A special mention must be made of Sig Martindale and LCpl Clayton whose determination kept them going when others might have taken the easy option. Sig Crayton is certainly getting stuck in to the TA life as he has completed the Lanyard Trophy before he even has a Regimental number.

The Team had come together with very little training and finished as a sweaty, smiling heap of team spirit. That is what it is all about! Thanks go to Sgt Chas Base, the admin man, great job and to SSgt Mick Ginty who stepped into the breach at the eleventh hour. Thanks must also go to 216 Para Sig Sqn who hosted the event for the last time, see you all next year.

The end and never again! (Well, until next year!)

NATIONAL HALF MARATHON CHAMPION

Sgt Patterson winning the TA Half Marathon

Sgt Kevin Patterson of 90 Sig Sqn at Brambles Farm has achieved remarkable success recently in winning the Territorial Army Half Marathon Championships. Competing against both regular and TA soldiers, Sgt Patterson was placed 13th overall and won the TA event outright in a time of 73.09. To add to his success he has also led a team to victory in the Wallsend 10km Road Race. This is an annual event, and the team, consisting of Sgt Patterson, SSgt Gary Jowers, SSgt Rob Eden, Cpl Eddie Walker, Sig Gareth Martinez and Sig John Twinberrow won the event for the second year running against stiff opposition from other local units.

REGIMENTAL SHOOTING TEAM

The Regimental Shooting Team has just completed an extremely busy few months. Following an off the cuff suggestion that 'perhaps we should try field firing', SSgt Colin 'Buttons' Dawson earned himself the task of training the team for a field firing exercise. This was no easy task, since only one of the team had done this before. Months of preparation followed, usually in the driving rain of a Catterick range day, until finally the team and safety staff were ready.

Arriving at Feldom range, we were all disappointed to find a bright sunny morning – we certainly hadn't trained for that! After the usual debate over who could throw the smoke grenades and thunder-flashes the furthest, the firing began. Sgt Dave 'Rambo' Smith led the first assault, aided by Sgt Graham 'Let me throw it' MacFarlane. Between them they managed to arrange an underwater reorg, which made us all feel at home – a dry range? Never! Having shot everything in sight, the morning was over in a flash, and the war stories began over lunch, including Sgt Gary 'More rounds' Openshaw's apparently single handed attempt to 'keep their heads down'. The afternoons Exercise continued in the same vein, particularly after the CO arrived just in time to see a heroic attack on the last enemy position by LCpl Dave 'Follow me!' Ross and Lt Simon 'No you follow me!' Smith who both disappeared into the thick smoke screaming wildly and shooting anything that moved (except each other). Sig Gareth Martinez managed to get the right target every time, and even Cpls Kev Pountain and Ian Evans got into the spirit of things, using enough rounds to halt an entire army. The Exercise was a complete success, despite the time it took to complete all the training, and thanks to SSgt Dawson, SSgt Gus Honey and Sgt Ian Cleavey, who ran the Exercise, plus Sgt Ian Lockwood, Sgt Jon Barrass, Sgt MacFarlane and Lt Smith who provided the safety team.

During the training phase, we managed to fit in little things like the Corps SAAM at Pirbright, where Sgt Gary Openshaw won the individual FIBUA shoot and finished third overall, and Lt Simon Smith won a bronze bar in the pistol shoot. Contrary to popular belief this was for actually hitting the target, not just frightening it. Cpl Ian Evans won the prize for the person most likely to miss the train during Saturday evenings entertainment, and LCpl Marianne Meek got the 'Game for a Laugh' award for her interesting choice of hair colour (bright red – a mistake she claims). We also entered the 2 Div SAAM, where Catterick lived up to its reputation, and despite our best efforts the howling wind managed to knock down more falling plates than our shooting! Apparently it's not the winning, it's the taking part that counts! (At least that's our excuse).

Sadly, we have to say goodbye to SSgt Colin Dawson, who is now posted to 2 Sig Regt. His enthusiasm for shooting, and passion for fastening buttons, has been infectious, and from a starting point of 'what's competition shooting?' a couple of years ago, we now have a team of regular firers and a plan to build on our successes in future years. Thanks for all your hard work and help Colin, and good luck in your new post.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL MILES STOCKDALE MBE

It is with the deepest sadness and regret that we have to announce the death of a much beloved and respected Commanding Officer who died after a short illness on Thursday 24 June. Col Miles was a strong, active and determined leader who set, demanded and maintained high standards but was also a kind, generous, considerate and compassionate man who loved soldiering, cared passionately for his Regiment and despite his ailment lived life to the full. His early loss has left all members of the Regiment and his many friends and colleagues both stunned and distressed. He will be missed by all who knew him and our prayers and thoughts are with his wife Jane and the children.

A DEBT OF HONOUR

54 years to the day, on Sunday 30 May, a debt of honour was repaid to the Shropshire Yeomanry by the New Zealand Army. On this celebrated and very special day Brig Rick Ottaway, Chief of the New Zealand Defence Forces UK confirmed the wearing of the New Zealand Fern Leaf to surviving elements of the Shropshire Yeomanry in recognition of the most valuable support given by members of the Shropshire Yeomanry to the 2nd New Zealand Division at Cassino, Faenza and during the advance to the River Po. The original honour was conferred on 30 May 1945 by Gen Sir Bernard Freyberg VC. Brig Ottaway represented the High Commissioner for New Zealand who was engaged in matters of state and therefore unavailable. The presentation took place at a special ceremony at The Music Hall Shrewsbury which was attended by the Her Majesty's Lord Lieutenant of Shropshire, Mr Algernon Heber-Percy, His Worshipful The Mayor of Shrewsbury & Atcham, Cllr Reg Jones, Sir Kenneth and Lady Jones, the Representative Colonel Commandant RA, Maj Gen Mike Tennant, the Honorary Colonel RMLY, Maj Gen Robert Ward, the Representative Colonel Commandant Royal Signals, Brig Nigel Wood, Comd 143 (WM) Bde, Brig King, Comd 11 Sig Bde, Brig Jonathan Cook and the CO 35 Sig Regt, Lt Col Miles Stockdale. Here Brig Ottaway formally presented the Fern Leaf to OC 95 Sig Sqn, Maj Jo Fathers.

Following the ceremony a special service of dedication was held in the majestic and sacred surrounds of St Mary's Church (a redundant 11th Century church in the heart of Shrewsbury) which was re-opened for the service. Here the Shropshire Yeomanry Guidon was recovered and with its escort party, led by WO2 Clive Winstanley and Sgt Craig Kinsey, proudly positioned the Guidon at the head of the march past through the town centre, which was led by veterans of 76 (Shropshire Yeomanry) Medium Regiment RA followed by B Sqn RMLY and 95 Sig Sqn with music provided by the Band of 34 Sig Regt.

Her Majesty's Lord Lieutenant of Shropshire took the salute in the Town Square flanked by several local and military dignitaries. The parade generated a great deal of local interest and the town centre was crowded with members of the local population who turned out to lend the Yeomanry their support. The evening before a celebration dinner was held at Sundorne House TA Centre at which all the guests mentioned above, with the exception of the Lord Lieutenant, attended. Special thanks are extended to Capt Dennis Hawkesford for his organisational support , to WO2 Mick Kearney and his splendid staff and in particular to SSgt Paul Holland for providing such an excellent meal, to Cpl Kay Yeubrey for the super efficient waiter service, to the QM, Maj Rod Gladwin, for always finding the solution to those awkward and difficult problems and finally to all those Squadron members, Honorary members and their families for their most valued support on this historical and memorable occasion .

BATTLEFIELD TOUR

I was always slightly cynical about Battlefield tours and chose to believe that, whilst they brought home the tremendous sacrifices made by our forefathers and the savage futility of warfare, some of these visits were a bit of a jaunt rather than a pilgrimage of learning and discovery. Because of my scepticism I made a journey of enlightenment and followed the Regimental Battlefield Tour Party to Germany during the April Bank Holiday. My plan was to join them for a day as a neutral observer. The party, which was led by that veteran of battlefield tours, SSgt Oz Linden, was based in Cassells House at JHQ Rheindahlen. This proved to be an ideal base location as the battlefield tour concentrated on the final push to the Rhine by the 3rd British and Canadian Division through, Kleve, Goch, Weeze and the Rheichswald, which resulted both sides suffering heavy losses and enormous casualties. At Cassells House the party was divided into six syndicates, with each given the task to research a particular aspect of the battle after which syndicate leaders and other members of the group were required to give a presentation at the site of the conflict. When I observed the amount of work carried out by each syndicate, I felt both humbled and forlorn at having questioned and doubted their motives .

When I recovered my composure I joined the group just outside Weeze and listened intently at the graphic and detailed presentation given by Sgt Colin Marshall at the Yorkshire Bridge near Weeze. This was close to the German War Cemetery where over twelve hundred German soldiers are interred, most of whom died after savage hand to hand fighting and aerial bombardments in and around the town during the final few days of World War 2 - while a brave and courageous rearguard action proved to be a futile waste of life. Equally detailed presentations were given by Sgt Lorraine Ward, SSgt Martin Thacker, SSgt Kevin Potts, Sgt Brian Phelan, Sgt Jim Broomfield, Cpl Alan Lunn and finally Cpl Steve Bell who gave a spell binding presentation of the courageous exploits of Pte Jim Stokes VC, Kings Shropshire Light Infantry, at Kervenheim which led to his award of the VC.

Visits were made to the British and Canadian War Cemetery in the Reichswald and flowers laid . It was at the grave of a Canadian soldier that a poignant discovery was made - left at the grave was a moving plea from a wife no longer able to travel from Canada to visit her husband and lay flowers, requesting that any visitor to the cemetery would lay flowers on her behalf in memory of her beloved husband - a request we honoured. At the end of the tour SSgt Oz Linden also gave a stirring rendition of the famous scene from Henry V when the King rallied his troops before the battle of Harfleur. Still feeling contrite I am now convinced that battlefield tours serve a vital purpose in reaching into the hearts and minds of today's modern soldier and to make them understand the nature of warfare and human sacrifice and why strong defence forces are vital to preserve the peace secured by the bravery of our predecessors!

BIGGER IS BETTER!

Following the TA Open Day the Regiment experienced what can only be described as a Recruiting surge and many recruits have not progressed through both the attestation and Phase 1 stage. But we refuse to rest on our laurels and our recruiting efforts remain undiminished with proactive recruiting activities such as recruiting exercises, attendance at fetes, shows, colleges and workplaces remaining an essential element of our recruiting strategy. However, we could at least take tremendous satisfaction and pride in the knowledge that Recruit Course 3/99 would prove to be one of the largest courses to complete Phase 1 in the past six years with thirty three recruits on the Pass Off Parade. The CO, Lt Col Miles Stockdale, could not contain his delight - the parade contingent was so large that instead of the traditional march out to receive their Corps Badge the CO broke with tradition and returned to the Squad following his formal inspection and presented each recruit with their Cap Badge and a broad smile! However, this break in tradition was not extended to the award of Best Recruit and following the announcement, Sig Neil Somerville of HQ Sqn, proudly stepped forward to receive his award from the CO. A slightly disappointed Sig Danny Osborne of 89 Sig Sqn was runner up. Sadly it was also time to say goodbye to some Training Wing stalwarts and following the CO's address to the recruits, their parents, relatives and friends the CO took time out to praise the hard work put in over many years service with the Regiment of WO2 (SSM) Paul Mellish who leaves the Army after a combined total of 28 years Regular and TA service, six of which have been served as a dedicated member of the RRTT. The CO in his speech also marked the departure of Cpl Dennis Feely MBE who leaves the Training Wing after six years service on posting to 48 Sig Sqn. A very special welcome is extended to WO2 Terry Douglas who joins the RRTT on transfer from 5 RRF who are sadly disbanding as a result of SDR.

ORIENTEERING

The Regiment is continuing to celebrate its successes on the Orienteering scene and in particular the efforts made by 89 Sig Sqn. Their series of successes was extended to the Corps Orienteering Championships held at Brawdy during the weekend 29/30 May. The Sqn retained the trophy for the 5th successive year and also achieved considerable individual attainments with SSgt Dave Arnot - Corps TA Champion, Cpl Tony Griffiths - Corps TA M40 Champion and Sig Simon Kavanagh - Corps TA under 21 runner up. Other individual achievements from the Regiment included the award of TA under 21 champion to 2Lt Andy Sturt of 48 Sig Sqn and Corps TA M21 runner up to Sig Brown of HQ Sqn. On the relay day Andy Sturt also proved to be the fastest runner on the Light Green B Course. At the earlier Army Championships held at Barry Budden during the weekend 10/11 April, the 89 Sqn female team secured a commendable third place. To all team members many congratulations and well done!

FAREWELL

As I write, posting orders are flying in and out of the office, so are the rumours and speculations, but that's another story! Since my last time of writing we have said a very hasty good-bye to that stalwart of the Regiment, Capt (QM) Ray Cory, who was called forward early to 7 Sig Regt for obvious reasons and now believed to be in slightly less comfortable but more exciting surroundings, (Keep your head down Sir). We've also said farewell to Sgt Graham Smith from the QMs Dept who, some might say, really kept the Department going. He's off to the recruiting office in Hull. With only the QM being replaced in August, WO2 (RQMS) Tony Gaston is finding out what real power is all about, and real work!

The LAD are no better off as SSgt Paul Haggett, Sgt Craig Sinclair and Cpl Al Vanstone have all been posted and adventure training will never be the same. LCpl Scott Witts, the CO's driver decided he could not bear to be away from the QM and quickly followed him to 7 Sigs, where sleep and copies of MCN are things of the past. We also say farewell to SSgt Gethin Thomas off to 14 Sig Regt. Taff (to his mates) found his true vocation in life whilst at 36. He quickly found out that he was at his best when providing 'Portaloos' for the Regiment's comfort (I won't go into nicknames) and this he did with great skill and gusto and his appointment I hear you ask? Yes, our very own Regimental Yeoman of Signals, (I can see his CV now!)

WELCOME

We are a bit thin on the ground with welcomes due to SDR, but we do say a big welcome to the following:

VISIT OF DEPUTY COMMANDER LONDON DISTRICT BRIGADIER WILLIS

Brig Willis recently visited the Regiment to meet members from RHQ and HQ Sqn. He was briefed on the Regiment by the CO, Lt Col Jackie Allan TD before being shown around the deepest of HQ Sqn by Maj Dave Watson. The visit included a short walk to the LAD where the Brigadier was met by OC LAD Capt Robin Needham whose brief was centred around the recovery vehicle commanded by Cpl Rich Fisher. Onto TM Troop, where Capt (TOT) Alan Newbery briefed the Brigadier on RSIT and then introduced SSgt (FofS) Mike Meddeman and Sgt Kev East who showed him around the workshop. The Ops Offr, Maj Mike White, briefed the Deputy Commander on comms and future exercises, which was followed by presentations in the WOs' and Sgts' Mess. Sgt Pete Stidwell, accompanied by his wife Helen, received the LS and GC, Sgt 'Mac' McDonald received a clasp to the TEM and WO2 (AQMS) Drew Johnson, accompanied by his partner and family, received his Royal Warrant. After a few words, flowers and photos, the Brigadier was introduced to many members of HQ Sqn.

EXERCISE CUMBRIA COCKNEY

Over the recent Bank Holiday, 21 members of 54 Sqn set off to the Lake District to complete a Lakeland challenge based on a triathlon. Three days training, one for each discipline was conducted under the watchful eye of Sgt Gaz Tuff, PSI Cambridge. SSgt Martin Wright performed his usual miracles on the admin front, even the weather was good for the time of year!

At 0700hrs on the day of the challenge, all members were amassed at the start line, ready to canoe two miles across Lake Windermere, once complete they were met by some locally hired bicycles that needed to be ridden to the base of Scafell Pike. Tired, but still with the determination to complete the task in hand, they clambered up and down Scafell Pike to complete the challenge in just under 12 hours. An excellent trip was had by all, learning something about themselves along the way and, if everyone pays up, earning £2000 to be split equally between the NSPCC and Children in Need. This has been the third challenge in three years and long may they continue. Well done to all the participants.

SQUADRON OPEN DAY – 13 MARCH 1999

A fantastic display of the Squadron's communication and military skills was open to the public on Saturday 13 March. It was visited by the Lord Mayor of Nottingham. WO2 Cooper and WO2 Frank McCubbin masterminded the communications displays. NCRS equipment and HF Mould supported a field COMMCEN laid out and manned as if 'on Exercise'. The Squadron Medics were out in force showing the public how they treat 'battle casualties'.

The Recruiting Team were making the most of the day – persuading interested members of the public to consider joining a dedicated and well trained group of soldiers.

CAREFUL COMMUNICATIONS

Nottingham Territorial, Sig Adrian Matthews, will need cat-like reactions when he communicates with some tricky customers in Africa. The 19-year-old soldier was packed early for his adventure with the Raleigh International Youth Programme later this month (June). now all he needs to do is steel his nerves for collecting sperm from some anxious cheetahs.

Sig Matthews, from Lenton, aims to help in a wildlife project playing a key part in saving the world's fastest animal. So far not even the big cat's ability to run at 68mph guards it from near extinction. Adrian, who serves with Lenton based 87 Sig Sqn, said, 'The conservation project is part of a captive breeding programme. I'll assist wildlife experts who will be collecting the sperm. I just hope that the cheetas get the message that we're only trying to help.' He said that he would also be preparing waterholes for elephants. He and his team will dig the pans outside villages to prevent the huge animals blundering round peoples houses looking for water.

Most of Adrian's two and a half months in Africa will be spent in the bush, 20 miles from Windhoek. However, he will also explore hundreds of miles of uncharted territory. His task will be to gather data for maps covering Namibia's southern region. Living in the bush will be hard going but Sig Matthews reckoned that his 12 months of part-time military training would stand him in good stead.

BATTLEFIELD FASHION TIPS

Nottingham Territorials were queueing for a battlefield make-over when beauty expert Gail Soar joined up. The 29-year-old city make-up artist shocked even herself when she strode into the soldiers' Lenton base to see if they would let her enlist. But her confidence soon grew when she swapped her six inch heels and £100 a bottle perfume for boots and perspiration. Now she cannot wait for weekends and a chance to get stuck into training with 87 Sig Sqn.

Battlefield beauty tips
LCpl Jason Rawlings (27), a computer analyst from Beeston, receives a makeover from Sig Gail Soar (29) from Stapleford

She is always ready to give her comrades fashion hints on tints for the colours in camouflage face paint. Sig Soar said that she had to pluck up all her courage to walk through the army base door the first time. She added, 'Boy, what a culture shock! I couldn't believe I'd done it! I took a spare change of clothes and shoes, my make-up and a hair dryer for my first Exercise. I realised my mistake when they told me to get my bag off the lorry and I could hardly lift it. Now I travel light. I've learned a great deal in my two-month military career. Every young woman should try it. My only regret has been having to cut my fingernails. I used to spend hours keeping them long elegant and in perfect condition. Gail said that finding out that her first major Exercise, with the Territorial Army, would be in Gibralter made sacrificing her talons well worth it. She also said that military training was proving to be everything she had hoped for.

NEW COLOURS FOR COUNTY SOLDIERS

Nottingham Territorial Jamie Henley and his comrades have regrouped under new Colours. The part-time soldiers feared that it was the end when their city based infantry battalion was lost in the national army reorganisation. So they were delighted when other county TA Units began clamouring for their services. Now the former members of The Worcestershire and Sherwood Foresters Regiment say that there is no looking back.

46 (CITY OF DERBY) SIGNAL SQUADRON
THE DINING-OUT OF PSAO CAPT C. S. ROYSTON-WEBB

On Friday 12 April 1999, the Squadron's Officers said 'Goodbye,' to Cliff Royston-Webb after serving with the Squadron, as PSAO, for 15 years. In addition the Squadron managed to track down all the former OCs who served with Cliff bar one, who had inconveniently moved house and lost all contact with the Squadron in the intervening years. Previous OCs were:

Maj (Retd) T. E. Lea	(March 83 – March 86)
Maj (Retd) D. J. Etherton	(September 87 – January 91)
Maj J. R. Linguard	(January 91 – March 93)
Maj P. Williams	(April 93 – March 96)
Maj (Retd) R. Szulakowski	(April 96 – April 97)

The dinner was prepared most skilfully, as usual, by Sgt Karen Gelsthorpe. It was (sometimes not so skilfully) served by a handful of long-serving Seniors within the Squadron, including the current SSM (Jim Batchelor), very adept at spilling wine and WO2 Al Whittaker (brilliant as Maitre D), SSgt Jane Atherley (Whoops watch the gravy). After the dinner, the usual speeches took place which included anecdotes about pies and cans of lager. The Squadron OC (Kevin Flanagan) presented Cliff with a model of four clowns sat round a table. This could have represented the four PSAOs within the Regiment or certain members of the hierarchy, who shall remain nameless. As a leaving gift, Cliff presented to the Officer's Mess a statuette of a Royal Signals' soldier. The evening concluded after dinner with many stories of old times being told, none of which could possibly be considered for publication! Good luck in your retirement Cliff.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE A PSI? THAT IS THE QUESTION!
by SSgt J. H. Longman (SPSI)

The posting order arrived on my desk at 10 Airborne Wksp in August 1998. I was to be posted to 38 Sig Regt LAD (V) REME on 2 September 1998 as the SPSI. The questions came flooding in, my mind was working overtime. Where is 38 Sig Regt LAD (V)? Why me? I was happy in sunny Aldershot and enjoying life to the full in the mighty 10 AB Wksp. What is an SPSI? What does the job involve? All I could see was the enjoyment factor disappearing and the alienation of being stuck in a small LAD on my own with no other regular REME tradesmen on the outskirts of Sheffield, becoming a reality. Little did I know! Yes it was true; everything I had been told was accurate except for one thing. The enjoyment factor was to multiply by an incredible rate. To be a Senior Permanent Staff Instructor (SPSI) at an LAD which had just won The Gardiner Trophy for the best Territorial Army Workshop or LAD in the Army is definitely a privilege only a small number of people will appreciate.

After initially settling in to my new posting I began to let my Airborne winning tendencies out to play. First of all I bid for a Nordic Ski Instructors Course at Sjuseon in Norway. A good staging post I thought for some hard winter training that would stand me in good stead for the forth-coming season's activities I had in mind. After returning from the course as an instructor I sent the entrance form and fees off to the REME Ski Championships for the meeting later on in March. In the mean time I had to keep myself occupied and fit by running in the Cross-country league races around the 2 Div area for the forthcoming REME Cross Country Championships on the 20 January 1999. A hard well-organised race gave me a Third place and a qualification to race at the Inter Corps Championships in March. Unfortunately the Inter Corps Cross Country race clashed with the REME Ski Championships. The decision wasn't that hard to make and off I trundled to Bavaria with my wife for ten days of hard competition. This year the snow was more than most people could contend with. I did say most people! Not the REME ski race officials. All the races were well organised and represented throughout the championships. A big thank you must go to Capt N. I. Taylor, Supervising Officer and all the staff of the REME ATC at Guntersreid Saga. I would also like to thank the Airborne Vikings of 10 AB Wksp for the hard competition in all the Nordic races, especially Cpl Cam Williams for pushing me so hard to win the overall Nordic Ski Champion 1999. 'Next year it's your turn Cam'.

My next deployment came on the 22 April in the shape of Ex Redcoat Stampede. This is the annual two week Army Triathlon training camp. This year in the USA at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. The Exercise was well supported by 46 Triathaletes from all Arms and Corps in the British Army and one US Ranger, Alex Samoba. Whilst we stayed in America we entered two Triathlons in the area (a three hour drive, America is big). The first was at North Sails Beach near Camp Lejeune (home to the US Marines and Navy Seal's). The event was only a sprint Triathlon, comprising of a 750m swim, 40km looped cycle and 5km beach run. The local population had been warned to expect a few foreign competitors, what turned up was a 'British Invasion' as they kindly put it. The race went well apart from the swim, with six-foot waves (everything is big in America) crashing onto the shoreline, it was off putting to say the least for the weaker swimmers. This paled into insignificance at the prize giving with most of the individual race categories having an Army Triathlon member picking up one of the skyscraper trophies. The second race, still a sprint race was a little easier going with an open water lake swim. The weather was a lot more accommodating, with bright sunshine throughout the day, and a gentle breeze to keep you cool. Once again the Army Triathlon members managed to collect trophies in most categories. Unfortunately some individuals had to leave their bigger trophies behind after a bout of PX shopping fever took hold.

The final culmination in the fast and furious life of a REME PSI took place over the weekend of the 22/23 May at Catterick Garrison. The event was The Warcop Trophy. The annual competition organised by the hard working staff of HQ 2 Div in York and DS'ed by volunteers from major and minor, regular and TA units taking part. The competition itself forms part of a round-robin theme with each team visiting 15 different stands. The majority are all unfamiliar to the teams taking, part with only old favourites like the assault course, falling plate shoot and the usual ATD's featuring on a couple of the stands. Overall the weekend went well. The strength of 38 Sig Regt (V) LAD REME proved too much once again for the other teams. Being placed Second overall out of 18 teams, even beating four Regular teams. To top it all the Catterick weather front managed to behave itself gracing us with a rain free couple of days.

GOODBYE'S AND WELCOME THE GAPS!!

The Regiment has recently said their fond farewells to Maj Chris Mote (Regimental 2IC) and Capt Mick Campbell (The Singing Quartermaster). The Regiment wishes them the best of luck for the future whatever it may bring. It is thought that whatever it might be, they hope it does not include the Adjutant, Capt Bobby Davis! The Regiment also says goodbye to Sgt Robbie Hall (PSI Tech 5 Squadron). It is now presumably safe to resume going for meals on leaving runs as he will not be there to eat everybody else's! Good luck Robbie.

VISIT OF THE MASTER OF THE WORSHIPFUL COMPANY OF SKINNERS

Prof Colin Seymour-Ure, the Master of The Worshipful Company of Skinners visited the Regiment during a training weekend on Saturday 8 May 1999 at Longmoor Training Camp. He was accompanied by two of his wardens. Mr Patrick Crosthwaite and Mr Philip Attenborough as well as the Clerk of the Skinners, Capt David Hart-Dyke RN. On arrival, he was met by the Skinners Guard comprising of Cpl Francis (Guard Commander from 47 Sqn), Sig Murphy (57 Sqn), Sig Smith (HQ Sqn) and Sig Williams (5 Sqn). They had spent the morning being put through their paces by WO1 (RSM) Anderson and WO2 (RQMS) Bloomer. By lunchtime they definitely looked and played the part excellently. The Guard escorted the Master to the parade square where the Regiment was formed up awaiting the presentation of the Skinners Awards for 1998-99. These awards are presented to the most outstanding male and female soldier within the Regiment. This year's winners were LCpl Oliver (5 Sqn) and Cpl Hill (57 Sqn). Congratulations to them both. The parade was followed by a Drumhead Service led by Padre David Sutch with the lesson read by the Master. The visitors spent the afternoon visiting a variety of training activities including the recruits, trade testing boards and Op New World.

REGIMENTAL COCKTAIL PARTY

The Regimental Cocktail Party was held at Longmoor Training Camp on Saturday 8 May 1999. Amongst the guests were the Honorary Colonel, Lt Gen Sir John Foley KCB OBE MC, the Master of the Worshipful Company of Skinners and Brig Hughes CBE. The Beating Retreat was played by 34th (Northern) Signal Regiment (Volunteers) with the salute taken by the Master of Skinners. Under the watchful eye of the ever faithful WO2 Dickie Lee (Mess Manager), the following individuals are thanked for acting as waiters and waitresses for the evening:

Cpl Francis (47 Sqn)	LCpl Estcourt (57 Sqn)
Sig Murphy (57 Sqn)	LCpl Scutt (5 Sqn)
Sig Bayer (5 Sqn)	Sig Goodwin (5 Sqn)

THE LANYARD TROPHY 1999
by Sgt 'Badger' Gresswell and LCpl 'Smudger' Smith

A seasonal band of Lanyard competitors from 39 Sig Regt started their fifth attempt of this gruelling speed march. This year assisted by Sgt Tam Ewart, SSgt Simcock and Sgt Rick Norman. This year's team captain was Lt 'Its only 2Ks' Cormack.

The first shock of the two days came on arrival late on Wednesday evening when we found that the good news was that the course was not 40 miles, but that the bad news was it was 39 miles. So it was with much trepidation that the team assembled on the start line at 0530hrs after the traditional cooked breakfast at 0300hrs, lovely! The team got off to a flying start, however after only 100m Sgt Ewart had to withdraw as he suddenly remembered he should have been doing team admin with the RSM. So down to nine, and now trailing in last place the team began to make steady progress through the field helped at each of the checkpoints by RSM 'I've seen two 4 o'clocks today' Anderson. At the second check point Sgt Klass was already looking a bit tired and it was thought by some team members that he was going to do his usual trick of joining the admin team for the rest of the day. However, with some 'encouragement' from the RSM he continued on. By the 30-mile point the strain was beginning to tell and large amounts of sports drinks and painkillers were being dispensed.

39 Sig Regt still smiling at the halfway point (all will change)

The course, this year over the North Downs Way, stood out for two reasons, one; the number of stiles and two; the radio tower before the final checkpoint which appeared to be on wheels moving further away as we walked towards it. Over the last 5km we had a real battle on our hands as we tried to beat another team in. Sgt 'Scouse' Simcock, however, talked them into submission and we marched passed, up the final hill (thanks to 216 for that!) to be met by a fresh looking Sgt 'see you in the bar' Ewart and RSM 'smile its only 39 miles' Anderson to finish as fourth place TA Team. It is also well worth noting that although we only started with nine men we were one of only three or four teams in the whole competition who complete the course without dropping anyone.

A special post competition thanks go to LCpl 'does the right leg go in front of the left' May for his stretching exercises (they made all the difference NOT), and to Lt 'Shall we run this bit' Cormack for his bottle of Champagne, that did make the difference!

COMINGS AND GOINGS

We welcome Maj Ritchie Belbin as Squadron Commander and WO2 Lou Carr as Squadron Sgt Major. We say farewell to Maj Glyn Nash who has come to the end of a long and distinguished career with the Territorial Army. We wish Glyn and Penny all the very best for the future and hope to see them for the odd party or two! WO2 Bloomer has moved the RQMS (V) after being our Sergeant Major, we wish him all the success in the world in his new appointment.

EXERCISE LIVELY LYNX - BROWNDOWN CAMP 5-6 JUNE 1999

The weekend did not get off to a good start. The TA factor had crept in. 2300hrs on Friday, the night before the Inter Squadron Military Skills Competition and HQ Sqn has no Team Captain and only eight team members (Admin Order said 10 required). OC LAD, Capt Gus Loveridge, accepted the OC's invitation to lead the team, sort of graciously, from the comfort of his sleeping bag. Discussions between the Squadron Commanders and the Training SSgt (SSgt Dec Painter, the poor man responsible for organising Ex Lively Lynx) soon had the other problem sorted, teams were reduced to nine.

Saturday morning broke with a brilliant blue sky and wondrous views across the Solent towards the Isle of Wight. Stand in RSM, WO2 Phil Martin, SSM RRTT, joyfully declared on the Regimental Parade that the All Ranks barbecue planned for the evening would be inside due to the weather forecast: rain and Force 8 winds! The team gathered after lunch for the start of the competition and set off to tackle the Observation Stand. Things went well, bar for missing the Highway Code Book in the tree, where else would it be! Then followed the Recovery Stand (bit of luck we had the OC LAD, Cpl Andy Gray and Cfn Jason Airey in our team, a Command Task and the First Aid stand followed. Not much had been said about these last two which the OC thinks is because the Team did not do very well on them. Things changed apace with the next two stands. The Grenade Stalk was across the shingle shore. Having cleared the first building the Section re-grouped to move off on their new axis.

The OC was amazed to hear from the distance, OC LAD asking his team to 'get in to arrow-head formation, please'. With this kind of control it had to be good! As they moved stealthily along their axis they came under fire from a bunker. The assault was effective and very swift. LCpl Hawkins and Sig Worthington tore through their smoke to post two grenades into the bunker. A very surprised Sgt Andy Cunningham staggered out of the bunker holding his head, having taken a direct hit from one of the grenades! Next came the House Clearance and CASEVAC stand. The OC arrived to see the team lying on the ground only half way to the objective. Just as he was about to wade in and chastise them a gun team suddenly appeared on the right flank, covering the objective, the old control tower. Without a sound the rest of the section were bounding forward up the steps and through the building's window; small arms fire broke out and the enemy were silenced. Suddenly there was shooting from outside the tower; a lone enemy soldier, well concealed, 'struck' LCpl Hawkins in the leg, who promptly needed evacuation. Cpl Gray, the team 2IC and gun group commander seized the initiative and led a counter-attack against the concealed enemy, who was very surprised to hear a voice from behind informing her that she was no more. A hasty withdrawal followed and ended an Exercise that even left the DS wide-eyed. The Weapons Skills stand caused problems, particularly for Sig Tris Smith, who had no previous experience of assembling a LSW wearing a blacked out respirator. The last stand of the day was another command task which went far better than the first.

0915hrs Sunday 6 June, the Team is formed for the March, Assault Course and Shoot, looking somewhat nervous. The OC had told them that this one really counted and we needed to win it to stand any chance of winning the competition. The March went well; the Assault Course was interesting with Sig Bradbeer stopping to put his dislocated shoulder back in before completing the course, the shoot should have been better. At last the Prize Giving. The Training Major, Maj 'Only 1 weekend to go before I retire' Shaw was telling us how close it had been throughout the competition, with two joint leaders at the end of the first day. He agonisingly worked his way from Third to Second place and no mention of HQ Sqn. Until he quickly announced that the winners were HQ Sqn! I am sure both the SSM, WO2 Carr, and SQMS, SSgt Smith had tears in their eyes as OC LAD received the Lafone Cup from the Trg Maj. The OC was jolly pleased too, so much so that he bought the Squadron a drink back at the TA Centre at Horfield.

EXERCISE SOUTHERN CRAFTSMAN

The competition for REME units in Southern England was held at Longmoor Camp. The team led by SSgt Paul Hanley arrived in plenty of time to book in, the taskings started immediately and kept team members up all night. Saturday was non-stop with a varied array of stands to be visited, these included Battle Damage Repair on boats and a Signals stand. The Saturday night consisted of the normal entertainment, although many members of the team struggled to remain long at the bar!

Sunday morning was an early start as we were second off on the March and Shoot, as always there was a twist in the tail. Removing and carrying a Bedford starter motor for a couple of miles, Sgt 'The Fall Guy' Gleed came into his own here. On arrival at the range there was a few surprises afoot (both planned and unplanned) the mist, the Trailer Race (Gleedie the fall guy Mark 2) and the memory game. The shooting was over in no time at all, there was a demonstration of the unpractised unload by Cpl Phear, luckily not penalised. Then it was back to camp for the wait until the prize giving. There was much joking and mickey taking as we waited with bated breath. Then at last success, The Wingfield Cup for the Minor Units March and Shoot competition. Along with Second placed Minor Unit and Fifth place overall, as a good achievement for the whole team.

Many thanks to SSgt Phil Sweetland, our PSI, Sgt Scotty Doyle and LCpl Sheena White for the in camp prep, Maj Belbin and RQMS (V) for their support and LCpl McKinlay, our Medic for the running repairs carried out on Saturday night. Well done to all those who took part in the weekend for securing these trophies for the Squadron:

RECRUITS

Following a successful Recruit Campaign and the National TA Open Day, the Squadron would like to welcome the following new members following the passing out on 9 May 1999: Sigs Michael Bayer (Best Recruit), Adrian Allen, Holy Alison, Debbie Anderson, Clare Goodwin, Steven Van Nie Kerk, Chris Hancock, Jason Gates. We would also welcome LCpl Alan Howell Ex Radio Op, found lurking with COMTEL by Sgt Robbie Hall during his one week civilian attachment.

Sig Michael Bayer being congratulated by the Commanding Officer Lt Col John Crackett on achieving Best Recruit

TRADE BOARDS

RTW 7 held at Longmoor over the weekend 8/9 May 1999 saw the end of the trade training cycle and success for many of the Squadron Personnel. Congratulation to all those who were successful.

EMPLOYERS EVENING AT BANBURY TAC

Col John Bridgeman TD DL, Honorary Colonel Queen's Own Oxfordshire Hussars and Chairman of the National Employers Liaison Committee (NELC), gave an interesting and informative talk on his visit to Bosnia to employers, Oxfordshire Yeomanry Trustees, Old Comrades and the Squadron on Tuesday 25 May 1999. Col Jim Blake accompanied him. Brigadier Nigel Mogg represented TAVRA and the Lord Lt Mr Hugo Brunner attended. Col Bridgeman presented a NELC Certificate to Mr Nigel Knight, Director of Oxford & County Business College.

Mr Nigel Knight and Col John Bridgeman

Col John also had the pleasure of promoting the following members of the Squadron: SSgt Judith Phillips, Sgt Mark Taylor, Sgt Paddy Ferguson and LCpl Colin Bowdery. The evening ended with an excellent buffet supper prepared by SSgt Les Kavanagh and his team of chefs.

57 (CITY AND COUNTY OF BRISTOL) SQUADRON

Sqn Comd	Maj Rosemary Tuhey
SSM	WO2 (SSM) P. Packer

There have been a number of changes within the Squadron since the last edition. Not the least of which has seen the departure of Maj Dave Watson our previous OC and the return to Horfield, after many years, of Maj Rosemary Tuhey. On the competition front the Regiment again did well in the Lanyard Trophy, with as in previous years the nucleus of the team coming from 57 Sqn. We also entered a team into the TA Half Marathon this year, the team consisted of Sgt Dave Gresswell, LCpl Kevin May and LCpl Martin Davies, all serving with our detachment in Cheltenham. The team came a creditable 5th position, with Sgt Dave Gresswell achieving second individual overall.

One of the implications of SDR has been the closure, after thirty plus years, of our detachment location at Arle Road, Cheltenham. Thankfully however the detachment itself has been saved and has recently moved to the TAC in Eastern Avenue, Gloucester. On the promotion front congratulations go to Cpl Jo Stevens, Cpl Ray Hall, LCpl Sam Estcourt, LCpl Ali MacGilp and LCpl Martin Dyer. Also congratulations go to Cpl Kerri Hill on receiving the Skinners Award for the best female soldier in the regiment for 98/99.

As a lead into the next edition, up to twenty members of the Squadron are at present trying to persuade GPs or the RMO that they are fit to go parachuting, age range for this momentous event is 18 to 54!

TEN TORS 1999

Mid May - must be Ten Tors time again! Ten Tors is a youth challenge event which takes place every year on Dartmoor. This year 402 teams of six took part, drawn from various schools, colleges, cadet and scout groups. Their aim - to walk 35, 45 or 55 miles visiting ten manned check points situated on the Dartmoor Tors and to return safely before 1700hrs on the Sunday. And what have 57 (City and County of Bristol) Squadron to do with all this you may ask, since several Squadron members clearly grew out of the youth category some time ago! 57 Sqn play a vital role in manning the communications to ensure the smooth and safe running of the event. We man the rear links from the Tor checkpoints to EXCON and make all the data entries into the management information system so that in theory at least, the location of every team member is known at all times. We also deploy two MIVs to improve the MOULD network coverage over the moor.

At 0500hrs we awoke to the familiar strains of Tina Turner's 'Simply the Best' over the camp tannoy system! This was also the cue for the competing teams, in tented accommodation throughout the camp, to pack their kit and prepare for the big start. We reported to the COMMCEN ready to start work at 0600hrs, where we were joined by our Sqn Comd, Maj Rosemary Tuhey and Sqn 2IC, Capt Bill Ruthven. Four experienced radio operators were allocated to the MOULD sets and four persons each to the telephones and data terminals. We then had the opportunity to confirm operating procedures and provide training where necessary, before the Exercise began at 0700hrs.

In the past, the event has seen a variety of weather from driving snow to hot sunshine. This year, by way of a change, the start gun saw teams plunging into a Dartmoor mist. Soon, however, the work began in earnest, and as teams began to pass through their early checkpoints, the Tor parties passed the reporting times through to the COMMCEN via the MOULD or telephone. The operators noted the information on the pre printed forms and passed it through to the data operators for input. As the results began to come in thick and fast, the COMMCEN, ably supervised by SSgt Jane Burn and WO2 Dickie Lee, became a hive of activity processing an average 200 messages an hour. Just in case we did not have enough to do (!) the CO had also tasked the Squadron with providing a long range HF link as part of the regimental exercise going on elsewhere. Thus it was that, with everyone else fully occupied, two surprised technicians, Sgt Chris Klass and Sig Robin Bishop, found themselves polishing up their antenna erection and radio techniques.

We manned the COMMCEN, on a shift basis until 2200hrs that evening, when the last of the teams stopped to camp for the night. With a two man crew designated to keep a listening watch for the night, the rest of us were able to relax, (and celebrate LCpl Kathy Ashley's birthday) until the following morning.

REGIMENTAL NEWS
HELLO AND GOODBYE

The Regiment said farewell recently to its longest serving PSI, SSgt Steve Matthews. He leaves the Army after 22 years to settle down with his family in Grimsby and embark on his second career. His support and dedication were valued by all ranks, and he will be greatly missed. Best wishes to him and his family for the future. He is replaced by SSgt Jason Barsley, who has only a few months to find his feet before the Regiment deploys on Annual Camp! We also said farewell to our FofS, SSgt Andy Riglar. He moves on to Blandford, and is replaced by a 'brand new' FofS, SSgt Rob Clifford. We hope they will both settle into their new roles with ease.

REGIMENTAL SHOOTING TEAM – CORPS SAAM
by 2Lt Richard Woodhams

Having experienced difficulties in securing the best range facilities for our training, hopes were not high of producing the kind of performance enjoyed at last year's event and the plethora of silverware that it yielded. Despite this the Regiment's shooting team struck camp at Ash range on the morning of 10 April with the assistance of SSgt McHenery and some of the unit's youngest members, Sigs Baird, Stone and Woo. Having just finished their recruits course they are keen to try for the team next year. The Team Captain, Maj Corfield, formed two teams: the 'A' Team, made up of 2Lt Downing, Cpl Charter, Cpl Jules, Cpl Woo, LCpl Foxwell; and the 'B' Team, made up of 2Lt Woodhams, Capt Walker, Sgt Allen, Cpl Carter and Sig Handley. In addition, Cpls Brace and Myers were entered as individual, taking part in the Roupell and pistol matches.

The first match was the Association Cup, a standing/kneeling competition at both 100 and 200 metres. A whole spectrum of scores were recorded from Cpl Charter's outstanding effort (which subsequently won the day) through to less reportable scores. Somewhere in the middle came Cpl Carter who was unlucky enough to experience a broken cotter pin half way through the shoot. A shame as he was on for a good score. A trip to the armourer's tent later and we moved onto the FIBUA, an excellent shoot from 100m down to 25m from a variety of positions. Again reasonable scores were recorded across the board, the highest being Capt Walker's 141. Several members had been entered to fire both pistol and/or LSW and these events were squeezed in during the day between other shoots. Of note here was 2Lt Downing's prize-winning pistol score and 2Lt Woodhams prize-winning LSW score of 137. The final event for Saturday was the Roupell, which for many members of the team was something of a disappointment with only average scores being recorded for an event that has previously meant good things to us. At the close of play on Saturday (with most of the other scores either not posted or confirmed) the mood was downbeat with nothing to disprove our earlier misgivings. Whilst the 94 Sig Sqn contingent headed off for a dinner night, the remaining members took full advantage of the bar and having been treated to some fine cooking by our new Chef, Cpl Sturman, there was no time for being downcast. As the evening progressed, the mood became increasingly upbeat!

Sunday morning brought the Team Snap, four members of the team all firing at either a Fig 12 or a Fig. 11 target from 100m. Apparently the choreography of the B Team was excellent in all adopting the kneeling position, even if the score was nothing to write home about. The A Team, however, saved the day with an impressive score of 28. All that remained was the falling plate and the B Team set about removing the A Team in the first shoot. Whether they had finally found their form (on the last shoot!) or were simply saving their best till last, they went on to win the Corps Championship, being knocked out of the Inter-Corps Championship by the eventual winners (RLC) in the semi-final. Brig Verey was in attendance to present the awards and we would certainly endorse his comment about the increased competition on this years shoot. In summary, the teams were awarded:

71 'A' Team	71 'B' Team
Champion Rifle team (1st)	Team pistol Trophy
Fibua Cup	Falling plate shield
Association Cup	Champion Rifle team (3rd)
Combat Snap winners	APWT Cup
Champion Unit (1st)	Champion Unit (runners up)

Whilst the following individuals won:

2Lt Downing	Individual Pistol (1st)
Cpl Charter	Individual Rifle Competition (1st)
2Lt Woodhams	Individual LSW (1st)
	Individual Pistol (3rd)

As for next year, we know our work is cut out. Training begins, as ever, in November and one person we will certainly be keeping our eye on is Sig Baird (aged 17) who managed to win the pool bull!

FAREWELL

The Squadron says a fond farewell to the PSI SSgt Steve Matthews who leaves the Squadron at the end of his Army service. Steve Matthews has worked extremely hard for the Essex Yeomanry Signal Squadron in military and social activities and he has gained the respect and admiration of all ranks. The Squadron thanks him, his wife Linda, and their family for all their support and wish them well for the future in civilian life. SSgt Matthews was dined out of the Squadron at a dinner held in the WO's & Sgts' Mess. He was presented with a bronze figure of an Essex Yeoman and a caricature of all the serving Senior NCOs. In addition the Sqn 2IC, Capt Craig Tallents, presented him with a boxed set of Essex Regiment soldiers. He was a popular figure in the mess and his presence will be greatly missed.

The 70 Squadron Lanyard Trophy Team
(Rear): LCpl Pilcher, Cpl Gilbey, Cpl Cavanagh, LCpl Ferris, LCpl Cloughton, Sig Blythe (Front): Sig Cambron, LCpl Smith, Sig McIlroy, Sig Brown

The Squadron entered an all-female team in this year's Lanyard Trophy competition. The team, led by Cpl Natalie Gilbey, trained hard and maintained their high spirits and sense of humour throughout the competition. Mention must also be made of Cpl Colin Cavanagh who provided the admin backup for the training and during the competition. He was assisted by LCpl Jo Smith, who also took part in the event. The Squadron congratulates them on their efforts in this most gruelling of competitions. We are assured that they are all keenly looking forward to next year's event!

CONGRATULATIONS

Congratulations go to the OC, Maj Simon Palmer, on the award of his TD. He was presented with the medal at Longmoor by Maj Gen Stokoe, in his capacity as IGTA, shortly before he retired from the Army.

EXERCISE SHIRE HORSE

On a weekend in early May, the Squadron deployed to Bramley Training Area for a military skills training weekend. The Exercise scenario required the Squadron to practice their basic infantry skills and started with a series of recce patrols against opposing Troop locations. The most memorable of these was Cpl Colin 'Doughnut' Alderton who became geographically embarrassed and spent two hours recceing his own location! After filing the recce reports at Sqn HQ, the two Troops then went on to visit a variety of stands including NBC, Battlefield First Aid and Cam and Concealment. Saturday afternoon was spent by the Troops conducting a joint recce of the new SHQ location in preparation for a joint attack at first light on Sunday. The recces were thoroughly and professionally completed and led to a well executed attack, masterminded by Capt Penny Wood, which ended with SSM Keith Wrate receiving an Oscar nomination for his death at the hands of 884 Tp.

Once the POWs were returned to a fully clothed state (!), the Squadron received an unexpected Heli lift to Bisley. On arrival, the Troops took part in the Annual Squadron Patrol Race. Both Troops entered two teams to compete for the Malik Trophy. The competition consisted of a 15 mile route march, carrying 15lbs, including stands for NBC, first aid, weapon handling and comms, followed by an assault course and shoot. The result was extremely close, with 887 Tp 'B' Team pipping 884 Tp 'A' Team at the post to win the trophy.

DHEKELIA MOTOR SHOW AND TRADE FAIR

This years Dhekelia Motor Show and Trade Fair was the Sixteenth organised by the major unit based at Ayios Nikolaos and the first under the unit's new title as the Joint Service Signal Unit (Ayios Nikolaos). Having grown from strength to strength since its start in 1984, gaining in both popularity and the professionalism with which it has been organised, this years show offered a superb opportunity to see all the major car dealers under one roof There was also a wide range of other leisure and service trade stands, and many other forms of entertainment including a Bouncy Castle and bungy running. For the more adventurous there was also the Ayios Nikolaos Kart Club and in-line skating ramps, making it an enjoyable day out for the whole family.

The main aim of the Trade Fair is to raise money for charity and this year was no exception. Over the last fifteen years the event has raised in excess of C£128,000, and this years show raised a further C£9000. The money will be distributed to a variety of charities both in Cyprus and in the United Kingdom. The Motor Show began with the Garrison Commander, Col A. M. F. Potter OBE handing over a cheque For C£500 to Cyprus Anti Cancer Association. The highlight of the day for many was the chance to win a new car in the raffle, along with many other great prizes. The raffle draw was made by the Garrison Commander. The first prize, however, will not be seen on the roads of the Eastern Sovereign Base Area, as the lucky winner was from Akrotiri.

It is thanks to the support of the Car Dealers and Traders who attend the show and the support from the British Forces Cyprus and Cypriot Communities, who come to see the show, that we are able to do so much to help others less fortunate than ourselves. Now that the 1999 show is over we look forward to watching those who will benefit most from the hard work put by all those involved.

JOINT SERVICE SIGNAL UNIT (AYIOS NIKOLAOS

On Thursday 1 April at Mercury Barracks, Ayios Nikolaos, the Joint Service Signal Unit (Ayios Nikolaos) was formed. This was a result of the amalgamation of 9 Signal Regiment (Radio) and 33 Signal Unit RAF. Both Units have a long history in the region. 9 Signal Regiment (Radio) arrived in Ayios Nikolaos in 1947 as the 2nd Special Wireless Regiment. This was due to the imminent expiry of the mandate for Palestine and its renaming to 9 Signal Regiment (Radio) in 1957 reflected the changes in Army structure and communications. 33 Signal Unit became established in Ayios Nikolaos in 1968 after originally locating itself at RAF Pergamos, and made significant contributions to the Gulf War in 1991 in support of Operation Granby.

9 Signal Regiment (Radio) and 33 Signal Unit (RAF) fly their flags for the final time on Thursday 1 April 1999

The parade square came alive early on the morning of the 1 April. Following the arrival of the Reviewing Officers, Maj Gen I. O. J. Sprackling OBE - Master of Signals, and Air Commodore P. A. Robinson OBE RAF, a disbandment parade took place, with the two units being led by their respective Commanding Officers, Lt Col D. J. Whitby R SIGNALS and Sqn Ldr M. Williamson RAF. Music was provided by the Royal Anglian Regiment Corps of Drums. The flags that had been flying over the station for the last 52 years were lowered for the final time, and paraded off the square.

An amalgamation parade then followed under the watchful eye of the Inspecting Officer, Air Vice Marshal J. C. French CBE FRAeS, RAF. The Squadrons, consisting of five Officers and 131 Other Ranks, returned to the Parade Square and Lt Col D. J. Whitby R SIGNALS assumed command of the newly formed Joint Service Signal Unit (Ayios Nikolaos). In his speech the Air Vice Marshal emphasised the importance of the Jointery between the three services and went on to congratulate the RSM, WO1 A. S. Sherrard on the hours of work that had made the parade such a success and his delight at the standard of the drill. Following the parade the visiting guests took the opportunity to meet the Civilian Element personnel and enjoy a drink in Tommy Tuckers. There was then a presentation of the 9 Signal Regiment (Radio) flag to Maj Gen Sprackling OBE who accepted on behalf of the Royal Corps of Signals, and the 33 Signals Unit flag to Air Commodore Robinson OBE on behalf of the RAF.

A presentation was made by the CO, Lt Col D. J. Whitby to Maj Gen I. O. J. Sprackling OBE – Master of Signals representing the Royal Corps of Signals and by the OC 840 Squadron, Sqn Ldr M. Williamson to Air Commadore P. A. Robinson OBE (RAF), representing the Royal Air Force

In order to commemorate the occasion Her Royal Highness the Princess Royal was invited to the Island, and on Tuesday 27 April members of the Joint Service Signal Unit (Ayios Nikolaos) travelled to Happy Valley to form a Guard of Honour to welcome her. The Colonel in Chief of the Royal Signals was then invited to unveil the Joint Service Signal Unit (Ayios Nikolaos) Crest carved in stone, which now takes pride of place in Ayios Nikolaos Station. The visit to the Island was also an opportunity for the Her Royal Highness to witness some of the other activities undertaken in Ayios Nikolaos. There was a display by the Youth Club's In-Line Skating Team, and a song by the 'Grease Singers'. It was also a chance for the Princess Royal to meet pupils and teachers from the Primary School and see photos of the new school buildings that have greatly changed since her last visit to the station.

SEVEN LONG SERVICE AND GOOD CONDUCT MEDALS AT JSSU (AN)

Seven members of the Joint Service Signal Unit (Ayios Nikolaos), representing all three services, were rewarded for their exemplary service when they were presented with Long Service and Good Conduct Medals by the Signals Officer in Chief (Army), Brig J. H. Griffin. The soldiers, sailor and airman, who have seen service in a number of countries including Northern Ireland and Bosnia, received their medals in front of the officers and SNCOs of JSSU(AN), and were accompanied by their wives, who each received a bouquet of flowers. After the presentation, Brig Griffin took the opportunity to meet the members of the Warrant Officers' and Sergeants' Mess.

JSSU HOT SHOTS

After some intense training a shooting team of relatively inexperienced competitors from JSSU(AN) entered a team for the Inter Corps Skill at Arms meeting held at Ash ranges near Bisley. The Training commenced in January with the squad of 20 which eventually drew down to six. The selection was based on experience, years of service and natural ability. The team was led by Capt Kevin Fitzpatrick Royal Signals with coaching, administration and ample packed lunches supplied by SSgt Bill Dodd Royal Logistic Corps. The other team members and their personal qualities were moans, groans and kit loss from Sig Zukowski, mastery of the keys from Sig Ridley, Court Martials from Pte Hanson and dance routines from Pte Doughty. The teams performance and overall placing of third from 14 teams was outstanding when considering that the teams placed in front form part of the British Army Squad and the remainder all hold the coveted badge of the Army 100 top firers. After some excellent results the teams now look forward to Bisley and bettering its place next year. The overall results were as follows:

Team Matches: JSSU(AN) placed 3rd from 14 teams overall.
3rd in the Rifle match (aggregate of 5 matches).
4th in the Combat team snap.
4th in the LSW match.

Individual Results:

Capt Fitzpatrick 12th from 92 and selected for the R Signals Corps Team who won the inter corps match.
SSgt Dodd 3rd from 80 and selected for the RLC Corps team.
Capt Fitzpatrick won the Exell Cup for the best Officer.
SSgt Dodd won a trophy for the best Other Arms firer in the R Signals Shoot.
Pte Hanson won two medals for the best 'B' class shot in the Association Cup and the Whitehead Cup.

9 Signal Regiment's expedition started well with six representatives and one LI instructor meeting up at Larnaca airport around one hour before the flight's departure. Everyone had US Dollars plus a group total of £c200 which we later found out was not a recognised currency in Nepal.

The flight from Larnaca to Bahrain was quite pleasant on Gulf Air and was a reasonably enjoyable flight. After an entertaining night in Bahrain our connecting flight to Kathmandu via Abu Dhabi left early for our six hour flight. We landed with a vicious bump on a very short runway in Nepal only to be told that it was one of the better landings! We entered the flight terminal in quite an excitable mood which soon changed rather dramatically after the loss of one of our tents meant standing around for an hour and a half awaiting a slip of paper for lost luggage claims. Walking out of the arrival lounge we were swarmed by taxi driver's trying to take our bags and beggars trying to take our money! The group were met by retired Gurkha Major Ram Guru, who with two helpers loaded our bergens on to an old coach.

The next half hour was a huge culture shock. The streets were filled with a dense smog, clapped out vehicle's and dirty people trying to make a living by the side of the road in shanty market stalls. The coach endured several near misses with on coming traffic on severely pot holed roads which proved to be quite daunting. Getting to our guest house in one piece was a relief. The Sungawa guest house was very basic but sufficient. Maj Ram took us to sample the local cuisine. The food was of a very high standard and reasonably priced. The next couple of days were spent around the densely populated streets of Kathmandu, sorting out trekking permits and looking around the market stalls. On 8 March we endured a six hour bus journey in uncomfortable conditions to the town of Pokhara, where we spent the night in a hotel by the main strip of shops on a scenic lakeside sun-trap. That night we had our last proper meal for a week at the Everest Steakhouse, it was every bit as tasty as described by 7 Sigs on their expedition the year before.

The trek started after a one and a half hour trip in two taxis to our first point Lumle, a road side village with a small gathering of locals and lots of tourists. Our bergens weighed between 20-25kgs, it seemed we were the only group carrying this sort of weight as most trekkers carried small holdalls with Sherpas carrying the bulk. Our guides, Ram and Jit, started off on a bad note, taking us the wrong way but we were soon back on track. The first day was enjoyable and the scenery beautiful. When we reached our first nights destination it was very hot, so we went for a game of rugby in the river. The locals had never seen a rugby ball before and it was quite amusing watching them prodding and throwing it! The first night was the start of our problems. The youngest member of the expedition, Sig Sankey, came down with a bacterial infection in his stomach, causing violent vomiting and severe diarrhoea. He lost all fluid in his body and was up all night keeping the group awake, moaning with bodily cramps. In the morning, the group decided to leave Sig Sankey behind with his partner, SSgt McCann, who were to descend if his condition did not improve. The bulk of the group ascended to Gorepani, and the disadvantaged pair continued later even though Sig Sankey's condition was only slightly better. He only made it half-way due to a severe lack of strength and dehydration. The next day was to be a crucial decider, either catch the group or turn back. Both SSgt McCann and Sig Sankey did not want to give up so they trekked for eight hours to reach Tarapani just before dark, reunited with a huge cheer from the lads.

The next day was a major descent down a dust covered hill into a huge ascent after the crossing of a somewhat unstable suspension bridge over a river. As we climbed higher over the foothills into the mountains, the scenery became more and more breathtaking, showing the spectacular awe of the snow covered mountain tops. It took us seven days to reach ABC (Annapurna Base Camp) which was our final destination where we played rugby in the snow at 4200 metres, possibly the worlds highest lineout! After seeing the top the group decided that a rapid descent would be a good idea. Ram, our head guide, doubted our ability to do it in the given time but we descended in one and a half days, travelling at 5-6kms an hour. We were two days early so after a night in Pokhara, we returned to Kathmandu. Maj Ram then informed us that it was the fastest trek around that route he had known, which was a nice little boost.

After the trek everything went wrong. Sig Sankey had recovered but everyone else started to get ill except Sig Jackson who must have a cast iron stomach! Lt Short suffered for the rest of the trip. The local newspapers read of airline strikes which proved to be a big problem. We spent three extra nights in Kathmandu and flew to Delhi on Indian Airlines where we spent the next ten days due to missed flight connections through lack of availability. The guys were tired and ready for a return to Cyprus, but Gulf Air gave us nothing but bad news every time we visited. Money was low and our visas had expired, making morale very low. A brief day trip to the Taj Mahal made a nice change from the bustle of Delhi. Cpl Evans left early on Emirates Airways to get back to his family on the only available flight in a week. The group had been continuously turned away by Gulf Air for our connecting flights, so we took it upon ourselves to pay for the only seats available, which was in first class. With only four seats spare, Cpl Beckett and Lt Short flew back three days later. The expedition started in a great buzz and dragged out to be a bit of a nightmare, it was certainly an experience which we won't forget in a hurry.

STAGS ON TOUR

The Stags RFC from Ay Nik boarded their flight to Malta for the start of their week long tour. 17 people went on the tour and one of those was injured. Therefore the team selected for the matches was not particularly difficult.

Everyone arrived at the pitch in high spirits hoping to win the first game. The opponents were the Maltese Select, a team picked from the best three teams on the Island. Kick off was at 5pm and for the first 20mins there was no score, with the game mainly being played in the forwards. In the twenty second minute the Malta Select managed to release their winger, and break through for a try. With the conversion missed, the Stags were down 5-0 with 15mins left to play of the first half. From the restart the Stags forwards put pressure on the Maltese side on their own try-line, and the ball eventually popped out to Marc Beckett, who managed to release the fullback, Pete Rouse, for the Stags first try in the corner. The conversion was missed, however, it brought the scores level at 5-5. With the last attack of the first half the Maltese managed to score their second try, produced from all overlap into the corner. This meant the Stags were 10-5 down going into half time. The Second half started in a similar way to the first. Both sets of forwards piling on the pressure, however, neither team was able to turn pressure into points. The Stags tackled hard and suffered two significant injury losses. Si Joyce cracked two ribs and Pete Rouse suffered concussion. Having borrowed a player the Stags carried on but were overpowered by the Maltese, eventually losing 30-5.

Wednesday was a rest day with everyone suffering from the previous day. That night the team met the next opposition for a meal of a local Maltese delicacy, 'Bugs Bunny'. A nice bit of rabbit, with head, feet and tail - enough to turn even the hardest rugby player a funny colour!

The second match caused concern due to the fact that there were only 14 fit players, and thus there were thoughts of a whitewash. By the time that the kick off took place, the teams attitude had changed and everyone was completely focused and knew exactly what they had to do. For 80% of the first half the Stags were camped in the oppositions 22 yard box, but yet again they could not convert pressure into points. The only score of the first half came from a breakaway by the Overseas making the score 5-0. In the second half the Stags were tiring. With five minutes to go the Overseas forwards turned on the pressure and their No7 went over for a try making the score 10-0. This was how it stayed. After the game it was time to pose for Kiss TV who had been filming the game and an interview for the Tour Captain, Mark Evans.

The final match of the tour had to be cancelled due to the Stags injury crisis and therefore the rest of the time in Malta was spent sightseeing and relaxing. All those who went on the tour would like to thank everyone who contributed towards it, and a big thanks goes to Frank McCann and Bill Mearns who did most of the organising.

LANYARD TROPHY

With a minimum of training an intrepid team of ten set off from Paderborn for the Lanyard Trophy 99. Ahead lay pain, cramp, sweat and tears, and that was just getting to Calais and the ferry. On arrival in Dover fortunes took an early nose dive as LCpl Billy Mathews spent the evening talking to the U-Bend. By the morning he was still vomiting and spent the day asleep in the minibus tended to by the admin/drinking team. The early phases saw strong progress undoubtedly assisted by Sgt 'Nige' Kenyon and the morale radio. As the halfway point drew closer the lack of training began to tell and the pace slipped with LCpl 'Squirrel' Tyrell's knee injury worsening. After a gutsy effort and despite the teams efforts he was eventually forced to drop out and seek medical attention only eight miles from the finish. With Cpl 'Dex' McFaul completing shuttle runs around the squad to ensure he got some training value the team limped over the finish line to be met by the admin team, some welcome beers and a still snoring Billy 'Rip Van' Mathews. Congratulations to all the squad for a well deserved 12th place in 12hrs 40mins and a big thanks to LCpl's Andy Moss and Morgan Lewis for a well run admin team. Best of luck to Lt Paul Randell, Cpl 'Dex' McFaul and Sigs 'Smudge' Smith and 'Billy' McDade who go on to compete in the Comrades Marathon in South Africa. Just remember 56 miles is only 19 BFT's or 7 CFT's or.....!!

EXERCISE APENNINE 'CHAW BABE' DIAMOND

Instr SSgt M. 'Letch' Payne

Ex Apennine Diamond was a hiking expedition to the Apennine mountains in central Italy. The plan was to undergo two expeditions, the first lasting two days the second for four. The group were to hike an average of 15-20km per day, over rugged terrain ranging between 1100m to 2940m in height. In between the group were to spend their R & R phase tasting the cultural aspects of Italy's capital, Rome. As with every plan it failed to cope with the first contact with the enemy, the enemy being the weather. First the group was held up in Switzerland for ten hours waiting for the pass to Italy to open again. Then on arrival in Abruzzo National Park, the weather was so poor that erecting the tent in three foot of snow was an inconceivable option, a local and reasonably priced chalet, however, was far more enticing.

The following morning, we attempted to dry our soaking kit in the early morning sunshine, LCpl 'Weak at the knees' Benson was in charge of the roof rack, and while cutting the rope managed to cut himself, a couple of minutes later he was being comforted by his compadre Cpl 'Hot dog' Reardon after a cracking effort of fainting in the minibus. The Expedition eventually began a day late, and the day began well, there was still snow in certain areas, but the spring sun was shining, and morale was definitely high. We climbed towards a ridge that we were going to walk on for the day, unfortunately, as we arrived at our summit, the weather encompassed us once more, and the view we had so aspired to see all day during our climb had evaded us.

We descended at a rapid pace as the snow grew deeper around us. On arrival back in camp, the guys brewed the tea, whilst I considered with SSgt Payne on where we could go to find lower ground nearby, avoiding the by now worsening weather conditions.

The group moved westward toward Rome and to lower ground, here the snow had vanished, the weather improved, and the group were finally able to begin its Expedition. The next four days saw the group complete its aims, an arduous trek over rugged terrain, whilst practicing their map reading, and control of the Expedition. Our main problem was with Sig 'Crusty the balancing clown' Weller, who at every opportunity would dive to the front of the group and begin picking up the pace, this would continue until his reins were drawn in by Sigs 'Must have an ice cream' Heathcote and Jermany. Next on the hit list was Lt '15 minutes' Jones, his command decision to climb 800m for the spectacular views at a rapid pace, and after a gruelling day was met with disdain from the remainder of the group, who threatened to chuck him off the cliff.

Playing in the snow

The group taking a five minute break

After six days in Italy the group had finished their Exepedition and were happy, relieved, fulfilled and now looking forward to their rest phase in Rome. Rome in 24 hours was no mean feat, the main sights were covered, including the Coliseum, the Sistine chapel and MacDonalds, the girls still had time for a bit of shopping. During the sight seeing tour Sig Claire Coverly, and Sig Kate Collins managed to see twice as much as the others in the same time, how they achieved this I will never know, and can only guess (stereotypical Italian transport). That night we had the customary pizza, followed by an evening in Rome's most exclusive club, before the long drive home the following day.

BRAVO TROOP

Tp Comd Lt Randell
Tp SSgt SSgt Crabb

Hello to Cpl 'Daz' Bailey, LCpl Si Harris, Sig Paul King and Sig Tony Lewis. Congratulations to Sgt Griffiths on his Staffy and avoiding Middlesbrough and to Cpl 'Mo' Morrison and LCpl Andy Moss on their promotions.

EXERCISE BRAVO DIAMOND - by Sig Booker
BRAVO TROOP ADVENTURE TRAINING IN BAVARIA

We all knew that the two main activities for the first two days were walking and mountain biking, except for LCpl's Thompson and Spinks who chose a more relaxing option - fishing. Mountain biking, due to so many land slides on the main roads, turned into mountain bike pushing, up steep stony paths and through metre-deep snow. However, thanks to LCpl Doyle (mountain bike instructor) the return journey turned into a somewhat hilarious afternoon. We took the short cut lifting our bikes over fallen trees and streams and then we came to a muddy patch. Half of the group managed to get over safely then Al Doyle landed right in the middle and started to sink. He managed to pull himself free but his trainers weren't so lucky and were sucked in never to be seen again. Al Doyle wasn't too happy when he had to cycle home bare footed but it made the rest of the group laugh after a hard day up the mountain.

Day two was mountain walking, this was extremely tiring and tough but with LCpl Osmond in the group it was never going to be boring. He enlightened the day with his exceptional use of walking sticks.

The third day was free day to do what we wanted. A few people went to a lake, a few to a castle and the rest went sun bathing at an out door water park. Everyone enjoyed whatever they chose to do except for LCpl Lee Lewis who paid the price for falling asleep in the mid-day sun with no sun cream on. He looked like a red and white stripy deck chair. The night was finished off with a rushed meal in a local restaurant which was really nice but everyone wanted to get down town to watch Manchester on the big screen and their brilliant win over Bayern Munich. Overall the week was a success and thanks to 200 Sig Sqn for a break from the tank park.

SUPPORT TROOP - by LCpl Barrett

Tp Comd Capt (QM) M. Bohanon
Tp SSgt SSgt H. Capelman

On 7 May it was the MT's turn to hold a Training Day for the rest of the Squadron. The challenges were to reverse park an articulated lorry, manoeuvering a car on a skid pan and hardest of all the BFG tick test! Nearly everyone seemed to master reversing the lorry into the parking bay whilst the BFG tick test produced a few nerves and only a few passes. The favourite of the day was as expected the skid car. The aim was to manoeuver around the course as many times as possible in a set time. Due to people driving too quickly many lost control but a fun time was had by all.

The Troop says goodbye to LCpl Ian Cousins who is posted on promotion to 7 Sig Regt and also congratulate him on his recent marriage. Hellos go to LCpl Paul Barnett arriving from 1 (UK) ADSR and Sig Les Gearing along with his wife Karrie and daughter Freya posted in from 11 Sig Regt.

7 ARMOURED BRIGADE HEADQUARTERS & SIGNAL SQUADRON (207)

Sqn Comd Maj Andy Bristow
RSM WO1 (RSM) Colin Milne

It has been another busy period for the Squadron since Easter, with exercises in Denmark, Germany and Poland, as well as RSIT, a change in the Squadron structure and a number of arrivals and departures. We now look forward to a period of Adventure Training and leave and then to the build up for the Brigade test exercise in the autumn. What the future holds after that remains to be seen!

ALPHA TROOP

Tp Comd 2Lt Andy Hill
Tp SSgt SSgt James Runchman

TWO MONTHS WITH ALPHA TROOP
by Cpl Murray, Royal New Zealand Signals

Alpha Tp, where men are men and the girls from Ooh La La's are happy ('But we only go there for the beers' - yeah right boys!) It's been work hard and party even harder for the last couple of months. The Troop has taken part in three Exercises: firstly one in Denmark, where we assisted Bravo Tp in giving the Danish Special Forces the run around for two weeks. The good old Panzers then ventured out to Hohne Training Area to practice a few new SOP's on Ex Jerboa Rage. The Troop would like to thank newly arrived Sig 'Damon' Hill for the light entertainment he provided when he tried to take on the Panzer back door with his little pinkie - hope it gets better soon! Last but not least, the whole Squadron deployed to Poland on Ex Prairie Eagle with the Troop under the command of 2Lt Andy 'Map Reading Extraordinaire' Hill. The Unit performed well and got a big thumbs up from the Brigadier. Once again we all returned with numerous itchy red spots . . . thanks to the mozzies of course!

Alpha Tp has had a bag full of Kia Oras and Ka Kite Anos (Kiwi for Hellos and Goodbyes). First of all Kia Oras to Cpl 'Kiwi' Murray, LCpl Simon Pereira, and Sigs Rob Castles, Stewart Blakeley, Grace Howard and Nigel Wells. We also welcome Sigs Danny Richardson, Phil Brown and 'Geordie' Soppitt from Support Tp. Ka Kite Anos to Sgt 'Recon Platoon' Ward (moving to the training wing), Cpl Dave Langridge (to shape and mould our new recruits), LCpl Bernie Clifton and to Sigs Gaz Ayto and Jase Court. Finally the last farewell to Sgt 'Cylume Party' Yates who arrived recently, did such a good job and is now leaving us to go to 249 Sig Sqn on a well deserved promotion.

Between all the Exercising, farewells and general hard grafting, we enjoyed a good RSIT visit which went well - by the way, what's an 'A' job? Also well done for newly promoted LCpl Des White and LCpl Tom O'Hanlon; don't be shy with the slabs lads as we're all really thirsty! All in all, an extremely busy period and the Troop is really looking forward to the Adventure Training period where we can all relax, have a Becks and put another shrimp on the barbie.

BRAVO TROOP

Tp Comd Lt Adam Corkery
Tp SSgt SSgt Dave Sloane

Firstly a warm welcome to Sig Nikki 'Fast Asleep' Thompson from 1 Div and to Sig Simon 'Saville' Rowe from Blandford. Secondly farewell to Cpl Tarquin Jones and to LCpl 'Titch' Meakin - may your new postings be just as happy as this one! Secondly congratulations to Sgt Andy Buckle on being selected for promotion to SSgt, LCpl 'Titch' Meakin to Cpl on posting and LCpls Harold Broderick and Phil Green on their promotion to LCpl.

DENMARK

The first day back after Easter leave and most of Bravo Tp, with elements of Alpha Tp in support, deployed to Denmark to act as Hunter Force for the first phase of the Danish Jagerkorpset selection course. The first week involved the Troop being deployed in observation posts around the northern Danish countryside, sited along various routes the students were expected to take whilst moving from one objective to another. The Ops were to note how tactically the students were moving with instructions to engage if drills were not up to scratch. Other members of the Troop manned various objectives that the students were to recce, in order to provide realistic targets.

The second week saw the Troop given more aggressive roles. These included mobile patrolling in Land Rovers, providing heliborne QRF's, setting ambushes, as well as providing casualties for various CASEVAC exercises. The Troop was also joined in the field by Lt Wendy Wright and Cpl 'Ruby' Murray from the Royal New Zealand Corps of Signals, who will be with us until August. With only a few days left of the E and E phase the Troop was pulled out of the field to assist with a search and rescue for a student who had gone missing at the start of the phase, having failed to make any contact at all at the RV's. At this late stage hopes were starting to fade. The missing student eventually turned up after the phase had finished: he had lost his escape map and had decided to lie low till the end of the Exercise and then give himself in. Needless to say, he didn't pass.

Other excitements included a heath fire which Sig Danny Richardson had nothing to do with starting, and finally a short period of R and R on the last night. The inhabitants of Alborg were friendly enough and everyone had a chance to unwind. Memories fade and some things are better left to those that can remember.

POST DENMARK

The annual RSIT inspection took place a couple of weeks after Denmark and there were quite a few early starts in the final week to ensure readiness, however the deadline was met and the Troop performed well. As soon as RSIT was over Sig Chris Nixon and Sig 'Ronnie the Rooster' Barker from Bravo Troop went to Kiel Sailing Club with the Squadron OC for a week to take part in a sailing competition. The results for the team were good with the Squadron team winning overall and, along with the Scots Dragoon Guards, winning the Inter-Garrison competition.

EXERCISE PRAIRIE EAGLE 1 AND 2

The Exercise commenced in unfortunate fashion with the armour being delayed by 24 hours at the railhead. Eventually however the Troop reached its destination of Drawsko Pomorskie in Poland. Bravo Tp, along with the rest of the Squadron and the Brigade Staff, exercised in the field for just over a week and then returned to Konotop to take over the manning of Excon and Hicon for Ex Prairie Eagle 2. Quote of the exercise has to go to Pte Nikki Jenkins AGC who, after hearing of peoples' fears of the local Grunny Pigs was heard to ask why everyone was so afraid of the Guinea Pigs! The Troop now looks forward to adventure training in the French Alps and a well deserved summer leave.

19 MECHANIZED BRIGADE HEADQUARTERS & SIGNAL SQUADRON (209)

Sqn Comd Capt C. M. Vaudin
RSM WO1 (RSM) S. Mitchell

As many of you will now be aware 19 Brigade has been warned for operational deployment to FYROM/Kosovo, with the Headquarters assuming command in theatre, from 4 Brigade, on 1 September 1999. Consequently training and preparation continues apace. In SHQ, the Yeoman and Foreman, WO2 (YofS) A. Drummond and WO2 (FofS) A. Williams respectively, have been chained to their desks. The RSM, WO1 (RSM) S. Mitchell, meanwhile is preparing to charge his now overdue unborn baby, with being late for a parade.

Out on the tank park, the troops continue to curse and sweat over their beloved 43's, with track bashing providing the latest entertainment. Rumours continue of sightings of the Troop Commander B Tp and the Staff Sergeant B Tp (Lt Toze and SSgt O'Brien) in coveralls working on the armour, although many have dismissed this as pure fantasy. Meanwhile Sig Allinson has decided to redesign the Squadron Commander's FFR, the challenge of rebuilding it having now been issued to ABRO. A mention must also go to our colonial visitors, Lt J. Wright and Cpl Peterson of the Royal Australian Signals, who continue to suffer mild hypothermia from the Catterick weather, despite it now being June. In Support Tp, SSgt S. K. Legg grimly hangs on to his sanity, as he strives to control the MT and get on the heel. The technicians, however, have migrated to Blandford as they attempt to beat the number of courses completed record.

24 AIRMOBILE BRIGADE HEADQUARTERS & SIGNAL SQUADRON (210)

JAILBREAK! - by Cpl P. Kirk

210 Sig Sqn has always taken part in charity events where possible and more often than not has assisted in running them. This year it has been put to the Corporals to organise an event of their choosing, the 'Jailbreak!' theme being chosen by Cpl Carl Tweddle, Cpl Rutland and myself. The aim was for teams to get as far away as possible from Colchester and back again within 24hrs, with no possessions other than an emergency £10 note, ID cards and authorisation letters. On top of that teams had to collect as much money for charity as possible whilst wearing the most outrageous fancy dress they could come up with.

We worked hard to maximise the publicity coverage for the event. Radio Essex interviewed us live before and after the jailbreak and put the word on the street to watch out for rather strangely dressed soldiers roaming the countryside with collection tins.

There were some superb efforts but the winners for the furthest distance travelled were LCpl Childs, Sig Jones and Sig Turner who managed to get to London and up to Edinburgh before heading back to London and down to Dover all in 24hrs! Jailbreak! was a great success. At the last count the event had raised £700 for the Army Benevolent Fund with more money still to be collected. On top of that all the participants had a great time and got to go AWOL for the day without the risk of getting charged!

Goodies and Baddies ready for the OFF!

EXERCISE LION SUN FROM A PLANNERS LAPTOP

by Capt R. M. Harvey

Ex Lion Sun happened by chance. One cancellation and a change in the Brigade Programme left a slot in the OTX plan and a gap on the Ops Room board. Seizing the opportunity to spend December in Cyprus, the QM and I were off on the Recce faster than LCpl Ayre could type out the F Ident 173s. 'I'm sure I put the OC's recce guideline list in here somewhere….' Ben Britton looked unconvinced as I rummaged through my bag full of coconut oil and Nivea at RAF Akrotiri. Armed with my training programme and the guideline list, the recce commenced – five days of ranges, camps and training areas and then there were the bookings, rations, ammunition, vehicles, stores, boats, helicopters, maps, frequencies, fuel, flights and transport. At last, off to the beach, but only for an in depth briefing on Adventure Training qualifications and a glance at some splash dinghies. At the end, with about 200 new pamphlets (which took up every spare nook in my luggage) we returned to the UK. I set about rewriting the training programme. Somebody once told me that time spent receeing is a good skive. Hmmm…..

Having never deployed the Squadron further than SPTA for five days, planning for five weeks in Cyprus was quite a challenge (in the good old days you'd say nightmare but challenge suggests a more spirited 90's approach). I divided the training programme up into blocks of four days. SSgt McKenna on Ranges, who managed to devise a package that required more RMQ instructors than the entire Small Arms School Corps, SSgt 'Tiffy' Elsmore, who thought he'd get away with idling about in his canoe, on Mil Skills, FofS Knight on Navigation - at least the six months he had spent adventure training during the year would be put to good use and finally Sgt Prichard running the Inter Section Competition – I expected this to be changing tyres and so I was a bit surprised to find it involved me being rescued from a cliff. The next three months saw planning conference after planning conference, meeting after meeting and board after board. 'What about enemy?' the OC mused whilst on a Brigade FTX in March. Standing at the Comms Ops desk we sighted FofS Knight and Sgt 'Hammy' Hammlett and Sgt Palmer. The Foreman looked a bit Middle Eastern, Sgt Hammlett looked a bit shifty (stores trained) and Sgt Palmer just happened to be there. Within minutes the characters of Col Adeous Knightali, Maj Wynali Hammet and Spiros Palmeros were created, ruthless activists mercilessly intent on terrorising the Ex Patriot population of Abbelia. The Signal Squadron would train for a Non Combatant Evacuation Operation and rescue all UK EP's.

In April, I was busy making 'one last amendment' to the nominal role when RSM Hodgson slapped a sheet of paper in my in-tray. 'There!' he said. 'What's that?' I said squinting at the document. 'I've booked the packed lunches,' he replied with such conviction that there surely couldn't be any going back now. One last meeting with RQMS 'Taff' Furnival, more to reassure each other that we hadn't forgotten anything …. 'bit late now' we shrugged, checking into the Brize Norton Hotel. 24 hours later and I was back in arrivals in RAF Akrotiri. I'll let Rob Hamilton take up the story from here.

EXERCISE LION SUN 14 MARCH – 13 APRIL 1999

by 2Lt R. A. Hamilton

210 Signal Squadron left Colchester in rather surprisingly high spirits. Despite the fact that the state of Friland had been subjected to a number of ferocious attacks carried out by the terrorist group 'Action For Abbelia' (AFA), and that we would shortly find ourselves in the midst of these hostilities, everybody seemed raring to go to the area that on most maps is shown as Cyprus. Consequently, it was in an air of enthusiasm that we left RAF Brize Norton at a ridiculously early time on the morning of 14 March 1999 to take part in Ex Lion Sun, a four week infantry based training exercise.

Fortunately, the area ten kilometres Southeast of the Abbelian-Friland border was found to be secure and rather conveniently had a desolate camp close by, which the Squadron was able to occupy. From there the three platoons conducted platoon level tactical training in order to prepare themselves for future skirmishes with the Abbelian guerrillas. Nobody doubted the potential of the Abbelian troops and thus all training was conducted with the utmost vigour. A 'round-Robin' of training packages were laid on by the Squadron Training Team including a four-day military skills package, a two-day navigation package and a live firing phase culminating in section live fire attacks.

If you're sitting comfortably then we'll begin
2 Platoon's Section Commanders

The training was indeed challenging. As anybody will tell you who has exercised on Cyprus, it is a beautiful golden island to look down upon from an aircraft, but once on the ground it is the most evil of terrain. The lie of the land and nature join forces to bite, sting, devour or spike anybody that is naïve enough to leave the safety of a tarmac area and lay foot on the countryside. Consequently the military skill and navigation phases proved harder than first envisaged but nevertheless were enjoyable and of great benefit for the final Exercise. Unfortunately the range package at Pyla was not as big a success as had been hoped for due to the number of suicidal sailors and fishermen who insisted on motoring into the impact area. The infuriation generated by constantly hearing the words 'STOP, apply safety catches,' could always be alleviated with a call to whichever member of the platoon hierarchy had the onerous task of boat sentry for the day and without doubt would be clinging on for dear life whilst kindly contributing rations to the Mediterranean food chain.

The situation on the Abbellian-Friland border continued to deteriorate and before long all three platoons found themselves deployed to rescue the remaining British ex-patriots left in the area . The Exercise began with an amphibious assault on Melanda Beach and securing the beachhead before moving North to the border. Over the following four days, a number of attacks, recces and ambushes were carried out before a final attack was made on the remaining enemy pocket in Paramali village. Exhausted, the company moved back to camp and prepared for the biggest challenge – the assault on the bank balance to be conducted over several days of adventure training.

A number of the Squadron grabbed the opportunity to visit either Israel or Egypt on one of the cruises from Limassol. On a more physical note a number of adventure training packages were laid on including parachuting, climbing, walking, mountain biking, sailing, horse riding and canoeing. Rejuvenated, the Exercise culminated with an excellent barbecue before returning to Colchester to annoy loved ones with hideously good tans. Ex Lion Sun proved to be a great success with the vast majority of training objectives met. The Squadron had a thoroughly enjoyable time and now goes forward having refreshed itself on basic tactics, fieldcraft and military skills, not forgetting the most important quality of how to recognise a good Brandy Sour from a bad one!

ROTHERA ATTACHMENT - by Cpl Drew Meehan

Between September 1998 to March 1999 I was lucky enough to undertake an attachment with the Antarctic Expeditionary Team to provide communications between the science parties out on the ice and the base camp. It was a fantastic chance to see a unique part of the world and deal with communications in the harshest of environments and I was therefore not going to let the opportunity slip by me.

The task started with a rather long flight out to the area. Unfortunately the weather was so bad that we were forced to stop in the happening megalopolis of Port Stanley for a week. Eventually the all clear was given and we continued with the final eight hour leg to the base camp. The pilot was excellent and flew at low level around some of the glaciers, giving us the chance to appreciate the vastness of Antarctica. Before long we had touched down on the ice between the oil drum markers and were whisked away to learn ice breaking drills and how to drive the ski-doos. I was lucky enough to have four weeks out with one of the science teams helping out with hot water drilling. This entailed drilling bore holes in the ice to assess its thickness, by maintaining a constant supply of boiling hot water down the shaft, quite a difficult task when the temperature is an average minus 35 degrees!

Base camp life was just as entertaining. In between looking after the communications, the social life was excellent with a fully stocked bar and a plethora of scientists who were only too keen to have a few beers! In any spare time there were ample opportunities to go off and explore the local islands or to go skiing. In summary, I had the adventure of a lifetime and can thoroughly recommend it to anyone interested.

SQUADRON HEADQUARTERS

OC	Maj Steve Hunt
SSM	WO2 (SSM) Ewan Hall

FAREWELL

SHQ bids farewell to one of the stalwarts of the Corps, Maj (TOT) Richard Howes on retirement. Maj Howes has been responsible for the high technical reputation of the Squadron and particularly the specification of the VIP PA system. We wish you and the family well in the tax haven of the Isle of Wight. We also say farewell to LCpl Sophie Morris on posting to 11 Sig Regt. Thanks for all the beasting sessions in the gym, congratulations on all your running achievements whilst with the Squadron and best of luck in Blandford.

DONATION TO MAITI NEPAL ORPHANAGE AND REHABILITATION CENTRE

During a recent visit to Kathmandu, Nepal, Sgt Anderson presented £1300 to Mrs Anurada Koirola, the director of Maiti Nepal Orphanage and Rehabilitation Centre. Maj Steve Hunt and Cpl Steve Hook raised the money by running in this year's London Marathon and Sgt Fergie Anderson running in the Fleet and Gatwick Half Marathons raised additional sums. Funds are still being collected and it is expected that the final sum will be in excess of £1500. Maiti Nepal was established in 1993 by Mrs Anurada Koirola to give support and assistance to women and children who have been trafficked into servitude, prostitution or who have suffered from any form of exploitation. The money will be used to pay the travel costs for the safe return of Nepalese girls from the brothels of India to their homeland Nepal. Major Hunt, Sgt Anderson, and Cpl Hook thank all those who gave support and encouragement in their fund raising efforts.

EXERCISE COCKNEY SPLASH 2

Once again Trg Wg and Radio Tp joined forces for the annual offshore sailing Exercise which took place immediately after the LONDIST Shooting competition. Unfortunately Sgt 'Schofs' (NATFA President) Schofield was left behind, with a tear in his eye, to care for the remainder of the Troop. On arrival we were faced with our first dilemma, from Cpl 'Gordy (just one more question)' McNeillie, the conversation went as follows:

Gordy: So how do we sail up wind then?

Real Skipper: Well, tacking, beating, Close hauled (and lots of other sailing jargon).

Gordy: So how do we move from here against the wind and facing backwards?

Real Skipper: We turn the engine on!

Gordy: Clever! Clever!

The second dilemma was slipping out between the other Corps Yachts. SSgt Si 'The real skipper' Hadley opted to move Skywave, leaving Capt Kerry 'I am the skipper and I want to be the Skipper' Levins to slip Petasus. All went well except Petasus was last seen heading for the bridge over Haslar Creek. De-masting drills to follow. The crew then set sail for Ocean Village, a marina for the exclusive Martini Club people. Unfortunately standards slipped when LCpl 'My side burns are not ginger' Lester was allowed on shore to mix briefly with real Martini club members.

The Yacht and crew moved westward over the course of the week in strong winds with Cpl 'No Warning' Hook succeeding in drenching the crew from a huge Bay of Biscay wave which somehow ended up in Poole Bay! Wednesday was Weymouth night and the crew prepared for a night on the town. LCpl Lee Lester was finally lowered from the masthead to join us! An excellent week was had by all, with many nautical miles covered, much sailing learned and damaged credit cards. The Top Eight Events are listed below.

1. SSgt Si Hadley -Top Speed 7.6 Knots.
2. LCpl Lee Lester - Seasick whilst in harbour, through his nose! (NATFA club)
3. LCpl Bry Stewart - I don't feel well, can I take the train? (Scottish)
4. Cpl Gordy McNeillie - Can I go too? (Scottish)
5. Cpl Gibbo Gibson - You can go down the hatch head first whilst still in your sleeping bag! (Ex White Helmet)
6. Cpl Steve Hook - Flaking in a pub full of lovely girls (Trg Wg).
7. Capt Kerry Levins - I know I am the skipper but can I go back to bed, (six hours later) Where are we?
8. Sig Greg (Green) Burgess - For dedication to the Trg Wg, while the rest of us had an arduous exercise.

RADIO TROOP

Tp Comd outgoing	Capt Kerry Levins.
Tp Comd incoming	Capt Andy Carroll.
Tp Sgt	Sgt Simon Schofield

It is said when Bagpus is awake all his friends are awake and in Radio Tp Bagpus is Running the London Marathon twice. Life in Radio Tp goes from obscurity to full tilt with the Troop making up to 90% of all the teams the Squadron has entered in events from the Corps and LONDIST SAAM's to Race the Sun and if that was not enough Radio Tp becomes Ceremonial Tp yet again with Trooping the Colour, Beating Retreat, a State Visit, the State Opening of Scotland's Parliament and not forgetting the many Garden Parties and receptions at Buckingham Palace, all in an eight week period. Putting up the Div's Billy Smart's Tent on a rainy night has never been so far away.

The Troop have the following hellos and goodbyes to make, the Troop would like to welcome the incoming Tp Commander, Capt Andy 'love me love my hair' Carroll, from attachment to 1 Green Howards and Sig Mac 'been there done that more than you' McGregor from 249 (AMF) (L) Sig Sqn. Welcome to the Big Smoke. Unhappily we have to say farewell to Capt Kerry 'no bike' Levins and his wife Sharon also LCpl Gaz 'never happy' Winders and his wife Julie Best of luck in Civvy Street. Finally a big hello to the operational side of 238 (London) Sig Sqn to Cpl Mick 'I got the best Det' Breydin and Cpl Daz 'I got the worst det' Pond who are currently in Bosnia. Also, not forgetting Sig Stu 'Brace up' Parker who is currently taking it easy in BATUS. Keep up the good work lads and sorry you missed the Photo.

RACE THE SUN

An early start topped the day to move to Race the Sun competition but we finally made it to York after stopping at virtually all the service stations enroute, no thanks to LCpl 'Pathfinder' Lester. After a night of finely honed preparation and with 'all men accounted for' we were ready to tackle every eventuality and if the race had not been cut short WE'D HAVE WON! You must understand that by coming 11th this year, we bettered our position by two places from last year. By 2010 we should win it, so watch out 30 Sig Regt (start preparing now). When everyone had finished, Capt 'I'll meet you down there' Carroll' ordered a CUR (Close Urban Recce) to be carried out in order to prepare us for our multi stage service station hop home. The trip home was uneventful and we made it back to London in fairly good time with 'no fallen soldiers'. A special mention in dispatches has to be made to Capt 'Commando in a kilt' Carroll for a very good impersonation of meat and two veg!

OSCAR TROOP

Tp Comd Maj (Tfc) Dave Gilchrist
Tp SSgt SSgt Karen Ripley

As we kiss goodbye to those cold winter blues, we welcome with open arms those long summer nights, time for recuperation and to have a well-earned beer or two in the warm hazy London sunshine. Not much chance of that unless your name happens to be Sgt 'Freebie' Anderson . You see 'Freebie' is getting on a bit now, with approximately 18 months until retirement. He feels he needs extra privileges, so for the 648th time in his 15 or so months here, he has again been chosen as Det Comd of 238's 501 DET in Nepal. What about the rest of the crypto ops BOSS, cross training flexibility/adaptability and all that? On a serious note 'Freebie' does an excellent job raising funds for the less fortunate people in that part of the world and we just wish he would show as much charity to his fellow crypto comrades back here in Blighty. The rest of the Troop just keep plodding away in his absence, doing a fine job down in the now not so murky corridors of Horseguards. We've had a lick of paint (yippie) and we thought the Strategic Defence Review was all about cutbacks. Well, painting is just like politics you can only paint over the cracks for so long.

On the social front an excellent evening was had by all at the recent Tp function held in the Bruno Bistro Bar. This was an excellent function organised by the girls in the Wellington Barracks OAC (operator assistance centre). For some strange reason Oscar Tp functions always seem to go down well with the rest of the Squadron and I wonder if it's something to do with a higher ratio of females to males, however, this may be put to the test soon with reorganisation getting ever closer. The Troop will diminish even more with closures but in the face of adversity it's that one for all, and all for one spirit that pulls everyone through. It has to be said that the Commune will now be a quieter place with the loss of one if it's longest serving stalwarts, Shaida Hasizi who has departed to test the eardrum's of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. Mr Dave Tivey also departs London Central to COMCEN Whitehall. The rest of the CO4's are wondering what the extra travelling expenses will amount to for travelling the extra 50 metres across the Horseguards parade ground.

The Troop continues to excel on the sporting front and it would appear the older you get the fitter you are and so naturally end up doing more Inter-Troop competitions. The Troop recently won the squash and rowing competition with the participants ages averaging out at 38. That's how old we feel ourselves to be after the event, but a few short John Smith's we all rekindled our youthful age of 25ish! The Troop also won the hockey event winning 2-0 and 1-0 respectively against Radio and Mike Tp. So watch out, as predicted in previous pages, the trophy is coming our way.

MIKE TROOP

Tp Comd Capt (TOT) Phil Cooper
Tp SSgt Sgt Twizell

Yet another busy period with the season of rehearsals and parades well and truly getting under way. The planning of the communications for the State Opening of the Scottish Parliament has also started with Cpl 'Gordy' McNeillie spending a week up in Edinburgh. 'Gordy' was rumoured to be checking water contamination in Princess Street during brief moments of free time.

The Troop would like to say a final farewell to the TOT, Maj Richard Howes who after thirty eight (38) years of Army life has handed in the last of his remaining uniform and picked up his brief case and left for a life in civvy street. In his place a hello, welcome and congratulations to the newly commissioned Capt Cooper who has arrived for a short period of time, on loan, from CPD Blandford. We hope you enjoy your short stay. Congratulations also to the newly appointed Sgt Twizell.

Welcome back Cpl Bone, complete with suntan, who has been on an expedition in Nepal. Congratulations to Cpl McNeillie for collecting a gong at the London District Shooting Competition with his team mate Sig Kearns of Radio Tp. Well done also to Cpl Bone, Sig McGuire and Sig McFaul for completing various legs in this years Race the Sun up in York. Congratulations also to Sig McGuire for being the only member of the Tp to pick up a medal in the London District Athletics Competition. Well done to all other members who took part.

CHALLENGE CUP COMPETITION

Early April saw the fourth in a series of inter Troop sporting competitions take place in one of the few non asbestos solid structures still standing in Chelsea Bks - the squash court. In a fairly close fought competition, all Troops were guilty of pulling out their old and bold. M Tp dragged out their deadly weapon - the TOT, Maj Richard Howes and SHQ/O Tp found the oldest trio going, which included the OC, Maj Steve Hunt and SSM Ewan Hall! Much rested on the final game which the SSM had to win to level the competition with M Tp. The SSM took the game in his stride but the overall result was a tie. The OC, making a somewhat odd tactical decision, decided the outcome would rest on the results of a one-off 500m rowing competition, against the clock. Despite a closely run competition, age prevailed and SHQ/O Tp won the squash on their rowing machines! SHQ/O Tp continued on their current form in May by storming off with the inter Tp Hockey competition. Their secret weapon, this time, was SSM Ewan Hall back out of retirement for the last time (allegedly) and YofS Neil Stewart nursing a groin injury.

CORPSAAM/LDRAM

Pull up a sandbag my friend and listen to a tale of great daring. Once upon a time there was a shooting team from 238 Sig Sqn. This was a proper team, I mean to say, they even managed to conduct some training! I know, I know, how did they do that, but stop interrupting me. This team of only the truest and stoutest to be found were aiming to knock some giants off their perches. The first day of the Corps SAAM did not go too well. The evil eye was upon them. This team was not daunted and set out on the second morning prepared to resume their David and Goliath struggle. Suddenly their illustrious (non participating) team captain, Cpl 'I can fire three rounds in a minute from my musket' Storey cried out the words oft heard amongst these folk.

'We're effluent and we know we are'

These immortal words had a remarkable effect on this band of weary fighters. It seemed that all the glory (and silver) was going to the 'Wicked 30 Sigs of Midshire' and the '11 'Anything south of London is France' Sigs'. At this time all the other participating units had fallen under a strong spell of lethargy and were anticipating an evening of merriment. The words of the Good Wizard, Capt Reith (whose evil twin George was nowhere to be seen) broke this spell and all sat up to remark upon a change in the prize distribution routine – little David had triumphed in the form of Sig 'Dead eye Dick' Kearns. All present warmed to this news and the crowd raised a cheer worthy of Wembley on Cup Final Day. Next, the unstoppable morale machine packed their bags and went to the London District shooting competition at Pirbright, yet again facing another nightmare journey through the shooting maze. On this occasion, however, they first met the all seeing eye of the SUSAT which unfortunately did not help their cause. Yes that's right, their battle cry was heard far and wide, bringing good cheer to the Woodentops, Wedgeheads, Dukes of Boots and WAFTAM (ask your mother who they are).

Back to the tale in question, as you have gathered the team had not done so well, or so they thought. The great God – non – combatant was looking down upon these very sorry individuals and gave the team the best battle honour yet. The only hope we may have was the young soldier in the LSW gun run. He was accompanied by a more elderly soldier convinced that the shoot was individual (wrong – see age does not bring wisdom just optimistic delusional behaviour). After some discussion, shoulders were shrugged believing that all hope was lost. So the merry band trooped off to another Prize giving. Well named for them – how could it be anything other than Prize Giving – oh to receive!

To the surprise of all gathered there, Sgt 'bit of a gabbler' Schofield was honoured with a medal for coming second in the pistol shoot. This was only until the AGC managed to calculate the scores correctly and everybody's faith was restored – he had in fact come ninth. To save face, however, they let him keep the sacred medal. Then came the surprise of four decades, Cpl 'Quick Draw' McNellie and yet again Sig 'Dead eye Dick' Kearns had taken the LSW gun match. This was the first time since 1952 that the Household Division had not won. The Great War God, GOC, was not happy. Somebody's head was on the block Monday morning. Ha Ha. So 30 Signal Regiment and 11 Signal Regiment, beat that! Not bad for a non-conference league team!

PS. All the best to the SOinC on his new posting to Civ Div from the lads and lasses in the Corps that have worked with you over the years. You are one in a million, and will be a major loss to the Royal Signals. We wish you and your family well in the future. Keep in touch – do not leave us on the battlefield.

FAREWELL TO THE ISLES

On 31 March 1999 members of the Corps serving with H Troop, 242 Signal Squadron, bade a fond farewell to the Hebridean Islands of North and South Uist and Benbecula. After 41 years the Corps' communications responsibilities came to an end as all functions were handed over to DERA. The last members of the Troop are pictured below flanking the cairn built to commemorate the Corps long association with the Islands.

(Cpl Lane still hasn't found the 5p he dropped)

The cairn and the plaque were unveiled by GOC Scotland Maj Gen M. A. Strudwick CBE and is shown flanked by Cpls Gareth McWha and Susie Learmouth

That afternoon the Corps, headed up by Brig N. F. Wood ADC hosted a cocktail party and then the Pipes and Drums performed a ceremony of Retreat

The day was rounded off with an all ranks function in the JRC at West Camp.

On Friday 14 May we marked the impending closure of the Glasgow and Edinburgh Operator Assistance Centres. A good day was had with presentations to the Glasgow girls in Kentigern House followed by lunch in Edinburgh and a social afternoon in the Squadron area.

Mrs Catherine McGeoch - (Telephonist Glasgow)
Mrs Agnes Donaldson - (Supervisor Glasgow)
Mrs Diane Neely - (Telephonist)
Maj (Retd) G. A. Carmichael - (Sqn 2IC)

Even in the Static Signal Squadrons 'things' continue to change. We have closed two doors but more open as we move into CIS more and more and the Squadron boundary is now all Scotland and South to Altcar, Preston and Warcop. More changes are ahead and we look forward to the new challenges.

243 SIGNAL SQUADRON

LANYARD TROPHY 1999 - by LCpl Andy Dunn

Having recently arrived in the unit LCpl's Andy Dunn, 'Fitzy' Fitzpatrick and 'Geordie' Gray were interested to find out that they were to be participating in this year's Lanyard Trophy competition. Team selection wasn't a problem for the Team Captain SSgt Bob Lawrence, as this year's team consisted of the only ten healthy, available members of the Squadron including SSgt Bernie Smith the only female team member and who was carrying two injuries before we even started!

After an 0300hrs reveille and quick breakfast we boarded the minibus and headed for the start point. We were assured by WO2 (SSM) 'Paddy' Morrow that the aim of the team this year was to complete the course and it wasn't too important which position we finished in, however the pace we set off at, showed us it wasn't going to be just a gentle stroll. Unfortunately at CP1 we had to drop off Cpl Jim Gray who had taken a fall and twisted his ankle after about five miles. We were also met by the OC, Maj Andy Walker who had arrived to offer his support. We were dealt another blow at CP2 when we lost SSgt Andy Burdge who was severely drained after a recent heavy schedule of many rugby matches other sports and illness. So after completing fourteen miles and having lost two of our fittest members we were down to the minimum finishing requirement of eight team members!

Halfway through the twelve mile leg to CP3 LCpl 'Geordie' Gray started to feel the effects of dehydration, after a few litres of water, numerous sticky bars, a generous helping of honey supplied by Cpl 'Gregsy' Gregory and a few choice words of 'encouragement' from Bob Lawrence he was soon flying high again. After quickly composing ourselves at CP3 we were soon on our way to CP4 and heading towards a mast which brought back memories of last year for some team members. Arriving at CP4 knowing we only had four miles to go we were met again by the OC who had kindly nipped to the shop's to replenish our supply of Lucozade and stickies. The last four mile leg continued along the same lines as the rest of the course, hills, followed by stiles, followed by more hills, followed by more stiles! Having crossed a major road and a railway bridge we were encouraged by the sight of the OC's dog bounding to greet us on the home straight. It was heads down as we made our way up the final hill and a smile for the camera as we crossed the finish line. The relief was felt by everyone as we handed over our Bergen's for the final weighing as we congratulated each other on a job well done.

Our thanks go to LCpl Lorraine Giudici and Pete Mudway for their efforts on the Admin side and to the members of 216 (Para) Sig Sqn who helped us negotiate many busy roads enroute, also to the OC for his support and the beers which were very welcome.

NEWS FROM U TROOP - by SSgt Andy Burdge

Hellos and Goodbyes, yet again there has been many comings and goings. On the arrival front we welcome Sgt Jackie McCorry from Blandford and LCpl 'Taff' Gibbard from 15 Sig Regt. Departing, from us, for Australia is Sgt Caroline Towers who is getting married to Richard of the Australian Army and leaving the Corps also to Sig Richie Templeman who has left us for Civ Div. We thank both of them for all their hard work whilst in the Troop and wish them all the very best for the future.

Sports and Social, once more time has flown by with the HQ Land Inter-Departmental Competition due to start soon. Troop members have been busy finding things to occupy their spare time! Cpl Jim Grey and LCpl 'Vinny' Vincenzi have been away with the unit shooting team at the Corps SAAM under the watchful eye of SSgt Andy Burdge and there have also been many 'Tabs' around the local area preparing for the Lanyard Trophy with SSgt Bernie Smith, Andy Burdge and Cpl Jim Grey not being able to find anything better to do than spend three or four hours out in the bush! On the social front, the unit had its first Military All Ranks function for quite a while (at least four years) the 2IC finding the key to the cash box at last! A fine night was had by all and the Troop would like to thank Cpl Stu Powney from Tech Troop for organising the event.

Corps SAAM 99, again it was time to make the pilgrimage to Ash Ranges for the SAAM. With there being a sudden influx of young blood from the 'Factory' at Blandford, team selection became a little easier than in previous years, as for once we could field some young soldiers and Class B shots. The build up, as usual did not go very well with training and Operational commitments taking its toll, however, what time was spent on the range was put to good use. The week went well overall with Cpl Jim Grey and LCpl 'Fitzy' Fitzpatrick doing exceptionally well in the LSW match and the team after three years of trying finally clearing the Butt in the combat snap and gaining a creditable position. After a good week's shooting the team of Cpls Jim Grey, Gregs Gregory and LCpl Stu Golightly, 'Fitzy' Fitzpatrick and Vinny Vincenzi finished Second Minor Unit behind 19 Mech Bde. Yet again all the team have benefited in their soldiering skills from this competition and they would like to thank Capt Reith (Corps Secretary) for another well run competition. Quick mention for the SSM 'Paddy' Morrow who entered as an individual and bought the drinks all week 'Cheers Paddy'.

SQUADRON HEADQUARTERS ROUNDUP

Personal Best for the SSM, this year the Unit has decided to collect funds in support of our local branch of MENCAP. WO2 (SSM) 'Paddy' Morrow who is the driving force behind the project decided he would do his bit by entering into the local marathon from Avesbury to Stonehenge which took place on Sunday 2 May 1999. After much training the SSM assembled at the start line on a very warm and sunny day, the course was described by the organisers as being multi-terrain and undulated which proved a very accurate description. The SSM had no intention of making a race of it in fact his only aim was to beat his previous marathon finish time of 3hrs 48mins, this he did by finishing in a time of 3hrs 20mins. We would like to thank all those who sponsored the SSM and to confirm that he did complete the course we have included a picture of him at the finish with his medal. Well done

VISIT OF ACOS G6 CIS LAND - 30 APRIL 1999
by Sig Ellis

On 30 April ACOS G6 CIS Land, Brig Shaw, visited the Squadron, accompanied by his daughter. The visit enabled the Brigadier to see the Squadron up close and get the general feeling of the troops. He was first greeted by the OC, Maj Jim Foulkes, and the SSM, WO2 (SSM) Cummings, and then began his visit with a tour of the single soldiers 'five star' accommodation. Meanwhile his daughter, under the able guidance of Cpl Dave Atherton, enjoyed a spin cross-country in a BV206

On leaving the 'Ritz', the Brigadier and his daughter were given three different accounts of life in the Squadron from the soldiers point of view. Picked from a cast of thousands, Sig Kev Rutherford, LCpl Neil Whitely and myself gave our accounts of recent Squadron deployments to Slovenia, Norway and Italy. Next stop for the Brigadier was a chat with the Lanyard Trophy team, where the talk centered on how we had prepared for the competition and our tactics on the day. (Little did we know that the next time we would meet would be at the ceremony to collect the trophy from him). The Finale to the day was the 'Gun Run', where Oscar and Papa Troop, watched by the Brigadier and the OC, beasted themselves around a rugby pitch, carrying parts of the gun and pulling a trailer. Thankfully it was only one of the hottest days of the year so far and we were wearing helmets and combat jackets.

Following that Brig Shaw presented Sig Welburn with the Cook Pot for the best Novice time in the Norway 10km Ski Race. He then addressed the entire Squadron in order to shed some light on the events taking place in the Balkans and how they might effect ourselves in the future. Finally he departed in the direction of the Officers mess, for a buffet lunch, before leaving the Squadron in the early afternoon.

THE LANYARD TROPHY 1999
by Sig Welburn

It was the beginning of March when the Squadron decided that the Lanyard team should begin training. Myself and fourteen others volunteered or were 'volunteered', not suspecting what was in store for us. After some research by Cpl Dean Wilson, we discovered that other units had been training for three months before us, and we realised we were facing some harsh competition. Our training soon began with daily sessions at 0900hrs with LCpl Steve 'the Gym Queen' Douglas, followed by a few hours off, finishing with a 'tab' on Salisbury Plain. For the purposes of training the team was removed from normal Squadron activity and this certainly helped foster team cohesion and the will to win. After a few weeks the training became much more intensive as we moved to Folkestone in order to train on the North Downs Way - the actual Lanyard Trophy route. The route did seem somewhat overwhelming on paper but after a week of dissecting and mastering it, it did not seem quite so bad. In all we spent two weeks in Folkestone, we trained and played hard, and certainly gained maximum benefit from our proximity to the route. There was an abundance of well earned food courtesy of LCpl Jim 'Casey Ryeback' Fraser, our chef and a daily dose of morale from Sig Jim 'the Pest' Gallagher. We knew the route, we were fit and confident we could win the Trophy for the Squadron.

On the morning of the competition we were up at 0400hrs for breakfast. The competition started at 0530hrs with 32 teams, a total of 320 people, trying to get over a single stile. The first part of the tab quickly became a race between ourselves, 216 (Para) Sig Sqn and 30 Sig Regt. Gradually the teams began to separate and off we went, with the 216 Team in the lead for quite some time. We were convinced that they had a considerable lead until we came to the end of one of the sections in the woods and we had them in view. From what we could see some of them were struggling, and it gave us some hope that we might just beat them. So with 'guts, determination and the desire to win' (as Cpl Mat Witham puts it) we managed to overcome the excellent competition and come in first.

To win was a great honour as all of the team will agree. We could never have done it without the superb support provided by our admin. team. We would like to thank the other competitors, particularly 216 (Para) Sig Sqn for pushing us all the way and their organisation of the entire event. Hopefully next year we can come back and endeavour to win for a second time.

INDIVIDUAL ACTIVITIES ARMY BASKETBALL TEAM TOUR OF THE UNITED STATES - by Sig Thompson

No sooner had I arrived at the Squadron, than I was given the chance of a lifetime. As a selected member of the Army Basketball team I joined their tour to Fort Hood, Texas.

The Tour consisted of five games against very strong US opposition. It was also an excellent opportunity to meet US soldiers and see how their lives differed from ours. Suffice to say their facilities were amazing. However, the main aim of the tour was to play and by the time the first game came around everyone was raring to go. In total we played five games managing to win only one of them. Of the five games we played The Fort Hood All Stars were by far the hardest team that the Army faced, proving to be far better than us to come away easy winners in our fixture with them. The other four games were closer but it wasn't until the final game that we managed to win.

That said it was a great tour and everyone seemed to take something special home with them. Personally I had a great time and can't wait to go back.

EXERCISE THUOLO KHOLA COCKNEY – by Sig Smith

This expedition to the Kingdom of Nepal included trekking and white-water rafting and ran from 9 April to 26 April. The group included eleven Army personnel, from differing units and cap badges, and one member of the RAF.

On arrival in Nepal we enjoyed a brief stay in Kathmandu at the hotel 'Moonlight' before departing, on a six hour bus journey, to Gorka, a town roughly in the middle of Nepal, where we met our guides and porters. Our porters were very much appreciated as the first days included an endless amount of steps to a temple at the very top of Gorka where we slept on our first night. Over the next seven days we trekked ninety kilometres through the Maraslu Region of Nepal surrounded by amazing scenery. The trek culminated with a white knuckle ride on the Marsyangdi river. The raft negotiated grade four and even some grade five rapids, the adrenaline flowed freely.

This trip was the chance of a lifetime to visit such an extraordinary country, where the people are so friendly and some areas are straight from 'the land that time forgot.' Modern influence and technology seem to have passed the place by. I had an excellent time and must thank my unit for enabling me to go.

HAIL AND FAREWELL

Departures and arrivals have certainly slowed down over the last few months to a slow trickle, with only one new arrival and three departures! Welcome to WO2 (SSM) 'Smudge' Smith posted in from 1 (UK) Div. Farewell to WO2 (SSM) Jim McNaught posted to 202 Armd Sig Sqn 3(UK) Div Bulford. Also off to pastures new are Sgt Sean Curry, posted to SHAPE (someone had to go!!), and finally Sgt Dave Green who leaves the army after 15 years service with a new longer length bouffant hairstyle and the Squadron's best wishes!

251 SIGNAL SQUADRON IN THE RUNNING FOR NEW TOYS!
by SSgt Glynis Watton

On Sunday 21 March 1999 six members of the Squadron participated in the gruelling Fleet Half Marathon, a total of thirteen miles, each runner having been sponsored. It was a unanimous decision that the local Queen Mary's Nursery would be the beneficiaries as many of the Squadron's staff use the facilities at QMN. The dedication and care given to our children is very much appreciated and its great to be able to give something back. The fact that it is also the QMN's 100th anniversary certainly spurred the runners on to help the Nursery celebrate in style.

The OC, Maj John Oakes, was extremely pleased to present the Matron, Mrs Hutchison, with a cheque for £342 on behalf of the Squadron at a small ceremony along with twenty or so of the nursery's toddlers. The nursery will be using the money to buy lots of new play equipment for the children. Thank you to everyone who supported us in this worthwhile cause which hopefully will now be repeated in years to come!!

EXERCISE REDCOAT STAMPEDE - ARMY TRIATHLON
by Sgt Daphne Clash

In a mad moment earlier this year I decided that a new challenge in my life was needed. Thoughts of the Army Triathlon entered my buzzing head. Never one to dither once I have got the bit between my teeth, I bought the bike, my moth eaten costume was binned in favour of something that was half decent to be seen swimming in! Now all I needed was to get on with it. With this in mind I somehow managed to wangle a place onto the Army Triathlon Association's annual training camp in North Carolina USA!!

At the end of April, fifty of us set off to Fort Bragg which was to be the base for the first phase of the ex. The aim of the annual training camp is to introduce novices like myself to the sport, and to improve the already experienced Army tri-athletes in preparing themselves for the racing season ahead. Qualified coaches put us through our paces, with emphasis on technique. The training was hard but rewarding (definitely not for the couch potatoes)! At the end of the first week we set off to the Appalachian Mountains, the place was beautiful (they filmed Last of the Mohicans and Dirty Dancing here). The novices accommodation was sumptuous much to the chagrin of the elite athletes who ended up with the worst! Now the hard work really started with open water swimming practice and some seriously hilly bike courses. We also competed in a sprint distance triathlon at Clemson, South Carolina, my first, of which I had a pleasing result. The two weeks flew by, it was very hard work but brilliant.

I have now got the 'bug' and since returning I have competed in the Army Sprint Championships coming a creditable Fourth, and also the Army Championships with an amazing Third position, my first Olympic distance event. So if any of you out there fancy a challenge and something out of the ordinary, try it. You never know you may have a talent, but even if you don't it is a fantastic sport and the camaraderie is excellent!

The SOinC (A), Brig Griffin ADC, visited the Squadron on the 28 April after first hosting HRH The Princess Royal on her visit to Cyprus on the 27 April. Both of the visits went well, as a result of a great deal of preparation from all in the Squadron. Brig Griffin, accompanied by the Regimental Secretary, Col (Retd) Carter, visited all three Troops after first receiving an update on all relevant issues from the OC Sqn and Ops Team. At Episkopi Tp Brig Griffin was presented a pencil sketch of himself drawn by LCpl Lee Bearfield.

It was a day of presentations for the Brigadier as he also unveiled the new Squadron painting and was presented with a copy to take back to hang in RHQ R Signals. The Brigadier's visit was finished off by a Royal Signals Ladies Dinner Night which was attended by Royal Signals Officers from 259 Sig Sqn, HQ BFC and JSSU (AN).

After the visit season quietened down, life in the Squadron has continued at its usual busy pace, as the summer temperatures continue to rise, making all new comers to Cyprus feel decidedly uncomfortable. The largest number of newcomers to the Squadron are from 81 Sig Sqn (V) who each year are attached to the Squadron for two weeks, per Troop. As usual this is a successful arrangement and a chance for both TA and Regular personnel to learn more about each other. We hope that they enjoy their stay this year.

Farewells from the Squadron go to Lt S. Pedder, Sgt Jones, YofS 'Taff' Thomas and SSgt O' Holloran who all leave the Squadron on posting. Best of luck in your new jobs.

SIGNALLER'S DEVELOPMENT COURSE

Some 16 of the young soldiers in the Squadron gathered in Episkopi for a week long course. The activities were designed to develop and then test them as potential JNCOs. They diversified from their usual jobs to try their hand at problem solving and giving lessons, this was mixed in with classes on first aid, map reading, skill-at-arms and drill supervised by Sgt Dave Wilson, the course administrator.

As the week progressed the days got longer and the tasks harder which culminated in what they thought was a night navigation exercise. Though when they arrived at the Paramali Village checkpoint they were shocked when smoke and bangs started and they were tasked to deal with a simulated mortar attack. This involved casualty simulation ably provided by Cpl Matt Pryme and a Press Team in the form of SSgt Kev Tierney and Sgt Mickey Harman as well as the shock victims and the DS putting them under pressure. As it was the first time most of them had been in command they did remarkably well. This phase ended with a night bergen run up into the back of camp from Happy Valley to the Squadron, not very pleasant!

The next day was presentations and photographs with the OC Sqn, Maj Steve Turnbull presenting Sig Steve Hickling from Dhekelia Tp with his Top Student award.

DONKEY SANCTUARY PROJECT

'Friends of the Cyprus Donkey Sanctuary' was in need of some serious maintenance when 259 Sig Sqn stepped in to help. A group of twelve made the trip under Sgt 'Fudge' MacPhee to the small mountain village of Vouni where the sanctuary cares for some 84 abandoned donkeys. The Sanctuary needs lots of work done to it and the team worked on some of the heavier maintenance tasks. The soldiers, including Sgt Dave Street and Sigs 'Jock' Milne and 'Scott' Duffie, cleared an area for a new boundary fence to be erected. This task took just a day with plenty of enthusiasm along with the hard work.

Mr Patrick Skinner, the sanctuary manager, said that they did a marvellous job and that they were delighted with the result. He was especially pleased that the Squadron had brought such a large group because it meant much bigger tasks could be undertaken. The soldiers thoroughly enjoyed their day and are looking forward to going back. Another trip is planned for the near future this time to erect a fence and make some steps for them.

THE FORCE WORKSHOP WALKDOWN by Sig 'Admin Vortex' Eyre

The whole idea of walking from the top of Troodos Mountain to the sea, down at Curium Beach, on a work day seemed like a nice idea when my Troop Foreman suggested it to me two days before the event. Unfortunately what I didn't know at the time, was that we started at 0600hrs in the morning, and that we would be running instead of walking!

When we arrived at the top of Troodos, prior to starting, the whole team were looking forward to an eventful day out and spirits were high. We set off at a fast but steady pace and continued to do so for the first six to seven miles. This soon slowed to a walk when we realised that we had overtaken at least half a dozen teams and were an hour ahead of others. If it had been up to FofS Eric 'Speedy' O'Halloran, we would have continued to run like madmen. However, YofS 'Taff 'I know the way' Thomas put a quick end to the Foreman's ideas by reminding him that we still had about 20 to 25 miles left to go.

It was at this point that someone noticed that my day sack was open, and as the blood drained away from my face I realised that I had not only lost the map but the check point co-ordinates as well. Thankfully, we managed to continue due to the spare map and being able to remember where most of the checkpoints were. We plodded on through the morning down hills, up hills, back down hills, back up hills and all the while laughed, joked and had a good time.

We stormed across the finish line with Sgt Dave 'I need the toilet' Street leading us in. Thoroughly exhausted and ready for dinner and a bath we crossed the line in seventh place, completing the 30 mile course in eight hours. The afternoon was rounded off with drinks and a barbecue at the Forced Inn at RAF Akrotiri where we all shared our horror stories of the morning's event. We had all had an excellent day.

OC Maj David Raleigh
SSM WO2 (SSM) Dave Scott

This has been something of a regrouping period for the Squadron. Following the highly successful USA deployment, the requirements for Regular operator's continuation training were overhauled and Cpl Ian Grant launched his so-called mates into a busy schedule of activations and deployments. Several Operators, as well as stores expert Sgt Danny 'I've lost my fill' Ford and LCpl Rosey 'I need some sun' Roseveare caught up on a backlog of work and training in Cyprus. At the same time the SC Course has been steadily improving standards, in some cases more than in others – watch this space for a complete report next issue. The ever elusive Ops Offr, Capt Richard 'where am I this week?' Newhouse managed to recce a couple of Exercises and complete the Lanyard Trophy before heading off to Scotland for a week of valuable sail training. On the TA side the main highlight was the Trade Weekend in which SSgt 'Deano' Poole and WO2 Paul Willimont tried to explain that there was more to antennae theory than simple trial and error… Perhaps second careers as Tomorrows World presenters beckon! Lastly the Squadron has said 'Cheers Flo' for the last (lunch) time at least. Lawrence 'Flo' Jordan is moving on from chef-ing at the TA Centre to higher things, and his replacement Rahe Ibrahim is warmly welcomed. Needless to say, in his other guise as a TA soldier we hope that we are still going to see LCpl 'Flo' Jordan commanding his detachment in 602 Tp for a long while yet.

602 TROOP

As ever the Troop has been keeping busy with a seemingly never-ending series of Exercises. We managed to fit in a much needed maintenance weekend in April which allowed us to catch up with all those jobs which somehow never seem to get done when you get back off Exercise. At the time of writing we are gearing up to deploy 2 Field Detachments in the UK to support the Squadron's deployment to Cyprus on Ex Global Lynx 1/99.

Although few in number, the airborne element of the Squadron has been surprisingly active over the past few months. Sgt Jason Trimmer, Cpl Jason Broome and Cpl Mick Peace went to Florida on Ex Global Lynx 3/98 and qualified for their American wings, while back in the UK Lt Angus Evers, Cpl Sylvester Hack and LCpl Ian McKerrow have jumped with 10 Para (V) and 21 SAS (V) as well as spending countless hours sitting around windy airfields. The Squadron would be grateful to hear from any other airborne unit with places going on a parachute programme.

Over the May Bank Holiday weekend the Squadron left its vehicles behind and deployed on a military training weekend to Yardley Chase. There they practised patrolling and other military skills and the JNCOs practised receiving and giving orders under the watchful eye of the DS, Capt Conrad Giles, Lt Angus Evers, Cpl Jason Broome and Cpl Ian Grant. The weather was as expected for a Bank Holiday and ideal for the training undertaken – hot and sunny for section attacks, freezing cold for OP work and torrential rain for ambushes.

GOING DOWN IN A BOG, SIR ? – by LCpl Gareth Clarke

'We need three good Rovers and two Bedfords.'
'We've had no problems with these ones.'

That conversation started the dirty weekend that the MT/LAD was planning for those not lucky enough to be on the trip to the USA, Belize and Bermuda. Unfortunately for the lads this was a sunny trip to Bordon. The road move went well apart from the alternator packing up on one of the Rovers - was this a sign of things to come? Nevertheless we got the Rover going again and made it to Bordon with out further mishap. Once at Bordon the training finally got underway, and with the theory out of the way we got on with the fun of off-road driving until our first Rover got stuck. Oh well - we never get enough winching practice anyway. Then, about an hour later, our very own Lt Evers was demonstrating the amphibious capabilities of a Rover and it sank like a brick!! It only took about two hours to pull the Rover back out. While that was going on everyone else, apart from the instructors, was involved in a water crossing up to their waists!! Sunday involved a bit of trailer reversing and some more off-road driving. It didn't take long before the appearance of 'our Rover won't start' technician Sig Bri 'Cpl' Jones. Bri, along with Sig Paul Chambers managed to kill the starter motor. At least it kept the VM's in work. We all managed to get back to Bletchley, with all the vehicles, on Sunday afternoon and a fantastically useful couple of days was had by all.

'Why don't you stick to parachuting Mr Evers?'

The following Recruiting Events will be run for anyone considering selection and training as a Special Communications Operator or Technician:

25 August - Ballykelly, 26 August - Lisburn, 23 September - Bramcote, 30 September - Colerne, 4 October - Brawdy, 7 October - York, 22 November - Hereford, 23 November - Krefeld.

See your Adjt or phone the Sqn YofS on (9)4240 8516 for details.

THE WELSHMAN
WHO WALKED UP AN ENGLISH HILL OR TWO
by Cpl Taff Hamar

Ex Ultra Cumbrian Tiger was a five day hill walking jaunt, surprisingly enough in the Lake District. The seven fearless mountaineers arrived at the Langdale Camp Site during a dark wet stormy night, and debussed from 'Silver' the faithful Squadron red minibus! Towards the dawn all the tents were up and all were abed.

As dawn broke so did the weather again, therefore 40 winks was the order of the day, before popping out and conquering a few peaks and summits. Cpl Jamie Copeland of the Royal Australian Signals was surprised to find that everything in Britain was not on a mission to bite, sting, or make you itch and most creatures were classified as 'not bloody poisonous mate.' After the big push back to base camp, a few jars in the Stickle Barn Tavern became necessary. The next day was much the same. Cpl Jase 'Brushmeister' Broome and Cpl Ian 'Brian The Snail' Grant (because he had his house on his back) along with LCpl 'Nurse Rosy' Roseveare were raring to go and look at the inside of a cloud, from altitude, so Cpl 'Taff the Mountain Goat' Hamar dragged them all up Pike O Blisco - a fine summit. The cloud was much as expected, so they all came back down again.

Wednesday was even wetter, but being far too thick to chicken out, a few more summits were scaled without oxygen. LCpl Paul 'Mattress Man' Hadfield still had time to nod off whilst the rest of the group poured a hot brew down their necks and down their fronts!!

Thursday was even wetter so the Stalwarts set off again (yes, by now we were amphibious).

Friday: a culture shock! A big yellow thing appeared in the sky and hurt our eyes. LCpl 'Gaz' Woolley mounted up 'Silver' and everyone headed for Wasdale and the ascent took place of Scafell Pike. Jamie 'Poisonous' Copeland became the first ever SC Aussie to reach the summit the highest point in England and Mattress Man had another snooze. The Mountain Goat declared Snowdon to be far superior and Brian The Snail took a well deserved breather, while Nurse Rosy bandaged a broken rock. On our return to sunny Bletchley all agreed that it had been a good week, despite the weather, before going home for Tea (it's a TA thing!).

2 (CITY OF DUNDEE) SIGNAL SQUADRON (VOLUNTEERS)

OC Maj E. M. Blyth TD
SSM WO2 (SSM) A. T. Waterston

In January the Squadron was re-equipped with new Chirpcom equipment. This has meant a period of intensive training and instruction for both the Training Team and the Operators. The knowledge that having a kettle in your boxbody is no longer the preserve of the Technicians and has been a source of great joy to Comms Tp. The introduction of the new equipment has given the Squadron a greater ability to communicate more effectively and efficiently. Maintaining operator skills on other equipment within the Squadron is also a high priority as ensuring that all operators can switch between communications assets is vital.

In May the Squadron deployed on Ex Mercury Galloway with detachments spread from Wick down to Stranraer. This was the first test of the new Chirpcom equipment and allowed the Squadron to try new procedures and prove that a seven hour drive to deploy is a mere trifle for the crews. The Wick detachments arrived at Wick 'range' (a five lane field for those who have never visited) and quickly discovered that the selection of chip shops was minimal but it is always quality that counts. LCpl Andy 'Sludgebeast' Henderson was well noted for his interest in his sleeping bag and refused to leave the safety of his basha prior to return to Dundee. Some things never change with technicians. The CP at Stranraer had an excellent time with tremendous feeding from our new culinary gurus in Support Tp. The communications showed that although it is some time since the Squadron deployed in a comms role the operators can still produce the goods when required. It was also the first opportunity for many of the newer members of the Squadron to deploy and see what the Squadron actually do out on the ground. The return journey for the chefs was something of a magical mystery tour taking them from Stranraer around most of Scotland before finally making it back to the TAC, just before dark.

The training of new blood can be a double-edged sword. The Squadron has worked extremely hard to produce a good training package that brings the recruits through the system efficiently and allows them to go to Blandford confident and capable of what they will be doing. Out of the current batch of eight, three are currently at Blandford and will pass out on 19 June 1999. Their first experience of socialising with the rest of the Squadron was during a military training weekend in Inverness when they led astray the unwitting OC Comms Tp, Lt Andy McDowell, by taking him to one of the seedier night-spots of the Highlands, tremendous fun. On this showing they will quickly adapt to life with the Unit and will lead from the front as they progress through the system. In the best recruit competition Sig Scott Fraser came out at the head of the pack and was presented with his trophy by the Ops Officer, Capt Bob Davidson.

As a result of the Strategic Defence Review 1117 Plant Sqn RE in Dundee has been disbanded. The happy result for 2 Sqn is that the majority of these former Sappers have transferred across to us. This has given the Squadron new impetus and given the Training Team the pleasant headache of getting almost forty people trade qualified as quickly as possible. The integration of so many people has been seamless and the Squadron has moved forward quickly. The skills that have been brought across give the Squadron even greater strength in depth with a significant percentage of the Squadron having recent operational experience. This increases the professionalism element within the Squadron along with a greater knowledge of procedures than previously.

In early April, 15 members of the Squadron went to Barry Buddon Training Area to re-enact their favourite scenes from the cinema. The cameras from the Beechgrove Garden were there to capture every move on celluloid. This was all in aid of proving that soldiers only actually do what plants do, which is essentially to camouflage themselves into their surroundings. WO2 (SSM) Andy 'Spielberg' Waterston ensured that the military aspect of things was carried out correctly but was disgruntled that he never got to utter the immortal line 'Cut!'. The OC, Maj Eric 'Kubrick' Blyth, also popped along to have a look and see whether, or not, a career in television was beckoning for any of his soldiers. Sadly it was not. The Squadron's moment of glory when it came to the small screen lasted approximately two minutes. Solace was taken from the fact that many great actors were not given their chance until later in life. At least it wasn't raining and the ladies from the burger van were most impressed at the Corps's ability to adapt and overcome. However, the lack of a make-up artist and stylist did cause resentment as everyone had to wear clothing courtesy of 'man at Q&M'.

LCpl Nicky Randall leads the potential Det Comms CFT on a wildlife tour of Barry Buddon

Whilst on a military training exercise in Inverness the departing Deputy Brigade Commander, Col Foulkes, made his final visit to the Squadron. Commencing with a tour of Culloden battlefield at breakneck speed he found that both the OC and 21C, Capt Joe Meade, could demonstrate their extensive knowledge of all things tartan to good effect. They then visited the rest of the Squadron at Fort George Training Area and this gave Col Foulkes an opportunity to see the new Chirpcom equipment. A short presentation back at Cameron Barracks was followed by dinner with the Squadron officers. A couple of local libations were put into circulation to assist the festivities.

On 8 May the Squadron and the Corps bade farewell to a true stalwart of 2 Sqn. SSgt Tony 'Baldy' Doherty was dined out by both the Officers and WOs and Sgts Messes. Having served with 2 Sqn in a previous incarnation he has amassed five years service in Dundee over his two tours. He has seen the Squadron go through changes in location, personnel, equipment and role during his tenures as SPSI. His remarkable love and knowledge of Coronation Street did however set him apart from his contemporaries. This along with his encyclopaedic knowledge of film production allowed him to produce some fantastic work for the Squadron. We wish both Tony and Sue all the best for the future in their new home in the Manchester area.

During the last week in April the Squadron had a visit from Dundee's Lord Provost, Mervyn Rolfe. This was the first time that he had been to the Squadron and found out what the TA could do. It was also the first time that the Unit has hosted a civic leader since the Squadron was granted the title of 'City of Dundee Signal Squadron'. The Lord Provost was given a brief on the Unit and then taken on a tour of the TAC where he met various Squadron personnel. The photo opportunity allowed the 2IC the chance to steal the SSM's chair and thus push the SSM off to the periphery of the Squadron photograph. It is still unclear if this has anything to do with the SSM's love of Rangers and the 2IC's preference for Celtic.

Back in March Sgt Daz 'Faldo' Collins decided to disprove the myth that PSIs are lazy and unfit by doing the Fleet half-marathon. He was accompanied on this by Cpl Brian 'Fatboy' Duffus. This was a precursor to the London Marathon which he also ran in support of the Barnardos charity. He finished both runs in respectable times and raised over £1000 by doing so. However, he has steadfastly refused to stop smoking on the grounds it might affect his playboy, devil-may-care image that he has worked so hard to cultivate. Well done Daz.

Sgt Daz 'Marathon Man' Collins strolls past yet another pub in the Fleet Half Marathon

The TA Det Commanders course is occasionally viewed with trepidation but not this year. LCpls Sally 'Big Bird' Purves and Andy 'Romeo' Henderson had trained hard in both the physical aspects as well as the military skills side prior to going to Blandford. This included their own personal CFT under the watchful eye of LCpl Nicky 'I'm dead unfit me' Randall with SSgt Bob 'Methuselah' Tasker and Sgt George 'Tom Thumb' Cowan running alongside for morale encouragement.

The TA National Open Day on 13 March included a raffle for a mountain bike. Stands for all TA units were sited in Dundee city centre and minibuses were on hand to ferry prospective recruits and sightseers up to the Squadron. All attendees were taken on a tour of the TAC with an opportunity to sample various aspects of Squadron life with demonstrations ranging from communications fundamentals to field cooking. This proved successful and several new names are now on the books and in training.

The SOinC, Brig Griffin, visited the Squadron the following day. This was his first visit to the Squadron in his role as SOinC. Following a brief on the Squadron and its' capabilities he was taken on a tour of the unit and met Squadron personnel. This was followed by a buffet lunch with all Squadron members. After this he was taken to one of the local golf courses for a swift eighteen holes with the WO2 (MS) George 'Nicklaus' Hume and Sgt Daz 'Faldo' Collins. Sgt Collins, claims of amateur status were initially believed but ultimately he won out. Another fantastic achievement for the adopted Dundonian.

ATHLETICS

REGIMENTAL ATHLETICS
by Capt (MAA) B. J. Dupree APTC

The Regimental Athletics team has made an excellent start to the 1999 season. The season began with the Blandford Garrison competition held on the evening of Wednesday 12 May. The evening format worked very well, the weather held out and competitors and spectators alike enjoyed a very exciting competition. The ladies competition was a close fought contest, with 1 Sqn eventually triumphing over 3 Sqn. The Men's result was reversed and was won by 3 Sqn, with 1 Sqn a close second. The first real test from outside units came at the 5th Division Inter Unit Team Championships, which was held at Blandford Garrison on Wednesday 26 May. The home advantage was put to good use and both the Ladies and Men's teams were crowned Divisional champions. The Team entries and results are listed below, the strength of the entry highlights what an excellent result the double triumph was.

The next event in what has been a very busy schedule was the Morrison Cup, which was held at Blandford on Thursday 3 June. The weather defied tradition and remained dry, no doubt inspired by the Commanding Officer, Lt Col Canham's decision to wear a panama. The Balkans crisis thankfully had not yet bit too deep into unit's commitments and a good entry was assembled for the day's competition. 11 Sig Regt convincingly won the men's competition, but the ladies was close fought with three teams neck and neck throughout the day. 11 Sig Regt eventually triumphed and completed a unique double for the Regiment. The trophies were presented by the newly installed SOinC (A) Brig C. J. Burton OBE.

The Morrison Cup was a great success for the Regiment, not only providing the logistics and manpower for this unique event to take place, but also the winning teams. The 1999 Morrison Cup results are listed below:

on his way to winning the 110m Hurdles in the Morrison Cup

The busy summer schedule continued one week later with the Inter Corps Championships held at Blandford Garrison on Wednesday 9 June. The Regiment provided over 50% of the Royal Signals team in what was a high quality event. The Royal Signals ladies team were captained by Cpl Francis of 3 Sqn, and contained the majority of the Regimental team. They held off spirited challenges from the Royal Logistics Corps and the Adjutant Generals Corps to be crowned Inter Corps champions. The male team was a close second and a hectic but very successful three weeks competition ended on a high note. The team's performance has been a total team effort, but the following are to be congratulated on being chosen to represent the Army at the Inter Services Championships to be held at Portsmouth on Wednesday 7 June.

CORPS FOOTBALL END OF SEASON REPORT 1998-99

by WO2 (RQMS) Buckingham

The Corps football team have now completed the Merit League fixtures for the 1998/99 season despite being over-stretched in manpower and commitments. This season saw the introduction of a new management team, WO1 (RSM) Higgins running the team, WO2 (RQMS) Buckingham taking over as the Secretary and Maj Ponton also adding his own experience to ensure the smooth running of all matters. The season started with what is now an annual friendly fixture against RAF Log Sp at Blandford. The Corps ran out resounding winners 7-1 in a game which usually gives a sterner test.

THE MERIT LEAGUE - MASSEY TROPHY

The first game was away to the Royal Armoured Corps at Bovington. On a small, tight pitch the Corps found it difficult to mark their authority on the game against a well built physical opposition. However, perseverance was the order of the day and despite not playing well, the Corps managed to get the right result - a 3-1 victory. Goals came from Sgt Dean Boughen, Sig Craig Hattie and LCpl Richards.

The mood was one of determination for the next match against the Adjutant Generals Corps at Worthy Down. The players realised the stark reality of this league - no match will be easy and all points gained will have to be worked for. A performance of quality ensured the Corps were never likely to be in danger. A 4-1 win could have been more but was enough to bring a smile of satisfaction to the team manager. Goals came from Sig John Stephenson, LCpl Joey Collins, Sgt Dean Boughen and Sig Jimmy Murrey. This put the Corps in good spirits for the next game just before Christmas for the visit of the Infantry team to Blandford. This game is always a tough one and the Infantry are always capable of beating the best on their day. However, the Corps were determined not to let the Infantry get a chance and totally dominated a fast and frenetic game. The chances came thick and fast but were not taken until after the Infantry goalkeeper was sent off. Goals by Sig John Stephenson and Sig Curley Watts ensured the Corps won a vital match and keep the pressure on the other teams at the top of the merit league.

The first game of the new year was away to the AMS at Ash Vale. A game of missed opportunities for the Corps ended in a 1 - 1 draw. LCpl Joey Collins getting the goal. Lessons were learnt by the team for being over-confident and experimenting too much. The next match against the RLC at Hullavington proved to be full of incidents: Having had two players sent off in debatable circumstances the Corps found themselves a goal down and really up against it. However, a battling display by nine men and some rather naive defending by the RLC, Cpl Alfie Alford caused mayhem for the RLC. Having scored the equaliser after a period of prolonged pressure the RLC went ahead again with a harsh penalty decision. It then turned upside-down when the Corps got a penalty themselves which Cpl Gary Hayhurst dispatched comfortably. It was then left to Cpl Alfie Alford to finish the job with a low drive into the corner. It was an excellent win against a serious rival for the Massey Trophy.

The Corps then entertained the APTC at Blandford. A resounding 7-0 victory was recorded against a weakened APTC side. Goals were scored by LCpl Joey Collins (2), Sig John Stephenson (2), Sig Jimmy Murray, Sig 'Curley' Watts and LCpl 'Johnno' Johnston. This was followed up the following week with another impressive performance against the AAC with the Corps running out winners by 5-0. Goals were scored by LCpl Joey Collins (2), Sig 'Galli' Galliford (2) and Sig 'Sniffer' Clarke. This meant the Corps went into the Quadrangular Tournament unbeaten and with great expectation on the teams shoulders due to home advantage with this competition. between RA, REME, RE and R SIGNALS being hosted at Blandford for the first time.

THE QUADRANGULAR TOURNAMENT

The first game against the RA ended 2-2 which was acceptable considering the unusually lack lustre performance by the team. An own goal in the last five minutes ensured a share of the points for the Corps after it had started so well with Sig 'Galli' Galliford volleying home. This meant it all came down to the game against the RE on the Wednesday. With both sides unbeaten it was 'winner takes all'.

Sig John Stephenson takes on the RE Defence

The game started nervously for both teams until just before half time RE scored a goal which the assistant referee signalled for offside. The referee chose to ignore his decision and allow the goal. The second half saw the game explode into life with the Corps putting up a spirited display with only ten players having had LCpl 'Leo' Ross, sent off. Goals by LCpl Joey Collins and then Sig John Stephenson put the Corps 2-1 up with seven minutes to go. Then disaster struck when the RE managed to exploit their numerical advantage to score an equaliser. A nightmare scenario followed when they snatched a winning goal deep into time added on. This result meant the RE had won both the Merit League and virtually the Quadrangular Cup.

The final game of the season came against REME. A deflated performance by the Corps meant a 2-2 draw secured only third place in this year's competition. Goals from Sig John Stephenson (2). The RE became the first side in over 14 years to win all three Quadrangular matches. Congratulations must go to them on doing a clean sweep of all the silverware.

FINAL PLACING

The Corps finished the season a creditable second behind RE in the Merit League which is an improvement from fourth place the previous season. The Corps retained the Boyne Trophy by drawing this season's fixture with REME. The Corps Football performance for season 1998/99 in the Merit League was as follows:

Royal Signals Corps Football Team 1998/99

Played	Won	Drew	Lost	For	Against	Points
10	6	3	1	31	12	21

REPRESENTATIVE FOOTBALL

The Corps has continued to provide the Army Football team and Combined Services Football teams with more players than any other Arm or Corps this season. WO1 (RSM) Higgins is now on the Coaching Staff of both the Army and Combined Services teams. Sgt Dean Boughan, Cpl Alfie Alford, LCpl Joey Collins, LCpl John Johnston, Sig Jamie Galliford and Sig 'Curley' Watts have all represented the Army during this season. The Combined Services Football Association selected both Cpl Alfie Alford and WO1 (RSM) Higgins (Coaching Staff) to represent the Combined Services in the Kentish Cup against the Dutch and Belgique Armed Forces.

The Association communicates with its branches and individual members through the pages of The Wire, which contains accounts of Branch affairs as well as a forecast of Association events.

Branch Secretaries are asked to check that their Branch members receive sufficient copies of The Wire. Association HQ can arrange for copies to be delivered in bulk to Branch Secretaries for further distribution if this is convenient; it helps us save on postage.

Dates of Branch events can always be published in The Wire and should be submitted to the Editor. We also welcome letters, requests to contact old comrades and announcements of births, marriages and deaths. We hope that each Branch will contribute a short account of its activities, preferably with photographs, at least once a year.

NOTES FROM THE AO'S DESK

Branch News - Wally Cutler, Hon Secretary of the North London Branch, has changed his address to; 24 Fayland Cottages, Hare Str, Buntingford, Herts SG9 0EE. Tel: 01763-289492. Capt Guy Richards has succeeded Steve Morgan as Hon Secretary of The Airborne Signals Assn, which remains based at 216 Para Sig Sqn, Arnhem Bks, Aldershot GU11 2AU.

For Branch Secretaries - A request from the Editor of 'The Wire'. When submitting cut outs from local newspapers or magazines, please ensure that the items are not covered by any copyright. Authority from the originator should accompany the item.

Empire Field of Remembrance - The Queen Mother intends to open the Empire Field of Remembrance at Westminster Abbey on Thursday 11 November. The opening service will incorporate the two minutes silence, now traditional on the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month. This necessitates advancing the usual timings and all those who plan to attend should now be in position by 1030 hours at the latest. As in previous years, The Association will lay crosses in the Corps plot. Following the service, members are cordially invited to join the Chairman of The Association for a buffet lunch in Mercury House, Duke of York's HQ, Chelsea.

Reunion - Around 600 members and their guest attended the RSA Annual Reunion at Blandford over the weekend 26/27 June 1999. The weather was kind enabling everyone to enjoy a memorable weekend. The Arena display included a re-enactment by the Corps Museum's Living History Society, of the 'Go to it' painting by Peter Archer. It depicted the battle at the Pegasus Bridge, complete with a low fly over by an old Dakota.

The finalists of the Standard Bearers drill competition were Peter Howells (Swindon Branch), Barry Moody (Scarborough), Michael Hawkins (Bristol), Harry Ruff (West London), Bill McNamara (Glasgow) and Graham Krinks (Southport). A gob-smacked Peter Howells was announced as the winner and Harry Ruff as runner up. The result rounded off a memorable week for Harry as he was on his honeymoon.

My personal thanks to WO1 Keith Fisher MBE, OC Iron Troop, 11 Sig Regt, for running the competition so well. It was good to see Doug Woollford and Bill Harmsworth from the Royal Hospital, Chelsea at the Reunion. It was a delight to have them here and know that they enjoyed the whole weekend. I hope the boys from Glasgow Branch arrived home without hitch - their train broke down en route to Salisbury. Over 250 members took part in the March Past on Sunday with the Master of Signals taking the salute.

Reunion Video - A video recording of the 1999 RSA Reunion at Blandford has been produced and a 30 minute tape showing the highlights is available from Association HQ at £10.00 (which includes P & P).

ALDERSHOT BRANCH

In the last edition we reported on our 50th Anniversary Dinner (or was it the 78th Anniversary?) the photographs of which are now available and give an excellent impression of this memorable event. It was a hard act to follow but a month later we were pleased to be able once again to host our Annual Quiz Night. This attracted more than 70 contestants including many from neighbouring Branches and Units in Aldershot Garrison.

Carole Thomas is to be congratulated on putting together a series of questions at just the right level to make everyone feel they were in with a chance. Indeed it was a close fought competition in which the honours eventually went to team - Foot Men (?) from Reading Branch who just pipped Adam, one of the home teams led by Nigel and Betty Ribchester. Teams from 251 Sig Sqn and the WRAC Association (The Lionesses) were just unlucky not to be on the prize list. The evening was once again acknowledged to be a great success by virtue of bringing a wide spectrum of serving and retired members of the Association together. Great credit for this success goes to Neville Lyons who acted as Quiz Master for the night.

Earlier in the year, thanks to the enthusiasm of our Branch President, Gen Henry Hild, we turned out in some force to support the Corps Rugby Team in their match against the Army Physical Training Corps in the stadium at Aldershot. It was a famous victory for Royal Signals by a comfortable margin. Players of former years gave vociferous support throughout the afternoon.

BATH & DISTRICT BRANCH

Since our last report the Branch has had its 50th AGM, in April 1999. As reported in the February Wire because of the difficulties our far flung members find in attending an evening AGM, this year we tried a lunch time meeting. This worked as we had a greater attendance in the WOs' & Sgts' Mess, 21 Signal Regiment, Colerne, and was much more satisfactory. WO1 (RSM) J. Williams, 21 Signal Regiment attended (in uniform by request because as the Chairman, Lt Col Geoff Oakley said, "It is so nice to see a real Soldier!') and extended the courtesies of the Mess to the Association Branch members.

In May the Branch had another very successful Curry Lunch. As the kitchens at Pockeridge House, the Officers' Mess of 2 Signal Brigade were being reorganised, the lunch was held at the Amenity Centre, Basil Hill Barracks, Corsham and was well attended. We were all particularly chuffed to have the SOinC, Brig C. J. Burton OBE, feeling especially honoured to be among the first to entertain him. The photograph shows him chatting to one of our members, Maj Gen (Retd) David Horsfield OBE, who figured on the front cover of the April WIRE with the late King Hussein of Jordan.

BRIGHTON BRANCH

In March we had our Annual Wine & Cheese Evening. This event is always popular and this year was no exception. There were 40 members and friends who attended. Gordon Holloway found some unusual wines whilst Audrey Chinchen found more than 20 different cheeses. Joe Soap, who you may remember, complained that last year we did not have any camel's cheese. This year he complained that we did not have any mare's cheese. 'Ah' we said, 'You need to go to Ulan Bator for that.' Sad to say he got muddled up on the Trans Siberian Railway and went to Janno Touva instead. We await his return.

Margaret Holloway (L) and Audrey Chinchen

April is when we had our Annual Quiz Night. Last year R. Sigs Assoc won the Shield. This year it went to 884 Tp. Their winners were Sgt Vincent, LCpl Boyden and LCpl Cox, alias 'The Bra Poppers'. We had a splendid result from the Raffle, thanks to Jo White.

May saw us delighted to welcome our President, Brig Colin Brown, who came to give us a talk, 'First In Last Out', a personal view of the Gulf War. Basing his dialogue on personal experience, supported by treasured press cuttings, his own diary, emotive poetry and an exciting video, Brig Colin took us through a great mix of Gulf War perceptions. The whole evening was a great success and we renew our thanks for the great pleasure he gave us. The Wednesday 'Coffee Mornings' continue to flourish and as a result we have enrolled five more Members. Meanwhile your humble scribe continues to push The Wire.

Due to excellent support we are running a minibus to Blandford on 26 June. This delights your humble scribe who is anxious to see the new Army Pigeon Service display. 'Pigeon Pie?' did I hear you say? Certainly not!

EAST KENT BRANCH

The Royal Signals Association Branch Representatives meeting and AGM was held in London on 10 April. There was a strong posse from the Branch with the Chairman, Hon Treasurer, and Hon Sec all being driven in style by the V/Chairman and joined by six other members It was a good meeting and included an extremely interesting description by the SOinC of the Corps's present activities.

On Sunday 9 May, 23 members gathered at the Queen Charlotte Inn in Rochester to partake of what might be described as a 'real soldier's lunch'. Afterwards many invaded the Dickens Centre which had just admitted about 70 French school children. Whether or not the party derived much cultural benefit was perhaps open to question but it is well worth a visit anyway. As usual Donald Crisp, Chairman and Artist does not miss an opportunity, even whilst in Jersey himself.

THE OPENING OF THE EXHIBITION OF 'THE FORGOTTEN WAR'

On 25 March the Hon Sec, Maj Gen John Badcock attended the opening (he still does not know why!) with Lt Col Mike Barrett who was eminently qualified to do so. This excellent and much delayed exhibition is now part of The Land Warfare Museum at the Imperial War Museum, Duxford. It is a most fitting tribute to those who served in Burma; the whole display of which it now forms an integral part is well worth a visit.

NEW MEMBERS

A warm welcome is extended to Mr Robin Mason of Chatham, he served as a Regular from 1975-84 with the School of Signals, in Hong Kong, 8 Field Force at Tidworth and with 5AB HQ & Sig Sqn in the rank of Lance Corporal.

Mr Charles and Mrs Gladys Baker of Faversham. Charles served from 1944-48 in Northern Ireland and then on the North West Frontier in 3rd Indian Armd Bde HQ and later at Secunderabad in 1st Indian Armd Div HQ as a Lance Corporal.

Mr George Foggo of Sidcup. George was a Regular who served from 1957-79 in 3 GHQ Sig Regt, Cyreniaca Sig Tp, 16 Sig Regt, 19 Air Portable Bde, 248 Gurkha Sig Sqn in Hong Kong, in 30 Sig Sqn incl UNICEF, and finally with 55 Sig Sqn TA and held the rank of WO2.

Mr Percy Thorne of Maidstone. Percy served as a National Service man from 1943-47. He was with 105 Inf Bde Sig Sqn through France and Germany and when the War was over, served with 17 Inf Bde Sig Sqn. He was a Signalman.

We look forward to seeing them all soon at one of our functions.

NEWS OF MEMBERS.

John Kendal due to pressure of other commitments has had to resign. He was a Founder member and we are sorry to say au revoir. Bob and Gwenda Morris have moved house to Sittingbourne. Bob Mitchell, following the sad death of Doreen, has gone to live with his daughter in Italy but is keeping the flat in Ramsgate and hopes to attend some functions when he is there.

GLASGOW BRANCH

At the Branch meeting on 16 February 1999 Ex WO1 (RSM) Jim MacLachlan, who has just retired from active service as a regular after 24 years service with the Royal Signals, the last two years as RSM at 32 Sigs, was officially welcomed into the Branch as a new member. Bill Taylor, the Branch President, presented him with a hip flask suitably inscribed and a bottle of whisky with a personalised label specially printed with Jim's name on it. These were from the Branch members to thank him for his support of the Branch whilst he was the RSM. Jim thanked the members for their gifts and good wishes. He said he was pleased to be able to join the Branch and, knowing the members of the Regiment, would assist in any way he could to keep and foster the goodwill existing between the Branch and the Regiment as he had whilst he was the RSM.

At the AGM, with Maj Gen A. A. G. Anderson CB, Honorary President of the Glasgow Branch presiding, were 28 members and six associate members, apologies were intimated from six members. In his opening remarks the President thanked the members for the flowers and good wishes expressed by them to his wife, over the last 15 months during her illness, which prevented them participating in the Branch activities. He went on to say…..

'You have had another very successful year which reflects well on your committee and individual members and their wives. I would particularly like to congratulate Bill McNamara for winning the Standard Bearers Competition at the Blandford Reunion. This brings great credit to himself and the Branch. I am delighted to hear that you have continued to have a varied and innovative programme of events throughout the past year and I congratulate all those involved in organising them and am pleased that they have all been well supported. I see that you held a Burns Night Supper, with 43 sat round the table to enjoy the haggis and traditional toasts, recitations and speeches, and I am pleased that the St Andrew's Dinner and Dance went with a swing once more. I also congratulate you on your continuing support to the Blandford Reunion, the Remembrance Day Parade in Glasgow, and 32 (Scottish) Signal Regiment's Annual Camp. Last, but not least, I would like to record the Branch's continuing debt of gratitude to the Regiment for their support and friendship. I wish you well during the coming year and am sure that you will continue to flourish.'

Glasgow AGM

Bill Taylor, Branch Chairman, reported that it was again time for our Annual General Meeting, and to look back and see what we have done as a Branch over the past year. Our membership at 1 April was 86 Life Members, and 14 Associate Members with applications in the pipeline for another three life members. One member Jim Kerr passed on during the year. The average attendance at Branch meetings had been 34, which is very pleasing when you consider we have a core of only about 50 members who are active in the Branch. The annual trip to Blandford for the reunion was undertaken by 11 members and everyone enjoyed the weekend, the highlight of which was Bill McNamara winning the Standard Bearers competition. Bill had put in a lot of hard work practicing and was a worthy winner. The Branch can be very proud to have such a smart Standard Bearer. Twelve members went on a three day visit to 32 Sig Regt during their annual camp at Ripon, Yorkshire in September and thoroughly enjoyed the occasion - I wonder why?- we never have any problems getting members to accept this invitation. For the Remembrance Day parade at George Square, we had 35 members on parade, our biggest number yet, and were congratulated on our turnout and marching. Well done everybody on parade. After the parade we joined the Regiment for a most enjoyable brunch provided by Capt John Lynch, Master Chef John Wren and his team of chefs and catering staff. Our St Andrew Dinner and Dance was a success, 85 members and guests sat down to an excellent meal provided by Master Chef John Wren and his team from the Regiment. The Christmas night social was well attended, a very enjoyable night. The Branch had its first Burns Supper organised on 23 January, 43 members and guests attended. It was well presented and a wonderful night. As in the past the Regiment has given us all the help and support we have needed. Everybody from the Commanding Officer down to the male and female soldiers in the JRC gave us wonderful support. Thank you everybody, it is nice to know we are still part of the family. The committee worked hard during the past year and he thanked them and also the ladies in the Branch, for all their hard work making the buffets for our social evenings. As we go towards the next millennium, he said how he was satisfied that the Branch is going in the right direction and would still go from strength to strength due to the support and generosity given by the Members, their families and their friends. He took the opportunity of thanking everyone, and said, 'Lets make the year 2000 a good one, my best wishes to everyone.'

Ivana Muir, the Branch Secretary, reported 1998/9 has been a good year for the Branch. Ivana then mentioned the time at the Reunion drinking champagne on celebrating Bill's win in the Standard Bearers contest and the Sunday visit to Edinburgh Castle to see the RBS Scotland combined bands Beating Retreat with high tea at the Forte Hotel. Ivana mentioned that the arrangements for the year 2000 are in the hands of Central Committee and Branches will be advised of the outcome. The Corps will be celebrating the year 2000 with a week of competition and sporting events in May, and have applied for the Princess Royal to attend. Catterick Branch has been chosen to look into the proposed supply of a badge to celebrate the millennium. Details will be issued to the Branches.

Eric McWater, the Branch Treasurer (and Super Sales Scot), gave an excellent report on the Branch expenditure and the latest financial position, with a bob or two in the black. Eric has excelled himself over the years in keeping the Branch on the right footing for income and expenditure. He stated that from the report it could be seen that we were dependent upon our Branch membership fee as our main financial base. All members should support the Branch and, whenever possible, encourage new members to join us. He once again thanked all Branch Members, their families and friends for their continued financial support over the year, enabling him to pay our bills on time and wished the Branch continued success in the year to come.

Jim McMillan, Branch Social Convenor, said that he was open to suggestions from the members as to what type of functions they would like and he would see if they were feasible to arrange at reasonable cost. He hoped members would attend the social functions and thanked the members and the main committee for their help in making it a success. A vote of thanks was passed to the President and then the members adjourned to the bar and the buffet, which was provided by the lady members of the Branch. The members applauded the ladies and very much appreciated their efforts in providing the victuals when required.

At the Branch meeting on 24 April members were welcomed by WO2 Karen Swan to the open day arranged by the Regiment, to allow us to see their equipment, and for most of us it was an eye opener compared to what we trained and operated on. It was very interesting and I for one would not like to be the QM i/c Tech Stores to account for all the bits and bobs I saw laid out beside the wagons. After a great deal of discussion with the troops, and the ease with which they were able to explain how they operated the equipment, the members were invited to a buffet lunch.

After lunch the members were invited to the simulated firing range in the buildings occupied by the 52nd Lowland Division. WO2 John Bell of the 52nd Lowland Div was the instructor, on details of what equipment is carried by the troops, and the improvements in kit compared to pre and WW2 troops, except for the canteen which has not altered since we last saw one. He was an excellent instructor even making the Bergen sound interesting. He talked quietly and then could make one jump with a barked command. He joked and made the members laugh, but, with some salty language got the message across.

The simulated range with the laser beam from the rifles on to the screen, plus the sound of the rifle being fired made it so realistic. The screen went from urban to jungle, and required a great deal of concentration on the part of the members, who opted to try their hand at firing the weapons from the firing point. To see the enemy fully camouflaged rise out of the ground just in front of you, or shoot at one and see him fall out of a tree. In the urban scene to recognise an enemy at a window or an innocent civilian, in seconds before firing. A thoroughly enjoyable day's outing. Serious to a degree, but entertaining with a superb instructor. The members thank the CO of 32 Sig Regt, Lt Col A. G. C. Lapsley for arranging the open day. WO2 Karen Swan and WO2 John Bell for a very interesting day out.

During the monthly meeting on 18 May Bill Taylor, the Branch Chairman, notified the members that one of the founder members of the Glasgow Branch ex SSgt Bob Bell had died. He asked members to stand for a minute in silence to his memory. He had served with several members of the Branch and several were able to attend the funeral. The Branch Secretary, Ivana was able to inform those members going to the Blandford Reunion, of the costs and the seating arrangements booked on the trains. The cost of meals and arrangement for accommodation. All we need is good weather. The Social Convener, Jim McMillan is arranging a coach trip to Inverness with a stop at a distillery on the way, with about four hours in Inverness, before a meal arranged in the Inverness Branch RBLS premises. Notice of the Branch's existence has been placed with Service Pals, where there seems a delay in publication, also with the Mature Tymes publication, and with the Scottish Legion News, published by The Royal British Legion Scotland, where we hope to enlist some more members to play an active part in the Branch activities.

NORFOLK BRANCH

Col S. P. Foukes TD DL with Donald Ellingworth at the unveiling of the plaque to Don's father and the Lt Comd he worked with, who were both killed when the parachute mine they were trying to render harmless, exploded killing them both. They were both awarded a posthumous George Cross, not only for this mine but also for all the work they had done together. Five members of a Royal Engineers Bomb Disposal Unit are also remembered.

The Norfolk Branch continues to flourish and leads a fairly active life, we are getting a steady influx of new members which includes some recently discharged Soldiers two of which are: Andie Osborne and Steve Nobbs who have got right in with the spirit of the Branch, Andie has agreed to be our new standard bearer and will carry the standard at the June reunion. Meanwhile Steve is to be the next Branch Secretary and will take over from Brian C. Gibbs at the next AGM. Brian will have been Branch Secretary for the past nine years and he thinks its about time he moved over.

We had our AGM last March, it was very well attended as all our monthly meetings are, and all the Branch Officers were elected en-bloc as were the Committee. The Chairman, Frank Mortlock and Treasurer, Richard Green stated that this would be their last year in office and that they would like someone else to take over at the next AGM.

We recently visited Bletchley Park, all thirty of us, and we found it to be a fascinating experience. We were treated like Royalty. The tour around the House and grounds was conducted by Dr Peter Jarvis who is an authority on all matters that took place there including the secrets of the 'Enigma' machines. The visit was arranged by Ex 'Y'-Service member Derrick Carr for which we all thank him.

Twenty of the Branch will be attending the Maj Generals review of the Trooping of the Colour this year in London, it's a lovely day out and we all really enjoy it. Last year we met several members of the Peterborough Branch, greetings were exchanged and photos taken which made it a complete day out.

At our annual Branch Dinner held in March our guest from RHQ was Administrative Officer Peter Cuckow and wife Sheila. Peter was welcomed by Chairman, Frank Mortlock, and responded with latest Association news, which was very heartening.

It was a very well attended Dinner and a good time was had by all. Peter was presented with a Branch Tie to give to the Museum. At a recent meeting Branch President, Don Ellingworth, presented Service Officer Reg Hannant with a 'Corps' shield to be placed at the bedside of any hospitalised members.

NORTHERN IRELAND BRANCH

We are saddened by the passing of our immediate past Chairman, Tommy Maguire. We will miss him (please turn to The Last Post section for a fuller tribute).

Readers of this column may remember that a year or so ago I asked if any other Branch had bye-laws which we could, perhaps, copy. Having had no response we roughed some out over a period but could not find time to complete them and asked John Loveday (Now Chairman but then Vice-Chairman) to finish the job. Thanks to John for trimming them up and having them printed out and passed at the April meeting. If any Branch is interested in introducing bye-laws we would be happy to provide a copy to them.

Our May meeting (which the writer unfortunately missed due to holidays) took the form of a social and games evening hosted by Support Squadron, 40 (Ulster) Sig Regt with various games including darts and a number of teams took part in a quiz. A most enjoyable evening concluded with a very acceptable buffet. The thanks of the Branch go to branch Member WO2 (SSM) George Cooke and Sp Sqn for organising the event, for their hospitality, provision of prizes and the buffet.

It hardly seems that a year has passed since the 1998 Blandford re-union but Edgar McCall has been fully occupied trying to organise the 1999 trip which takes place in two weeks time while Jim Reilly has been collecting, over the year, monthly savings for those who avail themselves of this Branch facility. Our members serving in 40 (U) Sig Regt (V) will be going direct from annual camp to meet up with the remainder of the delegation at Blandford. Although they are all looking forward to the reunion, it will be with some sadness as this will be the first time for some years that Tommy Maguire will not be with them.

Due to TAVR Camp and stand down there will be no meetings in June or July but we will meet again in August. New Members and Visitors will be welcome.

READING BRANCH

Two and a half teams represented Reading at the Quiz Night held at Aldershot Garrison Sergeants Mess on Thursday 20 May 1999, hosted by the Aldershot Branch of the Royal Signals Association. The team names were 'The Footmen' (Not servants but The Berkshire Yeomanry which of course everybody knows today are the Royal Signals) and the 'Half Wits'. I am very pleased to report 'The Footmen' team of Gloria Isaacs, Chris Lewis, Dave Norris and Alan were the winners. Congratulations, and thank you Aldershot for those wonderful prizes.

Is it becoming endemic among associations and other charitable organisations that Annual General Meetings are attracting minimal audiences? Sadly our association suffered thus on Friday 21 May 1999 when we held ours. Never mind, those who did not manage to attend because of those thousands of good reasons can rest assured that once again our Branch is in the safe hands of a revamped committee. The new crew are as follows: President – Maj Gen W. T. Macfarlane, Chairman - D. J. 'Jeff' Hazel, Vice-Chairman/Coordinator - Pauline Tennant, Branch Administrator - Alan Foot, 50 Club Secretary - David Norris, PRO - Hugh Saunders, Social Secretary - Thelma Wakefield, Newsletter Secretary - Julia... The post of Welfare Officer did not get filled. If there is anybody out there who would like to help, please contact our Branch.

Several of our members made it to our 'Mecca' the Blandford Reunion 1999 and gathered for a champagne picnic. This has become the event we most look forward to as somebody amongst us always seems to meet an old veteran who he 'hasn't met for fifty years.'

SCARBOROUGH BRANCH

The Scarborough Branch of the Royal Signals Association, by making a donation of £280.00, has enabled Springhead School to buy a new flotation blanket aid for the youngsters. With this blanket they are able to relax in the school's pool and practice exercises which will help their mobility. Wendy Popple, the Senior Physiotherapist, said that the Branch had offered to help buy new equipment after spotting an article about a charity donation featured in the Evening News.

Wendy said that the blanket is like having an extra pair of hands in the pool. It is a wonderful piece of equipment and the children find that it's great fun. Brian Mortimer, the Branch Treasurer, said that they give to charity every year. They have a big Whisky bottle which they fill with coppers and the odd pound coin.

SOUTHAMPTON BRANCH

On Sunday 18 April the Branch held their annual lunch at Southampton Cricket Club. More than eighty members and their partners attended together with our Guest of Honour, Col Ken Hadfield. It is the second time that this event has been held at the Cricket Club and all agreed that it was a great success. Col Hadfield spoke about the role of the Corps in the modern army. Our photograph shows Brig Johnny Clinch (President), George Packer (Chairman) and Col Ken Hadfield.

The Branch has recently formed a Social Committee in order to arrange events of interest. A dinner arranged at a restaurant between Southampton and Salisbury attracted nearly thirty members and partners. Other events are in the pipeline. A newsletter has been started and is to be issued quarterly.

We regret to announce the deaths of two members of the Branch Alex Winter, who was our Standard Bearer for more than twenty-five years, joined the TA in 1932. He was with the 43rd Wessex Division and in 1942 was posted to Italy. He rose to the rank of CQMS. Ron Fletcher, a stalwart member of the Association was CSM at 43rd Division HQ and landed in Normandy shortly after D Day. He joined the TA in 1939.

SOUTHPORT & DISTRICT BRANCH

Our Annual Dinner Dance was a great success. Held as usual at the famous Scarisbrick Hotel in Southport. Lt Col Ian Thomas was our Guest of Honour. He gave an excellent speech updating us all on the present state of the Corp. We are now planning our Millennium Dinner Dance, and have already booked the band and the champagne.

RSA (Southport & District) Dinner/Dance

We have welcomed six new members so far this year. Anyone interested in joining us would be made most welcome. We meet on the third Thursday of the month at the Conservative club, Bath Street, Southport at 8 o'clock. Or contact Peter Dooley on 01704 569083 for details.

WEST LONDON BRANCH

At our Meeting in April it was the pleasant duty of our Chairman, Maj 'Dusty' Miller to present the 50 Year Badge to Sam Coombes, a dedicated Member of the Branch.

In May eighteen of our Members joined the Aldershot Branch on their annual Quiz Night, fielding no less than three teams. Alas, Hercules, The Bodiceas and The Mixers did not quite manage to defeat our neighbouring Branches. We think they must have had inside information. At all events, we had a good night out with our friends of the Corps. We are now planning our Millennium Dinner Dance, and have already booked the Band and the champagne. We have welcomed six new members so far this year. Anyone interested in joining us would be made most welcome. We meet on the third Thursday of the month at the Conservative Club, Bath Street, Southport at eight o'clock, or contact Peter Dooley on 01704 569083.

THE MIDDLESEX YEOMANRY ASSOCIATION

This year's Cavalry Memorial Parade in Hyde Park on 9 May was a success, despite the military bands being cut down to only four. The salute was taken by HRH The Prince of Wales.

As our photo shows a very smart body of Association members gave a good account of themselves at the March Past. Our members were led by Col Tim Scarlett BEM TD. Nicholas Bartlett carried the banner in a very able manner. Several other members of the Association attended the service but were unable to march. Len Smith and Ted Hawkins were Parade Marshalls and did a fine job keeping a very large parade in order. The weather was kind to us which greatly pleased our wives and partners. After the Parade, Members wined and dined at the Knightsbridge Barracks.

A couple of dates for your diary, 8 October …. The Annual Dinner at the Duke of York's HQ Chelsea. The Guest of Honour this year is Lt Col J. Crackett TD. The other date is 10 October, 'Lafone Day' at St Paul's Cathedral. Another good turnout for members, wives and partners are more than welcome on both occasions.

Finally it is with deep sadness that we mourn the death of Col Bill Williams MBE TD. 'Col Bill', as he was known to everyone, was cremated at Finchley Crematorium on 23 April. A Guard of Honour was formed by members of the Band and a trumpeter from the band played the Last Post. Out thoughts are with his wife and daughter. He was a gentleman and a soldier of the highest quality. He will be sadly missed by his friends and comrades.

31 SIGNALS REGIMENTAL ASSOCIATION

The Association is still on the move and going from strength to strength. A successful AGM was well attended and chaired by our leader Col Donald Crawford. Also in attendance was the CO, Lt Col Linda Harrison, The Adjutant, Capt Mel Raynor and WO1 (RSM) John Gibson. This year the 'Fish & Chip' member was George Collins. Our Annual Dinner at Mercury House was another success, well attended and very convivial. The CO, Lt Col Linda Harrison, was in very good form with her after dinner speech. Congratulations to our Secretary, Henry Holman, and his team of workers for a good evening. A special thanks to LCpl Garrity for surviving behind the bar against heavy odds.

Our overseas trip, this year organised by Maj 'Dusty' Miller, was to the Somme Battlefields. Sixty-eight people on a double-decker bus is a wonderful sound when they are singing Mongolian sea shanties. The following day, after a night of drinking 'duty frees' and exploring the local wine bars, quietness appeared to be the order on what turned out to be a scorcher of a day. Then it happened, the coach shuddered to a halt in the middle of nowhere, on a small French road. Brig Ann Field and Brig Ian Rose, supported by four Colonels, decided that the best thing to do was to make a cup of coffee. Traffic control was organised by Maj Bob Simpson in the best Royal Signals tradition. Then, as if by magic, a fleet of taxis arrived and got everyone back to base to catch up on their eating and drinking time, by midnight the song sheets were out again.

The next function organised by 'Dusty' was the final rehearsing of the Trooping of the Colour on Horseguards. The salute was taken by HRH The Princess Royal in excellent fashion. Then some of the party had to travel across London to Sgt Cattrall's wedding. The Best Man was John Stephenson. The weather stayed fine and the whole occasion went like clockwork. We wish Gloria and Derek all the very best for their future together.

REUNIONS

602 SIGNAL TROOP (AOF)

The Reunion for 1999, was held on 17 April at the Copthorne Hotel, Dudley and what an outstanding success it proved to be after much bartering over prices for the accommodation and the dinner, by our Secretary, Danny Williams.

Most of the members arrived early on the Saturday to take full advantage of the leisure complex (the ladies that is) and the men took full advantage of the bar, to talk over old times and meet members as they were arriving. Approximately 87 members and wives sat down to dinner and it was so good to see so many new faces from the past. Gen Bill Robins, who was our Guest of Honour at our reunion dinner last year, came this year in his own right as a fully paid up member, having been an ex OC of the Troop.

Sadly our President, Lt Col (Rtd) Bill Lidster, could not make it this year so our Chairman, Mike Hope, after giving his speech of the progress of the AOF called on our ex-Chairman, Ken Purnell, to say a few words on behalf of our President. He said how good it was to see the younger element of past Troop members attending the dinner and how important it was for them to be there and keep the AOF going as the old and bold are getting older everyday. It was good to see some of the older members getting out of their bath-chairs and make the effort, such as Dave Hay, Pat Gratten, Alan Micklethwaite, Jacko Jackson, John Stanley plus still serving members Col Jim Ross, Maj Gordon Duncan and so many more that I apologise if I have failed to mention them, they all turn up year after year.

Our next Reunion will be held in Liverpool at the famous TV series Hotel Adelphi in late April plus we have been offered accommodation at a very reasonable rate, £50 per double room. Our membership figures have now reached 166 paid-up members, even if some of them have to be reminded about their fees, but if you were a member of 602 Troop (SC) at any time regardless of your trade or rank (no, you don't have to have been an operator) and if you would like to join the 602 Association of Friends and meet your friends of the past who you may have lost contact with, please write or telephone our Secretary, Mr Danny Williams, 78 Gorham Drive, St Albans, Hertfordshire AL1 2HP, Tel: 01727 833955 and he will be only to pleased to inform you of how you can join the AOF and attend our next reunion. So don't delay call Danny today.

ANNUAL REUNION HELD ON THE 24TH APRIL 1999
by Steve Freeman - Pannett

This year we had to move to new accommodation due to the fact that there would be a few more members joining us for this Reunion. So we went to the small town of Loughborough, a place well known in the Royal Corps of Signals. Our new venue was The Quality Hotel just off the M1. With a few members turning up at the hotel on the Friday 23rd April, I myself decided to drive over from East Anglia to arrive in time to meet the people for breakfast on the Saturday morning, I just made it. After breakfast most of us went into town for a look around and arranged to meet at the Royal British Legion Club for lunch. The invite to come to the club was given to Roy Andrews. On return to the hotel in the afternoon people took advantage of the Hotel's facilities before the evenings activities. As many people arrived during the afternoon, when it came to hold the main meeting at around six-o'clock thirty-one people had turned up and we sat ourselves in the bar area. Roy Andrews on behalf of the president Bill Cunningham opened the evenings meeting. As we are now recognised as an Association by the Corps the formal meeting procedures were observed and towards the end of the meeting the last Officer Commanding the Squadron was introduced.

Mr Roy Andrews (Hon Sec),
Maj (Retd) Bill Cunningham (OC - 1971/73)

Jack Fiskel brought a very pleasant surprise, the presentation of a flag to 260 Signal Squadron Old Comrades Association. Incidentally this was the last flag flown on the flag pole at Dortmund before closure. It was accepted by Bill Cunningham on our behalf and all members showed their appreciation and of course photos were taken for posterity.

Ulla Freeman-Pannett whose birthday was to be on the Sunday was presented with two badges, one red 'I AM 5' and the other '5 TODAY' (no guessing what age she is) but Ulla did wear them for the rest of the weekend. Ida Fowler organised a raffle to support funds (Well done Ida same next year please) which would be drawn during the evening meal but the only prize of half the moneys taken was won by Roy Andrews to a rousing chorus of 'Fiddle.' After the meal we all boarded four mini buses and headed for the RBL club and took part in their evenings activities of Bingo, a raffle in which one member of our party won four of the prizes. To round off the night a cabaret and a sing song before returning to the Hotel, once again to invade the bar until the wee small hours of the morning. Talking of which a few hours later at breakfast on the Sunday, we were all in good spirits (one or two still full of them) but we all slowly said our Good Bye's and departed looking forward to the next Reunion in Dortmund in May 2000. So friends if you know of anybody that served in the Squadron in the Sixties and Seventies who wish to join the people already going to Germany, then please contact Roy Andrews on 01227 264551 or myself, Steve Freeman-Pannet on 01603 300027, you would be made most welcome.

MALTA/LIBYA COMMAND OCA REUNION

At a hotel in Loughborough, Leicester
24/25 September 1999

Any Royal Signals, Regulars, National Service, WRAC and supporting arms who were in Tripolitania, Cyrenaica between 1950 – 1966, are invited to attend. Please contact the Secretary: Mrs Patricia Andrews on 01227 – 264551

THE LANGELEBEN REUNION KONIGSLUTTER 14TH/17TH MAY 1999

Konigslutter am Elm was the destination of 70 plus members and their wives and partners. The 1999 Langeleben Reunion took place in Konigslutter, 23kms east of Brunswick and was to coincide with the Schutzenfeste (shooting festival) which takes place in Konigslutter annually. Members and their wives assembled at the TSGK Sports Club for an evening meal and an informal get together. The meal consisted of pork schnistzel, kartoffeln and vegetables which was kindly organised by our members Dave Twigg, John Richardson and Sid Hicken, who all live in Konigslutter. Dieter Dilling, the Manager of the sports club, did our members proud with the meal. There was plenty for all and even some seconds for those with large appetites. The evening became more and more relaxed as the beer started to flow. Many of our local German friends came along to join in. Most of our members had not seen each other for a year or so and in some cases, 40 years. Hence, I was taken aback when someone approached me and said, 'I bet you don't remember me.' This was Dave Rounce, whom I had not seen since 1961, and who had only decided at the very last minute to attend as he now lives in Nassau in the Bahamas. The last time Dave and I met was at our DF site at Kaltenkirchen, north of Hamburg, in March 1961. The evening was passing very quickly, as it always does when you are enjoying yourself, the last ones were assembled around the bar, while most had made their way back to their hotels.

Saturday 15 May was our AGM at 1100hrs. We were joined by the Burgermeister of Konigslutter and the fire chief, Horst Funke. After a minutes silence for three of our members who had sadly died in the last twelve months, the AGM got underway. This year we are having a change of Chairman, Maj Tom Perkin who has been in the chair since we formed the Langeleben Reunion Club, had asked to stand down due to business and family commitments. Jim Husband who in the past had deputised for Tom, was elected our new Chairman with the re-election of the committee for a further twelve months. When the AGM agenda finished we then presented Herr Arnulf Baumann, the Burgermeister and Fire Chief Horst Funke with honorary membership of the Langeleben Reunion Branch. These were framed membership certificates of our Branch.

The Burgermeister Arnulf Baumann and Fire Chief Horst Funke being made Honorary Members of the Langeleben Reunion Branch
(L-R): Jim Husband – Chairman, Arnulf Baumann, Horste Funke, Frank Mitchell - Secretary

The Burgermeister spoke of his admiration for our Reunion Club and his interest in it. Herr Funke also gave a speech. After we all had partaken in a snack of Bockwurst's and bread rolls, we made our way to the Kaiserdom (cathedral) where we were to meet up with shooting clubs from the district around Konigslutter. We joined the locals in a march through Konigslutter to the market place where speeches of welcome were made to all participants. The lads were welcomed formally by the Burgermeister in English, which was very moving for us. After all the speeches were over the bands started up and off we marched, making our way to the beer tent, some 1km distant.

The March through Konigslutter on 15 June 1999

Passing along streets lined with locals. I'm sure the lads from Langeleben felt very proud, I know I did. Arriving at the beer tent we dismissed and made our way into the tent where two tables had been reserved for the Langeleben contingent. As is usual with German beer tents the beer was flowing fast and furious with beers being sent to our table from every corner of the tent. The bands were still playing and everyone was getting in the mood. After a break, for a wash and change, we all made our way back to the tent for the evenings' entertainment. A good rock group was on stage and even included us with announcements in English. The evening was moving on and more and more locals had joined the Langeleben tables. These friendships had lasted over many years and are still very strong today. The band played on and on and on. Before I knew it, it was three in the morning and the start of another early day.

The Sunday morning was when the locals at the Schutzenfeste held their 'Hangover' breakast, which included free beer for those able to stand the pace. Many members took this opportunity to visit Berlin and the Harz mountains, to see Wernigerode and Quedlingberg which are two old towns of half timbered buildings. Whilst we were stationed at Langeleben we were unable to visit them, as both towns were in the old Eastern Zone. After our various trips we all assembled on the Sunday evening at the 'Sport Klaus' a hostelry which over the years has made all the lads from Langeleben very welcome. After some had had an evening meal. Goodbyes were the order of the evening as many members were making their way home to Blighty. Although some had decided to make a longer stay, but for most this was their last evening in Konigslutter. With a, 'See you next year,' that was the evening over for them. On the Monday, those who stayed on, decided to visit the camp at Langeleben which had now been empty for seven years. It all look rather forlorn and very sad, not like the hive of activity back in the 60's and 70's. Our last night in Konigslutter was now upon us so we said our goodbyes and made for our hotel. Next morning Hamburg was our destination, with an onward journey to Newcastle and home. Another very successful Langeleben Reunion, now it's time to get plans going for our Millennium Reunion.

36 FofS COURSE REUNION

The photo shows those who attended a dinner night in the Royal School of Signals on Saturday 24 April 1999, it includes Trevor Fellows and Bob Taylor who came from Australia and America respectively. Others came and went during the weekend but could not attend the dinner night. Our deepest thanks to ALL who made it a most memorable weekend. The weekend started at 2000hrs on Friday 23 April 1999, in the Crown Hotel in Blandford; continued on the Saturday with a visit to the Royal School of Signals in the morning; lunch at the Langton Arms, Tarrant Monkton; then a visit to the Museum in the afternoon. The day culminated in the dinner night. We lunched in the Sgts' Mess on Sunday 25 April 1999 and tearfully departed at 1500hrs having had a splendid time. For those who have insider knowledge, our thanks go to the person who picked up the bar bill for Room 44W

The next reunion is in Texas in five years time and is going to be organised by Bob Taylor so, start saving, keep in touch and see you there.

Dear Editor,

I am writing to you about my Grandfather in the hope that one of your readers may remember him or have served with him.

He was Sig Stanley Day and, ideally, I am trying to obtain a photograph of him, as no family member has one. I am hoping that just maybe one of your readers may have some snapshots or military photos which might feature him. They could contact me at the above address. Below are the particulars of Grandfather's years of service:

Enlisted into TA and posted to 1 Anti Aircraft Div Sig		1938
Posted to 1 Holding Battalion		1942
Embarked for India		1943
Arrived India & posted Sig Trg Ctr Mhow	March	1943
Posted to 4 Corps Signals	June	1943
Attached to Bellahouston Transit Camp	April	1945
Posted to Depot Battalion	June	1945
Released to Reserve	December	1945
Died		1947

Thanking you in anticipation.

Dear Sir,

Ref: Maj John Norton Stractan R. SIGNALS

I am writing to you on the advice of the Royal Signals Museum who said you may publish a letter for me in your magazine. I am trying to find out about my grandfather who served in the Royal Corps of Signals during the Second World War. I have the following information on him from the War Graves Commission web-site.

Rank: Major
Number: 143977 (dog tag number 399126 CE)
Died: Sunday 11 June 1944

I have been told by my grandmother that he died on 4 of June 1944. I have also been told that he, being a keen potholer, worked on a project to hide troops in the caves at Wookey Hole should the Germans invade. He is also meant to have doubled for Montgomery. I would love to find someone who served with him so that I could find out more about him. If any of your readers can help I would be very grateful. Thank you for your time.

Yours truly…….

WOULD LIKE YOUR HELP

He writes:

I'm wondering if you can help me trace a person I'm looking for, on behalf of my parents. My parents are trying to trace an old army friend they knew when they were serving in Malaya, unfortunately I don't have much information about him as it was a very long time ago. I recently contacted the Royal Signals museum to see if they had any information on him because my parents believed him to be a Signalman. Sadly they had no record of him.

The Royal Signal museum suggested that I contact you in the hope that one of your readers may remember serving with him or know his whereabouts. His name is Peter Evans. He held the rank of Sergeant and was stationed in Malaya between 1955 and 1960. His last known posting was in Germany in 1960. Unfortunately that's all the information I have.

I know it's a long shot but any help that you can give me would be very much appreciated.

Ronald G. Grant would like to contact Robert 'Jock' Lennie (from Glasgow), and any other ex-Royal Signals who were attached to the Long Range Desert Group Patrols, (especially Y2 Patrol) during WWII. Please send any contacts to :

Dear Sir,

I felt that I must write and express my appreciation (and surprise) at the quality and content of The Wire. As a recent Life Member and a veteran, 42-45 of the Royal Signals, it has been surprising how much interest there has been in it for me.

My original unit, 1 Corps (now 7 Signal Regiment), has been most kind in response to a letter that I sent them and but for their deployment to Bosnia, I would have received an invitation to their 40th Anniversary – now postponed. It is my intention to attend the Reunion in June at Blandford.

I make a point of passing my copy of The Wire on to other members – making sure that it is not to someone who would subscribe! I have written previously, hoping for an entry in the 'Lost Comms' section. It is interesting also to see donations from the Certa Cito Lodge.

Yours Sincerely and with all good wishes…….

Dear Col Valder,

The 'One o'clock Gun' Museum Committee, with the backing of Historic Scotland, is presently setting up a 'One o'clock Gun' Museum below the Mills Mount Battery, Edinburgh Castle. The museum is scheduled to open at the beginning of December.

The original cable connecting the time-gun's clock to the Carlton Hill Observatory Hill was rigged by the Royal Engineers. Our travelling exhibition was recently on display at the Edinburgh Room and we are also in the process of preparing a world time-gun travelling exhibition.

We now have an extensive archive covering the world's time-balls and time-guns including the Saint Petersburg Noon Day Gun. We are collaborating with the US Naval Observatory, in Washington who are planning a synchronised time-gun shoot and time-ball drop when the millennium arrives.

We would appreciate any information and photographs from readers on time-guns and time-balls for our archive. All the best.

Yours Sincerely……

Dear Sir,

Some of your readers who were at the Blandford Reunion, last year, may recall an announcement on the PA system on the Saturday afternoon. It concerned an old member of the Corps who was hoping to meet someone that he knew when he was serving. It said that he joined in 1932 and had served in India. His name was Charlie Falcon, he was severely incapacitated, was in a wheelchair and lived in a nursing home. When I heard his name I was sure we had met somewhere but could not remember where. I looked for him during the afternoon and evening but did not find him. Some other members told me that they had seen him and that he had not found anybody that he knew.

On the following Monday I phoned RHQ and obtained his address. I wrote to him and received a reply, written on his behalf by a member of the nursing home staff, telling me he had been in 'B' Corps Signals in Karachi when I was posted there in 1936. So we were in the same unit for nearly three years until I was posted to Meerat on attachment to the 17/21 Lancers in January 1939.

I was able to visit Charlie four times last year. We had long talks about all the people we had known and looked at the old photos we had. Sad to relate that when I phoned the nursing home, before Easter, I was told that he had passed away the week before, and was being buried the day that I rang them.

When I received my copy The Wire, for April, I read of the death of Maj Ken Jordan. He was a Corporal in 'B' Corps at the time Charlie and I were there. We knew him well.

Yours Sincerely……

Dear Sir,

Perhaps a reader of The Wire can supply the answer to the following story.

The misfortunes of the England cricket team 'Down Under' brings back a memory of my first days at 3rd Training Regiment, Bourbon Lines, Catterick, in early December 1950. As a new intake we had to do three weeks fatigues prior to commencing our trade training as OWLS.

For my first assignment I and a number of others were taken to an unoccupied barrack room to refurbish the lockers etc. The NCO in charge, a Long Service Lance Jack with three or four 'skaters' indicated to me to remove from one of the lockers the small card upon which would have been written the previous occupier's name rank and number.

'Read it!' ordered Corp.

I did so, '22———, -, Signal man Close D. B.'

'Know who he is?' enquired the Corporal.

'Of course,' I replied, 'Brian Close, the Yorkshire cricketer!'

An uproar in the press and questions had been asked in The House, because of Brian Close's selection to tour Australia with the MCC, and his release from National Service to be able to do so. Our Corporal didn't approve of this at all and expressed himself in no uncertain terms, finishing with, '……It's just not fair on the rest of you lads!'

However, after his departure our work party was unanimous in declaring that we'd rather be playing cricket in sunny Australia than doing fatigues (or anything else) in rainy Catterick! Which leads me to the query: Did Brian have to finish his service after his return. Furthermore was his selection a success?

With Regards……

Dear Sir,

Thank you for the April issue of The Wire received today. I have passed the copy on to Mrs Archibald, Sgt A. Archibald's widow. It is appreciated by myself and the Branch Chairman, Bill Taylor, that you managed to grant the request made to us, from Mrs Archibald for the copy.

Yours Sincerely.....

From: Maj Gen D. R. Horsfield
Dear Sir,

YUGOSLAV RELATIONSHIPS

In 1961 when I was Chief Instructor at the School of Signals in Catterick we had a formal visit from a Yugoslav Delegation. They travelled up on the night train so my first meeting with them was at breakfast in the Headquarters Mess.

Col Gen Orescanin and Lt Col Pavlovic headed the party and they were accompanied by Col Ian Ramsay, the Military Attaché from Belgrade. Maj Ron Hardy was in charge of the Mess arrangements and it was only at breakfast that I observed that he had laid on a liberal supply of slivovitz. It was not neglected.

Let us hope that before long the soldiers of our two countries will achieve similarly good relations with their counterparts.

Yours Sincerely.....

Rooney – Sig John Rooney It is with deep regret that 36th (Eastern) Signal Regiment (Volunteers) have to report the tragic death of Signaller John Rooney in a Road Traffic Accident on 21 May 1999. His funeral took place on Friday 28 May 1999 at the Essex Regiment Chapel, Warley, Essex. A bearer party was provided by members of 44 (Cinque Ports) Signal Squadron (Volunteers), of which he was a member. John Rooney joined the Regiment in July 1998 and trained as a Radio Relay Operator. He had previously served three years with the Royal Green Jackets, which included a tour in Northern Ireland and service in Germany and Canada. In the short time with us, he had proved to be a loyal member of the Regiment. He was a cheerful man with an excellent sense of humour and well respected by other Regiment members, by whom he will be sadly missed. John Rooney leaves his partner Jane and a daughter Emily. The Regiment extends its deepest sympathies to them and his family.

Crofts - WO2 (Retd) G. J. Crofts MBE. WO2 (Supervisor Radio) Guy 'Screw' Crofts passed away peacefully in the John Radcliffe Hospital, Oxford on 10 May 1999 after a short but valiant fight against cancer. Guy Crofts was born in Leicester in 1945 and joined the Army as a Junior Leader in 1960. He passed out with flying colours but after a short spell with the Royal Military Police, which earned him the nickname 'Screw' which he never shook off, he transferred to The Royal Signals in 1963. He successfully completed the Telecommunications Operator (Special) Course in 1964 and served in a variety of specialist appointments in the UK, Germany and Cyprus until 1984 when he was posted as the Supervisor Radio in Explosive Ordnance Disposal (EOD) Branch, Headquarters Northern Ireland. This was a highly specialist role in which he provided direct operational support to the, then, RAOC counter-terrorist bomb disposal teams operating throughout the Province. 'Screw' quickly mastered his new, extremely complex and potentially life saving responsibilities and swiftly gained a reputation as a thoroughly professional technician and extremely gallant soldier. He played a key role in a large number of highly dangerous and sophisticated security operations and earned the respect of all members of the EOD and intelligence organisations with whom he worked so closely. His outstanding contribution to operations during this period led to his richly deserved MBE at the conclusion of his tour. However, he was not to escape the clutches of the EOD world and continued his close association with RAOC and later RLC EOD operations at home and overseas for a further 7 years whilst serving with 11 EOD Regiment RLC. On retirement in 1993 he could claim a glittering career which had spanned 33 years service and had been rewarded by the MBE, MSM and LSGC and bar.

'Screw' Crofts was a fine regimental soldier, an outstanding technician and a very gallant gentleman who could be relied upon to lighten even the darkest moment with a quip or humorous comment. He had a wicked sense of humour which he used regularly to get his point across in a most painless and yet unforgettable manner. Yet he was not in the slightest bit put out when he himself became the target of humour and was proud of his uncanny facial resemblance to the American TV character Sgt Bilko. Yet he was completely dedicated to his profession and took great pride in bringing on those soldiers junior and less experienced than himself. He was in all respects larger than life and enjoyed almost legendary status throughout the EOD community who adopted him as their own.

On retirement 'Screw' and his family settled near Oxford and he soon embarked on his second career as a porter at first University College then later at St Edmunds College in the City. To all intents and purposes he became the very epitome of the College RSM. He was feared, loved and respected by staff and students alike as they fell victim to his unrelenting sense of humour and often bizarre methods of getting his point across. From his highly bulled shoes to the top of his unmistakably bald head, with his rolled umbrella in place of a pace stick, 'Screw' kept order throughout the College and yet with his ever helpful, kindly and friendly nature he swiftly made his mark and earned a reputation and status to rival that he had in the Army. At his funeral service his family were joined by over 200 of his friends from the Army, serving and retired, and by the staff and students from the Oxford Colleges. Such was the mark of Guy Crofts that his funeral was not a melancholy affair but rather a wonderful celebration of a man who had contributed so much and enriched the lives of so many. We have all lost a dear friend but his impact on the Army and more recently on the Oxford Colleges will remain. 'Screw' was immensely proud of his family and all they had achieved. At this difficult time we offer Wendy, who supported 'Screw' and the Army so loyally for over 25 years, and his son Adam, himself a former Royal Marine, and daughter Mandy our most sincere condolences.

Howie – RSM G. A. Howie It is with regret that we were informed of the death of RSM G. A. Howie on 19 March 1999. Gordon served 26 years with the Corps and more than half of his adult service was with the Gurkha Signals. His last appointment was as RSM of 48 Gurkha Brigade. Many members of the Corps will remember him as a dedicated, fun loving soldier and an avid all-round sportsman. He is sadly missed by his friends and family and leaves behind his beloved wife, Doris, daughters Felicity and Vanessa and four loving grandchildren.

Maguire – T. W. Maguire it is with the greatest regret that the Northern Ireland Branch of the RSA have to report the passing of their former Chairman 'Tommy' Maguire. Tom joined 66 (Ulster) Sig Regt (V), later 40 (Ulster) Sig Regt (V) in the early 1960s when he also became a member of the RSA Northern Ireland Branch. Over the years he served the Branch well, particularly during his long reign as Branch Chairman a job he carried out with great efficiency and enthusiasm, and was indeed made a Honour Member of the RSA. His easy manner of communicating with people of all ranks was an asset and he regarded many people as his friends rather that simply acquaintances.

Each year he looked forward to the Catterick and latterly Blandford Reunion and had his name down for the 1999 trip but unfortunately did not make it. Some years ago he was involved in a traffic accident from which he never fully recovered and although suffering from a terminal illness for the past year he still retained the Chair until the 1999 AGM missing only one meeting. It was good that he was able to act as Master of Ceremonies at our recent Annual Formal, Dinner.

We would dearly have liked to have displayed the Branch Standard etc. at his funeral but his wife Joyce, to whom we extend our deepest sympathy, carried out Tom's wishes for a quiet funeral which was private and by invitation only. He will be sorely missed.

Attrill – WO1 (ASM) E. C. Attrill – joined the Corps at Catterick in 1928 at the age of 14 years. During his time in the Corps, he served five years in India. He was transferred to the RAOC shortly after Dunkirk and was later forced to change to the RE. He ended his service at the Guided Weapons Establishment at Aberporth, Wales. In spite of the enforced changes, Mr Attrill always considered himself as Royal Corps of Signals and wore the Corps' tie with pride, during his retirement.

Bell – SSgt Bob Bell. It is with regret that the Glasgow Branch of the Royal Signals Association announce the death of one of our founder members, 22212995 Staff Sergeant Robert 'Bob' Bell, who died suddenly in Hospital on Monday, 10 May 1999. Bob served in the Corps for 25 years from September 1948 to June 1973. Bob was a life member of the RSA and a founder member of the Glasgow Branch. During his regular service Bob served in Malaya during the Emergency, and in the Canal Zone Egypt, before going to SHAEF in France. On the changeover from TA to TAVR, Bob was posted to Glasgow as Chief Administration Clerk of 32 (Scottish) Signal Regiment (V). Whilst there he met his wife Sarah, who was a member of the Corps. Sarah is also a Life Member of the RSA and a member of the Glasgow Branch. On leaving Glasgow Bob spent time in Catterick before being posted to London, where he spent the rest of his service. He held the award of the General Service Medal with the Bar Malaya. His Cremation was attended by the Chairman of Glasgow Branch, Bill Taylor, accompanied by members of the Glasgow Branch who had served with Bob at some stage in his career. The Glasgow Branch members offer their sincere condolences to Sarah, sons Martin and Mark daughter Sarah Jane and grandson Jamie.

Willis – Arthur George Willis will be remembered with great affection by those who knew him, especially his fellow cadets at 150 OCTU, Royal Signals, Catterick shortly after the Second World War. He had served with the Corps for several years, and during the North Africa campaign was captured by the Italians in Libya. Until released towards the end of the war he was in Italian or German prison camps; one of these was at Sulmona in Italy, and in a group photo sent to his parents he is pictured at the German camp Stalag 344.

On release he was keen to continue his career with the Corps, and was subsequently recommended to apply for a commission. After attending Basic OCTU at Mons Barracks, Aldershot, he joined 176 Course at Catterick's Royal Signals OCTU in 1946. Being perhaps a little older than other course members, considerably more experienced and with the hardships of war behind him, he could have been forgiven for treating his fellow cadets with a degree of superiority. However, that was not the case; he seldom spoke of his time as a POW, and was ready to offer genuine encouragement (and to neutralise any eruptions of youthful immaturity!) with a dry, but understanding, sense of humour. He was commissioned into the rank of Lieutenant on 19 March 1947; soon afterwards he was posted to Burma where he was attached to Burma Army Signals. He enjoyed his time there, and managed when off duty to pursue an interest in amateur dramatics.

Resigning his commission in the early 1950s, he joined the well known tea producers, Liptons. After tea-tasting training in London he was sent first to Calcutta and then posted to Coonoor in southern India. There he met his future wife Anne who was teaching in the area and whose father was a tea-planter. The couple married soon afterwards. Later, George was posted to Colombo, Sri Lanka, where he was general manager for 17 years; when Liptons were taken over by Unilever he was made a director, and at that stage spent a six month period in Melbourne, Australia.

George and Anne had three children, and subsequently five grandchildren. Anne continues to live near Dorking in Surrey, with the children's families living not far away, and would be interested to hear from any of George's friends. George Willis died on 22 October 1998 at the age of 77; representatives of 176 Course and wives were among those attending the cremation service.

YOUR ONE DAY'S PAY – WHAT HAPPENED TO IT IN 1998

by Col C. J. Walters Regimental Colonel

Your One Day's Pay is the main source of income for Corps Funds. It is very encouraging that 95% of the Corps make this generous annual contribution. In addition, officers pay 0.75 of One Day's Pay each year into the Officers Fund; this is mandatory under QRs (a fact that not many Officers realise) and is in support of the HQ Officers' Mess and other officer functions such as entertainments, silver and paintings. Retired Officers volunteer to pay an annual subscription of £25 (or more) and this also entitles them to receive a copy of The Wire. SNCOs and WOs may subscribe a further 0.25 Day's Pay for their own specific fund.

PURPOSE OF CORPS FUNDS

A Trust Deed is registered with the Charity Commission to govern the use of Corps Funds. The main advantage of this is to avoid paying tax on subscriptions and investment. The main purpose of Corps Funds are:

- The relief of poverty for all members of the Corps, serving or retired, their families and dependants. This is the main area of expenditure.
- To maintain and improve the physical efficiency and morale of the Corps at large eg: Funds for Sport and Adventurous Training.
- The payment of donations to charitable organisations concerned with welfare of signallers and their dependants.

HOW IS THE ROYAL SIGNALS BENEVOLENT FUND STRUCTURED?

There are three main Funds:

- The Corps Fund.
- The Royal Signals Association Fund.
- The Officers Fund.

INCOME

The total income for the year was £820K. The main sources of income were from the subscriptions of officers and soldiers (£472K). Additionally nearly all subscribers covenant their subscription by signing an appropriate document. This enables the Corps to claim the tax on their subscription AT NO COST TO THE INDIVIDUAL (£134K). Investments from our well invested savings amounted to £193K and donations accounted for the final £21K. All legacies and donations are allocated to the Association Fund, for reinvestment in order to meet the cost of future Benevolence.

EXPENDITURE

The main single source of expenditure was the RSA Benevolent Fund which granted £57K to the Army Benevolent Fund who give tremendous help to Signallers, and distributed £245K elsewhere. The main activities of the RSA Benevolent Fund are:

- It provides financial support for cases of need. About every three weeks a formal committee gathers at RHQ to consider benevolence requests. These are normally submitted by SSAFA, British Legion, COs, Association Branches or the Army Benevolent Fund. It should be noted that cases from serving personnel are also considered.
- It supports the Annual Reunion of the RSA that is held annually at Blandford in Corps Week: last week in June.

The Corps employs a number of personnel, such as the Corps Accountant, and incurs running costs all amounting to £101K.

The Royal Signals Institution costs were £49K that is all taken from the Officers' Fund. The expenditure includes lectures, Corps prizes, Insurance and Maintenance of silver and paintings.

The Royal Signals Corps Band was subsidised by £10K. This was mainly to support the band in a professional way with sheet music, instruments and instrument repair and uniforms. The Band of 34 Sig Regt (V) was subsidised by £10K.

Corps sport was allocated £73K that was distributed by the Games Club. This included a trip for 40 Corps personnel to South Africa. The Wire was subsidised by £36K.

Capital grants received £39K that included the purchase of Corps paintings and silver by the Corps Heritage Committee.

The Funds allocated £38K to Corps entertainment for such occasions as Royal visits to units and made provisions of £88K for the serving Corps including £30K for Adventurous Training. Finally, £74K was invested to boost our income in future years.

SUMMARY

The One Day's Pay Scheme is extremely well supported by the Corps. Undoubtedly, the main area of support is in benevolence that amounted to £302K in 1998 which is a commendable effort for which the Corps as a whole are to be congratulated.

I hope that this explanation of expenditure is excellent news for subscribers and encouragement of the few who, for whatever reason, do not subscribe.

(VOLUNTEERS)

The Squadron is a Royal Signals Territorial Army Unit providing communications support to 21 and 23 SAS (Volunteers) Regiments. We can offer interested individuals leaving the Regular Army the chance to continue using the many skills acquired during their service, whilst at the same time maintaining their links with the Corps.

You will be expected to train far a minimum of 27 days a year, this includes a 15-day camp and a number of selected weekends. You can also volunteer to parachute if you so wish. You will have an unrivalled opportunity to travel abroad and last year we exercised in eight different countries. If you are interested and live in the South East or London area then telephone 0800 163925.

PRESENTATION OF SOVIET GALLANTRY MEDAL TO THE ROYAL SIGNALS MUSEUM

On 25 June 1999, Col Ken Smith and Maj Bob Rowland, President and Chairman of the Peterborough Branch of the Royal Signals Association presented to the Museum on behalf of Cpl Bob Rogers the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Medal 'For Valour' which he received in 1944. The medal was received on behalf of the Museum by Col Cliff Walters, the Regimental Colonel.

Cpl Rogers enlisted in the Royal Artillery in April 1937, became a Gunner Signaller, and served with the British Expeditionary Forces in France and later in the Middle East for two years. He was then recruited into the Special Operations Executive, and after parachute training saw special service in Persia and Iraq in 1943. Towards the end of 1943 he took part in 'Operation Mulligatawny' which was an SOE operation in the Balkans to assist partisans by organising dropping zones and arranging the reception of arms behind enemy lines. During this operation many of his comrades, including his mission leader, were killed or captured and executed. In spite of very difficult conditions the mission continued to provide dropping zones and the reception of arms and ammunition for the partisans. These were used against the Germans and the Bulgarian police. Eventually, Cpl Rogers was wounded and was treated by a doctor provided by the partisans. In May 1944, when they were operating west of Sofia, he became ill with a serious infection. After being unconscious for two days he was informed there were two messages for him from his HQ in Italy. One of these informed him of the award of the gallantry medal which was presented to him by a British Officer on his return to Italy some months later. The medal also carries a monthly pension of ten Roubles and entitles the holder to travel free on any tram in any Soviet city. Part of the citation reads:

Col Ken Smith and Maj Bob Rowland present the medal to Col Cliff Walters

'The medal 'For Valour' is awarded to Servicemen of any rank in the Workers'- Peasants' Red Army, the Red Navy and the Border Guard for personal courage and audacity in action against the enemies of the Soviet Union in a theatre of military operations, in defending the inviolability of the State Borders or engaging saboteurs, spies and other enemies of the Soviet State.'

Cpl Bob Rogers transferred to the Royal Signals later in 1944 and served in Albania, Italy and the Middle East until his release in 1946. He is a member of the Dunkirk Veterans Association, the SOE (Signals) Association and a Life Member of the Royal Signals Association and an active member of the Peterborough Branch. He is also a keen member of the Royal Signals Amateur Radio Society (Callsign GOCNL) He celebrated his 80th birthday in March of this year. The medal with citation, complete with English translation, will be on display in the Medals section of the Museum.

MUSEUM OF THE BRITISH RESISTANCE ORGANISATION
Parham, Suffolk
(dedicated to the GHQ Auxiliary Units of WWII)
(390th BGMAM - Registered Charity No. 284146)

Dear Sir,

THE BRITISH RESISTANCE ORGANISATION
(The Wire, June 1999, p.276)

We have been fortunate to read the above article and understand it to have been written by one of our honorary members (WWII soldier in the Royal Corps of Signals), Arthur Gabbitas. Arthur dedicated retirement years at Rayleigh in Essex to discovering the story and collating details of the secret GHQ AUXILIARY UNITS - the creation of Lt Gen Sir Colin McVean Gubbins (later of SOE), about which his article gives such a comprehensive summary.

You may not be aware that Arthur Gabbitas died suddenly in the Spring. His research papers have been passed by his family to our Museum.

With the aid of similarly committed historians, this Museum has been created at Parham to gather all the exhibits we can obtain and become the focus of research about a fascinating aspect of British genius for irregular warfare. It would be appreciated if this could be brought to the attention of your readers, among whom there may well be survivors from Aux Unit (Signals) days of WWII, who could assist our research, give us the benefit of their experiences in this former world of secrecy and even, perhaps, help to trace the No 17 and TRD sets, which were their workhorses and which we propose to install in an 'OB' when Planning Permission is granted. Indeed, we are anxious to display all relevant documents, souvenirs, photographs or memorabilia and will assure donors their property will be attributed to them, and carefully preserved and protected with our many other exhibits and artefacts.

Yours sincerely.....

TEAM UPDATE - by Capt G. P. Newell

The main event to have taken place over the past few months was the Team's appearance at the 1999 Royal Tournament. The Team performed for over two weeks at the last ever Tournament at Earls Court in London over the period 20 July to 2 August 1999. The Tournament's producer, Maj Michael Parker had decided that he wanted the very best military participants involved in the event and the Team was pleased to be amongst the Armed Force's finest displays.

The Show was split into three distinct sections with the Team playing important parts in each. A complex opening parade was followed by the individual displays and was rounded off with a finale - which was more reminiscent of Last Night at the Proms than the Royal Tournament! The opening sequence involved the Team riding the '6 Bike Fan' into a packed arena; with the Household Cavalry, King's Troop RHA, Bands, the Queen's Colour Squadron RAF Regiment, Royal Marines and Naval Gun Teams and all the other contributors marching or riding through. Our subsequent appearance was only a 10-minute compression of our otherwise 30-minute display but it was very fast and furious. Following the King's Troop into the arena we made an (often subdued) crowd sit on the edge of their seats on every occasion. Showing off the very best of the rides and tricks, made more difficult by the narrow arena restrictions, the crowd was always taken by surprise. The Opening Ride with 16 Triumphs storming into the public eye and the subsequent fast cross-over rides combined with stunning displays of balance and precision never failed to find adulation. Our sequence ended each time with a salute to the visiting dignitaries. In the finale 12 members of the Team dressed up as 'figures from history' in large sponge rubber suits to be ridden around the arena as standing passengers to add a light-hearted element to an otherwise sobering closing farewell. The last night was a sad yet memorable occasion when our Colonel in Chief, The Princess Royal, took the final salute at the last Royal Tournament.

Several members of the Team had a chance to meet the Royalty who attended many of the shows. All were unanimous in their opinion that the White Helmets were the most thrilling and dangerous element of the show. 'You boys go hell for leather!' HRH Prince Michael of Kent told Cpl Bob Sizeland. Her Majesty The Queen summed things up when she told Sig 'Fish' Fisher '...I couldn't watch – you must do lots of training.' We were also very pleased to gain national TV and press coverage for the Corps, The Times writing of the '...death-defying cross-over rides of the Royal Signals White Helmets.' The BBC filmed the Team over the final three days, including Jim Davidson taking part in a light-hearted joke sequence. 10 million people watched its subsequent showing on prime-time TV.

Excluding rehearsals, the Team performed 24 displays (i.e. more than 50 Six-Bike Fans, twice daily in front of 18000 people. It is certainly sad to see the demise of the Tournament, especially following such a successful final run, but the Team can look forward positively to the future. Next year we go to Horseguards in London and take part in Royal Military Tattoo 2000. Although it would have been ideal to go into a quieter part of the season following the busy time at Earls Court this has certainly not been the case as we now find ourselves in the busiest part of the year. Lots of large County events will see the Team travelling all over the country until the end of September. The final few months of the year will see us busy recruiting new Team-members to fill the gaps left by those who are leaving following their tours.

The Selection Course will be based at Blandford from 6-21 November 1999. Any members of the Corps interested in the Team should contact Blandford Mil 2365 for information.

THE 1999 ROYAL TOURNAMENT (THE LAST RUN)
by LCpl J. Hooper

Three of us set off for Earls Court on Thursday 15 July to take the transporter and trailer in. That gave myself (LCpl 'Gypo' Hooper), LCpl 'Scotty' Eccott, and LCpl Daz Hankin a chance to get the Team equipment into Earls Court before the rush and hopefully sample a little bit of London nightlife. After some help from Maj George Douglas (the Arena Master) we rang Capt Newell and informed him that we had the truck in place and we were off out into town to complete the recce. Capt Newell laid down some ground rules! We eventually ended up at Leicester Square and sampled the fine ales and alehouses. LCpl Daz Hankin even attempted to sample the fine young ladies but perhaps they didn't want to sample him!

The bulk of the Team turned up the next day at the Royal Tournament Pass Office wondering what to expect, so we had a few questions like 'Where are we sleeping? Where's the nearest bar? How many birds are here?' and so on. It seems to me that some Team members had got their priorities wrong and I quickly gave their names to Capt Newell! The Team all managed to get through security okay before we went across to Earls Court 2. I directed Sgt Don Brebner to where our accommodation and office was. I think it was quite a shock for the lads when they walked into a single 'room' filled with 30 single beds. It was a case of who was the quickest in to either get into the corners of the room or the sides. Everyone was in the same boat – well, apart from the three of us that turned up first and made quite a comfortable boudoir! It was then time for the lads to make things better by up-turning beds, hanging up blankets and hessian with string, begging, borrowing and asking Cpl Bob Sizeland to sort things out ('Brigadier' Sizeland's influence is understated - he can get hold of anything). We should have asked him to wangle a hotel for all of us !

Once everyone had settled in it was time to explore and have a look at where we would be riding. What a sight it would be with seats going from the floor at the front row to the roof which we were told would be full every night – 18000 people twice a day! I don't think anything can prepare you for the sight as you enter that arena and I think people who hadn't been there before got quite a shock. The next day we had our first rehearsal in the arena. Our first rehearsal on the Saturday didn't exactly go to plan. We were only given nine minutes for our own 'act' (from our usual performance of 30 minutes) so we had to try and put in as many spectacular tricks and rides as possible. In the half-hour rehearsal slot we had to learn to put each event in a lot quicker than normal. The Opening Ride went in and out with no problems. When the Double Jimmy went out Sig 'Scouse' O'Leary decided that the engine didn't need to be running to get around the arena and kicked out the engine safety cut-out lead - which sent the rider (Cpl John Strachan) and himself with a Triumph Tiger hurtling to the ground. To their credit, every single time after that they went around without any problems. The only other problem was that we were four minutes over time, but we knew we could shave time off as we became more used to the arena.

It wasn't long before Maj Michael Parker, the show's Producer, came and met the Team. He welcomed us and, informing us of his plans, said that he had asked the Team to the last ever Royal Tournament because we were the best motorcycle display team in the world and he wanted the best for this event! We would be involved in the opening parade, our own show and also at the finale. The opening parade seemed quite easy but, if you have ever had the chance to be involved in our most famous trick (the 6-Bike Fan) you will realize that erecting at least four of those a day (more than 59 in 17 days) is tiring. For the Opening, all the participants were put in the order of first appearance at the Royal Tournament. Our first appearance was in 1931 so that put us between the Royal Marines Commandos and the Royal Marines Band. The applause and whistling that we received just for doing a 6-Bike Fan was overwhelming every time and, although physically challenging for those involved, we were determined to prove we could continue to keep doing it, and doing it well.

Then came our part in the Finale, which wasn't as easy as just putting metal frames on the bikes to carry 12 people dressed in costumes. The mechanics, LCpls Tonka Richardson, Fozzy Forster, Baz Fullerton and Ricky Ross, had to bed-in and tailor them to fit each individual bike. As usual they did a stalwart job because we were then able to take our costumes, depicting characters through the ages, around the arena. There were 12 in all (including Wellington and Napoleon, the Czar of Russia, a Para, a Commando, and an Astronaut) who went around the arena during the finale waving and getting the crowd involved. Some of the costumes waved too much, especially Sig 'Tintin' Owen who literally waved his hand into the crowd!

Finally, after rehearsing all our parts, the producer was happy with us and the next thing was our first live performance out of 24. They all went really well, but some people have had their mishaps. Sgt Don Brebner decided one night he would try to beat the spotlight around the arena on the ladder headstand, and succeeded! Well-done Don, a new world-record for the shortest ever ladder headstand! Cpl Charlie Chester was brilliant with his car jumping over four cars which took the crowds breath away every time, but as soon as he tried riding a Triumph on the ground he kept falling off! Cpl John Strachan has had to order some new gloves for Sgt Don Brebner because as soon as he came off the car jump (in front of Royalty) all he could mention was the fact his gloves were too big! Needless to say, the Team really does believe it was his gloves that were at fault...! Not only were Team members involved in our show, but a few managed to get involved with other acts too. Cpl Adam 'Orange-hair' Malin, LCpl 'Scotty' Eccott and Sig Matty Adams managed to swap jobs in one finale by pulling the gun for the Devonport Gun Crew and likewise some of the Devonport crew dressed up in the costumes and came in on the back of our bikes in finales. LCpl 'Tonka' Richardson dressed up in Fleet Air Arm colours one morning and beat a few field gunners into swinging across the chasm - which apparently only a few people can do.

After 24 performances and 59 6-Bike Fans in 17 days, appearing in front of 350,000 people we feel that we will never do anything like this outside the Royal Tournament. After two weeks everyone was glad to be back home and have a few days off (did I say days off - I mean washing and ironing!). It was a pleasure and a privilege to be involved in such a prestigious event, especially the last one ever, and I'm sure it leaves a lot of lasting memories for everyone.

JOINING THE ROYAL SIGNALS WHITE HELMETS

by Capt G. P. Newell

It will soon be time to recruit new members into the Team - this year we will have over 16 vacancies to fill. Since taking over the role of Team Captain last year I have found that there are many misconceptions within the Corps about the White Helmets and what they do. I was told that riders didn't get promoted and that it was a bad career move for soldiers to spend time in the Team. Nothing could be further from the truth and I have found an environment full of talent from every trade group in the Corps. Since September 1998 I have seen five of my 26 Team members get promoted and watched others disappear on upgrading or other career courses. Cpl Andy Butterfield's story is typical.

BEING A TELE TECH (SYS) IN THE WHITE HELMETS

by Cpl Andy Butterfield.

I joined the Army in 1989, and after doing my apprenticeship at Harrogate and finishing it off at Catterick, I was posted to 3 Div for four years; in which time we moved back from Germany and did a tour in Bosnia. From Bosnia I was posted to 608 Sig Tp at Ashchurch near Cheltenham. The two postings couldn't have been more different. At 3 Div I was a 1st Line Technician, carrying out 1st Line inspections, fixing Radio Relays, Centrals and processor equipment - it was an enjoyable job, for the first couple of years, but then boredom set in. 608 Sig Tp was totally different - here you carried out 1st Line inspections, then you had to rectify all the jobs you picked up, whether they were technical or not.

So why did I join the White Helmets? Firstly I thought that I couldn't join because I was a Technician, well that's what people kept telling me - but as you can see, it isn't true. The reason I joined was that I was bored doing the same old thing day in and day out. I thought it was time for a change, and if I hadn't changed jobs I would have left the Army. I was due to go on my T1 entrance test at the time, so it was a rather a big decision to make. Knowing the myth 'The White Helmets will ruin your career' wasn't true I decided to apply to go on the selection course. After passing the 2-week course I was posted to the Team for three years. That long out of your trade can put people off but Team members can complete 2-year tours if they are concerned. There's no reason to be put off - like most Team members, I've completed all my career courses during my tour.

This is my final year in the Team, and after passing my T1 entrance last year, I leave to start my T1 course next January. The White Helmets has been a good experience and, now I've achieved my ambition of being in the Team, I'm looking forward to getting back to my trade and furthering my career. I think I have gained a lot of useful experiences over the past few years and would say to anyone thinking of applying to join the White Helmets that it is the experience of a lifetime.

ROYAL MILITARY TATTOO 2000

THE ROYAL MILITARY TATTOO 2000

As the end of the year approaches, many people have been asking whether the Ministry of Defence is planning to celebrate the arrival of the next Millennium. The Secretary of State's recent announcement confirmed that there is to be one MOD flagship celebratory event to be held on Horse Guards Parade. The Royal Military Tattoo 2000 (RMT 2000), will comprise six performances of a totally unique spectacular from Monday 10 July - Saturday 15 July 2000, combining the most imaginative staging, state-of-the-art technology, pageantry, son et lumiére, lasers, fireworks and the largest video screen to be seen in Europe. RMT 2000 will recount 1,000 years of military history within the superb setting of Horse Guards Parade together with a glimpse into a crystal ball. The theme will be 'Defence of the Realm: Past, Present and Future'.

Her Majesty the Queen has graciously agreed to take the salute at one performance with other members of the Royal Family, the Prime Minister and the Chief of the Defence Staff being invited on other nights.

RMT 2000 will involve 1,200 men and women from all three Services, three quarters of whom will be musicians. It will be a fast moving non-stop, dramatic 90 minute show saluting the past, celebrating the present and looking into the future. Freefall Parachutists from the Royal Marines, Parachute Regiment and the RAF Falcons will land in the arena. The Red Arrows, Blue Eagles, the Royal Navy, Army and RAF will fly past at each performance and The King's Troop, Royal Horse Artillery will perform their Musical Drive without the space constraints imposed by most arenas. This will be the first time that the full Musical Drive has been performed on Horse Guards Parade.

Accompanying music will be provided by Bands of Her Majesty's Royal Marines, the Household Division, the Queen's Division, the Prince of Wales's Division, the Brigade of Ghurkas and the Massed Bands of the Royal Air Force. They will be joined by the Massed Pipes and Drums of the Scottish Division, supported by an orchestra and choir, culminating in a grand finale which will premier a new Anthem especially composed for the occasion to celebrate the contribution of our Armed Forces to World Peace and Humanitarian Aid.

The RMT 2000 Box Office will open in November 1999 with ticket prices ranging from £20 to £50 per seat. Concessionary tickets will be available for the Preview Evening to Servicemen, their families, veterans and disadvantaged groups on Sunday 9 July 2000. The three principal Service Charities, King George's Fund for Sailors, the Army Benevolent Fund and the RAF Benevolent Fund, will be beneficiaries of this unique Millennium Event which, it is intended, will be commemorated by a 200 page souvenir programme. This will be a once-in-a-lifetime event which should not be missed.

Serving the Services

THE ARMY TAUGHT YOU NEVER TO GIVE UP, SO DON'T

So there you are in civvy street doing the same old thing day in, day out. But...why?...If it's the Army you're missing, then how about joining the TA? It's a vital part of the British Army.

There are two options open to you. First, you can join one of the Territorial Army Independent Units based in the TAVRA region in which you have decided to settle. An ideal route for those who wish to serve locally. Which Unit you join will depend on those available in the area you live in. Second, if you are leaving a Corps, you could retain your cap badge and become a member of either an Independent Unit as above, or a TA Specialist Unit. In either, you can maintain and develop the special skills that you have learned.

The minimum commitment as a member of the Independent TA is 6 weekends, a two-week Summer Camp and some weekday evenings. As a Specialist we ask only 2 weekends and a 15 day annual camp. In return, you will earn Army rates of pay and an annual tax-free bonus of up to £1050.

For an information brochure call 0845 603 32 32 quoting ref WI007, or send the coupon to: Freepost, The TA, CV37 9BR.

HEADQUARTERS ROYAL SIGNALS

ACHIEVES RECOGNITION AS INVESTORS IN PEOPLE (IIP)

At a short ceremony in Blandford Mr Gordon Page, the Chairman of Dorset Training and Enterprise Council, formally awarded the prestigious Investors In People plaque to the SOinC (A), Brig C. J. Burton OBE ADC. The award recognises that the Headquarters, which includes Regimental Headquarters Royal Signals, the Royal Signals Motor Cycle Display Team and The Royal Signals Band, has achieved the national standard in taking care of the training and development needs of its staff. The photo shows Mr Page presenting the plaque to the SOinC (A) with Mr Alan Knott, the IIP Project Manager, in attendance.

2 (NATIONAL COMMUNICATIONS) SIGNAL BRIGADE AND COTSWOLD GARRISON

Comd Brig S. G. Hughes CBE

VISIT TO THE HEADQUARTERS BY THE DEPUTY COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF LAND FORCES, LT GEN SIR JOHN DEVERELL KCB OBE

On 2 July this year, the DCinC LAND, Lt Gen Sir John Deverell KCB OBE visited HQ 2 (NC) Sig Bde here in Corsham. Lt Gen Deverell is also Inspector General of the TA (IGTA). Upon arrival at Basil Hill Barracks (now known as the Basil Hill Site of the Joint Services Corsham complex), Lt Gen Deverell was met by Comd 2 (NC) Sig Bde, Brig Gordon Hughes CBE, COS Maj Paul Kelly and by the GSM, WO1 (GSM) Charlie Dubique. The GSM then led the VIP party into the Portway House WO's and SNCO's Mess, where the DCinC presented Long Service & Good Conduct Medals to four well deserving recipients from the Brigade, namely: WO2 (YofS) James, the YofS (ND) at HQ 2 (NC) Sig Bde, SSgt Burdge of 243 Sig Sqn, SSgt (FofS) Dawson of 39 Sig Regt (V) and Cpl Sangster also of 243 Sig Sqn. In attendance at the ceremony were Mrs Sangster, Mrs James and the James' three young daughters, the recently appointed D Comd, Col Chris Laurence TD, the recently appointed Con ACISG Lt Col Geoff Cary and CO 39 Sig Regt (V), Lt Col John Crackett TD.

At the Bde HQ itself, the DCinC was introduced to various key personalities from about the Brigade, including the Regt COs, the SO1

Comms, Lt Col Roger Davenport TD and OC 2 Sig Sqn (V). Also in attendance was the Head of the Electronic Mail Service (EMS) in Corsham, Lt Col Peter Grogan. There followed a series of briefings and a tour of the CISCC, before the DCinC was escorted back outdoors to view a number of equipment displays, including LANWARD and NCRS detachments from 31 and 39 Sig Regts (V) respectively. OC 243 Sig Sqn Maj Andy Walker and his team of technicians were also on hand to give a demonstration of the ACISG Signals Works Services (SWS) capabilities.

The DCinC departed Corsham after lunch, having received a detailed insight into the organisation, the role and the capabilities of the Brigade. He also had the pleasure of meeting many members of the Brigade in the process. The Brigade was greatly honoured by his visit to the HQ and should benefit considerably from his enhanced understanding of what it is that we do, what else we are capable of doing and just how well we can do it. Indeed, the visit was a great success in spite of efforts by a certain Foreman of Signals from 3 1 Sig Regt (V) to jeopardise proceedings by puncturing a gas main only a few yards away from a communal smoking area. The said culprit - who's identity the author is at pains not to reveal - has henceforth been known to his friends here as 'Butane Bob'...

'Can anyone else smell gas?'

VISIT TO THE HEADQUARTERS BY THE SIGNAL OFFICER IN CHIEF (ARMY), BRIGADIER CEDRIC BURTON OBE ADC

On 30 July, the HQ played host to another VIP visitor, the recently appointed SOinC (A), Brig Cedric Burton OBE ADC. Brig Burton had the pleasure of meeting a great number of the HQ Staff before receiving a series of presentations aimed at enhancing his awareness of recent developments within the Brigade and of the future challenges which the Brigade now faces.

A WISE INVESTMENT - PEOPLE FIRST!

Those who have not served with Brig Gordon Hughes may not have heard of the Commander's Pillars. They are the foundation principles which ensure the future success of 2 (NC) Sig Bde, namely: Recruiting, Retention, Training and Equipment. While these foundation stones underpin the Brigade's activities, our people are very much the Comd's top priority. He is keen to promote an ethos of teamwork, team spirit and equal opportunity. This requires good, strong leadership based upon values of decency, proper behaviour and fair treatment for all. People are at the heart of 2 (NC) Sig Bde and the Comd is committed to investing in the training and development of his Regular and TA officers, soldiers and civilian staff. Indeed, he aims to create a working environment in which continuous improvement, professionalism and high performance are constant goals.

Investors in People (IIP) is the National Standard which sets a level of good practice in people-management and aims to improve organisational performance in so doing. In recognition of the soundness of our own practices and procedures, of the quality of our training and professional career development programmes, of the effectiveness of our command and management styles and of our total commitment to looking after our people, 2 (NC) Sig Bde has been awarded IIP accreditation. This is excellent news for the Brigade and a huge 'well done' is said to all those involved in the accreditation process - in particular, Lt Col (Retd) Tony Hill, who dynamically and successfully led the Brigade through the whole process.

FAREWELLS AND GREETINGS

The HQ recently bade sad farewells to D Comd Col Stephen Foakes TD, Con ACISG Lt Col Malcolm Sinton, CIVM-AN Mrs Deborah Bradley, the PS to the Comd, Mrs Myra Higgins and to Mr Les James of the Registry. In turn, the warmest of greetings were extended to those who stepped valiantly into the various breaches so created, namely Col Chris Laurence TD BVSc MRCVS, Lt Col Geoff Cary, Miss Karen Blamey, Mrs Barbara Parry and Mrs Sandra Hayes.

LOOKING UP AND DRIVING ON TO THE MILLENNIUM

Planning is almost complete for Ex Autumn Belle 1, a Brigade FTX to be held over the weekend of 15-17 October 1999 in preparation for the deployment of the Brigade over the Millennium. CinC LAND's intent is for HQ LAND, all Dist, Div and Bde HQs on the UK, mainland and other specified LAND organisations and units to be provided with access to a networked system of assured communications over the Millennium period - a contingency measure in case existing LAND Forces communication systems should fail as a result of the Y2K date change. Under the provision of MoD Op Surety - the name given to all such measures which will both guarantee the continuity of extant operations at that time and ensure that the UK can mount additional operations - 2 (NC) Sig Bde has been given the vital task of deploying NCRS, LANWARD, CLANSMAN and MOULD outstation assets in order to achieve the CinC's aim. Ex Autumn Belle 1 is essentially a full dress rehearsal for the Y2K deployment and will see the Bde deploying its key communications assets to some 22 locations up and down the country, from Perth in the North to Marchwood in the South. For further information on Ex Autumn Belle 1, please contact the SO3 G2/G3 (Ops) at HQ 2 (NC) Sig Bde, Capt John Russell, on (9) 4382 4343.

ACISG

Lt Col Malcolm Sinton departed on 28 May for pastures new in Civvy Street, we wish him and his family all the very best for the future. It is the new 'brush' of Lt Col Geoff Cary presently 'sweeping clean' in HQ ACISG (not to mention further afield!). Lt Col Cary joins ACISG from as far afield as HQ DCSA (next door!), we wish him a successful and enjoyable tour. HQ ACISG has been restructured in line with our evolving role and new tasks have been identified. 81 Sig Sqn (V) join us on 1 September 1999 on transfer from 21 Sig Regt (AS) as part of post-SDR restructuring. Their current role and skills fit well with that of the existing ACISG Sqns. Capt John Harris, PSAO 81 Sig Sqn (V) has finally been convinced that moving to Corsham really isn't such a bad idea!

A team from HQ ACISG departed for Germany to conduct a Y2K upgrade on 27 July 1999. IC Party, Sgt Pete 'Oz' Borley RA SIGNALS, unfortunately lacked the sufficient local knowledge to know that AO (IT) Mark Pegler got 'geographically embarrassed' on the way to Herford until it was too late.

Alison James, our MCTG 1 gave birth to Katy on 12 May 1999. Both mother and baby are doing fine. Proud dad David, our HPTO COMMCEN as well as being Alison's husband has as yet, not been seen without a cheesy grin.

HQ ACISG has recently gained Associate Installer status from Krone. This is in recognition of the training carried out by Cable System Group, Royal School of Signals, for personnel from the ACISG Sig Sqns. The benefits of this are:

1. ACISG Sig Sqn personnel who have completed this training will be certified CAT 5 installers.
2. HQ ACISG can offer a 20 year product and system guarantee on all installations undertaken by them.

XI HEADQUARTERS 11 SIGNAL BRIGADE

The period has been dominated by Ex Able Condor and a disproportionate number of farewells

EXERCISE ABLE CONDOR 1999 (UK)

by WO1 (YofS) Graham Pardew

Ex Able Condor 1999 (UK) was Commander 11 Sig Bde's annual FTX, which took place in the Grantham and Yorkshire areas over the period 20–25 June. The aim of the Exercise was to practise the Brigades' deployment of CIS in support of the JRRF, ARRC and the Command Posts of subordinate formations. Overall it involved almost 800 soldiers (TA) and 400 vehicles from 33, 34, 35 and 40 Sig Regts (V).

The Brigade deployed on Saturday 19 June to a Brigade Concentration Area at RAF Barkston Heath, near Grantham. On Sunday 20 June, under the direction of 33 Sig Regt (V), the deployment developed into work-up training (NBC and weapon handling), technical preparations and a Plug Up. Meanwhile back at EXCON in Deverell Barracks, Ripon, SO2 Log Sp Maj Phil Daisey, WO1 (YofS) Graham Pardew, RQMS Steve Sadler and SSgt Baz Roberts, were finalising the administration and communications build. That evening the Brigade deployed from the Concentration Area, North over two Main Supply Routes (MSR), each crossing the Humber via different Bridges to a refurbishment area near Driffield. Under the direction of 34 Sig Regt (V), all of the Brigade successfully replenished water, fuel and rations before deploying into the first field locations in the Yorkshire area. Some of the Units had already undertaken their own unit-level training for one week prior to the Exercise, this added to the intensity of the first 48 hour period, which was spent conducting work-up training and communications tests. This period provided a real challenge for the TA and Regular soldiers alike. All the units had to do now, was establish a robust Integrated Ptarmigan and Euromux Network, linking nine Trunk Nodes, five Euromux Access Nodes (EANs), nine Secondary Access Nodes (SANs) and ten Single Channel Radio Access (SCRA) Centrals, no mean feat! The Exercise was very high profile. Apart from the many Unit invited visitors, their Mayors, Honorary Colonels, local Newspaper reporters, we had visitors from Industry and Media Ops. Additionally, the CinC, Gen Sir M. Walker, GOC 2, Maj Gen R. D. S. Gordon, GOC 5 Div, Maj Gen R. V. Searby, The Master Of Signals and ACOS G6 LAND, Brig J. M. Shaw also took time out of their busy schedules to visit the Exercise.

GOC 5 Div to SO1 Comms (V) Lt Col Steve Potter
'I'm not being briefed by your Chief of Staff again am I?'

The Master and Commander respond in military fashion to the cry of 'Cheese'

The Commander was keen to ensure that the Soldiers gained the most from this culmination of the years training. Therefore, Capt Richard Carter was 'borrowed' from 30 Sig Regt. He, with elements of the West Midland Training Team and an enemy section also from 30 Sig Regt, added the military skills training to the scenario. During the week they carried out low-level training (first aid scenarios, peace-demos and NBC to name a few), building up to Operations In a Built Up Area (OBUA). Extra realism was added by the numerous over-flights, courtesy of Flt Lt Farid Khan, our SO3 Ops/CIS, and intense enemy activity with armoured support from 19 Mech Bde HQ and Sig Sqn, centred on the Catterick Training Area.

The Exercise provided the Brigade Headquarters Staff and Units with an ideal opportunity to carry out realistic military and communications training. Lessons learned from the deployment can now be used to enable the Brigade to update Standing Operating Procedures, at a time when some 40% of the Corps are deployed on Operations and where the chance of TA and Reservists being called up for mobilisation is ever-more likely. The Exercise was definitely a success, but we have to ask ourselves, was this down to the excellent 'Portaloo Plot' produced by Maj Phil Daisey and Visitors Plan being supervised by Maj 'I want my own mobile phone on the next deployment!' Peter Williams. Well done to all involved from the Brigade Headquarters, outside Agencies and units. We look forward to the Millennium and to Ex Able Condor (Germany) working alongside our partners 1 Sig Bde.

MEANWHILE BACK AT THE RANCH

Meanwhile back in barracks a holding operation was in place. Maj (Retd) Rollo Rumford acting as sheriff sat in solitary in the West Wing watching over the half full car park and contemplating the panoramic views of the Donnington Ordnance Depot. Capt Jim Sykes was also alone in the Ops Room busy answering telephone calls, (well it was your idea to have all telephones plugged through to you) from those on exercise. Jean Vince, the Commander's PA, had at long last, time to catch up with her work but busiest of all was Roberta Bragg who was standing in for everybody else; doing mail, typing, filing, answering the telephone, looking after visitors and even checking trailer numbers. One has to ask when she is around, do we need anyone else? We, of the Rear party, have to note that the coffee room has never remained so clean and tidy and the Orderly room so neat, with the uniformed staff away.

HAIL AND FAREWELL

During the period we have said farewell to a number of our officers. Maj Phil Daisey who has departed to be QM 36 Sig Regt. It is the measure of the man that as a parting gesture he volunteered to run the Concentration Area at next year's Ex Able Condor - just joking Phil We wish him and his wife Gerry all the best and hope he has time to get his handicap down to single figures! He replacement is Maj Rab Young to whom we offer our warmest welcome both to him and his wife Kim. We wish them an enjoyable and entertaining tour in Shropshire. Also leaving after a very short tour is the SO2 Ops Maj Graham Addley who leaves us for Staff College. Graham has been very busy in the short time he has been here, so has his wife Claire who recently gave birth to Rebecca Catherine! To our congratulations we offer our best wishes for the future and a longer tour next time.

EXERCISE TRAILWALKER 1999

Ex Trailwalker (UK) is a 100km, 4-man team charity run which takes place every year in the south of England. It is organised by the Queen's Gurkha Signals and the money raised from the event supports the Gurkha Welfare Trust directly.

On the gloriously sunny morning of Saturday 26 June, the Chairman of the Gurkha Welfare Trust, Col Comdt Gen Sir Sam Cowan KCB, CBE, opened the event with a short welcome speech. This year, amongst the 185 teams competing including teams from both the US and Australia, there was two teams for Gurkha trainees from 11 Sig Regt led by Sgt Nirmal and Sgt Dharma.

The winning team, Team 'A', completed the race in 11hrs and 35mins. The leading team, 258 Sig Sqn from 30 Sig Regt was 15mins ahead of us until check-point 10. No doubt it was the morale and backing we received from our Officers and SNCOs that gave us the spirit to secure first position. Our 'B' Team completed the race in 12hrs and 8mins achieving third position.

Indeed, all the credit for this goes to our support team. Without their excellent administration and morale boosting support, we would not have achieved what we did.

Jai Queen's Gurkha Signals.

KOHIMA TROOP

Tp Comd Capt G. K. Bowdler

This has been an exceptionally busy time for the Troop, and has been the culmination of many projects simultaneously. The first big event was the Morrison Cup, for which the Troop was solely responsible for setting up. Fortunately the weather on the day of the set up was very good (unusual for June!) and despite having to wait for the tents, which arrived 11 hours late, the Troop worked brilliantly and got the job done in double quick time. Especially impressive due to the fact that for the majority, it was the first time they'd even seen a 9x9, let alone an 18x24!

No sooner than the Morrison Cup had been torn down and forgotten about when the preparations for the Royal Signals Association parade resumed at full pace. Soldiers from across the Regiment, who had already been practicing for several months, began to realise the fruits of their labour as the parade format finally began to come together. The day of the parade itself turned out to be a real scorcher, and despite the heat, everyone coped well. The old comrades thoroughly enjoyed their weekend, and praised the soldiers for their hard work.

The days of a rest room full of unemployed SATTs (Soldiers Awaiting Trade Training) are thankfully becoming a thing of the past. The number of opportunities available for the young men and women of Kohima Troop are greater than ever. Groups of soldiers have been detached to working units to help backfill gaps causes by the Kosovo troubles, including 14 Sig Regt, 21 Sig Regt, 3 (UK) Div Sig Regt and 2 Sig Regt. These attachments have proved of immense training value and in the maintenance of morale.

Finally, many thanks go to Troop Commanders Course 44, who showed particular style by presenting the Troop with a framed collage in thanks for the soldiers hard work and assistance during their course – good luck in the real world guys!

May saw the arrival of SSgt 'Working Weekend' Lindsey Manktelow from Kohima Tp who used her interior design quals immediately to 'TAZ' the office which really impressed the Troop Corporals. In July (after lots of training) we competed in the Inter Troop Volleyball competition which was well fought with strong players such as Sigs Paul Daniel who even after injuring his leg continued to play well. Thanks to Gavin 'I love myself' Denham, Karl 'How much sport can I play' Scott, Daz Jones and Chris Turnbull who only came to the Gym to do some weights and ended up making the team and last but not least Sig Nat Whelan. Unfortunately, 2 Sqn played two Gurkha teams and with it being their national sport we didn't really stand a chance. Thanks 2 (Gurkha) Volleyball Sqn. Congratulations go out to Sigs Stratton and Jacques, and to Sigs Taylor and Kinzett on their recent marriages. Pte Tom Grady and Sig Lisa Wiles for being chosen to represent the Army in Athletics, and Sig Hutton for being awarded Regimental colours for Swimming.

CHARITY PARACHUTE JUMP IN AID OF 'WHIZZ KIDZ'

On June 6 a total of 18 members of Blandford Garrison, Civilian and Military, took to the skies above Netheravon to raise money for the local charity Whizz Kidz. The weekend was organised by Sgt Dom Graham, and the aim was to try to raise enough money to buy a motorized electric wheelchair for a disabled child. The following personnel took the plunge: Capt Bowdler, Sgt Davey, Sgt Graham, Mrs Nixon, Mrs Morrison, Mrs Chambers, Miss Innes, Miss Summers, Sigs Carlaw, Taylor, Hunspberger, Lambert, Johnson, Robinson, Pricket, Burrows, Holland and Manifield. With the exception of Sgt Graham, who had jumped before, all the military personnel opted for the 3,500 feet static line jump, obviously preferring to take their lives into their own hands rather than trusting to others. Despite all the earlier bravado, all the lads taking part went curiously silent during the brief flight up to jump altitude, but all managed to overcome their fear and do the jump. Overall, the group managed to raise £2,500 for the charity, and proved themselves to be slightly braver than they had previously thought!

ARMY FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION - YOUTH CHALLENGE CUP

On Friday 16 July 1999, 18 members of the Regiment set off for the weekend to take part in the Army Football Association Youth Challenge Cup tournament at Arborfield. Travelling with them was manager WO1 Mark Elliot and coach Cpl 'Alfie' Alford. Coach Sgt Dave Hukin unfortunately could not attend though his efforts in the weeks leading up to the tournament were invaluable to the squad.

After a relaxing night in Aldershot transit accommodation it was up and off to Arborfield to book in and see which other teams were competing. There were five teams plus us and we were split into two leagues of three. One league comprised of Army Apprentices College Arborfield, Army Foundation College Harrogate and School of Electrical and Mechanical Engineering (SEME). We were in the other league with School of Electrical and Aeronautical Engineering (SEAE) and Depot Training Regiment RLC. After watching SEAE beat the RLC 3-0 we had a good idea of the challenge that lay ahead. Our first game was against SEAE and everyone knew it was a chance to strike early against the team that has won the cup for the past two years. 90 seconds into the game and we were 1-0 up. Sig 'Gilly' Gilmour thumped a screaming shot into the top right corner of the net to give us just the start we needed and settle the side. Another goal stolen by Sig 'Crazy Legs' Hayes before half time coupled with an injury sustained by their influential central defender meant the team went into the interval on a high. The game was rounded off in the second half by a strong run and good finish from Sig 'Scotty' Scott to complete a resounding 3-0 victory. The next game was against the RLC and again the team went into the interval leading. Sig 'Scotty' Scott scoring the all-important first goal. A penalty awarded early in the second half to the RLC was magnificently saved by Sig 'Hans' Seager only for the referee's assistant to judge that he had moved off his line just before the kick was taken. The re-taken penalty went in off the post to level the scores at 1-1. The game got a bit scrappy after that until once again Sig 'Scotty' Scott used his strength and pace to outstrip the RLC defence and seal a 2-1 win for the Regiment. Having won our league, we would be playing SEME on Sunday in the semi-final.

The game kicked off and straight away it could be seen that their tactics were to stop our two front men from playing by defending in depth. It was a tactic that worked well for them, assisted by the loss through injury of our central defender Sig Steve Gee. They scored soon after his departure and then soaked up a lot of pressure, throwing themselves in front of anything that went goalwards. Being 1-0 down at half time did not sit well with the team and coupled with a roasting from the coach everyone entered the second half determined to set the record straight. Once again things did not go to plan and SEME got a goal early in the second half to go 2-0 ahead. Despite endless pressure the team could only manage a consolation goal in the final minute from Sig 'Macum' Mckinnell. The obvious disappointment felt by the team was tempered by the fact that six players were selected to attend Army Youth Team trials in September, good luck to Sigs 'Mac' Mckenzie, 'Gilly' Gilmour, 'Gillie' Gillard, 'Clarkie' Clarke, 'Scotty' Scott and Steve Gee. Watch this space next year for the winning team's report.

HARROGATE CUP VOLLEYBALL COMPETITION

SSgt Gaz Cole, being all clued up on the sport (not), 'volunteered' to run the Regimental Harrogate Cup volleyball competition on behalf of 2 Sqn. Tuesday 6 July was the date chosen for the first round of matches to be contested between Rhino, Beaufighter and Lightning Tps. Beaufighter Tp ended up winning the league after some closely fought games. Lightning finished runners-up and secured their place in the semi-final.

Thursday 8 July saw the second league matches between Kohima, Iron and Ulster Tps. Kohima were first on against Ulster who were quick to settle in and won the first game 25-13. The second game was a lot closer and for a long time it looked like Kohima would level the scores. Alas, Ulster proved too strong and won with a late surge 25-22. Bolstered by their win, Ulster's spirits were high for their next match against Iron. This was short lived as Iron ran out easy winners by two games to nil, 25-9 each time. The final match of the evening saw Kohima take on Iron. Two well-contested games took place with Iron showing their superior skill winning 25-13 and 25-15. This left Iron top of the league with Ulster securing their place in the other semi-final.

The semi-finals took place on Tuesday 27 July. The first match on was between Beaufighter and Ulster. Beaufighter were straight into their rhythm and easily won the first game 25-10. A spirited fight-back in the second game saw Ulster narrowly defeated 25-17 by a technically gifted Beaufighter who were now into the final. The second semi-final was a much closer affair but once again Iron showed their will to win. Scores of 25-18 and 25-24 were enough to see Iron clinch the other final spot. This left Ulster and Lightning to play off for Third and Fourth places. The all-2 Sqn final opened with a stunning game which Iron narrowly edged 25-24. This sparked Beaufighter into action and they wrapped up the match by taking the next three games 25-19, 25-13 and 25-20. The Regimental 2IC, Maj P. A. Brown presented the prizes with special thanks to SSgt Gaz Cole for organising such a smoothly run competition, Cpl 'Compo' Compton and SSgt (FofS) Tye Sanderson for some excellent umpiring.

EXERCISE RIDGE IRON - by Sig Greville

Ex Ridge Iron was a two-day training Exercise held in Snowdonia nature reserve in order to enlighten thirteen young trainees from Iron Troop, 2 Sqn, on the finer points of mountaineering before Ex Lettersteig Grid-Iron later in the year. Those taking part from 2 Sqn were Sigs Booth, Cullern, Fox, Gautres, Granville, Greville, Hunter, McGraw, Podester and Twizzle. The Exercise was based at Capel Curig, where we were warmly welcomed by the local insects! Early Saturday morning we headed of to Pen-Y-Pass where we had a quick brew before heading up Crib-Goch for a spot of ridge walking. Many of the trainees soon discovered they could negotiate the ridge while keeping four points of contact with the rock much to the amusement of SSgt Butler. Now and again the cloud would clear just to remind us how exhilarating Wales is from 923 feet! On arrival at the summit we were amazed to find a bar. We gratefully quenched our thirst before making our descent via Y Hiwedd. After a quiet (!!!) night at the local night-spot, we tackled the north face of Tryfan which proved a slightly more vertical ascent than the previous day, much to the joy of Sig Elizabeth Fox. At times the route was challenging though the views from the summit were spectacular. Our original route would have taken us over Glyder Fach but due to inclement weather we were forced to abandon the rest of the expedition and retire to the nearest cafe before heading back to sunny Blandford. I would like to take this opportunity to thank Maj McNeill and SSgt Butler for this valuable experience.

LIGHTNING TROOP

Tp Comd WO1 Tony Sartorius

It has been a pretty hectic time in Lightning Tp with a new batch of potential technicians arriving and a change in the cadre. Farewell to WO1

Bob Banner who will be starting a new life in 'civi street' and a welcome to WO1 Tony Sartorius and SSgt 'Chippy' Chapman. Congratulations to Cpl Mick Delaney and his wife Debbie on the birth of their son. Trade Training seems to have increased threefold, however, outside activities have continued and indeed flourished with the 11 Sig Regt female Lanyard Trophy team gaining first place, which included Sig's Jackie Davies, Verity Gough and Liz Burley. Early June saw another Squadron day out at the ranges introducing the soldiers to the LSW, First Aid and NBC. Luckily the rain managed to keep away the whole day. SSgt Richie Plummer once again excelled as a NBC instructor and coined the famous line, 'Hey, don't worry about it, you're gonna die sometime.'

EXERCISE GRID IRON 6-11 JUNE 1999 - by Sig Stockdale

Sunday 6 June - We all paraded outside the cookhouse at 0745hrs which was somewhat of a feat as Sundays and 0745 do not usually go together. After breakfast, we made our way from the South coast out of England and into Wales, eventually arriving in Capel Curig Training Camp. We settled in before going for our first briefing where we were informed of the dos and don'ts before being instructed in hill-craft as our first two days were to be spent in the mountains of Snowdonia.

Monday 7 June – Tuesday 8 June - Following an early rise and breakfast, we all paraded out on the road ready for our trek. The instructors checked we had fitted our bergans correctly and that we were carrying only the essential equipment. We drove a short distance into the mountains before de-bussing for the start of two hard but enjoyable days. We took a turn each in map reading throughout the day with our instructor, Cpl Tony Brown correcting and clarifying points. The first morning was a long hill slog up Helgi-Du, traversing the ridge, which scared Sig Nik 'I've just been hit by the vertigo cricket bat' Hollis, before ascending further up to Carnnedd Llwellyn, which is only 20 metres short of Snowdon. We stopped here for lunch before continuing along the ridge to Carnnedd Dafydd and Pen Yr Ole. At last we could see the intended campsite in the valley below. We descended tired and complete with blisters to pitch our tents and get a brew on. After tea we were instructed in security on steep ground which entails many methods of ensuring you are safe at all times on steep terrain. We were woken early by our instructor who ensured we were all up and getting some breakfast. We broke camp, packed and were away by 0800hrs for the long walk back off the mountains and back to the welcoming sight of the mini-bus. We arrived back at Capel Curig camp at 1400hrs and I thought that was it for the day, but was informed that all the kit had to be cleaned and put back in the store, the only thing on my mind was bed, but still it had to be done.

Wednesday 9 June - Today we went climbing on the side of a mountain called Tryfan. On arrival I thought 'You must be kidding, who do you think I am, Chris Bonnington?' After some expert tuition by Cpl Dave Allen, the whole group was either climbing or belaying and overcoming for some of us, our worst fears. The whole day was excellent and this is something that I would really like to try again.

Thursday 10 June - This was the day I had been dreading all week, canoeing. After being issued with the equipment, we drove up the road to the local café. Our instructor was trying to put our minds at ease by talking us through the day. He was asking us questions about previous canoeing experience; I had none and that was the way I wanted it to stay. Unfortunately, that wasn't to be the way. We arrived at Plas-y-Brenin lake and got a brief on the equipment and clothing that we would be using before going through a few warm up exercises. It was now time to get into the canoes (or kayaks as I now know them to be) and get on the water. We were taught some of the basic strokes and played a few games. Sig Bob 'Frilly' Morley looked like he had been doing it his whole life, and most of all I was starting to enjoy it. We stopped for our packed lunch (YumYum) and chatted about how it was going. After lunch we did Eskimo rolls which required you to go upside down and grab hold of your mate's boat to pull yourself back upright. This was scary but good fun watching everybody worry about it.

Friday 11 June - Day to go home. I am not sure if I am happy or sad to be leaving. I've had an excellent week but my body is starting to ache, Blandford and the weekend off are calling. I hope that it won't be too long before I get the opportunity to do this again. Many thanks to all the staff of Whitespear Tp for an excellent week.

11 SIGNAL REGIMENT VOLLEYBALL TEAM IN EINDHOVEN
by Cpl Compton

After getting both the men's and women's teams through to the Army finals, and resulting in the women's team becoming the current Army champions, the decision was made to find stronger opposition. We decided on the Eindhoven International Outdoor Competition, where we would play against and meet 3000 competitors from 14 European Countries. As I was the only member of the team to have previously attended the event, I was more than aware of the problems that would be encountered in organising a team to attend the competition. After a few mentions of long legged female volleyball players and lots of sunshine, SSgt Bill Butler volunteered to organise everything himself if I bought him a beer…DONE!!

We arrived in Eindhoven on Friday evening after opting for the scenic route around London. Sig 'GI Jane' Hampton got the blame for that one. Putting up the tents was amusing as Sigs Natalie Whelan and Jo Gill gave us a demonstration of jujitsu tent building. We then scoured the centre of Eindhoven trying to size up the opposition, only to find they had gone to bed at 2am.

Saturday morning started with a PA system welcoming us all to the University where the competition was being held. We all struggled into sports kit and made our way to the volleyball courts only to find out nobody could understand Dutch. The Team Captain, Sgt 'Tosh' MacIntosh soon had us organised and we found ourselves referees in the first game. This gave Sig Emma Brown an opportunity to score at an international event, which she managed very easily! We played three games on the first day, and scored two draws and a win, which left us feeling happy. The outstanding player was Sig 'The Jazz Man' Jasprasadale who really knocked the stuffing out of our opponents with some quality spiking. On Saturday evening the tournament organisers arranged a function in a massive marquee with a live band, food and refreshments. We used this event to foster relations with our European friends. Sigs 'GI Jane' Hampton and Sophie Giles didn't need much encouragement on the interacting side of life.

Sunday morning started in a similar way to Saturday, but the weather and the competition was hotting up. However, that was no problem for our 'Cool Kids on the Block', alias Sigs 'I'm a Linie' Denham and Danny Daniel. We played two more games, winning the first and losing the second due to exhaustion. Just to join in with the occasion we felt it necessary to try the other event taking place. This involved running from a pontoon on the local river along some loosely tied floating mats and taking a leap for a suspended bottle quickly followed by the inevitable Big Splash! Nobody succeeded in reaching the target, but we all had good fun trying and managed to amuse everybody watching. All that was left was to pack up and start the drive back. This gave us time to reflect on an outstanding weekend made up of good competitive sport, fine weather, good fun, enjoyable atmosphere, sound administration and some determined individuals, who made this the highlight of the year so far. I would like to pass my sincere gratitude to all those who made the effort to attend and everyone who assisted us in the preparation and to those who allowed us to take part in the event. The teams consisted of the following personnel:

SSgt Bill Butler	Sig Natalie Whelan
SSgt Lindsay Manktelow	Sig 'Jazz Man' Jasprasadale
Sgt 'Tosh' MacIntosh	Sig Bishnulimbu
Cpl 'Compo' Compton	Sig Rizza
Sig 'GI Jane' Hampton	Sig Aitken
Sig Emma Brown	Sig 'Linie' Denham
Sig Sophie Giles	Sig Danny Daniel
Sig Jo Gill

A special mention must go to SSgt Bill Butler who did the entire organisation in his own time. Without his efforts it would not have been the success it was…. I don't think anybody will need convincing next year!

EXERCISE COCKNEY TRIANGLE - by Sgt Gleadow

Ex Cockney Triangle was a combined TA and Regular diving expedition to Bermuda where the aim of the Exercise was to do a survey on a sunken freighter that was carrying munitions. Our task was to map all ordinances that were lying on the seabed so that the Bermuda Defence Force could remove it at a later date. 11 Signal Regiments contribution to the expedition was in the form of qualified divers. The members of the regiment attending were Maj Nick Walker, Maj Mark Thurlow, and Sgt Phil 'Disco' Davies. Sgt Shawn Seraphin and Sgt Chris Gleadow.

We set of from Blandford to meet the rest of the party in London on the evening of 23 April. After an eventful journey and getting geographically misplaced in London we eventually arrived at the TA Centre to meet the rest of the expedition. After having our documentation checked we were introduced to the rest of the team and promptly wrapped ourselves around several beverages. The following morning we were up early to load all our equipment (thick heads included) onto the transport and set of for Heathrow airport. On arrival in Bermuda, we made our way to the Maritime Museum which is situated in an old fort, which we were to make our home for the next three weeks.

The following morning we were introduced to Clifford the director of underwater studies and briefed as to what we were going to do and allocated jobs. We then all went for a shake down dive and to check our equipment to make sure everything was working properly. Those of us that were to drive the boats were subjected to a boat handling test as getting the boat out of the museums keep pool was at first no easy task. We then went and orientated ourselves in the local area and found the best place to amuse ourselves in our spare time, which turned out to be a small hostelry called the Frog and Onion which was also the main attraction for the passengers of the cruise ships that regularly called. After being trained in the intricacies of how to complete an under water survey we set off to map the wreckage. The journey out to the wreck took almost an hour, and with a large swell running by the time we reached the wreck several members of the party were not feeling too well. Clifford then briefed us on the dangers of working with munitions that had been under water for a long time and not to jolt or jar the shells that we would find. We then went to moor up, and to our horror Clifford then threw two huge anchors overboard into the middle of the wreck. Fortunately they didn't hit anything nasty, as we had been on site for half an hour and the people that had been unwell were now definitely seasick. The wreck was well broken up with large artillery shells and canisters that could have been depth charges all over the place, and mapping them was to take us two weeks diving.

When we were on our rest days we did a little sight seeing by hiring motor scooters. This was to prove to be a mistake for Maj Mark Thurlow as he contracted a severe case of gravel rash when assisted from his scooter by a passing car. A little more than his pride was hurt and he still has the scars to prove it. Also on our days off we carried out some charity work, this took the form of painting the outside of the seamans mission which took us four days and by the end of it we were local celebrities as we were filmed and interviewed by the local TV station. Unfortunately all good things have to end and it was time for us to depart. As our flight was due to leave early in the morning an early start was required, and it was decided that we would all get up at 0400 clean up and depart for the airport. How ever this did not quite go according to plan. One of the London TA members of the Expedition, Otto Flack managed to walk off one of the gun emplacements falling about twenty feet whilst taking the rubbish to the tip in the dark. When he was found the emergency services had to be called as he had broken his thigh and could not be moved. After he had been taken to hospital we were by this time late and had to rush to the airport at the other end of the Island. By phoning ahead we were able to have the flight held and boarded the plane with minutes to spare.

We have since found out that Otto's injuries were more serious than we realised. He had in fact broken his thigh, shoulder several ribs, three vertebrae, and ruptured his spleen. I am happy to say that he is making a good recovery and we all wish him well.

THE PIPES AND DRUMS – RSA WEEKEND 1999

The Pipes and Drums arrived in Blandford during the early hours of Saturday morning after a very successful training week held at 14 Signal Regiment in Brawdy. Under the watchful eye and enthusiastic leadership of WO2 D. Y. Smith and Pipe Maj John Taylor, the band was 'raring to go'.

Bright and early on Saturday 26 June, Pipe Maj Stout had the lads and lassies on parade, eagerly waiting to get the weekend's events under way. There was the one minor hitch where the arena display rehearsal happened without the pipes being present (!), but unperturbed by this the Pipes and Drums show went on. With the assistance of all the good work carried out at Brawdy, Pipe Maj Stout's task was relatively easy, and before long, the melodic sound of the bagpipe could be heard resounding from the back of Whitespear Tp. There were a few nerves from Sigs Burrows and McPhee from 11 Sig Regt who were about to embark on their first 'Big Job' with the Corps Pipes and Drums. The Pipes and Drums participation commenced with the presentation of a set of bagpipes, donated very kindly to the Corps by the Dorset Branch of the RSA. LCpl Glen MacDonald received them on behalf of the Pipes and Drums from Maj P. Lafferty, the Chairman of the Dorset Branch. It was then straight into the parade and the first tones of Great Highland Bagpipe could be heard floating over Blandford Camp. The remainder of the afternoon's performance passed without any hiccups and was viewed as a success by all. Even the Pipe Majors were satisfied.

Saturday evening was free time for all but one. LCpl Macdonald was called into action to play the new pipes in the Sergeants' Mess. The remainder of the band set off for the bright lights of Blandford as LCpl MacDonald piped the RSA members into the mess. A few drams later and the pipes could be heard resounding all over the Mess, very much appreciated by all. Sunday saw the Pipes and Drums performing once again as they participated in the RSA march past on Hawke Square. Although sporting the customary hangover, the Pipes and Drums performed to a high standard under Pipe Maj Taylor. A very successful weekend came to a close as the Pipes and Drums prepared to head off to Germany and Canada to entertain and fly the flag in other climes. Many thanks to all who participated in and so helped to make such a successful weekend.

PROMOTIONS

Radex Tp have had a very successful season with the following people being selected for promotion: Cpl 'Tiny Taff' Hamblin, Cpl Tim Vanandel, Cpl Tim Gamble, Cpl Pete Emsen, Cpl Nigel Brewin, LCpl Clay Austin, Sig Jackie Kidd, Sig 'Blades' Casey, Sig 'Steve thanks but no thanks' Jarrett and Sig Gaz Whetlor. Yes, we know that amounts to about 25% of the Troop being promoted but who says being in a Training Unit isn't good for your career!

The successful candidates congregate for a photo Radex Tp bookmaker Sgt 'Chas' Fox pays out the dosh from the sweepstake to lucky punters Sgt Jim Harvey and SSgt Jon Heaton. The next sweepstake will be on how long Sig Gaz Whetlor keeps his tape for this time!

HELLOS, GOODBYES, BIRTHS, DEATHS AND MARRIAGES

Hellos - to Cpl Ed Lockwood, Cpl Mark Passfield, Cpl Dan Hitchmough, LCpl Sophie Morris, LCpl Rich Eveliegh, Sig Gaz Whetlor, Sig Dave Burford and Sig Kev Johnson. Welcome to the elite Radex Troop – Blandford will either make you or break you! Goodbyes - to LCpl (now civvy) Phil Webster to CTI Ltd, Cpl (now Sgt) Tim Gamble to 36 Sig Regt, Cpl (still Cpl) Elliot to the RSME at Minley and Sig (now LCpl) Jackie Kidd to 11 EOD. Births - Congratulations to Rich and Lisa Woolley on the birth of their second daughter Georgina and to Dan and Shirley Hitchmough on the birth of Aaron. Deaths - Deepest condolences to the family of the deceased weasel that has picked Sgt Chas Fox's top lip as it's final resting place! Marriages - Finally, belated congratulations to Cpl Kim Leonard and LCpl Jase Kent for tying the knot recently.

TROOP SUMMER CAMP

The last few months have been very hectic for the whole Troop and everyone was looking forward to Timmy Vanandel's Summer Camp in Weymouth – however next year can we have something further afield than 25 miles down the road! Summer Camp was a gruelling torturous week, not only did we have to participate in several adventure training pursuits during the day but the training plan also included spending our evenings in Weymouth conducting 'local familiarisation training which involved fraternising with both the locals and the tourists! It was a hard week for all especially our new Tp Comd, SSgt Jon Heaton who really struggled to keep up with the pace of his SNCO colleagues, choosing to spend nights asleep on corridor floors (he said it was for medicinal reasons as he has a dodgy back – we think not!). Special thanks to Tim Vanandel for organising an excellent week.

CCF CENTRAL CAMP 1999

Once again the Troop selected it's finest and deployed the Signals Training Team to Penhale Camp in Newquay for three arduous weeks of Cadet Training. This year saw the team train over 1500 cadets from all over the country. As always the intrepid bunch of volunteers made the most of the local amenities. When not engaged in the serious task of training, LCpl Martin Gillett managed to sprain his ankle on the second fairway (the biggest improvement to his game for a long time); whilst Sig Steph Brownless was often mistaken as a cadet and could be seen most afternoons racing along the field with a 9x9 under her arm and ten cadets trailing in her wake. Finally this year saw the end of an era with the departure of Tim Vanandel who has handed over the reins to Cpl Al Parker.

RADEX TROOP GOLF OPEN

Cpl 'Any excuse for a day off' Emsen organised our annual event this year, which co-incidentally he won (strange that) ably supported by his other bandits Cpl Ted Heath, Cpl Tim Vanandel and LCpl Mark Cozens.

TROOP BBQ

In June we had our summer BBQ and of course being in Blandford the weather was good and the atmosphere great. Everyone was in high spirits and beers flowed freely. A big shout to the organiser Cpl Rick Woolley, the chefs (term used loosely) Cpl Ganga and Cpl Al Parker and the barman Cpl Cal Hewitt. There was plenty of entertainment with bouncy castles, baseball games and golf challenges, which of course were won by Command Training. An enjoyable afternoon was had by all.

TROOP SPORTING SUCCESS

The following have shown Regimental level prowess in the following sports LCpl Jase Kent (Athletics), Cpl Ted Heath (Sailing), LCpl Mark Cozins (Hockey), SSgt Jon Heaton (Du/Triathlons), Cpl Andy Lane and Cpl Pete Emsen (Golf). Lastly LCpl Sophie Morris who has represented the Regiment, Corps and Army at Athletics.

ROYAL SIGNALS LEADERSHIP COURSE

by Sgt Sid Barrass

It a common misconception throughout the Corps, that the Royal Signals Leadership Course no longer exists. If you were to ask any of the thirty four students who completed the courses run in February and June, they would tell you that the course is as strong as ever.

The new OC, Capt Richard 'Toddy' Todd, is keen to dispel any misinformation about the course. SSgt 'Chippy' Pomfret, Sgt 'Sid' Barrass and Cpl Robbie Kirk complete the four-man team currently based in Blandford.

The team, pictured, has just completed two Welbeck Courses. Each of ten days run in the summer months, giving the potential Officers of tomorrow the opportunity to put their abilities to the test and perhaps start them on the road to becoming better officers in whichever Corps they choose to join.

The Royal Signal Leadership Course is open to all Royal Signals personnel from the rank of Signaller, up to and including Sergeant. It is a very demanding four weeks, both physically and mentally. The course is designed to provide leadership training, in the broadest sense, for Senior NCOs and below. It is intended to develop the leadership ability of potential Yeoman and Foreman of Signals, and to provide Commanding Officers with assessments of soldiers' leadership qualities. Bids are now being accepted for February 2000.

ARMY APPRENTICES COLLEGE, ARBORFIELD

Sqn Comd Maj Steven France
SSM WO2 Mick Senior

The week the total eclipse of the sun was to take place was also the final week of term for the College. The solar eclipse notwithstanding, this of course meant the usual dashing around like the proverbial headless chickens time! The Quad Games, March and Shoot, final review boards, passing out parade rehearsals, Basic Leadership for the Junior term, more parade rehearsals, administrative preparations for the parade, the parade itself – nightmare! Nonetheless, the Squadron managed to pull through yet again with flying colours. Having won the Quad Games, an inter-sub unit sports competition, our two junior term Troops, Scott and Rawson Tps, came second and third respectively in the College March and Shoot Competition, in which Scott Tp was only just pipped at the post by one of the RE Tps.

This term the successful selection of four of our Corporals in the last Corporals to Sergeants promotion board was indeed a high point. Our heartiest congratulations go to Cpls Colin Brotherston, Paul Millington, Muz Murray and Mick Yendell, who all get their third on posting this year. Also this term, we said goodbye to the Apprentices of Intake 99A, who report to Blandford in September for their Phase 2 (trade) training. Our best wishes to them at RSS ('None of you better let us down!'). We also bid farewell to Capt Darren Cooper and LSgt Glen Still WG from Rawson Tp, Cpl Paul Millington from Scott Tp and Cpl Jim Ayton LI from Penney Tp. Capt Cooper leaves us to join the instructional staff of Radio Gp at Blandford (hopefully to put his degree in CIS to some use), whilst LSgt Still returns to his Battalion, 1WG in London. Cpl Millington meanwhile will have joined 1(UK) ADSR as a Sergeant by the time this edition of The Wire is out, and Cpl Jim Ayton rejoins his Battalion, 2LI in Bulford. In their places, we warmly welcome Lt Colin (AKA George) Alexander from 30 Sigs, LSgt James from 1WG, Cpl Harmer from 37 Sig Regt and Cpl Wheeler LI from 2LI. We hope they all have a successful tour with us. So much from SHQ; this article features news from Rawson Tp (Sqn 2IC's comment – 'for a change'.)

NETTLE WARRIOR – TOUGH GUY CHALLENGE

'No doubt this is the toughest five miles you will ever meet. Last year's winner's time was 01:51:20. Rated as the toughest small endurance course in Gt Britain, consisting of wild jungle, 6ft high bracken, nettles and brambles and all this followed by twice round the killing fields carrying a 10lb log and then pushing it through a freezing swamp with your nose, twice round the obstacle course consisting of 'A' frames, a high wire confidence course, pits of burning straw, freezing plunge pools, water crossings, a barbed wire crawl, 'Viet Cong' drainage tunnels, and a 12m swim under a swimming pool cover .... ANY VOLUNTEERS?

Thirty from Rawson Tp raised their hands and we were on our way to what has become one of Gt Britain's toughest endurance events. Time to prepare was short, so we began training straight away under the watchful eye of our SSM, WO2 Mick Senior, and Tp Sgt, Sgt Tosh Hodgskins. These involved long runs out to the bondu interspersed with swimming and rope training sessions and AT 'Tove' Tovar could often be heard grunting in the dead of night as he beasted himself to the limit! The number of volunteers dwindled until two days before the event was due to take place, when a video of the previous year's competition fell onto the doormat and, after being censored by the SSM, the team were shepherded into the cinema to see what was expected from them. Afterwards we were left with the 'hardcore' 20 (5 females and 15 males) who would attempt the tough guy challenge.

The day started well with the entire Troop boarding a bus to Wolverhampton dressed in Corps tracksuits (guaranteed not to make you stand out in a crowd!). AT 'Head full of slammin' doors' Whitson turned up in a rugby shirt with the sleeves, neck and hem cut off in an attempt to 'lessen wind resistance'. It turned out that the bus driver didn't have a clue where Wolverhampton was, let alone where the event was due to take place; so we rolled the dice and set off in the general direction of Best bitter, whippets and racing pigeons much to the delight of ATs 'Panface' Taylor and 'Happy' Williams.

AT 'Brick' Wall at the start

The atmosphere at the start line was electrifying with almost 500 competitors crowding the start line until the starting pistol was fired...500 screaming banshees shot over the top of an embankment shrouded in smoke and began fighting their way to the beginning of the pack in order to complete a 1.5 mile sprint to the start point of the slalom race – 200m downhill followed by 200m uphill, followed by 200m down hill - you get the picture? Onwards to Brambly Woods following a piece of string through brambles, bracken, nettles and pointy sticks, under fences, over gates and through hedges until the competitors emerged bruised and scratched to confront the assault course. The course consisted, amongst other things, a number of very high 'A' frames. It was on one of these that AT 'Brick' Wall tore two of her finger nails off and was forced to withdraw from the race. We then encountered what was known as 'the Murder Mile'. This involved negotiating pits of sludge which sucked your trainers off, barbed wire crawls and water obstacles. So far none of this was causing AT 'Scottie' Scott any problems as she launched herself ahead of the main pack leaving other members of the team in her wake.

AT 'Scottie' Scott negotiates the moat

We swam lakes, crawled through twisting tunnels, swam under a 12metre swimming pool cover and numerous submerged logs until we staggered to the finish only to be told that we had one more lap to go!

Straight after the event we all piled into the communal bath, to wash away the muck and mud before meeting up with Cpl (soon to be Sgt) Mick Yendell, who had hidden himself away under the pretence of 'doing some admin'. Special mention must be made to the following members of the Troop, who despite some really stiff competition achieved notable placings: Winner of the female 'LAST MAN STANDING' and Second fastest female overall-AT 'Scottie' Scott. Ninth fastest male time - WO2 (SSM) Mick Senior, Sixteenth fastest male time - AT 'Tips' Tipper, Seventeenth fastest male -AT 'Head full of slammin' doors' Whitson.

OPERATION AGRICOLA
SSM WO2 (SSM) Al Jenkins

Since our last update, a lot of water has passed under the bridge; in fact the bridge has been washed away! A large part of the Squadron were dragged kicking and screaming on to planes under a programme of enforced repatriation to the UK, how sad they all were. SSgt (SQMS) Glen Kitchen was seen to have a tear in his eye as he waved them goodbye, he having selflessly volunteered to go in their place. But it wasn't long before the call of the drums could be heard and our recently departed comrades rushed back to join Her Majesty's Armed Forces in their hour of glory, pride beating in their hearts. Alas, our chariots of war had been tactically redeployed to the Mediterranean. But thanks to the efforts of SSgt Al Grundy, operating from a hastily established HQ in a small bar in Corsica, they were returned, just in time to miss crossing the border into Kosovo with the rest of the British Army. Ah well, you can't have everything.

Those that remained in theatre were kept busy with various recces, training, barbecues and cheese and wine parties. The Queens' Birthday Barbecue was a resounding success; thanks go to UKNIC for the invite. One of the recces seemed to follow a bad rewrite of the script from 'Where Eagles Dare', however, it did allow LCpl Lyn Gray to get her first flight in a Helicopter. TACSAT training under the YofS went well and there is no truth in the rumour that it was just an excuse to lie in the sun all day.

The Squadron is now well and truly established in wonderful Kosovo, which has all the appeal of Macedonia without the stone throwing. All Dets are deployed and yet again Sgt Andy Davies and his crew have managed to find the biggest hill around, what is it with those guys? Sgt Jace Roberts, having swapped dets (and not a moment too soon as Cpl Mac McMullen and LCpl Pete Sykes will testify) penetrated deep into enemy territory for a while. However, the locals were not happy with them in their area so they are now back with the British and co-located with a TN from 2 Sig Regt.

Sig Jamie Pateman struggles with TACSAT Training

Down at Ech, after fighting hard for some space, things are up and running, well walking at a reasonably quick pace. Although things have gone quite smoothly, I wouldn't ask SSgt (SQMS) Glen Kitchen for a 'smoke' or take Sgt Mick Dullaghan out for a drink. No wonder naphtha is in such short supply. Welcome to Sig 'Freddy Mercury' Russell and Sig 'Homer' Daniel. Goodbyes goto Sgt Jez Ward, Cpl Adie Browne, LCpl Ritchie Kear and LCpl John Blowes.

BEWC - HEADQUARTERS 4 ARMOURED BRIGADE

Down at Brigade the BEWC lives! YofS Dick Rutherford, SSgt Mark Wilson, LCpl Lyn Gray, Sig Richie Cranswick and Sig Jamie Pateman, gladly left the hardships of HQ KFOR to return to the field, well a car-park. Having been left behind twice, interviewed by Radio 4 and filmed in his boxer shorts by the worlds press, YofS Dick Rutherford and LCpl Lyn Gray finally managed to make their way over the border into Kosovo without an escort. Following one or two moves the Brigade finally set up in the middle of the only thing NATO did manage to bomb completely, mainly due to the fact it is hard to hide a VJ barracks in the woods.

SSgt Al Grundy returned after personally guarding our western flank, cheers Al. Maj Rob 'Call me MZ' Meinertzhagen and WO2 (SSM) Al 'Has anyone seen my…' Jenkins are now also members of this merry band, and after a quick meet and greet the OC soon remembered our names. Also joining us following a brief tour with the LEWT is Lt Fraser Reid. Our latest and hopefully finally location is that well renowned seat of learning, the University of Pristina. There is no running water but the cleaning staff has to be seen to be believed! The pace of life has now slowed considerably, the main point of interest being whether the YofS who looks like an extra from 'Viva Zapata' can get away without having a haircut or his moustache trimmed before R & R.

Hellos go to Lt Fraser Reid from the LEWT, LCpl Davie Kerr from a shortened R & R and Cpl Jez Callander who joins us ftom KFOR to cover R & R. Goodbyes go to Capt (yes its true) Crapper who returns to the UK, SSgt 'Nobby' Clarke who returns to the fold of his own Troop, LCpl Lyn Gray who returns to her own Det with a well deserved promotion and Sig Jamie Pateman who joins 'Bravo Two Zero' Det.

214 SIGNAL SQUADRON

Sqn Comd Maj D. W. Somerville
SSM WO2 (SSM) Forshaw

A turbulent period for all within the Squadron as we now find ourselves deployed into the various areas of Kosovo – Pristina, Mitrovica and Pec. After an extensive warned off period, the squadron have finally made it through Thessaloniki. The processing into theatre went very smoothly with no major problems. Once all the vehicles had been located, a large packet (well over 60 vehicles) deployed to the Greek and then Macedonian border. An very long journey when sleep was at a precedent and the majority had already been on the go for over 24 hours. The Squadron were given a short respite at Skopje before being ushered on and into Kosovo itself. Another long and arduous drive found us on the outskirts of Pristina and liaison with the Squadron Commander, who had deployed a week earlier with SSgt (YofS) Wright. Keen to get the assets on the ground as quickly as possible, CP7 deployed Tornado Tp just east of Pristina and Roman Tp further north to Mitrovica. Viking Tp had already established itself in Pec with the Italians. They have settled down quickly and OSC 132 (co-located with Tornado Troop) were ready to take on the CAOR responsibility within the first week of August. We look forward to the coming months, the opportunity to assist the local population as much as possible with productive G5 projects, to see 229 Sig Sqn withdraw from theatre, for the relocation of Roman and Viking on the Goles feature and preparation for the onslaught of a possible harsh winter.

The Squadron wish to welcome to the fold, SSgt (YofS) Parkins and SSgt (FofS) Leach still wet behind the ears, fresh from their relevant courses in Blandford. We must say our goodbyes to SSgt (YofS) Wright on his promotion, posting to 19 Mech Bde and his getting married in mid July - see you out here in the very near future. Also, our congratulations to SSgt (FofS) Oliver, also on his promotion and subsequent posting to RSS.

TORNADO TROOP – SPOT HEIGHT 1097 PRISTINA
Tp Comd 2Lt Graham Wills
Tp SSgt SSgt Neil Cooper

At last, after a long wait, a hardened drive and a short stay at 7 SR A Echelon, it was time to deploy to our final destination. A hill top site had previously been recced by the Squadron Yeoman on spot height 1097 just east of Pristina. The first vehicle up with our illustrious Recce Sergeant, Sgt Dave Uttley was LCpl 'Scotty' Scott in Radio Relay Bravo to test the water as they say. After forty minutes of 1st gear low ratio they finally reached the summit. What greeted them at the top of the hill was what used to be a fixed Serbian communications site with its underground bunker still intact. The hill top had been completely obliterated thanks to a successful bombing campaign and all that remained were the craters that the 2000lb bombs had left.

After several shunts of both 'Scotty' and Bravo Det, we managed to manoeuvre them into location and then off to pick up the rest of the Relays. All of the vehicles were eventually placed in their positions to cries of, 'You call this home for the next six months Sarge.' Cpl 'Slacky' Slack taking longer than the rest to ensure maximum comfort. Once all of the vehicles were in location, dug in and settled, the hard work started and the whole of the node set about clearing and filling areas of the site to make it habitable. After just a month, the location is already looking like home from home. It is really amazing what you can make from some sand bags, hessian, cam poles and string. 'Big Mac Mountain', as we have ceremoniously named it is very well fortified thanks to the minefield the Serbs kindly left behind for us. All are coping in the sun with the exception of LCpl 'Jinksy' Jinks who has only to think of the sun and turns into an 'undernourished lobster'. With one month gone, morale is high and R+R is just around the corner.

Just a few goodbyes to say in the coming months and most notably it is that of our aforementioned Recce Sergeant, Dave Uttley. He is off to Blandford as an Adventurous Training Instructor. Also departing, after serving nearly four years with the Squadron, is Cpl 'Scotty' Burman who is off for his T1 course. Sgt Cassidy, recently joining us from 219 Squadron, is also off on promotion to 40 Sig Regt NI. We would like to take this opportunity to wish all leaving the best of luck for the future.

ROMAN TROOP – MITROVICA
Tp Comd Lt Adam Honor
Tp SSgt SSgt Chris Symonds

At last, the Squadron finally got its date of departure for war torn Kosovo. It was good to meet up with the vehicles and more importantly, the Japanese Karaoke King, Sgt 'Bad Hair Cut' Harvey and Sig Jeynes after their escapades as boat guard on the illustrious Tokyo Highway merchant ship. The guys were obviously 'chomping at the bit' and desperate to join what seemed to be the rest of the Corps already up country. The drive to Pristina was a lengthy one with much 'window licking' done by all. After the hospitality of 7SR A Echelon we had to adjust quickly to the searing temperatures of Kosovo. Finally the Troop moved to its present location of Mitrovica to co-locate with the French Brigade. The Troop were first stuck into a coal bunker and were expected to dig it out. Eventually, it was accepted that the Node Home could co-locate with SAN 870. There would be enough room for 26 vehicles, if they were Match Box in size! We shoe horned our way in and finally managed to establish a good location. The 'good working relationship' with the French continued as it was finally accepted that the excellent shower and laundry facilities could be used. Comms were quickly established as was the routine with the quality of food helping morale enormously thanks to Cpl Galletly, an exceptional chef. The relationship with the French improved with time and now there is much thigh slapping and sharing of war stories taking place. On the subject of war stories, it must be said that the location is prone to sporadic fire and the odd hand grenade on the perimeter fence. The guys have taken it all in their stride and reacted very calmly except Cpl 'One Eye Open' Finlay who sleeps with bayonet fixed. The Troop now look forward to co-locating with TN 030 on a feature overlooking Pristina. Roman Tp have already got some of the troops half way home with LCpl 'Dusty' Millar and crew sat at 1500m above Skopje providing a radio relay relay.

The Troop say a fond farewell to SSgt Mo 'we are all doooommmed' Morrison. This man was a true Roman who worked extremely hard for the Troop and will be sorely missed and we wish him all the best as SQMS HQ Squadron. Another sad farewell goes to Sgt 'Bad Hair Day' Ramsay who is off to serve with 16 SR. Alas another true Roman leaves our Legion! He has served the cause admirably and we wish him and his wife Angie (plus rug rats) all the best for the future. However, the Troop does welcomes possibly the smartest man in theatre, SSgt Chris Symonds as he takes over the helm and is already drilling the soldiers into shape. A real baptism of fire for the newly promoted Troop SSgt, but we would like to take this opportunity to welcome his wife Lisa and children Eleanor and Madeline to 2 Sig Regt and hope they enjoy their stay here. Congratulations go out to Cpl Mark 'Randy Wild Blood' Parr who came off the Cpls to Sgts Board first time and who is off to pass his YofS course. 'Congrats' and farewell also goes out to newly promoted LCpl Rachel Howarth, who is off to join an EOD team.

VIKING TROOP – PEC
Tp SSgt SSgt Terry Shiels

After Trunk Node 030 had been on, what seemed, the longest 24 hours standby in history, we finally deployed to Kosovo on 9 June and arrived in Skopje. Pathfinders Sgt Andy Lloyd and Sig 'Jock' Dourley arrived in Skopje six hours before the rest of the Troop (we'll never live that one down). Our first night was to be spent at the shoe factory, although we were unaware of the welcome committee, which consisted of a drive through stone alley on the way in. The first deployment was a relief in place at a location known as TV Towers with TN 011 giving the Troop the opportunity for a good shake out and to get acclimatised. On the morning of 16 June, we were then to deploy across the border into Kosovo. Our destination was Pec, to the west of the country, which proved to be an eye opener for those who had not served in the Balkans before with the sights of burnt villages and deserted cities. As we were setting up in our new location, a fire fight in the main street made everybody aware of just how volatile the city was. LCpl Dibbert had an abrupt welcome to Kosovo with a Serbian insisting that he give him a welcoming hug and protection from a large group of UCK. The fun started when Sgt Andy 'mine prodder' Lloyd, on suspecting he had found a mine near to where the vehicles had been located and the Italian EOD team were called. Fortunately, it turned out not to be a mine but, of all things, a water sprinkler. Good call Sgt Lloyd, we just hope your lessons on mine recognition in TA centres do not have a 'soggy end'. To establish some form of routine a quiz night was introduced on a Wednesday night. The first was won by the technicians - Sgt Paul ' I can skip' Richards, Cpl Brian 'pie eater' Maher, Cpl 'Jock' McKeown and

SSgt Neil Cooper and Cpl Billy Morrison get to grips with the local way of working

Signaller Loach

Cpl Mandy Foster 'brushes' up on her Karaoke skills

last but not least LCpl 'Taff what quiz' Livesey – to prove that from four techs you can produce 'one' brain cell or so they say.

The Troop was subject to its first RTA when 30B was forced off the road by an oncoming HGV. Thankfully Sigs John 'Coolboy' Sherwin and Gaz 'not a pretty boy' Mazzey were not seriously injured and managed to walk away with a few cuts and bumps. LCpl Hinchliffe, the Det Commander was later heard to mumble, 'I leave you alone for five minutes and look what happens.'

It has been a time of great change in Viking Tp and a few special mentions need to be said. Congratulations to Cpl Del Parkinson for his selection for promotion to Sergeant and subsequent posting. From all the guys in the TN, we would like to say a fond farewell to Sgt Andy Lloyd and his wife Karen, on promotion to 35 Sig Regt (V) and LCpl Bill Murray, who is also posted and going back for his class one. Farewell also goes to Sig Daniel Lynch on his decision to leave the Army.

Relays Pax – the relays are making good of a bad thing

7 SIGNAL REGIMENT

CO Lt Col D. A. H. Jones
RSM WO1 (RSM) S. Smoothy

It has been a news making time for 7 Sig Regt having finally crossed the border into Kosovo, established the network that is now to be commercialised and begun the move home in time for Christmas. The highlights have been the advance, the Regiment's 40th Anniversary Dinner and the visit of HRH The Princess Royal.

CP7

The Regimental Ops team consists of Operations Officer - Maj Tim 'Scarface' Allen, Tech Adjt - Capt Martin 'Admin' Bever, Traffic Officer - Capt Gary 'PVRO hmmmm' Stratton, TOT - Capt Dave O'Brien, WO1 (YofS) Lee 'G5' Keily and Sgt Teri 'The Gripper' Lees and the REMF (all ops teams need one) Sig Nicki 'Stay behind Op' Fallows.

The deployment of CP7 was much the same as any other department in the Regiment - i.e. off the back of three weeks ARRC Exercise in Germany in January/February, a month hot planning flitting between Krefeld and Rheindahlen and the inevitable deployment on 'Ops' to FYROM over 3-9 March 1999 (we actually did not deploy on 'proper' ops to Kosovo until 12 June 1999). The day before deployment saw lots of frantic packing of comfort boxes in the RHQ corridor; Ops - rugby ball and guitar. Tfc - Ron Hills, floppy hat and neoprene sleeping bag. TOT - lots of paperwork including everything there is to know about TACSAT. Tech Adjt - nothing. YofS - a box full of running kit. Sgt Lees - two Flak jackets (one for each side). Soon after deployment and a number of moves of location - 7 Sig Regt inherited the Ptarmigan network from 16 Sig Regt which contained a couple of clusters and a few standalone centrals. CP7 concurrently moved from the Shoe Factory (AKA the slipper factory) to the Metal Factory (there's one in every good scenario) and after a few good nights in the 'Sandbag Inn' soon became re-christened 'The Red Wine Commandos'.

It wasn't until going over the border in to Kosovo on 12 June 1999 that the CP considered themselves on a proper operation. All the hard preparation in the planning of the move of the communications assets was finally going to come to fruition. Whilst a plan had been nurtured and honed to a satisfying finished product over the previous three months it was still a flexible plan and indeed needed to be, which was proven on the move north especially with the unexpected occupation of Pristina Aport by the Russians. There was a lot of activity and much to see on the initial phases of the Kosovo element of the deployment, much of which was not very nice. A number of dead or injured animals, lots of wrecked and burned out cars with personal belongings scattered everywhere (discarded by or removed from fleeing refugees). Some of the team were unlucky enough to discover corpses. The smoke rising from burning houses could be seen all over. The fleeing Yugoslavian Army (VJ) were under remit to move out of specific areas by certain deadlines. The evidence of the NATO air strikes was also very apparent with the accurate bombing of VJ barracks and other specific targets.

CP7 was set up initially in the same location as the TAC HQ in Pristina, subsequently moving to the KFOR Main HQ at 'Film City'. Many hours were put in to the clearance and recce of communications locations and planning to stabilise a solid trunk network, which, on reflection was achieved very quickly. After one month work started on the repatriation of some of the Regimental assets back to Krefeld. CP7 and elements of the Regiment remain deployed, the focus now on assisting HQ 1 Sig Bde in the implementation of a Commercialised System to replace as much Ptarmigan as possible and thus releasing the remainder of the Regiment. The tour has been busy and very rewarding and has left everybody in no doubt as to the worthwhile job they have been involved in Kosovo or bust !! - Finally the order to move came, and with a great degree of hustle and bustle the OSC group and the two Trunk Nodes began the push North. The push North, inevitably, began with a push South - to Echelon in order to re supply. By this stage the Boss had already moved forward with LCpl 'Taff' Phillips and FofS Sutton. They were on a mission to find a site for OSC and TN 011, preferably without VJ prior occupation or excessive mine or UXO threat. The remainder of us, still at Echelon, were preparing for the long road move ahead. Eventually the order came, and off we went with our convoy of 30 or so vehicles. On passing Brazda Camp we were cheered by thousands of Refugees chanting NATO, a truly moving experience and one which none could ever forget. The road move to our RV south of Pristina was long (totalling some 18 hours), and thus many of the drivers and passengers turned into sleep monsters, every stop resulted in the 2IC, Capt A. J. Smith, running the length of the convoy waking up the drivers (including Sig Riches, his own driver). None the less, with the usual excellent REME support from Sgt McGovern and LCpl Kinghorn, all of the vehicles and soldiers arrived on time and in the right place. The OC then met us and moved us all to KFOR TAC, to enable further Recce to take place for a suitable site.

The GOLES, a commanding hill to the West of Pristina, was soon identified as our new home. On arrival we found a veritable selection of mines and Cluster Bombs, hence our major concern was not comms, but safety. Very swiftly though, comms came in and the Network in Kosovo began it's growth. For the next few days, EOD cleared and we attempted to communicate through the constant vehicle movements and EOD explosions. Within three days the comms were all in and working. The initial, indeed over all, success of the Communications was as ever thanks to the excellent work put in at all levels from each and every operator, Node Command and though some would disagree OSC Group. We were truly honoured to have HRH The Princess Royal visit us on the hill. Her Royal Highness' level of interest (and knowledge) made for a fantastic visit which none of us present would wish to have missed.

After moving around FYROM for three months, working sometimes on our own, once with the Americans and twice with the Germans, Trunk Node 012 entered Kosovo with the 12 German Panzer Bde, and headed for Prizren in South West Kosovo. We were very impressed with the German set up in Tetovo and felt sure we were with the right Brigade, to look after our creature comforts and security.

Lt Bruce demonstrates technology to the Germans

The radio relay site was initially receced with armour support and EOD clearance. The hill was a Serbian communications post and the building on it had been heavily bombed by the Allies. During the recce the EOD found several devices, including a 500lb Mk 82 Bomb, and disposed of them, site cleared, or so we were told. The relay site was established by 012 and German Signals followed then came PTT and UN/Motorola repeaters, a very busy hill top. After living on the hill for over a month inquisitive soldiers reported a 'large object' in the house, which some had assumed to be a boiler. On checking the object the German EOD cheerfully announced that it was a 2000lb US bomb! and that the hill should be evacuated immediately. They then sat down and ate BBQ'd steaks with a few cans of beer, while the hill was evacuated, and then detonated the bomb, which was quite an explosion!

The tour has been plagued by rumours regarding the end of tour date, one week we were going to be here until October, the next it was a year tour, then we were going home early. The Squadron has finally received conformation that we are in fact going back to Krefeld after five months in theatre, a month early. Everybody is now busy preparing the vehicles to return to Germany and the mood is one of relief, after a very strange tour.

KFOR FORWARD
OC Lt Howarth
2IC SSgt Gemmell

When KFOR TAC deployed with the Sqn Comd 232 Sig Sqn and KFOR Forward advance party we knew that we had 48hrs to line up and complete all final checks. As we formed up at the Metal Factory, Skopje the dust bowl began to fill as we received vehicles from ARRC Support Bn and communications vehicles from the Dutch Army. The final convoy of almost 100 vehicles set off at 0030hrs on what was a 90km drive. This took almost 8hrs due to the amount of military vehicles heading the same way and the refugees returning to their homes. We finally arrived in Pristina and headed to KFOR TACs location. As we drove in the Serbian soldiers were driving out in the other direction. By their hand signals they were not too happy about the situation.

On arrival we split into two shifts and set about guarding the film studios that would become the HQ location. It had literally just been vacated by the Serbians and while we cleaned it out it had to be aggressively guarded as the Serbians were still in the local vicinity. Eventually it was time to vacate a site for a major Access Node that would support KFOR MAIN HQ. The site was on top of a hill overlooking the film studios and once it had been cleared by the Royal Engineers and Canadian Lumberjacks the vehicles we had were placed and we awaited reinforcements. First to arrive was SW&FC 096 led by Sgt 'Capo' Carpenter, closely followed by SW&FC098 under the guidance of Cpl 'Nearly' Burke. He sported a huge smile as he had just discovered that he had come off the promotion board. Congratulations are in order but he is still waiting to wear his third stripe so his smile has waned somewhat.

KFOR MAIN MAN SITE
OC Lt 'Mrs Merton' James
2IC SSgt 'Archie ' Gemmell

As the last vehicles were manoeuvred onto our final resting ground at the KFOR Main location in a Film Factory at Pristina we soon realised that if something was not done quickly the whole area would become an ankle deep quagmire. It was then that the Chain Gang was formed. A lot of hard labour resulted in the 'Shale Party' creating mud-free gravel tracks to every vehicle although some doubt the tactical implications of white gravel paths!

The locals in Pristina have been entertaining themselves and brightening our nights by lighting bonfires in each others houses and turning an arsenal's worth of live rounds and tracer into empty cases. During daylight hours they are more friendly, which was demonstrated at the 7 Sig Regt G5 project to renovate a Kindergarten school. A hoard of kids turned up all clamouring to help and literally taking the brushes out of our hands. Unfortunately much of what had been achieved through hard work and co-operation had to be repeated the following day because the school was looted and ransacked during the night.

The Admin area was officially opened by the CO of 7 Sig Regt on 9 July 1999. Throughout the day there was an inter-section sports competition involving football, volleyball, Tug-of-War and boxing (on the play-station). Prior to this the Monopoly village was being completed with each tent being a place on the board. From the SNCOs at Mayfair (£320) to the Driver Linemen at Old Kent Road (£60) and the Officers at GO TO JAIL. The Canadian Lumberjacks helped build a wall which we then painted in the Corps colours and the 7 Sig Regt spear. It was a mad rush to complete it all before the Grand Opening but we could relax after as the bar was opened (Hurrah!). This was perfect timing for LCpl 'Timmy' Mullett to celebrate after the CO presented him his first stripe in front of the new wall. Congratulations also go to LCpl 'Mark' Wright who is also wearing his new stripe with pride.

The main part of the Headquarters build was performed by the Fwd team which included Lt 'Gen' Howarth, Sgt 'Drew' Drewett and LCpl 'Jock' Taylor. Now that the rest of the team has arrived in theatre the daily routine of conferences and maintenance is the norm. The Lineys workload has settled down now that the staff users have finished trading places and swapping rooms. The staff have resorted to the old sport of SYSCON baiting with some of the questions they have asked recently. Some of the classics include:

Q. Will the chopper land over there?
A. Yes Sir that's the hele-pad.

Q. Could you add me back onto the conference?
A. We don't have one running at the moment Sir.....Oh

Q. Lei paventosa umilimente pascea?
A. What....

SRG AND RADIO
Tp Comd Lt Jones
Tp Sgt Sgt Wilson

20 June 1999 saw the remaining radio and SRG assets deploy to theatre. Many buildings were still standing and most of the people were actually glad to see us. Once established in Film City, KFOR Main we were joined by six SRG detachments from 1 ADSR. So now we have a fleet of nineteen SCRAT vehicles, two Radio-Rebros and seven RATT detachments in theatre. Hello and congratulations to Sgt Wilson on posting and promotion from 249 AMF(L) and goodbye to Cpl Clark and LCpl Woodall who are posted to 2 Sig Regt and JCUNI respectively. And finally a special goodbye to Sig 'Matty' Mathews who believed he was going to 2 Sig Regt to play Rugby but instead he is going to the Falkland Islands to count penguins. Tough luck!

4 ARMD BDE AND SIG SQN ATTACHMENT 5-9 JULY 1999
by LCpl Ricky Curran

On 5 July 1999 I was attached to 204 Sig Sqn for five days to patrol Slivo and the surrounding villages. It was a huge change to my routine work, but the chance to patrol around Serbian villages in a GS Rover and 436 Radio det whilst the UCK were living nearby seemed too good to miss. The locals were under the impression that the 436 was a tank because it was tracked. The fact that it is only an armoured vehicle with a GPMG mounted on the front was immaterial because it made them feel safe and happy and that was all that mattered. Our mission was to patrol the villages in the area in order to give the Serbians peace of mind that they are protected from the UCK. We also had to check cars and people for illegal arms and munitions. Everyone complied with our requests to search cars and trailers but unfortunately we never found anything. The Albanians were very keen to proclaim that they were members of the UCK, but when we asked them for their weapons none of them had any! At night, however, you could hear them shooting rounds off, probably to let both us and the Serbians know that they were still armed and capable of inflicting revenge. It was an extremely enjoyable five days and a worthwhile job that the locals appreciated. This was demonstrated by the fact that when we arrived there were only two Serbians living in the village and by the time we departed sixteen more had felt it safe enough to return to their homes.

The Squadron Headquarters and Tac Troop have now returned to Krefeld having arrived first finished their job but leaving the SANs behind to be looked after by 231 Sqn. 7 Sig Regt has provided the manpower for the French and Italian SANs with 16 Sig Regt manning the Germans and 3 Div Sig Regt looking after the Americans and the APOD but they are being relieved by 2 Sig Regt.

DELTA TROOP - SAN 876 - by LCpl Rhodes and Sig Barrett
Tp Comd Lt 'Pierre' Farrimond
Tp SSgt SSgt 'Stef' Newton

Times have changed from scorching Katlanovo, Macedonia and we have made the news and history here in the Balkans with NATO's first victory. We may not have seen the newspapers but we have lived with the journalists here in the HQ of the Multi-National Brigade West in Pec. It is, however, still very Italian and we at SAN 876 prefer the title the Garibaldi Brigade. The Troop says a big hello to Sig 'Where's the Bar?' Cragg and Sig 'Where's my Bed?' Gallard and the newest member of Delta Troop Sig 'Rick' Anderson on their recent arrival into Theatre. A welcome back to Sig 'I didn't start the fire honest' Moffat on his return from Albania. Attached to our SAN is an RAF SATCOM Detachment which is trying to adjust to the Army way of life.

Sig Roberts provides a service with a smile to the Italians

Some in theatre R & R to Lake Ohrid was organised and it was worth the three hour journey to watch SSgt Angove being thrown into the lake by Sig 'Scouse' Dowell. It was just what the Troop needed. What started out as an innocent boat trip around the lake turned into a jet-skiing-adrenaline-pumping extravaganza. In the meantime Lt 'Has anyone seen my Beret?' Farrimond was damaging his rear by sitting on sharp objects in the accommodation.

After a three day fling with a car factory, the HQ settled in and around the town square of Pec which was deserted, devastated and still in flames. There were interesting incidents including manoeuvring the SAS/MC and the Italian's HF antenna around the back of the hotel. We accidentally took it with us in the dark and they were not too impressed. We have expanded up to a total of 76 British Troops in our location due to the arrival of the 2 Sig Regt TN 030. The SAN and SATCOM manpower has changed, although the Delta Troop name will survive in both Krefeld and Pec. Even the resilient Lt Farrimond is now leaving for a job in Pristina as Press Officer before he grows a beard, wears sunglasses on parade and becomes too Italian.

This Wire entry would not be complete without a mention that we overtook Tac Troop and CP7 to become the first SAN over the border and set-up. Finally, congratulations to Cpl Wilson on the birth of his bouncing baby boy Kit, Sig Laverick on his engagement and Sig Carroll on his miraculous recovery.

SAN 870 AT THE FRENCH BDE
OC Lt Noakes
SSgt SSgt Ironside

Time changes all things and life at the French Brigade has certainly changed. SAN 870 is subject to many changes but those remaining include Sig Brown who call to duty is never-ending and the French endearingly call the 'Iaarrcizz spesializzt'. LCpl Cooper who was determined not to let any dirty 231 Sqn hands on her detachment, and Sig Adam who arrived back flush faced from her R&R to find things weren't quite as they had always been. Finally the OC, Lt Noakes, who is convinced that she will need surgery to remove the smile from her face when she returns to Germany having earned the dubious accolade of Mademoiselle Ptarmigan.

It was the Extraction Force in February, the Immediate Deployment Force in March, the French Framework Brigade in April the French Brigade in May, the Leclerc Brigade in June, and finally in July Multinational Division North. Positively a name for all seasons, its a good job that SSgt Farrar has only just joined the SAN otherwise we would have destroyed an entire rainforest trying to keep our notice boards up to date.

For some of us we had been longer there than in the Regiment in Germany. French D-Day saw the biggest thunderstorm the mountains could throw at us and the unfortunate loss of Sig Evans due to an injury. At least this provided the OC the experience of translating for Sig Evans in the French hospital while he was wearing his underpants and jungle hat. They obviously don't see this sort of underwear at Sandhurst. The SAN was sorry to see old faces depart. Goodbye to SSgt Ironside, LCpl Challand, adieu to LCpl Hughes and LCpl Musgrave the twins, au-revoir to the radio detachment LCpl Day, Sig Schafer, and Sig Nicholls and also the terrible twins on the radio relay LCpl 'Taxi for Smith' Ablott and Sig 'Taxi for' Turner. Life with the French just isn't the same without you. Enjoy a well deserved post tour leave! Sig Burton elected to stay on for further challenges and moves to the Italian Brigade SAN in Pec to be detachment commander...congratulations, thoroughly earned! The new faces at the SAN include LCpl Ryall, LCpl Gauchi, Sig Garrett, Sig Holt, Sig Collins, Sigs Kingshot and Howard from 1 Div, Sig Constable, Sig Garside and Sig Maskel.

SAN 884 PRISTINA APOD
OC Lt Fawcett
SSgt SSgt Howes

The SAN deployed earlier then the rest of Masirah Tp, 3 Div Sig Regt, ie: no leave, flying into theatre on an urgent mission, earmarked to supply Ptarmigan to the Russians! The MT driver assured us he knew the route and finally we arrived at RAF Lyneham. The five hour flight on a Hercules had the usual in flight entertainment and we arrived at 2100hrs local to a still hot and humid Petrovec Airfield in Skopje. We tagged along with 2 Sig Regt and arrived at the metal factory to be met by Capt ' Where's the football?' Newton! The, soon to be familiar, cry of 'Not sure why you're here, there's no task yet' rang in our ears. Sig 'Chumly like' Warner temporarily had a job up TV Towers on a Rebro det, and was very nearly forgotten when we finally received our task. 'How fast can you be ready to go? Two hours! Excellent! You're going with Main.' Across the border, with anticipation of a job, finally! 98kms and six hours later, we reached KFOR TAC only to hear that oh so familiar phrase. Park up there and wait out.

Two weeks later and finally we get a task, for real this time. Move to the APOD and provide comms, Yeah! The Russians are across the car park from us so things become interesting. It's not long before the old faithful football is brought out and a quick 'friendly' is struck up against the Russians, we win of course and even manage to persuade their best player to play for us. Life continues in the heat.

3 DIVISIONAL HQ & SIGNAL REGIMENT RADCON

Our task was to augment 7 Sig Regt's deployed radio dets and provide firm command and control over the KFOR command net. Fine words. It all went slightly pear shaped when our OC, Capt Alex Fennell was immediately deployed to help set up Brazda refugee camp, and 7 Sig Regt realised that we had brought no equipment or vehicles with which to build RADCON. Our three RRBs were immediately deployed to help the two 7 Sig Regt's Rebros and provide an all informed net.

Albania was an excellent opportunity to look at a country that had been cut off from the rest of the world. Two dets, one from 7 Sig Regt and one from 3 Div, LCpl Andy Bennett and Sig Bob Rankin commanded by Sgt Jim Watt were despatched to the badlands of Kukes in north Albania for a two to three day tasking, five weeks later having helped build an airstrip and start a Mafia bread war, the independent Radio Troop was extracted back to Macedonia in time for the entry into Kosovo. The plan was written, tried, changed, tried again and worked. LCpl Kenny Irwin deployed to the border and provided the link forward. Cpl Guido Giddens went forward with 7 Sig Regt Tac and deployed almost immediately to a high point above Pristina going four way-made 'for the spotters' and providing coverage over all of Kosovo. RACOON's vehicles arrived from the UK, went forward and established at film city. Capt Phil Newton and Cpl Mick Preece having reached their peak in their training and tanning have gone home and the Radcon grouping now about to be OPCON 231 Squadron wiped the floor at the Inter Squadron Sports.

VIKING TROOP – PEC
Tp Comd Lt Peter Hale
Tp SSgt SSgt Terry Shiels

After Trunk Node 030 had been on, what seemed, the longest 24 hours standby in history, we finally deployed to Kosovo on 9 June and arrived in Skopje. Pathfinders Sgt Andy Lloyd and Sig 'Jock' Dourley, who arrived in Skopje six hours before the rest of the Troop (we'll never live that one down). Our first night was to be spent at the shoe factory, although we were unaware of the welcome committee, which consisted of a drive through stone alley on the way in. The first deployment was a relief in place at a location known as TV Towers with TN 011 giving the troop the opportunity for a good shake out and to get acclimatised. On the morning of 16 June, we were then to deploy across the border into Kosovo. Our destination was Pec, to the west of the country, which proved to be an eye opener for those who had not served in the Balkans before with the sights of burnt villages and deserted cities.

As we were setting up in our new location, a fire fight in the main street made everybody aware of just how volatile the city was. LCpl Dibbert had an abrupt welcome to Kosovo with a Serbian insisting that he give him a welcoming hug and protection from a large group of UCK. The fun started when Sgt Andy Lloyd, on suspecting he had found a mine near to where the vehicles had been located and the Italian EOD team were called. Fortunately, it turned out not to be a mine but, of all things, a water sprinkler. Good call Sgt Lloyd, we just hope your lessons on mine recognition in TA centres do not have a 'soggy end'.

To establish some form of routine a quiz night was introduced on a Wednesday night. The first being won by the technicians - Sgt Paul Richards, Cpl Brian Maher, Cpl 'Jock' Mckeown and last but not least LCpl Taff Livesey – to prove that from four techs you can produce 'one' brain cell or so they say.

The Troop was subject to its first RTA when 30B was forced off the road by an oncoming HGV. Thankfully Sig John Sherwin and Gaz Mazzey were not seriously injured and managed to walk away with a few cuts and bumps. LCpl Hinchliffe, the det commander, was however, later heard to mumble ' I leave you alone for 5 minutes and look what happens.' It has been a time of great change in Viking Tp and a few special mentions need to be said. Congratulations to Cpl Del Parkinson for his selection for promotion to Sergeant and subsequent posting. From all the guys in the TN, we would like to say a fond farewell to Sgt Andy Lloyd and his wife Karen, on promotion to 35 Sig Regt (V) and LCpl Bill Murray, who is also posted and going back for his class one. Farewell also goes to Sig Daniel Lynch on his decision to leave the Army.

After four months of waiting, the orders for the move into Kosovo came at very short notice, causing a flurry of activity as the Forward Echelon prepared to advance to its new location at Pristina. Meanwhile, back in Krefeld the Echelon Main Body implemented the plan for a sea and air move to Thessaloniki, Greece, followed by a road move through Greece, Macedonia and on into Kosovo. All elements of Echelon were married up at our new home, The Kosovo Auto Club by 16 June. The boys and girls of the Forward Echelon had done a superb job of transforming a former car lot, bulging with stolen and scrap cars into a home from home, allowing the Main Body to slip seamlessly into place and continue with the never ending task of keeping the Regiment and its attached elements Fed, Fixed, Fuelled and Watered.

MOTOR TRANSPORT
MTO Capt Phil Clifford
MT SNCO SSgt Dave Mitchell

Life for the Regimental MT in Pristina is hectic. Supplying all the fuel requirements for KFOR Main with only two UBREs is a non stop task leaving Cpl 'GWA' Bowman with an accounting nightmare and a manpower headache, especially when Sigs Lee 'Parker' Manton and Dave Watson decide to go sightseeing in Down Town Pristina in the fuel trucks! We would like to say goodbye to Sgt Les 'Airborne' Tobbell and wish him and his family all the best at Leconsfield. Also a sad farewell to the Old Git of the Troop, LCpl 'Clem' Clement. We hope you enjoy 21 Sig Regt for your last year and wish you and your family good luck for the future. Moving on to the 'Hellos' – Sig Kate Knight from 14 Sig Regt, LCpl 'Scotty' Witts fresh from a stint with the TA and Sig 'Jackie' D'Lasselle, fresh meat from the factory. Finally, congratulations on forthcoming marriages go to Sig 'John Boy' McMahon and Monica and to LCpl 'I've signed for it' Christian to Sig 'Chocolate' Clayden.

ECHELON - by SSgt (SQMS) Steve Behan

After nearly two Months in the Tito Metal Factory (TMF), Skopje, waiting for news of the advance to Pristina, the light at the end of the tunnel began to shine. I was assisting 229 (Berlin) Sig Sqn with a military skills competition, when news came through that a political settlement to the conflict in Kosovo was drawing near. I stayed for the duration of the evening, which consisted of a BBQ and a few small beers, ably hosted be SSgt (SQMS) 'Taff' Webb and SSgt Matt Wakeling. I awoke on Sunday morning, my head filled with 'corned beef', and the sound of a Subset ringing in my ears. It was a message from Capt Phil Clifford, OC Echelon and MTO instructing me to return to the TMF. Stores needed to be identified and re-sorted for a possible move into Kosovo. During the subsequent five day period we sorted out stores, refreshed incoming Squadrons and detachments. An enormous pile of stores was chucked at SSgt (SQMS) Pete Griffiths, 232 Sig Sqn, causing him to start pulling his hair out with the amount of ammunition, morphine and other war fighting materials placed outside of his vehicle. Eventually TAC and FORWARD moved north with the initial deployment force into Kosovo. We at Echelon humbly watched the advance on TV, the main coverage being the insertion of the Airborne forces and armour into Kosovo. Whoops of 'yeah' and 'kickbutt' came from our own airborne children WO2 (RTWO) Carl 'The Bishop' Weaver and Sgt Les Tobbel. Intermittent screams of 'RED ON!' and crashes from falling GS tables as these two practised their landing techniques, overshadowed all sound from the TV. Echelon was told that D+4 would be our deployment day. For this we prepared by packing all non-essential equipment and vehicles, leaving the cookhouse in all its splendid glory to the last possible minute. D+4 was brought forward two days, and then delayed three days and brought forward again, until the OC, Capt Phil Clifford declared 'OK lads, we're on four hours notice to move'

Tuesday, 1500hrs - the OC called a briefing: 'That four hours notice to move has been shrunk in the wash, we leave at 1620hrs'. This raised a few eyebrows, a few smirks, and then looks of sheer horror as the reality sank in, the cookhouse needed to be torn down and packed away. As with all Echelon moves, the heavens opened up with such intensity that even Moses would have been confused. This led to the swift 'Chucking On' of the cookhouse equipment with recitations from the film 'Forest Gump' of 'this is big ol' fat rain'. The final briefing came from the OC. 'I don't know how long it will take us to reach Pristina as the roads are full with approximately 10,000 refugees and the journey could take up to eight hours, so be patient'. The packets rolled out on time, the OC's rover followed by the airborne chariot (RECCE Vehicle) of WO2 (RTWO) Carl 'The Reverend' Weaver and Sgt Les Tobbel. Unfortunately, having run short of towing hooks, the Recce vehicle containing the 'Ace Warriors' was required to tow the No 4 cookset trailer. This brought grunts of disgust from our infamous two, but roars of laughter from others, as the vehicle was splattered with stickers, made by yours truly, proclaiming 'Egg Op's' and 'Operation Omelette'.

TECHNICAL MAINTENANCE TROOP- by LCpl Todd

Just like to say a big hello to SSgt Phil MacKenzie, keeping things going back at the troop and to Sgt 'Spence' Ord, Sgt Ian Glover and all those other tour dodgers back there in Krefeld. Things are good out here, having a laugh. Sig Jim Brampton keeping us going with his comical lisp (Dwiving the Padwe's wover). Sgt 'Middy' Middlemiss has been to the opticians, something about not being able to look at direct sunlight because his head has been stuck somewhere else for the last few month's. He is acting FofS at the moment as WO1 (FofS) Tommy Steele is on R&R so he is happy. We are all wondering whether Cpl Bobby Hill is really Albanian because he has done more moving than the refugees. LCpl Gordon Campbell is swanning it back in Krefeld, unable to come back out as the airlines refuse to carry pets! We can only assume that our boy's on the trunk nodes are enjoying themselves because they don't seem to stay here longer than five minutes.

The move north from Macedonia to Kosovo coincided with a change of personalities within the department. So it's goodbye to Maj Pete Doherty, Atilla the CD man has noticed remarkable drop in sales already, farewell also to Sgt Joey Castle and Cpl Cooke. We must also not forget to say farewell to Sgt Howard who popped out for a couple of weeks from 2 Sig Regt. Capt Ray Cory has done so much travelling round Kosovo that we are thinking of changing his appointment to Dr Who. SSgt Kev Scott, Sgt Si Booth and Cpl Kev Abbott are all looking like the walking dead as they beaver away on the accounts (there are now six Regiments on the Equipment Table). WO2 (RQMS) Ged Keane has been uttering those famous words, 'We counted them all out so we'll count them all in.' We think he is chuntering about his 276,000 loose rounds with no boxes that he has to count daily. Tributes this month go to the gang at the sharp end, LCpl 'Bossy' Boswell we promised we wouldn't mention your demand for rags. If anyone reading this is getting dues out responses to demands for rags now you know who to blame! Sig Kerry Johnston who's been here since mid Feb and needs to go back to civilisation soon to fix her split ends. Last but not least a warm welcome to the departments heavyweight Champion from 3 Div, Sgt Alan Macdonald who thinks his purpose is to give everything away to anyone with a 3 Div Tricorn flash.

232 SIGNAL SQUADRON RETURN FROM KOSOVO

On Friday 16 July 1999 the soldiers of 232 Sig Sqn, 7 Sig Regt returned from Kosovo to Bradbury Barracks, Krefeld. The first Signal Squadron from ARRC to deploy on Op Agricola on 22 February 1999, they are now also the first to return. The Squadron deployed to Macedonia by air last February as the Vanguard of 7 Sig Regt expected to move quickly into Kosovo to provide Commander KFOR with his Tactical Headquarters and also to run communications at the Multi-National Brigade. As it turned out they had a long wait in Macedonia during which they undertook a great deal more than they expected. Not only did 232 Sig Sqn run communications for all the Brigades in Macedonia, they also provided all the ARRC radio and tactical satellite communications. At one point there were 240 soldiers from nine Royal Signal's units in the Squadron.

In April some of the Squadron deployed to Albania along with other members of the Regiment and soldiers from 3 (UK) Div Sig Regt for six weeks to provide communications to the NATO force carrying out humanitarian relief there. In the six weeks in Albania they provided the only means of command to run the huge relief effort. Detachments were based right across the rugged and inhospitable country, including one at Kukes on the Kosovo border that handled the influx of hundreds of refugees. It was here that soldiers met Tony Blair and Paddy Ashdown. When Gen Jackson met the Serbian's for talks it was soldiers from the Squadron who provided his communications to the Prime Minister, SACEUR and the President of Finland. Cpl Mark Gibbs even leant the General the pen to sign the agreement.

Moving into Kosovo on D-Day the Squadron was turned back from the airport by the Russians and set up KFOR Tactical Headquarters in Pristina. This gave Gen Jackson the initial foot on the ground to show the world that NATO was in town. The next nine days were the culmination of months of waiting and practice as the Squadron ran the Headquarters without losing communications for one minute. During that time soldiers were surprised to see the hierarchy of the Serbian Orthodox Church turning up for talks, and the General in charge of Russian Forces, bringing with him a chance to look at a former Soviet Armoured Personnel Carrier close up. Talks continued to be the theme with the whole of the KLA high command visiting late at night to sign the agreement with KFOR. Sgt Steve Pulman was given a number by James Ruben of the US State Department who asked to be put through to the President and Madeleine Albright used to such things by now, he did so without fuss. Those soldiers who served with the French and Italian Brigades have many stories to tell. In the Italian Sector they provided a protection party for the Brigadier and deployed to the sites of mass graves. Those working with the French have seen their share of the action around Mitrovica and Podujevo.

As the Squadron returns the rest of the Regiment remains in Kosovo providing all the KFOR communications across the theatre of operations. 231 Sig Sqn has taken over from 232 Sig Sqn and are also running KFOR Headquarters. 229 Sig Sqn are providing the area communications and Headquarters Squadron is based in Pristina supporting the Field Squadrons. Everybody in 232 Sig Sqn feels proud of a job well done. The experiences the soldiers have had have exceeded anything they could have expected and they are now looking forward to some well earned leave.

ECHELON SKOPJE - FYROM

On the 14 April 1999 the annual R Signals Quartermasters Convention was held in the Corps Mess at Blandford. Being unable to attend that convention due to deployment on Op Agricola and not to be outdone Maj Walley Drain put together the SKOPJE convention. The following attended:

Lt Col A. Powell MBE, R Anglian (Guest)
Maj R. C. Yeomans MBE, R Signals
Maj P. Doherty MBE, R Signals
Maj R. O'Hara, R Signals
Maj W. J. Drain, R Signals
Capt P. Ladds, RE (Guest)
Capt M. Smith MBE, R Signals (Absent on Duty).

OPERATION AGRICOLA - SAN 872 'WE ARE GOOD TO GO'

by Sigs Armitage and Perry

It was 0505hrs on 12 June and the moment NATO troops had been anticipating for months was finally upon us. H Hour had arrived! SAN 872 listened with bated breath as we heard on TacSat the words 'PEGASUS; we are good to go,' and the world watched in awe as 5 AB Bde took Pristina by storm. From that moment on mayhem reigned; the phone was constantly ringing, plans were made and then changed again, and our well-established set up was dismantled bit by bit. The SAN crew worked long into the night and early the next morning, until we were formed up within a single packet of 360 German vehicles, including tanks, amphibious and soft skinned vehicles. By 1830hrs that day, last minute alterations had been made and the German convoy and SAN 872 were also 'good to go!'

The journey began at a speed of 30kph. On reaching Skopje we were greeted by thousands of local people chanting 'Britannia' and 'NATO'. This all went to Sig 'Pez' Perry's head (as most things do) but he was soon brought down to earth with a bang as a fragmentation grenade exploded in front of his soft skinned SAS/MC shattering the windscreen and causing minor injuries. This was not the only vehicle to be damaged as more stones were hurled, one of which shattered the windscreen of the SCRA(T) sending a splinter of glass into Sig 'Bad hair day, every day' Kenyon's eye, thankfully causing no major damage.... to the Rover! By 140035(L) June1999, the massive convoy had reached the Kosovo border - a 60km journey which had taken five hours. There was a short halt before we set off on the next stage of the journey into Kosovo itself. No one knew what to expect and a silent fear had spread across the whole convoy, which was not helped when we had to halt whilst a mine on the route was cleared. Luckily for us Lt 'Abbreviations' Bruce jumped out of her Rover and ran to each vehicle putting her life in her own hands to warn us not to step out of our wagons. The stress and strain of the long journey began to take its toll on Sig 'Blonde' Evis, luckily Sig Perry was alert, and calmly pointed out that there was a tank 20m ahead on the road, to which she replied 'your side or mine'! We then proceeded to play wacky races with the Germans as they sped off in their Mercedes soft skinned vehicles, leaving a panicking and bewildered LCpl 'Jurassic' Stark the arduous task of trying to catch up in a heavily loaded Radio Relay (luckily his pacemaker held up!) Bridges on route had to be, (time consuming), crossed one vehicle at a time. Whilst waiting to cross one such bridge, Sig 'Taff' Powell took the opportunity to check his eye lids for holes but was rudely awakened by a stray round flying past the windscreen, which had been discharged from a UCK soldier's weapon - he woke up pretty sharpish!!

Whilst we went through the front door, Sgt 'All right youth' Hudson had sneaked in through the back door of Albania the day before with the first German BG to recce the new HQ. He met up with us the next day and led us into our location. We then proceeded to prove the months of exercises around Germany and Greece had paid off, with SAN 872 being the first 1 Sig Bde SAN in Kosovo to establish comms. Ending on a serious note some SAN members have been able to visit war crime sites, and what they have reported back has made us realise why we are actually in Kosovo, and has made this long and arduous tour well worthwhile.

THE SCHOOL PROJECT - by Sgt 'Chalky' White

It was during one of the round trips to visit the out-dets that Lt 'Two can' Connor and Sgt 'Chalky' White received a phone call from OSC137. They wanted to know whether there was anything that the troops could do to help out the locals during this perilous time. As it happens the dynamic duo drove past a school, just outside the village of Matjce, everyday with around 50 children always outside awaiting their drive past, this was the children's cue to run out and chant 'NATO, NATO' over and over again whilst giving the victory sign.

There's always one who has to ruin the School photo! Sgt 'Chalky' White looking younger than some of the children of Matjce

The school was put forward as an idea and ten days later the go ahead was given to approach the school and ask what we could do. After acquiring the talents of Mia the friendly interpreter we visited the school and it didn't take long to see what needed to be done to the school just to make it safe for the local children to be taught in. With the ceiling falling in, the roof leaking and loose floorboards being uneven just to name a few things, this looked more like a job for 'Challenge Anneka' never mind a bunch of Signallers whose total skills in the building trade accumulated to a hod carrier and some labourers. After a few more visits with the interpreter it became apparent that a Royal Engineers perspective was required with regards to what work was required and in what order it should be done. Enter Capt Howard of the Royal Engineers, who looked around the school and promptly wrote out the 'Statement of Requirement'. Exit theatre Lt 'Three Can' Connor (he'd been upgraded by a can during the previous week) on his extended R 'n' R. During the following week the skills of WO2 Scott from the Royal Engineers were required with the drawing up of the plans and a listing of all the materials that would be required.

The young faces of the children of Matjce watching their school being rebuilt

It wasn't long after the plans had been drawn up that Sgt 'Chalky' White was doing his own planning, his escape from theatre. So after passing all the information on to the unsuspecting WO2 RQMS Jim Alger, introducing him to all the relevant people followed by a visit to the school to be accosted by all the children, Sgt 'Chalky' White left theatre with the RQMS champing at the bit. With the signing of the Peace Deal and the RQMS returning to JHQ for a well earned rest, it seemed that the project had been put on the back burner. That was until the Commanding Officer Lt Col James found the unsuspecting Capt Glynn, 'look at my Boxter' Buxton who, it is alleged will be taking on the project. Good luck Sir; I think you might need it.

NEWS FROM NORTHERN IRELAND

XV HEADQUARTERS NORTHERN IRELAND & 15 SIGNAL REGIMENT

CO Lt Col G. J. T. Rafferty
RSM WO1 (RSM) A. Balsdon

The last couple of months have seen a busy time for the Regiment with the annual Province marching season. However, as you will see, we have still managed to fit a lot of activities in. The Province is still in a state of flux and training is still ongoing to combat every eventuality.

THE BIRTWISTLE PENNANT

HQNI & 15 Sig Regt are the proud winners of the 1998/99 Birtwistle Pennant, awarded to the Unit who has had the most outstanding sporting achievements over the previous season. The Unit was not expecting to be awarded the pennant, especially due to the restrictions imposed upon us due to our operational commitments. Regardless, we have still managed to send our sportsmen and women to many competitions and the Regiment has been represented in Northern Ireland, on the Mainland, in Germany, Denmark and also in Switzerland over the last year. The combined efforts of the Regiments' sportsmen and sportswomen have brought us not only trophies, but also recognition from the Corps and the Army that HQNI & 15 Sig Regt are not a team to be ignored, whatever the event may be. A brief summary of the sports participated in and results achieved is listed below:

Athletics:	Female runners up in NI, qualified for the Army Championships.
Basketball:	Female runners up in the NI Competition.
Cricket:	Winners of the NI League and Cup.
Cross-Country:	Winners of the Male and Female NI League and relay championships. Female winners of the NI half marathon team event. Individuals deserving mention are Capt Guy Benson, the reigning Service Half Marathon veteran champion, Cpl Louise Phillips, the NI female champion and Sgt Dave Killgallon, who was selected to Captain the Corps Team.
Golf:	Winners of the Corps Championships in the autumn meet at Blandford.
Lanyard Trophy:	The Regiment's Female team achieved second place.
Orienteering:	Male and Female runners up in the NI League and the NI Championships, the female winner being Maj Jean Ebling. The Male team were runners up of the Royal Signals Championships, where the Female team were the winners.
Rugby:	Winners of the Army 7's Plate.
Sailing:	Winners of the Royal Signals Yacht Club (Germany) Regatta. Runners up in the Army UK Regatta and the Army Sailing Association (NI) Regatta.
Skiing:	Capt Liz Dallyn was Second in the Corps Skiing Championships and SSgt Rob Allen was the Corps Veteran Champion at the Kaprun Ski Camp.
Soccer:	Runners up in the NI League, the NI 6-A-Side Competition and the Royal Signals 7-A-Side Competition. The female team was Tenth in the Army Championships.
Squash:	SSgt (FofS) Swift was the winner of the Corps Championship Plate in November 1998.
Swimming:	NI winners, Capt Jules McColl was Fifth in the Inter-Services Long Distance Swimming Championships and first within the Corps.
Swiss Patrol Competition:	27th out of 72.
Tennis:	Female runners up in the NI Championships.
Tug of War:	Winners of the Morrison Cup, Silver medals from the Royal Tournament, Army Championships and NI Championships.
Triathlon:	Second in both the Army Olympic Distance Championships and the Army Sprint Distance Championships.
Waterpolo:	Army Champions.

In summary, the Regiment has had an outstanding sporting year. Congratulations go to all sportsmen and women who were involved in the winning of the Birtwistle Pennant.

WATER-POLO CHAMPIONSHIPS(A) by WO2 (FofS) A. G. Jenkins

Following the success of the 1998 season which saw HQNI & 15 Signal Regiment win the UK Army & Army Water Polo Championships, a lavish prediction was made by team captain, Capt Chris Lamb, Int Corps; 'We'll win all three next year' meaning the NI Water-Polo, UK Army and Army Championships, a challenge which was quickly taken up by the CO. Training began back in March with the team members assembling every Tuesday night for our weekly torture from team trainer Sgt Roger Bradley. The Squad was pretty strong, having lost a couple of players from the previous year, through posting, we had gained a couple of experienced players in their place. On paper we had quite a strong team with seven or eight Corps/Army standard players. Training went well and we were eager to get under way.

NORTHERN IRELAND SWIMMING & WATER POLO CHAMPIONSHIPS - 24/25 MAY

The NI Championships began with the Swimming on the 24th. We weren't very hopeful as the average age of the team was closer to 40 than 20, however, the training had obviously paid off and a victory in the medley relay sealed an unexpected win. The Water-polo Championships took place on the 25th, in the format of a round robin league system. It became quickly evident that ourselves and 2 Regt RMP were the two strongest teams in the competition and the game between the two sides would ultimately decide the championships. When the game did come it was not as close as expected, some superb defending by Capt Chris Lamb, Int Corps and Lt Col Duncan, Int Corps ensured that 2 RMP's key players were unable to make any impact on the game. Goals from SSgt Andy Peal, RE, WO1 (SSI) Shaw and WO2 (FofS) Jenkins ensured a 12 - 5 victory. This ensured a place in the UK Army finals at Aldershot. One down two to go!

UK ARMY WATER POLO CHAMPIONSHIPS - 14/15 JUNE

Accommodated in what was by then 'Ghost town Aldershot' due to Kosovo deployments, the venue for the UK Army finals had been switched and they were now held at RESE Minley Manor. The Water-polo was held on 14 June and with eight teams entered, a round robin league system was again used. Again two teams quickly emerged as strong favourites, 11 Signal Regiment and ourselves. The game between the sides was an eagerly contested affair, which we eventually ran out 13-5 winners. With a couple of games then played against weaker opposition we finished the tournament having played seven and won seven, two down one to go!

ARMY WATER POLO CHAMPIONSHIPS - 23 JUNE 1999

The Army finals are meant to be contested by the winners and runners up of the UK Army and the BFG Army Water polo Championships. However, due to operational commitments the first three sides from the UK Army Championships contested the championships. It is true to say that this did take a little away from the proceedings but the three teams concerned entered and provided an excellent competition. The teams involved were, HQNI and 15 Sig Regt, 11 Sig Regt and 1 QLR. It was decided to hold a round robin competition again, we played the QLR first winning 12-3 and then 11 Sig Regt beating them 8-4. So the scene was set for a Royal Signals Army final. 11 Sig Regt had drafted in a number of old war horses (notably all FofS) and were much more competitive than at the UK finals. However our strengths proved to be superior again and we ran out 12-7 winners. Again notable performances from SSgt Aidy Peal, RE and Capt Chris Lamb, Int Corps shored up the defence and ensured a good supply of goals. So that was it, all three competitions successfully won, a testament to good training, preparation and pre-match Donar Kebabs with extra chilly sauce! Army call ups followed for Capt Chris Lamb, WO1 (SSI) Shaw and WO2 (FofS) Jenkins, and HQNI and 15 Sig Regt are the first ever Royal Signals team to retain the Army Water polo Championships, see you next year.

EXERCISE MERCURY FINN 1999

The Regimental Adventure Training Camp for 1999 was based at Brawdy, deepest Wales, with everyone enjoying (most of the time) the delights of trekking in the Brecon Beacons, sea kayaking, climbing, mountain biking and coasteering. The trekking phase was only 2½ days long but most people were fairly exhausted by the end of it and felt like they had been walking for days. The hills were steep, the weather surprisingly hot and teddy launches were in full bombardment. Camping was of a rudimentary nature, basically a field, shared with a significant number of sheep, although it was the midge swarms which were the most testing aspect of the site. Short straws had to be drawn as to who would be first out of their tent in the mornings as they were instantly ravaged by swarms of ravenous insects.

The sea kayak, with a night spent on a remote beach, proved to be challenging and exhilarating. Lots of exploring of caves, riding water shoots and praying that a capsize would not happen were the order of the day. Being about as stable as sitting on a greased pole, the kayaks needed willpower to stay upright. On the first week the seas were rather larger than expected in the morning, resulting in a mass of capsizes, tired arms and pounding hearts, and that was just to get off the beach! The climbing was performed on sea cliffs, giving a dramatic backdrop and a significant incentive to getting back up the rocks. A couple of people were almost caught out at the bottom and many had 'disco leg' on the way up, even some riggers! The climbing theme was continued with the coasteering. This was, without doubt, the highlight of the exercise for all those who took part. The sea was bitterly cold, but 'character building' and many tested their nerve with the jumps into the sea. Even a couple of non-swimmers could not resist the temptation to leap lemming like from the rocks.

RACE THE SUN 1999

This year's Race The Sun was to be a bit of an 'on the buses' affair due to the uncertainty caused by the developing situation in Kosovo. In true Signals style 2 Sig Regt came up with a compromise in the form of a reduced 8-leg event rather than the usual 16-leg race. Being one of only two Signal Regiments not involved in Kosovo getting a team together did not present too many problems, however, getting there and finding somewhere to stay did. After much time spent on the phone SSgt Bri Gillies turned down the kind offer of 2 Sigs Gym floor in favour of 5 star en-suite accommodation (not quite) provided at Ripon and the use of the cookhouse. Many thanks to WO2 Dunn and Donna McLeese at HQ Ripon Station. With the team arriving safely in Ripon and settled into the accommodation, it didn't take long to get familiarised with our surroundings (check out the pubs). The recces were complete, everyone knew what they were doing and we were eager to get started.

Race day and things could not have been better. There was no daft o'clock start, the weather was perfect and one of our team hadn't turned up for the half marathon! The Adjt Capt 'Guy' Bennett and Cpl 'Plod' Wardle were first up on the arduous tab from Sutton Bank on a day that was getting warmer by the minute. The heat took its toll and both looked extremely relieved to see the end. Capt B finishing ahead of the much younger Cpl Wardle - more effort please! Next up was Cpl 'Knuckles' Nichols who set a good time running across the Yorkshire countryside, handing over to our stand in marathon runner, Sgt 'Ginge' Davey, who 'volunteered' at the eleventh hour to fill in. This turned out to be a good move as he finished in first place five minutes ahead of the nearest competitor!

SSgt Bri Gillies and LCpl Aide Field were astonished to see Sgt Davey so soon and set off trying to maintain the momentum on their trusty (but expensive) steeds, finishing the course in a creditable 5th place. It was now the turn of Sgt 'Stu' Murray and Cpl Louise Philips to do their best on the moor run. This they completed with no major problems and in good time to hand over to SSgt 'Bri' Wilkins and Cpl 'Sunny' Hardy for the daunting fell run. Both completed the run with Cpl Hardy picking up an injury to her knee, rumoured to have occurred the night before involving a hole in the road on the way back from the pub, but that's another story. Cpl Tim Rigby set off for the cycle orienteering on his mountain bike and no amount of persuasion could get him to change to a road bike. This would later prove to be a saving grace as the marshals sent him the wrong way up the farm track to the end, instead of to the start of the swim, which cost precious minutes. At least he didn't tell the other competitors on his way back down the said track! The final unenviable leg involving jumping into the Great Lake went to Sgt 'Stu' Murray completing this years attempt in a total accumulated time of 8hrs 15mins. In the end the team raised £500 for charity and was placed sixth overall, a big improvement on last year. All said and done everyone enjoyed themselves immensely and are hoping to get involved again next year.

The Race the Sun Team

15 SIGNAL REGIMENT TUG OF WAR

The 15 Sig Regt Tug of war team have had a successful season, mainly due to the leadership of the coach, Sgt Jimmy Fox. A motivated coach, he controlled our food and alcohol intake to ensure that the team did not lose or gain any weight, unfortunately this was a 'do as I say and not as I do' rule. The season started with the winning of the Morrison Cup in Blandford, after a close run battle with the team from 14 Sig Regt (EW). This was followed by the Northern Ireland Championships, where the Regiment gained Silver Medals in the 600, 640 and 680kg events and also qualified the team for the Army Championships at South Cerney where the Regiment gained a Fourth place in the 680kg competition.

The entire squad, under the wings of SSgt Jim Duncan was sent to the Corps Tug of War trials at Bulford. Under the auspices of Sgt Pete Halsted and Cpl Matt Cowlard, there was some hard but excellent training carried out. Two weeks of hard training soon paid off and the whole of the 15 Sig Regt squad was called to represent the Corps in at least one of the four weight categories. For some of the team members including LCpl Robson, LCpl Kenny Haliday, Sig Kev Orr and Sig 'Paddy' Grills this was their first season at Tug of War and to be selected to represent the Corps was a major achievement.

The highlight of the season so far, has been the participation in the Royal Tournament, the last to be held at Earls Court. By this stage the team had been reduced due to operational commitments and the posting of a number of more experienced team members. Regardless, the team was undaunted and accepted the invitation to the tournament, where there were a record nine teams taking part, including 17 Port and Maritime Regt RLC who has Corps, Army and Inter Service championships. After much hard work and determination, the team managed a 5th place in the 600kg class and a gold medal in the 620kg competition. This was an excellent finale as not only had we won a gold medal in the final Earls Court competition but the Regiment had gained nine silver medals over the previous four years and this was our first gold.

The Regiment would like to pass on its thanks to those who filled the empty places in the squad, left due to operational commitments, in particular WO2 (SSM) Tony Manktelow, Sgt Brian McRacken, Cpl Lance Beaton and Cpl Daz Mordecai.

EXERCISE BARNACLE FINN

Ex Barnacle Finn was an India Tp Adventurous Sail Training Exercise held off the Danish coast as part of the annual Royal Signals Yacht Club (Germany) Sail Training Week (STW).

The Exercise was to start and finish at Kiel, using the Najad 33ft Yachts chartered from the British Kiel Yacht Club. Prior to our arrival at Kiel, we had to conduct our own minor exercise, which was the transiting of Northern Ireland, Scotland, England, France, Belgium, Holland and finally, Germany. After a pleasant 27hr drive (broken up with a night in transit accommodation kindly supplied by 1 (UK) ADSR in Herford) we finally arrived at Kiel and met our Skipper for the next 11 days, Maj Mark Butler or 'Skippy' as he was to be known. The first activity was an introduction to the boat and her safety equipment, including the very basic points (the bow is the pointy end, the tall thing is the mast etc) for our novice sailors. Once this had been completed, our next task was to have a quick introductory sail around the entrance to Kieler Fjord before returning to stock the boat with its essentials - bread, water, milk, cereals and a beer or two.

The STW involved four other yachts, with participants from 1 (UK) ADSR, 30 Sig Regt, 11 Sig Bde and 7 Armd Bde HQ & Sig Sqn in addition to ourselves. The next day was a training sail from Kiel to Sonderborg, during which the basic principles of sailing and lessons on how to manoeuvre the boat were carried out. Although the sea was relatively smooth the mate, Capt Gareth Oliver and two of the crew soon felt that they decided that the fish were hungry and that it was feeding time. In the best traditions of army life, a great deal of sympathy was issued out, in particular to Sig Nigel Green and Cpl Martin-Woodgate both of whom were feeding the fish on a regular basis throughout that first day. We arrived at Sonderborg all feeling tired from a day at sea, during which we had noticed that our mast was attempting to dislodge itself from the yacht and a number of securing bolts had sheared off. A new boat was to be sent up from Kiel overnight and we all headed ashore refreshed in the knowledge that it was a Saturday night and that Sonderborg was a lively town.

Sunday morning came around with a number of sore heads that had not anticipated a bright and early start and the transfer of all of our equipment to the new Yacht. From this day and until the end of the STW, each voyage was to be a race. Today's leg would take us to the town of Middlefahrt. With an initial poor start to the race, which we blamed upon being unfamiliar with our new yacht we soon started to work our way through the fleet, finishing a creditable third out of five. Over the next four races, we repeated this performance, starting last and finishing third on each occasion. One of the best days throughout the STW was the full day spent at Horsens Yacht Club. For some unknown reason, the visit of the Royal Signals Flotilla has become an annual date in their diary and they kindly organised a full day of racing 'round the cans' for us. Their hospitality and kindness was much appreciated by all of us.

As we were all having a great time, enjoying the days sailing, combined with an occasional run ashore the week soon flew by. Before realising it, it was Thursday morning. To qualify as an adventurous training expedition, we had to complete a full sail through the hours of darkness. We decided to complete this, departing from Arhus for a voyage to Svendborg, a trip of approximately 80 nautical miles. Our ETA was to be approximately 0900hrs the following morning. Although the Baltic is not tidal, it still possesses many unusual current flows, but for once, they were on our side and pushed us towards our destination at an additional two knots for the majority of the journey. This allowed us to navigate our way up a narrow and shallow channel into Svendborg at 0300hrs on the Friday morning and to spend the remainder of the night at anchor.

The next day was unusual in that although the weather and the wind were similar to previous days, the 15 Sig Regt yacht actually won a race and by a large margin. This was followed by a final race from Marstal to Kiel, where sadly our performance returned to its previous form. The following day was the worst of any Exercise, the dreaded hand back of the boats. Once again we faced the long drive back to the Province. After a mammoth 28 hour drive we finally made it back to Lisburn.

40 (ULSTER) SIGNAL REGIMENT (VOLUNTEERS)

CO	Lt Col A. P. R. Roberts MBE
RSM	WO1 (RSM) C. G. McGinley

Congratulations to 2Lts Lindsay Docherty and Wayne Nickels on passing the TA Commissioning Course in July and to Lt David Wilson on his promotion.

INVESTORS IN PEOPLE

The Regiment was assessed as a unit of 107 (Ulster) Brigade on 23 May. We are very happy to report that the Brigade has passed the assessment. Congratulations all round, but don't let up on the good work, the next assessment, or 'healthcheck' is in about 15 months time. There is still much to improve!

DEPARTURES & ARRIVALS

There has been a massive turnover of personnel and the sad loss of a number of stalwart attendees as a result of SDR. We say farewell to WO2 (SSM) George Cook, SSgt Harrow and Sgt Andy Leishman on discharge from the TA, and to SSgt 'Herbie' Johnson on his move and promotion to 152 Regt. Sgt Welch has left on posting, good luck in the new job and WO2 (now WO1) (YofS) Paul Rose has moved on promotion (but we'll be back to haunt him). SSgt Barrass and Shani have moved to Blandford, good luck to them both (and to Angus and Robbie), and Sgt Charlie Rigg has also moved on posting but into a new trade as well, so good luck as well. Our new arrivals are not quite so plentiful, however, welcome to WO2 (YofS) Eddie Yates and SSgt John Voss (our new Tiffy). Good luck at 40.

ANNUAL CAMP 99 - 12-26 JUNE

Annual Camp for 1999 was in two phases. Firstly we had the field exercises at Altcar, Ex First Try, and then Ex Able Condor, and secondly we had the trade training element at Altcar. Ex First Try was the brainchild of the Regimental Yeoman, WO2 (YofS) Paul Rose and his Ops Team. This was designed to practise and shake out the Regiment in preparation for Able Condor. It covered all aspects of military and command post training. The Regiment returned to one of its old hunting grounds - Altcar Training Camp near Southport. We welcomed many new personnel, who transferred from local TA units that were disbanded under SDR. The trade training was a vital part of our Annual Camp programme as we endeavoured to retrain the new members of the Regiment and the squadron in particular. Altcar is ideal for what we wanted to achieve. It also provides excellent training facilities. More importantly it is only a short train ride to Southport and Blackpool, both excellent nights out!

On Ex Able Condor, held on the East side of England, between Grantham and Catterick, the Squadron was to be split into two echelons, something we had practised briefly in 1998. The Squadron received credit for its efforts from the staff. It was a case of all change in CP Ech as all but the outgoing SSM were new to the job, however, everyone settled in quickly. Capt Tom Dick, late of 74 Fd Sqn RE(V) must have thought he had joined a madhouse, things being so hectic at times. The Exercise proved to be quite hectic for many of our new recruits and even some of our more established soldiers. Sigs Leslie-Anne and Janine Dougan arriving in Week Two barely got a chance to catch their breath, such was the pace of the first four days.

The Dougan's find the pace a wee bit heavy

On completion of the exercise the Regiment were to recover to West Freugh camp near Stranraer via Warcop, a place many old hands remember from their R Signals SSgt courses. The MT SSgt, SSgt 'Ginge' Coburn must have thought that all his nightmares had come at once, when his chosen RV for the rolling deplen at Warcop was found to be full of Challenger tanks. All in all Annual Camp 1999 was a great success with just about everyone getting something out of it. The only sad note is losing so many of our members on posting and discharge.

Capt Andy Woods is to star in a new film after the final attack on the FIBUA village at Altcar. The film is to be called 'A Blistered Hand on a Smoking Barrel', the film so named after Capt Woods decided to disarm the enemy by wrenching a rifle from one adversary with a strong hand. The rest is history.

Comd 107 (U) Bde visiting Ex First Try and being briefed by Lt Ian Craig

EAN 557, an attachment from 85 Sqn, decided that the combined communication assets of 11 Bde was not enough to complete the task set for them. Using a Band II they enlisted the considerable might of the local taxi firm. Not receiving any tips for their trouble 2Lt Sam Burgess, SSgt Clasper and company issued a statement declaring that it's not FARE! LCpl Hanna turned 30 during this camp. EAN 554 were in the field at the time but this did not deter them from putting on a party for him that was second to none. Cpl Lyttle and Cpl Small must have been out of wind blowing up so many balloons. The same balloons were spotted hanging out of the back of a landrover as it made its way up the A1 towards Scotland after Endex.

The most emotional moment during camp was the long awaited and most deserved promotion of Cpl Herridge. In time honoured tradition on Regimental parade the CO stated that a soldier on his parade was improperly dressed. He called on Cpl Herridge to break ranks, march out to him and receive her third tape and rectify the situation. On hearing this command Cpl Herridge's jaw dropped, her face went a bright red colour and her eyes filled with tears. Meanwhile the rest of the Squadron were fighting back the tears, so much so that Acting SSM, SSgt McClean has earned the nickname 'tiny tears'. Now that there are two Sgt Herridges, the other one won't be able to blame the RSM so often!!

66 (City of Belfast) Sig Sqn would like to wish SSgt Barrass and his good wife Shani, and their wee babies Angus and Robbie all the very best in their new posting. During his three year stay, Mark Barrass proved himself invaluable to the Squadron.

COMMUNICATIONS SECTION - THE SENDERS

Prior to the annual chaos which is Drumcree, the members of the COMMCEN and Syscon had the chance to let their hair down at the Squadron Summer Function. The theme for the evening was officially Italian, however judging by the dress of some individuals the unofficial line was a 'Gangsters and Molls' night. Some very commendable efforts were made on the fancy dress front, especially our very own 'Muddy Funkster' Sig 'Slick' Frost. Robert De Niro hasn't a thing on the man! However, a special hearty round of applause must go to the Troop OC, Lt Forbes Guthrie on his send-up of 007's old enemy, Ernst Stavros Blofeld. A fetching shower cap accompanied by a haggard old dead ferret strapped to his wrist. Outstanding effort Sir. The caps of the Troop are tipped in your general direction! An all round thanks must go to SSgt Andy James of the Bde HQ for the organisation of an excellent function, thoroughly enjoyed by all. For those of you in the Corps without a TV, the widely anticipated problems of Drumcree never really surfaced and a relatively smooth operation ensued. It was however, a good insight into the functions of Syscon/COMMCEN for the many newcomers amongst us. Hopefully the learning curve wasn't too steep. The Brigade Commander praised us for our efforts, leaving us all feeling that we had completed a successful operation. As a reward for the effort put in by all members of the Brigade, the Sqn OC generously arranged for a BBQ in the Whynge Inn. The night also gave us the opportunity to integrate the new arrivals in Syscon and the COMMCEN. These included Sig Kerry O'Connor and Sig Warren Adkins, fresh from Butlins Garrison. Also Cpl Si 'Missing' Link, fresh from mothering the future of the Corps at ATR Bassingbourn.

TECHNICAL MAINTENANCE SECTION - THE MENDERS

TM Section has been busy with the build up, the event, and the scale down of radio comms for Drumcree 1999. However, some of us did get out of camp and down to some action. Namely the 'P4' crew, Cpl Gaz Hobson, Cpl Dean 'You'll never take me alive copper' Morgan and Cpl 'Sally' Webster. We deployed with different Infantry Companies and can chalk up two confirmed operational brickings on Galvachy Road; do we get an extra medal?? Life goes on and so does the maintenance schedule.

POSTINGS IN & POSTINGS OUT

Sig Jim Wright, Sig Gordon Pyrah and Sig 'Scan' Brock - IN.

Cpl Cec Mason aka Miss Cecilia Mary Mason, who leaves us upon promotion to Civ Div, Cpl 'Brummy' Baker and wife Elaine, who are posted to 1 Div, 211 Sig Sqn upon his retrade to Driver 1ights on, lights off' Electrician. 'Brummy' has said he will be earning his Line Belt. Sgt 'Nobby' Noble leaves TM Section to go across the road to Ops where he takes up the post of Sites Manager with local SSgt, congratulations. Out of the frying pan into the fire! Lastly, Cpl 'Sally' Webster also defects across the road to become Assistant BTLO as a Sgt in the Royal Corps.

Chief Clerk SSgt R. Evans

We have a couple of new additions to the staff. A warm welcome to Cpl Will Bennett from HQNI and to Pte Charmaine 'Are you talking to me' Frazer straight from training. We all hope that they enjoy their tours with the Squadron. We must also say a sad farewell to Cpl Andy Sneddon who leaves us for civvy street after 12 years. We wish him a happy and successful second career. On a lighter note, the golf bug has hit SHQ with the Chief Clerk, SSgt Rob Evans, and the 'pay bloke' Sgt Stu Adair grabbing every opportunity whilst the weather is reasonable. The RSM, WO1 Stu Cheslett has not so much caught the bug as caught a virus which he can't get out of his system, if he's not in his office he must be playing golf. We must say thank you to our Trg Sgt Paul Coates for organising an excellent Ladies Dinner Night recently. A great night was had by all. This was proven by the amount of people who turned up for work the next day!

CORPS ORIENTEERING CHAMPIONSHIPS

After the usual thorough preparation and intensive training, we bomb burst from Armagh and made our way to sunny South Wales. It was hard to believe, but all team members managed to meet up at the start of Day One: the individual event. As you would expect for a Bank Holiday combined with Wales, the setting was wet and grey. It had obviously followed us from Ireland to make us feel at home. Unperturbed and ignoring the rain, the team, consisting of WO2 (FofS) Mick 'Lets take this seriously' Cowie, Sgt Chris 'Slow but sure' Bailey, Sgt Billy 'I'm not an alcoholic' Boston and Cpl Sally 'Lets drink some more beer' Webster headed of into the woods. We all managed to get round, some faster than others, with no one confessing to have had a brilliant run. However, at the start of Day Two, don't ask us how, but we held a slight lead. Fresh from the previous night's carbo-loading and Public Relations with the locals, we set about maintaining our slender lead. WO2 (FofS) Mick Cowie led us off, and although not first back he had given us a good start. Looking slightly worst for wear, Sgt Chris Bailey headed off next. He caused most concern, taking longer than expected to complete his leg. He wanted to make sure he didn't miss a checkpoint! Last off on the pressure leg was Sgt Billy Boston. He started off at breakneck speed - more of a jog and almost finished at a crawl, but had managed to cross the line in first place. This was a great result and completed a treble of Northern Ireland League, Northern Ireland Minor Unit and Corps Minor Unit Champions. This may prove a hard task to defend next year, but we have already started training in the Squadron Bar.

THE SQUADRON CHALLENGE - 1999
by Sgt D. Blair

Earlier in the year I was tasked by the Officer Commanding to organise a 'Krypton Factor' style competition for members of the Squadron. The competition would run over a series of weeks and culminate in a grand final held in the Squadron bar. Phase 1 of the competition ran on a knockout basis. In order to ensure maximum participation in the initial phase all events were run on three different days in the last three weeks of April. The competition was designed to test physical and mental agility, hand-eye co-ordination, general knowledge and Province specific skills. The aim was to have a fun but Congratulations go to LCpl Sims and his team for coming third in the basketball as part of 107 Bde's summer sports competition held at Lisburn at the start of June. The Squadron deployed with the rest of the Regiment to Summer Camp on the 12th June. The Squadron provide two detachments to 11 Bde and provided a very successful net throughout the Exercise, using KIPLING properly for the first time. You can keep the trends, we'll keep the KIPLING!

WO2 Billy Lyle, Cpl Moore and LCpl George along with EAN 547 got the short straw, as on the last night and morning of the exercise the EAN was attacked by our own enemy, and soldiers from 19 Mech Bde HQ & Sig Sqn with armour, blanks and pyro. After the battle was won! and the prisoners had been returned we made our way back to Warcop to refuel and deplen on the way to West Freugh prior to catching the ferry home. Our two PSIs SSgt Harry Harrison and Sgt Dave Evans stayed at Altcar (too rough in the field for them) and trained eight new members of the Squadron to become operators and technicians.

challenging competition that would also provide an excuse for a few social evenings in the Squadron bar.

Phase 1 consisted of five events. The first was a driving competition that required competitors to control a Saxon around a pre-set course both as a commander and driver. The second test examined competitors hand-eye co-ordination using a racing car simulation exercise on a computer. The third test was a pistol shoot, the fourth a general knowledge quiz and the fifth a BPFA. The first phase was a great success. The Saxon drive proved to be fairly difficult for most, the MT, not surprisingly, put in a fine performance. The computer car racing proved quite taxing with some spectacular crashes. The average score for the general knowledge quiz was around 50% which was a good result considering the difficulty of the questions and contrary to popular belief none of the questions were repeated. Most of the scores in the pistol shoot were fairly low but points were gained in the excellent BPFA results. The top ten competitors from Phase 1 were transported to a local training area to compete in the semi-final.

The ten semi-finalists arrived with some trepidation as they had little idea of what lay ahead. Their first event was designed to test mental agility and memory so the Weapons Intelligence Section gave a presentation on four weapons in the terrorist arsenal. The competitors were expected to memorise five facts about each weapon without making notes and without knowing when they would be questioned. The second test was an individual shoot using an unfamiliar weapon, a FNC 2000. Generally the standard of shooting was very high, although the penalty points deducted for completely missing a target resulted in most competitors receiving negative scores. The competitors were also given 100 logic problems, courtesy of MENSA, which were to be completed before lunch. The afternoon concentrated on physical tests which included a navigation exercise and an assault course. Out of the ten semi-finalists four would go forward for the grand final which was held that evening in the Squadron bar.

The evening's proceedings began with a summary of the day's events and the announcement of the following finalists: Maj Jake Thackray, Sgt Kev Cooney, Sgt Eddie Porter and LCpl James Bond. The final started off with questions on the four weapons from the semi-final round and then a general knowledge quiz. The finalists were tested on their observation skills, on a short piece of film, and their fitness on the rowing machine. After a hard fought contest the results were: in first place Maj Thackray, in second place LCpl Bond, third was Sgt Cooney and finally Sgt Porter. The OC decided he was 'too old' for the first prize, Sony playstation, so he passed it down to the second prize winner and so on, therefore Sig Steve Baxter who was in fifth place was also awarded a prize. Well done to all those who participated and well done also to those who helped in the organisation.

EXERCISE LADY WARRIOR - JUNE 1999
by WO1 (RSM) Flemming

It was a dark rainy morning and Shackelton Barracks resounded to the sound of marching feet. The sound, however, was not generated by the soldiers of 1 RWF, but the ladies of 8 Inf Bde HQ & Sig Sqn on Ex Lady Warrior. The Exercise is a unique opportunity for the wives of those serving in 8 Inf Bde HQ & Sig Sqn to have a little fun and experience aspects of army life. The Exercise began with some drill. We could not have the ladies starting on the wrong foot now could we! The ladies executed a myriad of drill movements under the watchful eye of the RSM. It was then onto the minibuses and off to the first of the five stands organised for the day.

Stand One was on the range firing the SA80 rifle and 9mm pistol under the guidance of WO2 Tom (MTWO) Hair. After gentle coaching from Cpl Al 'Mac' MacDonald and Cpl 'Brummie' Flute the award for best shot went to Lynn Duncan. It should however be mentioned that SSgt Tony Taylor challenged his wife Andrea to a shooting match and lost; it just shows that behind every good man there is an even better woman. Stand Two was in the Small Arms Trainer and after engaging the enemy in a number of scenarios Caroline Snowdin emerged as best shot. At Stand Three the ladies were put through their paces behind the wheel. Under the expert instruction of LCpl Amanda Rowland the wives learnt and practised the art of skid car driving. By Stand Four the weather had improved and the ladies under the watchful eye of Cpl Dave Rabbage and Cpl 'Johnno' Johnson were taught how to command and drive a Saxon Armoured Fighting Vehicle. This stand required co-ordination and a loud voice, both of which very evident in Vera Hair. Stand Five was the RSM's Mystery Stand and on cue a Puma helicopter landed. After the initial safety brief it was time for the ladies to board the helicopter for a trip up and around the Giant's Causeway returning only after the pilots had performed a few tricks.

To allow the ladies to relax and a chance to dine in style Menus A and D from an ORP were produced. Cpl Flute explained the contents of each menu and how to cook them. It was the 10 Lambert and Butler cigarettes and salt and vinegar crisps that made a few of the ladies suspicious. Jackie Harkness, the Chief of Staff's wife complained that, 'We never got this in a 24hr rat pack when I was in the Army'. After a pleasant evening it was time for the night navigation but unfortunately the weather had deteriorated to torrential rain. The phrase, 'If it ain't raining, it ain't training springs to mind!

Day Two proved to be an opportunity for the natural born leaders to come to the fore. Command tasks were the order of the day under the critical eyes of Cpl Rabbage and Cpl Johnson. The second event of the day was a personal security brief and then on to the EOD demonstration. The last stop was the Bubble gym, where the ladies were confronted by Sig 'Watch my hair' Prigmore, to sample the delights of an indoor assault course and circuit training. Then it was unfortunately time to change from DPMs to aprons and meet the families in the Beeches Bar for a well earned drink and buffet. The general consensus was that they had all survived a great weekend and wanted to know when the next one was!

The happy bunch of worker ants in the RQMS Department have been busy redecorating the offices. Out went the magnolia and we are now coming to terms with quite a radical sky blue. Happy and revitalised after the painting LCpl 'Spaced out' Shillito and his side kick Pte Morris were ordered to man a sanger in the middle of the loyalist marching season. All that was heard from the sanger was the sound of giggling. So much so, that they put the Apprentice Boys off their flute playing. The Department has also opened a dog sanctuary and kennels for members of the Squadron. LCpl 'Galli' Gallimore is rarely seen without 'man's best friend'. The RQMS has been helping out Sgt Karl Duncan and his dog's slim fast plan. We are currently taking bookings for dogs, cats and lizards in our newly painted 'R kennels' Department.

Tp Sgt Sgt 'Stan' Stanley

Despite a relatively quiet marching season, it has been another busy period for the MT Tp. Our hierarchy seem to have managed to desert us in our hours of need! The MTWO abandoned ship and fled to Spain for a holiday. To top things off Sgt Stanley had to have his appendix removed and then had the neck to take four weeks sick leave. That left Cpl Mark Guest to run the Troop, which I might add has never run so smoothly. Congratulations to Cpl Mark Guest on his promotion to Sergeant. Congratulations also to Pte Paul Lawler and Pte Nathan Reed who were selected for promotion to Lance Corporal, not forgetting Pte 'Pompey' Pearson who recently departed, also on promotion, to sunny Cyprus. We say farewell to LCpl Frank Howarth who leaves us for 3 CS Regt in Abingdon. We wish Pte Steve Collins, Pte 'Gaza' Morn and Pte 'Taff' Tanner all the best as they leave the Army. We also welcome Pte Steve Wilson who has recently arrived from 23 Pioneer Regt.

EXERCISE TRIDAY FINN - by Sig Sidorowicz

Ex Triday Finn is an adventure training weekend which is organised once per month. It is open to Squadron and Brigade personnel and up to ten can attend on each weekend. On Friday 18 July we all jumped into the minibus and headed off to Coleraine. Unfortunately the weather was overcast with torrential rain so the long distance mountain biking organised for the first day was shortened slightly. The evening's activities consisted of a few cheeky pints in Portrush. The next day we rose early, ate breakfast and preceded to get ready for the day's activities. The activities consisted of canoeing, Canadian boating and banana boating. It was a brilliant but wet day. To top the day off we spent the remainder of the afternoon go-carting.

Boogie-Boarding in Portrush

On the last day the activity was boogie boarding. Cpl Ian Taylor enjoyed it so much he decided to swallow half of the Atlantic ocean. Three hours later and soaking wet we headed back to the centre. All in all it was a brilliant weekend and I would recommend it to anyone.

It has been a busy period for Comms Tp as we are preparing for the period of increased tension: checking stores, deploying extra equipment, forward mounting teams and planning for addition shifts. However, some of the Troop were fortunate enough to attend the adventure training in Coleraine. Good luck to Cpl 'Soon be airborne' Stojanovic who has been running around like a madman training for P Company, however, he can still be seen keeping up appearances in the Squadron Bar. SSgt Tony Taylor has put in a lot of time and has lost a considerable amount of hair trying to improve the Juniors' bar and the facilities available to the Squadron. The Squadron now has film nights every three weeks where new releases are screened. The Troop have to say a very sad farewell to LCpl 'Noo Noo' Mier who is posted shortly to civvy street where he takes up his full time job as a languages student at Stirling University. Goodbye also to LCpl Daw who is also seeking employment outside the green machine. A lot has been happening over the last few months with many members of the Troop deployed in Kosovo or on pre Bosnia/JCUFI leave. The remainder have been hard at work with other commitments such as the Station Summer Fair, Beating the Retreat and a few inspections of the vehicles and gene's thrown in to ensure that we are still ready for the 'Big Push'. RSIT is now well under way, and soon all the hard work and effort will have paid off and we can all get down to enjoying the good things in life; Summer Leave.

We've managed to have the odd celebration along the way for the usual births, marriages, hello's and goodbyes. Firstly the Troop would like to congratulate Sgt Gaz Ward and wife Michelle on the birth of their son Henry. The Troop has gained two much needed Sys OP's from Blandford. Hello to Sig's Gaz Parham and Carl Vickers. Also from Blandford is LCpl 'Taff' Ellis and 2Lt 'Spence' Spencer. The Troop would also like to welcome SSgt John Ainsworth and his family. Oh! and not forgetting 'I'm hard as nails 216 PARA' Sgt Conlan and his lovely wife Jacqueline. As with every hello there is always a goodbye, firstly goodbye to SSgt's 'Chippy' Chapman and Ian Lee who are off to Blandford to beast a few new recruits, and a sorrowful farewell to SSgt Jeff Clarke and his wife who are off to sample the outside world. The Troop has been experiencing a contagious illness called 'under the thumb'. LCpl Steve Loates started the epidemic when he got married and then LCpl 'Say that slowly' Dorrian thought he would quietly go on leave without telling anyone that he was going to get married. Last but by no means least we say good luck to SSM Kevin Simmonds who is off to Jamaica to marry Claire. Support Tp would like to wish them the best of luck and happiness for the future.

EAGLE TROOP

Tp SSgt SSgt Greenwood

Since Eagle Tp was formed back in April of this year, the Troop has been through a lot of changes. With operational tours under way in Kosovo we lost four members of the Troop Sig Carrol, Doran, Smith and Mann. Despite the ever increasing workload placed upon the Squadron, there is still light to be seen at the end of the tunnel, this being Summer Block Leave. Due to the recent heat-wave here in Herford some members of the Troop thought they had sunstroke when they thought they saw SSgt Greenwood who like our illustrious leader Lt Pritchett, hasn't been seen for quite some time (Mulder and Skully please investigate!) Investigations revealed that SSgt Greenwood had just returned from the BAG football tour in Zimbabwe and Lt Pritchett has been doing her part in the recruit drive on a recent KAPE Tour obviously having done the job well as she got promoted on her return and posted to 3 Div. Other members of the team including Sig Lara 'Leave those boys alone' Brixey, Sig Kenny 'Nice but weak' Smith and Sig 'Trigger' Jenkinson who was overpowered by a 12 year old!

The Troop said farewell to Sgt 'Woody' Wood at his favourite establishment Hanky Panky's Cowboy Bar and was last seen heading off into the sunset complete with spurs, 10 gallon hat and chaps in the direction of 280 Sig Sqn Yeeeehaa! LCpl's Lee Chamberlin and 'Larry' Lamb finally finished their escape tunnel and are off to pastures new. Good luck! The Troop welcomes Sgt Gerry McGachy and his lovely wife who joined us from the CTT in Scotland but has yet to be seen at work. LCpl Steptoe joined us from 4 Armd Bde Sig Sqn just in time to sign for the green fleet. Sig Kenny Smith joined us from the armoured element of the Regiment after a stark reality check and finally not to forget Sig Mark Ridgwell fresh out of the wrapper. Congratulations go to LCpl Chris Glennard and wife Kerry on the birth of their son Jamie, also to Sig Mat Hulbert on his engagement to Melanie. Finally congratulations to Cpl Halliday for being the first Senior Citizen to pass the RSCC.

HAWK TROOP

Tp SSgt Sgt Gutteridge

First of all, there was all the excitement and drama of the expected deployment to Kosovo. A select few of highly trained operators were chosen for the task of spearheading the British Army's main thrust into Kosovo. However, on arrival at RAF Bruggen, with everybody hyped up and ready to go a signal was received back in Herford to come back. Towards the end of June, about half the Troop embarked on a voyage of discovery on the Corps Yacht Quicksilver. Ex Cut-Throat Diamond was a weeklong sailing expedition from Kiel. The Exercise was aimed at those members of the Troop who had never been on board a boat before. The sailing was a great success and no one managed to fall over board, despite the best attempts of Sig Lofthouse and Sig Armstrong. The month ended with the RSIT inspection, which thanks to everyone's hard work went very well. The troop would like to say goodbye and thanks to SSgt Kev German who has deserted us and moved to Support Tp.

KESTREL TROOP - by Sig Elcock
Tp Comd 2Lt Foote
Tp SSgt SSgt Cooper

The past few months have been very hectic in the Squadron with a lot of people being places on standby for Kosovo and being sent back to the UK for training. This left all of the Troops widely undermanned but with the same level of commitments, which hasn't been an easy task. Despite the workload, a reduced version of the Squadron Battlecamp still went ahead much to everyone's disappointment! The first day consisted of moving into the harbour area, digging in, patrolling and recces, and a few lessons in the field, where everyone could refresh a few field skills. It also meant that 2Lt 'Cricket Mad' Foote, our new Troop OC was able to brief us on the various types of ambush and harbour areas. The second day was a range package in which the Troop got to carry out live section attacks and fire a few hundred rounds through various weapons which was a welcome change from the APWT. The next few weeks were spent busily in the garages preparing vehicles and kit for the dreaded RSIT in which the Troop did very well.

Well done to Sig 'Dizzy' Brown who came first in the Inter Services Highboard Diving Competition and second in the Combined Services back in the UK. Another well done to Cpl Steve Pengelly who has come off the Sergeants Board, and a farewell to our resident PTI the Kosovan refugee Sig 'Lips' Hewitt who's of to 7 Sig Regt. On a final note a big good luck to Sig Andy Gallagher who is getting married over the summer leave.

EXERCISE BISLEY BULLET

Four members of 201 Sig Sqn, made the journey back to Bisley at the end of June, to compete in Ex Bisley Bullet, the National Rifle Associations annual shooting competition. The four team members were LCpl Warnes, Sig Gallagher, Sig Human and Sig Whitelock. After meeting up with the 11 Sig Regt team, we got down to some training and practice shoots for us younger guys.

LCpl 'Wilf' Warnes, who earned an 'Army 100' badge at Bisley

We practised various types of shooting, from FIBUA to Gallery shooting. This was a more than welcome change to the standard APWT format and gave us all chance to brush up on our weapon skills. After a weeks praticing two of our team entered the Queens Medal Competion, to go for a chance at their 'Army 100' badge. Congratulations go out to LCpl 'Wilf' Warnes on his good shooting, and becoming only the twelfth member of the Corps to have earned this accolade.

Commiseration's to Sig Human who narrowly missed out. There's always next year!! The third week saw us competing as a team for the nationals. Two days shooting went in to make up our total scores, giving us a finishing position amongst the middle of the field. Congratulations again to LCpl Warnes who collected two medals for his efforts, and to Sig Gallagher who also collected one. The last day saw us helping out the Corps Team, working in the butts, as they shot the 'Methuen Cup'. The team managed a good fifth position with LCpl Warnes collecting yet another trophy, this time a tankard, for managing to do his maths, not actually shooting! Thanks go out to WO2 Merrie, 21 Sig Regt, for the loan of weapons and magazines for the duration of the competition. Cheers sir!!

IT'S A KNOCKOUT

This year's long awaited Herford Garrison Summer Fair took place at Wentworth Barracks on Saturday 12 June. Along with the usual stalls, displays, and vehicles to clamber all over comes the most physical mental and humiliating competition known to mankind, IT'S A KNOCKOUT. The event takes the form of the long loved well known TV programme of the same name. The teams, all in fancy dress have to complete a series of obstacles all testing the team at different levels of skill luck and pure ingenuity. Last year's cup was won by another Squadron, so we were keen to win the trophy back. From a Squadron of about 120 we managed to wittle it down to an elite six consisting of LCpl Doe, LCpl Glennard, Sigs Ashcroft, Hoskings Fisher, and Grossmith. Training had been hard and demanding but we did have the added boost of our very own cave man outfits. These were designed and made by LCpl Doe, which ultimately helped the team move onto another physical level.

The day started of at 1000hrs and right from the beginning we felt strong and confident, our first blow came to us when on the trampoline obstacle. Sig Hulbert broke his ankle, fortunately for us Lt Alyward stepped into the wounded cave man's clobber and filled the gap. Our second blow came to us in the form of the beer tent only selling crates of Becks instead of Bud Ice. However, it all had the desired effect (courage) as we had yet to complete the Gladiators Gauntlet Run!! A few beers later and a few extra bruises our third and final blow took the form of LCpl Woosnam, who made sure we adhered to all the rules on his stand. After ten events all the scores were added up, and with a slight margin of 15 points gained by Sig 'Micky' Ashcroft for riding on the Joust backwards, 201 Sig Sqn emerged victorious. As for Sig Hulbert he's been bedded down for four weeks unlucky..... or not !

COMMAND TROOP
Tp Comd Lt Jeeves
Tp SSgt SSgt Innes

The last few months has been a tumultuous period for Command Tp as fifty percent of the Troop deployed on Op Agricola to augment 204 Sig Sqn and 7 Sig Regt. The lads and lasses are deployed to a number of locations assisting various units in a variety of roles. As expected the Troop is conducting itself in exemplary fashion as the Troop OC can vouch for after his own three week sunshine jolly to theatre. A big congratulations to LCpl Lannie for a thoroughly earned promotion, received whilst on duty in 4 Bde HQ in Kosovo. Also well done to Sgt Dixon who leaves us on promotion to 7 Bde. For those that have remained behind a big well done for a first class RSIT report and for generally holding the fort whilst others disappeared off around the world.

COMMUNICATIONS TROOP
Tp Comd Lt Morton
Tp SSgt SSgt Leach

First of all congratulations to LCpl Horseborough on his recent promotion to LCpl. Congratulation must also go to Cpl Smith, Cpl Wilkinson and Cpl Howard on their promotion to Sergeant. Goodbye to Cpl jelly Smith on his posting to 204 Sig Sqn, Osnabruck, we wish him and his family all the best. A big Hello to the latest lucky people who have had the good fortune to join Comms Tp, Sig Becky Hamilton, Sig Danny Smith and Sig Chris Kellet all fresh from the factory.

RRB TROOP
Tp Comd Lt Shakespeare
Tp SSgt SSgt Cox

The end of May saw some of the members of the Troop deploy on Ex Premier Link, while others were attached to Command Tp to supply them with the 432 expertise they so desperately required. When we returned the Troop formed part of the Kosovo Sqn and went back to the UK for UNTAT training along with 3 DSR. After UNTAT the leave applications were flying thick and fast but only a selected few were lucky enough to book a place on Op Agricola. LCpl 'Dangerous Dave' Wallace has just returned missing out on his medal by just one day. I am sure you will be back soon! July saw the majority of the Troop heading south to Bavaria for adventure training, where the Troop OC, Lt Shakey Shakespeare, found it quite hard to tell the difference between UEL and JSMEL routes! The Troop would like to say goodbye to SSgt 'Scouse 'Is that going spare?' Wharton who has moved into the cushy TA life soon to get his WO2 (yeah right!) and Cpl Andy Allen who is posted to Hohne. We also would like to welcome SSgt 'Deano' Cox from 12 Regt RA.

RURAL PROTECTION DUTY IN SUPPORT OF HCR
by Sig Ford

I was fortunate enough whilst on tour in Kosovo to be involved in what only can be described as a hearts and minds, rural, patrolling, protection exercise in support of the Household Cavalry a few miles East of Pristina. During our tour of duty this was a joint operation involving 1(UK)ADSR, 4 Bde and 7 Sig Regt personnel. Our mission was to protect a Serb village by means of an overt presence and show of strength in order to convince the local population that it was safe to return home and to feel secure once they were home. Our secondary task was to patrol the local area, ensuring that the local population were complying with COMKFOR's mandate and listening to the fears and concerns of both ethnic groups in the region.

Just returned from a particularly dusty patrol.

Our impartiality was, at times, almost ironic as we waved goodbye to our Serbian hosts to drive the five kilometres to the nearest Albanian village. It all sounds relatively straightforward doesn't it? Not so, the next five days were to prove to be tiring, exciting and extremely rewarding. The 10 man patrol was made up of one officer, Lt 'Bad Boy' Jeeves, three seniors and six OR's. The element of continuity was provided by the tireless Sgt Smith who was both medic and interpreter, he was the only permanent member of the patrol. Our base was in the small Serbian village of Slivovo and very quickly we slipped into a routine making full use of our mountain spring home-made shower and crudely constructed bashas. This tranquil existence was disrupted by the continuous noise of the local farmyard animals, the cockerels crowed 24hrs a day and the piglets running all over our sleeping bags, whilst we were in them.

We conducted two patrols a day, six men in a patrol with four guarding the patrol base. We generally headed north using a Rover and a 432APC to the mass of Albanian villages in the area, some with as few as 15 inhabitants and in many cases we were the first NATO troops they had seen. How we found these villages was by chance, unlisted tracks and bad mapping. In no way can our dubious navigation be blamed on the OC, no Siree! I will look back on the five days I spent patrolling in Kosovo as some of the most rewarding of my career. During our time we helped instil a large amount of goodwill in the local Albanian and Serb communities and by the time we left more and more Serbian's were pouring back into the village of Slivovo including one family to whom we gave a personal escort!

CO Lt Col C. Wakerley MBE
RSM WO1 (RSM) S. C. Keilty

HEADQUARTER SQUADRON
Sqn Comd Maj J. Walker MBE
SSM WO2 A. Terry

Providing a staging post for those passing in and out of theatre and trying to fulfil Regimental commitments with a single Squadron is keeping us very busy. We cannot possibly give a personal mention to all those coming and going but a special mention must be given to the OC and SSM, the 2IC has burnt them out and wants new replacements. Maj John Walker is leaving on promotion to take on the onerous task of moving 7 Sig Regt, 16 Sig Regt and 280 Sig Sqn into Bruggen. Also jumping ship is WO2 (SSM) Andy Terry, on promotion to WO1, he is off to show future generations of soldiers the light as he takes up the appointment of Troop Commander at 11 Sig Regt. We wish him and his family the very best, don't break too many soldiers.

EXERCISE SWEEPING EBOR 18-23 JUNE 1999

It would just not have been cricket if those who missed out on Adventurous Training to the Pyrennes and the Lake District earlier in the summer were not treated to the great outdoors. WO2 (SSM) Andy Terry's solution was Ex Sweeping Ebor; hill walking and sight seeing on mountain bikes.

Mountain biking, organised by SSgt 'Jez' Ratcliffe (REME) proved to be a popular event, meanwhile the SSM produced a cunning plan to cover 54km of some of the Lakes most challenging peaks in 36 hours. The group led by the SSM survived the first day, completing Keswick to the base of Scarfell before a night under canvas. Unfortunately Sigs 'Nobby' Clarke, 'Spice' Cinnamond, 'Chris' Blundell and 'Tham' Tham quickly discovered that a 4-man tent was not as spacious as they had hoped, especially after a body cramping days walking and all their kit to fit in. Day Two started with Scarfell, although the SSM did soften to allow the Team to drop their packs at the bottom of the summit, followed by Helvellyn before tea. Not a bad achievement for two days.....

As the walking wounded returned word spread throughout the Regiment, so that by the time the second group were due to depart it had somewhat depleted in numbers. Capt Beanie Lloyd was left with two soldiers, but undeterred they set out on the same challenge. Not in the game of breaking soldiers, the route was shortened, well it was a Friday finish and Cpl Pete Preece and Pte Robert Docherty survived the ordeal and returned with aching muscles and some good stories to tell.

REAR DETAILS OUT OF USE TROOP
Tp Comd WO1 (FofS) Mark Hardy
SQMS SSgt Angus Macpherson

With the Kohima Veterans Reunion fast approaching we have enlisted the help of 16 soldiers awaiting training (SATs) from 11 Sig Regt, Blandford. They have provided invaluable assistance with installation maintenance and will undoubtedly return to Blandford better prepared for a future serving in the Royal Signals. The soldiers' willingness is very much appreciated by the Regiment and we wish them well for their future within the Corps.

With the constant turnover within the Troop it is not possible to mention all arrivals and departures but we recently said farewell to SSgt 'Al' Keen who is posted to 30 Sig Regt at Bramcote, allegedly you now have a job and a choice of hats to wear. If this mention doesn't force you to get the beers in we will congratulate you on your promotion to Sergeant Major and wish you well. Welcome to SSgt 'Pete' Curtis, Al's replacement, but Pete when the OC mentioned that he didn't really have a job for you at present and to chill, I don't think he quite meant pack your bags and go to Cyprus and play Rugby for two weeks!

Five members of the Troop recently presented the Wilberforce Home for Multiple-Handicapped and Blind with a cheque for £500. SSgt 'Al' Keen and Sigs Martin Sleight, Shaun Robinson, Steve Blight and Matt Howland visited the home in York on Wednesday 23 June to hand over the cheque. The money was donated from the Regimental charities fund which had received a boost following this years 'Race the Sun' event. Wilberforce Home has been established since 1968 and provides its residents with a comfortable, caring and supportive home. There are currently plans in the pipeline for some major improvements at the home.

QM DEPARTMENT
QM Maj B. J. Dalton
RQMS (Gen) WO2 K. R. J. Smith
RQMS (Tech) WO2 D. G. Simpson

As usual, the QM's department is the busiest department in the Regiment (FNARRR, FNARRR). Since the last Wire there have been a lot of comings and goings. 214 Sig Sqn have now deployed to Kosovo together with three of our stores accountants. We wish LCpls 'Chippy' Williams, Mark Dunnachie and Sig 'Ollie' Oliver all the best and hope to see them in the not too distant future (preferably back here). Thanks must be given to all our civilian staff who have worked just as hard as the rest of the department ensuring 214 Sig Sqn deployed without problems. Lastly, warm wishes to (LSgt) Cpl 'Rocky' Mountain, our resident stores Corporal who is at last coming to the end of his attachment to 219 Sig Sqn in the Falkland Islands. See you at work in September! The rest of the department is now settling into the silly season of veteran reunion weekends. Manpower shortage is such that our new MHE storeman (Maj (QM) Dalton) was seen helping move pallets of chairs around the compound, (are you MHE qualified we ask?)

Some of the Department needless to say have managed to swan off and bask in the sunshine. Sgt Steve Howard and Sig Emma Clayton managed a two week sunning session in the Pyrenees on Adventure training. No sooner were they back when Sgt Howard decided to top up that tan with a two week handover of equipment to 7 Sig Regt in Kosovo. Welcome back also to WO2 (RQMS) Dave Simpson from a week in Bosnia. Apparently his CD collection needed updating.

On the arrivals front we must say a warm welcome to WO2 'Kev' Smith, his wife Helen and son Charlie on promotion from 280 (UK) Sig Sqn and to Sigs 'Crawford' Scott and 'Louise' Chandler from that very large factory down south. Welcome to a different kind of busy. Sad farewells must be said to LCpl 'Tracey' Stubbs who has decided to navigate the civilian flight path all the way to Manchester. Good luck and our best wishes to you and all you do in civvy street.

EXERCISE CHATURANGA 1999
BELGIUM ASSAULT COURSE COMPETITION
by LCpl Gittens, Sigs Cinnamond, Clarke, Clayton and Scott

After dragging our weary bodies out of bed very early on Friday, 25 June, just to make the minibus on time, we pondered the next few days ahead. For the next ten hours we sat cramped in the minibus our destination Tournai in Belgium and the infamous Chaturanga Competition. A competition dreamt of by Satan himself. The Regiment entered two teams, one male which consisted of WO2 'Kev, he's raving mad' Smith, Sgt 'Graham, quiet ones are the worst' Stephenson, and Sigs Mark 'Spice' Cinnamond and 'Gaz, it's the hardest thing I've done in my short life' Clarke. The mixed team consisted on Sgt Brenda 'I used to be Signals' Berry (nee Cooper) (APTC), LCpl 'Gil GQ' Vogue and any other model magazine' Gittens, Sigs 'Crawford, I like to spray things' Scott and Emma, I'm not going' Clayton. Both teams were ably backed up by Sgt Sean Humphries and Cpl 'Bill' Mill who could beat David Bailey at photography hands down and Cpl Andy, 'Is that a man' Williams.

WO2 (RQMS) Kev Smith, Sig Mark 'Spice' Cinnamond, Sgt Graham Stephenson, Sig 'Gaz' Clarke

On arrival in Tournai we were given a walkthrough/talkthrough demonstration of the course, which through experience should never be attempted in Italian slip on shoes as LCpl 'Gil GQ' Gittens found out. That evening the team relaxed with a quiet Chinese meal in the town centre and retired early for the event ahead. However, thanks to Cpl Mill, whose snoring can be measured on the richter scale, a good nights sleep was not had. The next day arrived and a lot of solemn faces were seen as we attempted the two passing in tests, a 50m cat crawl on a rope 30ft off the floor followed by a 150ft death slide accessed by an unstable metal ladder. Once on top of the structure the teams started to congest as Sig Emma Clayton refused to make the jump. As the team stood there on the swaying tower 100ft up, WO2 Kev, thoughtful' Smith gave a reassuring word to those less comfortable at height, in the form of 'its got to fall down sometime so if you don't jump after three, I will push you'. Needless to say everyone passed the tests.

Sig 'Gaz' Clarke, mastering the 50m cat crawl

Soon we were off, and on speaking to both teams afterwards, we remember it as a course of never ending obstructions and obstacles. None of the team members realised how bruised they were until the next morning. That evening was the competitors' barbecue combined with the prize giving. Then it was onto town and the infamous Le Bush night-spot where all the seniors showed the younger soldiers how it was done in their day. All in all a memorable weekend which all the teams would like to repeat next year, however, asbestos underpants should be included in the kit list for the cat crawl!!

MOTOR TRANSPORT DEPARTMENT
MTO Capt Hitman Gurung
MT SSgt Sgt Swan

Along with the rest of the Regiment the MT is experiencing a shortage of manpower and is extremely busy with commitments. Cpl Amrit, Findlay and Man have deployed to Kosovo on Op Agricola. Sigs Amav and Wilkinson are still in the Falklands on roulement tour. LCpl Davision came back from Ex Able Condor and is now on UNTAT training and will shortly be going to Kosovo. Those not deployed on Ops are busy on driving details, servicing the fleet, or on guard duty. Due to the number of operations in various parts of the world, the driving details to Brize Norton and Lyneham have been quite regular. The welfare run is normally carried out by Sig 'Autoroute' Jaruszek, who thinks he should be in Corsham! We say farewell to LCpl Lee Middleton who moved on to civvy street, good luck to him in his new career. Hello to LCpl's 'Billy' Davidson and Nick Adams welcome to the fun in the Regimental MT.

TRAILWALKER (UK) 1999 - by WO1 (RSM) Sean Keitly

On Friday, 25 June, WO1 (RSM) Sean Keilty, SSgt (SQMS) Angus Macpherson, SSgt Paul Jude and SSgt 'Chippy' Wood departed south for Trailwalker (UK) 1999, 100km Race across the South Downs.

The journey south was uneventful, if a little drawn out (8hrs). Upon arriving at the Queen Elizabeth Country Park, Petersfield, tents were pitched and several thousand calories were stuffed down the neck prior to a good night's sleep in preparation for the morning's activities. Up with the larks early next morning. Renewing old acquaintances, exchanging race tips and discussing some of the, ' all the gear, no idea' competitors. After a final brief to the admin support of LCpl Aungar and Sig Laird, i.e: miss a meeting point and you're dead. The RSM, a vet of last year's race gave the team an in depth brief consisting of, 'Under 14 hours and I'll be dead chuffed, let's %$%ing do it lads!'

0900 hours and we were off, looking resplendent in our orange, 'Race the Sun' T-shirts (2 Sig Regt, who else?). No probs, we flash through CP 1 at Harting Down after 53 minutes, up to Hilltop Farm by now well warmed up. With a race with the Nottingham Runners Club on the cards we strode purposefully on to CP 3 Littleton Farm, then up and over to CP 4 Amberley, or as we have come to call it, the devil's armpit. Luckily an old friend SSgt Jane Lawrence greeted us, smiles and drinks along with all the Gurkha cheers we were soon on our way.

The leg to CP 5 is the longest in the race, it is also the first marathon length barrier. Excellent views and top team morale soon saw us through this part of the race. The sight of CP 6 Beeding Bridge did not curtail our efforts, we pushed on up the killer hills to CP 7 the food stop at Truleigh Hill. Upon arrival we met the old enemy from Nottingham preparing to leave. Their departure was held back by one of their number regurgitating his lunch over the barn floor, much to the consternation of the other diners. On seeing this a delighted RSM remarked 'we've got them now'. After a quick meal we were off. At this stage the average age of the team (37.5 years) was beginning to show. SSgt 'Chippy' Wood had particular cause for concern as his knee was doing a very convincing impression of a watermelon. Undeterred by this he again gave our morale a shot in the arm, by placing mind firmly over matter he pulled on the tubi grip and battled through. Even with our feet mummified in zinc oxide tape, the blisters were by now out in force and popping with painful regularity. The much promised cloud cover finally came. The heat eased but driving rain followed, making us a sorry sight upon arrival at CP 8 Pycombe. A quick T-shirt change and we set a punishing pace to CP 9 Ditchling Beacon then down to CP 10 Houndean Bottom.

Taking Tenth Place

After a photo call to commemorate the two-marathon stage we pushed on to CP 11 at Woodingdean. Dusk was falling and with 'That hill I told you about' still to climb we finally left the Nottingham Team behind. The final 8.5 km leg saw us give everything. In the darkness Brighton loomed, with the racecourse in our sights we made our way to the 100km finish in a time of 14hrs 13mins, to be informed we had gained tenth place overall complete team place from the 190 teams who started. The team would like to thank the event organisers for an excellent challenge. The Gurkha enthusiasm and pride is alive and well. For those of you out there unaware of Trailwalker (UK), it is an opportunity to assist the Gurkha Welfare Trust that is not to be missed. See you on the last weekend in June!

QUEEN'S MEDAL COMPETITION AND CENTSAAM 1999
by WO2 (FofS)Yambahadur Rana

Due to heavy operational commitments the Regiment was unable to compete in the 2 Div SAAM as a team this year. However, two members of the Regiment managed to qualify for the Queen's Medal competition. WO2 (FofS) Yam Rana took part in the 2 Div SAAM as a individual firer and qualified for the Queen's Medal competition as one of ten firers from the Division. Sig Devprakash Gurung also qualified from 143 Bde before he was posted to the Regiment.

The Queen's Medal competition is the premiere event for service shooting and it is every marksman's dream to win it. This year it took place on 30 June and 1 July on Bisley and Pirbright ranges. The first day started with the Roupell match, I scored the highest (156 out of 160) and won the Roupell Trophy. After FIBUA, Whitehead and Moving target matches, the first day finished. I was in 30th position and Sig Devprakash was in 60th position. On the final day, firers were to contest Match Two, the Association Cup, also known as the Army Hundred Cup. The overall result of both days would decide the Queen's Medal. Out of 127 firers I finished the second day in 25th position and Sig Devprakash finished in 52nd position. This was a good result considering we only had two days limited training prior to the competition.

The following week we were both selected to represent the Corps in the Metheun Cup which is contested amongst all the other Corps. The Royal Corps of Signals finished in a respectable Fifth place winning Woolwich Bowl after beating the Royal Engineers and Royal Artillery.

EXERCISE MONTARDO EBOR - by SSgt A. MacPherson MBE

It was two weeks prior to Xmas 1998 when SSM Andy Terry mentioned that OC HQ Sqn, Maj John Walker, was looking for a budding SSgt to organise an Adventurous Training Exercise to the Pyrenees in late May 1999. After waiting several days and hearing of no nominations I quickly stepped forward into the unknown. Some five months later, after many sleepless nights and a couple of minor heart attacks, we were ready for the off. The Expedition Party consisted of 19 personnel, 2 Officers, 1 WO, 4 SNCO's and 13 OR's.

Monday 24 May - At 1130hrs we departed from Imphal Barracks and drove in two mini-buses to Portsmouth to catch the overnight ferry to St Malo. The food on the ferry was excellent and well worth the advance group booking at £8 per head.

Tuesday 25 May - We finally arrived at the campsite at 2200hrs. After quickly meeting-up with our guide, Mr John Howie it was all hands on deck, erecting tents and making ourselves comfortable for the night.

Wednesday 26 May - After a fairly restless night, (as to be expected in the circumstances) it was reveille at 0700hrs, followed by a smashing breakfast expertly prepared and cooked by our admin team, SSgt Alan Yeaman, LCpl John Clarke and LCpl Claire Haslam. After breakfast we met up with our guide to start our first day's introduction walk. We set off from Pic du Lis (1149m) with light packs, the opening pace as I can remember was a shock to everyone's system, (was this to be CFT 2?). After an hour or so it settled down into a nice trekking pace and most people were breathing normally again. We took several photos on route, passing by Lake de Graues (2152m), eventually stopping for lunch at Lake Vert (2001m). The sun was out and off came the T-shirts for the duration of our stop. The lake was still frozen so we were unable to paddle. After lunch we made our way back to the start passing Station de Prat-Long and de la Coume. Once at the bottom we all enjoyed a small beer before returning to the campsite for evening meal.

Thursday 27 May - Up bright and early after a better night's sleep, we started from Hospice de France (1385m), again with light packs for the final warm-up prior to Spain. We were going at a steady rate for 1½hrs all uphill, when we reached the point (2113m) where we practised snow and ice axe techniques. We spent several hours on the snow practising and it was a spectacular show from Lt Julie Richardson falling some 100ft, demonstrating how an ice axe arrest should be done. The use of our guide's dog lead also came into great effect to assist Sig Emma Clayton traversing across some steeper snow. We then headed up to the Refuge de Vanesque (2200m) took a group photo and started our descent. We got about ten yards when the heavens opened and it was time to try out those nice Gore-Tex waterproofs from Thatcham. They did the job and it was a lesson to most, just how fast the weather can change in the Pyrenees. Once at the bottom it was back to the campsite for dinner. The remainder of the evening was spent packing and preparing for the start of tomorrow's expedition into Spain.

Friday 28 May - Breakfast at 0730hrs, packed lunches made a quick final check of personnel equipment and documentation, rucksacks loaded into both minibuses and we were off on our expedition. The admin team dropped us off at the start point, end of Vielha tunnel. At 1030hrs with packs on (weighing a ton) we were on our way, every now and then glancing over our shoulders waving goodbye to our admin team below. Heading steadily along GR11 route, trying to find our mountain legs we came to our first stop. John Howie and the boss, Maj John Walker gathered everyone around for a quick look at the map, (it was going to be a long day). The first two hours were really tough going with steep climbs, it was a pleasure to see the top and get back onto fairly level ground, (if you didn't already know, there is not much level ground in the Pyrenees). The going was getting tough for Sig Jim McEwan but after some TLC and some old school encouragement he was off and running again. We stopped for a welcome lunch by Lake de Rius then continued, this time our ice axes were required. The route was interesting and we managed to see many Isards, marmottes and a female (very rare) capacille. We reached Refuge dera Restanca (2010m) at 1600hrs. It was a great relief to see the refuge, which would turn out to be the Ritz of all refuges, apart from the food, (seafood pasta dish) which was certainly an acquired taste.

Saturday 29 May - The refuge was very noisy throughout the night as people were arriving as late as midnight. After breakfast we set off at 0815hrs in sight of our next refuge. It always takes the first 30 minutes of each day to get those mountain legs going again, (maybe an hour or so if you sampled the local vino). We were going some ten minutes when Sgt Sam Faulds remembered that he had left his gaiters in the refuge. He headed back to retrieve them, however, unbeknown to him our guide had them in his rucksack. On route we stopped for a break at the bottom of Coret d Oelbacrestada, eight members of the team donned light packs and headed for the summit of Mount Montardo (2833m). It was a good steady pace and the team was at the top within one hour. The view from the top of Montardo was spectacular and after several photos it was time to return to the rest of the party. Our descent took 15 minutes and it was brilliant fun going down in the deep snow. A quick lunch, (with a trickle of Glenmorangy for the selected few) more group photos, then we set off to Refuge Joan Ventosa (2220m). We saw more Izards along the way and Sig Hazel Sibley screamed as Maj John Walker produced a large slithery frog from out of no-where. The sun was still shining on our arrival at the Refuge and provided the perfect opportunity for a spot of sunbathing and drying out wet kit. WO2 Andy Terry ever keen for more exercise, decided he would take his camera to get a couple of exclusive shots from in and around the refuge. On his return, about one hour later, he was spotted trying to dry out his camera, (which bit of water did it fall in!). After dinner we celebrated Sig 'Ray' Reardon's 18th birthday will a couple of sociable beers.

Sunday 30 May - Knowing today was Sunday, we thought that there might be the odd chance of a little lie-in. Wrong, we were up sharp at 0600hrs, had breakfast and we were off on another day's adventure. The Boss and John Howie were worried about the weather closing in so it was best to get off early. Today would prove to be by far the hardest day's trek of the expedition. Our main aim was to go over two cols, ending up at Refuge de Saboredo (2310m). The day started fairly well, just like the previous two and after the first hour everyone was back into the swing of things. So far the weather was holding out, packs still feeling heavy, we had reached our first col, Port de Colomers (2604m). It was a steep climb to reach the top, and all our previous snow work came into good use. We had a well deserved twenty minute break before heading on to lake Obego. We reached the lake at 1115hrs and John Howie said we were making good time. Yet again the weather was on our side as the sun came shining through, (more sun cream required). On the way to lake Obego we had a slight incident as Sgt Steve 'kamikaze' Howard slipped and slightly bruised his chest with a pearl of a slide down the snow. After a thirty minute break with some food and water inside him (and a little attention from Sgt Sam Faulds, our first-aider), Steve had recovered and was fit enough to proceed. The second col, Port de Ratera (2600m) proved to be twice as tough as the Port de Colomers. Standing at the top watching people come over, one by one, was quite a sight. (As tough as it was, I recall Cpl Pete Longworth shouting, 'Is someone trying to kill us!') Pete very quickly got over his ordeal and it wasn't long before he was lighting another cigarette. After a well-earned rest we rattled onto the refuge. It was a grand sight to see the Saboredo hut immediately in front of us. As we were sitting outside the hut, sinking a nice cold (and thoroughly deserved) cerveza, watching our boots and gaiters dry out in the sun; we could see the weather changing, this time it would not escape us. The rain came and lasted several hours.

Monday 31 May - After a good night's sleep feeling a bit sore from yesterday, today (as we had been led to believe) was going to be pretty easy going. We set off just after 8 o'clock with a gradual climb that seemed to go on forever. We passed lake Glacat before scrambling up to the Del Lac Glacat Col, then proceeded to head due south to the Amitges Col. This had taken us 2½hrs which according to our guide, was fairly good timing. The weather was closing in again but John Howie thought we had enough time to reach the summit of Pic de Amitges (2851m). So without packs, seven of us set off for the Pic.

Once at the top we had a spectacular view of the Amitges Needles which was a great bonus as the col was not part of the original plan. The wind at the top was very strong so photos were taken sitting down. On the way back down John reminded us of the importance of taking back bearings, and recalled the story about the two chaps who got lost on top of Ben Nevis without their compasses. Sig Bryan Jones hurt his knee slightly when a loose rock landed on it. At the bottom we re-joined the group, with packs back on we headed due south towards Estany Grande Amitges which was all down hill in thick snow. We eventually arrived at Refuge de Amitges (2380) and as we looked back up towards the Pic, we were all proud of what we had achieved. This refuge proved to be Ritz 2 of all refuges, we settled down for the night (after a well-deserved shower and wonderful food) playing board games and socialising.

Tuesday 1 June - We set off at 8 o'clock for our final journey (all down hill) where we would meet up with our admin team, 9km away. The pace was nice and relaxed for the first 30 minutes then things started to heat up. Myself, John Howie, Sgt Steve Howard, Sgt Sam Faulds and Cpl 'Woody' Wood all found ourselves tabbing/running at a great pace of knots. (Was this to be CFT 3?). The pace got faster and faster and it was a great sight to see SSgt Alan Yeaman and his admin team at the end in Espot. It was also a very great pleasure in seeing John sweat for the first time since the expedition began. Once everyone was down we headed for a cafe and had cold refreshments and ice creams. It was a two hour drive back to the campsite in Luchon. Once back we freshened up and headed into the town centre for some souvenirs. Later in the evening the heavens opened and for the rest of the night we were stuck with roaring thunderstorms.

Wednesday 2 June - In spite of the thunderstorms most of us slept well and after breakfast we headed off white water rafting, expertly organised by the admin team. After the rafting we headed back to the campsite, (tents now fully dry) to pack everything away and prepare for the return journey to York. After saying our final farewells to John Howie and his family, we departed.

A photo of a rather nervous group prior to the white water rafting

Thursday 3 June - We arrived in St Malo at 6 o'clock in the morning, making the return journey quicker by two hours, (12 hours). We had breakfast in MacDonalds followed by a duty free visit to the local supermarket prior to boarding the ferry at 1045hrs. We landed in Portsmouth at 1830hrs. Back on UK soil, all in sombre mood, this was the beginning of the end. Sig 'Mitch' Mitchinson had finally succeeded to wind up the SSM and was transferred to the rear minibus. The final drive landed us back in Imphal Barracks at 1 o'clock in the morning.

SUMMARY

It was a great experience stepping into the unknown and organising my first expedition. I have benefited tremendously from it all, and the group all agreed that it was an enjoyable yet hard, five-day expedition (thanks John). The Pyrenees come highly recommended and I would like to thank everyone who helped me in any way with the planning of this expedition, making it an overwhelming success.

3 (UNITED KINGDOM) DIVISION HEADQUARTERS & SIGNAL REGIMENT

REGIMENTAL HEADQUARTERS
CO Lt Col N. D. Couch
RSM WO1 (RSM) G. J. Stoker MBE

With the CO deployed on Op Agricola it was left to the Regimental 2IC, Maj Adam Ewell to lead the way through a succession of parties disguised as a Regimental Weekend. Brig (Retd) Nigel Wood was the guest of honour as the Representative Colonel Commandant. The Regimental Reunion Club were well represented with Brig Ronnie Stonham taking the salute on the march past to church assisted by Ex-RSM, Mr John Templeton. Members of the club who attended the weekend included Brig Johnny Clinch, Jean Brett, widow of Brig Bertie Brett and many characters too numerous to mention. As in previous years the oldest member Mr Pedlar Palmer who at 95 still stole the show with his mouth organ display on stage in the Sergeants' Mess.

SSM WO2 (SSM) S. G. Jackson

Once again the time has come to report on the Squadron activities over the past month, and once again these have proven to be both challenging and diverse. The main activity has been the lead up training for Ex Lion Sun, which will take place from 7 July to 5 August. This is an Exercise based at honing basic infantry skills, with the added bonus of utilising the excellent adventurous training facilities available Cyprus. The full report on Ex Lion Sun will follow in next month's Wire, together with some predictably entertaining pictures! On the operational front, the Squadron continues to provide key manpower for Operations in Bosnia and Kosovo. This has resulted in the surrendering of many bodies, which makes for both a challenging and exciting time for the Squadron. We look forward to receiving those persons deployed back safely into the Squadron over the next few months. Due to the busy nature of the Squadron there have been a variety of postings in, and out, of SHQ in the past month. We sadly wave goodbye to Capt Lee 'Jimmy' Hendricks who moves onto pastures anew with 5 Airborne Brigade in Aldershot, and give a warm welcome to Capt Eric 'Beckham' Warren who joins us from RMCS Shrivenham. We also sadly say goodbye to the SSM, WO2 Steve Jackson who leaves on promotion to WO1 (RSM) to 5 AB Bde at the end of the month. We wish them the best for the future.

OVERLOON TROOP
Tp Comd 2Lt K. J. Grice
Tp SSgt SSgt A. J. Crawford

It has been another hectic month for Overloon Tp with the arrival of several new faces. Firstly we welcome Capt 'Patricia' Pritchard from 1st (UK) Div & Sig Regt who will take over command of the Troop later this month, also a big welcome to LCpl 'Horizontal' Standing who arrives newly promoted from 5 AB Brigade. We hope you enjoy your time with the Troop. Overloon have spent the majority of this month on military and adventurous training on Ex Lion Sun, a sweaty and refreshed Troop will report back to The Wire next month on their antics – minus jet skis and banana boats of course!!

BUSSACO TROOP
Tp Comd 2Lt P. Simpson
Tp Sgt Sgt M. Brown

We welcome fresh from trade training Sig 'Flightless' Bird, Sig 'Student' Grant and Sigs Elston and Wagstaff (who will have achieved suitable nicknames by this time next month!). As we are away on Ex Lion Sun eager readers will have to await our exciting return at the end of the month before discovering the continuing hectic lifestyle of Bussaco Tp.

206 SIGNAL SQUADRON (REAR)
Sqn Comd Capt R. J. Odling
SSM WO2 S. Archer

Since last reporting from sunny Bulford a lot of water has passed under the bridge. Radio/Access Tp or Kosovo Tp as it became known finally disbanded having spent four months on 72hrs NTM without fully deploying. Everyone moved onto 14 days notice to move with the rest of the Regiment. The elements from 202 went back to the Armour (your welcome to it boys), thanks a lot for all your hard work.

Having spent all of 12 hours on 14 days notice the goal post moved to four hours notice only this time all those that had not been warned off to go were now going. We would just like to thank WO1 RSM Chris Hymas for being so understanding when we had to deploy members of the wedding reception including the best man LCpl 'Geordie' Cairns from his daughter's (Rachel) wedding to LCpl 'Dougie' Douglas. Congratulations on a wedding to remember. With the Squadron command team deploying and running around packing personal kit including YofS Paul 'But I am posted in four weeks' Mehan and the 2IC, and SSM having a good time in France it was left to the capable hands of SSgt Steve ' Which phone shall I answer next' Bartleet, with his team to send the Squadron on its merry way with the SQMS, SSgt Chris Lloyd, covering himself deeper and deeper in 1033's. With the dust finally settling with the deployment of HQ BRITFOR, the deployment of the 5 Bde SAN group followed the next day under the able command of Cpl 'Smooth talking' Richards. The Squadron Techs would just like to say ADMIN DISASTER to FofS Joe Docherty who managed to deploy a week before most of his uniform, it was a good job Sgt Mandy Korchel packed some spare kit along with her leg waxing kit, curling tongs and all those other little comforts. While the majority of the Squadron have been topping up their sun tans the rear party have managed to fit in guards, det maintenance, guards, summer camp, the Dunker Tank and yes more guards. Time has now moved on and people have now started to return to Bulford in dribs and drabs just in time for summer leave and to show off their tans. Finally farewells, hellos and a few new arrivals. Farewell and good luck to YofS Paul 'Gunny' Mehan, Sgt 'Bes' Beswick, LCpl Rich Eveleigh, and LCpl 'Tommo' Thompson who all leave us on postings. Hello to YofS Simone Rouse who deployed straight out to Kosovo (lucky girl), SSgt Shaun 'Where's my Troop' Fairfield, Sgt John Batts, Cpl 'Jenks' Jenkinson, LCpl Wikely and all the new arrivals out of the sausage factory (too many to mention) enjoy your tour boys and girls. Last but by no means least congratulations to Cpl 'DJ' Corcoran and his wife on their new arrival – the sleepless nights start here.

SQUADRON SUMMER CAMP 4-9 JULY 1999

Much effort was placed into arranging a full week of activities for the Squadron Summer camp at Browndown Camp, Gosport. With Portsmouth situated just across the water, the location proved to be an excellent venue for a summer camp. Unperturbed SSgt Sean Fairfield set off with a vague idea that it was near Gosport and with a little nervous navigating by Pte 'Compass' Strattford. Once the camp was 'found' and everyone was accommodated it was down town for a quick recce of the local Nightlife. Sig 'Where am I' Bibby was found the next morning still asleep in the back of the minibus. Activities included Sailing with the aptly named Cpl 'Windy' Gale, Horse riding led by Lt 'Olly' Gardner, Rockclimbing with Cpl 'Taff' Roberts, Mountain Biking with WO2 (SSM) Stu Archer. Hillwalking led by SSgt Sean Fairfield and Windsurfing with SSgt (SQMS) Chris Lloyd. Much fun was had by all, with many gaining much throughout the week. SSgt 'Mr. Windsurf' Lloyd had his patience pushed to the limits, when his protégé (Sig 'I like to swim' Yates), failed to stand upright on the board let alone sail one. Cpl 'John Wayne' Hilton must have thought that he was a actual cowboy, as he managed to go Horseriding three times, each time he did so he was given Jupiter (The barely controllable ex-drum horse of the Household cavalry). Sig 'Carrots' Holdern had a momentous time mountain biking, culminating in her sending her bike through a boy scout camp, writing off a couple of bivvies. The three water babies, Cpl 'Jenks' Jenkinson, LCpl Kirsty Kidd and Sig 'Bracks' Bracken couldn't be stopped whilst out sailing. Each time the boat weighed anchor, no sooner had the anchor hit the water the three water babes followed. SSgt Sean Fairfield managed to find many pubs along the South Downs way but it didn't compare to the amount found by the Mountain bikers. All in all a very good wind down after the recent hard work endured by the Squadron due to the recent deployment to Kosovo. Ex Dunking Rhino was organised by SSgt Steve Bartleet, and it took place, on the first day back from summer camp. SSgt Steve Bartleet found it hard to stop from throwing up whilst in the Dunker Tank. (He'll not be so keen to organise another trip to RNAS Yeovilton)! Sig Ross Ainslie decided to put his lungs to the test by going back for more at least six times, much to the enjoyment of his fellow cabin members. Sig 'Head Banger' Mawer thought he'd test the first aid skills of the tank divers, when he managed to knock himself out. One or two other members of the Squadron (who shall remain nameless), decided to be too scared to even attempt to try it out. The Dunker Tank proved to be of invaluable experience and perhaps will ensure trained personnel's survival if ever placed in a real time situation.

June proved to be an eventful month for SHQ Tp. With three quarters of the Squadron deployed in the Balkans most of us were beginning to feel the pressure of fast balls and regular duties. The month began with a well deserved week of adventure training in Weymouth. The Troop were largely involved in the annual Regimental weekend. Well done to the tug o war drag queen team who decided to turn up dressed as women, apart from SSgt Jase Meek who looked more like a camp Robin Hood. We would have won but where was the 20 stone anchor man?? He was last seen talking to a tree the night before! The weekend closed with a church parade for the old comrades, followed by a quiet social event in the Sgt's Mess where NVQ's were presented to Cpls Adam Burman and Chris Boden. Next time don't put your arm around the Brigadier for a photograph Cpl Burman Well done to all the seniors who went to Blandford for the day to enhance their communication management skills on the Osprey suite. Extra congratulations must go to Lt 'Banana Man' Johnson for being unable to move his Trunk Node all day (next time close down properly Sir!).

Congratulations to LCpl Hayley Moore, Chris Boden and Mick Brown for their promotions to Corporal. Farewells go to SSgt Pete 'I'm sure I've already left' Curtis who has left the troop for 2 Sig Regt to play even more rugby, Cpls Kyle Dickinson, Roger Teasdale and Nick Campbell who have all left for Blandford (good luck on your T1 lads) and finally, yes finally, no really, for the last time, to YofS Eddie Yates who's tour in Kosovo was cut short for his posting to Ireland, and missed out on a medal by eight days so that he could get his leave in. A special mention must go to Cpl Stevie 'I'm never here' Pilmer who has managed to spend more time at Corsham hub than in the Troop since he arrived here last September.

Hellos and welcomes go to Cpl Karl Peters who has come from Blandford to see what a real Regiment is like after spending his six years in the Army training recruits, SSgt YofS Tom Moran and Sig 'Leonardo' Elston who made an explosive arrival. Next time remember on your arrivals form leave the pen picture blank, don't draw a picture of yourself! First operational deployments for LCpl Kev Limbert, LCpl Turner, LCpl Prowse and Cpl Hayley 'Crusher' Moore who whilst day dreaming behind the wheel about meeting her fiancée 'Billy boy', in theatre, inadvertently crushed Sig Jones. Our thoughts are with you guys.

SHARJAH TROOP
Tp Comd Lt A. S. Johnson
Tp SSgt SSgt R. Lang

This month the Troop has been getting on and off that proverbial bus. 'Are we ? or Aren't we going to Kosovo?' Along side that was the annual party cunningly disguised as Summer camp. The Regimental Weekend went off successfully, with everyone getting into the spirit of the event. The Squadron Stall was run by Cpl's Stu Ireland, Paul Lester and Sig Richie Mace, (I've noticed that whenever soldiers are encouraged to wear fancy dress, all the girls frocks, frilly knickers, stockings and suspenders come out of the closet!) It took the shape of stocks and soggy sponges, the Squadron Personnel of Spongerbility got a good soaking by all accounts.

' 'Well the week has gone fast with one thing and another. After our little (not) move across the road and the hours of digging cables in we thought we were here for the next six months. We didn't reckon on Cpl 'Punchy' Punchard and his axe wealding antics. Cpl P decided he wasn't happy with the cable layout and decided to dig some more of the cable in. Sig 'Scraf' Scafton started swinging mercilessly at the ground with a pick. Cpl P concerned for the safety of the cables took the pick and continued the job, only to slice straight through a seven quad. In frustration he then threw the pick at the post office just as the posties were coming out . . . . suffice to say Punchy didn't get any mail that week and the rest of us spent the day digging up all the cables to replace the faulty (cut!) cables. He doesn't know yet but he owes us a few beers for that one.'

MAN TROOP
Tp Comd Lt I. V. I. Hemy
Tp SSgt SSgt S. E. Littlefield

Well, more changes for the Troop – but at least we're used to it. Not only did the OC, Lt 'In need of a tan' Hemy disappear for the majority of June and plenty of July, but she also left the Troop to welcome SSgt 'Justin' Littlefield, and the wannabees from Sharjah and Masirah!. Back from Kosovo we got LCpl 'Feet up in the Sportsman's Bar' Cooper, and from across the road Sigs 'Returned' Drake, 'Chaquille O' Hemming , 'Manc' Murphy and 'Unbelievable Surname' Mortiboys from Sharjah.

Congratulations! Welcome back to the Troop to LCpls 'Ginge' Wheeler and 'Now not going either' Johnson, Sigs 'Baz' Barry and 'Lucky' Carter. At least we gave Sharjah Tp a few vehicles in exchange! By way of celebration, most of the Troop disappeared promptly to the Dunk Tank for a bit of specialist training – an event that would have been well received at the Regimental weekend. The Troop had a week of sun and fun at Wyke Regis, adventure training without the hierarchy, and have even managed to shake them off for a week at Penhale (suspiciously near Newquay).

At time of going to press, we bid farewell to Sig 'Sideways' Murphy and are especially pleased to welcome back Cpl 'windsurfing again' Hoggart. A reluctant farewell to SSgt 'Bullet' Hogg and family, moving to pastures greener (well 1 Div at least). Look forward to seeing you on Ops! Eventually the OC turned up again, no tan but knowing the words to the Canadian National Anthem. At least she has something to show for Ex Iron Rundle.

CAPEL-CURIG 4 - 9 JULY 1999

On Monday 4 July, sixteen eager and excited technicians began the long drive to Capel Curig; Training Centre, Betws-y-Coed, for five days away from work, taking part in a round-robin of hill-walking, climbing, and mountain biking. The weather was fantastic for the whole five days, and everyone became tanned and healthy looking, although there were gripes about scaling the almost vertical mountains in such hot weather. Purely by chance, most of the activities finished at the Ogwen Reservoir cafe, which did a roaring trade in ice-creams and cold drinks. An extra activity organised by Sgt Smith, hill-walking, was a confidence test which involved crawling through a ten metre long fissure in some granite rocks, with barely enough room for standing, let alone breathing.

The nightlife in Betws-y-Coed was sadly lacking, according to all concerned, and it was a great disappointment to find that even the chip shop closed at 2100hrs. To remedy this, the Troop searched further afield for entertainment, and found Llanwrst, a town producing chilli kebabs of such intense heat that even Sgt Scott struggled to eat one. Perhaps the only disappointment of the week was the mountain biking, which was not so much riding, as pushing the bicycles up some of the steepest cycle-paths that any of us have encountered before. Leaving that aside, it was a wonderful week, and everyone enjoyed it.

REGIMENTAL MOTOR TRANSPORT
EXERCISE DRAGON'S TALON

The MT deployed with HQ Squadron on Ex Dragon's Talon on Sunday 6 June 1999. The first night was spent on the airfield to quickly test our skills before deploying to 21 Sig Regt (AS) in Colerne the next day. Our duties included laying the local lines and providing POL when required. The cobwebs were blown out and for some of the new lads there was a chance to see how things should or should not be done. Everything seemed to go well and before we knew it we were packed up and on our way to sunny England and Colerne. Well most of us anyway. Sig Carl 'Frank Skinner' Slater made ten miles before overheating but the short distance record went to Cpl Andy 'Have you seen my bike yet?' Dawson who could only manage six miles before a fan belt problem delayed him for a day. At 1500hrs on Monday 7 June 1999 the first of four packets started to roll into Colerne and were more than happy to be located inside one of the hangars. Once the urban cam was dropped we set to work on the local lines where Sig Paul 'Scouse ... etc..etc' Caddick came in to his own showing a willingness to work, to think for himself, to use common sense and his fear of heights-all of which were promptly stamped out after a couple of hours. Once set up, our duties quickly changed to manning the guard post and the Exchange. A busy four days followed. Our next move took place on Friday 11 June 1999 to Salisbury Plain where we would lose such luxuries as showers, urban cam and a good roof over our heads. Once set up in our new location we quickly resumed our guard duties, only to be dragged off them on Saturday morning to take part in some well organized events such as vehicle reversing and manoeuvring. Sig Scott 'Ernie' Wise simply would not be beaten by the 'reversing a trailer into the garage' test, until he was physically beaten and pulled from the landrover so others could try! In the afternoon the event was cross-country driving organized by Sgt Jim 'Shamus' McNabb where the, 'Whose got the muddiest rover?' competition obviously began. After some scary moments from Sig Carl 'two wheels' Slater we decided to return to our Echelon while we still could, to exchange stories and mutual praise.

On Sunday a five mile map reading and patrol test was organised much to the JOY of the lads. That night a successful rolling replen was carried out by the POL team led by Cpl Andy '2 wheels are better than 4' Dawson, where LCpl Andy Hawkes answered this question; 'What is the immediate action on pulling into a rolling replen?'

a) Don helmet, weapon and webbing and proceed to fill your vehicle, then move on.
b) Grab your gun, scunter to the conveniently parked NAAFI wagon and order a bacon butty. (Answers to:- N.O. Clue@sorehead. ouch.).

Needless to say, LCpl Andy 'I've earned this!' Hawkes got it wrong! Monday came and clay pigeon shooting was the event of the morning. Initial worries of not having enough clays were soon thrown aside after watching the first set of shooters, though Sig Carl Potter surprised us all by reaching the finals, only to come second to 'the dashingly handsome and highly intelligent' Cpl Jason 'Line Commander' Dukes. In the afternoon the chefs were busy supervising the three teams taking part in a master chef competition where the MT team only managed a disappointing third place, but 'Who cares?', no compo in sight. Monday soon turned in to Tuesday and at 1100hrs a hasty move was called and successfully carded out. We were racing towards our ERY only to be greeted with the sweet word 'endex', and some 'top grub' from our chefs, and then in was straight down to Bulford camp for some hard earned rest before the long drive back to Brawdy.

QUARTERMASTER'S TECHNICAL DEPARTMENT
QM (T) Capt Neil Turnbull
RQMS (T) WO2 (RQMS) Daz Newton

Firstly we would like to bid farewell to Maj Tom Dean who has recently moved across to take the post of QM (G) (easy life)! Welcome to Capt Neil Turnbull who has recently arrived from 40 Sig Regt, Belfast. We would like to wish LCpl John Blowes and Helen all the best for their future in marital bliss. Congratulations to Sig Becky Connor on the recent birth of baby Rhys. On the 3rd July the Department set out on their yearly (well first in a long time) adventure training week. This year's destination being The Royal Marine Barracks Chivenour Water Sports Club, including a sight-seeing tour of the local area with our own personal guide, Sgt Tony Bland RLC. The first day we took kayaks, surfboards and bodyboards to the local beach. On arrival the waves were looking agreeable for surfing. SSgt Dave Marchment and SSgt Darren Abson had a different idea and took out the kayaks - wrong idea; this they found out after being washed up, upside down, heads in the sand beneath a wave. That was the last time SSgt Dave Marchment got in a kayak again all week, will he over come the fear next year? Cpl Dai Lewis soon got to grips with surfing, well in straight lines anyway, but didn't quite master the fine art of turning as Sig Caz Baddeley found out as he rode over her head whilst she was trying to bodyboard. Cpl Chris Coward and Sig Paul Caine managed to sink their Canadian canoe; the mystery was why they felt the need to hang on to the canoe's side for safety when only in chest deep water.

SQUADRON HEADQUARTERS TROOP

Hello from the newly formed SHQ Tp, born from the various Troops in 226 Sig Sqn. At last we have all the support trades under one roof. Our Troop motto is now, 'No job too big, no job too small, with SHQ Tp on call!'. A big hello to our new boss WO2 (FoS) Huw Phillips who has just come from the Army Technical Support Agency (ATSA), Malvern. Also to Cpl Andy 'I am not small' Paul from 16 Sig Regt, Cpl 'Your joking aren't yer' Lewis from 280 Sig Sqn and LCpl 'Give her no money' Ward from 1 (UK) ADSR. Also welcome to the real world to Sig 'Barrier tech' Lloyd and Sig 'Cheese and Owen' Jones who are both straight from Blandford. Fond farewells to WO2 (FofS) Briers who has gone to 4 Armd Bde. Also farewell to Cpl 'Pete Joey Morris' Byrne who is off to 640 Troop. Last but certainly not least good luck to Sig 'Butch, there's nothing wrong with gwar' Chester who has made the big step and became a civilian. The Troop celebrated its formation with a day out karting/Wacky racing at Letterston. Cheating prevailed for LCpl 'Doc Dastardly' Dixon who had a dodgy win and basically stole the chequered flag from Cpl 'Penelope pitstop' Lewis. At least if Penelope had won he would have shared the bottle of bubbly, unlike LCpl 'Scrooge' Dixon who said the champagne would make an ideal present for his wife.

640 SIGNAL TROOP
Tp Comd Lt Ben White
Tp SSgt SSgt Frank Flaherty

A relatively quiet period for the Troop in the way of Operational and Exercise commitments, the only major deployment being to Carmarthen for a day out go-karting. Congratulations to Cpl 'Dale' Denton for hurtling his way into first place and stealing it from many overawed racers. A couple of sporting events to be mentioned, firstly, the Regiment organised the Royal Signals Corps Orienteering Championship 1999 at Pembray. WO2 Andy Jensen and 640 Tp shouldered most of the logistical and administrative support task. The Regiment recently entered a tug of war team in the Morrison Cup, 3 & 5 Div, Army and Inter Corps Championships. If this was not enough, they then took part in the tug of war competition at the Royal Tournament. Those who took part included LCpl Jamie Young, particular congratulations should be extended to Cpls 'Lance' Beaton and 'Simmo' Simpson who represented the Royal Corps of Signals and successfully won a silver medal in the 680kg class.

A few hellos to be mentioned, firstly to Sgt Dave Scanlan, who proved the Intelligence Corps are aptly named when attempting to put on his racing helmet back to front on the go-karting day, to Cpl Pete Byrne on an inter troop posting, LCpl 'Matt' Gerrard from WUN1 and Sig Gaz McDonald from Blandford. Farewells to Cpl Richie Bretherick who went to the LEWT and subsequently off to Kosovo, congratulations on being pre selected for promotion to sergeant and also to LCpl 'Smudge' Smith who will be promoted to Corporal on posting to 16 Air Assault Bde. Socially the Squadron has just had a barbecue at Nolton Haven, enjoyed by all those who went. Congratulations to Sig Steve Woodrow on his recent marriage to Diana, and good luck this month to LCpl Phil Foyle with his marriage to Beverly.

ROMEO TROOP
Tp Comd Lt Hervoire Scott

A fairly hectic period for the Troop started with the Regimental exercise to RAF Innsworth, however, for the Northern Group this was a lot less arduous than for Southern Group. The Exercise was intended to test HQ Squadron's ability to resupply troops in the field over distance. We fulfilled this commitment by performing a rolling resup at Ashchurch in the dead of night and requesting nothing. Following a weekend off the Troop headed off on their annual pilgrimage to RAF Waddington to cover the air show. Beady Eye again showed its true colours by deciding not to work and refusing to be fixed when it was most needed. Joking apart we did actually improve the operators knowledge, especially for the newer operators from Hotel Tp. On the social front the Troop enjoyed a day out at Hetherton to go paint balling. On approaching the gaming area and with the warning 'Don't fire at someone unless they are wearing their mask' still fresh in their minds, LCpl Dave Drummond (245 Sig Sqn) loosened off a single round with deadly accuracy and struck Sgt Chris 'I'm not fat, I'm festively plump' Dunn squarely on his rather rotund rump, causing much hilarity. One kill and the game hadn't even started. The leaving do for SSgt Steve 'I wish I'd stuck to coke' Jacklin at the Waterfront Mexican was a roaring success even if he couldn't remember much about it. Goodbyes go out to SSgt Dave White on his impending trip to Bosnia, Cpl Nikki Dawson who is off to Kosovo and Cpl Lee Holmes who has managed to get a nice long course complete with a ticket to freedom. A hearty welcome back to Cpl Mark Hopkins back from Bosnia and Cpl Paul Browne from Kosovo. Finally on the sporting front, two outstanding performances by Cpl Mark 'Defend the wicket' Hopkins and Cpl John Pankliurst couldn't rescue the Squadron who lost a tight and keenly contested cricket final to 237 Sig Sqn.

SQUADRON OPERATIONS

There have been several comings and goings with the Sqns Ops team. SSgt (YofS) Phil Tonks leaves us on promotion and we welcome SSgt (YofS) 'Taff' Thornas to the busiest job in the Corps. Also recently arrived is the new Ops WO, WO2 'Micke-e' Osborne and SSgt 'Shuggie' Hughes - a Tech Staffy doing a good impression of a FofS. Also in the cell are SSgt 'Edmund' Blackadder and SSgt 'Resettlement' Gordon who between them spend more time away from the Squadron than in it. The Ops Team have just returned from an Exercise recce to Kenya where they have been planning weird and wonderful EW scenarios.

VICTOR TROOP
Tp Comd WO Bob Matthews Royal Australian Signals
Tp SSgt SSgt Tony Watters

Farewells and congratulations to Cpl Paul Petrie, who is off to Chicksands on promotion to instruct in the wonderful world of Optec. Hello and farewell to Sig Willie Hayes, just back from a tour in Bosinia and now off to Northern Ireland and congratulations on his engagement to his girlfriend of about five minutes. Finally, farewell to Sig Brian Martin, who has moved eastwards to 30 Sig Regt. Welcome to Sgt Stan Buxton, INT CORPS, on arrival from 9 Sig Regt and straight in as the new SQMS. Welcome also to Sig Mick Reeve on arrival from training at Blandford. Do not fear, it will get better! Welcomes back to the Troop after an arduous tour on the hill tops in Bosnia for Cpl's Zoe Wainwright and Danny Wilkins who were also promoted in theatre. And an extra congratulations to Danny on his engagement to LCpl Emma Dobbs, formally of 226 Sig Sqn. It just goes to show that everyone wants to be a part of 237! Also, welcome back to Cpls Mick Haltam and Mark Wright on their safe return form Kosovo as part of General Jackson's Hit Squad.

The Squadron held the Summer Do at The Mariners in Nolton Haven on Thursday 1 July. The majority of personnel turned up in fancy dress, which was as characters from tacky Australian soaps. There was an excellent turn-out, especially the Troop OC who just came as himself. Willie Hayes decided to get extremely emotional about leaving all his friends behind and later attempted to break the world record for the longest time on a gyroscope. Unfortunately he ended up in Withybush A&E department with burst blood vessels in both eyes. Never mind Willie, I'm sure you will be missed. A big thank you and well done to Cpls 'Sven' Gronn and 'Foxy' Slater for organising the event.

A two day trip up the mountain for the Troop started as it was destined to carry on. Sgt 'Taff' Willumsen turned up for his first day in the Troop, packed his kit in ten minutes and was off. The Exercise started after the 'Spec Op malia' proved they do spend all day in the MT playing darts by beating the 'Down-trodden Linguists' by an overwhelming score. While the Troop assembled in the local haunt SSgt 'Gucci' Watters was nowhere to be found. It became apparent that when geographically challenged somewhere near Snowdonia the responsible UEL had reached for his mini Magellen but had lost the instruction manual. At this stage I think it is safe to say that our illustrious leader was lost!

KILO TROOP

For those who may have served with Kilo Tp in days distant, the demise of the Bromure has seen the disbandment of the Troop. Contributions should be forwarded to WO2 Jimmy 'Bromure' Speirs or to the Royal Signals Museum Jamming Section.

TANGO TROOP
Tp Comd 2Lt Phil Waddell
Tp SSgt Sgt Del Woods

Hellos and farewells: first of all we would like to say our hello's to our new Tp OC, 2Lt Waddell who I'm sure will enjoy his stay here as he did volunteer to come to the Regiment, and to Sig Hancock who has seen the error of his ways and transferred from the infantry to our beloved Corps. We are also entertaining Sig Slater, one of the SAT's (Soldier Awaiting Training) who is here to learn about the real Army. We have lost a few of the Troop due to Regimental commitments in Kosovo, LCpl 'Spik' Lane, LCpl 'Clubby' Clubb and Sig 'Big Dave' Terron, not forgetting all those in Bosnia - we hope those sun tans are coming along a treat.

LEWT
Tp Comd Capt Craig Thomson-Smith
Tp SSgt SSgt Ollie Campbell

A hectic few months for the LEWT which saw the troop deploy at the beginning of June in support of 5 Airborne Brigade on Op Agricola. After initial preparations in Macedonia, the Troop advanced with the lead elements of 5 Airborne Brigade through Kosovo and were the first to reach Pristina airport. On arrival the Troop was boxed in by the Russians and after two days of intense negotiations, the Troop were tasked with subsequent operations. During this time Cpl Mick Haltam showed off his trade skills to the full as he translated between the local Russian commander and the Brigadier of 5 Airborne Brigade. Both teams and the command post had their fair share of excitement which included the finding of some graves, numerous UXO's and a few barstool contact stories. Amongst many other memorable moments SSgt Ollie Campbell used various unorthodox hand signals to indicate the route home for a Serb T72 Convoy. In addition Sgt 'Blue Watch' England managed to set fire to his rover which Cpl Mick Haltam sorted out for him. After thirty days of tasking, LEWT were relieved by other assets and returned via Thessalonika to the UK

Congratulations to Sgt 'Fireman Sam' England, Cpl 'Uncertain' Burton and Cpl 'Greek God of Comms' Mount on selection for promotion. Congratulations also to Capt Craig 'Diplomacy' Thomson-Smith on his promotion and good luck in his posting to ATR Bassingbourn. The Troop is now busy preparing and training for Ex Bright Star 1999 in Egypt and apologies to those loaded on the planned LEWT cadre course which was cancelled for operational reasons. Plans are afoot to run a cadre early in the Millennium.

MOTOR TRANSPORT SECTION
MT Sgt Sgt Dave Keenan
MT Cpl Cpl Stanley-Jones

The Troop would like to welcome Sig Keith Barrows into the fold after a short spell at Her Majesty's displeasure. A sad farewell to Sig 'Billy' Buist who is off to pastures greener, he hopes, in Scotland. Thanks for all your hard work and good luck. LCpl Seth Campbell has been away more than he has been here, having just completed the DDI course at Leconsfield and is now ready to continue training the Squadron boxing team. Sgt 'Skull' Keenan is also away on another course and in his absence Cpl Clark Stanley-Jones, with a hyphen assumes control with a rod of steel and three darts.

SSM WO2 (SSM) Fisher

More changes in the Lines. We say farewell and the best of luck to a Brawdy institution... Maj Guy Owen. After three years here in Haverfordwest we wish all the best to Guy, Charlotta, Georgia and Timothy. Also welcome to our new Troopie 2Lt Ian Rodger fresh from Blandford. Congratulations go to Sgt 'Scoobie' Beckett and Gwen on the birth of their daughter Abigail. Other notable events in the last few months included a sound effort from the Regiment Dinghy Sailing Team. At the Army Sailing Association Inter-unit Championships at Netley Sailing Centre the team succeeded in making it through to the finals only to be pipped at the post by 42 Regt RA. The team of three Bosun Dinghies were crewed by Capt Graham Ingram, WO2 (YofS) Taff Owens, Sgt Thorpe, LCpl Green, Sig Milner and Sig Waters.

WHISKEY TROOP
Tp Comd Lt Stewart
Tp SSgt SSgt Clarke

June saw the Troop deploying to RAF Innsworth on Ex Dragon's Talon, where a vigorous week of military training was undertaken. The majority of the Troop managed to achieve marksman on the 7 iron, the preferred weapon of choice on the Innsworth 9 Hole Training Area. Welcome back to Lt 'Marm' Stewart who rejoins the Troop from skiing training in Switzerland on a flying visit. The Troop bid a farewell to Capt 'Caveman' Crapper who has moved on to greater things at ATR Bassingbourn, and Sgt Rob 'Chinny' Tubbs and LCpl 'Moon face' Kelly who have both now traded in their uniforms to become civvies. Hello's go to LCpl Karen Gunn who joins our merry bunch from 1 ADSR and Sgt Carl Elliott who joins us from Cyprus. Congratulations go to Sgt Bernie 'Roundabout' Topham on the birth of his son and on his marriage to Carol Anne.

ZULU TROOP
Tp Comd 2Lt I. Rodger
Tp SSgt SSgt Si Donnelly

Finally the Troop managed to deploy out of Wales on Ex Dragon's Talon. We were let loose in our armour on SPTA. On our return to Wales we once again began the hum drum process of preparing our armour for its stay in the out of use Troop. The Troop would like to congratulate SSgt Si Donnelly on his recent marriage to Nicky, Cpl Jase Quilter on being selected for promotion and Sig Sarah Musson on being promoted to Lance Corporal. The Troop bids a sad farewell to Cpl Jase Quilter off to sunny Cyprus and to LCpl Tony 'YO' Gallagher to 30 Sig Regt. The Troop would like to extend a hearty welcome to 2Lt 'Wodger' Rodger who takes over the reins (we hope you last longer than the last one, Sir!) and to Sigs Garth Crooks, Martin Pearce and 'Alton' Towers, all of whom are fresh out of the factory.

REGIMENTAL CRICKET TOUR - 12-16 JULY 1999
by Cpl D. Whatmough

This tour saw a half-experienced, half-thrown-together squad of 15 men embark on a tour encompassing five games in four days, using Bulford Camp as our base. 12 July and 13 July saw 14 Sig Regt win games against ATSA(M) at Malvern and Upavon Support Unit comfortably. On 14 July, despite beating 158 Provost Coy RMP at Tidworth in the morning, we lost to 11 Sig Regt by 25 runs in the afternoon. Despite this loss on paper, we had still won the moral -victory a last minute 'ringer' not on the initial team-sheet (J. Sullivan) being thrown on as seventh batsman. (their sixth Corps player on the field). On 15 July we went on to beat 3 Fd Wkshp REME at Tidworth Oval, coming back from a very shaky batting innings to make it a total of four victories from five games in four days.

Special mentions must go to Team Captain, Cpl John 'Whirlwind' Winwood for excellent coaching, motivation and all-round cricket skills, Capt Rich 'David' Bailey as tour and team photographer, Cpl Dean 'Sledger' Mills for legspin bowling the Aussie way and good solid performances, WO2 Nigel 'Pastie Hands' Watton and SSgt Frank 'Admin-Monster' Flaherty for bravely keeping the wicket facing John Winwood, Sgt Stan 'Dead Swan' Buxton for his perfection of the 'dying swan' impression, Andy 'Fashion Police' Loveridge for being such a wholehearted player (copyright the Western Telegraph), WO2 Julian 'Angry' Axhorn, Cpl Craig 'ysl' Hall and LCpl Daz 'Stella-Butt' Edge for consistent fielding and bowling; LCpls 'Brummie' Brumfield and Jamie 'Bleeding' Young for consistent morale boosts, and Cpl Daz 'I've got an average of four now' Whatmough for simply turning up! Special thanks must go to Capt Rich Bailey as OIC tour and token Intelligence Corps officer, SSgt Frank Flaherty for his infallible admin and organisation, Andy Loveridge for taking a paid week off work, John Winwood for his boundless enthusiasm, encouragement and ability to break the oppositions' fingers, WO2 Julian Axhorn for his 'controlled' (or was it?) aggression on the pitch, and last, but by no means least, the five teams who hosted us for the four day duration.

EXERCISE GOCH DRAGON
ADVENTURE TRAINING IN THE COLORADO ROCKIES
by Sig Danny Watson

The group roughing it in the Lost Creek Wilderness

On the 11 July 1999, seven members of 14 Sig Regt (EW) departed on Ex Goch Dragon to Colorado, USA. The aim was to climb Mount Massive and Mount Elbert - both peaks being over 14000 feet above sea level. Once we arrived in America we proceeded to Fort Carson, an American Forces' base, which was to be our base camp and home for the Exercise period. The initial acclimatisation period was carried out in a mountain region called the Crags, with the highest range being between 10000 and 11000 feet. During this period the group got to know each other, especially Cpl 'Skippy' Roach and his stories from around the globe. The next phase of the Exercise over the period 15-18 July was spent in an area called Lost Creek Wilderness, where we spent on average six hours a day hill walking, passing such things as old derelict gold mines and wooden shacks. Over the 40 miles covered during these four days we met numerous strange people including one man who thought he was Davey Crockett, and a wide range of other local groups.

On finishing the four day trip we returned to base camp where we replenished stores and cleaned equipment ready for the six day expedition which was the next phase of the exercise. We departed on the 21st to climb Mt Massive which took the group three days and two nights. Some of this first climb was quite hard due to the altitude difference, but Sig 'Jonah' Jones and Cpl Kev Roach kept morale high. We could always rely on them for a laugh. On reaching the peak at 14421ft we immediately did the British thing - Sigs 'Baz' McGeachy and Ryan Parker had the kettle on for a brew. We could see our next objective Mt Elbert from the top and realised it would be a long walk. We proceeded on the ten mile trek before setting up base camp. In this area we passed an area called Twin lakes which was very picturesque, this is where Americans come for a 'VACATION'.

The next day we walked just up to the 12000ft point, being kept amused by Lt Ben White's knowledge of rock formations. We passed a river on the way to get to our camp site, in which SSgt Tony Watters decided to have a bath even though the water temperature was just above freezing. Next morning we packed up and prepared to go up and over Mount Elbert at 14433ft. On reaching the peak, it was just like getting to the top of Snowdon as there were many people admiring the view and taking pictures. From where we were stood you could see Leadville, the highest town in America which is also where the programme South Park was based. We then proceeded back to camp on the 26th. We also found the time to visit the local town Colorado Springs where the locals were more than friendly, and some of the group went white water rafting before we flew back to England on 27 July.

14 SIGNAL REGIMENT (EW) FEMALE ATHLETICS TEAM
by Cpl Z. Dolan

14 Sig Regt kicked the athletics season off with the Army Inter-Units competition held at Blandford. where they put the training into practice, with LCpl 'Shadie Adie' Farley doing exceptionally well by winning the javelin. With plenty of enthusiasm 14 Sig Regt girls made it through to the Army Semi Finals. Despite the noticeable lack of teams due to operational commitments, the competition from those who attended made up for it. JT 'Jek' Westley kept the morale up for the girls by putting some excellent effort into the 1500m. WO1 Harry Few also did well with plenty of support on the discus. After a fulfilling day the girls went back chuffed to know they were in the Army Finals. At last the nerves settled down when turning up to the very plush Aldershot Military Stadium for the Army Finals. The competition was buzzing with pro-athletes, although there was still a friendly atmosphere. Sig 'Lanky legs' Milner made an ace third place in the high jump, Sig 'Midget' Quinn stuck out the 5000m under the blazing sun. There was great support and sportsmanship from all the girls including Cpl 'Chunk-a-lunka' Dolan who finally managed to improve her technique at the 100m hurdles to come fourth. All in all, it was again a brilliant year for athletics and hopefully next will be even more successful.

PRINCESS ROYAL DAY - REGIMENTAL TREASURE HUNT
by SSgt (SQMS) King

By way of marking Princess Royal Day, it was decided to hold a Regimental Treasure Hunt and this was superbly organised by Sgt Jase Goldsworthy. The basic idea was that teams would have to navigate their way around a set route of approximately 70 miles in their private cars, and on the way answer set questions and solve problems, all within the legal speed limits. Well, it sounded easy enough! At the allotted times, teams were given their navigation packs consisting of a set of instructions; some traces, a whole host of grid references, 20 or so seemingly random questions and a rather ominous DM5 piece. We then had an hour to sort ourselves out before embarking on the great adventure.

We were seen off under the watchful eyes of Sgt Jase Goldsworthy and Cpl 'Tommo' Thompson, who watched in wonder as Cpl Wayne Stainthorpe and crew managed to turn in the completely wrong direction out of camp, his hour of preparation had obviously been well spent! After only two miles the next sight to greet the competitors was that of WO2 (SSM) 'Dusty' Miller and WO2 (RQMS) Jim Alger clad in leather standing at the side of the road in a scene reminiscent of a Village People video. WO2 Miller's role was to point a speed gun at approaching traffic with an expression and stance that gave the impression he wished it was a real gun. Meanwhile WO2 Alger just touted for business in the background with a red and white hanky protruding from the appropriate pocket, well that is what it looked like anyway!

Out of the 23 competing teams, 21 received a 10 minute penalty, one went within the speed limit and the other under the navigational skill of Cpl Jules Portlock had decided on a completely different route which waving off the competitors in true 'Top Gear' fashion

avoided speed traps and, rather unfortunately, check points. The speed trap firmly behind us we were free to get lost at what ever pace suited us, many teams were able to practice their three point turns with alarming regularity, but progress was made, by most at least. At the half way point the River Rhine loomed large without any sign of a bridge but an obliging car ferry steamed into view. It soon became apparent what the DM5 was for, which would have been fine, if that is what the cost of travelling on the ferry was. Waiting for the ferry also gave the slower teams a chance to catch up with the likes of Sgt Adi Haslain, who had set off first from camp, now finding himself tenth in the queue, having taken the scenic route. After the ferry, we finally had a stretch of Autobahn with no speeding restrictions. Maj Taylor got his first taste of what it is like to travel in excess of twice the national UK speed limit, he also got a taste of what its like to be travelling at 140mph when a truck pulls out without warning and can say with conviction how effective ABS breaking really is!

After some three hours of driving the first of the teams were arriving back at the Regimental Club, the Wall and Willow, on JHQ trying to make sense of their answer sheets before handing them in and stopping the clock. There were the inevitable debates about exactly what the answers should have been and there was a surreal discussion about when is a flag not a flag, but such trivialities were soon forgotten as the beer flowed and the barbecue devoured. With all the teams bar one returned, we had a phone call from the PMS team, (Pam, Melanie and Sam) who were already at the car ferry, they were instructed not to bother with the rest of the route but to make their way straight back. In the meantime it was decided to have the prize giving. Second place went to Cpl Mick Beeson ably navigated by Sig Edwards, their claim to fame was achieving the highest speed on the Autobahn section of the course, their other claim was that they got lost in Düsseldorf, somewhat negating their first achievement. The winners were 'The Old Gits', brilliantly driven by SSgt Ray King (the author), navigated without fault by Maj Taylor (his OC) and the odd word of encouragement from Sig Paul McIntyre who had been neatly folded on to the back seat. The consolation prize, for the most miles done, went to Cpl Jules Portlock and Co. The beer continued to flow as much as the tales of what might have been, 'If only we hadn't missed that turn!' As the bar closed and people walked home, the PMS team returned. Navigating a direct route back to camp from the outskirts of Düsseldorf, for a team that had spent four hours or more to reach the half way point on a three hour route, was never going to be as easy as it sounded. At least they tried!

LOMBARDIA PATROL COMPETITION - by Cpl Nuttley

The Lombardia Patrol competition is an annual event held in Luino, Italy. The aims are to:

a. Maintain strong relationships between reserve and units of the Italian armed forces.
b. Maintain strong relationships between reserve and units of the armed forces of allied and friendly countries.
c. Exercise units in peace support operations, specifically that of peacekeeping.

It was indeed a very early start to the day on the 17 June 1999 that the team, comprising of WO2 (SSM) Miller, Cpl Nuttley, Sig Edwards and Sig Parry assembled at Krefeld Lines. Accompanied by LCpl Dickenson who had volunteered to be the team's driver for the event, knowing that he would have to do nothing more strenuous than sit in a driver's seat, he was a very contented man. After a quick check that all necessary equipment and documentation was loaded onto the transport we departed. After a good ten hours travelling and several stops en route we found ourselves in Luino a small town near Lake Magdioro surrounded by some magnificent mountains although our immediate thoughts were of the tab commencing within the next 24 hours.

All too quickly Friday morning was upon us and we busied ourselves booking in with the competition organisers and finding our feet. After the orders group and briefing during the evening we went back to our hotel and went through the mass of information regarding the competition. It was indeed some hours later that we all got our heads down in preparation for the next day. Saturday started very early with a wake up call at 0400hrs and a start time of 0455hrs. The initial phase consisted of checking that we had the right equipment and understood the orders. All went well. From there it was on to Stage 2, a short bus ride to the firing range for some CQB where all the team managed to hit all of their targets. From then on we were on foot tabbing up the mountains. The remaining stands, a total of ten took the team eight hours to complete the whole competition having climbed several large hills/mountains and some 35-40km in distance. Our military knowledge was tested in just about every conceivable way from tactics to NBC and first aid. At one point even Sig Edwards broke into a sweat! The competition was totally enjoyed by all participants and was a good mix of both learning equipment that we had not touched before and putting into practice what we already knew. The day ended in a rather large party in the main square, where just about the entire town turned out. Much fun was had by all despite being in Service Dress. Sunday was spent recouperating having completed the final parade and not really understood how the presentations could be made, when the final results had not yet been compiled? However we managed sixth out of 73 and had the best time for the tabbing phase. We all managed a little sight seeing, a cultural visit to Milan and time in the town of Luino.

EXERCISE FAST TRACK 1999 – The Regimental Cadre Course

The time had arrived again to find the 'best of the best of what was left!' The Regiment's best junior ranks that had not deployed into Theatre were to take part in Ex Fast Track 99, the Commanding Officers Cadre Course. The Ex was spread over two arduous weeks consisting of 80 40-minute teaching periods and two field exercise phases. The aim was to assess junior ranks within 16 Sig Regt for selection to the next highest rank. The course began with three intake tests for the whole course. After some 'interesting' results the tuition began. The first week was mainly held in the Training Wing, covering a variety of subjects such as NBC, First Aid, Leadership Principles, Tactics and Map Reading.

As well as the class work, the course was put through their paces on the Drill Square. After a morning No2 Dress inspection by WO2 (SSM) Miller the course spent two periods practising drill. Everyone performed well, but LCpl Kismul stood out as the next 'RSM' with an outstanding drill voice. Also thrown into the packed programme for the first week was one PT period every day. Starting at the Gym the PT normally consisted of a testing 5km run carrying webbing and wearing boots. The end of the first week saw the start of the exercise phase deploying to Arsbeck Training Area to put into practice what had been taught in class. The first phase ended with a 4km log race and well done to Sect 2 who were the clear winners. We all deployed to Haltern Training Area for the testing phase of the exercise. Each course member was given a command task to complete and was assessed on how they achieved their task, their orders given and how they performed during the whole Exercise. On the whole the course performed extremely well under the test conditions, considering the lack of sleep. Among the tasks given were harbour area set up, ration resupply under fire and close target recces. The course then went back to the classroom to take their final exams, First Aid, NBC, Map Reading and Tactics, before practising their Final Pass Off Parade, which was to be held on the last day of the course. Well done to every one involved. The final results were as follows:

Overall Top Student	Sig Teasdale
Top Field Soldier	Sig McGuckin
Best Academic	Sig Jenkins
Best Endeavour	Sig Horton

EXERCISE GREEN GAMBIT 1999
THE REGIMENTAL PATROL CAMP

Ex Green Gambit is the Regiment's annual military exercise, run this year in the Sauerland region. The basis of the exercise was a Patrol Competition, with ten sections and ten checkpoints. The checkpoints were permanently manned and consisted of a command task which was either physical, mental, or a combination of both. Sections would start at separate checkpoints at the beginning of the Exercise and then march/navigate two checkpoints a day. The competition was scored on time taken between checkpoints and points scored on each command task. Sections completed legs of around 20kms a day in good time as confidence and experience was gained in map reading. However, a small detour of approximately 15km by one section, and a short cut which added 40mins to another Section's time were hard felt. Stands included a command task, canoeing, recognition, vehicle recovery, 'sheep herding' over an obstacle course, first aid, a weapons stand using NVGs, observation, stalking, and a Radio Relay mast run and set-up. And if that wasn't enough, there was night navigation, some early morning starts and a couple of Mensa tests thrown in.

'What do you mean another three days?'
Sig Sandy and Sgt Oldroyd
see the funny side whilst the others avert their eyes

After a few days of hard graft, slogging the distance each day a one team had a little brain wave 'why carry our Bergens?' So after finding a child's cart their efforts were greatly reduced, even though the rough terrain that was being crossed meant the cart didn't last that long! Good idea lads but no cigar!

A week later and on completion of all ten stands, sections moved to their pick up points where they were driven to EXCON, which was located in a German Kaserne. All sections had a well-earned shower, and a barbecue, where the prize for the best section overall was awarded by the 21C Regiment. Hearty congratulations to WO2 (YofS) Stu Hartshorne and the Stand DS for providing a superb exercise, everyone is leaping at the thought of what will be conjured up next year.

STAND 10 CANOEING - THE STAND ON EVERYONE'S LIPS

by SSgt Hawkins

'Stand 10' was situated by the side of the impressive Lake Biggesee, in the beautiful surroundings of the Hock Sauerland Kreis. The original brief was to set up a task that would 'get the soldiers wet' and include the use of canoes or boats. Given this wide-ranging scenario, it was decided to develop a role-playing theme for this stand. This involved SSgt Nick Hawkins 'Jacques' and SSgt (FofS) Jamie Harper 'Pierre' of the French Resistance briefing the visiting sections as to how to obtain the grid reference to the Resistance HQ, all done with truly authentic accents, NOT, (the next command task).

'Pierre and Jacques' explaining the test in Pigeon English

The grid was locked in a BDS container secured with a combination lock; the numbers of which were scattered about the area of the lake. Under the guidance of the Resistance, sections paddled off in two's to obtain the numbers, once located they would return to the BDS located on the shoreline and use the numbers hopefully in the correct sequence, to crack the code and successfully open the BDS. The winning section being the one who opened the box the quickest. Due to the nature of the stand, it was extremely successful and enjoyed by all those who attempted it and although most stayed dry, Sig Sadler managed to go in the drink not once but twice!

EXERCISE TARTAN VENTURA - VISIT OF MANCHESTER ACF

by Cpl Mick Durrant

The Regiment hosted a group of enthusiastic Army Cadets from the Manchester area for a two-week summer camp in Rheindahlen. Cpls Mick Durrant and Dave Sawyers were appointed to be guardian angels for their stay. After a day's orientation around the camp, we deployed in the field for three days, learning different subjects from navigation to tactics. The cadets were at various levels of ability: the four stars had a good knowledge of many of the subjects taught, however, the survival stand set up by SSM 'Grizzly Adams' Miller and YofS 'Crocodile Dundee' Hartshorne was of great interest to them all. One Cadet in particular impressed the DS. Cdt Wood, the youngest and least experienced of them, under the guidance of Sgt Kit Knight became the best shot out of the group. Cpl Chris Binnington also noticed his ability to take on board any and all information thrown at him – Cdt Wood was an information sponge! On completion of the Exercise the weekend was spent at Phantasialand, and the Garrison Blue Pool.

Monday, Week Two, was spent at RAF Bruggen. Where they went through various lessons and command tasks although the standard of some lessons was poor. For example, according to the RAF, the aim of camouflage and concealment is to blend in with your surroundings and look like a tree: well, you the reader decide.

A day of canoeing under the instruction of SSgt Nick Hawkins had, for some reason, rather a lot of DS visitors? I won't say why but it had nothing to do with the weather, although it was very hot! Due to the sun many of the cadets were a little red and a little lethargic for the last couple of days which were spent learning a little about the Radio Relay Detachment, and then completing any last minute shopping. Although the Regiment is on an operational tour in Kosovo we managed to give the Cadets a great time, and they are keen to return next year. The enjoyment, interest and excitement of the Cadets makes any attachment extremely worthwhile and rewarding. Every unit should take up the opportunity to promote our Corps to a wider audience.

252 SIGNAL SQUADRON

The Squadron would like to say a fond farewell to the following people – Good luck and thanks:

Sig Dennison

We hope you enjoy your tour with us!!

21 SIGNAL REGIMENT (AIR SUPPORT)

REGIMENTAL HEADQUARTERS

CO	Lt Col John Terrington
RSM	WO1 John Williams

POST-SDR REORGANISATION - 21 SIGNAL REGIMENT (AS)

During September 1999, the Regiment will have undergone the first changes to its ORBAT following SDR and R SIGNALS restructuring. 220 Sig Sqn in Germany disbanded, in Germany, with a formal parade and the transfer of personnel to 16 and 30 Sig Regt, to form two new deployable Telemech troops. The Squadron reforms in Colerne, in its new Air Support role, providing the second (of three) Air Support Signal Squadrons. In addition, on 1 September 1999, 81 Sig Sqn (V) will formally transfer to 2 (NC) Sig Bde, under CO ACISG. At the time of writing these Wire notes, these events have not yet happened! A full report will be included in the next edition of The Wire, with photographs of the parades, marking this significant phase in the history of the Regiment.

REGIMENTAL 40TH ANNIVERSARY

by WO2 (SQMS) Mead-Male

Saturday 10 July 1999 was the day 21 Sig Regt (AS) celebrated the 40th Anniversary of the formation of the Regiment and the 60th year since the antecedents of one of our territorial units, 81 Sig Sqn (V), landed with the British Expeditionary Force in France.

Do we celebrate? Have we the resources? Have we the manpower?

All questions that we as a Corps are familiar with but, with only six weeks to the planned date, remained unanswered. Eventually the deployment of the majority of the Regiment on Op Agricola was complete and the decision was taken for those left behind - the Open Day goes on! With more than half of the Regular Unit deployed on operations in the Balkans, the RCWO, WO2 (SQMS) 'I'm only a Chef' Mead-Male had planned to put his feet up, while Maj Chas Dale intended to work on his angling skills. Both should have known better, as they were chosen to head up the Open Day Team whilst sustaining support to those on their summer holiday in the Balkans.

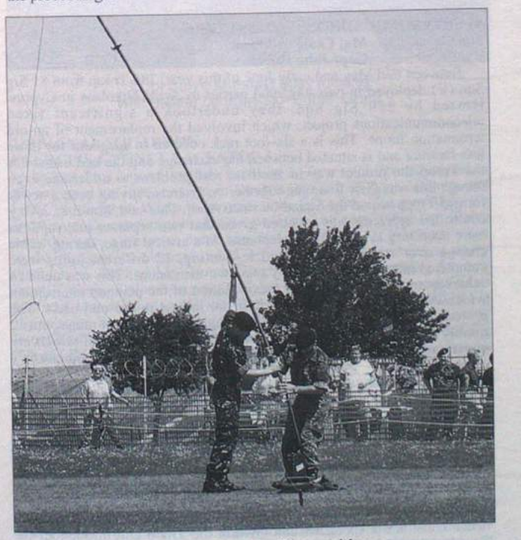
Anyway, full steam ahead, six weeks to go and nothing planned, and a shortage of budding volunteers to assist. Push the letters out and invite some punters in was the order of the day. Out of the 50 or so letters, most replies flooding back followed the standard, 'Sorry mate, if you would only have given more notice we would have loved to help, maybe next year!' SSgt Phil Fluck came to the rescue (again) with the words, 'I can get you a few arena shows to get this event off the ground'. WO2 (RQMS) Paul Williams and 2IC, Maj Bruce Avison, organised the White Helmets and we were up and running. OK said the Boss, build me an arena and don't spare the horses. WO2 (AQMS) John Wallace stepped into the breach and set about organising the tentage and arena plan, just in time to hand it back to the RCWO and disappear on adventure training!

At last the day was upon us, the sun rose and the rear party were on parade … we were ready! The static display holders started to arrive and display their wares. The immortal words were heard, 'Hang on a minute, this is beginning to look like we might just pull it off'. 10am and the gates opened, the first few turned into hundreds and by 11am the public were streaming through the gates. The sun was beating down, the smiles on the children's faces said it all, we were onto a winner.

Capt Noddy Baugh, OC 220 Sig Sqn presents the 220 Sig Sqn Pennant to Lt Col John Terrington, CO 21 Sig Regt (AS)

The first arena display set the standard for the day with the antenna erection competition. After much furious activity 43 (Wx) Sig Sqn (V) overcame and beat Alpha Tp, 244 Sig Sqn. The Band of 34 Sig Regt (V), in true military fashion, marched into the arena adding a dash of colour to the proceedings.



The Mast Erecting Competition

The afternoon was a roaring success with a fly past from an RAF C130 Hercules and the White Helmets display of danger and daredevil stunts (despite the odd fall). The CO, Lt Col John Terrington closed the proceedings by accepting the 220 Sig Sqn Pennant from Capt Noddy Baugh, as a prelude to the Squadron rejoining the Regiment in UK on its return from Laarbruch in September. The show closed at 4pm, but that wasn't the end of the day. The celebrations continued with the Officers Mess 40th Anniversary Dinner Night to which a large number of previous Commanding Officers, Officers Commanding 81 Sig Sqn (V) and various other dignitaries were invited. The remainder of the unit had an open-air function, which consisted of a live band, disco and barbecue, and an impromptu karaoke from Sig Dawn Bailey. The Chefs and bar staff not content with working all day, carried on until the early hours of Sunday morning to ensure success, with not one murmur of complaint.

HEADQUARTERS SQUADRON

SSM	WO2 (SSM) Organ

Due to operational commitments HQ Sqn is currently the only regular squadron left in Colerne, now that 244 (we were once a Squadron) joined us as a Troop. The pace of life whilst normally busy is now frantic as we provide the support to soldiers abroad whilst ensuring that their families are looked after and normal commitments are met. The success of the Open Day and our recent visit by the IIP accreditor, on top of all other commitments, speaks volumes for the morale of the soldiers and their will to succeed.

ADVENTUROUS TRAINING CAMP

The HQ Squadron Adventure Training Camp got off to a flying start with the advance party consisting of a vast amount of personnel. SSgt Mark Sala and Sgt George Rahman took over the accommodation at Fremington Training Camp in preparation for the arrival of the troops. The weather on Day One was so good that the DS decided that the troops should be introduced to surfing at Woolacombe Bay. Many sunburnt faces later everyone returned to Fremington to prepare for their introduction to Barnstaple.

The following day Group 1 went climbing under the expert tuition of SSM Nick Organ and Cpl Speed and Group 2 went surf canoeing with WO2 (QMSI) Gary Pither at Woolacombe Bay and were quickly introduced into capsize techniques. The Aerial Slide at Fremington Camp was next on the programme and the instructors were Sgt Jackie Herbert and SSgt Mark Sala. The students thoroughly enjoyed the activity although a couple of students suffered from ladder rash and white knuckle fever. The third day was a coastal walk that started at Minehead, with an overnight stop at a selected campsite in Lynton and on to the finish point at Combe Martin.

The last day of the week was a free day and the troops had the choice of activities. Sgt Rahman took Capt Whitaker, Sgt MacDonald and SSgt Mark Sala on a sea fishing trip in Illfracombe. It wasn't long until the mackerel were being reeled in but Capt Whitaker could not understand why he was not catching any. After swapping rods he did eventually catch two small ones much to his delight. The week was rounded off nicely with a Clay Pigeon Shoot, barbecue and to finish a social visit to the town.

REGIMENTAL MOTOR TRANSPORT

MTO	Capt Dave Whitaker
Tp SSgt	SSgt Mark Sala

It has been a busy period for Regt MT with the deployment to the Balkans followed by the Regt Open Day. Cpl 'Eski' Eskdale has successfully completed his DDI LGV and even managed to get a very good grade. Cpl 'Popeye' Doyle has managed to fit in some work between his diving exploits in America and Plymouth and Adventure Training in Bavaria. Congratulations to Sig Craig Chilvers who has spent two weeks driving for Bristol UOTC in Barrie Buddon and returned with many commendations for his time there. Farewell to the MTO, Capt Guy Richards, who has returned to 216 Para Sig Sqn and has been replaced by Capt Dave Whitaker. Good luck to them both.

TECHNICAL MAINTENANCE TROOP

Tp Comd	WO1 (FofS) Ady Knight

The last couple of months have been very busy for the Troop with the focus being the preparation of equipments and the deployment to Kosovo, of two ERVs and the ESV with six Technicians. We hope that Sgt 'Polly' Poulson, Cpl Bobby Sands, Cpl Dave 'Why Kosovo' Clayton-Batty, LCpl Dave 'Where are my Boots' Bentham and Sig

Nicki Ryan enjoy the break and come back fully refreshed soon. The Troop has also said farewell to WO1 (FofS) Martin Drake on discharge and SSgt Nigel Roberts on promotion to RQMS(G). A big welcome goes to WO1 (FofS) Ady Knight and his wife Marion, the first accompanied Regt FofS in over five years. Congratulations to Sgt Polly Poulson on his promotion, well overdue but we hope he stops talking about it before the next lot of Wire notes are due.

43 (WESSEX) SIGNAL SQUADRON (VOLUNTEERS)
Sqn Comd Maj David Sleigh
PSI SSgt (YofS) White

For the Regimental Open Day the Squadron set up a recruiting stand with HQ Sqn (V) which had a constant stream of people wishing to find out about the TA. The REME section made a set of stocks which were manned by Lt Karen Jones, SSgt Graham 'Full Monty' Peet and SSgt (YofS) Paul White who had all 'volunteered' to have wet sponges thrown at them for the day - all in the name of charity. The highlight of the day for us took place in the arena where a challenge had been laid down by 244 Sig Sqn, (via OC HQ Sqn, Maj Chas Dale), that they wanted a mast race. LCpl Dan Shepherd and Sig Sid Reynolds made up the TA's team and once again the 'weekend warriors' beat them hands down much to the 'Regulars' disappointment - better luck next year. The Squadron has said farewell to Maj Craig Treeby who has left the services for pastures new. All members of the Squadron wish him good luck in his new chosen profession. Also farewell to WO2 Fred Smith and SSgt (FofS) Chris Riley who are both entering 'civvy street'.

Congratulations go to Capt David Sleigh on his promotion to Major which in itself is quite a feat given that seven years ago he joined the Squadron as a Signaller.

244 SIGNAL SQUADRON
Sqn Comd Maj Ian Walton
SSM WO2 (SSM) Paul Williams

These are busy times for the Squadron as it finds itself with a substantial number of personnel deployed on operations in the Balkans. The remainder of the Squadron have transferred to the watchful eye of HQ Sqn for the duration of the deployment to Kosovo, but look forward to being re-united with the remainder of 244 Sig Sqn once the commitment reduces. Amongst the turmoil of preparation for Ops, the Sqn has said goodbye to a number of key personalities. Firstly farewell to WO2 (SSM) Steve Dickson, and SSgt (FofS) Andy Moore, who both managed to jump ship just in time to avoid the tour in Macedonia, best of luck in your new jobs. Also best of luck to Capt Matt Graham who departs for the Army Junior Division of the Staff College.

ALPHA TROOP (AMF(L))
Tp Comd Capt Steve Abram
Tp SSgt SSgt Sheerin

The Troop would like to extend a warm welcome to Cpl Nick Hill from 17 Port and Maritime, LCpl Chris 'Scouse' Alston from 7 Armd Bde and Sigs Laura Cooze and Lee Southernwood. Also congratulations to the OC Troop and his wife Liz on the arrival of their daughter Eve Lois.

EXERCISE ADVENTURE EXCHANGE 1999

At the beginning of March, the advance party from Alpha Troop departed Colerne for the Winter Exercise of this year, Ex Adventure Exchange. With our arctic kit firmly packed, we left under the steady leadership of Capt 'New Boy' Graham (Sqn 2IC) and SSgt (YofS) Scott Logan. After many delays at South Cerney and some companionable socialising with Force Arty in the NAAFI, we assembled at Brize Norton for the flight out to Italy. On our arrival on Italian soil we speedily departed to the coast to collect the vehicles under police escort - flashing blue lights and sirens wailing. The journey to location, was long and laborious, but the locals managed to lay on road-side entertainment for the lads all the way. As always Alpha Tp soon came to grips with the extreme weather conditions which were encountered. With constant sunshine and temperatures averaging 25 degrees every day, the skis and mitts soon became redundant. Award for the best suntan was judged to a dead heat between Cpl 'Wills' Williams and Cfn 'This is hard work' Cooke. At Main and Alt, Villa Santina, much hard work was undertaken with our international counterparts, the Americans, Canadians, Germans and Italians, to name but a few. Sigs Kerrie Haines and Ruth Mackenzie, enjoying their last exercise with the Troop, braved the Italian rail system and spent a pleasurable day in Venice. This exercise was also our final goodbye to Sig John 'Tabs' Marlborough and LCpl Neil Cogram.

A final farewell to 2Lt Martin Willis, who has endured a SSLC posting to the Regiment, the Troop would like to thank him for his efforts of the past ten months in what has been an eventful posting and wish him well as he moves to Leeds University to embark on his degree course. Last, but by no means least, the Troop says farewell to SSgt (YofS) Scott Logan who has endured almost a year with the Troop. Having eaten all the pies, he leaves to take on the equally demanding role of YofS for 220 Sig Sqn, when they reform at Colerne later this year. Welcome to Capt Andy Arthurton who takes over the reins as Troop OC as Capt Steve Abram moves over to become the 2IC Squadron for a well earned rest having spent two years in command.

81 SIGNAL SQUADRON (VOLUNTEERS)
Sqn Comd Maj Craig Tillotson
PSAO Capt John Harris

Between mid May and early June of this year, 786 Troop from 81 Sig Sqn (V) deployed in two staggered parties to Ayios Nikolaos in Cyprus. Hosted by 259 Sig Sqn, they undertook a significant fixed telecommunications project, which involved the replacement of an old termination frame. This is a six-foot rack covered in spaghetti for those less familiar and is situated between the exchange and the end users. For the Troop the project was in itself no real problem to undertake even though this was their first time together on Exercise having been a newly formed Troop within the Squadron since April. This said, however, a very controlled approach was required given that two separate interruptions were necessary to each fixed telephone. At a critical stage, during 'cable change over' - cable cutting and re-jointing, 17 different joints were completed in a 24 hour period by two, two-man teams. This was quite an achievement in itself, allowing maximisation of the planned interruption windows, such that there was little or no impact to the end users. The project cell, blended the various skills ranging from project management, quality control, frame jumpering and cable jointing. All of which are contained within the Troop and replicated throughout the Squadron's other Troops.

By the very nature of a TA Troop deploying on Exercise, there is only a finite amount of time available. For the project cell this imposed major constraints resulting in the troop being pushed very hard to ensure delivery of a successful project - incomplete projects are not an option! During the year, each member makes available a two-week period for camp in which they either deploy on exercise or complete Army courses. Additional days throughout the year are also set aside to complete military training. The vast majority of members are employed, throughout their civilian careers within the telecommunications arena and hence constitute a specialist unit. Within the Troop and throughout the Squadron, there is a high level of commitment which is common place.

Additionally there is a wealth of experience which on occasions is quite unbelievable. This combination forms the basis of a professional approach which allows successful deployment and completion of enjoyable projects such as the one this year at Ayios Nikolaos.

Sig Kevin Hamilton from Manchester, a Customer Services Engineer with BT, at work on Exercise Aphrodite in Cyprus during a project to upgrade the telecommunications infrastructure at Ayios Nikolaos. Kevin has been with the Squadron for three years. He is assisted by Sig Andy Pope from Hitchin, Herts. Andy also works for BT and is on his first camp with the Squadron.

LCpl Steve Marshall (hatless) a BT Technician from Chiddingfold, Surrey and Sig Eddie Grant from Merseyside, a network engineer for Vodafone jointing in a new cable at Ayios Nikolaos in Cyprus. Steve has been with the Squadron for five years, Eddie joined in February this year, having left the Regular Army from 15 Sig Regt in 1998.

EXERCISE CYGNET BACKSTOP 3

In late June a joint venture between L Tp and H Tp undertook an adventurous training exercise in Bavaria, staying at Haus Magnus, the UKSC(G) lodge in Wertach, Bavaria at the foot of the German Alps. We spent a week canoeing, mountain walking and rock climbing. These activities were a welcome break from the daily routine of briefings, much to the pleasure of elements of H Tp and everybody seemed to enjoy themselves. We had Sig 'Butch Dingle' Richardson starting the new sport of 'Sumo Slalom' on what little ice remained atop the mountains, as well as a near death case of hypothermia from a new addition to H Tp Sig 'I'm alright, honest' Neill. Big Cpl Dave Cascarino shoehorned himself into the hollowed out shell of the HMS Invincible to go canoeing and Sig 'Chief ' Burness kept all of us amused with his 101 'True Stories' (which weren't very!)

The social highlight of the week was a pub quiz during which SSgt John 'Disco' Williams team's ability to answer any questions relied heavily on the knowledge of Sig 'Ike' Love. Much to the displeasure of LCpl 'Jap Sniper' Emmison this was to lead to SSgt 'very smug' Holmes' team recording a famous victory.

Thursday was a day of 'RnR', so we divided into two groups, the majority shooting off on a day trip to the PX in Garmisch and returning via a go-karting track where Sig 'Fishboy' Peart demonstrated his potential as a future F I driver. The other group, which consisted of Cpl Dave Cass and LCpl Neil Emmo took a day trip to the famous Hofbrauhaus in Munich where they were rather predictably robbed and beaten about the head by the lesser-spotted beer fairy. Many thanks to SSgt John 'I've never been adventure training in my whole career' Williams who jacked up the expedition and to all who helped the week go smoothly, particularly the staff at Haus Magnus Lodge.

H TROOP

H Tp have had a busy and occasionally turbulent few months that have seen numerous people come and go, so firstly some hellos and goodbyes:

Warm welcomes to the new OC H Tp, Capt Gary Johnson and his family from 30 Sigs, Cpls Dec Maher and 'Kip' Fisher, LCpl's Jim Dryden, Neil 'Jap Sniper' Emmison and Helena 'Witch' Southwick and Sigs Grebby, Neil, Hitchins Lake and Peart. Fond Farewells to SSgt Carl Hindson, who leaves us on promotion to 3 Inf Bde, LCpl Al Cathcart to 16 Sig Regt and Sigs Leather, Dear and Richardson who have gone on to panzers greener. Also many congratulations to Cpl Gaz Jordan on completing the first Installation Tech Course as top student, Sigs Favill and Deacon on passing their PTI Course. Future Congratulations to Sigs Dick Danby and Haley Winder who tie the knot in August

As ever we have our fingers in a number of pies to keep ourselves occupied. At present we have some 20 personnel deployed around the world on different tasks, ranging from Installation work in Nepal (Jammy Beggars) to roulement tours in the not quite so glamorous Falkland Islands. Further to this we have just finished supporting RAF Bruggen throughout the air campaign over Kosovo. Now the bombing has stopped it looks like the Telemechs from 220 and a crew from 259 Sig Sqn will be going to Kosovo to install the new HQ and try to rebuild the communications infrastructure shattered by the RAF.!

SPORT

We've have had a good year on the football pitch, culminating in the team finishing as runners up in both the Station League and the Station plate. The latter was lost on penalties 5-4, after a hard game that ended 3-3. Congratulations to Sig Neil Taylor who deservedly earned man of the match. We lost the league by just one point! however a big thank you goes to all the players and supporters who have made the season so successful. In athletics the Troop was heavily involved in the Morrison Cup and achieved a credible Third place ahead of some larger units. Thanks to all who gave so much on the day, and a special thanks to SSgt Sean Bryants' wife Amanda for redecorating the inside of their new car (she knows what we mean). The BAG Swimming Champs saw the troop OC, Capt Gary Johnson lead the Squadron team to the Minor Units Title. Sig Peart went on to swim for the Army, and Sig Hendry who only got involved the night before because Cpl Lee Palmer wimped out would like to thank him…. NOT !!!.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

Station Fete - A blistering Saturday the 10 July 1999 saw all the Troop working hard to keep the RAF Bruggen station fete flowing with beer. A few adventurous people even tried Bungee jumping from a BIG crane. Thanks to Sgt 'Scouse' Deegan who jumped and reportedly didn't stop bouncing for two hours and to all who worked so well in extreme heat to aid in the raising of some DM45000 for local charities, a job that every one on station appreciated.

Troop Functions - The Troop has held a few functions recently, the two that stick in the mind most being theme nights. Cpl 'The King' Walker laid on a 70's night that was enjoyed by all, especially the old and bold in the Troop, such as SSgt 'Taff' Bryant who knew the words to all the songs, sad man. SSgt Gary Tinsley then put on a Caribbean night that saw all the Troop and the TA guests in summer wear and dreadlocks, all went well, and we hope the next one is as good.

SDLT (Whatever That Means) - by LCpl Les 'Pass the Pies' Welsh

Since you last heard from L Tp, things in Laarbruch have certainly changed. From March 1999 the various Squadrons have been leaving Laarbruch like rats deserting a sinking ship. Now all that's left are a few Telemechs under the watchful guidance of our two resident techs formerly of Support Tp, SSgt Chris 'Pink and Fluffy' Holmes also known as O/C SDLT, (we should add at this point that nobody knows what these initials mean but they must be important because he got a new car out of them), and Sgt Lee 'I am not being funny but I'm loaded' Coffill who has the cleanest car on station. The reason for this is that the real workers, i.e: The Telemechs are all away on tours or have been poached by H Troop at Bruggen. Overseeing the crews is Cpl Steve 'Uncle Bulgaria' Mesmer, who spends his days restoring abandoned mountain bikes and anything else he can get his grubby hands on, and then tries to sell them to the singlies. Unless you're the Troop SSgt in which case you get given a freshly serviced bike for free - creep.

The Closure Team consists of four main crews:

Maintenance crew - is run by LCpl Les 'Lethargic' Welsh who has the enviable job of watching Sig Sean 'Cold Turkey' Mitchell getting in and out of some extremely festering cable pits, which are (allegedly) as in need of a clean as the singlies block.

The Works Orders crew - is run by LCpl Marc 'Danny Zuco' Quinn. What with everyone leaving Laarbruch there's precious little installation work to be done, which is just the way 'Quinny' likes it. As he sits in Syscon hitting ten over par on PGA Golf, up and coming Sig Jesse 'Where's my tape' James is out doing all the work. The hardest working crew is LCpl Matt 'Look at my new bike' Stowell's drawdown crew. He has the pleasure of working with Sig (or is that civ) Dave 'Well nobody told me lads' Butler. We nearly forgot about Sigs Darren 'Kiddy Fiddler' Richardson and Derek 'The Greasy Turk' Burness who are around in body (Darren is particularly round in body) but somewhat absent in mind. We are looking forward to the return of Sig Johnny 'Killer' Miller from his APTIs course and expect beastings all round - if only we could understand a word he says. Creating a lot of noise at the moment with his new Caterham 7 is the Squadron 2I/C, Lt Jim 'Little Lord Fontleroy' Lambeth. He and his rotten feet are posted to Colchester at the end of August, which will be a welcome relief for those of us not inclined to spend all day running round the airfield. We also have to mention our pay Sergeant, Sgt Andy 'Can't Get a Girlfriend' Draper. Let's just say some drastic measures have been taken, but the purchase of a flash new car and a Honda Fireblade seems to be having little effect on the situation. We also have to say goodbye to Cpl John 'More Badges Than a Boy Scout' Walsh who along with the Ch Clk, Sgt Rob 'Pull Up a Sandbag' Fuller, is posted to the Regiment, after a short holiday in slipper city. We have said farewell to two of our civilian helpers Michelle and Linda who have accompanied their respective husbands back to the U.K. We all wish them a happy and rewarding future. A big hello goes out to Cpl Dave 'When am I not on detachment????' Cascarino, LCpl Martin 'The Ferg' Ferguson, Sig Liam 'You're Gonna Get Some' Lee and all the other mechs on det. Last but not least we have to congratulate our acting SSM, SSgt John 'Butler!!!!!!' Williams who has knotched up the Big 40 this month. Apparently life's supposed to start at forty - but not while he's acting SSM.

SUMMER 1999 - ON CLOSURE
SQUADRON NEWS

SSgt Adrian Jones and some 27 members of the Squadron, ably supported by the operational experts from the Communications Projects Division and colleagues from 81 Sig Sqn (V) have recently completed an excellent 'Summer in Ascension'. In some six 2-3 week phases, a massive CIS overhaul and upgrade has been undertaken, right across the whole Military estate on Ascension.

In addition under SSgt Les Chapman and Sgt Billy Lilburn, teams have deployed to support current Operations and major CIS Infrastructure

Sig Dave 'What goes up must come down' Butler gets to grips with the rudiments of his trade up a pole in Ascension Island

'Time for a quick break and a pose for the cameras' 220's Telemechs in Ascension. L-R: LCpl's Sean 'Arnie' Renforth and Al Cathcart, Sigs Liam 'Spud' Lee and Dave 'Billy' Butler and LCpl Matt 'Why haven't you got any shorts Billy?' Stowell builds to the military HQs at Petrovac, Skopje and Thesalonika. There are many more tasks on the drawing board and the Sqn is only restricted by the number of experienced SNCO planners constantly available and equipment available. Sqn FofS, WO2 Guy Lewendon left his comfy chair in ACPO, signed out some shiny new combats, and became a deployed medal hunting warrior, dragging Sgt Harry Harris along for company. Harry is struggling to come to terms with the Staff Officers Directive, 'If I've made a plan, I'll change it in the next five minutes'.

Even SSgt Sean 'Taff' Bryant has extracted himself from behind his H Troop desk to take SSgt Mark 'ACPO New Boy' Sherwood for a sight seeing trip to the Balkans.

SQUADRON CLOSURE IN GERMANY, THE PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE

As this edition of The Wire is published, 220 Sig Sqn (AS) will have closed in its primary role, providing communications support to the Royal Air Force Main Operating Bases (MOBs) in Germany. The Squadron formed in 1959 at Sundem, serving RAF units 'East of the Rhine' and adopted the Scorpion as it's motif. It was absorbed into 21 Sig Regt (AS) in 1961 and was re-titled 3 Sqn. Many internal unit ORBAT adjustments were made over the years and the 3 Sqn SHQ relocated to RAF Laarbruch on 1 June 1992 under the command of the then, Maj Glen Bartliff Royal Signals. On 5 January 1993 it reverted to the title 220 Sig Sqn comprising SHQ, Oscar Tp and Lima Tp at RAF Laarbruch, Hotel Tp at RAF Bruggen, November Tp at RAF Gutersloh and the Airfield Communications Planning Office (ACPO) at JHQ. Following the closure of RAF Gutersloh, November Troop disbanded and Oscar Tp was relocated to Colerne, thus we entered 1998 with only SHQ, Lima Tp, Hotel Tp and ACPO within the ORBAT. This still made for a significant sized Squadron with a manpower level of 111 military and 10 civilian staff, as closure approached.

The impending closure of RAF Laarbruch as a MOB and the relocation of the RAF Harrier Force to UK had focussed minds on the future of the Sqn. The SDR announcement of an additional CIS Sqn within 21 Sig Regt, similar to the present 244 Sqn to support the new Joint Helicopter Command (JHC) has given the Sqn a new lease of life in an alternative 'Air Support' role. Since Maj Bartliff, the Sqn had a further four OC's, namely Majs Mark Edwards, Ken Jones, Andy Williams and finally Capt Noddy Baugh MBE. The predominant manpower CEQ throughout this period has been the 'Telemech' however, they could not have operated without the capable support of the many other trades within the Squadron, mainly the technicians and Stores specialists. So what does the future hold for the Squadron's present manpower? Within Germany, ACPO and the Static Tp (supporting RAF Bruggen until 2003) have been transferred to 16 Sig Regt. As a result of SDR, the Corps will form two deployable 'Telemech' Troops to provide CIS infrastructure support to Military tasks worldwide, whether they are Operations, Exercises or Projects. This deployable capability has been informally operational within the Sqn for some time. In the past year planners and teams have deployed on Ops Upminster, Palatine and Agricola, not to mention numerous Exercises and a major four-month SWS project to upgrade the CIS infrastructure on RAF Ascension. In fact, these days it is very difficult to find a planner at ACPO but you may meet up with them in Skopje, Banja Luka, Pristina or on a Tristar bound for the South Atlantic.

By the end of September 1999 the two deployable 'Telemech' Troops will be formally established within the ORBATs of 16 and 30 Sig Regts. Within Germany this allows some 60 Corps tradesmen to remain based at RAF Bruggen, with the full support of the RAF and the Station Commander, providing a skill set that can be projected worldwide on a task by task basis whilst still undertaking close support to RAF Bruggen. Taskings through the chain of command are planned and executed by the present Airfield Communications Planning Office (ACPO). This Office was originally established to control, plan and co-ordinate the Royal Signals technical effort on the then four Airfields in Germany. It has since re-focussed much of its present effort. ACPO remains an RAF staff cell, however, tasks can be generated by PJHQ, HQ LAND, HQ 1 Sig Bde as well as RAF Strike Command. The name and future location of ACPO may be revised in months to come. One suggestion is the 'Communications Infrastructure Planning and Implementation Cell' (CIPIC). We will see !!

To the many who have served with 3 Sqn and 220 Sqn in the Airfield Support role over the past 40 years, and those who serve today as the Squadron closes in Germany, we wish you well. To Maj Jim Forrest, Capt Kyle Barker and the few who immediately start at Colerne, raising the 220 Sig Sqn pennant and 'Scorpion' motif again, in a new role, good luck!

RSM WO1 (RSM) John Gibson

The highlight of the last couple of months has been Annual Camp. During 10-24 July 1999 the Regiment managed to cover most of the UK as well as establishing links to the USA, the Falklands and various ships in exotic locations. The Regiment converged on Norfolk for a couple of days before moving en masse to Folkstone for a mil skills competition and a battlefield Tour to Ypres. The exercise was a storming success and the Squadrons have submitted various reports on different aspects of the fortnight. Three members of the Regiment travelled to the US during Camp on an exchange visit to the 1108th US Sig Bde. Maj Steve Baker, LCpl Tia Snell and LCpl Jo Ogle all thoroughly enjoyed the hospitality of the Americans.

REGIMENTAL HELLOS AND GOODBYES

Welcome to Sgt Alderson who arrives from SHAPE to bolster the number of technicians. He will be under the watchful eye of the new Foreman, WO2 Jamie Harper, fresh from JHQ and 16 Sig Regt. Farewell to WO2 Bob Wymer, who moves on to 600 Tp at Corsham. The Trg Maj, Maj Alfie 'wee bloke' Brand is off to HQ LAND – good luck to you and Lynn. The final farewell goes to WO2 (RQMS) George 'Rude Boy' Coffin, who moves on to Warminster where hopefully his somewhat depraved sense of humour will be just as welcome as it has been here. The leaving lunch to ensure this rabble actually depart was a rousing affair. Some excellent speeches were delivered, most notably the RQMS with his view of regimental life through the eyes of Ma'am Bear (CO), Alfie Bear (Trg Maj), Baby Mel bear (Adjt), Grumpy (RSM) and Toto the Lapdog (RAOWO) – all very amusing. The less said about the antics of the permanent staff along the Kings Rd the better. Suffice it to say that LCpl 'Disco' Dave Wynne seemed to be having a great time aided and abetted by 'the old gits' in the form of WO1 (RSM) John Gibson, SSgt Roy Smith and WO2 Jim McMahon.

BUFFOON OF THE WEEK AWARD

There were a number of contenders for the award; Cpl North for trying to knock down walls with his head! (we all hope that you make a speedy recovery in hospital); the Adjt for being too hung over to realise that she had received French Francs and not Belgium ones on the way to the Ypres battlefield Tour!; Sig Coleman-Browne for having a fight with a land rover which resulted in a dislocated knee; WO2 (RQMS) Coffin for ending up in Salisbury when he should have caught the train to Southfields at the end of his leaving lunch – only a minor mistake George and one I'm sure the tramps at Salisbury station didn't appreciate as you spent the night with them!!

CONGRATULATIONS

Well done to LCpl Okon who was awarded her first tape on Camp this year. Congratulations to SSgt 'Spotter' Mick Johnson who was awarded a distinction on his EFP2 course. Well done to the Foreman, WO2 Bob Wymer for winning the RSMs essay writing competition.

DUCHESS OF GLOUCESTER'S CUP – FOLKSTONE 22 JULY 1999

This years' Inter-Squadron Military Skills competition was held during Annual Camp at Napier Barracks in Folkstone. All Squadrons fielded two teams as well as the necessary directing staff to ensure the day's proceedings went smoothly and professionally. The morning stands consisted of a Golf/NBC stand ran by Sgt Dick Travis, an abseiling stand devised by SSgt Alfie Kirkham, a 'swimming pool' river crossing executed by Capt Sarah Street and SSgt Wullie Loch and a bungee rope command task ran by SSgt Craig Bruce BEM. In the afternoon the activities took the form of a March and Shoot competition with the assault course thrown in for good measure. SSgt 'Dez' Eldridge along with the Regiments' quota of PTI's ensured all the troops were fully briefed and monitored at all times. All the teams performed exceptionally well and put in a tremendous amount of effect to produce excellent results. Special mention goes to Sgt Casperez who overcame her fear of heights to complete the assault course and Sgt Matt Cahill who battled successfully with his loathing of water to complete the river crossing. The winning team was 83 Sig Sqn, led by newly promoted Capt Liz Fitzpatrick who was aided and abetted by the most competitive officer in the Corps Capt Dave Thomas. The Regiment was visited during the day by a long list of VIPs including the Lord Lieutenant of London, Mayors from our local boroughs, MPs, TAVRA Reps, DComd LONDIST, and many more besides. A large number of members of the Regiment Association also visited and it was great to see them all. The whole day was a tremendous success – well done to WO1 (RSM) John Gibson and his PSI's for the work in organising the day which was enjoyed by both competitors and spectators alike.

EXERCISE COURAGEOUS COMMUNICATOR II

The first weekend in June had seen the Squadron deploy on Bounty Training, to try out the new IDTs. By the end of the month, the Squadron were deploying to Hawkinge on Ex Courageous Communicator II a Comms Ex. It didn't bode well when certain members of K Tp decided to choose their own route to the Troop RV, but the recce and move in eventually went smoothly. An Inter-Tp network was established which enabled a final testing/shakedown of all comms equipment before Annual Camp. It was also a good opportunity for some of our newer recruits to come out and see the Squadron in the field – hopefully some things might begin to make a bit more sense now!

SUTTON GRAMMAR SCHOOL CCF CENTENARY CELEBRATIONS

Members of the Squadron attended an Open Day at Sutton Grammar School as part of the centenary celebrations of the CCF. Field Marshall The Lord Bramall, who opened our RHQ building at Southfields in 1986, was the guest of honour. The cadets were inspected by the Field Marshall in the morning, and then took part in a number of stands in the afternoon – one of which was provided by the Squadron. They were all interested to see our new Lanward equipment, and we will hopefully now have a few more budding Royal Signals Recruits in the future.

ANNUAL CAMP 1999

Annual Camp this year was a great opportunity for the Squadron to prove that it can operate effectively in its CROST role. With the Sqn Comd, Maj Steve 'Yee ha' Baker away on an exchange with 1108th US Signal Brigade, the Squadron deployed to its locations at Troop level. We were given our orders at RAF Lyneham, from where Lt Beth 'Crack On' Pollard conducted her recce of Driffield, Yorks by helicopter, and Lts Paul Owen and Jill Montgomery set off for sunny Nottinghamshire. K Tp under Lt Pollard soon established itself at Driffield, and even managed to give the Royal Marines a few off road driving lessons! LCpl 'Elvis' Presley made all feel at home with his home cooking, ably assisted by Sig 'Better at shopping than a woman' Fisher whenever he was allowed near the cook tent.

Lt Beth Pollard and 2Lt Debbie Speakman in the Tp CP at Nesscliffe

Meanwhile J and N Troops deployed to Fulbeck, and then Altcar. Foreman 'Mine's bigger than yours' Byrne proved that size does matter, when finding himself in a tete a tete with a Renault Clio. The Foreman's 4 Ton truck came off much the better of the two, leaving 'Nicole' in her Clio to run home to 'Papa'….J and N Tps then moved to Swynnerton via Nesscliffe (Lt 'assault team' Owen dropping in early morning by helicopter to see N Tp on his last recce - hands up all who thought he was the CO!)

The Squadron then converged on Watton Airfield to create a full strength A type Troop for the Visitors' Day. The Squadron was visited by Brig Hughes, Brig Verey, Brig Burton, Col Lawrence, Col Storie-Pugh, Col Acda, Maj Wenlock, Maj Whittle , Maj Kelly and Maj Hill who all seemed to leave impressed by what they had seen. We then moved to Napier Barracks to take part in the Duchess of Gloucester's Cup, and a games night where Squadron members put up a very fine challenge against other teams in the Regiment and went on to win the prestigious trophy.

CONGRATULATIONS

The Squadron have had two promotions recently. LCpl 'Odie' O'Driscoll and LCpl Pearl Sethna both received their first stripe last month. Congratulations to LCpl Sethna, who was awarded the 'Soldier of the Year' award on Camp. Well done – these bar rounds are going to start getting expensive…. LCpl O'Driscoll was the 'Soldier of the year' last year, so these two are definitely the pair to watch. Let's hope they both go far!

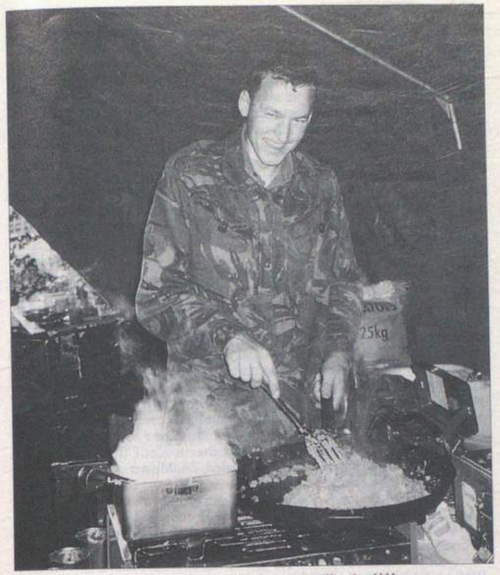
ANNUAL CAMP 1999 – EXERCISE MERCURY SWORD

The Squadron all felt that Ex Mercury Sword was a huge success and that 1999 was one of their best Annual Camps. Fifteen days of excellent training, with glorious long, warm summer evenings – even the teachers managed to deploy this time!

After the MOBEX and journey to RAF Lyneham, 859 Radio Tp set off for Longmoor Trg Area and set up under the relative shade of the trees. Sgt Kyle Manns was promptly despatched to organise showers for the Troop and in true style, he arranged for them to have a daily hose down at the local fire station in Bordon!

Meanwhile, 858 Radio Tp moved from their first location to Yardley Chase and were then 'exposed' to anthrax. On came the 'noddy' suits and respirators, not particularly comfortable in the heat of the day but at least their Tp Comd, Capt Tony Potter has first hand experience of the agent in his civvy job. Whilst the 'terrorist activity' was hotting up in Europe and the UK, 859 Tp travelled to Bramley Trg Area. Sgt Martin Cooper had to be restrained from providing the cook with fresh rations of pheasant, venison, snake and rabbit to replace the minced beef and stewing steak that Sig Steve Spilsted prepared continually. After all, it is extremely difficult to make either of these taste interesting, night after night!



Sig Spilstead – Chef extraordinaire!!!!

Suddenly, news came through from RCP 31 that a red transit van was being used by the terrorists and who would believe it; one was seen shortly after this cruising around the location. The QRF leapt into action and captured the van. Twenty minutes later, a very irate SQMS from 21 SAS (V) arrived to reclaim his vehicle and did not take kindly to the guard, Sig Williams, threatening to shoot if he took another step forward. After some discussion, ID cards being flashed and some hasty apologies, the van was returned. Imagination continued to run wild and after hearing that 21 SAS (V) were due to train that evening, everyone was convinced (or perhaps hoped) that they would be attacking the position. To restore some sense, SSgts Willie Loch and John Atherton put paid to all ideas of a dawn attack. Both Troops had set off on camp with their newest piece of kit, Lanward. Throughout the Exercise, all the soldiers had an opportunity to learn how to operate the equipment under the det comds, Sgt Mike Dowds and LCpl Jo Butler. Everyone welcomed the new kit until it was time to dismount everything at Nesscliffe! It did take considerably longer than anticipated! Nesscliffe provided more excitement for the soldiers as they were attacked by the enemy and had a chance to fire off some rounds. Following this, there were numerous offers from LCpl 'GI' Jo Reader and Sig 'Beam me up' Scott to go and patrol the area every time the guard reported something suspicious, despite the real need for sleep!

Sgt Cooper in his element but what is he doing with that string?

Whilst the soldiers endured a 7hr road move to Watton in Norfolk the Tp Ocs, Capt Sarah Streete and Capt Tony Potter, were fortunate enough to make the journey by helicopter. Terrorist activity began to cease and the troops continued with their next task, making a building resemble an underground bunker and then dismounting all their radio kit into it. Throughout this phase, they were supervised from above, literally, by their OC, Maj Brian Howe who looked down from the Control Tower, keeping his finger on the pulse.

There are many amusing memories from Camp '99 such as Sig Baggs not recognising and then 'challenging' his Tp OC; the golden blanket award won by 2Lt Kieron Francis; LCpl Renaud's cheerful disposition (not); 859 Radio Tp ready to practice a 'Stand To' when in fact they were being told to set up for Stand Two on the Visitors' Day, OCdt Wood shouting 'Come on 57 Sqn' during the assault course; the Regiment in place for the Camp photo, with no photographer in sight and of course the interesting sights outside the swimming pool prior to the 'River Crossing'!

BATTLEFIELD TOUR OF THE YPRES SALIENT

130 members of the Regiment travelled to Belgium early on 23 July for a Battlefield Tour of the Ypres Salient. The trip was the culmination of two weeks of Annual Camp and a chance to relax and unwind after a hard but enjoyable Exercise. Reveille at 0430 hrs proved to be exceptionally difficult for those who had 'pushed the boat out' at the Inter Squadron Games Night the night before! The Channel crossing was an ideal chance to sleep off the previous nights excesses!!

2Lt Keiron Francis had organised the itinerary and arranged for local guides to meet the Regiment in Ypres. The first coach arrived on time and was taken away by the guide. However, the CO's coach was an hour and a half late due to a skirmish on the French Border with the French police – enough said! Visits to Tyne Cot Cemetery, Hill 60 and Hill 62, Sanctuary Wood, Hellfire Corner, The Menen Gate and a host of the other infamous names followed. A stop at Sanctuary Wood museum, brought home the tragedy, waste and carnage of WW1, to all of us. For members of 41 (PLK) Sig Sqn a trip to a small cemetery just south of Ypres was an even more poignant moment as they visited the graves of three members of 1/13 Kensington Regiment. (They were one of the first TA units to be mobilised in the Great War and were the forerunner to the present 41 (PLK) Sig Sqn as it is now.) The Padre, Maj David Crawley carried out a small service of Remembrance and Sig Helen Matthews read out the poem 'In Flanders Fields.'

To finish off, we had a quick recce of the Cité de Europe shopping centre in Calais for presents for the family!! (Well booze and fags in many cases. Cpl North how did you get all that beer back on the coach, and are you sure it was for your own personal consumption?!) An enjoyable but moving day had by all, and then it was back to the UK in time for tea and medals and another night in the Mess.

Ex Photo Plod was held over the night of 26 June. It is a forty mile walk starting at midnight, in aid of Save the Children and is sponsored by various photographic companies. 56 Sig Sqn not only entered a team, but they also provided breakfast for 160+ in a field kitchen on route and all the comms needed for safety. Our team, consisting of six walkers, two in support and two individual walkers who met up with the other teams at the White Horse Public House in Steyning, W. Sussex. The forty miles followed the South Downs Way to Birling Gap and at various intervals, the walkers were plied with bananas, energy drinks, sweets, Mars Bars and hot or cold drinks by their ever supportive admin team! The team, led by 2Lt Kieron Francis, kept up with the leaders and the two females, LCpl Reader and Sig O'Sullivan strode ahead much of the time, unbothered by blisters unlike Sig Bishop and Sig Hulin who nobly carried on despite the pain. Breakfast at 4.00am was gratefully received. Following the compulsory team photo and rebandaging of feet, the walkers set off for the second half, now in daylight. Meanwhile, the support team was not idly sitting in lay-bys waiting, but was driving around the countryside in pursuit of items such as oak leaves, phone numbers, postcards and bus tickets. Capt Sarah Streete dived in every bin between Newhaven and Seaford before triumphantly appearing with one of the latter! When the walkers ran out of fluids, OCdt Wood flagged down a passing milk float and bought a few pints from a friendly milkman. First over the line and in a record time was our PSAO, Capt Ian Murray, who insisted that it was his last appearance in the event (watch this space) and despite literally crawling over the finishing line, the TA team finished a creditable Second and raised nearly £800 for Save the Children.

Sorry how much did you say it was for the pint?

CONGRATULATIONS AND FAREWELL

Congratulations to Sgt Sandra Burns and Jack on the birth of their son, Kristen and to WO2 Jim Paine and Viv on the birth of their daughter, Beatrice. The Squadron sadly say 'goodbye' to our 2IC, Capt Jackie Blake who decided that it was time to hang up her beret, she will be greatly missed. SSgt Paul Hattemore who retired from the TA after 26 years valuable service and also to LCpl 'Bunny' Warren who is going to concentrate on his teaching career.

BOUNTY TRAINING WEEKEND

83 Sig Sqn provided the administration support for the first Bounty Training weekend of the current training year. PSI SSgt Dez 'If that's alright with you' Eldridge worked tirelessly to organise a comprehensive package of military training. This included the Regt's first shock introduction to the CFT, run by LCpl Ian 'Is that a lemon?' Bryne. All members of the Regiment achieved a pass, and should congratulate themselves on a creditable result. Also introduced to the Regiment was the new pocket sized Battlefield First Aid Memoire which were all snapped up in a rush of shiny kit syndrome. The Squadron Officers ensured that the evening events remained DRY! Sig Clive 'boogey' Knight wins the TA anatomy prize for his brilliant demonstration of treatment for a sucking chest wound! Once the casualty had the FFD removed from his groin he agreed that it had definitely taken his mind off the chest wound!

OFFICERS' MESS SUMMER BALL

The Regimental Officers Mess enjoyed an evening of good food, good wine and great company at its annual Summer Ball held at RAMC HQ Mess, Millbank. The evening organised by Capt 'Do I have to do everything?' Dave Thomas was an outstanding success. The grand setting of the RAMC Officers Mess was the perfect background for several Cocktails followed by a sumptuous 5-course dinner. The CO was the star of the evening by refusing to make an after dinner speech on the basis that it would waste valuable drinking time. 2Lt Kieran 'footloose' Francis displayed a previously hidden amount of co-ordination with his ability to highland dance his way around the floor. 2Lt Debbie 'William Hill' Speakman managed to clean up at the Roulette Table, the next drinks on you then! The party only ended when the DJ, LCpl Colin 'Wheels of Steel' Anderson left to catch the first train home.

RECENT PROMOTIONS

Congratulations to the following members of the Sqn on their recent promotions, Cpl Sid 'Rottewiller Jnr' Ahluwalia, Cpl Mark 'Jaffa cake king' Bell, LCpl Jay 'Clint' Eastwood, LCpl Richard 'daf' Leyland, LCpl Tia 'Have I told you where I'm going on camp?' Snell, LCpl Bobby 'Golden Blanket' Donor

REGIMENTAL SHOOTING TEAM

The Regimental Shooting Team, with minimal training entered the Corps SAM run by QM 19 Mech Bde HQ & Sig Sqn and supported by 32 Sig Regt (V) at Pirbright Range Complex. The team consisted of Capt Guy Bewsher, Sgt Matt Cahill, LCpl Colin Anderson, LCpl Juliet Jarvis, Sig Richard Leyland and Sig Angela Morris. The competition started early on Saturday morning and consisted of the following shoots; Gun match, Pistol match, Roupell Cup, Combat snap, Fibua and Falling plate competitions. Sig Richard 'I've got to run how far!' Leyland came second in the gun match. The falling plate team managed runners up in the Corps falling plate and Capt Guy 'just one more cream cake' Bewsher was carried by his team at the head of the Corps to the presentation stand where he was awarded TA Master at Arms for best over all shot.

FAREWELL

Goodbye to the OC Sqn, Mike Jackson who is now moving on to pastures new. Good luck to you and Glynnis.

BREAKFAST IN AMERICA
THE MARYLAND TOUR 13-17 MAY 1999
by Major Brian Howe

The CO and OC 56 Sig Sqn enjoying the view in the US

The tour party to visit the 1108th USA Sig Bde and the 1110th and 1111th Sig Bns, consisted of Comd 2 (NC) Sig Bde, Brig Gordon Hughes, CO 31 Sig Regt (V), Lt Col Linda Harrison and myself. The aim of the visit was to gain further knowledge on both the role of 1108th Bde, and for Brig Hughes to be fully briefed on all the strategic communications provided by the US Army Signal Corps. The friendship link between the two Brigades and 31 Sig Regt was forged through the efforts of the Comd 1108th Sig Bde, Col David Titus, who, on taking over command of his Brigade, decided he would find out first hand what the monthly link up (Ex Long Haul) to the UK was all about. He enjoyed a successful visit to London in November 1998.

Ex Long Haul is a monthly 24-hour Exercise; conducted between 31 Sig Regt and 1111th Sig Bn. It is also conducted for a seven-day period annually, to coincide with the Regiment's Annual Camp. Operators of both nations exchange posts over this period. It was therefore, with some considerable curiosity that I went 'across the pond' to try and discover just what my soldiers had done when they themselves visited. This visit also coincided with a 24 hour Ex Long Haul exercise controlled by WO2 (YofS) Tyler back in Southfields TAC, London.

Day One -The journey by Virgin Atlantic was uneventful with neither the Bde Comd nor the CO suffering from a bout of 'Air Rage'. I was able to relax after a hearty in flight lunch and enjoy some of the in flight entertainment. On arrival at Washington, Dulles airport we were met by Mr Dave Graham the Brigade Operations Officer, and Lt Andy Rogers, who was to be our escorting officer for the next five days. Both Dave and Andy were superb hosts and on discovering that both Brig Hughes and Lt Col Harrison were harbouring a burning desire to go 'line dancing', carried out the required recce and arranged for a Saturday night visit. (to be continued!!) We had already been sent the tour itinerary and had some ideas about how the tour was going to unfold. We were particularly interested in the numbers and variety of places we were going to be eating in as the names listed sounded very enticing. Our base was to be the town of Frederick - Maryland, a small town roughly two hours north-west of Washington and home of the 1108th Sig Bde based in Fort Detrick.

Day Two-The tour proper started at 0800hrs on Friday 14 May 1999 and on driving through the main gates of Fort Detrick Brig Hughes was delighted to see his name and appointment flash up on the electronic welcome board. (Such are the marvels of modern technology!) The formal welcome and brigade briefing got under way, with excellent presentations on both the brigade and battalions' role. Prior to lunch in the Appalachian Chapter of the Signal Corps Regimental Association, Brig Hughes talked to the Officers and Senior NCOs about his experiences with SFOR whilst being the Chief CG6 (CIS) SFOR. His talk was very informative and extremely well received by all. The remainder of the day was spent touring the 1110th Bn whose main role is the provision of The US Defence Dept strategic communications and includes Defence Satellite Communications Systems (DSCS) or 'Diskus' earth Stations, and two HF gateway stations. Interestingly the US Army is also blighted with cost savings to the defence budget and as a result, is in the process of externalising these two HF facilities to contractors. We met a number of ex-military now working for Industry on government contracts during our tour of both the 1110th and 1111th Sig Bns. The 1110th Sig Bn are also responsible for the so-called Washington – Moscow 'Presidential Hotline' to the former Soviet Union, now known as the Direct Communications Link or DCL. This in fact was established in 1963 as a Teletype circuit and has since evolved into a broadcast system that includes dual satellite connectivity. In 1987, the DCL also added the US Nuclear Risk Reduction Centre to its mission; this was required to support the verification process of nuclear weapons destruction. We were told intriguing stories about the nature and tone of the dialogue between American and Russian technicians over the link, and how in the wake of the end of the former Soviet Union, questions about job prospects and salaries were regularly raised, funnily enough only by the Russian technicians! Day Two ended with an evening social in the Carriage House, Emmittsburg, PA, a country restaurant (billed as the opportunity to 'party with the Brits') with the Brigade Officers, partners and what, in true American PC language was termed as 'significant others'. Day Two also ended with NO line dancing and an early night. America it seemed had a culture of eat early, retire early, get up early, start work early.

Day Three-Saturday started with an early moving drive to Waynesboro, Pennsylvania for breakfast in a charmingly named Chestnut Logs diner prior to a tour of site 'R', home of the 1111th US Signal Bn. They are known somewhat euphemistically as 'The Signal Masters of the Rock', the rock referring to near the Blue Ridge Summit into which they are burrowed. The whole site is designed to withstand a nuclear attack and has an elaborate system of tunnels and gates to protect against an onslaught from 'who-knows-who' in this modern day era, though it is somewhat obvious who the original aggressor was perceived to be! The 1111th's mission (amongst many others) is the provision of operations and maintenance personnel in support of the Alternate Joint Communications Centre (AJCC), the transmission systems for HF radio and Information Systems, predominantly the Defence Information Systems Network or DSIN. We were given a presentation by Sgt Morton of the 1111th US Signal Bn on Operation 'Longhaul' the monthly and two weeks annual HF exercise between Site R and 31 Sig Regt. We were also given the opportunity to witness the Bde Comd's faultless typing skills as he merrily 'chatted' to the Brigade Yeoman somewhere in deepest Pirbright. After a thorough briefing and tour around the many underground facilities it was good to see daylight again and move onto the National Military Park at Gettysburg. Our tour guide was to be the plans officer and unit Historian, Leo S Prottsman, an extremely knowledgeable man who made the whole tour come 'alive'. Brig Hughes and Col Titus decided to do their own re-enactment of the famous tour by President Eisenhower and Field Marshall Montgomery and discuss tactics from a vantage point on the summit of Little Round Top. The evening duly arrived and after a superb meal courtesy of Mrs Titus, surely this was the night for line dancing? The arrival of Liz, the Bde Comd's good lady wife during the afternoon gave the perfect 'get out' for him not to partake. The CO decided that it would be inappropriate to 'up-stage' the Brigadier and it was left to yours truly to prove to our host that us Brits were game for anything. Lt Andy Rogers took me to what he described as the 'hottest' line-dancing pub in Maryland. From my point of view he was entirely right, as I witnessed eighteen year olds doing disco dancing in line dancing formations, not quite what I had imaged and certainly not what I intended to try and emulate. I had however got the closest to the action of all the touring party!

Day Four-Sunday was the day planned for the tour to Washington. Some favours by way of former members of the 1108th Bde, now working for the US Secret Service, were called in on our behalf to ensure that we were treated to special tour of both the communications section of the Secret Service and the White House. In a packed day the Washington Memorial Park was visited, the Pentagon City shopping mall via the Metro and the Smithsonian Air and Space Museum before in American parlance, 'handing off' the Bde Comd and Liz to the British Embassy.

Day Five-Now leaderless (the Bde Comd having left us) there was no one to pose the intelligent questions as we were shown around both Sites R and C. But in the event we were given a much relaxed final day and a lot of the time was spent chatting informally about our two nation's different approaches to military etiquette, before a final luncheon and an exchange of military regalia. A memorable trip for me and our hosts were absolutely first class; I very much look forward to being able to reciprocate in the not too distant future.

CO's DINING OUT

All change in the ivory tower as Colonel Jim arrives from MOD and we wave farewell to Lt Col Lapsley TD. We also say a sad farewell to our bookings clerk. Tracy, as SDR begins to bite. The Trg Maj, Maj Gus 'I'm not grumpy - it's just my Scottish accent' Colville disappears to play golf somewhere in Germany. He will be sadly missed by one and all. Maj Gordon Anderson moves from one ivory tower to the other as he is shortly due to arrive from HQ ROYAL SIGNALS

The CO, Lt Col Allan Lapsley, was dined out by the Officers Mess on 29 May 1999 by 80 officers and OCdts. The Scottish great and good came to the dinner included TA Colonel Scotland, Col John Thomson and 'SOinC Scotland', Col David McDowall. Sadly ACOS Reserves, Brig Andrew Durcan, was unable to attend. The 2IC, Maj David Harvey, was nervous about the dinner knowing the CO's penchant for fire and expolosives. In an effort to tie the CO to a desk he presented him with an antique oak desk from the CO's office on the grounds that the CO had never seen it before! The CO then made a 'serious' speech of thanks reminding the junior officers of old fashioned values and not a blind arrogance in IT. He also pointed out the importance of people, the meaning of Territorial and his pride in being part of the Brigade (52 Lowland). Just as the audience was starting to slumber the Junior Dorm, Capts Steve McBride, David McBride (no relation) Lt's Milne Weir, Ewan Weir (brothers) and OCdt Stuart (broken ribs) Wilson and Louis Velasco, donated some explosives covering the top table in gold sequins. The CO made his presentation to the Mess. This was a 4 inch 50 kilo mortar. To conclude his presentation he fired a complete 'fruit salad' over the junior dorm using the presentation mortar. We know what is meant by grapeshot. Revenge was taken by abseiling the CO from the top of the Drill Hall to a waiting rickshaw. To get value for money from the 'Coolie', Capt Ian Blower accompanied the CO. After much Mess rugby the night finished. Life will be a lot quieter when the Lord Lapsley moves to HQ Scotland.

RETIREMENT OF MAJOR (QM) GUS BOAG

Maj (QM) Gus Boag retired from the Corps in April 1999 having completed a long and successful career. He enlisted in May 1959 and underwent trade training with the All Arms Junior Leaders Regiment in Wales. As a TG Op he served in Catterick, Cyprus, Germany and Singapore before being posted to AAC Harrogate as an instructor. It was there that he embarked on an RD career which culminated in promotion to WO1 (RSM) and a posting to 31 Sig Regt (V). This was followed by an RSM appointment in the Falkland Islands with 266 Sig Sqn prior to commissioning and an appointment in 1 Div Sig Regt in Verden. During the four year tour he was promoted to Major and had the rare distinction of commanding a squadron. In March 1987, he was posted to Cyprus (again) as the Garrison Adjt in Dhekelia before returning to Harrogate (for the third time) as a Sqn Comd. In April 1992, he assumed a QM appointment in HQNI & 15 Sig Regt followed by a third tour in Cyprus with 9 Sig Regt. He completed his 40 year career as the QM of 32 Sig Regt (V) and has now moved onto greener pastures in the APC Reserve Wing. Gus Boag made many friends during his career and will be remembered for his contribution to the rugby fraternity, sense of humour, wilco attitude and friendship over the years. We all wish him every success in his second career.

EXERCISE EXECUTIVE STRETCH

The Regiment sponsored an Executive Stretch on Dreghorn Training Area in Edinburgh during the period 20–23 May 1999. Months of planning paid off as the Exercise ran smoothly with barely a glich. The logistical aspect was enormous but WO2 (RQMS) Dave Inman made light work of it and has declared that he can easily deputise for the QM when he goes for a holiday in Banja Luka. The RSM was given the opportunity to exhibit her talents as a compere; Chris Tarrant look out! The Foreman, SSgt Ally Duncan, took over the Yeoman's job and organised the comms. He and his tech team are also adept a putting up tents – we won't mention the big bottom lips on show. The weather wasn't particularly kind over the weekend but the Executives enjoyed the variety of tasks and produced superb 'skits' on the Saturday night, much to the chagrin of the Foreman and other PSIs who didn't get an invite to the show. The TA played a large role in preparing for and implementing the exercise and there are far too many names to mention in this article. However, some are worthy of special mention; Capt John Lynch and WO2 John Wren for providing excellent cuisine, as ever. Capts Domhall Dods, Dave McBride (REME), Lts Ewan Weir, Milne Weir, Patricia Baird, Lewis Smith and OCdt Stuart Wilson, who escorted the seven teams. Cpl Debbie Carruthers and LCpl Annette Fair who sorted out the executives' kit, more than once. Last, but not least, the Training Major, Gus Colville, who had many a sleepless night worrying about nothing.

REGULAR AND TA CORPS SAAM 1999

On Tuesday 6 April the Advance party from the Regiment travelled down to D Lines, Pirbright, to commence the admin support preparations for both CORPS SAAMs. In the ten days that the party were there the weather rotated through the seasons in that short period of time - 'Thank you Lord!' The Secretary Corps Shooting Capt Graham Reith thanks all the Admin Support Team for their sterling work throughout the period (it would not run so smoothly without you). It would not be fair to single out any one individual but a particular thank you goes out to Sgt Heidi Peebles who, as always, was the 'Carol Vorderman' of the week. Heidi, unfortunately has now resigned from the TA and we all wish you good fortune for the future.

OCdt Wilson, Sgt Dooner, Sig Borland, WO2 Smith and Brig Verey

Many congratulations to both teams who took part in the Corps SAAM. Happily we came away with some silver. 32 Sig Regt 'B' Team won the Combat Snap, Sig Borland won Best Female (Rifle) and Cpl Dodds received medal and bar for third place. Well done to all.

CONGRATULATIONS

Very many congratulations go to Sig James Reeve and his wife Angelina on the birth of their son Benjamin (on the first of April – it's no joke) our best wishes to your new family. Our photograph records well deserved recognition of valuable service to the Squadron by Cpl Linda Richardson with the presentation of her long service medal presented at Jardine Street by the Master of Signals. Well done to our Falklands veterans Cpls Rory Milne and 'Zig' Jamieson on their recent promotion.

Cpl Linda Richardson with the Master of Signals

FAREWELLS

The Squadron has reluctantly said farewell to our stalwart Sgt Maj Donald Webster. Donald was a valued Squadron member for more years than he cares to remember and will be sadly missed. His wife Sylvia should see a bit more of him now - but she keeps up the family tradition with her son Sig Scott Webster representing the family interest in the Squadron. Cheerio again to our Bosnia rep Sgt 'Scouse' Allen on his posting back to the sharp end - he knows Serbo -Croat for 'Beer' now so he should be OK.

WO2 Donald Webster and Sqn OC, Major Morna Strachan

ARRIVALS

The Squadron welcomes our new arrivals in the form of our cousins from the RE with CSgt Shand and Sgt Tervit from the Highlanders. Welcome all to 51 Sqn.

EXERCISE LAPSLEY`S LAST

The months of June and July saw the Squadron enter into its summer break but not before having a last Highland Fling for the outgoing CO, Lt Col Allan Lapsley. The 'fling' took the form of a nail-biting NCRS Exercise aptly named 'Lapsley`s Last'. (NCRS is not an acronym for 'not a complete radio system' but that's close enough at times.) A limited Regimental sponsored Exercise it was an opportunity to blow away a number of the NCRS cobwebs that had gathered over the intervening months. The Exercise also, as it turns out, was our last opportunity to make our farewells to Lt Patricia Baird who has decided on a career swap from Royal Signals to the Royal Army Medical Corps. She will be sadly missed for her constant smile (it's a beaut) and her common sense approach. We wish her well in her new career. The medics gain is definitely our loss.

CALEDONIAN CHALLENGE

It was at fairly short notice that the Squadron was tasked with check point communications for Ex Caledonian Challenge. This Exercise is set become a major event in the calendar of those who take delight in walking the length and breadth of the land. Briefly there was something in the region of eight hundred walkers on the West Highland way of Scotland trekking from North to South. The walk was scheduled over two days. Our task was to provide check-point communications. There was a fairly heavy Army in Scotland presence too with elements of the UOTC and RLC providing crucial feeding and resting services to the weary walkers. As it turned out the weather could not have been less favourable. It chucked it down non-stop for almost 24 hrs. Communication was entirely HF and was managed commendably by our PSI, Sgt Ian Stallard. For a Tech he did 'no bad' as they say. The Exercise also drew a few old salts out of the woodwork with even the venerable Maj 'Mayhem' Brian Murray operating a link with LCpl 'Victor' Robertson (although the necessities of a quiet B&B with restaurant facilities had to be supplied), so well did it all go that there is a serious danger that the Squadron will be similarly tasked next year (Aw Naw!)

CONGRATULATIONS

Miracles never cease and it was with delight that the Squadron is pleased to congratulate Cpl Fraser 'Smiler' Allan on his taking the plunge into wedlock. Congratulations are also in order for Sig Ilona Borland on her promotion to OCdt and to Cpl Jane Chisholm on at last reaching exalted portals of the Sergeants' Mess.

CHARITY ABSEIL

On Saturday 8 May a team of intrepid souls from the Squadron abseiled for a local blind charity 'Visses' from the top of the Edinburgh Holiday Inn. Tech PSI Sgt Ian 'Twist & Shout' Stallard organised the whole event on behalf of the Squadron much to the delight of his daughters who were watching below. The ten members of the team (Sig Lowe, Sig Henderson, Sig Darans, LCpl Robertson, Cpl Fair, Cpl Maclean, Sgt Taylor, Sgt Stallard, Lt Baird and Capt Dods) raised just short of £1000 between them.

Sig Robert Lowe confessed once he was on the roof that he was petrified of heights and had not abseiled since primary school when he was apparently 'too young and stupid' to know any better! The ex RM instructors were amazed at his novel way of starting the abseil (crawling over the edge and then hanging on to the building with both hands) but he soon overcame his nerves and dropped eight storeys to the ground. Only after the event did the rest of the team find out that there was a prize of a meal for two at the hotel for the person raising the most money - and the Squadron entry was all down as one lump sum under the name of?..... Sgt Stallard! He has promised to bring back a doggy bag if he wins.

DEPARTURES & WELCOMES

A warm welcome goes out to all the transferees from the Royal Engineers and the Lowlanders. A fond farewell to two of the Squadron's staunch members, WO2 (SSM) Gary Garland and SSgt Dave McGuire. The SSM is leaving for family reasons ('er indoors') to spend a bit more time with his young family. 'Mad-dog' McGuire is finally hanging up his spanner after many years of vehicle maintenance, (there are rumours that he once worked on chariots!) Goodbye and good luck for the future.

Congratulations to the following people on their recent promotion to Lance Corporal:

32 SIGNAL REGIMENT (VOLUNTEERS) PERFORMS CEREMONIAL PUBLIC DUTIES AT EDINBURGH CASTLE

The Regiment offered to undertake a weekend of Castle Guard at Edinburgh Castle during July 1999. The event was successful beyond all expectations and those who took part should be congratulated for the effort and determination they put in to ensure that the event went so well. As can be expected there were many fraught moments throughout the preparation and training phase, not least of which was the task of obtaining No1 Dress. The QM, Maj 'Whistler' Ted Dudding, WO2 (RQMS) Dave 'Come to my flat warming' Inman and WO2 (RQMS) (V) Norma 'I'm not saying the Adjt is fat - but ..' Sproul are to be congratulated on their bulldog like tenacity in acquiring No1 Dress. It is exceptionally rare that the Regiment is given the opportunity to perform Ceremonial Duties and there were no shortage of volunteers for this event. The RSM, WO1 'Marvellous' Hilborn and WO2s Kelly and Crockett shared the drill instruction. After many weekends of training, don't we know it RSM, the soldiers put out a performance worthy of a Guardsman. It is said Edinburgh Castle attracts approx 6000 visitors a day during peak season, so there should be thousands of people around the world showing 32 (S) Sig Regt (V) (and the Jimmy) on their photos.

RSM WO1 (RSM) R. D. Cowan

The Regiment deployed onto Ex Able Condor and Ex Northern Warrior as part of its Annual Camp during June/July 1999. During this intense period of Regimental communications and military skills training we also saw the hand-over and take-over of RSM's. Outgoing was WO1 (RSM) Kev Hallett and incoming was WO1 (RSM) Rod Cowan. The hand-over took place in the field in Otterburn with the new RSM being shown around all of the Squadrons deployed into the field. During their travels the two RSM's managed to get stopped by the Military Police on three occasions and checked for their FMT 600's and correct vehicle documentation. The final week of Annual Camp included auditions for 33 Sig Regt's 'Girl Power' pop group. The Commanding Officer was not successful.

EXERCISE ABLE CONDOR (UK) 20-25 JUNE 1999

Annual Camp 1999 was unusual in that it took place over a three week period commencing with a full scale Brigade FTX and continuing with a fortnight's trade training in two different locations. For the first six days the Squadron, along with 1000 other members of 11 Sig Bde, took part in Commander 11 Sig Bde's Annual Exercise. This was to practise the deployment of Communications and Information Systems (CIS) in support of the Joint Rapid Reaction Force (JRRF), Allied Command Europe Rapid Reaction Corps (ARRC) and the command posts of subordinate formations. Units were then to utilise the remaining period to conduct their own field training. Able Condor provided 'Total Training' for all involved and in addition to practising communication and IS skills the Exercise included range work, first aid, NBC, recce training, FIBUA, a live enemy and vehicle recovery.

EXERCISE NORTHERN WARRIOR 25 JUNE – 12 JULY 1999

33 Sig Regt(V) deployed directly from their last field locations on Ex Able Condor to commence Ex Northern Warrior. The Exercise was based initially at Otterburn TC for a week with the final week taking place at Whitburn TC near Sunderland. This proved to be a valuable time during which literally many lessons were learnt and qualifications gained.

Before commencing Ex Northern Warrior, a day's R and R was enjoyed with the majority of the Regiment descending on the flesh pots of Newcastle. An alternative tour to visit the ancient town of Hexham and see Hadrian's Wall was sadly under-subscribed and the short wheel base landrover provided by the MTO was more than sufficient for the job of transportation.

Most of the Squadron returned to Manchester after the Otterburn week having completed their camp commitment while the remainder deployed, along with the regular staff, to sunny Whitburn by the Sea, near Sunderland. This last week on camp completed the Northern Warrior trade phase of Camp 1999 and concluded a thoroughly comprehensive period of training which the Regiment, as a whole, can take great pride in.

SQUADRON FOFS HANDOVER/TAKEOVER

The Squadron said goodbye to SSgt (FofS) Colin Hamilton early in June this year. Colin 'Pieman' Hamilton had arrived on promotion fresh from his Foremans course and proved right from the start to be an inspiration to all members of the Squadron. Not only is he an outstanding Foreman, but also a great motivator in other areas of Squadron life. A familiar sight on Squadron adventurous training weekend, towing his speedboat with his 4x4 Landrover Safari, he lives life to the full and gives much of his own time to benefit others. He left on promotion to WO2 and a dream posting to 9 Sig Regt (Radio) in Cyprus. All members of the Squadron wish both him and Wendy an enjoyable and successful tour. He is replaced by SSgt (FofS) Clapham who was thrown in at the deep end with all the inevitable pre-camp preparation and planning to contend with. However, he took to this like a duck to water and has soon filled the boots left behind. As seems 'de rigueur' these days for Foremen, he too has a 4x4 jeep and arrives at work on a very slinky Suzuki 600. Needless to say all ranks wish him and his family an interesting and rewarding time with the Squadron.

SSgt (FofS) Hamilton passes over the secret to his success, plenty of Boddingtons bitter, to his successor SSgt (FofS) Clapham

55 (MERSEYSIDE) SIGNAL SQUADRON (V)

For our ardent readers who are still not quite clear this Squadron has been renamed from HQ Squadron to 55 (Merseyside) Signal Squadron. This reflects the demise of 55 Squadron in Aintree and the move of most of its members to Huyton and Deysbrook Barracks. However, the change of name does not mean any change in its role or taskings from our great neighbour RHQ!

The Squadron's main effort during this period has been the work up to and then the execution of our Annual Camp 'Ex Able Condor'. What appeared to be a fairly straightforward camp soon became increasingly more confusing. Our responsibility for the move of the Brigade to its concentration area took most of our resources and drivers! Also the dreaded numerals 711 reared their ugly head again as we were tasked to field 11 Sig Bde HQ. This task was ably undertaken by the Troop Commander, Lt Lyn Reardon supported by WO2 'Thank God I've been reprieved' Daniels and WO2 RQMS 'I'm not really that old' Harry Harper. The first week of camp was a field communications exercise in the East of England with the majority of the Squadron spread out over Lincolnshire and Yorkshire, with the second week in the ever welcoming barracks of Otterburn Camp.

The Otterburn phase was for trade training and what seemed to be as many visits from outside agencies as possible. Amongst the list of dignitaries was Comd 11 Sig Bde, Comd 42 (NW) Bde, the Mayor of Halton and the Mayor of Knowsley. All of which required various forms of dinners, lunches and drinks. Add to that the change over of RSM's and you can see how diverse our week was. We also managed to fit in an officers Mess Dinner night as we dined out Capt 'I tell the worst jokes in the world' Range and the Padre John Williams. As is the way nowadays only one of them will be replaced and it would seem that our spiritual needs are far more important than our need for a Tech Adjt. So we welcomed Padre Rex Buckley to our flock and only hope he can remember the words of our Regimental Grace.

Not content with the standard vehicles issued to the Regiment the PSAO Capt Bob 'I'm only going to camp if I can take a motorbike' Dobson somehow managed to get hold of two Harley Davidsons. Well not really Harleys but the standard issue motorcycle given to RLC Regiments. The plan was to enable members of the Regiment to familiarise themselves with motorcycles, however, it was more commonly thought that the PSAO was internally recruiting for the Huyton Chapter of the local Hells Angels! The bikes were regularly used and you could often see the RAO on one having made some weak excuse to ride one.

Without a doubt the Exercise was a success for the Regiment. Plenty of lessons were learnt and in some cases re-learnt, but the most important thing was that everyone enjoyed themselves and returned home safely.

EXERCISE ABLE CONDOR

Ex Able Condor was the name given to the Brigade FTX which began with the squadron moving into a concentration area at Grantham. We began this phase with a PACEX to confirm equipment and manpower availability and serviceability.

Sig 'Bambi' Roberts and Sig 'Slug' Patterson doing what they do best

After the PACEX we moved North through a concentration area which was soured by a road traffic accident but we can report that Cpl Paul Asquith is now up and walking with no long term injuries. The Exercise began in earnest and as always there would be no success without a good black hand gang.

LCpl Mick Philburn showing the Hon Col around his Radio Relay Det

The final location for the exercise saw the Squadron co-located with a detachment from 40 Sig Regt (V). The joint cookhouse worked well although the language barrier between 'Scouse' and Irish was a slight hindrance. During the Exercise we were visited by our Hon Col, Col Peter Toyne who is Vice Chancellor of John Moores University, Liverpool.

EXERCISE NORTHERN WARRIOR

The Second phase of the Annual Camp was training which included trade, military and sports acitivies. The Regimental Cadre Course saw LCpl Kev Tilley adjudged best student and LCpl Jim Goodhall voted most improved student. Our success in the sports event was limited to the Tug of War, which was to be expected given the weight advantage.

The Squadron did make the final at football, rounders and volley ball but the cricket team need definitely needed more practice.

80 (CHESHIRE YEOMANRY) SIGNAL SQUADRON

A complex camp with a week of Ex Able Condor, and two weeks of trade and driver training, all put together by TM, Maj Carl Storey. Ex Able Condor Week One – 2Lt Lorraine Cox's first command. A job she did with a great deal of skill and professionalism. Well done Lorraine. Her efforts and those of Cpl Piper and LCpl Dace were fundamental to her site being chosen for several VIP visits, not least of who was CinC Land. Lt Chris Hughes, now Troop Commander for 031, vice Capt Bill Dixon (now Sqn 2IC) had a good camp. Most of the rumours, fortunately proved to be unfounded and he did manage to communicate at one point holding the Brigade plan together single handedly. Sounds familiar? WO2 SSM Bob Taylor experienced his last camp this year after loyal service, going back to pre-history. I am sure that the six Monarchs he has served are all very grateful for his help. Looking ahead, Squadron members are eagerly anticipating forthcoming events in Belize, Canada, Kenya and FRY.

35 (SOUTH MIDLANDS) SIGNAL REGIMENT (VOLUNTEERS)

ANNUAL TRAINING

For the second successive year our annual training was to take place in the UK. We had already enjoyed the picturesque, mythological and historical surrounds of Cornwall last year now we turned our attention to God's country and the outstanding natural beauty of North Yorkshire. Although arriving at a rain lashed Wathgill Training Camp after an uneventful journey on a not so bright Saturday 12 June, may have encouraged some other extreme views about the local countryside, including the imminent arrival of the Lampton Worm from across the border! However, as they say you can never get a tan from standing in the English rain and fortunately fair weather moved in from the South during the following day and it stayed that way for the next seven days.

LCpl Michelle Carvell complete with tactical make-up

The first week of camp concentrated on developing and improving military and leadership skills with a few fun elements thrown in such as tactical helicopter flights, off road day and night driving and driving Challenger Tanks over Catterick Training Area to provide a welcome respite and alternative to the arduous training. Not so welcome, however, was the Padre's elevation to the rank of Cannon when he shot out of the Turret of a Challenger followed by the Tank Commander, both of whom suffered some rather nasty blows to their dignity as well as cuts and bruises. The driver, who just happened to be the Training Major, Maj Tudor Ford, escaped unscathed except for the continuous ribbing that continued for days after. Meanwhile, following his recovery, the Padre when asked if he wanted to join the Training Major in a Gazelle Helicopter not so gracefully declined! The rest of the week which included tactical river crossings, section attacks during the day and night and a series of exciting and colourful ambushes, despite some near misses remained incident free.

That is until the first TA CFT followed by an assault course competition (which by the way was won by 48 Sqn after an exceptional performance) that was also followed by organised Sports, which I have to report caused a few casualties. Fortunately these were few although our sympathy and support is extended to Sgt Alan Vowles who is still nursing a broken tendon following the cricket competition - he survived everything else that was thrown at him but the cricket proved to be the last straw!

In the Bush - patiently awaiting the Section Attack

The final week of camp concentrated on improving our communication skills and started with a Regimental Exercise throughout the Catterick and Richmond area which proved extremely successful in shaking off the cobwebs. This was followed by a full scale Brigade deployment to a concentration area just outside Grantham, where we were joined by our sister Regiments, with the exercise then moving progressively North. This very successful camp concluded with many (bemused & surprised) elements of the Regiment negotiating the Fibua at Gandale Camp in Catterick. Notable visitors during our annual training included the Lord Mayor of Birmingham, The Mayor Of Shrewsbury, ACOS G6 LAND, Brig James Shaw, Comd 143 Bde, Brig John King Comd 11 Sig Bde and Brig Jonathan Cook. As they say every picture tells a story and we make no apology in making these particular regimental notes principally a photographic memory (less the Fibua) of Annual Camp.

A delicate operation that demands total concentration!

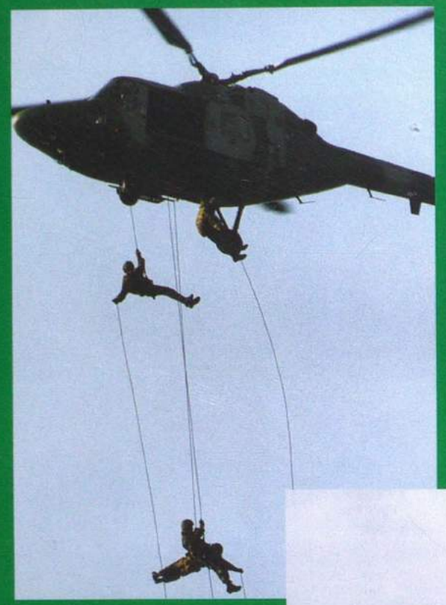
OFFICER COMMANDING - MAJOR I. HOOPER
REGIMENTAL SERGEANT MAJOR - WO1 (RSM) G. HODGSON



COLCHESTER

On 3 September 1999, 16 Air Assault Brigade was officially launched at Wattisham, Suffolk in the presence of HRH the Prince of Wales. The demonstration included insertion of an all arms grouping by parachute, TALO and support helicopter, just some of the new Brigade's capabilities. 16 Brigade is a unique and revolutionary formation within the Army, with three aviation regiments, three infantry battalions, two of which are parachute trained, and enhanced combat and combat service support. Starting in 2002 the Aviation Regiments will convert to the Apache AH-64D Attack Helicopter providing a powerful striking force for rapid reaction and other operations.

The 3 September also marked the formation of 16 Air Assault Brigade Headquarters and Signal Squadron (216) which will provide command support to the brigade on operations and exercise. The Squadron is formed from 24 Airmobile Brigade Signal Squadron and elements of 5 Airborne Brigade Signal Squadron, 25 members of which moved from Aldershot to Colchester on 1 September. The Squadron retains the ability to field fully airmobile Brigade Main, Step Up and Tac Headquarters with Ptarmigan access, and airmobile rebroadcast and special task detachments. A new Troop, C Troop, forms to provide a focus for the Parachute Tac Headquarters which the Squadron will deploy to support the Airborne Battlegroup. Despite the inevitable and proper focus on future technology, in particular the Attack Helicopter, the Squadron remains acutely aware of its heritage and determined to promote links with its forebearers: airmobile, airborne and aviation. It was therefore entirely appropriate that on the weekend immediately following the Brigade launch the Squadron attended the Royal Signals Old Comrades Association weekend at Caythorpe, in Suffolk. The 'striking eagle' was very much in evidence as responsibility for supporting the OCA weekend passed from Aldershot to Colchester. The event served as a timely reminder that when the 1st Airborne Division was formed in late 1941 it consisted of 1st Parachute Brigade, 1st Airlanding Brigade and glider units; the maroon beret being the head-dress of all ABF including glider and airlanding troops.

All Brigade units wear a new insignia. The 'Gryphons Wings' and 'Pegasus' insignia, both of which were awarded by Major General 'Boy' Browning have been superseded by the 16 Brigade 'Striking' Eagle. The eagle, already locally christened 'Eddie', is based on a design used by the Special Training Centre in Scotland in 1943-45. The Eagle is mounted on a quartered light blue and maroon shield, the colours representing the key constituents of the new Brigade. The Signal Squadron also wears the maroon beret and Royal Signals LZ flash.

KOSOVO

As the majority of 16 Brigade Signal Squadron watched the Brigade launch at Wattisham, the 37 strong 'K Troop' which deployed to Kosovo in early August prepared for its own celebrations to mark the occasion. The Troop is deployed principally in Pristina with detachments throughout Kosovo, on the Kosovo/Macedonia border, the Macedonia/Greek border and in Thessaloniki in Greece. 'Striking Eagles' and maroon berets were sewn and shaped in secret and over 200 guests invited from 102nd Brigade and Royal Signals units in theatre, including 7th Signal Regiment, 30th Signal Regiment and 19 Mechanised Brigade Headquarters and Signal Squadron (209). Guests, including Major General Elliot and Brigadier Stiern were issued with a celebratory 'punch' on arrival which was within the letter if not the spirit of 'Two can rule,' and an unlikely but very appropriate combination of The Royal Irish Folkband 'The Wolfhounds' with guest lead guitar and vocalist Padre 'Kev the Rev' Ball providing entertainment throughout. The metre square eagles staring down from every available high spot left no-one in any doubt as to the reason for the celebrations.

216 Signal Squadron looks forward to its first exercise in the Air Assault role in October. Ex Gryphons Eye will test the Squadron's ability to provide command support to parachute and helicopter delivered forces in a demanding and rigorous scenario. In the forthcoming year 16 Air Assault Brigade HQ & Signal Squadron (216) looks forward to continuing to play a central role in the development of command support to air manoeuvre, with exercises in Canada and Malaysia in the year 2000.

36 (EASTERN) SIGNAL REGIMENT (VOLUNTEERS)

CO Lt Col J.A . Allan TD
RSM WO1 (RSM) R. J. Stanton

WELCOME

Big welcomes (at long last!) go to Capt Rod Allen, PSAO Colchester and Capt Ernie Feasey, PSAO Ilford. You're both here now and for a lot longer than the Editor! I hope you enjoy the next 15 years or so with the Regiment. The Regiment and especially the RQMS, WO2 (RQMS) Tony Gaston, welcomes Maj (QM) Phil Daisey and his wife into the fold all the way from the easy life at 11 Bde HQ. (Note the large hatstand in your office and the RQs leave pass, Sir!) We also say welcome to that famous duo (already), the regular element of the Ops Team, WO2 (FofS) Phil Holland and family and SSgt (YofS) Tony Martin and family who have both moved up from Blandford. May your sense of humour remain intact and your blood pressure low! We also welcome Cpl Ballard to the Regiment and more importantly to the Tech Workshops because Sgt Kev East can now be IC workshops with someone to be in charge of! Sgt Tim Gamble has now arrived from Blandford and will become PSI HQ Sqn, which releases SSgt Si Hill to move upstairs to the Training Office. We also say a big hello to Mr Mark Little who joins us as a civilian driver in Ilford, but we also say farewell, temporarily as Mark is a Corporal with 4 RGJ(V) and has been called up for six months service in Kosovo!

FAREWELL

We say farewell to Sgt Aden 'Bad Back' Whitty who is leaving the Army to go to college. Good luck for the future.

REGIMENTAL DRILL COMPETITION

I know, I know, TA and Drill are like Chalk and Cheese, but last year SSgt Glen Baker suggested to the RSM, WO1 Bob Stanton, that the Regiment needed a good old fashion drill competition. Now the RSM was having none of it, thinking that the Regiment was brilliant at drill, but Glen knew better and went down on bended knees and pleaded mercy. The RSM, with a tear in his eye, let Glen have his way and went off to the medical centre in search of an FMed 8 for his trusty Troop Staffy. Nine months later we were in Colchester for the competition. SSgt Anita Smith, PSI 44 Sig Sqn, had jacked up a horse racing night for the troops' entertainment on the Saturday night, which went down very well, especially as someone had let SSgt Gaz Sullivan loose to name the horses! Although, in the last race the horse with the form all evening was bought by the said PSI and LCpl Mark Mossop and actually failed to start! OOPS! SSgt Glen Baker bought the winner and ended up £40.00 better off. In the winners enclosure he made a comment to the fact that he had trained the horse on Fosters lager! Sunday morning soon arrived and it was down to business on the drill square, which was organised by WO1 (RSM) 'I've got no money but I'll just keep bidding for a horse anyway' Stanton. After a long and arduous morning with the sun beating down, the teams were formed up and given the results by the CO, Lt Col Jackie Allan TD. HQ Sqn came a creditable third, considering the lack of experience, 757 from Cambridge came second, led by Sgt Julie 'I think I'll just have a lie down during rehearsals' Cole, but in first place was 754/756 Troops from Bedford led by SSgt Sue 'It's all down to you' Baker, who just happens to be married to SSgt Glen Baker who suggested the idea in the first place! AND just to make things a little bit spookier, the drill cup was originally presented by Lt Col Baker WRAC. Who was it that said 'The writings on the Cup?' Following the Drill Competition, the very next weekend, just happened to be the Freedom of Redbridge Parade. Wasn't that a coincidence! Good thinking Staff. Maybe that's why the Officers were practising sword drill behind that building while the troops were marching.

REGIMENTAL GOLF

You would be correct in thinking that the Adjt, Capt Scitt Younggsen, wrote these notes but unfortunately he didn't, which makesWO1 (RSM) Bob Stanton still the best golfer in the Regiment! However, last week the Regimental Golf Society did manage to get out and let off steam. Some, like Sgt Pete Stidwell did it by losing the odd ball (try facing down the fairway next time!), others like WO2 Gary Stevens AGC decided he would combine two sports and went 'fish aiming'. SSgt Gaz Tuff didn't bother with a buggy this time, why was that? At the same time, members from the Regiment were playing the semi-finals of the Regimental Knockout Competition. Capt Rod Allen was beaten by SSgt (SQMS) Ray Whall and Maj Dave Watson pipped Capt Len Carr. In the Stapleford Competition Mr Paul Burton RSA romped home with 41 points, with SSgt (SQMS) Ray Whall second in the Group 1 match (u24HCap) and Maj Dave Watson, 34 points beat Sgt Gaz Tuff into second place with 30 points in the Group 2 match, (24 HCap and over). A good day out which was enjoyed by all with many thanks to SSgt (SQMS) Ray Whall for organising the event and to Paul Burton and Brian Carroll from the East London Branch of the Royal Signals Association for the tickets. Cheers lads.

FREEDOM OF REDBRIDGE PARADE

Preparation began in earnest last January for the Regiment to exercise its right to the Freedom of the Borough of Redbridge, to be held on Saturday 17 July 1999. Various tasks were assigned to the personalities and the Mayor's Officer was consulted, along with the local police. Instructions were then despatched to the outlying Squadrons. The week preceding the parade saw members of HQ Sqn entering the drill competition and coming third place, above 44 and 45 Sig Sqns, which was excellent news. The next day members of the Squadron assembled at Ilford to begin the real work of setting up the TA Centre and especially the field at the rear, where the Regiment would enjoy itself after the parade. WO2 (RQMS) Tony Gaston had the loan stores piled high in the garages and all that was required was for us to erect all of the tentage and fill them with 6ft GS tables and benches! The idea was to form a horse-shoe shape of tents for VIPs and Squadrons with the open space for the Band and family fun activities.

The Regimental PSIs were due to arrive and assist but isn't it amazing how many people can get on courses, leave, farewell lunches and even a 7-day 'bad back' chit! However, two stalwarts came to the fore in the shape of WO2 (RAOWO) Gary Stevens AGC and Sgt Pete Stidwell and I think Gary learned the most - it's not that easy stitching four 18 x 24s together, when you've never seen one before, is it? By Thursday evening the place looking thoroughly professional. The grass had been cut by Caroline, our resident caretaker, the tents were up and the bar's and barbecues were all in position. This would not have happened without the superb commitment from the following TA personnel WO1 (SVWO) Mick Grimshaw, Cpl Alan Bell, Sigs 'George' Pearce and 'Dennis' Owen. Thank-you very much. By the way SSgt Gaz Tuff and Sgt Ian Chappell did turn up on Friday, in time to sweep the roads!

Saturday soon arrived and so did the buses from Bedford, Cambridge, Norwich, Colchester, Warley, Grays and Southend. WO1 (RSM) Bob Stanton got them all on parade to sort out who was marching (possessed No 2 dress) and those who were to carry security and admin tasks (didn't possess No 2 dress). WO2 (MTWO) Steve Kentish was IC Security and WO1 (SVWO) Mick Grimshaw drew the short straw and got the admin party. After a few rehearsals, the Regiment were formed up and at 1145hrs Lt Col Jackie Allan TD took command of her Regiment, gave a few well chosen words and then ordered her Regiment to March through the streets of the Borough of Redbridge, led by the band of 34 (Northern) Sig Regt (V) by kind permission of Lt Col David Hargreaves (an ex-Tp Comd of 36 Sig Regt). Behind the marching troops came WO2 (RQMS) Eddie Kikas carrying the Regimental Standard, flanked by standards of three Royal Signals Associations in our area. These were followed up by a vehicle procession (coach and all!) commanded by Capt Robin Needham REME and were prepared by SSgt Tony Dale REME, PSI LAD.

The Regiment passed the Town Hall and the salute was taken by the Worshipful the Mayor of Redbridge, Cllr F. K. Maravala and the GOC London District, Maj Gen E. J. Webb-Carter OBE. In the afternoon, the Mayor's party, GOC and ex-COs of the Regiment were invited to a barbecue lunch with the Regiment and their families. It was a really hot day and the PSAOs and SSgt (NRPS) did a splendid job supplying cold refreshments to all, while the chefs under the watchful eye of Sgt Norma Miller-Knight produced a super lunch.

It is changeover time at the Regiment. Maj John Duggan has come across from 53 Sig Sqn to takeover the role of 21C Regt bringing his bottles of red with him. Maj Stewart McConnell lost his hair but passed his exams and is off to Blandford for the CISM degree, with Maj Nik Beecher stepping in for five months until he goes off to do a degree. Capt Sara Copley has now moved on to Corsham with Capt Lynn Burrell taking over as Adjt. Big congratulations to the RSM on being selected for a commission. Will he now change his name?!

LANYARD TROPHY MARCH 6 MAY 1999

The arduous competition commenced at 0530 hours on 6 May at the Kent County Showground, near Maidstone. The first obstacle to cross was the very busy A249 and the gates into the show-ground itself. The ten strong team were not put off by this and set off at a cracking pace unaware that SSgt Graeme Smith intended this to be the speed of march throughout the 40 miles. The team quickly realised that SSgt Smith had told a few white lies and the team was not going to walk at the speed of the slowest member of the team! The team was harangued through each checkpoint with only two minutes to shovel down cold pasta, salt and fruit bars - all very tasty! The admin support of Cpl (now Sgt) Cindy Meller and LCpl Windle both of 93 Sig Sqn did the team proud and was invaluable in keeping the team going. The limited training that the team was able to undertake due to civilian work commitments paid off and the team was exceptionally strong. After finishing last in the previous year's competition the team finished a credible third in the TA competition and Tenth out of 29 overall. This was a marked improvement and much credit must go to SSgt Graeme Smith for training and leading the team. There are, however, no thanks to him for all his abuse throughout the event and his inability to give accurate measurements of how far we still had to march!

EXERCISE MINOAN DRAGON
THE WHITE MOUNTAINS OF WESTERN CRETE

An expedition of 18 led by Maj Stewart 'The Mountain Goat' McConnell flew out to the White Mountains of Western Crete in April. The expedition followed the escape route of the Allied POW's during the German invasion of Crete in 1941. LCpl Kev Hall and Sig Steve 'Mother me please' Edwards looked like escaped POWs. The first day involved climbing the Soros and Kastro Mountains before descending down the Imbros gorge. Apart from the spectacular sights occasionally witnessed whilst enduring 'P Company' in Crete, a major highlight was watching SSgt (FofS) Andy Burns being swooped upon by a Golden Eagle on Soros Mountain. WO2 (SSM) Joe 'I've got water and you can't have it' Krikorian commented on the eagle's ferocious appetite for vermin! The scaling of the Samaria Gorge provided the group with a big challenge and a chance to tell lots of tall tales after as to how high the water was in the gorge. The 'challenge' even brought on the illness of the Special Forces Greek Officer who had to be rested and then evacuated. The following day the ascent of Melindau Mountain was more like the battle for Tumbledown as everyone clung to the rocks, battered by wind and sleet - in Crete! The theme entertainment nights held each night after the walking proved educational for all with haggis being fed to the locals. The adventures continued as the group returned to UK and the escapades of the red bus began but that is another story.

MARCH THROUGH BLACKBURN

July 1, 1916 was the first day of the Battle of the Somme, a battle that would go on until 13 November 1916 and would claim 420,000 British lives. Units from the entire British Army and from all parts of these islands would fight and die there. It was the introduction of the 'Pals' battalions, so called because they were raised from the communities they lived in, for the first time in a major battle. Many of these came from the North of England and so the anniversary of the battle is especially poignant in the mill towns of Lancashire. For the first time in the area, 93 Sig Sqn (V) were invited to take part in a march past, through the town of Blackburn. On 3 July, the nearest day to the anniversary, the Squadron formed up and led by the band of the Lancastrian Brigade and the colours of the Queen's Lancashire Regiment, set off through the town. The Squadron also provided two pike men, LCpl Tony Windle and Sig Stuart Reid to act as the escort for the VIP dais. Taking the salute were the Mayor of Blackburn, a visiting French Mayor from the area of the battle and the Commanding Officer of the 4th Queens Lancashire Regiment. Although humid, the weather stayed fine and the town's folk, many of whose grandfathers were among the fallen, gave the parade their hearty support.

THIRTY YEARS ON

Following the reforming of the TAVR in 1968, a regional Signal Squadron was formed in June 1969, in the town of Blackburn, as part of 38 Sig Regt (V). Thirty years later, 93 Sig Sqn (V) held an anniversary party to celebrate its continuing success. As many of the 'old hands' that could be contacted were invited and over 120 people attended. The Squadron, now part of 37 Sig Regt (V), still resides in its original barracks in Canterbury Street, which was built for the East Lancashire Militia in 1869. A double anniversary was celebrated, 30 years for the Squadron and 130 for our barracks. The theme of the night was the '60's' and Squadron members excelled themselves by turning up in kaftans, Afro wigs and flower power regalia. SSgt Pierre Harris and SSgt 'Buzz' Small erected some fine backdrops whilst the auntie of Lt Julie Lodge prepared a magnificent cake. SSgt Dan Locker gave us his Status Quo impression, which always goes down well. A great evening was had by all and now we need an excuse to hold another one.

It was 'Brief Encounters of the Squaddie Kind' as described by members of 96 Sig Sqn ascending Mount Snowdon on Ex Merlin's Mist. Brief being due to the speedy, unplanned and uncoordinated descent made by LCpl 'Bowdy Gordy' Gray down the slippery slope of shale. Two groups of shameless beer connoisseurs battled against time and flag-proud venture scouts to reach the summit, with the slender stick insect posse plus Sig 'Fat-Boy-Now-Slimmer' Nursall reaching the summit and pub two hours ahead of schedule. The alternative plan for the descent came into effect when we realised not enough money could be mustered between us to pay for the train! Still we came down a lot quicker than we went up which was just as well as somebody (who shall remain anonymous) had left the minibus lights on. The following day proved just as much fun, although a little more painful as with bumps and bruises one group went riding their penny farthings whilst the other risked life and limb on the rock-face. Sig 'Bush on a Bush' managed to be belayed to the top of the face without touching anything he was supposed to be climbing and proved such an inspiration that to save Sgt Brooke's nerves the adventure was cancelled and replaced with the use of an indoor wall. The evening's entertainment proved a revelation, culminating in a scantily clad posse re-enacting the 'charge of the light tackle brigade'. Near death experiences were had by all!

SOinC(A)'s VISIT TO EXERCISE SILVER LYNX

Brig Burton visited the Regiment during Ex Silver Lynx on Saturday 10 July 1999. He received a whistle stop tour by helicopter around all of the Exercise locations including:

a. Longmoor Training Area - Regimental briefing followed by a visit to 57 Squadron.
b. Bramley - 'Bite to eat' with 47 Squadron and the recruits.
c. Camberley Training Area - Visit to 5 Squadron.
d. Return to Longmoor - Visit to HQ Squadron.

The SOinC(A) was party to a number of events during his visit, including a phantom pregnancy as part of the Exercise play!

SOinC(A) mulls over with Sig Wells how big she might have become if really pregnant!

EXERCISE LIVELY LYNX 4-6 JUNE 1999

Well done to 57 Sqn for putting forward two competitive teams for this year's Lively Lynx. Lt Moseley led the 57 Alpha Team with a brave but injured Sgt Zamparelli to Third place. Lt Ackroyd and Sgt 'Badger' Gresswell led 57 Bravo in a truly 'Bravo two Zero' assault on both the grenade posting and casevac stands. The team missled the DS time and again as they boxed around the objective. LCpl Dyer and LCpl 'SAS' Allen led assault teams and assaulted a concrete OP like no other. Excellent effort was shown by Sig Baldwin and Sig King - who looked shell shocked on arrival - having both only recently completed recruit weekends 1 to 4. Top marks go to Sig Hill for shooting after the march 36/50 and Lt Ackroyd, Sig Hawkins and LCpl Dyer. Congratulations to LCpl Estcourt for swallowing her pride, dented due to the fact she was unable to do her hair for the team photo! A big thanks goes to Sig 'Plank' Normile after he aided his team by becoming a human bridge in the command task.

OXFORD TROOP

Following SDR, accommodation has been earmarked for the formation of a detached Signal Troop at Slade Park TAC in Oxford. Early indications suggest this will be a successful venture for the Squadron. We have already welcomed three female members of the RGJ transferring to Royal Signals to serve with the detachment. If you are leaving the Regular Corps and want to continue serving Royal Signals, and moving to the Oxford Area, give us a call - 01295 262178 or call into the Banbury TAC Tuesday Training evening.

WELCOMES AND FAREWELLS

We would like to welcome Sgt Chris Stuart (PSI (Tech)) and his family to Banbury. Capt 'Chuck' Robertson ex-Corps and RAF has taken a commission and the appointment of Second in Command. OCdt Simon Durtnal Ex 1 Signal Squadron has passed TCB and is off to RMAS in September 1999. LCpl Lorraine Hamilton from the Royal Engineers, Sigs Lucy Corr, Maxine Sample and Sorcha Diskin from the RGYRRV. Welcome to you all, we hope you enjoy life with the Squadron. Sgt Robbie Hall has now had two farewells, which will probably have increased to four, and a welcoming to the TA party, by the time these notes are published. WO2 (YofS) Debbie Frankham left the Squadron and the TA in July 1999 after 13 years dedicated service to the Squadron and 39th (Skinners) Sig Regt, Private WRAC to the very first Female WO2 (YofS). Debbie Frankham was the senior female member of the Squadron. She was respected by all ranks and provided only the very best support and advice throughout her time. As a Yeoman she served the Squadron and Regiment eminently providing expert advice on all communication and training matters. Sadly the demands of her new found civilian career have had to take priority over service in the Reserve Army.

PROMOTIONS

Well done to LCpl Sean Buckley Chef, Cpl Steve Oliver, Cpl Sharon Scutt Chef and WO2 (SSM) Ray 'Super Chit' Phillips. There have been so many promotions this last month we are seriously thinking of forming a campanology group!!

EXERCISE BRAMBLE LYNX 18-20 JUNE 1999
by SSgt 'Scouse' Simcock, PSI (Ops)

Ex Bramble Lynx 99 was the 5(QOOH) Sqn military training Exercise held at Yardley Chase Training Area, over the weekend of 18-20 June 1999. It was designed to practice the Squadron's ability to train up to and including platoon level drills in the field. It was a fully tactical, with arms, squadron military training exercise designed to improve the military skills of all personnel within the Squadron and to prepare them fully for any future Regimental Exercises or deployments! That said let's see what really happened! On a bright sunny June evening they all turned up - it was one of the biggest deployments the squadron was to face all year - with eyes wide open they turned up through the gates of 5(QOOH) TAC. You could hear their minds ticking away with all sorts of questions - were they going to get much sleep this weekend? - was it worth them bringing their quilts with them or do they have to bring sleeping bags? - do we get to roll round in the mud and wear cam cream all weekend? - the questions where all burning in their minds. Eventually under the guidance of the acting platoon OC, SSgt Judith Phillips and platoon Sergeant, Sgt Paul Milner, the Squadron managed to reach the initial grid at Yardley Chase (Northampton is a nice place to drive around after all!). After camming all vehicles the platoon set off with full kit to their initial harbour area to get some well-deserved sleep of approximately four hours.

Killer Platoon after the ambush drill

Saturday morning was beautiful, not only were the birds up early but so was 5(QOOH) Sqn! Saturday was spent with each individual Section/Platoon being issued their lesson plans and battle exercises by the DS. With enough ammo/pyro to take on a small army, off they went happy in the knowledge that it didn't really matter that much what happened next as long as they got to fire lots and lots of rounds and threw lots of pyro! The new concept to anti-ambush drills - every man/woman for themselves and CHARGES the enemy (or so LCpl Danny Palmer thought anyway!) Into Saturday evening and like a child growing up it was time to let the troops loose on the Training Area on their own - a scary thought for all! Orders where given and it was time to see what they had learnt. With moving the platoon twice during the night into different harbour areas, bumping off the platoon harbour area just before first light and each Section putting out patrols all night it was a very busy evening indeed. The Squadron DS was kept down to an absolute minimum - Cpl Mark Seccull, SSgt 'Scouse' Simcock, PSI Ops, SSgt Paul 'Don't give them any sleep' Johnson and WO2 (SSM) George Simpson all ably led by the quiet yet dashingly forceful Lt Rupert Cranston. Into Sunday morning and much thanks must go to 666 Sqn AAC (V) and the use of their Gazelle helicopter and Capt Nigel Knight. The Squadron managed a 'Relief in Place' of all soldiers (less DS!) from the TAC Banbury to Yardley Chase Training Area. Whilst the 'Relief in Place' was carried out the rest of the soldiers waiting for the helicopter were put through their paces on 'Sniper Alley'. Sniper Alley is a slightly wet and muddy area designed to practice a soldier in the art of CQBR. It also enhances their ability to work in pairs supporting each other whilst diving through stinking and boggy mud! No matter how old you are it is still the highlight of the day to see how muddy you can become - even LCpl 'Swampy' Palmer and LCpl 'Boggin' Belcher wanted to go down a second time in their nice clean uniform! All too soon it was time to say goodbye to Yardley Chase and the end of another weekend -slightly different from the norm but just as much fun.

'Nice smiles ladies.'

FAREWELL TO MAJOR TONY SHAW

We wish him every success with his civilian career and service as a TA Officer. Maj Shaw promoted LCpl Sean Buckley and appointed Simon Durtnal to Officer Cadet. USNG/TA SNCO EXCHANGE PROGRAMME
by WO2 (SSM) Lou Carr

Sgt Nick Marsh (AGC) and I took part in the 1999 Exchange programme between 11 and 26 June, joining Bravo Company of 260th Signal Battalion of the Delaware Army National Guard for their Annual Two Week Training Camp. We flew from Heathrow to Dulles International, Washington with Virgin Air and met up with Sgt Mandy Jones and Sgt Trevor Grant of 38 Sig Regt who -were also to visit the 260th. We were collected from Dulles by Sgt Paul Fox and Specialist (SPC) Barry Faux who were to drive us to Newcastle, Delaware, where we were to spend the night before meeting up with Bravo Company in their Armoury (equivalent to a TA Centre). Unfortunately a missed junction on the Interstate put us straight into the heart of Washington, a city unfamiliar to our two American hosts! Being resourceful Seniors the Brit contingent got out our Washington tourist maps (supplied by Sgt Maj Werley of the Exchange Programme) and navigated the party through the capital city of the USA (managing to pass most of the sightseeing landmarks on route!).

Saturday morning and we are split up. Sgt Mandy Jones went to Bn HQ at Fort Devens Massachusetts and Sgt Nick Marsh went to Bethany Beach where the Delaware Guard have a Training School, Sgt Trevor Grant and I went with Bravo Company to Fort Dix, New Jersey, 48,000 acres of pine forests and grass land on sand. The task is to set up a tactical secure telephone network in support of 18 Quartermaster Units who are conducting a Waterex/P0Lex in the area and tying in to the Bn network, covering large areas of the North-Eastern States. This was theatre work on a scale rarely seen by TA solders and took four days to fully set up. Sgt Nick Marsh rejoined B Coy along with Sgt Barrington St John who had come top on his command course at the School.

The unit were also being evaluated, not only on the communications mission, but also on various set piece tasks. The evaluation was conducted internally by Lt Facciolo from Bn HQ and externally by Capt Ellis of 82 Airborne Div. I was asked to plan and conduct an ambush on a convoy that would be assessed on its reaction. After various recces to find a suitable site, the plan was confirmed, the ambush force (OPFOR) selected, Sgt 'I'm dead wary, me' Grant, Sgt First Class (SFC) Scott 'Are we having fun yet' Westbrook and myself, with an M60 machine gun and three M 1 6A2 Assault rifles, and off we went. Three highly trained soldiers against a convoy of eight vehicles and 16 soldiers. You just knew something was going to go wrong.

At the expected time the convoy appeared and stopped 500 metres short of our road block veh! That was one up to the convoy Commander, Lt Wickham, we didn't expect that. Sgt Grant on the M60 took out the convoy's recce party, after the unconventional Quick Battle Orders of, 'Do you want to go hunting?' to Scott, to which the answer was, 'Hell, Yes!' we stalked up the road side and inflicted severe damage on the convoy (SFC Westbrook accounting for at least seven Guardsmen himself) before the Exercise finished.

Interspersed with military activities were 'Cultural' visits to Atlantic City (thanks to SFC Bob Miller who showed us how to lose money), New York City (many thanks to New Yorker Lt Will Cobeo who showed us round) and Philadelphia (thanks to Cable Dog Sgt Mandi Perry and Jan, it was wild!) I took a three day road trip with Sgt Maj Dave Carden, who proved to be not only an extremely nice guy, but also a very knowledgeable guide to the various Civil sites on our route through New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

Back at Ft Dix and Sgt Grant had planned the next Lanes Test (evaluation ex), a night attack on a Comms site, OPFOR for this was twelve strong and included some of the most outstanding characters we met, SPC's Dave (9 digits) Niday, Leland (Texas) Hughes, Mike Bounagario, Ptes First Class (PFC) 'Fighter Pilot' Guest, and a late joiner rushing straight from shift in the switch to take part in the fun Sgt Ruda Harrison and my old mate SFC Westbrook. The site was defended by approximately twenty five National Guardsmen, so we had a stiff task ahead of us. Despite getting split up several times Sgt Grant stuck to his plan and in the process ambushed a patrol from the defenders and took prisoner some of the most experienced soldiers guarding the site. All of OPFOR found each other at the FRV (these things exist for a reason!) and put in the attack as planned (except the Hummvee Driver who almost ran me over).

The Exercise was a great success, victory being claimed by both sides! Many lessons were learned, and Sgt Grant did an excellent job of commanding the OPFOR. There are too many names to mention everyone who helped to make our stay so memorable, but special thanks must go to Capt Shabaz the Coy Comd, First Sgt Steele, SFC's Bob Miller and Scott Westbrook SSG Joe Brady (for all the food kit), SPC Mary Caban (for the shopping advice). And finally Sgt Gaddy for his regular greeting to me of 'How you doing Sgt Maj. Want a soda and a burger?' You guys were all great, and I hope to visit you again one day.

The Regiment says farewell to the Adjutant, Capt Andrew Mould, who moves to Upavon to take up a staff appointment at DGD&D. We thank him for his hard work throughout his tour, and wish him and Jo the best for the future.

ANNUAL CAMP VISITORS DAY

This year's Annual Camp Visitors Day was held at Warcop Camp, and the Regiment was once again fortunate to be honoured by a large number of distinguished guests. On a drizzly and overcast day, they assembled at Warcop Camp to be briefed on the current state of the Regiment, and plans for the future, before moving up to the edge of the assault course on Warcop Training Area. Once there, the visitors were able to watch the end of the patrol competition and encourage the teams as they raced over the gruelling assault course. Some visitors were so keen that they managed to complete the majority of the assault course themselves, before the PTI noticed! At the end of the competition, in which the incessant rain did not dampen the spirits of the competitors in any way, the Regiment and visitors formed up for a church parade, followed by the prize giving.

During the parade, the Regiment was addressed by the Brigade Commander, Brig Hughes, who congratulated all those present on their tremendous efforts; by Mr Nicholas Playne, the Master of the Worshipful Company of Drapers, to whom the Regiment is affiliated; and by Mr Gerald Garnett, the Master of the Worshipful Company of Armourers and Braziers, to whom 68 Sig Sqn are affiliated.

After the parade and prize-giving, the Regiment and visitors enjoyed a splendid lunch in the field, after which the visitors departed, and Headquarters got on with the more routing task of taking down the tentage and packing up the camp.

OPERATION PALATINE

The Squadron wish an enjoyable, safe and interesting tour on Op Palatine to Sig Natacha Brown. We look forward to hearing from her during her tour, and hearing the 'war stories' on her return.

CONGRATULATIONS

The Squadron congratulates SSgt Kirk Humphries on being awarded the 'Wilkinson Cup' at Annual Camp. The cup is awarded to the SNCO who, in the opinion of the CO, has made the greatest contribution to the Regiment over the previous year. Well done!

TRUELOVES CHARITY PRESENTATION

Members of 881 Sig Tp, based in Chelmsford, visited the Trueloves Home for physically and mentally handicapped young people. The visit ended with the presentation of a cheque for £216 which was presented on behalf of the squadron by Sig Natacha Brown, prior to her deployment on Op Palatine.

ANNUAL CAMP 1999

Annual Camp began with a squadron deployment on a Comms Exercise on which military skills were also tested. The second phase of Annual Camp began with a coach trip from Chelmsford to Warcop, arriving at midnight, from where the squadron moved straight onto a military skills competition. After a few hours in bashas, the teams moved around a series of testing stands in an extremely demanding competition organised by the RSM. The event ended with a TACFT and assault course competition, at which our Annual Camp visitors were able to see us being put through our paces.

Sig Gemma Cambron thinks hard for the theory test
Cpl Colin Cavanagh thinks it's easy

The third phase, which was also very popular, was the Adventurous Training Phase, held in the Lake District and based at Halton Camp. The squadron took part in hill walking, canoeing, mountain biking, rock climbing and abseiling. At the start of camp, the CO challenged everybody to 'do something you have never done before'. By the end of camp, almost everybody had achieved this several times over. It was a great way to end camp – we are looking forward to Scotland next year.

ANNUAL CAMP

Well the time had finally come to depart on the last camp of the millennium, so it seemed obvious that it should be attacked in true Sharpshooter fashion, with a ying a yang and a skippidy do. Congratulations went out to the newly promoted Cpls Paul 'Yorkie' York and Barry 'what do you mean I'm late?' Morse. So it was off to RAF Hullavington on Saturday 10 July to RV with the Regiment. An uneventful journey for all concerned apart from the REME FRT, sweeping our route for waifs and strays, arriving before the last two packets. Although this allegedly occurred due to an unnamed Squadron OC making an unscheduled stop en route.

EXERCISE WHITE HORSE

The first week was to be spent on a joint exercise with 31 Sig Regt, a first for all concerned. We would be deploying a NMC (Network Management Centre) and three NCRS stations. The three out dets deployed on Saturday evening to join up with 31 Sig Regt at RAF Lineham, with Lt Penelope 'feet first' Bulley sent along as a liaison officer. Sunday morning saw all troops deploying on Ex White Horse. The NMC travelling to Nesscliff and the out dets to Altcar, Longmoor and Fulbeck. A fairly uneventful trip apart from finding out that 'turn left' on the route card actually meant 'turn right', a small oversight on behalf of Sgt Mike 'the tube' Warrington (the Squadron's only qualified colonic irrigator).

The NMC convoy arrived at Nesscliff on what seemed to be the hottest day of the millennium, what joy, and only six antennae to erect. It was at this point that everyone's sense of humour would be put to task. Sterling work was done by all concerned, combining moving the vehicles into the site and erecting the antennae. A special mention goes out for Sgt Mike Warrington for his skill in manoeuvring the 1624 gene into a ridiculously minute space, only to be told to move it once it was powered up because the exhaust fumes were causing a hazard. Once on site it was time to firm up friendships with our site hosts from 31 Sig Regt. With all the necessary acquaintances made the serious business of comms had to begin. The NMC crew was relatively inexperienced, consisting of a fair number of recent post-SDR transferees. An interesting cross section of ex

RMP, Engineers and Artillery, the majority of whom had already re-badged prior to camp. This proved to be no hindrance in terms of performance, particularly with the assistance of Sgt Kev 'I can do that' Hancock (late Royal Engineers and Royal Artillery).

The Exercise passed with few incidents, as everyone became au fait with the shift system, including the shower run into Nesscliff Camp, which was a rare treat, especially if you got some hot water as well. Although the OC, Maj Hugh 'Omar' Robertson did seem to have a penchant for Middle Eastern impressions, much to the amusement of SSM Keith 'Snoozy' Wrate. There was further embarrassment for the command of 884 Sig Tp, Capt Penny 'Auntie' Wood and SSgt Stu 'short fuse' McHenery when they found out that one of their recent transferees, Cpl Chris 'Scouse' Smith, who had been training with them for a number of months, did in fact not hail from Brighton but from Liverpool. (This seems a little strange as he sounds like Jimmy Corkhill, from Brookside). So a jolly good exercise was had by one and all, and we would be home in time for tea and cakes.

The majority of the squadron had congregated on the last night of the Exercise at Yardley Chase, ready for the big push back to Bexleyheath. The move back was almost uneventful. Everything had been going smoothly until the Sqn 2IC, Capt Keith 'Streaky' Duffy-Penny, who had gone on the advance party to Bexleyheath received a rather disturbing phone call. The caller was a certain Sig Simon 'Service Station' Regan calling to inform the 2IC that he was still at Toddington Services and that all green fleet appeared to have left. Mobile phones then came into their own in true Royal Signals style. The 2IC managed to get hold of the offending Detachment Commander, who shall remain nameless, and who by now was an hour's drive away from Toddington, to ask if he had Sig Regan in tow. There then followed an embarrassing silence followed by 'Oh F !'. The situation was then remedied, by which time the whole Squadron seemed to know what had happened. (proving that rumour control comms were as good as ever). Once back at Bexleyheath it was on with the glamorous task of CES checks for NATO.

REGIMENTAL PATROL COMPETITION

Friday evening eventually saw us depart for Warcop for the long awaited and trained for Patrol Comp. The Team Captains' stress levels were noticeably up on the Richter Scale. They were all hoping that their team would be the one to help the Squadron retain this most coveted trophy. A long coach journey saw us arrive at Warcop at 0300 on Saturday morning, ready for an 0530am start. The troops were dispatched to their basha area for a well-earned kip. The competition commenced at 0730hrs and involved a variety of stands including NBC, First Aid, extracting a casualty under fire, map reading, vehicle recovery, naval general knowledge, AFV recognition, intro to the assault course and an Operation .

Warcop produced its normal local weather system for the day, giving us a taster of sun, wind and rain. All Squadron teams participated with the now infamous high spirits, smiles and general sarcasm. Saturday evening had all teams completing a night navex, with all competitors safety tucked up in bed by 2359. Sunday saw the whole Squadron participate in the all-new singing and dancing TACFT, which everyone successfully completed in the drizzle. The assault course race then followed for all teams.

The Prize giving ceremony followed the Regimental Church Parade. It was an extremely tense moment as the scores were displayed. Out of the ten teams in the competition, the Squadron's four teams were all in the top seven, with 887 Tp first and 884 Tp second overall. A great result for the Squadron and congratulations go out to all competitors with a worthy result for all the pre-competition work done by all teams. The winning team captain, Lt Penny 'feet first' Bulley, was rendered speechless (a first!!) by the result.

The Squadron now had to wait patiently for the coaches to take us to Halton Camp. The main party departed leaving eleven lost souls of the Squadron hierarchy at Warcop, as there was not enough room on the coach. The extra two hours at Warcop were killed by playing Frisbee with a plate, where Cpl Chris 'Scouse' Smith showed off his prowess with his flipping plate routine, an obvious sign of a misspent youth.

BLACKPOOL

The day off was spent on the coast at Blackpool, the least said the better. The Sqn enjoyed many a hostelry along the Golden Mile with some interesting stories coming out, mostly unprintable.

ADVENTURE TRAINING

The second week of camp was to be spent adventure training combining kayaking, mountain biking, rock climbing, abseiling and mountain walking.

Kayaking - The morning got off to a great start when we met our coach driver for the day, the best Freddie Starr look-a-like in the northern hemisphere(apart from Freddie Starr), with a wit to match. The coach journey to Ullswater flew by, mainly due to watching Con Air on video and taking in the coach driver's comments on other road users. On arrival, it was time to don wet suits, which in true military fashion were all either too big or too small, or for the fashion conscious just not the right colour. That done it was time to select a kayak, which was not too tricky as they were all the same size, shape and colour. Unfortunately, Cpl Pete 'Haystacks' Allsop was unable to find a kayak big enough to fit his frame, so he would have to sit this one out. There was the normal cross section of abilities ranging from SSM Keith Wrate in the 'should I really be here category' to a few highly competent kayakers. As expected the day started off at a rather sedate pace and became a mutiny on the high seas by the end of play. Most participants receiving a ducking before they had finished. The journey back became interesting when Sig Liz 'Essex girl' Blaber chose Scream as the video choice for the journey, which rendered hardly an open eye in the house. The remainder of the adventure training activities will be reported on in the next issue.

887 TROOP NOTES

Why is it that you hurl yourself over an assault course, suffer chemical attacks, leopard crawl through streams, and on your last legs, casevac the heaviest man in the Regiment over 300m in a poncho just so that you can put your hands on a piece of silverware? Also why is it that you find it necessary to wear it on you head, fill it with cheap champagne, and run around the parade square shouting, 'We won the cup, we won the cup….' as if it wasn't blatantly obvious in the first place. Well all the answers lie with 887 Tp who set out to win the Regimental patrol competition on Annual Camp. 'It all comes down to team work and a sense of humour,' stated the Paddy with a mission, Lt Penny Bulley, who enforced a strict 'laugh in the face of danger' mentality upon the Troop. This was tested to the full by LCpl Sharon Risley who failed to see the purpose of crawling through mud and water muttering, 'This is * ridiculous,' as she pulled herself through the stream. The support came from Sgt Dave Pryke, whose catch phrase, 'No bovver,' meant that he was given all the jobs no-one else wanted. The humour came from Cpl Paul York who was full of one-liners when the going got tough. Congratulations to LCpl Graham French who celebrated his birthday being pushed to the limits of exhaustion and dining out on compo. Then you need someone who knows what they are doing. Enter Cpl Andy Wilton, who can reverse a trailer through a forest and out the other side, parking it with an inch to spare on both sides in a sentry box if necessary. Then there was LCpl Sue Waldmeyer who had a filing cabinet full of revision notes in her ammo pouch and Sig Tim Hibberd who can identify the variant of a BMP by the right hand panel bolt of the foot plate. LCpl Adrian Keeble provided the brawn and LCpl Sean Eyers – well he was the all-round good egg. All in all the recipe for success. In case anyone was in any doubt; 'We won the cup, we won the cup…..'

NEWS FROM THE SQUADRONS

1 (ROYAL BUCKINGHAMSHIRE YEOMANRY) SIGNAL SQUADRON (SPECIAL COMMUNICATIONS)

Sqn Comd Maj David Raleigh
SSM WO2 (SSM) Dave Scott

As the last Wire Notes were going to press, the TA Centre was awash with people and vehicles deploying on various operational and exercise tasks. Most are back now, for a spot of summer leave, ready for the next round of deployments. The main focus for activity was Ex Global Lynx 1, which saw the SC Course and some TA deploy to Cyprus (see below). Not long after this Exercise was another highly successful TA Bounty weekend, run by SSgt Poole at Lydd – not too many members of the Squadron were anxious to try the new TA CFT, but most survived. In between, there has been considerable effort by the Recruiting Team, with displays at various local events. Some of the newer trainees have passed their recruits course, and numbers are creeping upwards towards the 110% target. The Honorary Colonel, Sir Lawrence Verney, was dined out in style at Bletchley Park on 17 July, along with WO2 (FofS) Ian Toft. Sir Lawrence has been a loyal supporter of the Squadron and we wish him all the best. WO2 (YofS) Paul 'Ginge' Willimont was finally dined out in style on 14 August, along with Sgt John 'JD' Denison and Cpl Ian Kennedy.

WO2 Paul 'Ginge' Willimont, who has retired after 24 years service, much of it as a Special Communicator

The SC Course finished on 9 July, and the four survivors have now been posted in, and two have deployed on SC operations already. A Recruiting Tour for next year will have already started by the time this is published. The current list of locations and dates is as follows:

4 October	Brawdy
7 October	York
22 November	Herford
23 November	Krefeld.

If you are a Tele Op (Tg)/Comms Op RS or Technician, interested in joining the Corps' elite communicators and enjoy a challenge, see your Adjt or phone the Squadron YofS on (9)4240 8516 for details. The following article may give you a flavour of this year's course.

SPECIAL COMMUNICATIONS TRAINING
by LCpl Lee 'Eric' Kemp

It's mid-January and 14 bemused people arrive at Bletchley TA Centre, half of them volunteers and half having been volunteered; all for a course we know very little about. A quick brief sheds no more light, start times, encouragement and little else. Following this is the 28-mile journey to St George's Bks, Bicester, a deserted wasteland in deepest Oxfordshire. Taken twice a day this journey becomes nauseatingly familiar for most of us except for Cpl Doobs 'Grandpa Simpson' Rodgers who hasn't stayed awake for more than 500 yards yet.

On the Monday morning 14 become 15 as the immortal Sig Terry Flook arrives spouting his usual car trouble excuse. As the two weeks progress names and faces become familiar, as do failures in typing, Morse and Murray Code. Extra skills training each evening helps but the high standards still seem a long way off. The weekend presents an initiative exercise. Some do better than others, some of us have to beg for scoff and digs though, but 12 hours walking finally secures accommodation for myself and Cpl Kev 'I'm not tight really' Heaton, a £200-a-night suite no less, ongoing building work notwithstanding. The final challenge consists of command tasks, mountain bikes, hills, a dunking in the canal, Pythagoras' theorem and very sore bums (from the bikes). After final skills and final drinks, Terry Flooks infamous parrot joke will be remembered by Bicester's inhabitants for generations to come. Those selected on the Friday go home jubilant, tempered with disappointment for those deemed unsuitable. After four unexpected weeks back at our units the blessed (or cursed) eight return to Bletchley to start the Special Communications course. Day One, Week One, still no clear picture of what to expect, apart from the ubiquitous skills tests. The course begins with revision of things we already know (apparently) comsec, electrical safety, and batteries to a level we haven't done since training and yet more skills. Slowly we are introduced to some of the equipment and procedures used in special comms. Three weeks into the course the Squadron triples in size as people return from Exercise in Florida, most of them are gone again within a couple of weeks. As ever curiosity spurs you on, but still the skills standards seem incredibly high. Slowly things appear to be coming together. Having Cable and Wireless directly over the road doesn't help when you're having a bad day, but the course daddy Sgt Jim Coombs helps knock some sense into you (then takes your dinner money).

We are now at week eleven having just completed the first Exercise. The remaining deployed to either Preston or Thorney Island. The Exercise was indeed difficult but the ability to work independently and unsupervised is a highly prized asset of the Squadron and we were given a great deal of freedom to hang ourselves should we so choose. Putting theory into practice made a great change from nine weeks in the classroom, as was learning that you can put eight antennas on a couple of PU12s. The intervening four weeks before final skill tests disappear very quickly, with five of us left at this point as Cpl Al Parker decided to part ways after the Exercise. It was probably for the best as there's only so many times you can sneak lemonade into your drinks before somebody rumbles you. The tests themselves are extremely nerve-wracking with only four of the remaining five passing. The skill standards do appear to be so high as to be almost unachievable but it is in fact quite unusual for anyone to fail because of them. You do get plenty of time during the course to practice so don't be put off applying purely because of the skills. So it's down to four for the final Exercise in Cyprus. The Exercise was difficult and we were put under pressure accordingly. The very last part of the course involved four days R and R, diving, lazing around Waterworld in Aiya Napa, watersports and a football match against 259 Sig Sqn. Everybody played well but we all paled in comparison to SSgt 'Deano 'The Cat' Poole whose display of goal-keeping amazed all those present and led us all to ask the question - 'Who are you and what have you done with the real Deano?' So six months on and it's all over for the fortunate four. At last the secret's out and it's definitely worth it! Three of us are disappearing over the next few weeks; the fourth is awaiting vetting.

(LCpl Kemp is currently deployed on a Special Communications operation overseas.)

RECRUIT/TRAINING TEAM
OC Trg Team WO2 Gary Ritchie
Team SSgt SSgt Lance T. G.

There have been a lot of changes taking place within the Squadron recently one being the change of Recruit Tp to the Squadron Training Team. With the changes came the obvious change of personnel, this meant Sgt Heather Lawrie, Cpl Bob Penman and LCpl Nicky Randall all returned to Comms Tp. The new members to the Team are SSgt Lance T.G, Sgt 'Smudge' Smith and Cpl 'Tosh' McIntosh.

The last course the Recruiting team had the pleasure of running started 27-28 March with the Assessment weekend. Ten potential recruits started this weekend but after a selection of physical and mental tests the Squadron were left with eight recruits ready to start their Phase 1 training. The next phases of the Recruit training were two military training weekends and a field-craft weekend. On completion of these weekends the number had been reduced to six recruits. Through a lot of hard work and determination all six passed Phase 1 training and received their cap badges from the Ops Officer, Capt Bob Davidson 1 June 1999.

Best recruit for the course went to Rct Scott Frazer. Now all six Recruits were ready to attempt Phase 2 training held at the Royal School of Signals. The first three to attempt the course were Rct Billy Naismith, Rct Scott Frazer and Rct Jamies Thompson. The other three will be attempting the course later on in the year.

The three recruits started their Phase 2 training at Blandford on 5 June. Here the recruits continued with the Military Training previously taught on the Squadron Recruit Training Weekends held in Dundee. All three passed the course with Sig Scott Fraser receiving two awards for Best Endeavour and Best in the Field Soldier. On completion of the Two-week course the recruits returned to the Squadron as "Trained Soldiers" and ready to start Squadron Trade Training. Now that the new team has been in place a few weeks they are looking forward to the opportunity to run a Recruit course in October.

ANNUAL CAMP 1999 20 JUNE-4 JULY
DUNDEE SIGNALLERS HEAD FOR WELSH HILLS

On 20 June, 67 members of the Squadron deployed to Kinmel Park Training Camp Ryhl, North Wales for our two week annual camp.

Week One saw the recently transferred members of 117 (H) Plant Squadron RE undergo an intense week of trade training to retrain them as B3 Tele Op (Radio) and the remainder complete the data module of their Tele Op (TG) training. After six days of death by PowerPoint all students achieved good pass results and eagerly await their first field deployment. Congratulations go to Cpl Purves and LCpl McDonald on their selection for promotion and to LCpl McDonald and Sig Wright on winning Top Student awards in their respective trade groups.

Week Two saw the members of the Squadron head for the hills to take part in a variety of arduous training activities ranging through Hill-walking, Mountain Biking, Rock-Climbing to Gorge Walking. Our sympathy goes out to LCpl Gary McAllister who had enough of the mountain biking and decided to somersault down the hill dislocating his shoulder in the process much to the amusement of the rest of the group (a 6.2 for technical ability). Judging by the post camp questionnaires a good time was had by all. Long may it continue.

Sqn Comd Maj Iain Standen
RSM WO1 (RSM) Terry Crane

The few months before deployment on Op Palatine have seen some new faces and a few well earned promotions. Welcome to Maj Iain Standen who relieves Capt Nick O'Kelly of command, not to mention pay of higher rank! Congratulations to Capt (QM) Mick Bohanon, WO2 (RQMS) Chris Drew and Sgt's Del Kleppang, 'Scouse' Peters and Steve Griffiths on selection for promotion. Celebrations also for WO1 (RSM) Terry Crane on his selection for commission. Finally congratulations from all the Squadron to Sgt Steve Mayle and his wife Lucy on the latest addition to their household, baby Daniel.

JOINT SERVICES ALPINE MEET (JSAM) - by Lt Paul Randell

JSAM 1999 was held in Lauterbrunnen Switzerland and also provided a valuable training opportunity for both main and junior teams of the Joint Services BSKE 2000 Kangchenjunga Expedition. As a reserve for the junior team whose objective is the 6700m Ramtang peak in eastern Nepal it provided a chance to meet members of both teams, refresh some alpine skills and bag a few peaks. Whilst the rock gods of the main team scaled the north face of the Eiger and other 'trifling' routes in preparation for their attempt at one of the worlds highest mountains we mortals started with simulated crevasse rescues from a treacherous grass bank in the camp site. This over, we heading into the hills for six days of climbing, team bonding and instruction. Due to the range of abilities within the junior team instruction began slowly and the routes chosen relatively simple. Early starts with breakfast at 4am proved enough of a challenge and on reaching a hut, normally in the early afternoon, beds were soon full of snoring climbers. The trip ended with an ascent of the 4273m Finsteraarhorn, the highest peak in the Bernese Oberland. The week proved immensely enjoyable and also served as a tantalizing taster for the actual expedition to Nepal.

EXERCISE MAILED COMRADE 1999

Six o'clock in the morning, Pietermaritzburg South Africa, a cannon shot then 56 miles of gruelling road down the ominously named valley of a thousand hills. Welcome to the Comrades Marathon the largest Ultra Marathon in the world, and somewhere towards the back of the 14,000 starting runners four of 20 Armd Bde HQ & Sig Sqn (200)'s finest. A sanity check at this point would surely have failed! So began the end of Ex Mailed Comrade 1999. The Comrades Marathon, first run in 1921 by 34 friends to commemorate their comrades who had fallen in the Great War, is now an annual event attracting the finest ultra runners from around the world. The 56 mile route takes the competitors between Pietermaritzburg and Durban, the direction alternating each year. All entrants must have completed a pre-qualifying marathon in less than 4.5 hours and on race day a cut of time of 11 hours is enforced with sometimes heartbreaking results for exhausted runners.

Preparation - Due to Squadron commitments training time was (as usual!) minimal, however all four members of the team had completed the Lanyard Trophy providing valuable endurance training. Cpl Dex McFaul REME had also completed the Comrades previously, providing invaluable information of both South Africa and the race itself. So after completing a weeks maintenance exercise with 12 hour working days, mixed with last minute attempts to scrounge extra funds, deal with passport emergencies and find the squadron running kit it was with great relief that we finally departed for South Africa.

Visits - Johannesburg's bustling airport soon gave way to townships and open veldt stretching on to the horizon. The drive to Durban took us through Pietermaritzburg giving a glimpse of some of the unnervingly hilly terrain we would be running in a scant six days. After a few detours around some of the more interesting and rundown parts of town we emerged unscathed at our hotel and after a quick run headed into town to sample Friday night in Durban. Several beers later it was time for a taxi home and Sig Stu McDade's quote of the trip to a confused taxi driver 'Barker Kasserne bitte!'

Suitably hydrated the team spent the following days mixing acclimatisation runs along the stunning beachfront with visits to various local sights. After touring Durban town centre with its colonial architecture, palm trees and the military museum we headed up country to the Tala game reserve. Sightings of local wildlife were immediate, the game animals were remarkably relaxed and we were able to creep the car to within metres of giraffe, zebra, warthog not to mention a few unidentified species. After a pleasant tea break in the park lodge overlooking the majority of the park we set out to locate the hippo and reclusive white rhino. A tour of the various lakes led to sightings of two families of hippos. Rhinos, however, proved more difficult. Perseverance paid of and the eagle eyes of our REME contingent spotted deep in the bush a very well cammed rhino. After some successful stalking we managed to get within camera shot. Registration in Durban's exhibition centre soon gave us a clearer idea of the scale of the event. Acres of stands dispensing the latest miracle energy bar or drink stood alongside vendors of just about every kind of running equipment manufacturer. Several hours of wandering paid off in the form of bags of freebies, a free sport watch however eluded us despite numerous attempts at the hourly draw. Buying the bus tickets to the start line brought more bad news, a 3am pickup time for the 6am start. Morale was soon restored by heading to the physiotherapy stand for the consolation prize of a sports massage by two of the hundreds of third year physio students who had been bussed in from around the country.

The Race - Race day came all to soon and following the 2am alarm call and quick breakfast it was across town to the pickup point for the bus ride to Pietermaritzburg. The streets around the start line soon began to fill with runners shivering in the rather fresh morning air. As we made our way to the start, struggling to keep together amid 14,000 runners, a PA system started the entertainment with, predictably, the Chariots of Fire theme. The atmosphere was electric with fellow runners enquiring about where we were from, whether we were enjoying South Africa and wishing us good luck for the next 56 miles. At 6am exactly the start cannon ended all the waiting – this was it! The hours and miles swiftly passed amid the spectacular scenery and conversation with fellow runners. Fluid and food stops were frequent and each sponsored by a different company. The best was undoubtedly that sponsored by Liquorice Allsorts, complete with a Berty Basset dispensing handfuls of sweets, a welcome break from bananas and chocolate. Our initial team plan of finishing together was soon overrun by differing paces and 'pitstop' timings. The initial split of three and one soon became four individuals with Lt Paul Randell and Cpl Dex McFaul later reunited for the last few hours of the race. A public bank holiday and the incredible popularity of the race meant virtually the entire route was lined with families complete with barbie, deck chairs and beers, all shouting encouragement. The finish when it finally came was as spectacular as the start, winding round a packed Durban City stadium. The leading runners had completed the course in 5hrs 30 mins and were probably long gone but hundreds were still crossing the finish line around the ten to eleven hour mark. Once finished with medal in hand we sat in the international tent supping a well earned beer to watch the horrifying spectacle as exhausted runners pushed themselves to the very limit and often beyond as they try to beat the eleven hour cut off. Soon a procession of stretcher cases snaked passed us and out the stadium. It had been a hell of a day! On exiting the stadium we were greeted by the sight of an empty taxi rank. With our hotel some 2ks distant improvisation was called upon. A polite knock on the window of a spectator driving out the car park gave a ride home for three of our number. The Sandhurst motto of 'Serve to Lead' wobbled but held and Lt Paul Randell started the slow hobble towards the beachfront.

Recovery and Thanks - After a well earned nights sleep our faithful Datsun Taz headed north along some very dubious 'motorway' to Johannesburg, taking in Rorkes Drift on the way. The battle immortalised in the film Zulu was well explained in the small museum, giving life to some of the heroism displayed in the desperate battle. After a hobble round the site of the hospital to loosen stiff legs and a change of rally driver it was back on the road to the airport. The in-flight movie proved a poor second to more sleep disturbed only by screams in the night from Sig Stu McDade as his rather tender bare feet received nine stone of stiletto clad stewardess at 2am. Sadly it was no rest for the wicked on our return. No sooner had our feet touched the ground than we were whisked into a lecture hall to start the first day of UNTAT training prior to the Squadron's forthcoming Op Palatine tour. One last surprise was still to come however. Sig 'Smudge' Smith on marching smartly forward to receive what he thought would be Squadron colours instead come away with his first tape. Congratulation Smudge! The team would like to thank everyone who assisted with advice, funding and administration, but especially the Royal Signals Games Club without whose help we would have missed this opportunity of a lifetime.

UNTAT TRAINING - by Cpl John Reardon

With the pending deployment to Bosnia the Squadron carried out UNTAT training in Sennelager. The next few days were hectic, parading at 0530hrs to draw weapons then travelling to Sennelarger for the day's activities. For some of the pads it was déjà vu as they had already travelled from Sennelager to parade at the armoury. By the end of the package the Squadron had had an enjoyable time (especially the shadow puppets across from the cookhouse!) and a lot of new and valuable skills had been learnt.

BRAVO TROOP - by Sig 'Harry' Ramsden

Tp Comd	Lt Paul Randell
Tp SSgt	SSgt Jim Crabb

Bravo Tp say goodbye to Cpl 'Mario' Plested and LCpl 'Roller Boy' Lewis. Welcome to Cpl Ray Till, Sigs 'Mrs' Armour, 'Lurch' Lewis and 'Nathanial' Fearn. Welcome back to Sig 'Espanol' Stillie, congratulations to Cpl 'Desperate Dan' Bailey on his selection for promotion and also Sigs 'Mr and Mrs' Armour on their marriage.

THE MOVE

Prior to summer we were tasked with the first phase of moving the squadron from Barker Barracks to Antwerp Barracks Sennelager. The move went smoothly and the aim was achieved with the short time we had to do it. This coincided with the move of vehicles and freight to Emden so we could ship them to Bosnia. This resulted in LCpl 'Gath' Moss moving the Squadron bar all by himself – well done you! This done the Troop took time out to help Robert Browning School paint their playground ready for the new term. Artistry awards go to Sig 'Harry' Ramsden for a Humpty Dumpty that will doubtless cause children psychological problems and Sig Rachel Reeve for painting herself.

Again its been a hectic few months for the Troop. We say goodbye to LCpl Steve Hall, Cpl 'Geek' Peek and Sig 'Billie' McDade who all go to seek their fortunes amongst the civvies. Also farewell to LCpl Daz Orminston and Sgt 'I'll break your computer' Sanderson. Hello's to LCpl Daley, his wife and their new baby, Sig 'PTI' Phillips and Sgt Brown who arrives from Blandford. Finally a big thank you to Sig 'Zombie' Albiston for making the summer Troop Party so colourful an event.

PAPA TROOP

Tp Comd	2Lt Dave Hill
Tp SSgt	SSgt Norm Finnegan

Well it's been a busy few months in the Balkans. We have finally made it into Kosovo after what seems a lifetime sat on a training area in Macedonia. As with most things the plans were changing right up to the last minute before we left for the border. Papa Tp was to be the 'small' alternate headquarters that would control the move from the border crossing point. As we set off we were a 28 vehicle convoy with 80 pax, small by anyone's reckoning! As with all 'exercises' it rained just to make life that little more comfortable. The guys enjoyed cramming staff officers and all their kit into the back of the panzers and seeing them sleep between the tracks as we had no space for the creature comforts.

We left the border and set off for Pristina, the final destination for the headquarters and the start of a long battle for real-estate with KFOR, guess who won? This left us in the remains of a very battered Serb Army barracks, with no water source and once again a lot of tents. It's drawing to a close now and the guys are all looking forward to the move back to Osnabruck and a well-earned break. We would like to thank all the following augmentees for their hard work and support during their attachment to the troop: Cpl Ridgers, LCpls Black, Gobie, Tiplady and Whitfield and Sig Brown all from 1 Div and Sigs Burrell and Bishnu from 30 Sig Regt.

As always there has been a steady move of people in and out of the Troop. Firstly we welcome LCpl Dave Dowson from 8 Bde, Sig Grant Mockett and his family fresh from Blandford and last but by no means least, all the way from Oscar Tp Cpl Nigel Stiff, oh and congratulations on the promotion. We also say a fond farewell to Cpl Steve Heywood who's off to civvy street, we wish you and the family all the best for the future, LCpl Lee Slater off to JCUNI, LCpl Vinney Walsh and Sig Paul Henderson, both off to 3 Div and also LCpl 'Woz' Wright and his wife Denise who are off to 11 Sig Regt, all the best when the baby arrives. Lastly congratulations to LCpls Tim Stanton and Neil McElhinney on their recent promotion.

OSCAR TROOP- by Sigs Brierley, Ashmore and LCpl Mallaburn

Tp Comd	2Lt Paul McTurk
Tp SSgt	SSgt Ollie Oliver

After four months we were given the orders for the move north into Kosovo and with a clear objective insight it helped in giving us something to concentrate our minds on other than the heat and the food, at least for the duration of the move. Papa Tp moved first, up to the border where the peace talks had been held. On D-Day they took control and with our sixty-eight vehicle convoy we started the 'wacky races' with support from two AH-64 Apache helicopters. The move through the narrow valley into Kosovo that had been secured by the Paras and Ghurkas went very well but soon after this we came head to head with a Serb convoy that was heading the other way. 2Lt Paul McTurk dismounted from the lead vehicle to try his textbook negotiation skills out for real. He was confronted with angry retreating Serbs waving their weapons in the air insisting that they had priority on this road. The dilemma was that we were not to leave the concrete for fear of landmines. Eventually after much waving of weapons and hand gestures the Serbs gave way and pulled over allowing us to continue. With only one breakdown it was proof that black nasty tape and zip ties can keep even the oldest vehicles running. Our first HQ location had been well recce'd by Sig Glen 'Wingnut' Hislop and Capt Sue Barnard. It was an old paper factory with rotting paper everywhere but it was the only area large enough on hard standing. As we occupied it gunfire came from the neighbouring Serb village and as per SOPs we ignored it and carried on! The rotting paper later proved to be the passports and personal documents of thousands of Albanians kicked out or killed over the last year. Luckily our stay was brief and we moved up to our final location to take over from a very tired Papa Tp who'd been in control for a whole week, poor lambs. Gladly this location was a slight improvement on Macedonia. The good news is that we should finish this tour living in a building since we have taken over the Pristina University Building. Congratulations to LCpls Lee 'Rotten Hugs' Peacock and Jane Calderwood on their promotions. Sig Shaun 'Melt-Boy' Brierley on the birth of his son Patrick. Goodbye to Sig Gaz 'Big Issue' Forrester to Civ Div, thanks for the beers. Many thanks go to the augmentees that were essential in helping us move successfully. To Cpl Fowler, Sig Payne, LCpl Lannie, Sig Burrell, Sig Brooks, Cpl Smith many thanks, we couldn't have done it without you.

OPERATION REASSURANCE - by 2Lt Paul McTurk

After four Serbs had been shot dead in the mountains to the East of Pristina the Household Cavalry Regiment (HCR) asked for assistance from other units to provide an added presence on the ground to prevent further incidents. Twelve of us deployed with two ASV436 armoured vehicles into the mountains to be met by a troop of HCR. Until now we had been thoroughly briefed not to leave main roads for fear of landmines but as soon as we approached the area the road turned to dust. I had a trace map of proven routes so this was not a great risk but it was just the start of a culture shock for us.

We occupied a small farmyard as it was getting dark, very quiet area it felt a lot like Wales. Next as I covered the early morning guard an eclectic mix of animals paraded through the yard. Each of them in turn tripping over guy ropes and waking the troops inside. Pigs and dogs fought and cows did.... their stuff all over the place. A little old lady quickly followed them with a big stick shouting in Serbian at the animals. I had thought the village was deserted so the appearance of Grandma was a bit of a surprise. It turned out, through our interpreter Sgt Smith, that she had survived the Germans so she wasn't going to let a bunch of KLA scare her away.

Our main role was to patrol the Serb areas of the valley, but since these were almost deserted we progressed on to the Albanian area to the North. Many families met us with dreadful tales of the VJ/MUP Army who had occupied their houses for months while they lived in the woods. They gave us coffee and any food they could spare, refusing to take no for an answer. On one visit to a Serb village where two old men had been recently murdered we found that the houses had been recently looted and the farm animals slaughtered and hung by their necks on the fences. A very large dog that was clearly frightened had us patrolling with our bayonets out at the ready. As we left the village we set up an Instant VCP. The first vehicle we stopped had been slowing down clearly taking an interest in the Serb villages. We had no evidence to suspect they we causing trouble so we released them. The next day the same people in the car had their heads blown off in a booby-trapped Serb house that they were trying to loot. After two weeks the first of many Serb families returned to the village. I had to return to the Brigade HQ early but left Sgt Hanson in charge with Sgt Smith RAMC as his interpreter. A special mention must go to LCpl Mark Neillings who personally proved that a panzer becomes a 16 Tonne roller-skate if you remove both tracks at the same time whilst on the side of a hill. Under the watchful eye of SSgt 'Tiffy' Kimber and Sgt Quigley, the LAD and a section of Canadian pioneers have since built a play park in one of the Albanian villages that we regularly patrol.

QUARTERMASTERS DEPARTMENT - by Cpl Rowles

Well even the Satellite Communication Specialist (Supply) of the Quartermaster's department of the 'Black Rats' had to take part in the Vanguard relief of the Kosovar people. A special deference must be passed on to Ops who have made this tour so engaging and prosaic with such elucidation in their orders. RQMS 'I'm off to Dundee University' Vince McNaught and Sgt 'I'd shoot all of 'em' Hughes duly carried out all Ops' orders with alacrity and outright efficiency. To all other QM departments in the Royal Corps, if you need any help in how to pass an LSI in the middle of an Operation in a war zone do not hesitate to call us. With no outside help for four months the department catered for at one stage nearly 700 people. In the midst of all this the new, RQMS 'Doz' Day walked straight into the LSI 'Welcome'.

One of the worst moments for Sgt 'Spike' Hughes, LCpl Hawksworth and Sig 'Fi' Francis were, thanks to 2 AFA's deviousness, told to move out of location with all their equipment within six hours. Fun was had by all. Sig 'Jody' Walker has been able to show off her ability to understand and comply with military law in an Operational environment. Sig 'Fi' Francis has taken her sunbathing duties very seriously and deserves a qualification. Sig 'Hacker' Livsey has astounded as all with his unique computer knowledge with enough said about the computers all having bugs in them now. Cpl 'Can I have two hours off each day to study' Rowles arrived in theatre two months after everyone else and immediately moved everything around in the QMs department tent. When out of nowhere the skies opened like no other rain storm on this planet and flooded everyone's tent to the extent that camp beds were actually floating out of them. Everything in the QM department's tent was soaked and Cpl Rowles was nowhere to be seen. A special mention must go to Sig Stella Holyland for all her help whilst she was attached to us in Kosovo.

MOTOR TRANSPORT DEPARTMENT - by Cpl Jay Allen

Since moving into Kosovo and Pristina the MT as a whole has been busy at Bde Main in the University and Echelon at the Bread Factory. Cpl 'Ginger Brows' Sirignano the spearhead of the generators has had the following personnel working with him, Sig 'Marlon' Brandon, Sig 'Morgs' Morgan and Sig Toby O'Connor, Sig 'Angry' Angus was left holding the fort for the Lineman when Cpl Allen returned to echelon as the details NCO. Life at Echelon has been fairly busy with LCpl 'Ginger Whinger' Callander ensuring that the Bde Generators were always ready although rumour has it that volleyball took second place from time to time. LCpl 'Bish' Bishop is asking for a posting to the MT Stores after his adventures fitting a Fuel tank to a 16/24 generator and discovered that you should fit the bottom hose before filling the said tank with fuel..... Vehicle servicing is well under way thanks to LCpl 'Chalkey' White who as just joined the MT from Ireland.

TECHNICAL MAINTENANCE DEPARTMENT
by Cpl Bry Brown

The year started well with January 1 to 3 being days off, since then we have been a little bit busy. The Kosovo crisis unfolding on the television, the Squadron made it's preparation to go in. I believe 204 Signal Sqn is the only Air portable Armoured Brigade Headquarters in the British Army.

We deployed to Macedonia and then on to Kosovo. There have been a few changes to the tech department, it started with Cpl Paul 'Ginger' Bapty who has left us to become a student in Nottingham.The FofS, SSgt Phil 'Ginger Ghost' Johnson was the next to leave the sinking ship, Phil is off to haunt shady places in Blandford. Thanks for the time that you have given the Tech Department.

New arrivals to the section are WO2 (FofS) Dean 'Enormous' Briers, Sgt Mick 'M M M Bop' Hanson, LCpl Brian 'Caldy Bunt' Saxton, LCpl Martin 'Bloody' Gerald, Sig 'Fish' Frank and Sig 'Fish' Stein.

Congratulations must go to Sig's Frank and Stein for enraging the RSM (WO1 Craig) despite being three inches long and only goldfish. Still in the department are SSgt Dave 'Ran you into the ground' Patrick, Sgt Dave 'Silverfish' Covey, Sgt 'Titch 'whinge' McGiffen, Cpl Sean Middleton, Cpl Guy 'Ugly' Keyworth, Cpl Bry Brown and finally Dan 'Why am I still a LCpl?' Taylor. Congratulations Dan on your second tape from all in tech workshops. Finally, on a non-tech note, our heartfelt thanks go out to SSgt Paul 'Buckzilla' Buckley for keeping an eye on our sideburns and our haircuts, when we were too busy to remember them ourselves. Zilla, we are forever in your debt. NO really, Cheers.

This issue, a series of reports from the Troops' adventure training activities prior to summer block leave. The Squadron now looks forward to Cast, Ulan Eagle and Rhino Charge before a change of emphasis for whatever next year may bring.

THE CORPS REGATTA - by LCpl 'Biff' Bithell

On 4 July 1999, a 'specialist' team from the Squadron departed Hohne bound for Kiel. The team consisted of Maj 'Eric' Bristow, Cpl Rob Luke, LCpl 'Biff' Bithell and Sigs Ben Maton, 'Magic' McDermott and 'Jesse' Jessop. On arrival, we started loading the boat with the exception of Jesse who was still in weekend mode and who cracked open a beer instead!

The first week was spent on Quicksilver - the Corps' yacht in the Baltic - learning the ropes. By the end of the first week, the skipper, Maj Bristow was happy with progress - perhaps due to the fact that we were running out of liquid light refreshments. We were then ready to start racing although we still had to wait for the other teams to arrive and to take over our new boat. As soon as we had, we all dived in to get the best sleeping quarters and transferred all our belongings over from Quicksilver.

As the racing began, we put into practice what we had learnt. The weather was perfect and the competition fierce but the Squadron managed to win the first couple of races before a series of shorter round the can races at Horsens. This also provided a good chance for Sig 'Jesse' Jessop to show off his wine waiting skills. After a couple more wins, including in the long overnight race, thanks in part to Cpl Rob Luke who is now the Corps novice skipper, we were delighted to discover we had won the regatta overall and were all presented with trophies. All that remains is a big thank you from the Squadron to the organisers and competition (particularly Maj John 'Stealth' Rowley). Five converted novices will be back for more next year.

EXERCISE ERIKA DIAMOND - by OCdt Rob Lawrence

Our week's climbing course in the Harz mountains started with brilliant sunshine, but much like the Germans in the local area, soon became very unpredictable. On arrival at the campsite, we quickly pitched the famous Army Force Ten tents and started a little fire, which soon managed to turn into a towering inferno, or so 2Lt Andy Hill thought.

Climbing in the Harz Mountains

Our first day's training was a great success where everyone learnt the basics of knot tying, even to the point that Sig Mark Fairley could tie two figure of eight knots at once - or was he just seeing double? That night whilst relaxing in a commandeered 12x12, we met one of the above mentioned Germans who quickly found himself attached to our two female New Zealand visitors; 2Lt Wendy Wright and Cpl Lisa Murray. However, after he received a cold shoulder we had to resume training in the knowledge that there was no gossip to talk about upon returning to the unit. Various other highlights of the week included Sig 'Roy' Castles altitude sickness, Sig Mark Fairley's elegant climbing style, the quickly adopted foetal position and strange Kiwi noises when Cpl Murray fell whilst leading and of course LCpl Si Pereira's sense of humour. However, one of the funniest moments was when Sig Sean Hughes was told to remove his shorts and go naked whilst having a German sauna. Thanks must go to Lt Adam Corkery and SSgt Dave Sloane for their instruction and enthusiasm throughout the course which has spurred on an interest in climbing for many of the course participants who are now keen to go on to gain further qualifications.

Join us, the Corkery and Sloane Adventure Training Guides on the adventure of a lifetime. We will take you to Tignes in France in one of our luxury mini-buses including a luxurious overnight stay next to an inspection pit in a Mercedes garage AT NO ADDITIONAL COST and with nature providing a full-on thunderstorm.

Once in Tignes, you'll be driven around and around a few times to get the feel for the place. We offer a number of activities such as rock climbing, where you'll be amazed at your abilities to hold onto a featureless wall, but will no doubt be encouraged by us telling you that there are in-fact 'bombers' and 'jugs' everywhere.

We also have a number of outstanding entertainers such as the two Steves who'll have your sides splitting with their witty questions and keen observations. You'll also see the hilarious 'Owl on a rock' impression by Sig Steve Sharman and the amazing talent of Sig 'Ronnie' Barker the snail eater. With great walks, climbing, skiing, weather and company, can you afford to miss out on the adventure of a lifetime?

EXERCISE RED JERBOA - by Sig Chris Nixon

After months of people dropping out and others wondering whether there were places left, we loaded the minibus and left for Gatwick airport - one that was different in many ways from that of our destination - Sharm El Sheik, Egypt. 2Lt Amy Briggs and Sig Phil Green had to wait to experience the fruits of the Red Sea due to ear trouble and after just a few minutes down, LCpl Rog 'I'll have a photo of that' Mortimer became the third on the list with a dodgy Lug Hole. The wildlife really was an incredible sight - even just being in the clear, blue water was an eye-opener for those that hadn't dived the seas before. Those that had a fair amount of diving experience included CSgt Mark Rooke - our patient instructor, Capt Jason Gray, Capt Kath Hurley, Capt Kate 'Only slightly tanned' Rice, Sgt Rob Allen - our last minute entrant and SSgt Steve Roberts with his pre-historic suitcase. Diving was obviously the main activity on the expedition, however, those that wished an additional activity were not unimpressed with the desert quad biking - amongst others, LCpl Steve 'I've got a picture of a turtle' Livesey, LCpl Ant Oakes (who incidentally became another victim of the ear infection society) and Sig Chris 'I've got my own quad at home, you know!' Nixon. The dive sites included Ros Mohamed, Jackson reef, Near Garden and, for the well qualified, the wreck HMS Thistlegorm which was a casualty of WW2. The non-Thistlegorm divers had a choice of climbing Mount Sinai and seeing the sunrise from the summit or simply indulging in the odd alcoholic beverage or three. I think we all agree that the ten days went too fast and there's already talk of a two week expedition next year.

Diving in the Red Sea

EXERCISE GEEZER DIAMOND - by SSgt Dave Baddeley

On 25 June much of Ops/ES Tp went adventure training in Bavaria. On arrival the Troop was split down into three groups with Group 1 really looking forward to the day's walking led by our illustrious leader, Sgt Jules Thorne. We parked the bus at the bottom of the Nebelhorn (conveniently some may say) next to the cable car. The shop at the bottom was undoubtedly impressed when six soldiers walked in and decided to kit themselves out in traditional Bavarian hats. This idea was taken one step further when Sgt Dave 'I'm considerably richer than thou' Schofield bought a walking stick with a bell on it. After a hard day's walking up the Nebelhorn (some 2000m up) we had to retire to the bar for a few of the local Banana Beers. The kayaking was uneventful at first except for the inability of SSgt Dave Baddeley to go in a straight line without the addition of a rudder. A special mention ought also to go to Sig Nikki Thompson for her impression of the elephant man after an argument with an underwater rock.

Group 3 had more time kayaking due to one of the instructors being sick which meant we were able to gain more experience paddling on rivers (or IN rivers if your name is Cfn 'Drillbit' Cooper) rather than just practising capsize drills on a lake. All of the extra time spent on the rivers paid off when we were joined by Group 2 (who themselves had an experienced swimmer - Cpl 'Yoda' Holloway) and went on a 2-day river trip at Garmish with an overnight stay in a log cabin on the American campsite. During the trip we got to paddle on some good technical grade 3 water which enabled us to put into action the skills which we had previously been practising on the calmer water.

Over the week, our instructor, Lisa gained herself a little follower who would be by her side whenever possible, charming her with his cheesy one liners and impressing her with his skills! Cfn 'Drillbit' Cooper even went as far as to capsize every five minutes just to be rescued by the blonde beauty. The week was rounded off with a day of R and R where we all went water skiing. Cpl 'Richie' Brown proved himself to be a bit of an expert and soon progressed onto the trick-board, amazing us with his leaping starts from the wooden fence at the side of the lake. We were also impressed with Cpl 'Yoda' Holloway's uncanny ability to water-ski on his backside! We would like to pass our thanks to Ray Charlton and the staff at the Osnabruck lodge for looking after us so well. Top Scoff!

Sqn Comd Maj I. Hooper
RSM WO2 (RSM) G. Hodgson

On 16 July, 24 Airmob Bde HQ & Sig Sqn (210) paraded together on the square at Goojerat Barracks for the last time. The backdrop for the OC's address was the vehicles for the Squadron contingent for Op Agricola, bound for Kosovo on 1 August. On 1 September the Brigade re-roles to 16 Air Assault Brigade and with it the Squadron to 16 Air Assault Bde HQ & Sig Sqn (216). The Squadron is already expanding, with a new Troop, C Troop, providing a Parachute Brigade Tac HQ in support of the JRRF Airborne Battlegroup in addition to our existing commitment to support the Lead Aviation Battlegroup. Over the next three months the Squadron faces the twin challenges of preparing for the new Brigade's first exercise, Ex Gryphons Eye, which will see the Squadron parachuting in Brigade Tac and flying in Brigade Main with SH, and committing a Squadron (-) to Kosovo in support of 102 Logistic Brigade. The Airmobile Gryphon's Wings have been laid to rest and replaced with the predatory Eagle. With it will come the best of Airmobile and Airborne worlds to form Air Assault.

EXERCISE LOFOTEN TROLL NORWAY 24 MAY-11 JUNE
by LCpl Scadden

The aim of the expedition was to ascend the highest peak of each of the eight major islands of the Lofoten Islands. These are located some 200 miles within the Arctic Circle, west of Norway. The expedition left Colchester in the early hours of Monday morning on 24 May. We had the privilege of a reliable 16-seat minibus, which broke down en route to Ipswich. However, we finally made our way to Newcastle where we were to take the ferry to Kristiansands in the south of Norway. The night ferry crossing started as we intended to continue. Singing badly, accompanied by LCpl 'Ted' O'Donnell's guitar, leering at Scandinavian girls (unless you are one of the statistical 97% we discovered from Glasgow) and the acquisition of a percussion instrument from the cabaret band which was shaped like an orange. There then followed a marathon 27-hour drive through scenic Norway, with various stops, for photos at the point of the Arctic Circle for example, and at every toilet in Norway for Sig 'Smudge' Smith. No amount of 'diareze' was going to help him. We eventually arrived, by means of another ferry, at Svolvaer; we were now in the Lofoten Islands. Everyone was incredibly excited, especially when we saw the mountains; they looked extremely severe and we realised that this was going to be no easy feat. However, we managed to ascend every peak, with one exception that was in no condition to attempt. The views from the summits were, in the words of Lt Dan Ashton, 'gleaming'. The exhilaration and the sense of achievement at the summits were well worth the effort, pain and sweat it took to get there; 'fight through!' LCpl O'Donnell often urged. Morale was always high, usually supplied by our percussion orange. No end of joy was also derived from our staple diet of pasta, smash potato and Tracker cereal bars.

Away from the climbing, entertainment was found at remote pubs, but these were costly as beer was sold for nearly £5 for a half litre. It was very odd to come out of a pub at one in the morning to complete daylight, as the sun was out permanently at this time of year. Accommodation was in our sturdy tents. One of the camping sites was inhabited by dodgy refugees, who looked in better condition than we did. The weather was good considering we were in Norway, but if it ever did rain then little japes such as hiding fish in sleeping bags would definitely liven things up a bit! The expedition was full of high points, which are too numerous to mention here. The climbs gave us views that would be seldom seen by many people and we are unlikely to see anything similar ever again. We timed one climb to be peaked for the midnight sun, no camera could ever give justice to those sights, and it was something we would remember for the rest of our lives.

The expedition could not have succeeded if it were not for the experience of Lt Ashton and WO2 Knight, the humour from the morale officers LCpl 'Ted' O'Donnell and Sig 'Flash' Gordon, and the teamwork and dedication from the rest of the group.

SQUADRON SUMMER CAMP 4-19 JUNE
by Cpl Reed and Sig Jacklin

Following an arduous month in Cyprus on Exercise Lion Sun, the Squadron decided to calm things down for a week by sending us to Frimington, Dartmoor for a spot of adventurous training. Under the watchful gaze of the MTO, Capt Mark Schofield, activities included cycling, hill walking, rock climbing and canoeing. The days started bright and early with a spot of PT, which nobody was expecting, but probably should have. The first day consisted of hill walking, which was fun, especially the near to vertical climbs, the baby's heads and the stone circles rumoured to be the petrified remains of ancient witches. Cpl 'Marty' Barringer was informative throughout – even at times making up stories to keep us interested and Cpl 'Taff' Reed educated us on local folklore, with regards to burning witches and rumours of the occult. Cycling was the next day's activity, which ranged over a 40km endurance track with Cpl John Wilson submitting his entry for next years Tour de France already…not!! Our route took us past the seaside where Sgt McGuiness decided to pull in and admire the local wildlife, whereas Cpl Reed, Cpl Wilson and Sig Jacklin decided to re-enact 'Baywatch' on mountain bikes and charge into the sea. A brave attempt was made by all – however, it was cut short by Neptune himself who decreed bikes are not seaworthy vehicles. A mention must be made about Sig Jase Williams who through out the journey must have used two telephone batteries talking to his girlfriend. Canoeing was our third day's activity and after managing to stay afloat on a mill pond location, we were promptly relocated by SSgt 'Del' Elesmore for a spot of canoe surfing in the sea. This proved too much for us (although good fun), and we ended up using our nostrils as brakes in the surf. A special mention must be made to LCpl 'Robbo' Robinson who won the lifesaving award for saving the majority of us from drowning within the first 10mins of getting on the water. Our final day consisted of rock climbing where Lt Dan Ashton decided to throw us over hells teeth themselves. The only fault in his plan was the fact that all of us bar LCpl Robinson had a severe problem with heights and large kerbstones – making sure we had at least 27 points of contact at all times! Some were brave enough to venture over the edge, especially Cpl John Wilson who was practically ordered over the edge and Cpl Reed for having to sit on the edge and belay him.

In conclusion, a good time was had by all on this year's summer camp, it gave everybody a chance to release some steam after a hectic and hard time in Cyprus.

RACE THE SUN 20 MAY - by 2Lt Knightly Brown

'Race The Sun' took place in Yorkshire on a gloriously sunny day in May. The elite team from the Squadron and Brigade HQ, drove up to York the night before, ensuring we were in peak condition for the arduous events the next day. Capt 'Cheerleader' Harvey and myself had the honoured jobs of taxi drivers and providing general moral support. We gained ourselves a respectable fourth position from the start, thanks to LCpl O'Donnell, on the 8 mile forced march. This was maintained by the efforts of SSgt Elesmore, LCpl Williams and others. We kept this lead to the end to finish an impressive fourth out of sixteen, with an excellent save from Pte Hunter (AGC) on the final lake swim.

What was to have been a relatively smooth period of activity for the Squadron in the build up to the transition to 12 Mech Bde, transpired to be one of the busiest six months in the past couple of years. A short-notice deployment of the vast majority of the unit to Kosovo in support of 5 AB Bde's initial thrust into Kosovo was to undoubtedly be the highlight of the year for the Squadron. It was a memorable way in which to mark the closing stages of 216 Para Sig Sqn in its current role.

The Squadron says hello to the new Admin Officer, Capt Guy Richards. Alpha Tp welcomes SSgt 'Dicky' Dyer, LCpls 'Foxy' Fox, 'Taff" Davies and Sig 'Ken' Dodd. Bravo Tp introduces Cpl McMullen and LCpl Hunter. Q Tp greets Sgt Mark Watts, Cpl Brian Sheard, Sigs Andy Sergeant and 'Banana' Subarna.

Farewell to RSM Dave 'MAD' Catchpole, who is off to 264; WO2 YofS Tony Redman heads for Sandhurst, and WO2 RQMS Geordie Marshall for 35 Sigs where they both take on the role of RSM. 2IC Capt Stew 'Crusty' Gillespie departs for Sheffield to start as the Adjutant of 38 Sigs. Au revoir to Capt Steve Morgan, who is now OC Mil Trg Wng at Blandford. Goodbye to SSgt Stew Couszins, Sgts Ian Conlan and Steve Jones, Cpl 'Magoo' Maguire, LCpls 'Jakey' Jakeman, Mark Wilson, 'Evo' Evans, Loddy Jones and to Sigs Chris Woodall, 'Flash' Wilkie and Tony Carter. Heading for 16 Air Assault, the Squadron says farewell to SSgt Kev 'Kebabs' Read, Sgts Bruce Thornton and Al Coombe, Cpls 'Nosher' Brown, 'Knibbsy' Knibbs,'Spud' Fawcett, Al Joy, and Ted Page; LCpls 'Bob' Hoskins, 'Goody' Good, 'Digger' Barnes, 'Smudge' Smith, 'Fish' Salmon, Scott Finn, Stu Francis; Sigs 'Air' Bourne, 'Blacky' Blackmore, 'Richy' Richardson, 'Shez' Sherrington, 'Fyfey' Fyfe, George Cloney, Steve Jones, Nick Hillyard and Pete Thorpe.

MORRISON CUP

In keeping with tradition, the morning of the Morrison Cup started promisingly well as the team consisting of Sgt Coldwell, Cpl Flounders, LCpls Wesson and Clancy and Sigs Kelly-Rutherford, Lowe, Dine, Richardson, Marshall set off for the hallowed Blandford meet. Sadly due to operational preparation we were unable to take the support crew of the rest of the Squadron. As we drew closer to the venue the clouds parted and the rain began. Was this an omen? With only three teams competing in the Minor units cup it promised to be a close competition, and the word in the stands was that 24 Bde were fielding a very strong team. Things looked dire as the first race of the day started with LCpl 'Springbok' Wesson falling very stylishly at the first hurdle in the 400m hurdles, never quite managing to make up the lost ground or disappear into the crowd fast enough after the finish. Our scratch pole vaulter, Sig Richardson was given some first rate on the job training by Sgt 'Do as I say' Coldwell, who finished a promising third in the event. However, sterling performances from Sgt Coldwell, Sigs Kelly-Rutherford, Lowe, Marshall, Cpl Flounders and LCpl 'It's me Achilles see' Clancy, saw the team edge into the lead. Things were picking up when Sig Dine suffered a badly broken arm after falling from a hurdle on the home straight in the 3000m steeplechase as he closed on the leader. As a true hero would, he picked himself up and finished, dislocated wrist flapping and broken bones grinding before zooming off to hospital for an operation. This unfortunate incident meant a slight change to the relay teams, although it did not phase the team, who ran well and won the competition by two points. Congratulations to all who competed, for a job well done.

EXERCISE CORSICAN LANYARD

Destined to be the last 5 Bde Exercise ever, Corsican Lanyard was planned, as the title suggests, to take place in Corsica. Cuts however saw the location change to first French training areas and farmland and then Bonnie Scotland, with its glens and mountains. Glorious indeed. Events in the Balkans added a bit of interest, the exercise scenario took on a rather uncanny likeness to events out there, spooky don't you think? The Ops team, Capt 'Crow' Wilson, WO2 FofS 'Crow too' Marshall and WO2 YofS 'I'm posted' Redman took to implementing the OC Sqns, Maj 'What are they doing?' Workman's idea, as directed by the staff. Then we deployed in earnest. Bravo Tp were sent to solitary confinement in South Cerney; saw many rehearsals, refresher training and all the officers running all over models the size of two tennis courts (a lot of football was played too). Meanwhile Alpha Tp and the QM's Dept had their wacky races up to West Freugh airfield to set up Excon and kitchens to feed the 5000 respectively. Once the Exercise began in earnest, all the Troops met up together at West Freugh. Elements of Squadron, under the auspicious leadership of Capt 'Die hard' Gillespie, formed a renegade enemy that took on 1 Para and fought to the last man, as the manpack rebro followed Cpl 'Grand old Duke of York' Page across a few grid squares of orange contour lines. LCpl 'I feel ill' Shaw was mightily impressed by the flying skill of the SH crews and was always raring to get on any flights around the areas, especially in the day-glo orange immersion suits – very tactical you see.

The second phase of the Exercise took place back on Salisbury Plain, and saw elements both Fly and Drive back down the country to Keovil airfield. 2Lt 'Pathfinder' Day ably transported the convoy to the correct location, at the correct time, although not quite on the prescribed route.

Capt 'Its better over there' Wong then selected a slightly different RV for the Para insert, much to the amusement of the Commander, well it was only a couple of hundred metres more. A manic, non-stop 72hrs followed the Para drop, as the HQ was ambushed, bombed, shelled and chased all over the plain by a remarkably well equipped partisan enemy. They had obviously hired the A Team who had worked wonders transforming their school busses into AFVs and Tanks with wriggly tin , bubble gum and double sided sticky tape. Sgt 'Catch us if you can' James and 2Lt 'Come on' Day can attest to the cross country speed of a scimitar as it chased them over the plain. All in all it was a very different exercise, but it did prove its training worth as the Squadron was to discover later on.

LANYARD TROPHY

This year's Lanyard Trophy was competed for along a course some 42 miles long, on a course across the South Downs. The day before the competition the teams converged on Napier Barracks to receive their respective briefings and submit their team lists before an early start the following day. The sun had not risen as the teams made their way to the start point at the County show ground, where the tension was tangible. Twenty-eight teams from across the Corps had entered this year, with three women's teams, and five TA teams. With a mass start this year it was easy to see how the teams sorted themselves out into the running order, literally. The first three place were being contested by 216 Sig Sqn, 30 Sig Regt, and 249 Sig Sqn. The lead changed hands several times along the course, each team pushing the other further on (although a special mention goes to the 14 Sig Regt Team who should have turned left, not gone straight on).

216 Para Sig Sqn – 1999 Lanyard Trophy Team

All day the race went on with 30 Sig Regt falling off the pace set by 216 and 249. As the day wore on, the strain of the course began to take its toll as teams started to thin their numbers. But the pace of the lead was relentless and ongoing. 249 just pipped 216 in the finishing stages, and have picked up the trophy for this year. Congratulations to all those who competed and finished, especially to the Squadron Team - 2Lt 'Doris' Day, SSgt Gaz Greaves, Cpls Paddy Howe, 'Magoo' Maguire, 'Goody' Good, Ted Page, Si Roughton, LCpls 'Digger' Barnes, Sigs Keith Williams and 'Air' Bourne.

BATTLECAMP

In mid-March, the Squadron deployed to Sennybridge for the annual battle-camp. The first phase of the package began with range work; an APWT, pairs fire and manoeuvre and contact drills enjoying the familiar Irish tones of Cpl Paddy 'Chucky from the Rug-Rats' Briscoe as he demonstrated his newly acquired RMQ skills. The initial few days of comfort in Sennybridge Camp were soon put aside as the Squadron's two platoons moved into the field and began a skills package with daytime lessons covering a variety of skills including section attacks, HLS marking, ambushes, LAW, and FIBUA in the skills house.

So that's tea, white, two sugars and a plateful of Danish Pastries

After the daytime tuition the platoons would tab to a harbour location, set up defences, receive orders and prepare for the night-time taskings which could be anything from basic patrols, CTRs to a full platoon ambush. The night ambushes were largely successful, and more likely to be remembered for LCpl Bob Hoskins falling into a stream, breaking his nose and Cpl Tim Donoghue getting geographically embarrassed, sitting in the ERV for thirty minutes in the driving rain.

The FIBUA phase was taught by Squadron's newly qualified instructors, Cpl's Ted Page and Paul Coxon who covered a whole host of activities including entry and clearance drills, grenades, FIBUA assault course, casevac procedures, defences and an improvised Molotov cocktail range! Sig 'Dangerous' Armstrong added to the hilarity of high entry drills by pulling out a grenade pin with his teeth and cracking some enamel. The FIBUA phase culminated in a company size attack on the village at dawn in a bid to track down the infamous Gen Cavona, captured on video and camera by the media ops team. With the FIBUA phase complete the Squadron headed back to the ranges for live section and platoon attacks on the final day of the two week package, before heading back to camp for a rapid clean-up and Easter break.

OPERATION AGRICOLA

After being taunted for a number of weeks with the possibility of deploying to Macedonia to prepare to assist in a potential move into Kosovo as part of the KFOR peace-keepers, the Squadron was tasked at short notice to fly complete to FYROM.

Kosovo – 216 liberating Pristina Airport

Within 48hrs of the order to move, almost the entire Squadron flew from RAF Brize Norton arriving in theatre on Sunday 6 June. The Squadron was initially co-located with 4 Bde HQ on the outskirts of Petrovec, some 15km from the capital Skopje; Alpha Tp providing the initial HQ. In a bid to consolidate the Brigade assets the Squadron moved 10km North where over a further 48hrs the planning began to unfold amidst a continuously changing scenario, dictated largely by the fluctuating progress of the talks. Alpha Tp continued to provide the HQ, achieving a back to back move, whilst Bravo Tp continued in their bid to retrieve some temporarily misplaced vehicles from the confusion of the swollen Airhead at Skopje. Amidst the intense planning and in-load of kit and personnel, Q Tp succeeded in keeping their heads as they worked continuously to provide and equip for not only the Squadron and staff but also, the Pathfinders, RMP, PWRR LO's, SHF, dets from 3 Div and 30 Sigs. QM, Capt George Burrows, WO2 RQMS 'Geordie' Marshall and SQMS Spence Cave managed to magic everything from the worlds supply of jungle boots, floppy head-dress and ammunition to portable electric fans and NAAFI stores. Bravo Tp, now complete, made the move to Piper Camp, the far side of Skopje, and the staff move quickly followed.

Alpha Troop giving it the Bulldog

Developments in the peace process started to progress at a rapid pace, and Alpha Tp found themselves establishing, amidst intense media attention, below the Europa Cafe, on the main access route leading into Kosovo and just 50 yards from the border. The staff followed suit soon after, along with 4 Bde HQ, and over the next 48hrs, a car park the size of a football pitch was to become the most photographed and hectic piece of military real-estate since the start of the KFOR deployment.

At 4am on Saturday 12 June, 5 AB Bde made its rapid move by air and land up the steep incline of the Kacanick Pass, clearing the route and thus affording access to 4 Bdes move into depth. Cpls Ted Page and John Hilton arrived with their crews at predesignated spots along the route by Chinook, with their rebro dets under-slung, and set about providing coverage up the entire pass for the Brigades as they moved through.

Bravo Tp as part of the main 5 AB Bde road-move headed up through Kosovo and established HQ in the school at Lipljan, just 15km SW of Pristina; they were to remain in this role for the remainder of the operation. With 5 AB Bde now in situee, Alpha Tp completed its relief in place with US Taskforce Vulcan and drove across into Kosovo on the evening of the 13 June, parking up in the disused bus station at Lipljan.

The Brigade quickly consolidated its AOR with 1PARA policing the streets of Pristina and IRGR based just down the road operating as a QRF for incidents throughout the immediate region. With limited supporting assets, the Squadron continued to provide for a multitude of additional elements and worked tirelessly for the next week establishing a cookhouse at the Coca-Cola factory across the road, clearing and burning rubbish, building defences, providing drivers for endless details and guarding the location. For many of the Squadron, the building of the Sangars will provide mixed emotions for years to come. A combination of blistering heat and lack of materials did not facilitate their speedy construction, however the finished products were undeniably impressive.

Over the following three weeks, the Squadron was involved in a whole host of taskings in addition to the provision of the Brigade HQ. Alpha Troop spent five days guarding the prison on the outskirts of Lipljan, fending off the media, skirmishing with local youths intent on stealing cars and adopting a pack of dogs. 2Lt 'Doris' Day and LCpl Dave Reids linguist skills were severely tested as they faced hundreds of returning Kosovar Albanians searching for missing relatives. Sgt Sid James headed up the small Alpha Tp element in the infamous APOD option and after days of discussion the Russians finally agreed to allow a small comms set up to establish on the roof of the air terminal at Pristina Airport. Cpl 'Dog' Barker and LCpls Dan Pearson and Stu Francis attempted to improve Anglo-Russian relations by ceremoniously flying the Union Jack on a daily basis from the roof of the Terminal. LCpls Finn, Pearson, Clancy and Sig Nick Hillyard re-enacted their favourite moments from 'Porridge' as they went on to assist in the guarding of a number of war criminals at the Pegasus Prison. Cpls Ted Page and John Hilton provided a retreat at their rebro site on the Goles Heights, with free brews and sunbathing, and members of both troops received the opportunity to crew the rebros on a three day cycle. A number of the Squadron spent time with 1PARA patrolling the streets of Pristina and Maj Scott 'Get Some!' Workman and RSM Dave 'MAD' Catchpole insisted on heading up the QRF on a daily basis when it seemed likely there was going to be some action in down town Lipljan. Capt 'Bagpuss' Wilson maintained his hold on the golden blanket, sleeping for much of the deployment and Capt Stew 'I'm just going on a recce' Gillespie was out on the road with LCpl Jimmy Shaw running a lucrative business in American camp-cotts.

The tour in Kosovo was a rewarding experience for the Squadron and an excellent way to mark the end of 216 Parachute Signal Squadron in its current form; the high profile nature of the initial insertion into Kosovo finally gave Airborne Signals the opportunity to get amongst it! The Squadron began the exload from theatre back to UK on the 8 July and after a week at work headed off for some well deserved leave.

238 (LONDON) SIGNAL SQUADRON

SQUADRON HEADQUARTERS
Sqn Comd Maj Steve Hunt
SSM WO2 (SSM) Ewan Hall

The Squadron has just completed a very hectic and busy two months where two of the three Troops have been working flat out on the Queen's Birthday Parade, a State Visit and the last Royal Tournament at Earls Court. Despite all the pressures, the Squadron has lived up to its high standards and now enters a period of relative tranquillity before heading off to Penhale, Cornwall in early September for the annual Summer Camp followed closely with a Joint Squadron Battle Camp at St Martins Plain, Kent.

On the 18 June the new Controller Army CIS Group (ACISG), Lt Col G. J. Cary paid his initial visit to the Squadron. The aim of the visit was to introduce the Controller to the Squadron and to give him a comprehensive briefing on the role and work carried out by the Squadron. The Controller was met by WO2 (SSM) Hall followed by an extended office call with Maj Steve Hunt. Nobody was totally convinced that a Harrods shopping trip had been left off the Controller's programme. However, such was the interest shown by the Controller during his visit, that he extended his schedule into a second bottle of wine.

The Worshipful Company of Information Technologists held a sponsored walk in Central London on Sunday 20 July 1999. The Squadron, along with 31 Sig Regt (V) and 71 Sig Regt (V) were tasked to supply logistical support in the shape of tentage, generators and commercial radios for the event. Ideally located, Chelsea Bks acted as the central collection point for what proved to be a very successful and worthwhile day. We look forward to being of assistance next year.

SHQ is still mourning the loss of LCpl Sophia Morris (Squadron PTI) to Blandford in early June - PT just won't be the same without her. However, she has been replaced by LCpl Brian Stewart, from Radio Tp, who has already made his mark by confirming that Chelsea Bks does have a 1km running route just inside the perimeter fence and that the new ACFT is not a problem! 'When can we start training?' WO2 (SSM) Ewan Hall, an ex Spec Op, more used to using complex radio receiving equipment than a transmitter, completed his first Queen's Birthday Parade with the help of Sgt 'Leave it to me' Si Schofield. The SSM has confirmed that he understands the meaning of 'Silence is Golden' and will always have his mobile phone switched to vibrate when in close proximity to the Royal Family! Rumours are rife, however, that a cardboard cut out will take the place of the SSM in Buckingham Palace next year and that his mobile phone will be diverted to his private residence in Chelsea where we believe the SSM is still looking for his white gloves! (Good try SSM). The Chief Clerk, Terry Marsh and the SOG D, Andy Smith, supported by WO2 (YofS) Neil Stewart have succumbed to the pressures of looking good in up town Chelsea. Laden with guilt, they have both thrown themselves into a fitness regime that caused LCpl Stewart (unit PTI) to break into a sweat! Finally, having decided to terminate her service, the Squadron said farewell to LCpl Carmen Michalska in July. LCpl Michalska returns to her parent unit at 3 Div, Bulford.

RADIO TROOP
Tp Comd Capt Andy Carroll
Tp Sgt Sgt Simon Schofield

With the silly season now in full swing, weekends off have become a thing of the past for Radio Tp. Everything has to be put on the back burner until things quieten down again in August, when the maximum leave period starts (it seems so far away). Two members of Radio Tp are leaving the throngs of London to better things or maybe worse. Firstly newly promoted LCpl Jim 'See ya' Walton off to 621 Sqn EOD at sunny Northolt, good luck for the future. Secondly Sig Baz 'Oh no not 1 Div' Maitland is off to - yes you guessed it..... 1 (UK) Armd Div. Don't forget your underpants Baz !!

THE QUEENS BIRTHDAY PARADE

The rehearsals for QBP started in earnest and from late May until the 12 June every weekend was spent preparing for and taking part in, reviews by the Major General, Colonel and finally, Her Royal Highness the Queen, which passed off without incident except WO2 (SSM) 'Ewan' Hall has been designated Charlie Sierra (Communication Specialist) By Royal Decree, a story which will only be told in the Squadron Bar.

NVQ ACCREDITATION - by WO2 (YofS) Stewart

The Squadron, like many other units, has undergone an NVQ Scheme as directed by SOinC (A) PD no 7. The idea of the NVQ scheme came to the Squadron through word of mouth and with the agreement of the OC Maj Hunt, the Squadron embarked on it's NVQ Scheme. There was a slight problem in that the Government would only fund those candidates among 16 - 25 years of age. The Squadron wanted to be able to extend the NVQ scheme to those candidates over 25. The Squadron spoke to Underhill Training who are a sub contracted training organisation of Thames Valley TEC with the proposal that for every under 25 year old signed up for an NVQ Underhill would sign up an over 25 year old.

This excellent idea was agreed by Underhill Training. Although the funding was only for the under 25s, both the Squadron and Underhill Training benefited. This new scheme can now give those personnel over 25 an opportunity to gain a nationally recognised certificate. The total amount of NVQs undertaken by the Squadron was 25. The NVQ levels undertaken varied from 2 - 4 in the areas of the Communications PIT2, OTE3 and Management. All the candidates have put in a lot of hard work, primarily in their own time, to achieve the award within the year. The majority of the candidates achieved this within six months which culminated in the award ceremony held in the Squadron Bruno Bar. Our thanks go to Underhill Training for giving the Squadron the opportunity to progress through the NVQ Scheme. Since the award of the NVQs many of the candidates have gone onto higher levels. The Squadron has maintained strong links with Underhill Training and will continue to use their facilities in the future.

ACHIEVING THE NVQ - by Sig Gregory Burgess

I first learnt of the NVQ system by being approached by SSgt Si Hadley (Trg Wing) who explained to me that I would be able to achieve a civilian recognised qualification, which I did not have to pay for. This could be achieved by signing up for the NVQ system through Underhill Training. I signed up for the NVQ Level 2 Communications and was then met by Mr Gorman who gave me my first assignment. On completion of this first unit, I was given a second unit, which was in the form of a project. I found that a great deal of what I had learnt within the Army was beneficial and I used this knowledge to complete the project and subsequently the course. My main reason for signing up to the course was because it is a civilian recognised qualification and would be a starting point for something to build on. I enjoyed taking part in the Level 2 qualification and I hope to carry on building upon that in the future. At present I am waiting to start my Level 3 qualification. The NVQ itself involved a lot of hard work, especially the project, which included the writing of an administration instruction. I completed all the criteria on the unit successfully. The rest of the units involved information gathering and observation by Mr Gorman of the individuals, including myself, carrying out the necessary skills of our trade and therefore fulfilling the criteria of the further units. Once all the criteria were achieved and Mr Gorman was happy, we were signed off and the completed folders were sent to Underhill for the Independent Assessors to check and satisfy themselves that we had completed all the criteria and deserved the NVQ Level 2 award.

BEATING THE RETREAT

Involvement this year was minimal only requiring support from Mr Gary 'Wot more overtime' Stevens and Cpl Gibbo 'Still paid the same' Gibson helping out 621 EOD with escorting bands wherever they needed to go on the Squadron's 2 Honda ST1100 Pan Europeans. A quick mention for Cpl Steve 'Ops Room' Hook who controlled movement and generally sat around.

STATE VISIT OF THE PRESIDENT OF HUNGARY

Due to the possible and later non involvement of the Troop in the Royal Wedding, the visit was hastily rehearsed and carried out in a total of four days. Street liners were deployed in new locations under the command of the new Tp OC. All rehearsals went swimmingly well with Kings Tp finally welcoming our Operators Sgt 'Schoffs' Schofield and Cpl 'Bart' Storey into their fold by allowing them to remain in position as they gallop onto the firing position instead of having to wait, then march on when it was safe to do so.

STATE OPENING OF THE SCOTTISH PARLIAMENT

For the first time in 300 years, Scotland had a State Opening of The Parliament on 1 July 1999. Over 450 Service personnel took part and Radio Tp were there in support of 242 Sig Sqn. It was a mad rush straight after the State Visit at Windsor. We had a couple of days to turn our kit around then complete a full Tp Deployment to Scotland for the week. Most of the Tp were billeted in a 24 man room all except Cpl 'Mini Bar' Gibson and Mr 'Even more overtime' Stevens who were put up in a hotel. Who said love was blind. The Troop acted with it's usual professionalism and more brownie points were gained for the Corps.

DINING OUT OF
CAPT KERRY 'NOW WORKS IN MACDONALDS' LEVINS

The stage was set for a blinding session in the Bruno Bar, we managed to get 95% of the Troop free to attend this function. Incidentally it was a very well organised function by SSgt Simon 'Where is my promotion and my BEM?' Hadley. The food and wine supplied by the cookhouse was beyond reproach and after a Regimental dinner type of affair we retired to the bar for a few well deserved beers.

ROYAL GARDEN PARTIES

The naphtha club were out in force for several visits to our second home, Buckingham Palace, for the Garden Parties. Dressed up with no where to go we deployed for the three Royal garden Parties to carry out the illustrious Car Calling which involves getting Diplomats into the right car at the right time. The event was hampered by the fact that the PA system at the Entree Entrance failed and a more personal touch of Sig Jim 'Och aye' Walton to call the diplomats forward. Again George Robinson, the Secretary of State for Defence, was glad that we knew who he was otherwise he would disband the Unit.

OSCAR TROOP
Tp Comd Maj (Tfc) Gilchrist
Tp SSgt SSgt Ripley

A busier few months than the previous reporting period for the Tp. Life in the London Central COMMCEN (LCC) bobs happily along as usual but there was a more sombre mood on 28 July when the Operator Assistance Centre (OAC) Wellington Barracks officially closed. This date marked the end of an era in military telephony within London District. This closure coincided with the switching over to INCA (a commercial consortium who are in the process of taking over responsibility for all fixed telephony services for all armed services within UK) of the major London Primary and Transit exchanges and consequently all operator assisted calls to the INCA-operated OACs located elsewhere in UK. The day commenced with the GOC London District, Maj Gen Webb-Carter visiting the OAC and conducting the hand-over to INCA through the medium of a last telephone call made to Brig Ham CBE, the Director Networks in the Defence Comms Services Agency. The GOC took the opportunity of thanking all the assembled operators for their valuable and dedicated service which totalled some 171 years between them. The staff then spent the rest of the morning shopping in Knightsbridge, notably Harrods, where they were tempted to spend part of their redundancy payments! The Squadron finally hosted them to a formal lunch back in Chelsea Barracks, in the Bruno Club, where as the saying goes 'a good time was had by all'! Certainly there were many stories swapped and more than the occasional tear, as well as a fair amount of good food and drink imbibed! All is not yet quite over as a more informal social meeting will take place in September when the Troop will take the opportunity to say their sad, though fond, farewells! Whilst on the subject of closures and job losses, the results of the COMMCEN reorganisation programme are out shortly, so there could be more functions and tears shed in the not too distant future. SSgt Ripley and Sgt White deployed on a recce for the forthcoming Troop Summer Camp 15 - 21 August. A good week should be had by all so watch this space for the thrills and giggles in your favourite publication in the coming months.

The Troop would like to give a warm welcome to LCpl Sally Patrick who arrived from 251 Sig Sqn in Aldershot. We hope you have a very enjoyable tour in London. Moving in the opposite direction to be re-united with her husband was Cpl Sarah Dyer after one of the shortest stays, ever, in London. Any tips on how you did it, will be greatly appreciated. Seriously, we hope you had a happy stay with us and all the best in the future.

A rather disappointing result in the Inter Troop Challenge Trophy for Golf, but that can be put down to the fact that we poor hardy soul's in O Tp are unable to get out and practice on a Wed afternoon. Unlike the rest of the Squadron we are fully committed around the clock. Anyway, it allows the remainder of you to catch us up and should make the competition a little closer in the coming months.

MIKE TROOP

Tp Comd Capt Nicol
Tp SSgt Sgt Twizell

The Troop would like to extend a big welcome to Capt (TOT) Bob Nicol who has arrived from N. Ireland and farewell to Capt (TOT) Phil Cooper - who covered a very busy period. May you enjoy your tour at Blandford as the Falkland Island Desk Officer (FIDO)! The Troop would also like to say a special farewell to Maj (TOT) Howes who retired in June after thirty seven years service and two extended postings with the Squadron. He will be sorely missed.

Mike Tp has seen a very busy month with the Royal Tournament at Earl's Court and the State Opening of the Scottish Parliament. Sgt Cory Pennicott leads the Royal Tournament Team which includes Sgt 'Twiz' Twizell and Sigs 'All Mouth' Blevins, 'Mullers' McFaul and 'Loved Up' McGuire. The Team were involved with the installation and maintenance of an intercom system covering the whole of the Earls Court Arena including the roof, 180 feet high. The Team also installed a comprehensive telephone network. Sgt's Pennicott and Twizell also had the role of the Producers Assistant, with the very important task of ensuring the show ran as planned. The Squadron would like to thank Cpl's Brian '36 pints' Jacobs, Chris 'Scouse' Stevens, LCpl Balaram, and Sig Dave 'Soho' Mudd from 2 Sig Regt.

The Radio Techs departed for Edinburgh at the end of June to install and provide a ceremonial net for the State Opening of the Scottish Parliament, without which, Radio Tp would not have been able to operate. The occasion passed off without any trouble and it was an enjoyable and worthwhile experience to work with our sister Squadron (242 Sig Sqn) and to liaise closely with Lothian and Borders Police. Well done to Sgt Chris 'Wiggy' Jacobs who organised the fun filled 70's/80's Summer Ball. It was an excellent evening with many interesting styles of dress.

The Troop came second in the Inter-Troop Golf Competition. Well done to Capt (TOT) Phil Cooper and Gordy 'Nelly the Elephant' Cpls McNeillie and Dean 'Always on holiday' Spiers for their efforts. Rumour has it neither player could hit a barn door from five yards with a golf ball. Congratulations are in order for Cpl Michael Ambler who completed the first Installation Technician Course at Blandford. Well Done!! Finally, congratulations to Sgt Cory 'No Work' Pennicott on his marriage to Charlie. They are now jetting off to Kenya. Watch out for those lions!

EXERCISE THULO KHOLA COCKNEY: 9 - 26 APRIL 1999

Exercise Thulo Khola Cockney was a Corps / District sponsored Expedition to Nepal. The expedition included qualified team members from RAF Waddington Flt Lt Simon Moore, 15 Regt RLC SSgt Pete Baker, 144 Para Fd Amb (V) Cpl Niguta Ithia without whom the Exercise would have not been possible, so thank you one and all. With the blue touch paper finally lit and burning Sgt 'Fergie' (Fergus) 'Nepalee Citizen extraordinary font of all knowledge.' Anderson and Capt Dave Thomas OIC party seconded from 83 Sig Sqn (V) in Chelsea set too finalising party details and logistics, such things as payments, passports etc. You may well think that was easy, however, the list of those partaking in the Exercise stretched the length of England with Sgt Heather McNair form Edinburgh, LCpl's Eddie Banks and Courtney Watts from Catterick, Sig Lee Smith Bulford, Sgt Cory Pennicott and Cpl Paul Bone both from Chelsea.

Finally on our way, the trip took some 14hrs to Kathmandu. The journey passed reasonably well with Sgt Fergus Anderson coming into his own at the under construction Kathmandu Airport. We were not met by our guide and with a few Namaste's, the Napalee greeting, thrown in for good measure he secured transport to the Hotel. The Exercise was a 7-day trek in a remote area of Nepal and not the infamous Annapurna Circuit (Nepals answer to the Southdown's Way) followed by three days White Water Rafting on the ragging River Marsyhandi.

The Trek went very well with a couple of minor sicknesses on route. Capt Dave Thomas and SSgt Pete Baker spent one night of the trek, due to heat exhaustion, alternating with their heads between their knees making barking noises. The next day, both feeling some what tired, we were faced with longest leg of the trek. That evening, on arrival in the new camp site, Sgt Fergus Anderson not wishing to be out done by the other two decided it was his turn to make barking noises as we all sat down to tuck into another well produced meal by the Porters. Bags of sympathy from the remaining members of the Exercise, the air was full of 'Do you want any food Fergie'. Food on the trip was a strange delight. We had been assured by OC 238 Sig Sqn, Maj Steve Hunt, that for all meals we would eat only Bhat! We had every thing but chicken, goat and vast quantities of spinach as they had brought a job lot in one of the villages.

On the recreational front our team had a distinct height advantage when invited to play volleyball in some of high mountain villages. Our secret weapon, LCpl Courtney Watts, was a towering 6'4'ish! That aside, we diplomatically lost the matches - at least that's the story we are sticking too. The final phase of the trek saw us all marching down the road to Besisahar-har-har! This was to be the final camp site and unknown to us the area for a political rally and the last night with the trekking porters. Sgt Heather McNair without the aid of a band entertained as she had done throughout the trek with her rendition of 'I've come 'doone' from the isle of Sky' accompanied by Amrit Gurung the head porter wearing a ginger wig and tartan bonnet.

Next came the white knuckle bus ride from Besisahar-har-har to Kundi and the start of the White Water Rafting phase. The bus driver must be congratulated for not going over the cliffs although at times I'm sure he wanted to. All agreed, on arrival, that this was a journey not to be repeated. Hands were blistered from gripping the seat bars, palms were sweaty and the eyes were fixed and glazed. The Stage 4 and 5 rapids we were about to encounter over the next three days would have nothing on the bus ride, or so we thought! White water rafting is not for the faint hearted. It has a tendency to concentrates the mind especially when you are thrown into the water, as most of us were at some point or another. We all had tales of near death experiences, the shear cold of the water from the mountain glazier simply took your breath away. The whole experience was like being in washing machine or spin dryer. The trip was a great way to build team spirit particularly when the raft guide gave out heart rendering commands like 'row harder' and 'Oh no not that way'. We, of course, obeyed every command and survived what was ultimately a great experience.

PATROL COMPETITION ITALY - VALMALENCO 1999
by WO2 (SSM) 'Paddy' Morrow

Valmalenco 99 was a Patrol Competition which took place over the period 4 - 6 June 1999 and was held in Valmalenco, Northern Italy, which is a small village normally reserved for the skiing fraternity in winter. The competition was well supported by British teams and other nations. The SSM set about canvassing support for the event and eventually entered two teams but due to other commitments only one team managed to get away. It was envisaged that the competition organised by the Italian reserve forces would be a fast and furious event which we would normally associate with those organised by ourselves this was not the case, as the Italian approach to competitions is slightly more laid back. The instructions issued by our hosts were deliberately vague so very little in the way of preparation could be made. The SSM accompanied by Cpl Jim Gray and LCpl Stu Golightly set out on a marathon journey to Italy. The first day's activities involved the team participating in a shooting competition using some very interesting weapons. The patrol itself started off at early o'clock on the Saturday morning when the team were met by the doctor who gave us a check up. Unfortunately by Check Point Two we lost Stu Golightly who was suffering from a stomach upset. To say the ground was undulating would be a understatement, snow covered peaks would give you an indication of what the ground was like. The tasks which we had to complete were very interesting and unusual and ranged from firing a home made rocket launcher to morse code and semaphore. After about twelve hours a very exhausted team finally finished the event. On the Saturday evening there was a party for the competitors and the locals and surprisingly enough Stu Golightly made a miraculous recovery. On the Sunday morning the team attended a church parade which was followed by a parade through the town. The competition culminated in a prize giving presentation suffice to say there was no need to leave much in the way of space in our transport for our trophies.

THREE PEAKS CHALLENGE 18 - 22 JUNE 99
by Cpl 'Gregs' Gregory

The Three Peaks Challenge is to climb consecutively the three highest peaks in Scotland (Ben Nevis 4406ft), England (Scafell 3206ft) and Wales (Snowdon 3560ft). HQ LAND had two teams entered, one led by SSgt Lou Woolley, the other led by Capt Neil Lodwig and each had it's own Admin team. 77 teams were starting between 5 - 8pm, we started at a steady jog at 7pm, with the other team starting at just after 7pm. By the time we reached the 'zig-zags' it was more of a fast walk but we got to the checkpoint on the summit in 1hr 36mins. We couldn't stop to enjoy the view as the visibility was only a few yards so we started back down at a much faster pace and passed the other team, still on their way up, after a few minutes. We got back to the start with only 2hrs 39mins on the clock. The support team now took over, they had been waiting patiently at the bottom of the mountain, preparing our meals and the vehicles for the journey to Scafell (or had they just been to MacDonald's?). After six hours we reached the next start point. The weather was still very good and it was only 4am, the earliest we were allowed to start. The track up seemed like it would never end but eventually it did and we found that we were the first team to reach the summit. By the time we got back we were beginning to ache but the Admin team had got some food and drinks ready for us and in no time at all we were driving down to Wales for the third mountain. The weather was still very good and the route up Snowdon was relatively easy compared to Scafell and Ben Nevis except for the last mile or so but by this time we knew there wasn't much of the challenge left. We got to the cafe on the summit after about an hour and a quarter's walking to find we were the first team to finish.

Our final position was third in a time of 17hrs 5mins (with 11 hours compulsory driving) and the other HQ LAND team finished in 7th place winning them the prize for the first mixed team. I would like to thank Capt Neil Lodwig and SSgt Lou Woolley and the fire service for organising the event and the Admin teams for their work before, during and after the event.

EXERCISE STRONG IRON 25 JULY - 6 AUGUST 1999
by WO2 (SSM) 'Paddy' Morrow

Ex Strong Iron was the exercise name given to this year's Squadron Summer Camp, which saw a great number of the Squadron's military element deploying to Wyke Regis Training Camp on the outskirts of Weymouth. The area, which caters for thousands of tourists every year, was a very popular venue.

Not only did it provide some excellent locations in which to carryout the mandatory activities such as canoeing and trekking, it had lots to offer once the training ceased for the day. The SSM decided to keep things simple so the camp took a similar format as last years camp at Brawdy, with the normal level two adventurous training activities taking place Monday through to Thursday leaving Friday morning for the troops to do some fun activities such as Jet Skiing and Go-Karting. Those personnel who deployed on week one of the camp had some excellent weather which many personnel leaving at the end of the week with the makings of some nice tans. Week Two turned out to be a mixed bag regarding the weather with a little sunshine and rain but spirits were not dampened. The training went almost without a hitch the exception being the windsurfing which took place in week one, which on the first two days the wind proved too strong for instruction much to the annoyance of Cpl Reg Varney our windsurfing instructor on loan from 3 Div. The only casualty of the two weeks was LCpl Joyce who whilst practising his capsize drills managed to damage one of his front teeth, his only concern being for his appearance and his inability to attract any females in the local pubs and clubs so a quick trip to the dental centre brought a smile back to his face, however it did nothing to improve his luck with the local ladies!!

Sqn Comd Maj D. J. Foulkes

This has been yet another busy period for the Squadron during which we have managed to cram in two Adventure Training Exercises, the Kiwi Trophy and rid ourselves of our entire vehicle fleet all while preparing for an imminent deployment to Bosnia.

OPERATION AGRICOLA - 501 COBALT

Since the beginning of the NATO deployment and the increase of tension in the Kosovo region a detachment from the Squadron has been deployed providing Satellite Communications in a variety of roles to different headquarters. Deployed on the detachment has been Sgt Pete Eden, Cpl Gareth Howell, LCpl Gaz Prydie and Sig Russ Taylor. They have been ably assisted by two personnel from 30 Sig Regt, LCpl Puslikar and Sig Scott Cooper.

DEPLOYMENT DIARY - by Sig Russ Taylor

On initial deployment we were based in Kumanovo, Macedonia. Here we were attached to 7 Sig Regt providing a theatre COMMCEN and a standby Ptarmigan link to the Corsham Hub. Life was very much static and routine as we waited for the decision to be made over possible moves into Kosovo. During these two months we worked hard at honing our pizza eating skills, with Sgt Pete Eden emerging as the most superior. Most importantly we managed, against all odds, to win the 30 Sig Regt Five-a-Side football competition. On the day of the competition the bookies had us at 40-1 no hopers but the team consisting of SSgt Al Ironside, Cpl Gareth Howell, Sig Scott Cooper, LCpl Phil Hughes and myself managed to overcome all challengers to claim the prize. What tipped the balance was the cheerleading capabilities of Sgt Phil Eden, who was forced to sit the competition out after forgetting his trainers (Admin!!). When finally the move into Kosovo came it was quite an event. After closing down all links at 0600hrs on the morning of the move we had to push quite hard in order to be ready for the first packet leaving at 0700hrs. The French vehicles at the front were the first to move and the Wacky Races began. What followed was quite humorous as three lanes of traffic bound for Kosovo and one lane leaving attempted to make headway along a road that could be classed as a country lane. This meant that it took us 11 hrs to reach our final destination, the town of Mitrovica. In that time we had travelled just 139km. Driving through the villages and towns en-route there was nothing but devastation as most areas were completely destroyed with rubble strewn everywhere. The people were out in force lining the streets and singing pro-NATO songs. On reaching Mitrovica it was much the same story. The town was gutted and virtually deserted. We are now firmly entrenched in Mitrovica providing a Ptarmigan Satellite Bridge and eagerly awaiting our end of tour in September. During this time the Squadron has also had soldiers deployed on Op Palatine and in Albania on Op Spooner.

EXERCISE IRON PASS – SWITZERLAND - by Lt Chris Preston

Exercise Iron Pass was a Squadron expedition to Switzerland which took place from 11-26 July 1999. The aim was to traverse the width of Switzerland along the Alps from Montreux to Sargans. The Expedition was organised and led by Lt Chris Preston and technical assistance was provided by Capt Andy Marcus from (AMF(L)) CSS Bn who was the expedition JSMEL(S). The party reached the start point in Montreux by way of Hoverspeed and a 16 hour trek along the E-17. Breakfast on the first day took the form of the squaddie favourite, the egg banjo, this was because it meant less washing-up. On starting the trail we quickly realised the pattern that the trek would follow. Forested lower slopes, extremely steep and very humid, were at the beginning of each trail.

Sigs 'Scouse' Bennett and 'Baldrick' Tierney
Taking time-out at the summit

Even on day one we attempted to make things a little easier but the mountain railway we attempted to catch simply ignored the group of crazy Englishmen that were waving at the driver. The first summit (or col) reached was Rocheuss de Nare standing at 2091m. Here the limiting factor of water became apparent. Despite each carrying sufficient supplies the physical exertion and heat soon meant that each mountain stream was a very welcome sight.

The highest points of the trek lay around the halfway mark, these were the Sefinenfargge Pass at 2612m and the Bluemlisaphutte Pass at 2837m. Both are very steep climbs and command impressive views. Even though, by this stage our legs had grown stronger and feet had hardened we had to reach them on consecutive days. Of the two passes the most remarkable was the latter at the top of which was a mountain lake known as a 'Lager' in which is reflected the peaks of the mountains above. At end of this pass was the Bluemlisap Glacier which pours off the side of the mountain. Climbing around this proved extremely difficult and the last few hundred metres were like the 'step class from hell'. However having reached the summit the view was awesome. You could almost believe you are on the most isolated spot in the world until you turn to notice the Alpine Hut - how did that get there?

Capt Andy 'Crazy Legs' Marcus at the 'Lager'

On completion of these two climbs it was time for midway point day-off. We descended into Griesalp 'just for one' to find a Bierfest in full swing. The Swiss certainly know how to enjoy themselves and we whiled away the hours at Jazz and Blues festival. It is one of the largest in the world and turned the whole place into a massive street party. The enjoyment of this was matched only by Sig Cooper's birthday party in Zurich at the end of the trek. As with all expeditions there is a list of fame/shame. Particular mention must go to Sig 'Scouse' Bennett and his Italian Job-esque driving ability. Also to Sig 'Baldrick' Tierney for his reversing skills and to Capt Andy Marcus for being a JSMEL, a diplomat and having a seemingly endless sense of humour. Finally, go to Switzerland in the summer, its brilliant.

THE KIWI TROPHY

The Kiwi Trophy is the Squadron's annual March and Shoot competition which is completed by every fit member of the Squadron. It consists of a 22km march carrying 301bs and rifle followed by a shoot of 10rds at 100metres. It is an individual effort and marks the high point of the Squadron's physical training year. The trophy commemorates the Squadron's association with the Bulford Kiwi, which it maintains and the New Zealand Defence Staff. The Kiwi Trophy itself is presented each year by a representative from the New Zealand High Commission, this year it was the Defence Attache, Brig R. R. Ottoway MBE. The competition took place over 22-23 July 1999. Day One saw those involved in the hosting duties for the main day compete. Many of the Squadron 'fitties' ran that day and the OC, Maj Jim Foulkes, emerged as the overnight leader. Day Two began at 'Oh my god' o'clock with the first runners setting off at 0630hrs. They were cheered on by the OC, who was anxiously checking out the competition, and the 2IC, Capt Niall Stokoe. The hosting for the day began at 0940hrs as the guests, Brig Ottaway, accompanied by the New Zealand Defence Staff, and Brig Shaw, ACOS G6 CIS LAND, arrived at the Officers Mess. They were met by the OC, 2IC, WO2 (SSM) Ken Marsh, WO2 (YofS) Kev Kerr and WO2 (RQMS) Geordie Harvey.

Following a short brief on the days events they were whisked off to the finish line to see the first runners come in. Here the New Zealand Defence Staff made the most of the opportunity to use the range and succeeded in gaining some embarrassingly good scores.

The second main event of the day was the Service of Remembrance at the Tidworth Military Cemetery where a lot of New Zealand soldiers are buried. The service was attended by all guests, the OC, SSM and a bugler from the 2nd Bn The Light Infantry, who sounded the Last Post.

Brig R. R. Ottoway MBE presenting Cpl Mo Pay with the Kiwi Trophy

The culmination of the days events was the presentations and the barbecue. The Kiwi Trophy (Individual Winner) and Innocent Cup (Team Winners) were presented by Brig Ottaway. The Kiwi Trophy was won by Cpl Mo Pay, the OC came a close second. The Innocent Cup was won by Papa Troop. Finally the Lang Memorial Trophy (most significant contribution to the good of the Squadron) was presented to LCpl Sammy Samuel and the Lanyard Trophy Team were presented with their Winners certificates. Both of these were presented by Brig Shaw who also took the opportunity to promote LCpl Rudland to full Corporal and Cpl 'Ninja Chef' Homer to Sergeant.

TRAILWALKER UK 1999 - by Cpl 'Robbo' Robertson

On 26 June 1999, at a time when most sensible people were still in bed, two teams from the Squadron were deploying to take part in Trailwalker UK. This is 100km, race along the South Downs Way in aid of the Gurkha Welfare Trust. We arrived at the Start Point having been treated to the driving skills of LCpl Chris 'definitely a novice' Noviss and the delightful background music provided by LCpl 'Buzz' Bury. The sun was beating down hard and we were definitely up for it. The hard training was about to be tested and we spent the hour before the start attempting to down as many fluids as possible. For Lt Chris Preston pre-race preparation meant gelling and styling his hair while Sig Jim Gallagher tried to disguise his nerves by grinning at everything everybody said. I, unfortunately, missed the warm-up, a long climb up a big hill, so arrived at the start unprepared. Well not sweating anyway.

Once the start gun had gone we began the race. It quickly became an endless slog of checkpoint after checkpoint and kilometre after kilometre. We suffered our first casualty at the 18 mile point when LCpl 'Buzz' Bury when down with heat stroke. At this point it is probably worth mentioning that he is one the Squadron PTIs. The finish was reached not before time at 0030hrs. We had been running for over 15hrs and had managed to come a creditable 28/215. Sig Thompson from Team B had gone it alone after the rest of his team had dropped out and finished at least one hour ahead of us. We were then presented with our medals and treated to a Gurkha Bhat before proceeding back to Bulford.

259 SIGNAL SQUADRON

OC Maj N. Griffiths
SSM WO2 (SSM) D. Ewing

Welcome and goodbye to the OC Squadrons, Maj Neil Griffiths our new Sqn Comd who has recently arrived from Germany. Having been fully briefed by Maj Steve Turnbull during the hand-over and issued with plenty of suntan lotion to boot, he took the chair from Steve on the 26 August. Maj Steve Turnbull after commanding for 2fi years has moved on with his family to Scotland having been posted to R Sigs MCM Div in Glasgow. All the best for the future and happy sailing for you and your family on Loch Lomond, watch out for the midges! Our visitors for this period of the year were 202 Sig Sqn, 3 (UK) Div HQ & Sig Regt, who visited the island on Ex Lions Sun 1999. We hope that your sunburn was not too painful and that you enjoyed your visit to the Squadron and of course to Cyprus, happy track bashing in Bulford!

AIRFIELD TROOP

Tp Comd Lt G. Kemp
Tp SSgt SSgt Stenhouse

Since the Troops last entry there has been two promotions, a few departures and even more arrivals. Firstly promotions, congratulations to the Troop OC, Lt 'Gareth' Kemp, on his promotion from Second Lieutenant to Lieutenant and Sig 'Barney' Barnett on his promotion to Lance Corporal. Now the farewells, good luck to SSgt (FofS) Eric O'Halloran and wife Julie who have gone back to sunny Blandford, (you are sadly missed). Farewell and best wishes to Cpl 'Jim' Wainwright for your marriage to Moira, who is posted to 242 Sig Sqn in Edinburgh and the best of luck to Marion our Troop Clerk and husband Ewan on their posting to RAF Brize-Norton. Hello and welcome to the Troop, for SSgt (FofS) 'Mac' McGregor and wife Lorraine, also congratulations on the birth of your new son Fraser; Cpl 'Glen' Paterson and wife Amanda, LCpl 'Danny' Rudd and wife Sue, Sig 'Danny' (Ex Ships Cat) McGurk, Sig 'Andy' (New Ships Cat) Wells and last but by no means least welcome to Sharon our new Troop Clerk, hope that you all enjoy your time in the Troop.

259 SIGNAL SQUADRON SUMMER CAMP - by Sig 'Gaz' Fuins

The Troop OC, Lt 'Gareth' Kemp was recently selected from a cast of thousands (or was that one) to organise and run a two week Squadron Summer Camp from 5 July – 16 July 1999 in and around the Troodos area. On Monday the 5th July 1999, Lt Kemp, ably assisted by his band of DS, Sgt 'Kev' Ingley, LCpl 'Barrington' Barnett, Sigs 'Adi' Bennett, 'Danny' McGurk and myself, all members of Airfield Tp. We gathered at RAF Troodos along with other members of the Squadron who were taking part in the Camp. It promised to be a fun filled week of adventure training. After all the usual arrival briefs the happy campers were split into groups and for the first two days went mountain biking and orienteering. At the end of which we had broken half of the mountain bikes and proved that map reading was not our forte. Day three, for those who could manage it, was Go-Karting which (sounding my own trumpet) I won. Followed by a visit to the Keo Brewery in Limassol. Here we learnt the techniques of brewing Keo larger and wines, after which we were allowed to put into practice our newly acquired expertise and sample beers and wines of the best. The next day was spent at the Water-Skiing Club RAF Akrotiri for a wet day on banana boats and doughnuts. A fantastic time was had by all except Sig 'Windmill Arm' Green who unfortunately dislocated his arm and was taken to hospital. The day was completed by a meal in a local Taverna, again with the exception of Sig Green who had to survive on hospital food. The Grand Finale of the week was the walk down from Troodos to SHQ in Episkopi, a total of 30km. The day started well with all the teams making the first check point. While Sgt 'Fudge' MacPhee's team was seen running from checkpoint to checkpoint, Sig 'Rimmer' Eyre's team had still not been seen at all until two hours after all the other teams had passed checkpoint two. However, no one was concerned, as the teams had been issued with a safety mobile phone for emergencies. Eventually the missing team was located, having lost their mobile phone. The quote of the day was 'Where's your safety phone Mr Eyre?' 'Last seen free-falling down a cliff Sir.'

DHEKELIA TROOP
Tp Comd Capt N. Morris
Tp SSgt SSgt Whitty

Like the rest of the Squadron, Dhekelia Tp has also undergone a major transformation on the posting front. So with out further ado welcome to Sgt Avery and family, Cpl Mercer and impending family and Cpl Torrington and family all from Northern Ireland. Welcome also to Sigs Stuart and Fell from trade training and finally welcome back to LCpl Lloyd on return form FI. The Troop bids farewell to Sgt Jones and family to 39 Bde and Cpl Little and family to RSS Blanford on his T1. Cpl D'Or leaves us for JCUNI and LCpl Fazackerly and family move on promotion to 3(UK) Div HQ & Sig Regt. Cpl Cavanagh, Sig Bates and Hicklin have gone to war in Kosovo to assist 21Sig Regt. Good luck lads and a safe return. The Troop has remained busy here in sunny Cyprus, particularly socially.

We deployed to the Dhekelia Watersports Club for a day's activities. The Bitsa Bar Banana boat Display team proved their worth and only narrowly missed drowning themselves. A barbecue and Karaoke session followed the day, where the boss showed his nerve with a fantastic rendition of Lucky Man.

EPISKOPI TROOP
Tp Comd 2Lt S. Covey-Crump
Tp SSgt SSgt Duncan

Episkopi Tp has been in a period of change, with the loss of SSgt '2fi years in Cyprus, still no tan' Tierney, Sgt 'Wallis and Gromit' Wilson and Cpl 'Lance' Swarbrick. The five newcomers arriving in the heat of Summer are, 2Lt Sarah Covey-Crump, SSgt Duncan, Foreman 'Peri' Winckle, Cpl 'Patchwork' Quilter from and Sig 'Ship Cat' Lecras. Finally congratulations to Sig Bennett on her pregnancy, she will be leaving the Troop at the end of October, to go on maternity leave. So far in the Hodgson Shield, a friendly Inter troop sporting competition, taken very seriously, Epi Troop has won the softball, cricket and the swimming. Training and tactics for the next competitions are already in motion. Well done to LCpl John Quinn, Team Captain for Softball, LCpl Bob Cope and Sig Robbie Williams in the swimming. The Troop has also been on top form socially with a very successful summer function to the Lebilia Apartments and swimming pool in down town Limassol.

202 SIGNAL SQUADRON GAMES NIGHT

On Monday 2 August 1999, the Episkopi and Akrotiri based Troops had the pleasure of challenging 202 Sig Sqn to a Games Night. The evening commenced with a hockey match in Happy Valley. 202 Sig Sqn eventually won this match 3-1 after many midfield battles between Sgt Chris Cheeseman (202) and LCpl Owen Trimble (259). Refreshments were required by this stage so both teams and all supporters retired to the Jimmy Club where a Games Night was organised. With all the hard Exercises over 202 Sig Sqn were ready to replace all lost fluids. The games cunningly chosen by 259 Sig Sqn were to be undertaken with great enthusiasm by both teams. The outcome was inevitable with 259 Sig Sqn becoming the overall champions of the evening, thanks to their superb chess and pool players. The evening was rounded off with a presentation of Sqn plaques from SSgt Kev Tierney (259) to Lt Kelvin Grice (202) and Maj Richard Quinlan (OC 202) to Capt Katy Caie (2IC 259).

SQUADRON DEPLOYS ON OPERATION JOINT GUARDIAN

The Squadron is presently in the process of experiencing 'déjà vu'. In late 1996 we deployed to Bosnia in support of HQ LANDCENT as they took over from HQ ARRC in command of the IFOR/SFOR mission. (The Squadron ended its formal commitment to Bosnia in November 1998 although we still have a detachment with MND(SW) in Banja Luka and will continue to do so for the foreseeable future). Almost three years later it is a case of history repeating as we once again deploy in support of HQ LANDCENT who are again relieving HQ ARRC in their command of the KFOR mission. The Squadron Kosovo mission is almost identical to the Bosnia mission. We will be overseeing the commercialisation of the strategic and operational communications infrastructure whilst being deployed into nine different locations within the region. Locations are as diverse as Pristina, Pec, Mitrovica, Urosevac and Prizren in Kosovo, Skopje in Macedonia, Tirana and Durres in Albania and finally Thessaloniki in Greece. The Squadron has undergone a busy summer in preparation for the deployment with the inevitable UNTAT briefings as part of our 'national' training. On the trade and NATO side a lucky few have deployed on courses to the NATO CIS School in Latina (near Rome) to undergo specialist training on the various COTS equipment and systems that will be used in theatre. The Squadron will deploy for six months and we expect the tour to end in April 2000.

280 (UK) SIGNAL SQUADRON SAVES AND WINS THE DAY! THE SQUADRON ROMPS TO VICTORY IN THE MORRISON CUP - by Sgt 'Vinny' Vincent

The last Morrison Cup of the century took place at the Grenzland Stadium Mönchengladbach on Thursday 3 June 1999. With the current situation in Macedonia there was a real fear that this prestigious event was in danger of being cancelled. With the sun shining brightly over the track and the spectators, the day's events got underway with an emphatic victory for Sgt Trev McSween in the 110m Hurdles. The hosting team followed this up with several impressive victories, including Sgt Wayne Dunbar in the Discus, Sgt Vincent in the Long Jump and LCpl Haustead in the 400 metres Hurdles. Halfway through the well organised competition there was a lull in the battle for lunch, with the SNCO's and Officers retiring to the Mess tent to prepare themselves mentally for the afternoon's activities. At this stage of the competition it was announced that 280 (UK) Sig Sqn had an impressive 17 points lead. The afternoon's events recommenced with the womens' competition by an excellent performance in the 100 metres by LCpl Applegarth of 16 Sig Regt, followed by a comfortable victory in the 3000 metres by LCpl McGregor of 200 Sig Sqn. Throughout the afternoon not everything went 280's way, with two outstanding performances from SSgt Jed Kean of 7 Sig Regt in the 3000 metres and 5000 metres. 16 Sig Regt also tasted victory with a close win in the Triple Jump. The day drew to a close with rapturous applause at the presentation of the Morrison Cup by Col Innocent to the 280 Team Captain, Sgt 'Vinny' Vincent. All in all the day had been a tremendous success due to the participation of all the athletes and the support from the crowd.

ALPHA TROOP - by Cpl Wells
Tp Comd 2Lt Higgs
Tp SSgt SSgt Roberts

Congratulations to Sig Edwards on her forthcoming promotion to Lance Corporal. Well done to Sig Lloyd on passing his Leadership Course in Blandford (with a little help from his old Tp OC!) Good luck to Sig Custy on his posting to 4 Armd Bde HQ & Sig Sqn, we hope everything goes well for you. Farewell also to Sgt Stebbing on his posting to 251 Sig Sqn Aldershot, where hopefully he won't have to write as many 252's. LCpl Gladish has also moved on to bigger things, by being posted to 264 Sig Sqn after being with us for only five months.

A busy month has seen the Troop complete most of their ITD's on a camp designed to sharpen our talents during which Sgt 'Pathfinder' Porter and Cpl 'I'm not lost ....MUCH' Menzies decided that the 1hr 3km course with 5 checkpoints wasn't challenging enough and disappeared off for 2.5 hrs covering around 10km and two checkpoints, needless to say there wasn't much grief heading in their direction. During the range phase Sig Ryall and Sig Thompson managed to achieve marksman scores, and now proudly wear X-rifles on their dressing gowns, a fashion started by Cpl 'No Course Too Hard' Icke.

On returning to camp, TUV was at the top of the list and due to the hard work of the Troop the vehicles passed with flying colours. Sig Edwards later decided that one of the DAFs was too big to park in the garages and took it upon herself, under the guidance of Sig 'Why Didn't You Use Your Mirrors' Machin, to widen the doorway with the use of the side bins on the DAF! Well done to the Troop athletics heroes for an excellent all-round season. The Troop is starting to disperse, ready for its' future tour to Kosovo, happy Millenium troops!

BRAVO TROOP

The Troop would like to start by saying farewell to Sig 'Dangerous Dave' Machin who has left us to return to the MT. He made a crashing impression within the Troop with his likeable Yorkshire banter and will be sorely missed. Also we have another farewell for LCpl 'Wannabe Queen' Andy King, who is leaving us for civilian street. His career is yet to be decided but whatever Mr King's choice, we wish him all the best in his future employment. Apart from the departures the two dets in Bosnia – Mostar; Sgt 'Hatch' Hatcher, Cpl 'Ronnie' Radford, LCpl 'Jacko' Jackson, LCpl Andy Truswell and Sig Emma Watts and Banja Luka; Sgt Tom Atkinson, Cpl Bri Hillson, LCpl Craig Harrison, Sig Jannette Lloyd are running smoothly, keeping the standard high, which is expected from 280 (UK) Sig Sqn. Sgt Chris Read, who is currently deployed to Greece and is in the same situation with everything well in hand. Also this month SSgt Graham Weavers, Cpl Stewart Wilkinson, LCpl Matt Grant and Sig Glenn 'Paddler' James attended Adventure Training at Engloff in Bavaria for four days. Trekking along with rock climbing and canoeing were the activities which we took part in. Everyone fully enjoyed the four days down there and the activities in which they participated in. Adventure Training was a definite success. With the current commitment in Bosnia and the pending one for Kosovo the Troop is at a quiet time of the year.

CHARLIE TROOP
Tp Comd Lt Emma Rae

On the movement side of life we are sorry to be losing: Cpl Richie 'I'm the MT Rep' Birch and his wife Karen, they are headed to 3 Inf Bde Northern Ireland, and Sig Tracy 'Treacle' Holland who is off to 24 Airmob Bde, back in good ol' Blighty. We have also lost Cpl Matt Rigby who has left for Civvy Strasse – your collections of videographic matter is sadly missed in the block! We are, however, pleased to welcome 2Lt 'Woollyhat' Caulderhead into the family that is Charlie Tp!

The Salty Sea Dogs
Pte Blacklock, LCpl Simmonds, Sig Lowe and LCpl Cook

Just as the Troop finished its mission in Bosnia and post-leave complete, the Squadron has been warned off for sunny Kosovo! Morale was at an all time high when it was announced that the Cadre Course and Freedom Parade HAD to be cancelled in preparation for the deployment! Manning in the Troop is at a minimum as National ITD Training, Trade Training, beloved Rear Details, Adventurous Training and some Summer Leave all take their toll. Still, the personnel of the Troop take it all in their stride, with less complaints than Victor Meldrew, especially when some Trade Training can ONLY be completed in Latina (that is, in Southern Italy for all you geographic buffs!)

EXERCISE QUICKSILVER BACKSTOP

(This story has been adapted from the official diary kept by Sig Lowe and Sig Clarke). Quicksilver the Royal Signals yacht, the pride of the Corps' – well, that was how it was described to nine novice sailors in Charlie Tp. The adventurous members of the Troop divided themselves into two groups and were allocated five days sailing in the Baltic Sea. Group 1 consisted of Lt Emma 'The Boss' Rae, LCpl 'Cookie & Eatie' Cook, LCpl Simmo 'Neanderthal' Simmonds, Sig Terrence 'Tarquin' Lowe and Pte Lois 'Clerk' Blacklock. Group 2 were Sgt Chris 'The Tan Man' Porter, LCpl Cookie 'Now Promoted to First Mate' Cook, LCpl Daz 'Public Display' Rickard, Sig Nobby 'West Indian' Styles and Sig Phil 'Writer' Clarke. The first group arrived in Kiel to meet the yacht and Skipper. LCpl Del 'Belly Laughs' Whyman one Tuesday morning, after being up all night on the Ranges! Their first challenge was to buy three days worth of supplies, a task almost impossible of a group of singlies! The afternoon was spent settling into the luxury liner, safety briefs and practicing our nautical skills on a 4ft motorised boat before setting sail early the next morning. Group 1 set sail on a glorious day. After an hour of sun, light winds and good morale the wind picked up, the seas roughened and suddenly the seasickness hit. We bounced around the Baltic Sea for a further nine hours, at times it seemed the boat would tip as it reached gravity-defying angles. Luckily the Corp's yacht is made of sturdier stuff than the crew. The 'parking' of the yacht was another adventure; after dropping a rope into the water, wrapping it around the prop and going diving to untangle it (thanks Del!), we played yacht pinball and increased Anglo-German/Danish relations! The next day was an extreme disappointment, the weather had become worse and we were storm-bound. The crew, always ready to adapt and overcome, went for a cultural trip around Sonderburg. Day 4 was a perfect day to set sail for Damp. The Skipper soon handed the control over to the crew and by the end of the day everyone was helming, jibing as if we were all weathered Salty Sea Dogs, in addition Sig 'Sunny' Lowe was 'Tikiti Booing'. The final day was glorious and, finally, our interpretation of sailing was fulfilled and we wasted no time in getting the sun lotion out. It was during this fine weather that we handed over to Group 2, along with the Skipper and a few necessary supplies. After hearing the perilous journey of Group 1 we set sail a little apprehensively at a breath taking 2 knots and headed for Marstel. To everyone's disappointment, the next day was awful... for sailing and we headed for Sonderberg on full throttle. We all took our turns to navigate, steer on the correct bearing and boost the tans. Again the next day, to the utter disgust of the less-disciplined Sun-worshipers, the weather was in the 30s. Sgt Chris Porter and Sig 'Nobby' Styles adopted the position of ship covers and missed out on the detour past the nudist beach (although this did save confusion on whose turn it was on the Binos!) On arrival back at Kiel we had to clean the boat from top to bottom, pulpit to cockpit, in what can only be described as 'the worst march out of an Army Quarter EVER!!'

In summary both groups thoroughly enjoyed themselves; Group 1 experiencing the whole spectrum of weathers and Group 2 experiencing.... Sunbathing! So thank you Quicksilver!!

MOTOR TRANSPORT TROOP
MTO Capt Kev Jones

With TUV over it has been a relatively quiet time for the Troop, allowing ample time to get in that much needed training. This included Driver Training Light with Cpl Betts in a fleet of Landrover TDIs and Mercedes Benz Galanders, which went very well until LCpl 'Recker' McDougall managed to lose control on a difficult ascent and make Cpl Betts' day. Sig Osborne of MT Troop has recently represented the Squadron in the Minor Units' Athletic Championship, Germany, which put him in good stead for a Fourth place in the 5000 metres in the Minor Units' Championship, UK. As most of you know, these days a tour or two is not that uncommon and this is certainly the case for the Troop, with its' ongoing commitments in Bosnia. The MT is now preparing for a late September deployment to Kosovo with Out-Dets located in Greece, Albania and Macedonia. We are looking forward to putting into practice the training we have done over the past few months. Good luck and farewell to Sig Ross Phillips, who is posted to 20 Armd Bde, and Sig Charlie Lister, who has departed for Northern Ireland.

ADVENTURE TRAINING, BAVARIA 24 – 29 JULY 1999

After finding out that the whole Squadron is to deploy to Kosovo and a highly intensive ITD week, it came as a great relief for the Squadron to carry out Adventure Training in Bavaria. Headed by 2Lt 'All the Gear...' Higgs, several members of the Squadron set off to Weitnau, Bavaria for four days of activities, including kayaking, rock climbing and hill walking. The week's activities were blessed by glorious sunshine and the blossoming love of Sig 'Sleepy Head' Crothers and Sig 'Daddy' Foulkes. Pte 'Dr Doolittle' Lane managed to find something 'small and fluffy' to keep the guys happy – a local farmer was breeding deer. The kayakers, consisting of SSgt Weavers, LCpl Grant, Sig James and Sig Wildridge kept themselves busy on the water, with the latter three gaining their Level 1 proficiency. The walking took place in Sonthofen, around the Nebelhorn, where Sig 'Too Slow, I'm Bored' Ryall, took to the pace as if it was the Lanyard Trophy, whilst all other participants preferred to admire the view and bimble along taking in the fresh air. The evenings were spent relaxing in the lodge with a few party tricks from the likes of Cpl 'Dreamboy' Icke and Cpl 'Wannabe' Teasdale, who entertained with a dance routine adapted from 'The Full Monty'. The week was a great success until the drive home, when Sig Ryall and Sig Wildridge relaxed a bit too much and decided a demolition derby was more fun in mini buses than in go-karts.

COMMUNICATION SUPPORT SECTION
Tp Comd Capt Dave Stewart

FAREWELLS, ARRIVALS & THANK YOU

First of all we have some goodbyes, in order of departure: Sig Omar Sherriff, who is probably putting another shrimp on the barbi half way around the world, (G'DAY MATE). LCpl Si 'Ewok' Harris, off to sunny Paderborn, and even sunnier Banja Luka after his Leadership course. Cpl Tony Caban who has left to take up a civilian ADP job in The Hague. Now is the time to buy shares in Dutch breweries. Finally LCpl 'Mac' McGlinchey and his wife Raffaela; best of luck in his new career here in Germany. Keep an eye out for him at Dusseldorf Airport. Just one this time: welcome to Cpl 'F-H' Featherstonehaugh and family who join us from C Tp after another tour of Bosnia. His main task at present is trying to get the better of NT4 and give the Squadron a reliable internet connection. A Thank you goes to SSgt (FofS) 'Lumberjack' Griffiths for a fun day out at his new house, pulling out trees. The barbecue was good as well.

EXERCISE COMBINED ENDEAVOUR

The beginning of June saw the end of another NATO exercise. 32 nations assembled in Baumholde, close to Luxembourg, to carry out interfacing trials. Comms Support Section was out in force supplying what was probably the last deployment of the RMA trunk system. The Exercise lasted for three weeks, with a great deal of technical and social interfacing carried out. The Section OC, Capt Dave Stewart, found out during the final evening that Rumanian plum brandy is pretty strong stuff! The prize of highest national flag went to this Squadron who attached a Union Jack to a kite and positioned it above the 30 metre French Airforce Mast.

FURTHER SQUADRON ATHLETICS SUCCESS AT THE BA(G) & ARMY CHAMPIONSHIPS

With the Morrison Cup victory still freshly embedded within the athletes' minds, the team travelled up to Sennelager to compete in the British Forces (Germany) Athletics Championship on 26 June 1999. Due to the amount of teams entered for this championship, both the Major and Minor Units were informed that the winning teams would be selected to represent BF (G) in the army team finals. The scoring of the championships proved to be a problem due to the lack of teams entered, as no matter how much better an athlete was than his opponent, the opposition always came second! It became apparent quite quickly that 3 Fd Amb RAMC were not here just to make up the numbers. Throughout the morning the local unit won every event, leaving 280 with all the work to do. It was during the break that the younger athletes within the team realised it's not such a good idea to drink alcohol the night before an athletics championship! After a serious tactical team talk, the competition recommenced with Sig Les Ryall running a great race to win the 800 metres. The winning trend stayed with 280 with superb athletic feats by Sgt's Trev McSween and Ned Kelly. With only the 400 x 400 metres relay to run, 3 Armd Fd Amb realised that the visiting unit was to be going home with the silverware.

THE GRAND FINALE!!
ARMY INTER UNIT TEAM ATHLETICS CHAMPIONSHIP 1999

The 21 July 1999 saw the team enter into the final battle of the gladiators. This would be the ultimate victory, and of course complete the treble. The players of Manchester United received £500,000 each bonus for completing such a great achievement. What would it bring us?! It was a fine summer's day, the Stadium had recently received a major face lift and was looking more spectacular than ever. With eight major units entered the stage had been set for a magnificent competition. The team was quietly confident after a couple of weeks intense altitude training in the UK. The event kicked off with a tremendous win in the Hammer for Cpl Barny Barnett, unfortunately this was followed by some unforeseen shock defeats on the track (mention no names, Sgt McSween)! The teams hopes of winning were kept alive with Sgt 'Vinny' Vincent winning all his events, and another fine performance which saw Sig Les Ryall battle his way into a well deserved Third in the 800 metres. Throughout the day the Minor Units competition was a very closely fought battle between HQ 4 Div, AFC Harrogate and 280 (UK) Sig Sqn. Brave displays by Sig 'Ossy' Osborne and Mat Baber were to no avail, as HQ 4 Div over powered us by a very influential one point to gain victory. Overall this has been a admirable team performance and it is a great honour to be part of the Squadron's most successful athletics team to date.

DEFENCE ELECTRONIC WARFARE CENTRE (ARMY ELEMENT) RAF WADDINGTON

Snr Army Offr Maj (Tfc (R)) D. P. Dolling MBE
Warrant Officer WO1 (Supvr R) W. Corner

A fairly busy period on the operational support side of life has not stopped the Army continuing to make their presence felt around the station, despite our small numbers. Sgt Bridget Jukes organised a highly successful 12 hour sponsored step, which was well supported not only by ourselves, but the rest of the DEWC and RAF Waddington station. BBC Radio Lincolnshire gave air coverage to the event and Lincoln City Football Club also sent two players along to be put through their paces, although both declined claiming their insurance was invalid. They could possibly have been put off after witnessing the 'beasting' Sgt Jukes was administering to the 'volunteers'! A sum in the region of 2000 pounds was raised for local charities. Meanwhile, Sgt Danny O'Neill and Cpl Andy Bush are set to take part in the Lyke Wake Walk charity challenge between the DEWC and RAF Leuchers. The walk covers 42 miles across the North Yorkshire Moors from Osmotherly to Robin Hoods Bay. It must be completed in 24 hours, but the challenge is for the fastest time possible.

CONGRATULATIONS, WELCOMES & FAREWELLS

Congratulations go out to Maj Dolling on his 'promotion' to substantive Major and also to Cpl Lee 'the Gut' Ghaut on selection for promotion to Sergeant. The promotion drinks have already gone down in legend despite most that were present being unable to remember the night itself! Lee now leaves us to take up a post as a trade training instructor at DSSS Chicksands. Welcome to Cpl (Sgt to be) Tel 'Crossword King' Gardiner and his wife Gail. Welcome back that is as he has only been gone 18 months! Rumour has it that he couldn't hack it in the real world! Congratulations on your promotion Tel and good to see Blackburn Rovers back were they belong as well! Soon to leave us is Sgt Danny O'Neill, who has managed to get himself posted to NATO MEWSG (LAND DET) and has the prospect of two years in Italy to look forward to!

AN/APR-39AM 4 RAF WADDINGTON 12-16 JULY 1999

The AN/APR 39A (V) 4 Radar Warning Receiver Course took place at the Defence Electronic Warfare Centre RAF Waddington in July. The course was sponsored by GKN Westland and run on their behalf by SRI International under the direction of the American Electronic Warfare Centre (AEWC) based at Elgin Air Force Base Florida. The AN/APR 39A (V) 4 will be fitted to the first 9 WAH-64 (Apache) helicopters. A total of eight Army personnel took part which included five members of the Royal Signals (Tele Op (Spec)) and three from the Army Air Corps, all based at the DEWC. Royal Signals personnel presently support the Army Air Corps and Royal Navy Radar Warning Receivers and will make a major contribution towards supporting the Helicopter Integrated Defensive Aid Suite (HIDAS) which will eventually be fitted to the Army Air Corps fleet of WAH64.

EXERCISE CLIFFHANGER

Ex Cliffhanger was an Adventurous Training week undertaken by members of the Army Element from the DEWC in the Cairngorms. The aim of the week was to give personnel the opportunity to conduct various outdoor activities. It was also an all too rare chance for us to get together and get away from 'the building' for a week. Nine members of the unit plus two RAF Expedition Leaders set off from Lincoln on Monday 26 April. After an 8-hour haul up to Kingussie, we eventually made it in one piece, despite the efforts of Sgt Martin 'Michael Schumacher' Gill to frighten the life out of the passengers in his mini-bus. As is customary on these occasions, one or two individuals felt it was time to 'reece' the local refreshment joints. Our RAF counterparts, however, had other plans. When they informed us that we would be going for an evening walk around one of the lochs in order to 'shake off the legs', there were various responses. Sgt Andy 'Its just a scratch' Barber suggested everyone should search the floor for the plot they seemed to have lost! He later vented his anger by crashing the mini bus as we approached the start point of the walk! After a quick 'speed-tab' around the loch, we swapped drivers for someone who could drive and made it back in time to taste the local brew! Tuesday was down to business. Everyone was given the opportunity to have a go at abseiling and various climbs that were set up, some harder than others. Sgt Martin Gill defied his age and his figure and flew up the rocks like Spiderman, whilst others were not so keen. Sgt Danny 'I love nature' O'Neill fooled no one, by claiming there was nothing to it. This was after he had his hands surgically removed from the supporting tree in order to begin his abseil! That evening we went out once again to one of the many lochs, this time to practice or in some cases, learn open canoeing techniques. Once everyone had mastered the skills it turned into a free-for-all attempt to 'attack' each other and tip the occupants into the freezing loch. Top marks went to Sgt's O'Neill and Barber for the sporting way in which they flung themselves in after seemingly escaping the hunting pack! Wednesday saw our merry band split into two groups. Some went up into the Caimgorms to 'play in the snow' as the instructors put it. The rest departed with Maj Dave 'Dangerous' Dolling for Ben Nevis. Sgt Danny O'Neill had convinced both himself and one or two other individuals in the pub the previous night that this was surely the easy option as there were no real mountains in Britain, only big hills! It would be a stroll he proclaimed! All this from someone who had never seen Ben Nevis! Maj Dolling assured the instructors and convinced (or is that fooled?) the group that he would take us up the tourist route, as the group contained mainly beginners. We were 'corrected' as we stood at the foot of the 'mountain' and informed we would try a more challenging route. 'Up that hill, over that ridge, little bit of a climb; right, follow me men!' Everyone felt a sense of achievement at the top. There were many memorable moments, in particular Sgt O'Neill once again displaying his love of all things natural by clinging to rocks for dear life every time the group stopped to rest! Sgt Martin 'No sense, no fear' Gill managed to make everyone else nervous by hopping from rock to rock as though he were playing hopscotch whilst crossing 'the ridge'.

On Thursday, the group was reunited for a day's mountain biking. The two expedition leaders had drawn up a route for us to negotiate. All 45km of it! Sgt Martin Gill quickly displayed his level of biking expertise by demanding a vehicle fitted with stabilisers! The route turned out to be both demanding but enjoyable, with everyone managing to complete it. As is inevitable, challenges were thrown down, and it turned into a bit of a race between certain members. Sgt Danny 'Competitive Dad' O'Neill took this to heart and pushed himself to his physical limits in an attempt to stay ahead of whom he thought was a chasing pack of Maj Dave Dolling and Cpl Lee 'Dinger' Ghaut on the last leg. If only he had looked behind, he would have realised he was well clear of the rest of the group, his bet was safe and he was in fact being pushed along by Flt Lt Clifford who happened to be an experienced and very good mountain biker! Friday saw the final day of activities and we headed to a start point on the River Spey to begin a 6-mile course down river. Tuesday night's practice had been useful and our merry band of canoeing experts set off. Some found the course easier than others, with Sgt Martin Gill in particular having to work extremely hard. With shouts of 'More power Martin,' coming from his fellow crewman, Maj Dolling, he paddled with all his worth, not being one to disobey orders. Rumour has it that the Major proceeded to lie back. crack open a bottle of vintage champagne and munch on grapes whilst admiring the surrounding countryside, but this remains unfounded! Once again. Sgts O'Neill and Barber decided it was far too easy doing the course in the canoe and proceeded to tip themselves into the river at every possible opportunity. After cleaning up the hostel and packing on Saturday, a final night out was had in nearby Aviemore. I am sure everyone will extend thanks to the two RAF expedition leaders, who ensured we had a full week of first class activities to keep us busy. Finally, we mustn't forget Cpl Lee 'Gut' Ghaut who spent months of stress, phone calls, panic and more phone calls, arranging and co-ordinating the exercise on behalf of Maj Dolling.

600 SIGNAL TROOP

EXERCISE RAW IRON

Ex Raw Iron was a 600 Sig Tp Adventure Training Exercise which took place in the Lake District between the period 4-9 July 1999. Eight of the ten participants were from the Troop with the remaining two being selected from RSIT and the Corsham Hub. The party was accommodated at Denton House in Keswick, which has recently changed hands and is now owned by the Adventure Company. The week's activities included Hill walking, canoeing, mountain biking and rock climbing/abseiling, all of which were conducted around the Keswick area.

MONDAY 5 JULY - HILL WALKING - by SSgt (YofS) Richards

The Hill Walking took place on Monday 5 July 1999, with WO2 (FofS) Mick Campbell the UEL taking charge during his last working week in the Army. The aim was to climb Helvellyn (950m) and some of its lesser brethren. Although the route taken was only 15km in length, the steep gradients and track conditions made it seem much longer. Added to this the day was bright and sunny with temperatures in the mid twenties Celsius, which made the pace slow but steady. The OC was soon to discover that hours spent on a step machine had not paid off.

The ascent provided a challenge to all personnel, whether it was the climb, the conditions underfoot or the concentration necessary to traverse Striding Edge with a hundred metre drop either side. A lunch break was taken at the summit, during which SSgt (FofS) Dave Petty took the opportunity to use his mobile and inform his wife that he was in the precise location where marriage had been proposed some six years earlier. However, to 'phone' her in front of an audience was probably less than wise. The route back was longer but thankfully easier, with some stunning views and beautiful weather, we descended with the agility of mountain goats. The day ended with the party being dragged forcibly into a pub by some Australian cousins. It was a good day to be serving Queen and Country.

TUESDAY 6 JULY - MOUNTAIN BIKING - by Sgt Hughes

The Mountain Bike route consisted of a 22 mile circuit starting and ending at Denton House. The outset began with a gradual climb before following contours, which finally had us descending back into Keswick. On paper, the trail appeared to be 'kids stuff'. However the outward climb soon left the smooth tarmac roads and paths, becoming a rocky arduous trek occasionally forcing the keen bikers to revert to the use of their feet. The route passed a stone circle just outside Keswick, continued through the village of Threkeld, up a mountainous climb, passing the Blencartha Centre. This is where the route became arduous, following an old mining track along the hillside of Blease Fell, with a fine view to the left overlooking Glenderaterra Beck and Lonscale Fell. The track then wound its way up and along until Skiddaw House could be seen in the distance.

Having stopped for lunch at Skiddaw House and socialised with the local sheep the journey began to reap the benefits of such hard work earlier on. Whatever goes up must come down, and down the daredevil bikers did, flying through the rock and debris tracks leading through Dead Crags and Little Calva. With adrenaline flowing the now hardened bikers took to the easygoing tarmac roads and cruised on to meet the A591. From hereon the descent into Keswick disappeared effortlessly into the sunny Cumbrian afternoon, with the World land speed record safely intact. On reaching Keswick a leisurely cycle through the town centre admiring the local views and allowing afternoon shoppers to feast their eyes on some of UK's finest mountain bikers, ended back at Denton House amidst conversations about saddle sores.

WEDNESDAY 7 JULY - CANOEING - by SSgt Gouldson.

Having completed the initial safety training prior to the adventure training we could proceed with Cpl Tara Dancey (RAF) onto the more interesting aspects of canoeing. For once we didn't have the usual let's get you wet to demonstrate what fun it is, thank God. We started the day by practising a few recovery strokes. They were soon needed as I had a canoe with a left-hand bias, it may have been my paddling but I'm convinced it was the boat. Both blue canoes had this problem, just as you built up a head of steam you would suddenly without reason veer off to the left.

We then went out onto Derwent Water and canoed around a couple of islands, landing on one to claim it for Queen and country, oh and had a coffee for good measure. Having satisfied our imperial aspirations and bodily needs we went back to base camp for lunch. For the afternoon's expedition we canoed across the lake and up the River Derwent, at this stage we practised for the circus, standing up and paddling or like myself falling in as soon as I stood up. The thought was enough to make me roll over. Cpl Tara Dancey then demonstrated the Eskimo roll with the help of Sgt Dave Doody, who enjoyed it so much he kept on going. He would come out of one roll and immediately proceed straight into another, this completing an excellent day's activity.

THURSDAY 8 JULY - CLIMBING/ABSEILING

by SSgt (FofS) Petty

Cpl Tara Dancey and a couple of all too willing volunteers deployed early to Shepherds Crag in order to claim a stake on what has become a very popular and busy rock-climbing location. Aided by a 'Climbing in Borrowdale' book purchased locally and many years of experience Cpl Dancey soon erected two single pitched climbs. Although single pitch, the climbs soon had me wishing I'd visited the toilet earlier. During the day SSgt (Yofs) Richards and myself came to the conclusion that we were slowly being eaten alive by tiny Lakeland midges. We later retreated to Keswick and purchased the worlds strongest insect repellent, returning smiling, we dared the midges to bite us now.

On our return Maj Eames impressed us with his climbing ability, proving that he could still teach the younger members of the group a thing or two. SSgt (YofS) Richards, however, proved to be the climbing star and was later nicknamed spider, although not having eight legs he did claim a third, which left the remainder of us somewhat bemused. All members of the party successfully attempted both climbs at least once. However, it was soon apparent that civilian climbers were encroaching from all angles. For one final adrenaline rush Cpl Dancey erected an abseil which each member of the party descended with varying degrees of prowess. With the equipment packed, the group sadly departed the location of the week's final activity.

NEWS FROM THE CADETS

ROYAL SIGNALS SUPPORT CADET FORCE SIGNALLING

Many will be aware that the Royal Signals support Cadet Force signalling through being advisors to some 277 Cadet Signal Platoons throughout the British Isles. What may not be so well known is that during the Easter and Summer school holidays a number of Cadet courses are included in the established programme of the Royal School of Signals. The aim of these courses is to upgrade Cadets and Cadet Instructors. On a three year cycle Cadet Instructors, of all ranks, meet in a Symposium to discuss their problems, exchange solutions and to generally inform and update. The next Symposium being 19-21 November 1999. The Cadet Instructors courses this year have covered Basic Signalling, both line and Radio, as well as separate courses for those responsible for Commanding a Cadet Signal platoon.

MERSEYSIDE ARMY CADETS
RETURN FROM ONE OF THEIR LARGEST CAMPS FOR MANY YEARS

In the depths of the beautiful Northumberland National Park, during the warmest weather of the year so far, 500 Army Cadets from Merseyside have just enjoyed a thrilling, action packed 12 days at their Annual Camp. Together with 150 of their Adult Instructors and Officers and supported by some 50 other adult staff, the boys and girls have taken part in Cadet military training on the Otterburn Army Training Area, expeditions, and adventure training activities at the Scout Association centre at Kellder Water. Their Commandant, Col Amlot said, 'The Cadets have loved it. It has been a great challenge to get it set up and run for so many but every one of the 12 days have been rewarding. I am grateful to all my staff who have done a splendid job. I am also very grateful for the level of support that our friends in Merseyside and in Northumberland have given to us. However, most of all I take my hat off to the marvellous young men and women of Merseyside, our cadets who have risen to every challenge that we have put in front of them and overcome them in style. They are a credit to their families and to Merseyside.'

At the farewell parade on 10 August, after five years service as Commandant, Col Amlot handed over to his successor, Col Ian Thomson. Col Thomson lives in Formby and is a Principal Inspector with the Offshore Safety Division of the Health and Safety Executive. He has served with the Territorial Army for the last 32 years and the Army Cadet Force for the last three.

SUSSEX ARMY CADET FORCE
ANNUAL CAMP (1999) ST. MARTIN'S PLAIN

By Lt Col R. D. Newton MBE FISM AMIPR

Sussex Army Cadet Force's highlight of the training year and main event had arrived, we were off to Annual Camp! 255 Cadets, male and female, plus 34 Officers and 50SNCOs arrived at Camp, having travelled by coach, from all parts of Sussex. This was to be the first Annual Camp for many Cadets. Our last visit to St Martin's Plain Camp was five years ago. As usual our busy training wing, led by Maj David Rusbridger, had arranged a wide variety of training, using to the full the many benefits of first class military and adventurous training facilities offered by Annual Camp. The training package included mountain bikes, assault courses, 22 shooting, air rifle shooting, canoeing, watermanship, climbing, first-aid training, abseiling, military skills, progress in the Army Proficiency Certificate (APC), lots of sport and of course, I must not forget to mention, the very tasty 'happy bags' haversack rations. The food proved to be of a high standard with the cadets having a large number of choices for each meal. Also the NAAFI was a big hit with the Cadets, having a very large screen video and TV to show films, on their few nights off. O n e of the many highlights of Camp was the two-day Exercises using the large training areas at Folkstone. The cadets had great fun putting into practice the skills learnt during the rest of the year. It was for many their first taste of living under the stars. The training programme designed to bring out newly acquired skills resulted in many Cadets returning from Camp sporting new star badges and promotions on their brazzards.

Our Camp notes would not be complete without expressing our thanks for the tremendous efforts made on our behalf by 2Lt Don Sweeney from the 1st Battalion Princess of Wales Royal Regiment and his Platoon Staff, whose contribution made the Camp so enjoyable and such fun, we are all very grateful to them. A number of distinguished visitors attended camp and saw many of the different activities taking place. See TAVR Brig John Holman CBE DL, our Honorary Colonel Sir Brian Bartalott BL OBE DL, Brig T. J. Minter OBE Commander 2 South East Brigade, Col P. C. Cook Commandant Frimley Park Training Centre, Maj Ian Jones 2 Brigade, Maj G. Bartlett SE ACF Regional Press and Public Relations Advisor. They all left our Camp delighted to see so many Cadets enjoying themselves and were very impressed by the enthusiasm and courtesy in the manner in which they responded to questions asked. At the end of Camp we enjoyed our usual penultimate day's Presentation Parade, again a sizeable array of silverware and prizes was presented by our Commandant, Col Chris Blessington JP. This Camp was the last Annual Camp for Col Chris as he is retiring at the end of the year, after five years as Commandant with Sussex ACF. Without doubt our Cadets returned to Sussex all the better for good training, good sport, good fun and good fellowship and are ready to crack on with their local training with even greater enthusiasm.

ROLL ON CAMP 2000!

THE SOUTH WEST LONDON ARMY CADET FORCE

South West London Army Cadet Force has long had associations with the Royal Signals through 31 Signal Regiment, both in Earlsfield and Coulsdon, with the first Detachments affiliated in the early 1960's. Over 30 years later Cdt Cpl Elliott Walker of 153 Detachment in Sutton earned the distinction of passing out of the top Four Star Cadet's Course at Napier Barracks, Shorncliffe, during Summer Camp, and is here seen being inspected by the Cadet Commandant, Col David Leech. Elliott comes from nearby Hackbridge, once the home of a Squadron of 31 Signal Regiment until the cuts in the late 1960's.

For over three years he has travelled two nights a week, over five miles to the best Cadet Detachment around, as he puts it, ignoring a more local Cadet Detachment that is not badged Royal Signals!! — Many will know that the Cadet Forces provide some 25% of the Army recruit intake each year, staffed as they are by volunteers from all walks of life. Ex soldiers are, of course, most welcome, and their expertise in both signalling matters and general infantry work are a valuable resource.

SNOWBOARDING

ARMY SNOWBOARDING CHAMPIONSHIPS 22-25 MAY 1999

by Sgt Dom Graham

The first Army Snowboard championships took place between 22-25 May 1999 at the all year resort of Stubai, Austria. The competition started with a large number of competitors having problems getting into Austria due to the fact the region was having the worst floods for 20 years. This delay meant most of the competitors had to miss the first day's training. The first morning of the competition was allocated to training as many of the participants had never been on a slalom course, let alone racing on one. The afternoon saw all competitors competing in a race-off, to gain their seeding positions for the main competition. The standard for the competition was between expert and novice with most riders having snowboarded before. This made for excellent racing and after the first run, only a few seconds separated the top 15 places.

Army Competitors at the start of the Slalom Race course

The second run saw a different course and individuals going in the reverse order depending on their first run times. After the second run all competitors had both times added together to give an overall time. This then reflected an average position. Like the first run, the top 15 were again close with a small mistake being the difference between several places. The top places came from individuals from AA College Arborfield and Engineer units stationed in Germany, with the only Royal Signals entrant, Sgt 'Dom' Graham, in 11th place.

The Boarder X was the last race, this involved participants racing head to head with three other riders for a knock out style competition. Racing was quick and fun with jumps, turns and the odd table top for individuals to negotiate before a sprint to the line. 35 Engineer Regiment followed by AA college Arborfield won the team events. This year saw no Royal Signals' teams compete. All participants enjoyed competing for the first time, with most looking forward to next year's events.

As snowboarding is a popular sport it is expected next year's competition will have even more competitors and teams enter, thus making racing even more competitive. As the Corps does not have a snowboard team to compete next year, it is intended to hold a training camp later in the year for individuals who are interested in snowboarding. Anyone who is interested in competing at next year's Army championships should contact Sgt 'Dom' Graham for further details. All levels of ability are welcome. The contact number is Blandford mil 2585 or you could write to him direct at FCS Troop, Area systems Group, Blandford Camp, DORSET DT11 8RH.

WIDNES SOLDIER IN BUDAPEST 'SEVENS'

SSgt Bob Vowles, from Widnes, has just returned to his unit in Germany after playing in a Rugby 'Sevens' competition in Budapest, Hungary. Bob (32) is a member of the British Army (Germany) team which, having been invited by the Hungarian Rugby Union, went on to win the two-day competition, beating Moldovia by 28 points to 4 in the final. Bob, whose parents Frank and Norah still live in Widnes, joined the Royal Corps of Signals in 1983 and has seen service in Namibia, USA, France, the Bahamas, Cyprus, Bosnia, Australia, Spain and Canada. He is currently serving with 16 Sig Regt at their base near Monchengladbach in northern Germany, where he and his wife Jenny live with their children Mathew and Isobel. In addition to being a top-class rugby player he is a keen athlete, yet he has also managed to find time to complete a BSc degree in Engineering! The British Army (G) rugby team is now taking a short break before training for the next season begins. Bob, and the other members of the squad, is looking forward to playing in the Munich 'Beer Festival Sevens' and the Singapore International Sevens in November.

ROYAL SIGNALS SPRINT AND MARATHON CANOEING 1999

How better to celebrate Princess Royal Day than in glorious sunshine on the River Wye in Monmouth? That is exactly how 30 officers and soldiers of the Royal Corps earned their pay over the period 28 June-4 July 1999! Of course this was not simply a holiday, but a Corps Canoe training camp preparing our soldiers for the Army Championships. Expectations were running high, with 1(UK) Armd Div HQ & Sig Regt hoping to retain the Senior Marathon Novice Trophy and a strong team from the Royal Military College of Science aiming to gain much invaluable advice from the training camp. All competitors live under canvas on the ideal Vauxhall training camp in Monmouth. Being within five minutes walk of both the River Wye and the beautiful town centre the Camp is perfectly located for a successful and enjoyable week. Throughout the week racing advice was given (almost free of charge) by Capt David Drinkall (HQ 2(NC) Sig Bde) and LCpls 'Rich' Astridge (30 Sig Regt) and 'Digger' Blake (33 EOD). The training was based upon racing kayaks and much encouragement was given to the 1 Div crowd to convert from general-purpose kayaks into racing boats. On the Saturday the Army Sprint Championships took place over distances of 500 and 1000m. Results worthy of particular note were those of LCpl 'Rich' Astridge who won a gold medal in all his races, both single and double! Rich therefore is promoted to Div A. SSgt Chris Lloyd (3(UK) Div HQ & Sig Regt) won a silver medal in both his events and Maj Mark Edwards (PJHQ) won a silver and bronze in the doubles events. Also successful were Cpl Dave Thomas (264(SAS) Sig Sqn) and Sig Neale Climpson (30 Sig Regt). Dave won a gold medal in the 500 K1 Div C race and combined with Neale to gain gold in the K2 500m race and a silver in the 1000m race. Capt John Collyer not only led the RMCS team to a decisive victory but also managed to gain two bronze medals in the K2 events. Sigs Craddock and Moore (1 Armd Div HQ & Sig Regt) also earn a mention as they gained gold medals in both the Ladies 500m K2 race and Class 4 event.

AT Carlyon (AAC Arborfield) displayed excellent potential gaining a silver medal in the Junior Class 5 event, watch this space! In the team competition 1 Armd Div HQ & Sig Regt gained Third place in the Senior Novice Trophy. After a night of 'carbohydrate loading' the R SIGNALS personnel were well prepared for an excellent marathon race. Depending on Div, the marathon event is over a course of between 8 and 12 miles, which includes half up-stream, not to mention the swans! Astridge and Edwards took silver and bronze medals in the Div B K2 events, with Thomas/Climpson taking a silver in the Div C event. Lloyd stormed to take gold in the Div B K1 race with the excellent style expected of a veteran! The RMCS team convincingly won the Senior Marathon Cup. In the novice classes, 2Lt Stuart Gunson took the gold medal in the Class 5 race and led his team to an outstanding victory, thus achieving his aim! Well done 1 Armd Div HQ & Sig Regt. Overall, the training camp was an outstanding success with the following personnel being selected for the Army Squad:

Maj Mark Edwards	PJHQ
Capt John Collyer	RMCS
SSgt Chris Lloyd	3(UK) Div HQ & Sig Regt
Cpl Dave Thomas	264 (SAS) Sig Sqn
LCpl Rich Astridge	30 Sig Regt
Sig Neale Climpson	30 Sig Regt
Sig Kizzy Craddock	1 Armd Div HQ & Sig Regt
Sig Alison Moore	1 Armd Div HQ & Sig Regt

In addition, Capt David Drinkall (2 (NC) Sig Bde), Lt Annabel Taylor (7 Sig Regt) and Sig Nicola Burnip (1 Armd Div HQ & Sig Regt) retain their positions within the Squad. R SIGNALS now have the strongest contingent within the Army Squad. The Squad members will now all be invited to the Army Training Camp where selection takes place to decide the Army Team that will compete at the Inter-Services Sprint and Marathon Canoe Championships. The Championships will take place over the period 3 – 5 September 1999 at The International Water Sports Centre, Holme Pierre Pont, Nottingham when the Army Team hope to retain both the Sprint and Marathon trophies! Good luck goes to the team and in particular those members of R Signals competing for the Army, but remember Canoeing in the Army does not simply involve competitions but also includes recreation, instruction and expeditions! For further information on Canoeing contact Capt David Drinkall at HQ 2 (NC) Sig Bde on Corsham Mil 4213.

SQUASH

ROYAL SIGNALS SQUASH CHAMPIONSHIPS 1998

Last year's Royal Signals Squash Championships were again held at Blandford Camp 17 to 20 November 1998. It was very well supported with a final total of 38 players including two females and six teams. The overall standard of squash was higher than previous years despite the loss of some regular Corps players with a few new players making their presence felt notably 2Lt Bates and 2Lt Gardener. The open competition proved to be very competitive and went according to the seedings up until the semi-finals. Sgt Dave Gallagher had a relatively easy route to his place in the final beating SSgt Dick in the quarter final 9-5 9-0 9-1 and SSgt Nirmal in the semi-final 10-8 9-7 9-0. His opponent was to be 2Lt Olly Gardener who overcame Sgt Ian Piers in the quarter final 9-3 9-7 9-5 and WO2 FofS Steve Bason in the semi final 9-3 9-4 9-5. The final was won in straight games 10-8 9-6 9-6, with Sgt Dave Gallagher being pushed every step of the way. His reign as the Corps Number One may soon be over.

The Plate competition consisted of all those players losing in Rounds One and Two and proved to be more exciting than the open competition.

The standard of player was more evenly matched which led to many matches being decided in the fifth game and in some cases the final point. WO2 Stan Stanford was one of the main culprits and decided on winning most of all his matches on his way to the final 3-2. The other finalist SSgt FofS Mick Swift was no different. The final was again won in straight games by Mick Swift 9-2 9-1 9-0 but then he is 15 years younger than Stan who was just to tired to make any impression.

The Over 35 competition was a straight forward win for WO2 FofS Yam beating WO2 FofS Adrian Woodley 9-3 9-5 9-5. In the team competition two units stood out amongst the rest, 21 Signal Regiment and the Royal School of Signals both putting in very strong teams. The winners were to be the Royal School of Signals consisting of 2Lt Olly Gardener, SSgt Nirmal and Capt Blair Mitchell winning two matches to one.

The four days of Squash at Blandford were excellent and congratulations goes to all those who reached the finals and who turned up to play in the competition.

INTER CORPS SQUASH

The players selected to represent the Corps in the Inter Corps championships were:

No1 Sgt Gallagher
No2 WO2 FofS Bason
No3 SSgt Nirmal
No4 WO2 FofS Yam
No5 Sgt Piers

The other players selected were 2Lt Gardener and 2Lt Bates but could not be released to play.

The Competition was held at the Winchester Tennis and Squash club from 23-25 November 1998. Unfortunately the Royal Signals were relegated from Division 1 the previous year so the aim was to gain promotion back to the top division. With just five players to play, in a 5-man team, things did not look too promising with other teams fielding up to eight players per team. The team, however, started well beating the Royal Artillery 'A' team 5-0. The next match was against the Infantry 'A' team and Dave Gallagher decided to have a groin strain and lost his match 3-0. With Yam winning his game 3-2 and Nirmal winning 3-1, the team eventually won the match 4-1.

The match against the RLC W was a tough one with Dave Gallagher and Nirmal winning their games 3-2 and the team beating the RLC 'B' 5-0. The match against REME 'B' was won 4-1 with Nirmal losing 3-2 having gone two games up. The final day threw up all sorts of permutations in that several teams could win the division and gain promotion. The first match against the Royal Artillery W team was to be our hardest which the Corps won 3-2, and a 5-0 victory over the Int Corps gave the team promotion to division 1. The team are congratulated on there performance for winning Division 2 giving next year's team a chance to win the Inter Corps title, something Royal Signals have never achieved.

LCPL SOUTHAN AND THE RS400

In April last year I purchased a RS400 from the ASA. At first I found the RS400 a very different boat to sail. Adding to the problem was the finding of a crew, with the experience I needed, to succeed in forth coming events.

My first event was the RS400 Inter Services at Portland in April 1998. Everybody was in a similar position to myself, with regard to experience in the boat, and every gybe I put in caused me to take a quick swim. Eventually Graham Forshaw got in the boat and showed me the ropes. I was now able to stay dry, until the wind picked up! The boat is designed to sail in strong winds and my adrenalin was certainly pumping when on a plane down-wind with very limited control. I did not produce a very good result at Portland. After this experience I spent a lot of time in the boat just learning how to sail it and stay dry.

The next event was at Weymouth. There was lots of wind, up to Force 6. The first day was called off due to too much wind but racing took place on the Sunday. I was 32 out of 45.

The Inlands Nationals at Draycote was next. Similar to Weymouth but windier. Many Masts were broken. On the second day the wind was friendlier but resulted in boring racing, I came 22 out of 38.

I embarked on serious training at Stokes Bay Sailing Club during the winter and was lucky to find a young lady to crew with me, who had real experience.

This year's racing was to take me up the learning curve. The first event was at Queen Mary's reservoir with more than 300 hundred boats of all types sailing. The tactics were to try and sail for clean air. At the end of the day we were the sixth RS400 out of 16. The Oxford Water Championships followed with many of the top sailors competing and we managed to come 19th out of 40. Next at Queen Mary's I managed 16th out of 36. On return to Draycote, I had an uphill struggle because I didn't have a lot of weight to keep the boat flat. This decided me to switch to an RS200 which is a lot easier to sail with my weight in the boat. Just recently I picked up a new RS200 to sail under the Combined Services flag for the rest of the year. Since then we have had much improved results with our first win. In June at Swansea we once again had a successful weekend, finishing 11th out of 59, against some top competition. At the moment I am sitting in approximately 16th position in the RS200 fleet in Britain and 20th in the RS400 and I am going for the Top Ten in the Nationals this year.

RSYC DINGHY & DAY BOATS

ROYAL SIGNALS KEELBOAT REGATTA SEA VIEW IOW

After a lot of phoning around we managed to get ten entries to the Championships from units all over the UK (including two Brigadiers). The competition from Second to Nineth place was very keenly contested (Maj David Ellis is still invincible in these boats and came first by a country mile) Maj George Odling after the first race-sail to Portsmouth started to show his true potential and started to string some consistent results together as did Sgt Chas Cowell and Sgt Craig Avey-Hebditch so at the end of the first day it was Ellis, Cowell, Avey-Hebditch and Odling. Day Two started again with Ellis in his winning ways but chased by Odling Cowell and Avey-Hebditch. After two days and eight races the position were as follows:

1st Maj Ellis, Maj Wadey, Cpl Reeves
2nd Maj Wig, Maj Rowley, Sgt Taylor
3rd Sgt Avey-Hebditch, Sgt Calder, LCpl Rayden
4th Sgt Cowell, Capt Westeman, Cpl Heath.

Note: Sgt Avey-Hebditch paid Sgt Cowell back in the last race for an incident that happened in 1986 in which Sgt Cowell capsized Sgt A-H. This, after many years, was Maj George Odling and Sgt Chas Cowell's last regatta as serving members.

TRIANGULAR KEEL BOAT REGATTA SEA VIEW IOW
4-Boat team racing against Royal Engineers Yacht Club and Royal Artillery Yacht Club

The Signals sailed very well with some excellent team racing skills being shown. The Corps team won all their matches with the RAYC conceding the last race in the club house so the Corps YC retain the Glover Cup. The Victorious team was:

Boat 1 Maj David Ellis, Maj Tim Wadey, LCpl Pete Rayden
Boat 2 Maj George Odling, Maj Trevor Bradley, Maj John Rowley
Boat 3 Sgt Avey-Hebditch, Cpl Greg Miller, Sig Nick Scullion
Boat 4 Sgt Chas Cowell, Maj Tim Pender Johns, Cpl Ted Heath.

ARMY INDIVIDUAL KEELBOAT CHAMPIONSHIPS SEA VIEW IOW

Maj David Ellis crewed by Maj Tim Wadey and Sgt Chas Cowell along with Maj George Odling crewed by Maj Fred Calvert and Maj John Rowley were the Corps' only entries into this year's individual championships. With consistent sailing, our boats came First and Second with Maj David Ellis retaining the trophy with six First places, a Second, a Third and Retired. Both our boats were selected to represent the Army in the Gold & Cunningham Cup (Inter Service Individual & Team Keelboat Championships). However, due to previous commitments only Maj Ellis and his crew could attend. In the Individual Championships they came through the knockout round in Third place, (by the skin of their teeth) giving them the last place in the final for their heat. The final (1 Race) started well and just went down hill ending with a 3ft tear in the spinnaker, time for an early tea and doughnuts in the club house. The Inter-Service Team Competition was a very tightly fought contest with the Army beating the RN who were the reigning champions. This was done with some outstanding tactical team racing by the 4-Boat team. The Army then went out and convincingly beat the RAF First, Second, Third, Fifth giving the Army a resounding win of the competition. Congratulations to Maj Ellis, Maj Wadey, Sgt Cowell.

INTER CORPS DINGHY LEAGUE 1999

We have two matches left and as yet we have not lost a match, the standard of competition of all teams is high this year. However, it is getting increasingly difficult to muster a CORPS TEAM due to Corps commitments but hopefully we can retain our League victory of 1998 and not have to concede our remaining matches due to no team.

ARMY INTER UNIT CHAMPIONSHIPS

Congratulations must go to 14th Signal Regiment who came Second in the Inter Units at Netley Southampton on 30 June 1999.

NEWS FROM THE AO'S DESK

KOREA & NEW ZEALAND - REVISITED

When I was a very young soldier serving with the Corps in Tripoli the Troop was asked by Capt Smith if any one would like to volunteer to go to Korea. This would be early in 1951, time does strange things to the memory but I think the entire Troop volunteered. We then went to Benghazi and joined 28th Field Regiment Royal Engineers. After training we sailed to Korea from Tobruk, Cyrenaica, in the Empire Orwell. Spending almost two years in Korea and at times being the radio operator for the CO Royal Engineers, (Lt Col P. N. M. Moor, later Brig), he would visit most units including the Australian Diggers and the New Zealand Kiwi's.

(One night forward of the British lines the sappers were putting in a new minefield, the CO said, 'Wait there Corporal, this was on a tape marking the pattern for the mine field. It must have been two hours later when he finally returned. I saw the dark silhouetted figure in the reflected light and thought shall I shoot it! Good job I didn't for the next words were, 'Are you there Corporal?')

Can any ex-veterans, who served in Korea, remember getting their first food parcels? I can and it came not from England but from Australia. I have always remembered this so it was with great pleasure on a recent visit to Australia and New Zealand I took out a BKVA (British Korean Veterans Association) plaque, also a Royal Signals Plaque. This was at the request of the North Lincolnshire Branch BKVA of which I am a member also the Branch is twinned with 3rd Battalion Royal Australia Regiment (Old Faithful).

On the morning of Sunday 7 March I attended a ceremony at the Gympie Memorial (Queensland) Normanby Hill, Remembrance Park and was seated with the officials at the presentation of a certificate to Brig (Retd) 'Paddy' K. P. Outridge, president of the Gympie RSL (Returned Servicemens League) club. This certificate marked the 75th year of the founding of the club.

I met with many members who served in 'K' Force, my wife Margaret was taken with other members wives for a tour around Gympie including the gold mine. Their driver was Greg a most helpful man and who had served with the 5th Light Horse Regt Greg would collect and return us to our hotel at no charge. We also visited RSL clubs in Sydney and Hervey Bay. These clubs are excellent for meals and drinks and you are made very welcome.

Before leaving on the trip I phoned up Ron Larby who served with 28th Bde Signals as a radio operator and is the author of 'Armour to the Right Signals to the Left' and asked if there was anyone he would like me to meet. He suggested meeting Ron Cashman MM, (Awarded for action in Korea). This we did, Rod and his wife Bett lived out at Homebush near to where the Sydney 2000 Olympics will be held, so he gave us a conducted tour of the site. Also we went into the Olympic swimming pool. (Ron will be in England for the July Reunion and march past in London.)

In New Zealand we again met members who had served in 'K' Force in Korea and visited their RSA (Returned Servicemens Clubs). Again given a warm welcome, we stopped at Picton South Island with Doug Bushby for a few days Doug served with Royal New Zealand Signals. He is a regular visitor to Britain stopping in Manchester where he is very well known to members of the Manchester Branch of the BKVA.

Returning to Australia from NZ we visited Ayres rock where my wife had a nasty fall and had to be treated by the Royal Flying Doctor, this pleased her so made up for the accident. A wonderful trip and a promise kept by me to my wife, after leaving the Corps I worked in New Guinea and Australia as a seismic operator and promised her I would take her there one day. It's nice to know that the training received as a boy soldier at Harrogate and the training later in Catterick would many years later enable me to take what still is a great adventure a second trip down under.

A STEP INTO THE PAST

After more than a year of trying to contact the remainder of 18 Troop of No 1 Independant Selection Signal Squadron who commenced basic training under a certain Cpl Orgill on 8 February 1950 at Gallowgate Camp in Richmond, it was decided that as time waits for no man, those who were in contact, and were able to, would revisit the area and seek out those who we knew were in need of cheering up.

Midnight on Wednesday 21 April, my wife bade me farewell (thinking I was absolutely crazy) as I drove away from South Wales on my way to Boroughbridge where I was to base myself with Ken Pumell for the duration of my stay up North. Arriving at dawn and sounding reveille in harmony with the local birds (feathered variety) the Purnells welcomed me with typical Gallowgate humour.

The journey North I had undertaken many times before, but I could not help feeling that as this was a special trip and its intended purpose, the memories of the first time, in February 1950 began to cast doubts and trepidation in my mind. Should we go back into the past and what our expectations were, did we expect others to have lived the same sort of life as ourselves and how had they reacted to the ever changing problems of living as we had. By the time I drove up to the Purnell's I did have serious doubts, but once Ken Purnell started laughing, all worries disappeared.

After breakfast we drove up to Lynemouth in Northumberland to see Billy Leach, we had not met since April 1950, forty nine years had passed since he looked after my welfare and kept me out of trouble, for like most of my age, I thought I knew it all and as he was much older than I, (he was twenty to my seventeen) took it upon himself to keep this young Welshman under control, no easy task in those days. We arrived at Bill's flat and the smile upon his face when greeting us said it all, no words can describe the feeling of nostalgia and despite the fact that like many of his age, Billy had suffered a number of minor strokes and had experienced loss of memory, it soon became apparent that our visit was a tonic. Billy Leach is partially paralysed, has difficulty in making himself understood and is subject to collapsing without any warning. It was heartbreaking to see the physical state he was in, a man who was extremely strong, who had returned to the mines after his Army service and now reduced to living in such circumstances I found hard to understand. Our caring and benevolent society surely must be questioned, I have arranged for a case worker from SSAFFA to visit together with someone from the British Legion, so hopefully things will improve for him in the future. When we finally came to depart, both Ken Purnell and I were lost for words and sadness was the overriding feeling.

We next visited with the widow of Norman Wearmouth. He had left the Army after only a little more that a year's service to look after his eight siblings upon the death of his father. An interesting piece of paperwork, now in my possession to pass on to the Museum, is his undertaking to return to the coal mines and work underground on the understanding that should he fail to live up to this obligation, it would necessitate a return to the colours for the remainder of his service. Norman served in 7 Armoured Brigade in Luneburg until he left the Army to return to the mines.

Together for the first time since April 1950 – 49 years!!

Our next visit was to the widow of Arthur 'Tich' Bates who had sadly died in only January of this year. We were made so welcome despite the circumstances and spent a few pleasant hours talking about him. From the time I recontacted 'Tich' in October last year, we had spent many happy hours on the phone, he was a character and had a wonderful memory of all that had happened all those years ago. He achieved the near impossible in that he joined man service at the age of only sixteen in the days when medical officers were on peace work in their efforts to get chaps into the services.

Our main task for the next visit was of course to Gallowgate Camp itself, that wonderful Poulson project where the bricks were laid on their ends thus achieving an extra 3/4 of an inch in height for every row laid but depriving the occupants of the necessary insulation against the Yorkshire winds that I swear blew through the walls. The camp itself is now a badly run industrial estate, soon I believe to be twinned with the most battered village in Kosovo. Many of the original buildings are still there. Despite its current state we still found the Orderly Room, MI Room, Stores, Cookhouse the different messes and a building that was enough to gladden the heart of anyone who ever served there, yes the NAAFI canteen, and even more importantly, the NAAFI girl's accommodation, for some reason nicknamed Colditz by the re-enlistments who had other purposes in mind beside a cup of tea for one old penny. We walked all around the old place and could distinguish many of the terror ridden aspects of our life in Gallowgate, truly an amazing experience. Our drive around the old Green Howards Barracks, now an upmarket housing development, will no doubt bring back other memories of some of the ex-boys who upon completion of their boy service ended up in Gallowgate to finish their basic training with us.

I have a number of people who I am in contact with who have answered my adverts in many diverse publications as well as from The Wire, and have retained all their letters. The one over riding thing that comes from it all is the horrors they recall of life in that place, the list is endless, but makes hilarious reading. Although I have only found eight of the original 18 Troop, I have seven from 17 Troop, one from 19 Troop and two of the permanent staff from the particular period. In addition I have spoken to a number of the Officers who served there at the time, including one particular ex 2Lt who was caught breaking out of camp on a Friday evening with two members of his Troop. Who said things were bad!!

I have enjoyed the search for my old friends from those far off days, and intend to continue the search. The one regret which surely we all have is that we allow our friendships to wane, being intent on our own careers and lives we become insular to the very thing that kept us together, comradeship. We must not allow it to happen and I urge everyone reading this to pause and ask themselves, is there any friend who could do with a call or is there an old friend who needs cheering up. Ask yourself if you were in trouble, who could you turn to ?

Our Corps is about communicating, but sadly we lack the commitment to keep in touch with our old comrades. We are all guilty in various degrees so do something about it before it is too late.

HAPPY NEW MILLENNIUM

by Keith Hind

A few days ago an advert in a local newspaper caught my eye - 'New Year's Celebration Party - only £90 per person. I also read recently that the foolish rich of London, were prepared to pay their nannies thousands of pounds, with a new BMW thrown in, to take care of their off-spring so that they could party the night away. Also, rumour has it, there is a pub in Chester-le-Street that has organised a savings plan where you can pay so much a week so that by December, customers will have saved the required £100 to allow them entrance on New Year's Eve. What on earth are they paying all this money to celebrate? Certainly not the New Millennium - that doesn't begin until next year!

Let me explain. when a cricketer scores a hundred runs he has completed his century. The next run - his 101st, is the first run of his second century. Also if you ever managed to find such a thing as the old penny slot machine, and you fed one hundred pennies in without winning, you would have spent one pound. The next penny?The 101st penny? It would be the first penny of your second pound. IS IT BECOMING CLEAR YET? It is the same with years. The last day of the year one BC gave way to the first day of year one AD - not the year ZERO as some people seem to think. Are they trying to say that after six months, of the first year after year one BC, that we were half way through Year Zero? I must admit, I am a teeny bit curious as to how you can have a half of nothing. A hundred years isn't complete until the last day of the year One Hundred. The next day, the first day of year 101, is the start of the new century. It then follows that the current millennium is not complete until the last day of the 2000th year, ie: 31 December 2000, the next day, 1 January 2001, being the first day of the New Millenium. If you were fortunate enough to have a few thousand pounds in the bank and wanted to withdraw a couple of thousand, would you be happy if the cashier counted out £999 and said that that was £1000 and that the next one was the first one of the next thousand? Of course yopu wouldn't.

Several countries across Europe think we have gone barmy, celebrating the New Millennium a year early, so do I. In fact, as midnight approaches on New Year's Eve NEXT YEAR, I will have my eye on the clock and as the sound of the twelfth chime fades away I will welcome the new day - 1 January 2001 - along with millions of our European neighbours, and will raise my glass and say,

'HAPPY NEW MILLENNIUM!'

NOTES FROM THE AO's DESK

Branch affairs - It was with great sadness that we learned of the sudden passing of Frank Mitchell, Hon Secretary of the Langeleben Reunion Club. Frank had put so much into starting the Club and he will be missed by all his friends in the Reunion Club, the Huddersfield Branch and us here at Associationn HQ. Frank's successor is Ernie Callaghan, 12 Carisbrooke Avenue, Bexley, Kent DA5 3HS. Tel: 0181 300 7577.

Reunion 2000 - A long way off, I know, but next year's Reunion at Blandford will be held over the weekend 24/25 June. Please let Association HQ know if you would like your name to go on the mailing list for details, when they are issued, hopefully in March. Don't forget that Association HQ has a list of local accommodation.

The Royal Hospital, Chelsea - A warm welcome is extended to Leonard Whiteman on his admission as an In-Pensioner to the Royal Hospital, Chelsea. We hope his stay there is long and happy.

The Corps' Carol Service - This years service will be held on Thursday 16 December. It will be held in St Stephens with St John, Rochester Row, Westminster starting at 1800hrs and ending around 1900hrs, when we retire to the Church Hall for sherry and hot mince pies. All serving and retired members of the Corps, plus their families, are welcome to attend this popular event. Come along and meet new friends and old.

Freedom of Richmond Parade - The Freedom of Richmond Parade will take place at 1930hrs on Saturday 16 September 2000. (Not 9 September as published in the RSA Newsletter). It will be followed on the Sunday by a Memorial Service, to which all Association members are invited.

BRIGHTON BRANCH

Well what about Blandford '99? Was it mediocre? Good? Brilliant? It was just brilliant!! In particular 'Pegasus Bridge' was an outstanding contribution. Congratulations to all concerned. Let us hope that we have more innovations next year.

As you will remember, after the talk we had by Brig Colin Brown, we had requests for 884 Troop to display its' wares. They responded nobly. Maj John Barber (TOT) took a major part and comments as follows:

Major (TOT) John Barber

'For the general interest of members, an evening showing two very different types of radio kit was laid on. Both systems were relevant to many members past experiences. Firstly, SSgt Stu McHenery, of 884 Tp, gave a general system description and 'horse-box' hardware tour for a typical NCRS Station. Members with HF signalling interests were drawn to the user friendly radio controls but were less sure about the cabin's interior lack of space!

This was followed by a brief explanation of the ever increasing importance of good ground-air-ground comms in current operations. Especially for the ex-Air Support Signals personnel, an example of the new Tactical Ground Air Comms System was brought and commented on by Maj (TOT) John Barber. Members with memories of the BE201 set (and even further back!) were impressed with its capability but like all good soldiers, less happy about the weight of the man-pack station.

The two contrasting roles and equipment were well chosen as examples of the widely differing roles of the Corps. Members appreciated the opportunity of seeing the kit and learning a little more and then they retreated to the bar for sausage, beans and mash which was washed down with a pint. A good evening was had by all and thanks to 71 (Y) Sig Regt (V), Hunting Engineering Ltd and the Branch Committee for co-ordinating the comms and the cooking.

Finally we congratulate Derek Swann who is now eighty years old. Derek was part of the ill-fated 51 (Highland Division). Together with several thousand others he was captured at St Valery en Caux and spent five years in a German POW Camp.

DORSET BRANCH

I missed the deadline for the last publication but at least I shall get these notes in before the next deadline. However, it's still 1999 and our Branch goes from strength to strength. In April this year we had our Annual Dinner at the Crown Hotel in Blandford. 103 members and guests attended and a good evening was enjoyed by all. The principal guests were the Commander of the Royal School of Signals, Col K. Hadfield and Mrs Hadfield. The Colonel gave a very interesting and amusing speech, as the photograph shows.

The Commander speaks
David Whitehead saw the joke, Mrs Yeoman didn't and Mrs Wheawell cried, but Pat Lafferty seems to be thinking – .....What?

Our monthly meetings continue to be held in the Sergeant's Mess and are well attended. In June, at the Annual Reunion, our Chairman, Maj Pat Lafferty, presented a set of bagpipes to the Corps' Pipes and Drums, on behalf of our Branch.

Maj Pat Lafferty presents the Bagpipes
(Don't worry it's dead!)

The general opinion of our members is that the Reunion was considered to be a great success, the best yet in Blandford. Thanks to the efforts put in by Peter Cuckow , the organiser. In August we held a barbecue which was enjoyed by all. There was, of course, the inevitable raffle but we need to keep Dick Houghton our Treasurer happy. We already have our AGM on the horizon, the years go too fast. Just in case you don't hear from me again this year, I wish you a happy Christmas.

EASTBOURNE BRANCH

This is the first article for The Wire from sunny Eastbourne for some years. We will try to improve on this record in the future! The Branch continues to prosper and has moved location of Meetings to the Royal Engineers Club in Latimer Road, Eastbourne where we are looked after very well indeed. Meeting nights continue to be the second Thursday of the month, so if any member or ex member of the Corps happen to be holidaying in the area and would like to look in, they would be very welcome. We recently welcomed a new Branch President, Brig Frank Clarkson, who has taken over from Col Alan Dexter who has now become a Vice President. Alan has been a sterling worker for the Branch and has done much to ensure its survival, he stands down due to pressure of other commitments but continues as a loyal member of the Branch..

The Annual Dinner was held last October it was a special occasion as it was the 20th Anniversary of the founding of the Branch. The guest speaker was Brig Keith Olds. The 21st Annual Dinner is to be held in the Royal Engineers Club on 23 October this year.

In July, members of the Brighton Branch joined us for a social evening (and winning their fair share of raffle prizes). This was in return for the visit we made to Dyke Road last November. Both evenings were very pleasant gatherings.

In June, a group of Branch members consisting of Brig Frank Clarkson, Chris Deadman (Chairman), Lt Col Ron Brodie (Secretary) and Tony Lewis (Committee and voluntary helper at Chaseley) visited Chaseley, Eastbourne, a home for disabled servicemen and women. Currently the home is undergoing substantial rebuilding and refurbishment and had launched an appeal for funds. The Association when appraised of the situation by Col Alan Dexter made a special grant of £250 to allow the two ex members of the Corps resident in Chaseley to improve their own rooms. The two residents in question are Vic Green and Dave Allen, both former LCpls who were paralysed during their service. Brig Frank Clarkson presented the cheques which were gratefully received.

EAST KENT BRANCH

Other Branches from Area 4 who did not take up the challenge missed a perfectly lovely day at the Duke of Yorks Military School, Dover on Sunday 11 July. East Kent Branch rallied round as usual and managed to get two teams together for a Cricket match. The two teams, made up of members, their wives, sons and grandsons, gathered outside the Pavilion . The 'A' Team was captained by our Chairman, Donald Crisp. We had three Umpires, Doug Dickeson and John Badcock before lunch and Bill Lovatt and John Badcock after lunch. The timing was perfect, lunch was taken between 1300-1400hrs. The result was 'B' Team 132 for 11 and the 'A' Team 82 for 13 wickets.

As can be imagined there was some hilarious play but the Branch contains some dark horses in the Batting and Fielding roles, not to mention the stylish Keepers. Who would have thought that we could muster two full sides to play such entertaining cricket for the fifty or so supporters, who could not even be enticed to play Bat & Trap or Boules, so absorbed were they on the cricket and the delightful setting that the Duke of Yorks Military School had so kindly provided for us. Our thanks to 'Housemaster', Mr Alexander, an annual event where we think we now feel confident enough to take on any other Branch in the Royal Signals Association.

B Team
The 'B' Team was captained by our Vice Chairman, John Ballantyne

NEW MEMBER

We are delighted to welcome Lt Col Peter and Friedy Devanney of Folkestone. We are sure he will be known to many as he served from 1951 until retirement in 1989 having started at Harrogate in 1948, then 11 AF Regt, BAOR, 1TR Catterick, Bulford SWS Tp, 24 Bde Sig Sqn in Kenya & Bahrein, Gan Island, 206 Sig.Sqn BAOR 24 Sig Regt Catterick, 17Ghurka Sig Regt, PEPS London, HQ 4 Sig Gp BAOR, 38 Sigs in the MOD 8 Sig Regt and finally at SHAPE, with that record you must have met somewhere!

VALE

It is with regret that we have to announce the death of Maj Tommy Thomas on 23 June. He was buried on 5 July in his Parish Church at Swalecliffe. An obituary is to appear in The Wire. As a founder member of the Branch there were many of his friends who came to support Eadie at the funeral which coincided with a horrendous thunderstorm, it was thought that failing the attendance of the RHA Saluting Battery, it was the best 21 gun-salute that the congregation had heard. The Hon Sec gave an address and most of the congregation went back to Eadie's house to chat with her and her family. The next day Eadie entered the Brompton Hospital for a further heart operation but returned home to build up her strength for the operation. Our sympathy and best wishes go to her and her family.

FOOTNOTE

Upon receipt of the information that RHQ Royal Signals at Blandford could be reached by Email, it so happened that the Branch Committee were meeting that evening. The Hon Sec took a digital photograph and sent it that night; the following exchange of signals took place:

For: Col A. F. Carter MBE
Lt Col I. Hamilton
Mr P. Cuckow

Dear All

By way of congratulating you upon joining this Branch on the www the Committee at it's meeting this evening instructed me to send you our best wishes and so that you may be able to recognise us all when we next meet, here we are in session an hour or so ago.

Reply:
From Regt Sec to all members EKB Committee.

Unfortunately we had momentarily popped out of the office when your Email arrived at 22.53hrs last night. Lt Col Ian Hamilton was having an early night. He picked it up at 0600hrs this morning. As yet we are unable to match your instantaneous colour portraits of RHQ Staff hard at work but we thank you for your greetings and best wishes.

GLASGOW BRANCH

Ten members joined the annual reunion at Blandford arriving late on the Friday evening with a diversion due to the rail disaster, and a train in front of ours running out of fuel. They borrowed our train's engine to push it into a siding, adding an additional hour and a half further to our delay. The weather could have been kinder but again it was an enjoyable week-end. Our Standard Bearer, Bill MacNamara, was in the last six finalists of the Standard Bearers contest but unfortunately did not manage to retain the cup. There is always next year's contest.

The Branch members who have enjoyed the hospitality at these re-unions, wished to show their appreciation of the efforts of Peter Cuckow, in organising arrangements for their stay over the years, by gifting him a bottle of whisky with a special printed label with his name on it. A gift of a Glasgow Branch tie was made to Lt Col I. J. Hamilton, both were presented to the recipients by the Glasgow Branch Chairman, Bill Taylor. Again our thanks to the staff and members of both messes for their consideration and help in 'Making our Journey Necessary.' We also were able to make purchases at the museum, especially those of us with a shopping list for the members unable to attend. Saving on postage? Not mean but canny! How about a discount on prices for the RSA members on that week-end, most of us being pensioners?

Bill Taylor making the presentation to Peter Cuckow

Twenty-nine members and friends took a coach trip to Inverness on 10 July arranged by Jim McMillan our social convenor. Unfortunately although the weather was sunny all day in Glasgow, it was wet all day in Inverness. So between ducking in and out of shops, cafés and pubs, getting wet inside and out, it was great when the time came to go to the Royal British Legion Scotland club in Inverness for an excellent high tea, with time to relax in their several bars before catching the coach for Glasgow. The members wish to record their thanks to the RBLS Inverness for their hospitality, they have magnificent premises. Jim was disappointed that more members did not fill the 46-seater coach after all his efforts to get the best possible deal for the trip. A raffle was held on the return journey for a bottle of whisky and a bottle of sherry to help offset the cost of the coach.

A coach trip is planned for Sunday the 15 August to Edinburgh Castle Esplanade, as the Tattoo is not on that day, to see the Central Band, and the combined drum and pipe bands of the RBLS from all over Scotland, perform Beating Retreat. It is hoped as many members, family and friends will support this venture, to fill the 50-seater coach. A meal beforehand with a great choice of menu, will be available at the Royal British Hotel, Prince's Street, Edinburgh. A raffle will also be held on the coach, to offset the cost of the hire. Future dates include a 40's night, Christmas Draw, and the St. Andrew's Dinner Dance in November 1999, with a Burns Supper in the year 2000.

NORTHERN IRELAND BRANCH

The Branch had no meeting in either June or July due to Annual Camp and the stand down of 40 (U) Sig Regt (V) which leaves me a little bit short of material for this issue.

The Blandford Reunion is over once again and, although not there myself, I believe it was very successful. A lot of credit for this must go to Peter Cuckow to whom our Blandford Organiser, Edgar McCall, also wishes to convey his thanks for all the assistance given to him by Peter. A total of twelve Branch members attended the reunion led by Branch Chairman, John Loveday. As 40 (U) Sig Regt (V) was completing Annual Camp, six of our serving members travelled direct from camp to Blandford, five members travelled by the over-night ferry to Liverpool and they were then joined by Bill Ogden at Blandford. The Branch members took part in the Church Service and the March Past. Jim Reilly kept the Branch to the fore by acting as Standard Bearer. The thanks of the Branch goes to 40 (U) Sig Regt (V), in particular George Cooke, foe assisting with the travel arrangements. Thanks also go to Mark Barrass and Eddie Hedley for their driving skills and of course to Edgar McCall for doing a good job as Blandford Organiser under difficult circumstances and taking the load off our ever busy Hon Sec, Ian Wolfe. On a sad note, the late Tommy Maguire was very much missed at Blandford.

Branch Member, SSgt Mark Barrass has now been posted to Blandford. We wish him well in his new environment. I understand that he intends to remain a Branch Member and keep in touch. I'm sure that our Branch President, Maj (Retd) Bill Douglas, will not mind if we offer our congratulations for the celebration of his 80th birthday. We wish him belated birthday greetings and a hope that he will celebrate many more. As usual a warm welcome awaits any serving or ex-Signallers, Regulars or TAVR at our Branch meetings any third Wednesday in Clonaver TAVR Centre, Belfast.

PETERBOROUGH BRANCH

On 1 August one of the supermarkets in Wisbech organised its annual fund-raising Fun Day in aid of local charities. This event has been run very successfully in previous years and is a very popular event for the people of Wisbech and the surrounding area. The Branch was invited to have a Stall and for some months we have been preparing a 'For Sale' section, a 'Tombola Table' and a Grand Raffle'. A small group of members, the 'Stall Gang', have worked hard to scrounge items to make up our three sections. Branch Members have been donated items in cash or kind. Early on the morning of the first of August five loaded cars left Peterborough for Wisbech Park, fifteen miles away. It was a very hot day with the temperature in the eighties, but thankfully an awning provided by Brian Overland gave us shade some of the time. A long and tiring day ended at about 4 o'clock with a thunderstorm and torrential rain but the following day we banked more than three hundred pounds and we hope to be able to make a donation to Corps Welfare Fund and to subsidise in a small way a special end of millennium and Christmas function planned for December.

56 DIV (SIGNALS) BRANCH

The Branch held its AGM on 14 March and their annual Ladies Night on 27 March. This year our Guest of Honour was Sam Elliott, in recognition of the support he has given, and continues to give, to the Branch, not least of which when he was Secretary up to a couple of years ago. As usual the dinner and convivial atmosphere was enjoyed by everyone and the Eastbourne weather helped to clear heads the next day.

Chairman, John Robson, presents a bouquet to Pam Elliott

President Roy Hughes tells him how long to make it!

REUNIONS
3 DIVISIONAL SIGNALS REUNION CLUB

In spite of operational requirements in Bosnia, Croatia, Kosovo and various other stations East, West, North or South, the powers that be in 3rd (UK) Div HQ and Signal Regiment were determined that the Reunion Club should be invited to take part in the Regimental Weekend and Fete to be held at Bulford. Needless to say Club members were glad to accept the kind invitation of Lt Col Neil Couch, the CO, and 41 of them duly arrived at Bulford on Friday 18 June ready to enjoy the hospitality of the Regiment. After the usual efficient processing at reception, coffee and sandwiches and chatting to Capt Dave Stachini, the Liaison Officer, and our official hosts, a group of charming young officers, we were officially welcomed by Maj Adam Ewell, the 2IC, standing in for the CO who was somewhere in the Balkans. RSM Gary Stoker then finished off the welcome by inviting us all to have a drink.

We were missing some of our regular supporters at this weekend. Our chairman, Maj Derek Roberts, and his wife Pam have both had health problems recently but I am pleased to be able to tell you that they are both well on the way to complete health as is Ethel, wife of Les Wright. Another couple we missed were Doug and Sylvia Kay. Sylvia is awaiting a hip replacement. To compensate for the absentees we had some first timers at Bulford, Norman Hands with his wife, Margaret and Elgan and Linda Davies. Elgan is at present working hard to establish a Branch of the RSA in South Wales so any ex-Corps Taffies who are not members of the Association get in touch with Elgan.

It was a great weekend, the Fete was good the briefings were interesting but for me the highlight was when, on the Friday night, three young lady Mess members took the company by the scruff of it's neck and dragged some of our more staid members on to the dance floor and made them dance. It will be a long time before I forget Tom Dean, Fred Timms, Colin Hall, Vince Martin, Gwynn Edwards, Trader Horn and a few others being made to strut their stuff. Girl power in action. Once again the Club must thank the Regiment for making us so welcome.

A REUNION TO REMEMBER

On 13 July 1949, some 300 Officer Cadets – members of Intake 3 – were commissioned at the Royal Military Academy Sandhurst and on 12 July 1999, 172 of those former cadets met once again at Sandhurst to celebrate the 50th Anniversary of their commissioning parade. They had invited their Inspecting Officer as their guest and Her Majesty the Queen, who was then the Princess Elizabeth, graciously accepted.

The photograph shows the five Royal Signals Officers who attended the Reunion – out of an original eleven who were commissioned into the Corps that July, (L-R): Michael Watts, Paul Durrant, John Garratt, Kevin Kirkby and Roy Thomas.

As we gathered on a warm sunny morning, the years seemed to slip away. For the most part, recognition of faces was quite easy, even those not seen for fifty years, but putting a name to a face sometimes required a glance at a name tag. The day started with a Service of Thanksgiving in the Academy Chapel when we remembered 68 of our members who have died. As a mark of our appreciation, we presented a silver communion ewer to the chapel.

The reception was held in the splendid Indian Army Room of the Old College and shortly after midday, a fanfare announced the arrival of Her Majesty the Queen. Accompanied by our 'head boy' General Sir James Glover, Her Majesty made a tour of the assembled members, meeting and talking to as many as possible. On being told that one of our absent members could not attend because his home is now in Queensland, Her Majesty remarked, 'Well it is rather a long way to come for lunch.'

After the reception it was time for a photograph on the College steps. The Academy RSM – buttons and Sam Browne gleaming like glass – had the task of getting us formed up correctly and obviously decided that the best way to achieve this was to treat us like Cadets. His polite requests to, 'Fill your right, Sir,' were unmistakable as orders and we did as we were told, albeit with some asides that Cadets might not have ventured to utter.

Lunch in the Old College Dining Hall was a splendid affair, enhanced by music from an orchestra culled from the Band of the Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers. Wine and conversation flowed throughout the lunch. Her Majesty looked happy and relaxed. None of us could remember the food being as good in our day! We have all drunk the Loyal Toast many times but it was a privilege to be able to toast 'The Queen' in person. The orchestra played a selection of popular tunes from the late forties followed by excerpts from the slow and quick marches from the parade in July 1949. All too soon it was time for Her Majesty to leave. The orchestra struck up 'Auld Lang Syne' and 172 voices joined in. The singing gave way to prolonged applause and as Her Majesty departed, the hall echoed with, 'Three cheers for Her Majesty the Queen!'

The day was not yet quite over. We made our way down to the lake for tea, more music and, of course, more trips down memory lane with former comrades in arms, before finally setting off for home to relive, this time with our families the events of

Dear Sir,

I am hoping that someone can help me with an address. I was in the Royal Signals and stationed at 1 Wireless, Munster, Germany, in 1950-1952. I have been visiting my daughter, who lives in Southern Germany and would love to visit the old camp in Munster. I have been going to Germany for 25 years and not managed it yet, as I cannot remember where the camp was.

The only things that I can recall is that it was near an open-air swimming pool, a brewery and that nearby a railway line went across the road. Also I was in a tented camp for some months near Helmstett. I think that the nearest place was called Koiningslutter. I believe there may be an association for those who have served at this camp?

Yours Sincerely……

Ron Smith would like to contact anyone from AAC Harrogate, Bradley Sqn, Intake 70C, or 3 Sqn 30 Sig Regt 1972-75, or from 8 Field Force HQ & Sig Sqn Tidworth which then moved to Aldershot in 1981 to become 5 Inf Bde HQ & Sig Sqn. I would especially like to contact WO1 (RSM) Hunt, or Capt Helm, Sqn 2IC, from the latter, who served with me on Op Corporate. Phone him on 0161 684 7479 or email him on:

Dear Sir,

As the only member of the Berlin Signals Squadron (during the Berlin Airlift), who is also a member of the British Berlin Airlift Association, I had the honour and privilege of being invited to attend the 50th Anniversary Celebrations of the ending of the Airlift in Berlin. The all-expenses trip (9th - 13th May 1999) was paid for by the Berlin Airlift Gratitude Foundation and the city of Berlin.

Besides the 325 members of the British Berlin Airlift Association from the United Kingdom there were representatives from Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Canada, Prance and America, making a total of about 1000 veterans. We were overwhelmed by the welcome, hospitality and generosity (including many gifts and souvenirs) we received from the German Government, city officials and even the ordinary men and women in Berlin. Our days were totally taken up with tours of Berlin and the surrounding areas, including Potsdam, a three hour lunch cruise on the Havel, the Allied Airlift Museum and an evening concert by the Berlin Chamber Orchestra. In addition there were Official ceremonies such as the Service of Remembrance at the Memorial stone at Gatow.

On Wednesday 12 May at the 50th Anniversary of the lifting of the Berlin Blockade there was a Service and Wreath laying ceremony at the impressive Airlift Memorial at Tempelhof. On parade were military bands from Britain (the Band of the Royal Air Force), United States, France and Germany. In attendance were the Governing Mayor of Berlin, German City Governors and the Ambassadors of Britain, United States, Canada, South Africa and France. Amongst those who paid tribute to those who had lost their lives during the Airlift and all who had taken part in the Airlift, was our Minister of State for Defence, George Robertson.

One of the most abiding, and emotional, memories of the visit occurred on the final night, when we attended an evening concert/military tattoo at the Olympic Stadium. It began with the Airlift veterans marching into the Stadium, led by the band of the Royal Airforce, The British Berlin Airlift Association Standard Bearers and members of the Association. We had obviously been chosen to lead the parade because we were the only contingent who were uniformly dressed, in our blazers (bearing the Association badge), white shirts (with Association tie) and grey slacks. As one Yank remarked 'Gee, you guys are the top drawer compared to us Yanks in our T-shirts and jeans!') As we marched into the Stadium, the crowd of 30,000 Berliners rose and gave us a standing ovation. Even as we climbed up to our seats in the arena they were clapping, patting us on the back and shaking our hands. The events which followed lasted almost four hours and ended with a spectacular fireworks display.

On our return to this country it was very disappointing to learn that the 50th Anniversary had been almost totally ignored by the media. In fact articles which I had sent to two Norfolk local newspapers were never printed This dismal state of affairs was echoed by other Airlift veterans (with whom I keep contact) in Glasgow, Aberdeen, Sheffield and Wrexham. As an ex-National Serviceman (1947-49, I am proud that I was able to put my Royal Signals training (OKW) to good use during the Airlift. If there are any Signallers who knew me during my stay in Berlin, or prior to that in Hamburg (GHQ 2nd Echelon - Signals Troop) I shall be happy to hear from them.
Yours sincerely.....

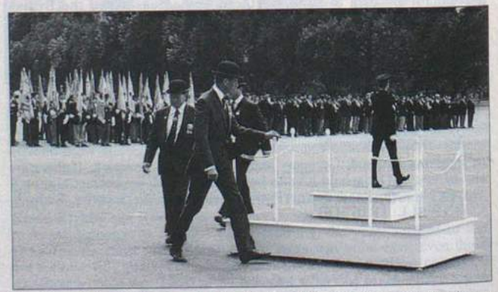
Dear Sir,

Thank you for including my letter re Brian Close in the August edition of The Wire. I received a number of replies to my query from various RSA members, who recall the MCC tour furore. Perhaps the following may be of interest, particularly to members who served in the Korean War.

International Korean War Veterans Reunion

The British Korean War Veterans Association hosted an International Korean War Veterans Reunion in London during the week of 19-23 July 1999. The programme included a Memorial Service at St Paul's Cathedral, a luncheon reception at the Guildhall, A Garden Party at Chelsea Hospital, a parade and inspection by the Duke of Kent at Horse Guards and a gala dinner at the Paragon Hotel, Fulham. A separate reception and buffet was also held for British Veterans aboard HMS Belfast, whilst our overseas colleagues attended receptions at their respective Embassies. All the United Nations countries that sent troops to Korea were represented at the Reunion, large parties coming from the USA, South Korea, Australia, Canada and New Zealand. Also well represented were many former members of the Corps who served in Korea. They were prominent at the event as described, including the former Master of Signals, Maj Gen Birtwistle who is the current President of the British Korean Veterans Association.



Maj Gen Birtwistle escorts the Duke of Kent to the saluting base

The highlight was undoubtedly the Parade which formed up in Wellington Barracks, being marshalled by some magnificent NCOs from the Welsh Guards, 'In sixes PLEASE gentlemen!' We then marched off to Horse Guards, headed by the flags of the nations followed by a group of BKVA Branch Standards, two columns of British Veterans and then the remainder of the nations in alphabetical order. The Parade was accompanied by the band of the Welsh Guards.

The Duke of Kent, accompanied by Maj Gen Birtwistle, inspected the Parade, speaking to many of the veterans before taking the salute during the March Past. It was interesting to note that at least six of the BKVA standards were carried by ex-Royal Signals, which represented a goodly proportion of those standards on parade.

A wonderful week to remember in particular in respect of being able to meet fellow veterans from the other United Nations contingents. Should any member of the RSA who is a veteran of the Korean War and is not a member of the BKVA, but is interested in joining, contact me at the above address and I will endeavour to help them.
Regards.....

Dear Sir,

In the past I have read in your Letters Column experiences of RSA members assisting schools by giving talks regarding the 1939-45 World War.

I have been involved with such an event this past April. I would imagine the procedure as usual was similar to mine, that of a telephone call. This I received from Stanley High School in Southport asking if their information was correct - 'Was I something to do with the army and could I help them?' It appears that WWII is now part of the curriculum. Such is our age now, that we are deemed 'history', and could I provide ex-service and home-front personnel to give their experiences and recollections of those years, to help the students.

Ex Radio Mechanic, Roger Stabforth, instructing Headteacher, M. Danvers, in the art of tuning the HRO

NVA members and pupils pose by the 1944 Standard Utility outside Stanley High School. Roger Stanforth, Branch Secretary, to the fore in the usual nonchalant manner. At the back, on the left, can be seen Chairman - C. Bennett ex-RM Commando with Chairman W. Whalley ex-Royal Signals on the right

The students would be grouped into fours; with two asking questions on what they understood to have happened and with two asking on matters they did not comprehend. Also, would we be able to supply any relics or souvenirs from the period. I think the head of history was taken by surprise when I offered vehicles, signalling equipment, weapons and other impedimenta of service life of the time.

Thus, the Southport & District Branch of the Normandy Veterans Association mustered a dozen volunteers. Amongst the personnel agreeing to attend were ex-Signalmen Bill Parker, Bill Whalley and myself. The day went extremely well with considerable interest from both the students and the ex-servicemen and women.

The study groups were wide ranging and the classes viewed and handled the equipment on display in turn which proved to be a great success. The display being so popular was opened up to all the classes in the school. As an extra benefit two local papers arrived and took photographs following up with articles. Likewise, our own PR Officer, Maj R. Bevan MBE came to record the event.

During the day the students supplied us with a non stop 'NAAFI' which was most appreciated. Needless to say we were all thanked for our efforts, so much so that we have been invited again for next year's course. Such events are very rewarding and it is a eye opener for the young to understand experiences and conditions during those momentous years. Should such requests be made for a organised day such as that by Stanley High School, I would certainly recommend them to RSA members and as it is said 'all publicity is good publicity as long as they spell your name correctly'.
Yours sincerely and kindest regards.....

Dear Sir,

The recent RSA weekend, as all are aware, was the last of this century. The numbers of the old and bold are diminishing and I personally have a feeling of regret that their stories and versions of events are no longer to be heard around the evening's entertainment centred on the well worn bars of Blandford Camp. This is the central focus of our reunions and with this in mind a number of us who are now in their late sixties are getting together to ensure that the tales that enthralled us are not lost to future generations of the Corps.

Send me your story, no matter what the subject about an episode of your Army service, whether you were regular or National Service, events of basic training, your impressions of 38 pattern webbing, anklets web, boots ammunition, anything that can strike a chord of merriment or nostalgia into the memories of an ex-serviceman. Any tale that would be of interest will be considered and naturally the names of those not wishing to have their names published as the authors will be respected.

All profits generated will go toward the Corps Funds. I feel sure that this will be a success and look forward to hearing from you.
Yours sincerely.....
(Ed to George W. Cooke, Sonoma, California – Your anecdotes have been forwarded for consideration and will be featured as fillers in future WIRES – many thanks! PV.)

Thomas – Maj W. J. Thomas, 'Tommy', was born in 1912 and whilst he shone at school, he left early to take an apprenticeship as an electrical engineer. In 1932 he joined the Corps at Catterick as an Electrician Fitter. On passing out he was posted to Meerut in India and the NW Frontier where he operated a mobile wireless station from a 30cwt truck. In those days promotion was hopelessly slow and it was not until 1937 that he was promoted Unpaid Lance Corporal, but was made substantive a year later. He returned to UK in 1939 and became the MT Sergeant in 1 Armd Div Signals in the BEF and withdrew with his MT Section back to UK via Brest.

He remained with the reformed 1 Armd Div Sigs. He married Eadie in 1942 and was not to see her again until 1945. With the Regiment he went to Egypt and took part in the advance to Cyrenaica and the retreat to Alamein. He then went to 9th Army Sigs in the Lebanon as a WO2 , then to the Cheshire Yeomanry which was converting from a cavalry regiment to R Signals in Palestine. Later as a WO1 RSM he served with 5 Air Formation Signals in Italy. returning to UK in 1945. Reverting to WO2 he served in the War Office Signal Regiment.

He felt that he was not being sufficiently taxed and so applied to go overseas again and in 1948 he was on his way to East Africa Command Signals in Nairobi where he served for two years until 1950 and was granted an extension to 1952, being promoted to WO1 a few days before returning to the UK. The Kenya Police tried to recruit him in the rank of Superintendent, to run their transport, but his loyalty to and love of the Army prevailed. He was selected for a commission as a Cypher Officer. In preparation for this, his CO asked him how he wished to be known as an officer. Hitherto he had been called 'Willy' which he disliked and to be called John Thomas was even worse and so he opted for 'Tommy' by which most people know him today, He was posted to Hanover District Signals until 1954 when he was posted to Singapore in the Comcan Signal Centre. In 1956 it was back to BAOR and to 7 Sig Regt. His final overseas tour was to Cyprus at Dhekelia in 1961 and finally home to 10 Signals Regiment for retirement in 1965.

However, he gained a RO3 post in BAOR, first with an Electronic Warfare Squadron and subsequently with Hannover Works Services Group' and in 1970 after 39 years of service to the Crown, 30 of them serving overseas and one year on troopships, he made his second retirement. Throughout his service and particularly when a senior NCO, he realised the value of a tight knit WO & Sgts Mess in every unit in which he served and always worked hard to ensure that his was the best. As a result he had a host of old friends, and acquaintances throughout the Corps. He came to live in Kent and he and his wife Eadie travelled widely. His parents had insisted that as a child he was widely read and he furthered his education throughout his service. In consequence he embarked upon writing his autobiography. ('Signal Success' published by The Book Guild, Lewes, Sussex). He also became the founder member and Hon Treasurer of the East Kent Branch of the RSA being awarded the well deserved RSA 50 Year Badge for service to the Corps. He is survived by his wife Eadie, together for 58 years and his children, Pet, Linda and Bryan.

Benjamin - Sig Nathan 'Nat' Benjamin died in September 1998 at the age of 87. In 1935 Nat joined the City of London Signals (Volunteers) and qualified as a dispatch rider. Nat was a prominent member of the Regiment's thriving motorcycle display team. In 1937 the Regiment was accorded the honour of providing the first TA motorcycle display team to perform at the Royal Tournament and Nat played an active part in the display. At the outbreak of war and mobilisation in 1939 a medical downgrade precluded Nat from staying with 56 Div Signal Regiment and he transferred to London District Signals. He later served with the Jewish Signal Brigade in Italy and, after another transfer, finished his wartime service in Rome. After demob Nat continued his active membership of the 56 Div Signals Regiment RSA and was subsequently awarded the 50 Years Service badge. He continued his membership up to his death. Nat will be sorely missed by his family and friends including his comrades from the 1937 Display Team who have maintained close contact with each other up to the present day. Nat leaves a widow, Doris, daughter, Pat, and two grand-daughters.

McElvogue – RSM James McElvogue, it is with great regret that the Beverley Ex-Boys Association announce the death of 22537320 RSM Jim McElvogue, who passed away on Saturday 26 June 1999 after suffering from multiple sclerosis and other ailments for some years. Jim commenced his service with the 6 (Boys) Training Regiment at Beverley in January 1951 where he spent two years. In 1953 he went to 6 Armoured Division for two years and then spent the next ten years with various Regiments until being sent to Borneo for a year in 1965. On his return he was posted to 11 Signal Regiment in Germany returning to Harrogate in 1967. In later life, despite being in a wheelchair, Jim served as a case worker for SSAFA. We were represented at the funeral, at St Austell's Church, Southshields, by Mick Teague and a Royal Signals Association Member and life-long friend, Ken Bunston, also attended. We offer our sincere condolences to his wife, Maureen, and family.

Mitchell - Sig Frank 'Mitch' Mitchell. Mitch died suddenly on 6 July 1999. He was the much respected and loved Secretary of the Langeleben Reunion Branch. that owes it's very existence to his tenacity and hard work. His funeral took place in Elland, Yorkshire, on 15 July and was attended by a great number of 'Langy' members, including our President, Maj Gen Peter Baldwin, along with members of the Huddersfield Branch who carried their Standard. The chapel was bursting at the seams due to the large number of 'Corps' friends and the many local organisations 'Mitch' was connected with.

'Mitch' served as a Spec Op, following training at 10 WTS/224 Squadron. He was posted to 1 Squadron, 13 Signal Regiment early in 1960. Before long he volunteered for 2 Squadron at Langeleben which was situated close to the old East/West Germany Border near Helmstedt, and stayed there until de-mob in 1961!

In June 1992 'Langy' closed down. 'Mitch' along with many others attended the closing ceremonies. This sparked the idea of forming a Reunion Branch. It was to be open to all, however they were badged. Due to his efforts membership now exceeds 300. A Reunion has taken place each year since 1994. They have alternated between Germany and the UK. The last of these took place in May, just six weeks before 'Mitch' died.

McCarthy - Lt Patrick McCarthy died following a heart attack on the 3rd July 1999 in Dalemain House Rest Home, Southport; he would have been 83 on 14 July. Pat served in the Corps from 1940-1946 in both Europe and the Far East. During the German retreat from Paris Pat and a fellow officer drove into Paris some 36 hours ahead of the Allied Liberators. After the War he returned to Education and was Headmaster of a large school in Richmond on Thames until his retirement and ultimate return to his North West origins. Due to failing health he entered Dalemain Rest Home in May 1997 and was virtually blind in his latter days. His funeral was on Thursday 15th July in Richmond where he was buried with his wife Margaret, who died on 1 May 1993 and his son Aidan. Pat was a popular member of the Southport Branch of the RSA. He was a cheerful man with a mischievous sense of humour, modest and forthright, a generous man, an optimist with unbounded enthusiasm, a good companion who will be sadly missed. The Branch Chairman, Bruce Gillingham, and members offer their condolences to Pat's sons Terence and Liam and to all the family.

Caplan – Capt M. J. Caplan. Many in the Corps will be saddened to learn of the death, after a long illness, of Maurice Caplan who served from 1944 to 1971. Maurice was a polymath who counted ukulele playing and a keen interest in amateur radio (mostly on the key) amongst his many and varied accomplishments. He was affectionately known by all ranks in the Corps as the absent minded professor. His George Formby impressions were always appreciated. He was an excellent Yeoman of Signals and was commissioned in 1968 as a Traffic Officer. After retiring, he served in the Diplomatic Wireless Service for a short time before joining the Royal Brunei Malay Regiment as a contract officer where he was highly regarded by Malays and British alike.

Andrews - Cpl William Andrews. It is with deep regret that the Cotswolds Branch has to report the death of Bill Andrews who passed away on 1 August 1999 at the age of 85. Bill was called up for service during World War II and after training as a Dispatch Rider with the then newly formed 8 Corps Signals, at Bakewell Derbyshire, he embarked with his unit on the troopship Otranto for service in the Middle East where he remained throughout the war. Following his return to civilian life after the war Bill became an active member of the Royal British Legion and he played a large part in establishing a branch of the Legion in his home village of Bibury. He was their Standard Bearer for some twenty years. A member of,' the Cotswolds Branch, of the RSA, Bill, together with his wife Marjorie, regularly attended Branch meetings and social gatherings. He will be remembered with affection by all who knew him. We offer our sincere condolences to Mrs Andrews in her sad loss.

Currie - Maj A. D. H. Currie TD M.Inst M. It is with much regret that we must advise of the recent death of Alec Currie after an illness. Alec joined the TA in 1939 and served throughout the war in the Royal Artillery, being demobilised in 1946. In 1950 he was recalled for Z Reserve Training and rejoined the Royal Artillery TA. In the 1958 reorganisation, as a Captain, he transferred into 42 Signal Regiment becoming a Major in 1960 commanding 2 Squadron. From 1966 to retiring in 1968 he commanded a Troop in category 111 being over the age for the TA. He was a founder member of the 42 Signal Regiment Officers Club being Chairman for a time and only recently made life president. He was also a member of the Manchester Branch of the RSA. Before retiring from his business career he was an Advertising Director of a publishing company. He will be sadly missed by his many friends; We extend our deepest sympathy to his family.

Faircloth – WO1 W. G. Faircloth. The passing of WO1 William George Faircloth, 'Fairy' to those that know, occurred on Monday 28 June 1999, aged 88years. He is survived by Ada, his wife, and their two sons, David and Christopher. The Service was held at the Holy Trinity Church, Blacon, where he had served as a Church Warden for twelve years, and Church Treasurer for seventeen. Canon P. L. Williams conducted a sensitive and stimulating service assisted by Canon K. V. Povey, giving the personal account of a friend and comrade to a packed congregation of fellow Royal Corps of Signals people, (of which 'Fairy' was a Life Member), colleagues from the Civil Service with whom he had served, and a host of friends of the Church and neighbours who came to give their last respects. Born in Colchester in January 1911 he left school at the age of fourteen to join F. W. Brackett & Co., Engineers as an apprentice draughtsman, but the firm shortly closed. Due to the General Strike, employment was uncertain, luckily he found a vacancy with H. J. Willett, Motor Body Builders in the office, but the indoor work affected his health, and he had to leave. He filled his time at a farm cum riding school, very happy to put in his 70 hours a week for full board plus ten shillings. 'Fairy', even as a boy, was inclined to things electrical. Wireless was the thing of the day. In fact his passion for the crystal set that he had made, and his ability to ride a horse, clinched his application to enlist with the Royal Corps of Signals in August 1929. After completing his training at Catterick Camp, he was posted to 5 Division Scarborough for Technical Training. Then Overseas to the 1st Indian Signals in Rawalpindi for six years returning to 3 Divisional Signals at Bulford. At the outbreak of War he became part of the British Expeditionary Force in France. It was there that he suffered a personal tragedy that was to cause him to lose the use of his left eye. While working on a broken down lorry with a hammer, a splinter of steel became embedded in his eye. Even after several operations in France the splinter remained fixed. He was sent back to England, where a lady surgeon at Moorfields Hospital was successful, but the eye was too damaged to be useful. From then on 'Fairy' concentrated on his teaching abilities with the 3rd Operator's Training Battalion, temporarily on loan to Manchester University as a Lecturer, then as a Warrant Officer, to handle all prospective candidates, as a preliminary to the War Office Commissioning Board, which he found to be a very interesting job indeed. Later he was appointed by the Foreign Office to work with the administration of the African Territories of Asmara, Ethiopia, Eritrea and Somaliland to prepare the 'Five Power Commission' to decide their future and running the Accounts Division of Posts & Telegraphs. For services to the Corps he was awarded The Meritorious Service Medal. Due to the eye injury, a Commission was not possible, although temporary ones were offered. His final posting, in 1954, was to Headquarters Army Emergency Reserve, that had been recently formed at Blacon Camp Chester. He was the Senior RSM carrying the Sword of Honour at the Coronation Procession, and was discharged from distinguished service in January1956.

Green - Capt Bryan George Green BEM I knew Bryan for over 45 years. I first met him when he joined us in 16th Independent Parachute Signal Squadron in the Suez Canal zone, straight from basic and trade training at Beverley and initial parachute training at Aldershot. He was a keen young soldier and a very good telegraph operator. He quickly qualified himself for promotion and was soon appointed to be a Lance Corporal and became an excellent radio detachment commander and in due course was promoted to Corporal. When we returned to England he was promoted to Sergeant just before his 21st Birthday, and proved to be a very good Troop Sergeant. After some years he was posted to 602 Special Communications Troop where he was awarded the BEM and served with them in Kenya. He rejoined the Parachute Signal Squadron as SSM and after a tour as RQMS he was promoted to RSM and posted to the Guards Brigade HQ and Signal Squadron. He was commissioned and became a very competent officer.

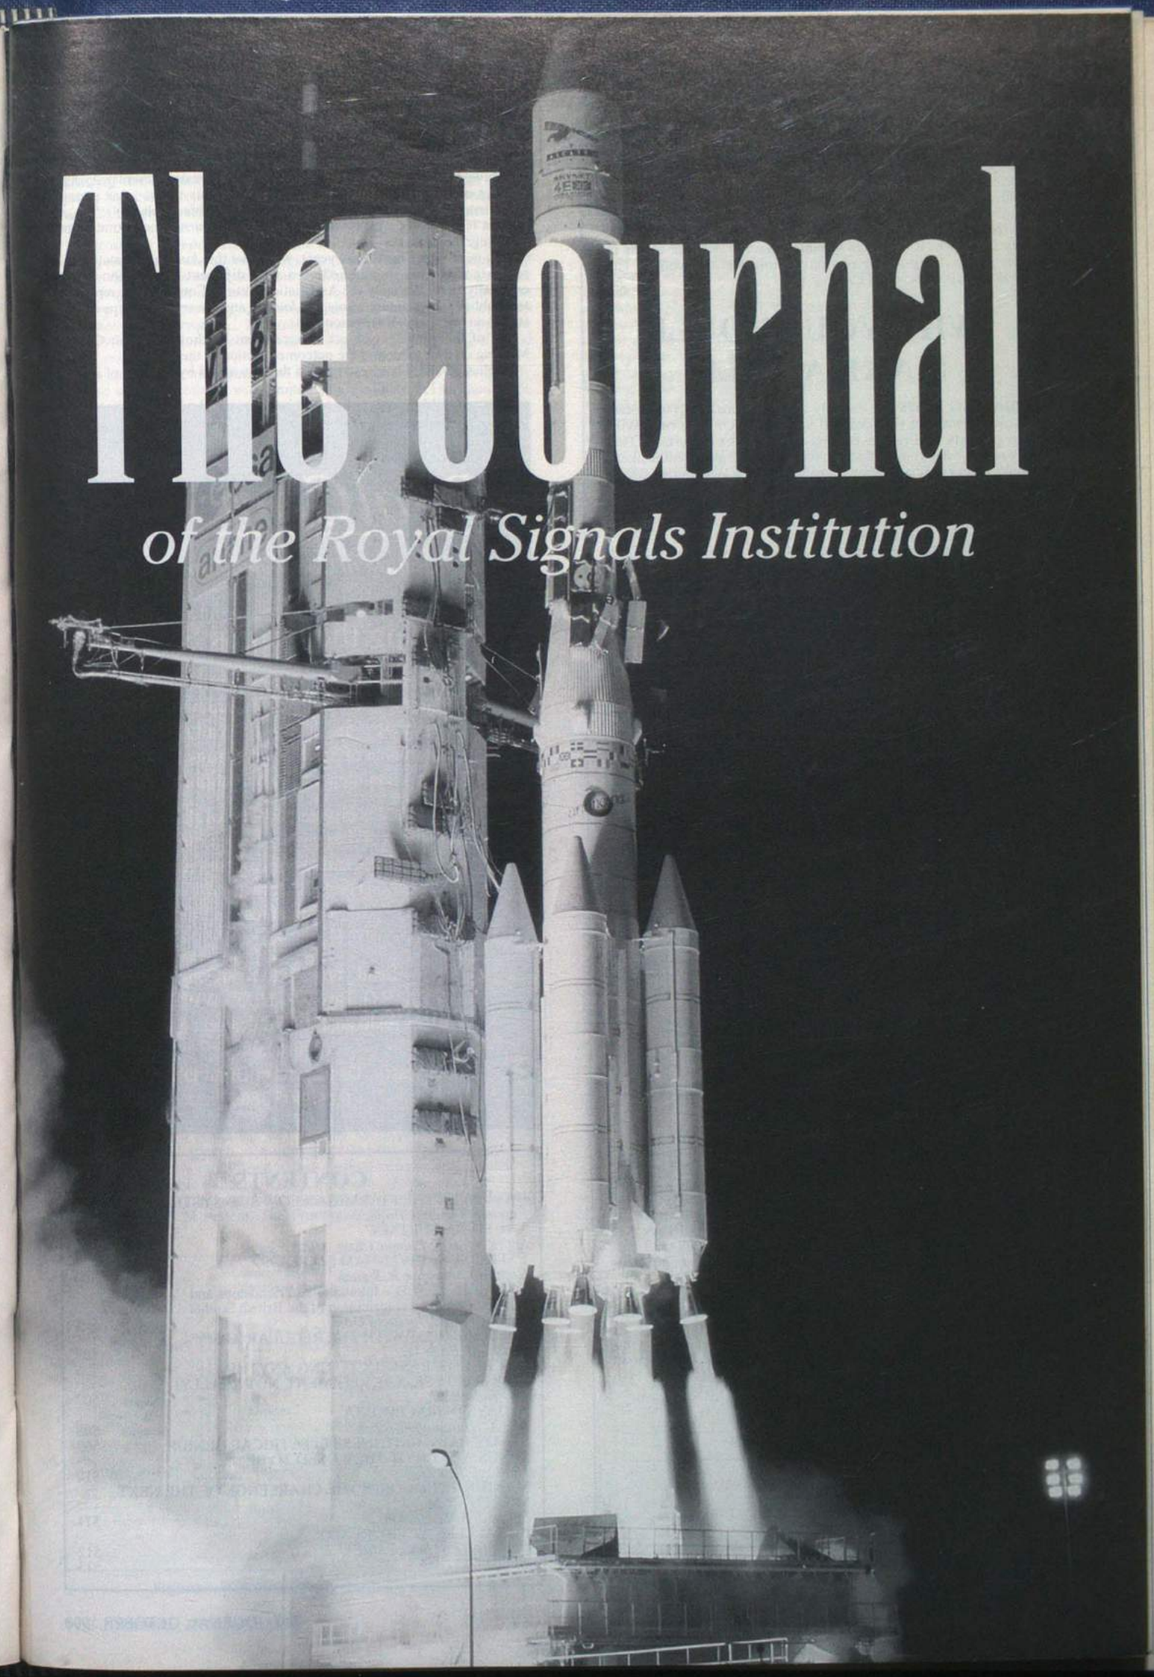
He retired from the Army as a Captain and went into industry as a works manager but soon branched out on his own to set up his own company, Laser Scientific Services, providing precision engineered parts to among others the aircraft and armaments companies and supplying computer controlled laser equipment to industry in the UK, the Continent and the Far East. In 1992 he expanded his company to become Precision Beam Technology and had a new factory built at Peterborough which was to have been opened by the then Prime Minister, John Major, unfortunately Black Wednesday intervened and the factory was opened by Norma Major and Lady Blatch, the Minister for Education. Bryan always worked hard and excelled at all that he did, whether at work or at sport, where he was an outstanding soccer player, and later managed a number of unit soccer teams, culminating in taking 28th Signal Regiment team to the Army Cup Final, unfortunately losing by a single goal in the closing minutes.

He died unexpectedly on 24th June 1999 at the age of 65 and leaves a widow, Nantiya and children Patiya and Justin, and Elaine and David by a previous marriage, to whom we extend our sincere condolences. He was a good friend and will be sadly missed by all who knew him. He was cremated at Peterborough Crematorium and his ashes will be interred at Aldershot Military Cemetery.

Robinson – John Robinson soldier and teacher, born 5 May, 1923, died 24 June, 1999. One of Scotland's last survivors of the Battle of Imphal has died in Edinburgh. John Robinson's career saw him endure the ferocious experience of combat against the Japanese in WWII after which he became a dedicated school teacher. Like many of his generation, the war interrupted but was not allowed to dominate the rest of his life. Few would have suspected that this kindly, lively man had witnessed mankind at its worst. As a Signaller his was the last jeep to arrive at Imphal – 'The Japs must have been watching.' He joked – before the 86-day siege. 'The first 80 days were the worst, then I got malaria. Food was dropped in, we were on one third rations, one-third of bugger all.' Robinson lived in a hole for nearly ten weeks, as Radio Operator for Divisional HQ, 5th Indian Division. Imphal lay 60 miles inside India and was the door to Japanese victory: both sides had to win and the isolated plain saw some of the most desperate fighting of the war, in which bodies lay so deep the men wore nose-plugs. There were 13000 Allied casualties evacuated – one of them was John Robinson. Having recovered, he rejoined his unit and fought his way to the outskirts of Rangoon until, thanks to Gen Bill Slim (knighted on the field of Imphal), '....the Japanese were torn apart.' Not all of them. Shortly before VJ Day, Robinson was charged by a sword-wielding officer. Robinson calmly shot him dead at close quarters. Robinson was then sent to Java to mop up the Japanese and liberate the POWs in a now forgotten campaign in which 255 British and 955 Indian troops died. Two Japanese Battalions came under British command in the attempt to quell the Javanese who saw the Allies as attempting to reintroduce Dutch rule. After five months of street fighting, 'Not officially fighting anyone,' Robinson said, he was given a medical discharge , suffering from malaria and anaemia – along with a Corporal's helpful explanation, 'Your haemoglobin is down to 60%, whatever that means.' He graduated from Downing College, Cambridge, in History, and Lincoln College, Oxford, in Anthropology to become a lecturer at Chatham Naval Dockyard and then Rosyth. His love of education also saw him teach for 13 years at Dunfermline's Woodmill High School. In 1982 he was awarded a BA in Geology from the Open University. When health returned he joined the Inns of Court Regiment, Signal Squadron, TA London Division, before transferring to 21 Special Air Service. He was commissioned into the Royal Army Education Corps in 1957.

Sellers- Sig K. Sellers. It is with regret that the Hull Branch of the Association report the death of Kenneth Sellers on Saturday 24 July 1999. Ken served in the Corps from 1943 to 1947 during which time he served in the Italian Campaign. He was a staunch member of the Hull Branch of the RSA and will be missed by his friends. We extend sincere condolences to his family and friends.

White - Cecil 'Chalky' White 1917-1999. Cecil Anthony White better known during his days with the Corps as 'Chalky', died in Nottingham City Hospital on 25 July 1999, following a short illness. 'Chalky' joined the Corps on 3 January 1935 at Catterick. After training as an Operator Signals he was posted to serve with the Indian Signals on the North West Frontier. He was next transferred to North Africa, soon after the outbreak of hostilities, and served as an Operator in the desert campaigns until wounded and taken prisoner by the Germans but fortunately held in an Italian POW Camp until the Italian surrender. Repatriated to England in 1943 he was medically discharged due to the effects of his wounds. After leaving the Corps, Cecil, usually called Tony, became a successful businessman with several ventures throughout England. He eventually retired from his Estate Agency business in Margate and settled in Skegness. Tony leaves a wife, Hazel, three children, six grand children and one great grandchild. His son Robert also served in the Corps from 1963 to 1988.



In this Issue we launch a partnership with Just Wills plc, the largest independent Will writing company in the United Kingdom. The work done by The Royal Signals Benevolent Fund is helped enormously by the generosity of individual legacies left to the Fund. The arrangement with Just Wills allows members and ex-members of the Corps to benefit from a discount for using the service and at the same time the Fund also benefits by donations from Just Wills. It is always sensible advice to put your affairs in order and in doing so we ask you to remember the work of The Royal Signals Benevolent Fund.

WHY YOU SHOULD MAKE A WILL

MAKING A WILL is the only way to ensure that your wishes are carried out after your death. If you have not made a valid Will, your property will pass according to the laws of intestacy. This may not be what you would have wished and in any event is likely to take longer to finalise than if you had made a Will, during which time your beneficiaries may not be able to draw any money from your estate. It can mean arguments and distress for relatives. Making a Will lets your loved ones know that you cared enough to 'sort things out' in advance.

IF YOU ARE SINGLE you will want your estate divided among friends, relatives and charities of your choosing and in the proportions you want.

IF YOU ARE MARRIED do not assume 'my other half will get everything'. Children, siblings or parents may have a claim. If you are living as a couple but not legally married, you will be treated as a single person and a surviving partner may get nothing at all. One thing you can be certain of – there will be argument and dispute at a time when the family have to cope with the loss of a loved one.

IF YOU ARE A PARENT you should consider who will look after your children in the event of your death. This is particularly important in the case of 'one-parent' families or unmarried parents living together and a valid Will nominating Guardians is imperative – if no one knows what you would have wanted, the Court will decide on the future of your children and it may not be what you would have wished.

IF YOU ARE RETIRED maybe you made a Will a long time ago. It probably needs updating to include additional grandchildren or even deletion of persons to whom you no longer wish to leave anything to.

By deciding to write your Will through Just Wills plc you will save £5.88 per Will (special discount) and you will also be benefiting this worthwhile charity as Just Wills plc have agreed to donate £5.00 to the charity 'The Royal Signals Benevolent Fund'. (Reg. No: 284923)

Please Mark Box [X]

☐ Please send me the Wills by Post pack to enable me to draft my Will. I understand that once I have read the booklet and completed the instructions I then forward the form to Just Wills plc who will draw up my legally valid Will and return it to me. I enclose my cheque made payable to Just Wills plc for £10.00 deposit for each Will. I understand that I will send the balance of £31.13 inc. VAT per Will with the completed instruction sheet.

I further understand that if I am not satisfied, I can return the pack within seven days and receive a full refund.

☐ Please let The Royal Signals Benevolent Fund know that I intend to include them in my Will.

THE WIRE/JOURNAL FUTURE

After the 'flyer' asking for your views on The Wire/Journal future, (for which we thank you for the excellent response), we are currently trying a number of combinations which reflect your various views, in an attempt to achieve the best and most economically acceptable result.

This issue shows a maximum Wire with the Journal incorporated, but not integrated, into it.

The next step, (April next year), will have the Journal reinstated as a separate magazine, but issued on a very different distribution to that originally used. Probably the Association/Retired Corps will be circulated to establish who actually wants the Journal and the serving Corps may be issued on an agreed distribution.

All of the above is subject to agreement by the Institution Council Meeting on 5 October and the outcome/reaction to the trials.

I believe we will have established the way ahead by the start of 2000!

DATA OVER THE PTARMIGAN EOW SUB-SYSTEM

Utilising the Engineering Order Wire facility in the Ptarmigan System to pass signal engineering data communications between the Node Command Installation and the Radio Relay Detachments.

This article is reproduced from the executive summary of a project report produced by the authors – Sgt's Leyland, Peters and Robinson of Number 68 Foreman of Signals Course. The authors were set the subject of the project and conducted four weeks of research in their own time with two days of course programme time in which to carry out any confirmatory work required. The authors completed their FofS course in April 1999 and are now serving at 35 Sig Regt (V), 600 Sig Tp and RSSST, respectively.

The engineering management of the Ptarmigan System relies heavily on voice communications, with limited data available in OSC and Node Command (NC) vehicles using the SMT and remote FAME access. Link Information Data (LID) has to be passed verbally from OSC to NC to SW & FC to Radio Relay (RR) installations, which is both time consuming and prone to errors. As well as engineering traffic, tactical updates and briefings need to be passed to all personnel, including remote RR detachments. These problems could be addressed by the availability of a data system for network managers which utilised the EOW sub-system as a bearer and was capable of automatic routing and repeating. Therefore, the aim of this short project was to explore a system that would allow data communications over EOW between NCs and their deployed RR, and up to OSC command.

The effectiveness of Ptarmigan as a communications system will be dependent on the effectiveness of its management systems. In order to carry out such comprehensive management, of what is in effect a large communications system, the system managers are provided with their own installations and equipment. Future plans, intentions and information up dates are passed up and down the chain of command using various management facilities, two such devices being the System Management Terminal (SMT) and the COSSOR Teleprinter. A problem arises when the information to be passed is intended for non-command vehicles. Such detachments are not equipped with these management tools and as a result the system relies heavily upon voice communications. Most people having played Chinese whispers realise how easy it is to lose important information due to human error and interpolation, even within a very small circle of players! As the Radio Relay Installation plays such a key role within the network, it is essential that the system managers are able to pass accurate information without the risk of an intermediary person relaying a vital message incorrectly.

This paper addresses this problem by utilising a secure, tactical, hand-held Data Entry Device (DED) that can transmit and receive audio data signals directly to and from the already existing Engineering Order Wire (EOW). EOW speech signals are encoded using delta modulation where speech is passed throughout the subsystem as a 16 kbit/s stream, encoding and decoding functions are performed at subscribers equipment's and interface units. To provide three separate EOW circuits over the supergroup transmission link, two EOW links are combined into the housekeeping group and one EOW link is carried along with the supergroup. This third EOW circuit may be extracted and used by remotely deployed SHF radio.

'The EOW speech from the DEOW handset is initially routed to an amplifier circuit before being fed to a Codec Encoder. The internally generated 16kHz clock signal is used to convert the analogue speech signal into 16kbit/s NRZ form using Continuously Variable Slope Delta Modulation (CVSDM) which is then routed to an Interface Module'[1]

The reason for quoting this particular paragraph is because it flags up a key issue, which is the use of CVSDM. CVSDM allows reasonable quality of digital speech at a quarter of the bandwidth required for standard PCM. It is rarely used within civilian systems as the quality is below the acceptable standard. It does, however, offer an advantage in the fact there is no requirement for an analogue to digital converter as there would be in a PCM system. The Ptarmigan speech encoding circuit is shown in Figure 1.

CVSDM has two main drawbacks, the first occurs when the input changes so quickly that the stepped waveform is unable to track it and is termed slope overload. This problem is more apparent in simple Delta Modulation as CVSDM uses different step sizes in an attempt to reduce this risk. With normal speech this is not really a problem as the human brain interpolates the missing information, data however could prove a different matter. It was therefore decided that providing the bit rate was kept to a reasonably low speed slope overload would not become an issue when the time arrived to pass data over an EOW circuit.

The second drawback of CVSDM is due to the finite step size causing quantisation error. Making the step sizes smaller reduces this but increases the risk of slope overload. The DED selected for the job was the Kipling as it was readily available, compact enough to fit in the smallest of hiding places and relatively user friendly. In addition, the Kipling DED can output digital data to an associated printer allowing hard copies and records to be easily maintained. It is also able to transmit and receive audio data signals directly to and from a radio. Operator interface with the Kipling DED is via the keyboard and a display screen, this allows the operator to configure the system, prepare and transmit messages, action received messages and initiate the built in tests, using a series of displayed menus. System information is displayed on a screen. Typically, the screen display is sub-divided into three main areas, a status line, the main display area and a prompt line. A typical display is shown in Figure 2.

When configuring the DED's parameters there are several settings that one should be aware of. The first point to note is that the PTARMIGAN EOW circuit has an in built delay of one second, once the pressel is depressed, in order for synchronisation with the distant end equipment's to take place[3]. Fortunately the Kipling DED allows the operator to set a parameter called the Keytime Delay[4]. This is a time period at the beginning of each transmission during which Kipling does not send any useful information in order to allow the transmitter a chance to key up to full power and the receivers AGC to settle down when used in conjunction with radios. This period can be set in the range 0 to 31, where each unit represents 0.1 seconds (i.e. a range of 0 to 3.1 seconds). The parameter settings used in the trials are shown in Table 1.

Serial	Parameter	Setting
(a)	(b)	(c)
1	Net Name	Test
2	Radio 1 C'sign	1:0 2:3 3:9
3	TX Mode	Manual
4	Baud Rate	300
5	Nx (Packet Size)	15
6	Clock	DTG
7	Key Delay	20

Table 1. Parameter Settings for Kipling DED

The first test conducted was to pass a simple message from the DEOW within the Switch and FC to the SCRA Central Installation. This was achieved by selecting the correct channel on the DEOW, speaking to the distant end to ensure that their device was switched on and ready to receive and then transmitting the message.

Once the message is transmitted audible FSK tones are heard in the ear-piece and a 'Q' (showing a Queued message) is displayed in the top right hand corner of the DEDs display. On the receiving side the yellow busy light on the SEOW lights and an 'R' (informing the user that a message is being received) appears in the top right hand corner of the display screen. Once the transmission has finished the yellow light extinguishes on the SEOW while the transmitting device replaces the 'Q' indication for an 'A' in order to acknowledge a successful transmission.

The second test conducted, involved a message being transmitted from the SCRA Central to the Switch and FC installation. Here the same operating procedure was adopted as before, with voice communications being established prior to transmitting the data message. Again the same confirmatory indications were observed. The first two tests carried out confirmed that data could be transmitted over the EOW circuit. The syndicate was then keen to discover whether multiple calls could be made both on a single circuit and two different EOW circuits, enabling more than one installation to receive the same message after a single transmission. Theory suggested it was possible and within minutes it was confirmed. By selecting two EOW circuits on the DEOW within the Switch and FC, and transmitting a single message to both the SCC and SCRA Central installations one message could be transmitted down two separate EOW circuits in a single action.

Multiple address calls on a single EOW circuit were also made and as with the previous trials conducted, voice communications were established first to ensure that the terminals we wished to receive the messages were on line. A message was then transmitted where upon all stations consequently received the transmitted message successfully. The equipment configuration is shown in Figure 3.

THE FINAL CURTAIN

Sig (Rtd) L. S. Palmer C Eng, MIEE

The dramatic title of this story arises because the year 2000 sees the closing down of all Branches of the Dunkirk Veterans Association. So ends an era in which the British Army got a kick in the rear but paid back the culprit with considerable interest. As a Dunkirk Veteran I have been proud to stand and honour those who didn't make it home after the battle for France in 1940, but there has always been some who considered that the withdrawal by the British Expeditionary Force (BEF) was a shameful act for an army, but these people are always those who have never faced a Tiger Tank with the 0.55 inch Boys anti-tank rifle which happened to be the only anti-tank weapon 3 Line had. Our Lee Enfields weren't much good against their tanks.

3 Line Section had sailed from Southampton to Cherbourg on 18 September 1939, being one of three Line Sections, (the others were 1 & 2) which formed No 1 Company 'A' Corps Signals, Nos 2 & 3 Companies were operators and Admin, if I remember correctly. Later the 'A' was changed to lst Corps and comprised the lst and 2nd. Divisions. So, at the end of September 1939, the BEF consisted of all of 160,000 men, 25,000 vehicles, 140,000 tons of stores and a front line of 25 miles, part of the Maginot line. It was assumed that the war would be fought as in WW1.

Lord Gort, the Commander of the BEF, had to rely on his two Army Corps with lst and 2nd Divs in 1 Corps, and 3rd and 4th Divs in 2 Corps. Lord Gort had therefore four Divisions facing the 105 Field Divisions of the German Army. It is true that the French had some 80 Divisions and with those of the Dutch and Belgian Armies the Forces were evenly balanced in manpower terms but the BEF was merely a token force compared to the might of French and German forces. Training, Equipment etc, was a different story. At this time we were still wearing our peacetime uniforms with the Cavalry Top Coat or bum freezer. Then someone gave us Leather Jerkins, Bless them. With hindsight, I believe the German High Command was sorry for Lord Gort because clearly he had been dropped in it by the politicians and so they delayed their planned invasion of France for several months. Note:- The figures quoted are taken from Reference 1.

We had spent several months, training, freezing, starving, (our daily dinner was Tinned Stew,) over what became known as the Phoney War period, and someone somewhere had worked out our food intake to be just adequate provided we could afford eggs and chips in the local estaminet now and again. We had a marvellous Xmas dinner in 1940 and the original menu was given by me to the museum. By early 1940 lst Corps had another Division, 48th, 2nd Corps had 5th and 50th and another Corps, 3rd arrived in April. 51st Highland Div had been attached to the French Army. On 10 May 1940 the Battle began. When you examine the figures you find that the BEF gave a good account of themselves leading to praise from at least one involved German General, and our Commander, Lord Gort, who had the courage to save the BEF by his retreat and reform orders in spite of the fact that the French seemed to forget all about the BEF and left him to get on with it. When the left flank of 1 Corps became vulnerable due to the capitulation of first the Dutch then the Belgians he had little choice. As far as I remember his saving of so many at Dunkirk and the southern evacuation ports didn't seem to be recognised by the politicians. For those of us who survived we cannot thank him enough. In war time soldiers obey orders and retreat if ordered to do so, under threat of Court Martial but some still have a go and remnants of the Dutch, Belgian, and French Forces helped the evacuation to succeed with many coming over to England.

The Signals were the communications experts but one well remembered failure was the fact that none of us seemed to know what was happening. On 10 May we moved into Belgium and on our arrival in Brussels we had a hectic time laying D8 left, right and centre: I was a lineman in 3 Line Section, lst Corps Signals, see Photograph taken early 1940.

3 Line Section circa January 1940

The Officer was Lt Jacobs. To his right was SSM 'Snowey' Weedon (Who terrorised recruits in the late thirties in the Depot), to Snowey's right was Sgt 'Taffy' Wilding, to the left of Lt Jacobs is Sgt 'Taffy' Edwards and next to him Cpl 'Tich' Harrison, the third of a well known Aldershot Trio. The writer is fourth from the right in the rear rank. Cpl Halliday mentioned in the text is marked. The photograph included all transfers from 11 Line Section to 3 Line Section and vice versa.

We often came under small arms fire when out line laying and on occasion we fired back but to this day I have no idea who was shooting at us. This led to an amusing episode involving our Section Fitter (motor) Cpl 'Busty' Halliday, a reservist, who got very annoyed over bullet holes in his 30cwt Morris vehicles and a damaged cable-layer MK2. It was alleged he went around to Corps Headquarters, was granted an interview with Lt Gen Barker, Corps Commander, whereupon within 48hrs our vehicles were fitted with Heath Robinson twin gun (Lewis) mountings which gave us the chance to hit back, which we did, when they didn't jam. I think 'Busty' was on the carpet for not involving our Section officer but he was a fine officer (photo) and probably saw the funny side of the event. Without doubt the guns made whoever was shooting at us think again. Our Section Sergeant in Aldershot had told us that the Signals were classed as non combatants, rather like Medics, and it was good for him that he wasn't with us, having escaped on leave just prior to the push into Belgium.

For those new boys out there, the cable-layer mentioned was our latest piece of equipment and comprised a two stroke engine driving two rubber rollers through which the twin D8 was passed from a free running drum attached to the machine through a belt drive. The rollers spewed the cable out a good 30ft, guided by an NCO with a crook stick and as long as you didn't mind using one mile of twisted cable to cover 300yds all was well. I am disappointed that we do not have one in the museum or does someone know something I don't. To be fair, when the layer was used with single D8 cable followed by another layer producing a pair, they worked perfectly and someone somewhere decided that two bobbins (cotton reels) spaced 9ins apart produced a near perfect communication channel with a characteristic impedance of 600ohms, just right for the carrier terminals available at the time. Great pride was taken by the lineman to ensure that the 'clove hitch' used on the bobbin was tight enough to ensure a constant 9in gap throughout the bay length for both cables on the French Telephone poles. (I bet some are still there). The cotton reels were collected throughout the country by the lovely ladies of the WS, who probably wondered if we were throwing them at the Germans but now you know the truth Ladies.

So, on 10 May, we drove into Belgium. Corps Headquarters was in a large Country House and we were kept quite busy Line laying and/or installing switchboards. F&F of course. After a few days we began the retreat to the coast but until I picked up a leaflet dropped by a German aircraft I didn't know what was happening and as far as I am aware, neither did anyone else. The leaflet explained we were surrounded and invited us to lay down our arms. We didn't. I became cut off from my Line Section and reached Dunkirk on the morning of 3 June.

Dunkirk was the end for the original BEF but some of the lads continued to fight on in the Calais area and a counter attack was launched in the Arras area. I think someone who was there should tell that one. We all did our best, and some were awarded the highest honour possible, The VC. His Majesty awarded seven, yes seven, Victoria Crosses to Members of the BEF for outstanding bravery during the battle for France but there were many acts which went unrecognised. We say we will remember them but we never seem to these days. Is it because we think that bravery in defeat is different from bravery in victory? Here they are:

8 June 1940	Flying Officer D. E. Garland Pilot
	Sergeant T. Gray Observer
26 July 1940	LCpl H. Nicholls Grenadier Guards
	Lt H. M. Ervine-Andrews East Lancs Regt
20 August 1940	2Lt R. W. Annand Durham Light Infantry
	CSM G. Gristock. Royal Norfolk Regt
5 February 1946	Lt The Hon C. Furness Welsh Guards

EXERCISE SHRIVENHAM LOIPE 99

by Captain Bill Anderson R Signals

Exercise Shrivenham Loipe is a Cross Country Skiing Exercise organised by members of the RMCS Nordic Ski Club. The Exercise deploys annually to Switzerland, Austria and France. The aim of Shrivenham Loipe is to develop novice and intermediate skiers' skills, by taking part in the RAAC Nordic Training Scheme and the joint RAC, AAC and RA Nordic Skiing Championships. These two elements combine to form a training camp for the budding Bialliletes from RMCS to prepare for the UK (Army) Winter Biathlon Championship and Exercise Spartan Hike held in Serre Chevalier, France. Prior to deployment on the Exercise the potential team of ten had to be whittled out of the 15 who had been training. This for the most part was straight forward as a number of the well paid Officer Cadets could not afford the £350 for the five weeks skiing. In addition to this, a number of individuals were not willing to leave their families for the five weeks over Christmas and New Year. Training started in October 1998 and consisted of two runs, two sessions of circuits and two range practices per week. This was of course in addition to individual training. In addition to this training, in the last few weeks, one session of in-line roller blading was introduced. This was to introduce novices to the skills common between skating on skis and skating on roller blades. Unfortunately the only venue for this was in the Student Patch area and we are all glad that the entertainment value for spectators was exceptionally high!!

On 4 December the intrepid ten departed from Shrivenham for the drive to St Moritz, Switzerland. The ten included, from the Corps, Capt Bill Anderson and Lts Andy Parfitt and Colin 'I'll be a Captain in two weeks' Kell. Amongst the remaining seven were OCdts Mat 'Sick Note' O'Hare and Rob 'Kimo' Addison who are at present sponsored by the Corps but, have still to attend RMA Sandhurst. 24 hours after leaving Shrivenharn we arrived in the Engadin Valley, Switzerland, to be confronted by so much snow that we couldn't see it! There had been no snow since October, skiing was going to be limited to say the least.

The team, accommodated in two apartments in the neighbouring villages of Celerina and Samedan, quickly settled into a limited training schedule which included gym work, skiing (both Classic and Freestyle) and the highly critical range time. For the first week the team was split into two sections: the intermediates were attached to various groups within the Royal Artillery Alpine Club Training Scheme whilst the beginners, with the politically correct title of Novices, were taken by Maj Paul Belcourt RA, who had the uphill (no pun intended) task of converting the Novices into race-ready skiers. No pressure at all, considering the first two races were at the end of that first week! In no time at all the Novices were skiing up and down hills where other novices feared to tread and the intermediate skiers found the revision of basic skills a welcome refresher. Due to the lack of snow in Pontresina there was a heavily restricted skiing programme available, thus a daily exodus to Davos was required. This involved a 1.5 hour trip over the Fluelapass that was to become an all too familiar sight over the coming weeks. The first two races went better than expected, with the whole team performing well against an opposition with a two week head start of training on us. No prizes won but, morale was high and the potential for some good results in later races in the exercise was obvious.

With the RAAC scheme behind us it was up to the old sweats of the team to show the young guns a trick or two! For the two weeks prior to Christmas, Colin Kell, in his third season with the team, and Andy Parfitt, in his second season with the team and with the onerous task of Captaining the team, along with two other third season veterans, Lt Chris Brogan and Capt Mac McGill. both Royal Engineers', set about improving their own techniques whilst dragging the youngsters of the team and the team granddad, Capt Bill Anderson, around the slopes of Davos and Pontresina. By now some techniques were beginning to show, particularly by OCdt 'Kimo' Addison and Capt 'Old Git,' Anderson with a stunning display of ski ballet or was it break dancing on skis'?

Christmas Day and Boxing Day were spent relaxing on the downhill slopes of the Davos/Kloisters Ski Resort which made for a very enjoyable couple of days but defeated the purpose slightly. The days were meant as rest days but the ski-ing undertaken ensured that the team were all slightly more 'fatigued' than planned. Following the next few days training the team relocated to Livigno in Italy. Not as one would expect was any skiing undertaken but, normal Hogmanay activities were indulged in until well, it was early!!!!

New Years Day was then spent recovering, packing the vehicles and generally preparing for the Team's move to Austria, and the forthcoming RAC/RA/AAC Championships in Hochfilzen. The Team moved to Austria on 2 January 1999 and quickly settled into their accommodation in St Ulrich, approx 20km from Kitzbuel. Unlike Switzerland there was an abundance of snow here, which enabled us to ski from our accommodation to the competition ranges, approximately 10km away in the village of Hochfilzen.

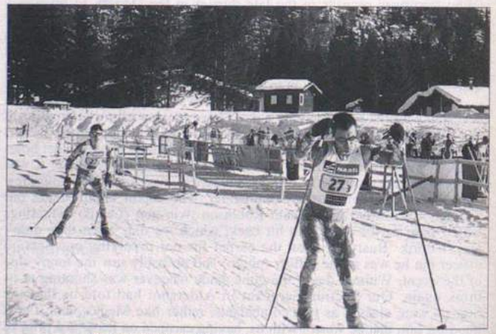
The first day of the Championships was a practice day, with the course for the following day's classic race open for inspection and the ranges open for training. The Team took the opportunity to practice range drills and shooting technique, with individuals skiing sections of the course between each shoot in order to practice shooting with a heightened pulse rate. The snow was in very good condition and the Team was confident of good results in the week's races.

Lt Andy Parfitt trying to look cool, calm and collected on the range in Hochfilzen

Overnight fresh snow fell and conditions looked good early in the morning. The team deployed early to the race start area in order to test the ski waxes. However, after testing tub waxes with limited success, the temperature increased to above freezing and it then began to rain. To add to the team's difficulties, OCdt Gareth Walker in a display of how not to control a minibus in icy conditions. managed to collide with the RAF's very own White Arrows (Landrover equivalent of the Red Arrows). Two of the RMCS A team went off to arrange repair and recovery of the team's minibus while the remaining team members battled on trying to find that elusive combination of wax and snow. The race proved to be a test of brute strength in the double poling department, and the practice gained in Switzerland proved invaluable as the Team achieved a very respectable 11th out of a field of 32 teams.

Lt Andy Parfitt easing up the hills in the 10km individual biathlon

The next race was the 4 x 7.5km biathlon relay. The loipes had frozen overnight making them quite icy, and fog on the range made accurate shooting extremely difficult. As always, shooting accuracy proved invaluable with Capt Colin Kell showing the field why he is within the Bisley 100. Lt Andy Parfitt also has to be commended upon his Flipper impersonations and being the only individual on the course to collide with the only one-armed man lying in the middle of the race loipe. Well done Andy, that took real skill!!!!!



Capt Bill Anderson and OCdt John Wilson
See, they can stand up long enough for a photo to be taken

The final race was the 10km individual biathlon, held on the Thursday morning. Only one 4-man team was entered, as it was impossible to share the five biathlon rifles between two teams. Sadly, the excellent shooting from the previous day was not repeated. and the Team had to ski hard to achieve 11th place. The remainder of the day was spent in preparation for the journey back to Shrivenham that was planned for the next day. Thursday evening was the final prize-giving, held in the Kulture Hall in Hochfilzen. It was here that Capt Colin Kell was honoured with the coveted prize for the 'Best Bottom in Lycra', and his prize, well that was a particularly fine pair of underpants. Unfortunately the decision was made that due to the damage to the minibus, and it's need to return to UK for repair, that the team would not go on to compete in Exercise Spartan Hike. The whole team therefore returned to the UK, arriving back in Shrivenham in the early hours of Saturday 9 January.

Lt Andy Partitt has now handed over the reins as team Captain to Capt Bill Anderson who is now planning Exercise Shrivenham Loipe 2000. The format for the expedition is still unknown as yet, due to the dates for the various elements having not been confirmed due to the Millennium.

INDIA REVISITED – INTERNATIONAL FRIENDSHIPS AND REFLECTIONS ON THE CONTRIBUTION OF THE BRITISH SOLDIER

By Maj Gen D. R. Horsfield OBE

I am one of the few remaining officers of the Corps who had close experience of 'old style' foreign service, having spent ten years long ago in Egypt, India and later on, Malaya. The Indian part included time in Burma as well as service in what is now Pakistan. I was launched from the UK on this interesting foreign travel in 1939 in the month that war had been declared, bound for 'The Tropics' with a minimal one full day's embarkation leave at home. I returned eight years later.

My first appointment on Indian soil was the command of the Officer Cadet Wing at the Signal Training Centre in Mhow in the summer of 1942 and it was here, some months later that I met my first Indian Signals Officer, Brij Bhagat, a Regular of my own vintage. He was a great all rounder in every way and we became firm friends. He was one of the distinguished band of Indian officers commissioned from the Indian Military Academy (IMA) in the 1930s, where he had won the Sword of Honour of his term. His younger brother, a Bombay Sapper and Miner won the Victoria Cross in one of the Desert battles.

Small numbers of Indian officers had been commissioned from Sandhurst from around 1920. The IMA had not been founded until 10 years later and in its early years none of its output came to Signals. Perhaps one reason for this was that there was no Signals equivalent to the Indian Sappers and Miners or Indian Artillery, so what commission could they be given? When this problem was solved and one Signals commission a term allowed, the vacancy became a top prize to compete for. The IMA term after Brij Bhagat produced a very great man in the history of the Indian Corps, Raj Batra by name. His prizes included both the Sword of Honour for being the outstanding Cadet and the Gold Medal for being first in the order of merit. By the time I left India I had met the majority of this small but talented group of officers commissioned from the IMA in the 1930s.

A tale about Raj Batra illustrates both the confidence and the sense of humour of this great man. As one of the youngest subalterns at Jabalpur Signal Training Centre he dined at a British Infantry Guest Night where he was called upon to deliver his party piece which turned out to be Ronald Frankau's recitation 'I'm Proud to be British' which was received from this young Indian with delighted applause. However his Royal Signals seniors were much in doubt as to whether this was acceptable behaviour. 'Taking the Mickey' was frowned upon. However, I am glad to say that he was not suppressed. Not surprisingly the same recitation was hilariously received at a Ladies Guest Night given by 2 Signal Brigade for the Indian Generals during our Corps celebrations in 1995. Raj and others like him formed immediate bonds of friendship with their British contemporaries from their earliest meetings. The valuable thing from my point of view was that I was meeting these fellow young officers, all of us in our early twenties, without any preconceived ideas about our standing one with another. Reactions were the same as with any British of our own kind. It would be presumptuous of me to claim equality with my new friends but I was not too far behind. At this point I would like to give credit to Maj Gen Ralph Vyvyan, SOinC India. I detected a careful hand guiding the careers of the young Indian officers of their Corps. He had been a friend of my Father's in the Worcestershire Regiment and came to Royal Signals via the Signals Service of the 1914-18 war.

Sixty years from my early experiences I have recently returned from three weeks in India for a reunion with Indian friends and their families ranging from my contemporaries to young serving soldiers in remote stations. My wife Sheelah and daughter Claudia accompanied me. Sheelah's father had served Indian Railways for 25 years and Claudia had visited there herself as well as knowing our own Indian guests on various visits to the UK, so all looked forward to a great experience.

Mrs Horsfield, Priyo Batra and the author

The tour was an outstanding success. Examining our programme on arrival we were much impressed to see that the Signal Officer in Chief, Lt Gen Gokarn had included a Ladies Guest Night to honour us and make clear that linkages with Royal Signals were of great importance to him and his serving Corps as well as those at the Veteran level. Wherever we went, the message had gone before and we were treated as the closest and most welcome of friends. Sadly Raj Batra died not long after visiting Britain for our 1995 anniversary but the Batra family played a great part in everything that we did. On the evening of our arrival we were entertained at the Batra's house by Priyo, his widow, where we met their son, two daughters and grandchildren. Moving on to the house of one of Raj's brothers we met other relations whom we knew - more drinks then on again to one of Priyo's sisters where conviviality continued, to be rounded off by supper. Stamina and survivability were to be well tested on the trip.

There were so many good friends in Delhi who were keen to entertain us that at one stage I suggested that an auction might be needed to sort things out, particularly in view of the fact that part of our time would be taken up with a tour which had been arranged to the State of Sikkim far to the east in an area where India, Nepal, Bhutan, China, Bangladesh, Assam and Burma are not far separated even though the highest of mountains and the greatest of rivers provide separation.

This tour owes its creation to a conversation I had with Lt Gen Balaram during our Corps 75th Anniversary activities in 1995. I learned that he had been a Corps Commander in Sikkim during the Chinese offensive of 1962. I mentioned that I had been due some leave when 23rd Indian Division was withdrawn from the Imphal Plain in late 1944 after pushing the Japanese off the Shenam Heights down towards the Chindwin River. I was planning a visit to Sikkim when I received a signal ordering me to report immediately to Quetta Staff College to join the Directing Staff so no trip took place. Bala as we call him set about rectifying the missing Sikkim part of my education. Burma veterans will be pleased to know that we stayed on our trip with 33 Corps and 17 Division, both important formations in our battles with the Japanese. Mrs Priyo Batra, much loved by us all, was to accompany us and her wide knowledge of the cultures and history of her country and much else, quite apart from her company, added enormously to our enjoyment.

Sikkim is approached from West Bengal at the far north extremity of India. It is only some 40 miles wide and 70 north to south but in other ways it goes in for extremes. Gangtok, the capital, was our first port of call. In this town and others like it, spread over slopes and ridges, the altitude ranges from 4,000 to 6,000 feet or more, making shopping good exercise. In the great range of mountains in north Sikkim lies Kanchenjunga, at over 28,000 feet the third highest mountain in the world. The country, once ruled by a Buddhist dynasty, has also become a centre for those who have fled from the Chinese out of Tibet. The Himalayas in Sikkim, as elsewhere, are relatively recent in geological terms so that landslides and other disturbances are common. Travel takes time. We drove west from Gangtok to a town some 30 air miles distant. With never a straight stretch of road, constant climbing and descending and a few landslide problems the journey took five hours and the speedometer registered the 65 miles we had covered. Much was beautiful forest country intersected by fast flowing rivers. Some areas were cleared and terracing for rice had been carried out step by step up steep slopes. Arriving in Kalimpong, also draped over several ridges, 17 Division Signal Regiment took us in hand and the Divisional Commander, Major General Brar and his family were very hospitable. We were looking forward to seeing the great snow clad range of mountains to our north, but the weather in the whole of this mountainous area can vary by the hour and one learns to be patient, to adapt to circumstance and welcome the brighter kind when it comes. Our busy programme went ahead most enjoyably. People are not daunted by slopes. A fine garden centre we visited stretched way down a 30° incline but flourished all the same.

Darjeeling was our final call in the same territory though, like Kalimpong, just across the frontier into India and with much less forest. It will be known to many of our Corps with Gurkha service. On arrival I was invited to lay a wreath at the fine Gurkha memorial to soldiers of the area who had fallen in operations since 1947. We were in a popular tourist area, but the throngs of Indians were so great that tourists do not stand out. At last fine views of the great mountains to the north were visible every morning and for those with hosts as good as ours there was plenty to see. A tea estate in lovely country was very worthwhile and the Tibetan Refugee Training Centre impressed us all. Facilities are well provided for at minimal cost. Their material products are of the highest quality and education of the young leads the clever to professional level employment from which they in turn help fund future education. At the Himalayan Mountaineering Institute we were well instructed and I noted that Smith Windham and Thompson, 2 Signals subalterns who supported the 1936 Eric Shipton Everest expedition were mentioned as, of course, was Lord Hunt, with whom I had worked in the founding days of the British Ski Federation. Gombu, a diminuitive and cheerful Sherpa who accompanied us round the Museum had scaled Everest on two occasions. Signals Major Saksen was our expert guide.

Our final four days in Delhi were busy and illustrated above all how much talent is always available waiting for the hand of opportunity to release it. We met old friends who had met the challenges open to them after 1947. Amongst the Generals, Brahm Kapur had headed Defence Procurement with direct access to Nehru and Chiefs of Defence Staff in America and the UK. He and his wife Kamla have also played a part particularly in improving education in Indian villages. Vijay Khanna, a one time Cadet of mine, became SOinC and with his wife Uma has built up the contacts with our Corps. Bala Balaram, who attended a Catterick Long Tels course, became a Vice Chief of the Indian Army. We look upon him and his wife Hima as the leading intellectuals of their Corps. It was 'RP' Singh and his wife Kamla who took the lead when he was SOinC in entertaining the large British contingent to the 1986 Indian Corps celebrations. The personal tragedy of failed operations leaving him with a locked knee joint have in no way diminished the sparkle which illuminates their lives and the contribution which the two of them and their daughter have made to health problems of others in the medical sphere through Homeopathy and Reike.

On a less serious note we were happy to meet another ex-SOinC, Mooke as we called him, who attended a Long Tels course in Catterick when I was Chief Instructor at the School. Mrs Mookerji, Aroti by name, went off to the RAMC hospital soon after their arrival where their daughter was born. Mooke always declares that Sheelah taught him to cook, gathered the wives of Whinny Hill to spring clean the house for Aroti's return and collected a suitable layette from her helpers. Aroti tells us that Claudia, then aged four, taught her the skills of the Hula-Hoop!

All in all the whole visit was an exceptionally moving and enjoyable experience. We parted with bear hugs all round. The experience deserves a generous report both for our Corps and theirs. At the end of our visit, still moved by their heart warming attentions, I spoke of the one time image of the heroic Britisher 'remote, unemotional and stiff upper lipped' and thanked our hosts for showing me how to be rather more Indian in their very important way that does not dismiss emotion as a weakness.

Over the past dozen years many of our senior officers, together with parties of our veterans, all led by our Masters of Signals, have met their Indian counterparts and been delighted by the experience. Full credit must be given to the dynamic Lieutenant General 'RP' Singh for setting in motion the various steps which revealed and regenerated the bonds, individual and collective, between our two Corps and its individuals. The approach had to come from India. Our recent visit showed the great flowering of good will which has come from his initiative. We are pressed to ensure our attendance on 15 February 2001 at their 90th Anniversary celebrations. If we remain fit we shall be there and look for strong support from the top level of the serving Corps as well as from the diminishing number of Veterans available and fit to travel.

There must be reasons in history which had formed the grounding of the wonderful spirit which bound the soldiers of our two Nations together. I decided to look back on our shared history to search for these foundations of mutual respect, admiration and friendship built up over the centuries by the soldiers of our two Nations. It is of note that our soldiers of all ranks have a good reputation in many countries in which they have served, or are serving, earning credit built on friendliness, good humour, helpfulness and respect for local inhabitants and their way of life. Such behaviour is as much the role of our soldiers today as it ever was. Much of modern history appears to be written applying the morality of today and providing character assassination of great people of earlier ages. Too little regard is given to the problems faced and the options open for completing the task of the moment. In regard to Britain and India I propose to take a more robust soldiers line.

India is a country bounded by sea for much of its borders and by the highest of mountain ranges elsewhere. Borders are important and India is lucky to have such sound ones. It is part of Asia but with the barrier of the Himalayas to the north, it is in many ways much like a continent in its own right. In Europe, invasions, attempted or successful, have been taking place throughout history. They have been part of the activities of mankind which have spread knowledge, skills and, perhaps oddly, civilisation around the world. This may be a process which will die out, but it has served a useful purpose. At a distance of 2000 years we in Britain have no difficulty in accepting that many valuable ideas were left us by Roman intervention. India too has had many invasions, including the Aryans in 1500 BC through others to the important one leading to the Moghul Empire in 1520. However, the arrival of Europeans in India was no typical invasion. The influence of Trade on opening up relations between Nations is not sufficiently recognised. The difficulties of some early traders were well illustrated when we were taken to the Natu La Pass from Gangtok in Sikkim. This is the pass between Sikkim and the part of China which was formerly Tibet and the height is over 14,000 feet high in disorderly mountain country. Even so routes had been found for yak or camel convoys through these mountains in earlier centuries with journey times calculated in weeks rather than days. At the western end of the ranges in what is now Pakistan, the Karakoram Highway passes through Gilgit to the Khunjerab Pass with its own ancient caravan tracks at a greater height than the Natu La.

Discovery and exploration was already an active pursuit a thousand years and more ago. Intellectual curiosity and the spread of new ideas, particularly concerning religions, increased the drive. In the Ming Dynasty in the late 14th century, China had fine fleets which explored as far as East Africa, but there was little chance of trading opportunity as their own culture was so far ahead of other races. The skills of European sailors were increasing greatly from the 15th century. There were many advantages to exploration by sea which Europeans were to pursue. Travel by sea was quicker than by land. Organised and self supporting groups could move together and the freedom of the open seas allowed them choice of route and destination. Though the pace of development was slower, the developments in sea transport brought changes as dramatic as those in air transport in the last 60 years. Their effect on world trade and travel was to produce unforeseeable results. Although the Egyptians had worked out the dimensions of the world centuries before, European explorers of the oceans who knew of China from overland travellers from early times had assumed a world smaller than reality, in which China could be reached perhaps more easily by going west than by going east. It was a surprise to find the Americas in the way. The West Indies were found on the way and so named on the assumption that proceeding west from them would soon take one to the Eastern variety. It soon became apparent that sailing from the Atlantic to other oceans involved passing turbulent waters either round the Cape of Good Hope or Cape Horn. In the first instance it was the Portuguese, to the east and the Spanish to the west who turned successes into commerce or victory. For Portugal Vasco da Gama reached the port of Calicut on the west coast of India around 1499 and called there again in 1502 in what is described as a voyage of plunder and destruction rather than of exploration. Meanwhile Christopher Columbus, in the pay of Spain, located South America. Spain and Portugal protected their interest east and west with formidable fleets. In 1567 Francis Drake took an alternative commercial opportunity on a pirate voyage to the new Spanish territories. He sailed round the world in 1580. Between 1500, when Cabot sailed from Bristol to Nova Scotia, and 1600 both England and Holland expended energy in trying to discover practicable passages to the Pacific east-about to the north of Russia or west-about north of Canada. They failed and it was not until the naval superiority of Spain and Portugal started to wane that others were able to build up their trade with the East Indies.

By the year 1600 Dutch Merchants had obtained a near monopoly of trade to the East Indies and were demanding outrageous prices for pepper and other spices. In the years to come, eight European countries formed their own incorporated Companies for exploiting the trade with all countries lying beyond the Cape of Good Hope and the Straits of Magellan. There was not yet a collective name for what is now India so it and the islands were covered by the name 'East Indies'. It was Queen Elizabeth I who applied to Akbar the outstanding Moghul Emperor for 'liberties for an English Trading Company'. In 1609 Captain William Hawkins visited the Emperor Jehangir in Agra and was well received, a permit being granted for a factory in Surat north of Bombay and in 1615 Sir Thomas Roe became the first Ambassador to the Moghul Court. Disputes with the Dutch continued, ending in tacit agreement that the English Company should restrict operations to India and surrounding countries. Dockyards in Deptford for two centuries produced 'East Indiamen', ships which were pre-eminent for two centuries amongst the merchant vessels of the world. A major change in the charter of the Company was made late in the 17th century under King Charles II. Rights were given to the Company 'To acquire territory, coin money, command fortresses and troops, to form alliances, make war and peace and exercise both civil and military jurisdiction.' Such terms seem strange but the need arose because Southern India had become practically independent of Delhi early in the century and no authoritative government existed. Trading companies were too much at the mercy of the whims of local princes. The French were the first to take on native Indians to guard their factories and carry out military duties. The English followed suit, both having found that the loss of life of Europeans from disease was excessive. Thus the seeds of an Indian Army were sown. The 1688-1815 France/England conflict in Europe led to similar strife in India. The developments of the next 50 years are less important than the outcome which brought English supremacy and well developed Indian units.

It was around this point in my research that I started to re-read a treasured book on the history of the Indian Army. I was soon to recognise that a book read to answer a particular question brings into strong focus particular parts of the story to replace the broad blur of a general reader. It is very rewarding. I will give some key points of the story which provide stepping stones to the creation of the strong bonds of friendship experienced today.

It is recorded that in February 1759 a French officer, Lally de Tollendal wrote 'You would be surprised at the difference between the black troops of the English and ours ..... Theirs will even venture to attack white troops, while ours will not even look at their black ones.' A number of reasons are put forward for this difference. First of all, the earlier advice of the Duke of Marlborough about the treatment of his soldiers was respected. 'Take care to feed him well, to pay him regularly, work him hard and keep him under the strictest discipline. Cherish a genial feeling for the men and obey strict injunctions to watch over their comfort. Acts of personal kindness kindly bestowed bring their reward.' It is then suggested that, compared with the French, the English social system produced a higher proportion of officers at Company and Battalion level - men with a strong sense of devotion to their men who combined personal initiative with disciplined obedience to a commander. Many seemed to be Huguenots. (My Huguenot Grandmother would have been proud to know this!) Finally it was important to have the greater continuity of policy. The English Company was in a much stronger position than the French. English attention to Indian affairs was continuous, while a French Government's could only be intermittent. Some feeling of permanence, some consistency between past and future is essential to a soldier's needs; he must feel that what he dies for will not end with his death.

There is much in this story which carries a permanent message:

· Government must demand and support the search for and encourage the practice of ever improving methods.

· Foresight, imagination and experiment must be a continuous process in the Forces. This requires thought on how to win battles as well as technical advances.

· Training must be up to date and demanding in teaching new as well as relevant old techniques. We failed in this in the UK before 1939.

· At all levels fair treatment and well considered inter-relationships play an important part. Confidence between all ranks and within all ranks is the aim.

THE RESERVIST WITH THE REGULAR ARMY

by Maj E.M. Blyth TD

The experiences that can be gained through service with the Territorial Army and the Regular Army are varied, exciting, numerous and rewarding. This is one of the fundamental reasons for personnel enlisting with the armed forces. However, occasionally it is worth reflecting on the cross-over between part-time and regular service and the rewards and challenges that result from this.

Certain issues which are highlighted as a young officer, both personally and as a young commander, require attention. The allocation of postings for both TA and Reservists when serving with the Regular Army can be at best a lottery and at worst an almost deliberate misuse of trade skills on a wide scale. This is best seen in the use of soldiers in the Bosnian theatre of operations. The trawl for Royal Signals operators of all trades from the TA was well answered for soldiers to serve on Op Lodestar. Significantly, many operators were employed out of role. This is not what they had volunteered to do. Many soldiers freely admitted that they would not have volunteered had they been aware of what they were to be doing. This allocation of employment appeared to be endemic throughout many cap-badges with only a minimal regard for either utilising or improving the trade skills of personnel. The overwhelming majority of volunteers do so because they wish to improve both their trade skills and promotion prospects. This situation may have changed and it is understandable as to why it happened. The simple ploy of telling soldiers they will be employed in trade prior to deployment and then placing them elsewhere appears to have been used on an indiscriminate basis. Being commissioned it is perhaps easier to argue one's way to a more exciting posting but for many junior soldiers under command this is not the case. This can leave a bitter taste over service with the Regular Army. A simple case of 'them' and 'us'. That TA soldiers may take time to reach the level of their Regular counterparts is not in question but that their experience can be given little credence is unacceptable and, although not policy, is fact.

A secondary problem that faces soldiers serving with the Regular Army is that of pay. Not with regard to scales but as to whether, or not, they actually receive it. I believe it is worthy of note that many TA and Reservists were not paid for several months and this resulted with families having financial difficulties back in the UK. If this was to be the case for several isolated soldiers then it is understandable that several could slip through the net. This has also been compounded by flaws with pay upon return to service with the TA. Soldiers expect to be paid when they have worked and this is a just entitlement. When the system lets them down for five months because they are still on the books as regular soldiers this surely amounts to a serious oversight.

The vast majority of TA soldiers who do serve with the Regular Army have an immensely rewarding experience and take back new skills and increased confidence in their trades. The currently trumpeted crossover method between the Regular and part-time soldiers is Full Time Reserve Service (FTRS). The theory being that TA soldiers volunteer to fill a post that is not currently held by a Regular counterpart. This is sound in theory but again, perhaps like trawls for Bosnia, the reality can be somewhat different but for more mundane reasons. Many TA soldiers who apply are failing simple dental checks and thus being declined for service. Many of those who apply for FTRS are unemployed or underachieving financially in the civilian world. Therefore the expense of visiting a dentist to have a check-up or have treatment carried out that is required and not available on the NHS is an extreme financial burden. This simple technicality can, and has, precluded soldiers from furthering their military ambitions at a stroke. When the new mobilisation centre at Chilwell becomes operational all TA and Reservist personnel will pass through on a two week mobilisation prior to deployment to the field army. A medical examination will be carried out and this will include a dental inspection. With dentists in situ surely a greater use of their talents would be to allow them the opportunity to repair any dental damage of volunteers. For the DDA to operate a simple pass/fail system is understandable but potentially churlish as many good soldiers with straightforward problems could be treated there.

The time delay between application for and acknowledgement is considerable, four weeks for many. This closely followed, or not dependent on perspective, by a delay of a further eight weeks before any contact is unacceptable in the civilian workplace. In the civilian environment one expects to hear on applying for employment whether, or not, you have the job within four weeks. This allows people to make whatever arrangements are necessary with regard to current employers, family and any financial settlements that need to be made. The seeming lack of concrete decisions and excruciating time-scale deters many potential volunteers from signing up for FTRS. Although once the wheels are in motion the system moves along relatively smoothly.

The introduction of the Reserve Forces Act, 1996 (RFA 96) has given the government of the day a simpler method of calling out the Territorial Army in times of crisis. The apparent reluctance of the government to take decisive action and put the system into operation can be seen as an unshakeable belief that even post SDR the Regular Army does not suffer from over-stretch. This is blatantly not the case. What is the current time between unaccompanied operational tours for soldiers in the Royal Signals? Is this sufficient time to allow soldiers and their families to enjoy a semblance of normal family life? The overwhelming majority of TA personnel are willing to volunteer and do their operational tours but if there is to be a bureaucratic quagmire to wade through this pool of personnel is going to decrease and the reasoning is clear. If TA personnel do volunteer for active service the simple knowledge that when they apply for a posting they are informed within a reasonable timeframe of the result of their application must be a prime consideration. When they deploy to the field army they must know that they are being paid and that when they leave they are not going to have to hound their clerks for back-pay. These two simple tasks carried out correctly would ensure a continuing stream of volunteers. A secondary outcome is that TA personnel who have enjoyed their experiences will relate them to their colleagues and encourage them to join the armed forces either part-time or regular. This, surely, is what everyone seeks to achieve from a cross-over between the part-time and full-time soldier and the benefits that it can and does bring.

THE STRATEGIC DEFENCE REVIEW (SDR) AND TA RESTRUCTURING ANYTHING NEW FOR 35 SIGNAL REGIMENT (V)? NOT REALLY!

by Maj Tudor Hill (Training Major 35 Signal Regiment (V)

INTRODUCTION

When the Defence Secretary, George Robertson, announced the results of the Strategic Defence Review the Regular Army were happier with this paper than its immediate budget-driven predecessors. Its attempt to develop the Armed Forces in line with Foreign and Defence Policy was applauded in military circles who felt that, this time, it is change for the better. But what of the TA? The frenetic lobbying against the swingeing cuts in TA manpower suggests otherwise. The TA may even be forgiven for maintaining that governments and the Regular Army are no closer to really understanding this sibling institution.

Even so, George Robertson announced the 'One Army Concept'; a more deployable, better trained and better equipped TA ready to support a Regular Army which simply cannot meet its manpower commitments. On the face of it, the TA would be entering a totally new ball game. However, having had time to draw breath and look at some of the implications for 35 Signal Regiment (V) I see little that the TA has not had to deal with before and remain to be convinced of the relevance of the 'One Army Concept'. To add substance to that last assertion I will look at the major effects on this Unit as a result of SDR/TA Restructuring: the move of RHQ and HQ Sqn to Coventry, the loss of permanent staff and finally, the alterations to the way the TA trains which were designed to make the join between Territorial and Regular Armies seamless i.e: the Reserve Forces Act 1996, TRIT and the new Individual Training Directives (Army) (ITD(A)).

THE MOVE TO COVENTRY

Canley Road TA Centre was the home of the BHQ and HQ Company of 5 RRF (V) who - under TA Restructuring - were reduced to company strength to form part of the new West Midlands Regiment. It was announced that 35 Signal Regiment (V) would become resident there despite some compelling arguments: unbalanced command distances between RHQ and its field squadrons, insufficient real estate for the HQ Squadron of a Ptarmigan equipped Signals Regiment, diluting the strong links with the City of Birmingham and having to share the same recruiting pool as 37 Signal Regiment (V). However, Canley Road TA Centre is a new build and probably more cost effective in the medium to long term and therefore, it is not difficult to see that the Regiment's case was lost. Indeed, the fact that the Regiment survived a similar move from Stoney Lane, Birmingham to its current location in Sutton Coldfield in 1983 probably sealed its fate. So, nothing new there.

LOSS OF PERMANENT STAFF

When the new TA establishments were finally announced at the end of April this year, this Regiment had to come to terms with the loss of roughly 40% of its regular soldiers and 20% of its civilian staff. The deliberations about the civilian staff are ongoing, however, there was a major question mark about achieving a balance between training the TA and maintaining the Regiment's Ptarmigan fleet. Now while these lower levels of Permanent Staff manning are nothing new for the TA, it is accepted that the previous higher levels were there to keep the Ptarmigan equipment on the road; contrary to rumour, the TA soldier is not driven by long hours of maintenance and the TA pay budget does not provide for equipment maintenance! Therefore, this change is new and presents a challenge which the Regiment takes very seriously. To meet this challenge, the Regiment has rationalised what it can maintain for training purposes, sought to place the remainder into light care and preservation at CVD Ashchurch and restructured the Regiment in terms of its permanent staff and equipment accordingly.

INDIVIDUAL TRAINING AND SUPPORT TO OPERATIONS

The final area of change to be considered is that of the various studies and acts that have been introduced around SDR/TA Restructuring, but which all support the 'One Army Concept'. They being: RSTRIT, ITD(A)s and RFA 96.

RSTRIT - RSTRIT was commissioned to restructure the Corps to meet the challenges of 'Digitisation' and winning the 'Information Battle' for a commander. It takes the realities of TA life into account i.e. there is not the time to train to the same breadth and depth as for regular signallers. Therefore, TA Royal Signals trades will diverge in that the narrower scope of the trade will be recognised in the title e.g: Area SysOp (RR/Trunk). This emphasises the differences between TA and their Regular Royal Signals counterparts.

ITD(A)s - In this area the regular chain of command has good intentions. ITD(A)s, and in particular the TA CFT and annual weapon training requirements, do take into account the ever increasing demands on training time. The TA CFT is now only four miles in an hour with no scheduled pre-event preparation for the trained TA soldier. Additionally, TA Royal Signals need only achieve Grouping and Zeroing for Bounty and Fitness For Role (FFR) purposes. However, ITD(A) 2 (Fitness Training) and TA Regulations still differ as to the standards to be achieved i.e. ITDs say a pass is required whereas TA Regulations stipulate an 'attempt' only for TA CFT. Furthermore, the G2 (Sy) world insist that if soldiers are to act as gate guards, and they are required to do so, they must pass an APWT annually!

Reserve Forces Act 1996 (RFA 96) - RFA 96 was designed to make the TA more deployable and, for the first time, mentioned call out for operations in support of humanitarian disasters. It is difficult to gauge the effect - if any - this new Act has on the deployability of the TA as it is uncertain how private sector businesses would respond to their TA employees being called out for anything short of a National emergency. Certainly, filling Regular Army gaps is nothing new; you only have to go back to the Gulf War to see that infantry and medical reservists were used extensively without the need for call out of the TA. In that respect, this Unit is no different. In recent times, the Regiment has supported operations in Cyprus, the Falkland Islands, Bosnia and Macedonia.

SUMMARY

The current changes to the TA are unsettling and in some areas deeply distressing. That said, as far as 35 Signal Regiment (V) is concerned, with the exception of the additional maintenance burden due to the loss of manpower (and this affects the permanent staff primarily), they are nothing new. The RHQ and HQ Squadron have been moved around before, TA soldiers have filled the gaps in support of operations and the chain of command has always had to contend with the conflicting messages from TA Regulations. So what of the 'One Army Concept'? The real acid test - the use of compulsory call out for the TA via RFA 96 - has yet to be attempted and I suggest it would be a brave government that would be prepared to take that option even for a 'humanitarian disaster' such as that taking place in Kosovo. It appears that while Royal Signals is gearing itself up for meeting the technical challenges of the future through greater levels of training for its soldiers, the TA can only meet this change through modified trade names and clearer channels of communication with its regular counterparts. These assertions should not be taken to be in any way disparaging about TA Royal Signals ability to promote the 'One Army Concept'. It is simply a case of the TA soldier having a finite amount of time for training. I am a firm believer in the principles of the TA and am in no doubt that it will continue to flourish in spite of the well-meaning SDR.

90 DAYS IN MACEDONIA

by Maj A. H. Campbell-Black

INTRODUCTION

On warning for deployment to Kosovo there was the obvious requirement for passing secure data between our Headquarters in Osnabrück and HQ ARRC, PJHQ and HQ Land. It was not until Land CSS was installed in the Headquarters that this link was stable enough to cope with the requisite passage of information. Although Brent lines had been installed in some of the barracks of Units on the JRRF there were other Units warned which did not have a secure link other than through signal message. In addition, the lack of reliability in passing secret material between CASH and Land CSS exacerbated the situation. The only way of passing data was through the COMCEN. Had it not been for the Ptarminet life could have been extremely awkward.

SKOPJE DAYS

On deploying to Macedonia it was clear that the Reconnaissance Group would not deploy with any armour at all but would need to be able to take the elements under command at some time in the future. It therefore comprised 13 Landrovers, of which nine were fitted for radio, one was a GS and three were rebroadcast stations.

The Reconnaissance Group needed to liaise closely with the organisations that were in theatre and, therefore, all but three of the FFR Landrovers were used as 'runarounds'. The operators established communications in the Hotel Panorama in Skopje and had to work long hours to cope with the transport details and the communications requirements. The situation was eased slightly as all the Brigade nets were not initially established and the staff cells were provided with communications using a daisy chain of RCUs on just three nets. This helped to reduce the manpower bill for monitoring nets and gave enough flexibility to cope with the driving, but only just. Local PTT lines were important to liaise with both the NSE and the other organisations in theatre such as the KVM and the OSCE. Early on it was recognised that there was a requirement to have an insecure VET guard net because so many Units were dispersed across SKOPJE. Burma Company of the Kings Own Royal Border Regiment on Operation Upminster had already established a net and initially this was hijacked as a Force Guard net. In addition, the Brigade net was opened and an HF Guard net. The VHF net and the I-IF net were then used as the primary insecure voice for MEDEVAC. Once the King's Royal Hussars arrived in Krivolak, the communications were extended down the country by the use of a chain of radio rebroadcast stations: a mixture of the four additional rebroadcast stations provided by 3rd Division Headquarters and Signal Regiment and the three in the Squadron. The soldiers were accommodated in three different sites in Skopje and accommodation management was a top priority.

Initial communications with the OSCE in Kumanovo were on local PTT lines and 30th Signal Regiment lent us three Motorola STU IIB for secure communications on PTT lines. The mobile phones that were procured in country provided a back up insecure means. Gateways into all systems such as IVSN, Patron, Euromux and ATN were an essential way of navigating around systems that were less than robust and this appeared to add a degree of redundancy. STU IIB on PTT fines gave us secure communications with USOTF, the Extraction Force HQ and PJHQ. Ptarmigan was available and even the dialek-like Brahms was used to ensure a secure line with the KRH Advance Group in another hotel in SKOPJE. Internally the use of registered laptops offered the primary means for data manipulation and an ATacCS LAN (five terminals) was used to pass data between the staff cells. All the equipment for the build of the Headquarters in the Hotel Panorama in SKOPJE was brought in by pallet and then transported to the Hotel in a 4 tonne. HQ NSE was allocated real estate in the room next to us in the Hotel and thus the facilities offered by the 501 detachment (two Patron fines, a Ptarmigan satellite bridge, Land CSS, ASMA, CUTG and point-to-point fax) were shared between the two HQ. Although on the communications side this limited each HQ to eight Ptarmigan fines and presented only one Patron line to each, the close co-ordination of the two staffs more than compensated for this shortfall. The circuits being anchored by the 501 detachment were not quickly established and it took considerable time to engineer both the Land CSS and the Point to Point fax. This was partly due to equipment failures, partly to the time taken to configure the tails with the various agencies in the UK and partly to engineer the power balancing on the satellite as some ten SATCOM detachments were trying to configure at the same time.

The shortfall of vehicles that had been highlighted during Ex Ulan Eagle the previous October helped us to put the DOAST and FET together relatively quickly. The augmented vehicles, however, did not materialise until some 12 hours prior to the last ship sailing and then some were provided in such a poor state of repair that they had to be towed to the port. Not all had had a thorough out-inspection and in most cases they came without drivers. To put two of these vehicles back on the road took major work from the LAD and was an unwelcome additional workload but still better than having no vehicles at all.

We had stripped out the vehicles for the Alternate Headquarters and had taken the precaution of loading a container with 24 palettes of communications equipment to build a HQ in a static location. It was originally envisaged that this would be in Pristina although the lift of the equipment forward would still have been an issue. After two weeks in Skopje the remaining staff began to arrive and it became clear that the site was becoming too crowded. The HQ moved south and the 24 palettes of equipment were used to establish a static HQ next to the main supply route in the Hotel Makedonija.

VELES DAYS

As we settled into the Hotel Makedonija the rest of the Brigade staff joined us and the Headquarters blossomed. Additional staff cells included a large Media Ops cell, CIMIC, Legal and POLAD, an STA team from 12 AD Regt and our own intelligence section. HQ KFOR gave us a divisional slice of their WAN, that is, a hub, server and five staff user terminals. These were laid out in the HQ giving terminals to G3 Ops, Media, the ARRC LO, G2 and keeping one as a common user terminal. A LAN was put in place to provide the staff with the ability to transfer data internally and this was expanded to cope with the demand from the additional users to a network of some 14 users. It was also pushed down to Battlegroups to allow them to transfer data using a dial-up facility. Early on it was decided that the LAN would not be connected to the ARRC WAN to avoid the transfer of viruses. This was just as well as Melissa appeared on the WAN in the second month of the tour. As it was there were over 550 viruses that had to be destroyed once the latest version of Sophos had been installed. The authority for connection to the NATO Cronos system was slow as a multi-cultural mandarin in Brussels was concerned that all NATO's secrets were about to be hoovered up by the UK. Authority was eventually forthcoming and the RSST team provided expert advice on the connectivity until our augmentees from 3rd United Kingdom Division Headquarters and Signal Regiment arrived.

PETROVAC DAYS

After two weeks and a 48 hour Exercise on Krivolak Training Area to practise the move North into Pristina, the air campaign kicked off and the Headquarters moved up onto a training area to the East of Petrovac airfield a green-field site. Initially there were no strategic communications. The SATCOM detachment that was located in VELES remained to provide the links for HQ NSE. SATCOM Detachment LINE came up from HQ KFOR at the Shoe Factory in Skopje to join us. It took some time to engineer the circuits again because LINE was the last detachment to leave Bramcote and subsequently did not have all the terminal equipment. The Ptarmigan fines also took time to come in and the initial sites were unworkable. The trunk network was working as a chain rather than an area network and during this phase whenever a link was broken the community would be fragmented. This caused a deal of frustration for the staff but the situation could not be improved until additional manpower and equipment arrived to bolster 1st Signal Brigade's minimal numbers in-country - This was a direct result of NATO manpower capping pending an ACTORD.

The Headquarters continued to grow and after a few weeks under the stars and cam nets it became clear that the Penthouse option was too tight and the large planning tent was erected. Spring brought the rains and after a couple of downpours of rain and swilling around in the mud it was obvious that the situation had to be improved. Another move was the solution. The cookhouse was moved onto hard standing and hardcore was put down around the site. The Headquarters was moved 25 metres to the next area of hard-standing. The Pioneers helped erect wire and the Sappers provided engineer support to enhance the site. As more and more cells appeared in the Headquarters the demands for tables, chairs, tents and cam nets swelled to well over double our normal peacetime holdings. The Headquarters resembled a Divisional MAIN HQ. Additional assets continued to arrive and included 226 Signal Squadron Group (EW) and MI Detachment, a Strategic Intelligence cell, an EOD Troop, TACISYS and TACIPRINT, a Force HUMINT Team, 15 UK Information Support Group and a SAXON to provide ADCIS. Slots were also held open for representatives from 'D' Squadron HCR and 'A' Squadron of Lord Strathcona's Horse (Royal Canadian), a Canadian Reconnaissance Squadron. To furnish all these cells with Ptarmigan both SAS(MC) were required. One was set up as the normal MAIN HQ community and the second one provided the subsets and fines for the additional cells.

Planning continued unabated and CONPLANs for different situations were worked up as the corresponding CONPLAN from HQ KFOR was received in the Headquarters. Our period of grace from visitors appeared to be over and a stream almost developed into a torrent until caveats were placed on our erstwhile colleagues from UK and Germany. Once the Headquarters settled down in the location on the Petrovac Training Area(PTA) the communications attention switched to establishing PTT fines to the other green-field sites in Macedonia, connecting to the internet, gaining access to LOCE and the development of a valuable training programme.

Technically the greatest problems were keeping the less robust strategic suite of communications on the road and trying to acquire enough frequencies in Macedonia. The ageing 430 series fleet had also kept the Squadron busy and had guaranteed that the LAD had not been bored. Clansman had also shown its age with an average of 10% of the equipment being out of use at any time. The AtacCS repair chain had been tortuously slow and the number of available terminals had reduced more quickly than the sets could be sent back to UK for repair and then returned.

At the time of writing the Signal Squadron was coping with the influx of 5 AB Bde and elements of the UK SHF, as well as keeping a watchful eye on the arrival of an Advance Party from Headquarters 3rd United Kingdom Division. The Military Technical Agreement to enter Kosovo seemed to be a few days away and both the Brigade Commander and CONIKFOR were in close discussions with the Yugoslav Army in no-man's land between Kosovo and FYROM. There was a mood of optimism that a deal would be struck in a few days time.

SANDY BAIN
CAITHNESS ELECTRICAL GENIUS

When Sandy Bain returned to Scotland from the USA in the late 1860's, the Caithness clockmaker found that the capital now had an electric time gun which fired automatically at one o'clock.

Sandy had been born in Watten in 1810. After leaving school he had been taken on as an apprentice watchmaker by John Sellar who's premises were at Stafford Place in Wick. After attending a lecture on electricity at Thurso, the young clockmaker became so fascinated by the subject that he began carrying out his own experiments. In 1837 Sandy decided to leave Caithness and look for a job in London. Earning his living during the day as a journeyman clockmaker, he spent his spare time constructing an electric clock and a telegraph receiver which would print out incoming messages.

Within a year Sandy had produced working models of the clock and the receiver. Needing money to perfect his inventions , he showed his models to the editor of the 'Mechanics Magazine'. Mr Baddeley introduced Sandy to Professor Wheatstone, one of the many scientists who were carrying out experiments to improve the electric telegraph. Realising the importance of Sandy's inventions, the professor commissioned him to build two models of the telegraphic printer. Promising to pay the watchmaker £150 for the models, the professor also guaranteed to compensate Sandy for his time and to pay for the materials. The scientist advised Sandy to suspend his electrical experiments and keep the results to himself. Suspicious of his motives, the clockmaker ignored the professor's advice. Sandy's instincts proved to be correct as he received just five pounds for the work he had carried out. In November 1840 Professor Wheatstone exhibited an electric clock which he claimed he had invented at the Royal Society of London. To establish the fact that the clock was his invention, Sandy sent details of it's construction to the editor of the 'John o' Groat Journal'. He also exhibited his clock at the Polytechnic Institution in March 1841 and laid claim to his invention with the Inventor's Advocate.

Deciding to move to Edinburgh, the thirty four year old inventor opened a shop specialsing in electric-clocks at 11 Hanover Street, just off Princes Street. Seeing that there would come a time when public clocks in towns and cities would receive Greenwich mean time by electric telegraph, Sandy continued with his experiments. Edinburgh clockmaker Frederick James Ritchie had the same idea, and like Sandy was experimenting with the transmission of time by electricity.

In 1846 banker John Hewat suggested to the city authorities that the capital should have a time signal so that captains of ships lying in the Firth of Forth could set their chronometers accurately. That same year Sandy decided to leave Scotland and try his luck in the United States. Six years later, due to John Hewat's efforts, a time-ball was erected on the top of Nelson's Monument which stood on the capital's Calton Hill. The time-ball's mechanism was connected to the Calton Hill Observatory's electric clock which had been designed on the experiments carried out by Sandy Bain and Frederick James Ritchie. The time-ball was designed to drop at one o'clock when it's mechanism was triggered by a signal sent along underground wires running from the observatory's clock. The time service proved to be a winner and the city authorities decided that the ball should be backed up by an audible signal.

In 1861 the Army supplied the city with a gun. A clock was placed next to the time gun on the Castle's Half Moon Battery and connected by the Royal Engineers to the observatory via the Monument by a 4,000 foot electric wire which hung over the city. Except on public holidays and Sundays the time-gun was fired daily by two Royal Artillery gunners. At 12.55 a.m. one of the blue uniformed artillerymen supervised by the Castle's Master Gunner loaded the gun. The gunner then attached a chain which was hooked to the gun's fuse and to a weight inside the clock.

On the stroke of one, the time was sent across the wire from the observatory to the gun's clock. The weight dropped pulling the chain. The pin was jerked from the fuse which ignited and set off the charge. Although the present District Gunner, SSgt Tom McKay MBE no longer depends on the observatory's clock for the exact time, the 'One o'clock Gun' still fires daily. As you watch 'Tom the Gun' firing his howitzer on television to signal the arrival of the year 2000, take the time to raise your glass to Sandy Bain the inventor of the electric clock.

'FINGS AIN'T WOT THEY USED TO BE.....'

by Maj C. J. Thackray

In March 1984, fresh from my CQ Course (the last ever, incidentally), I reported for duty at 22 Signal Regiment. I was 20 years old. Pausing merely to complete 'The Lippstadt Marches' which seemed to involve walking a kilometre, drinking a keg of beer, and then repeating the same process ten times, I was driven out to join the Regiment on Exercise. The Exercise was known as Wintex, and, though I didn't know it, was the first in an annual series of Corps-level CPX, which would work up, through Ex Summer Sales and beyond, the skills of the 1 (BR) Corps staffs, their communicators and their flanking and subordinate HQs. A programme of FTX was simultaneously underway, which would, since 1984 was a special year, culminate in Ex Lionheart, an Exercise so gigantically enormous as to be unrepeatable until Sadaam Hussein insisted otherwise in 1991. I spent most of that summer on Exercise: never too far away from Churchill Barracks that I couldn't nip back for a shower every now and then, admittedly, and always the same thing: Cpl Strefford's team would be setting up, whilst, 20kms or so away, Cpl Wilson's team would be tearing down. I had a whole troop of Linemen, and grandly emblazoned the front of my Land Rover 'Commander, Rear Corps Line'.

Now and again, when I was allowed to pick up a telephone (and on the rare occasions when the BRUIN circuits were working) I would speak to my compatriots posted to the sharp end: night-manning the CPs at divisional COMMCENs, or even - wow! - Brigade HQs. If anything, their lives were even more exacting and exciting than my own: it turned out that each Brigade COS would insist on Exercising his staff before going out with the Brigadier, and when the Brigades had reached the required standard, the divisional staffs would be put through their paces. Finally, the GOCs of each division would hold their own enormous bean-feasts, and, ultimately, they would Exercise alongside us. I would occasionally try and speak to friends posted to units in the Rear Combat Zone, or even the Communications Zone, but their communications depended, if memory serves, on something called the troposphere, and were even less reliable than ours. Anyway, they apparently all worked for a General called Bagnall, who had a HQ of some sort in Rheindahlen. My head began to spin as they tried to explain the command relationships which existed at these rarefied levels, and I would hang up and wander back to the line wagon, where I would find my soldiers engaged in a card game which I now know as 'Chase the Lady', but which they called something else entirely. Each night I would tuck myself into bed, happy in the knowledge that I had spent another day keeping Western Europe safe from Communism. I knew that I was doing exactly what my predecessors had done some ten years before, just as theirs had before them, and thought that's just as it should be when you were part of the best army in NATO and therefore the universe.

In December 1995, fatter, balder, with a heavily-pregnant wife, two dogs, a cat and (amazing but true) less disposable income than I had enjoyed eleven years earlier, I reported for duty at Hohne, to take up my appointment as DCOS 7th Armoured Brigade. I had not served in Germany since leaving Lippstadt. My arrival with the Desert Rats coincided with the beginning of a great experiment: in the 1st Armoured Division, instead of training opportunities being divided piecemeal amongst the three Armoured Brigades every year, each Brigade (ours first) would take it in turns to enjoy a 'Training Year', when the full panoply of Divisional resources would be thrown at it, in order to turn it into the fiercest, finest, fittest and most capable formation that the staff of the charging rhino had ever seen. Another Brigade, completing its 'Operational Year', would go off and do all those itsy-bitsy not-quite-warfighting things which LAND Command would insist upon (IFOR was then the flavour of the moment). The third Brigade, poor sods, would be known as 'Training Support', with the unenviable task of following us around Sennelager for a year emptying our portaloos and the like.

I couldn't wait to get started: not only had I - unlike the vast majority of my peers - managed to avoid the dubious pleasures of life in Main Building and very occasionally at home in Kingston-on-Thames, but I was about to be trained as I'd never been trained before. Truly, by the end of my tour - which, due to entirely unrelated events, the gods had decided would be some two years and eight months in duration instead of the normal twenty-four months - I would have reached a peak of battle-readiness never before witnessed in the profession of arms. The British Army of the late 1990s, I'd been told, was not only more technologically capable than that of the early 1980s, but had, for the first time in its illustrious history, developed for itself a doctrine with which it felt at ease. In addition, it had so reorganised the way it funded its activities as to ensure that resources need only be thought about before they were delivered, steaming, on a silver platter.

I enjoyed an extraordinary, amazing and truly satisfying thirty-two months with 7 Armoured Brigade. Looking back on it now, almost a year since leaving, I worked with and for some of the most capable people I'm ever likely to meet, in this career or any other, and the places we went! Christmas 1995 over, and firstborn son safely delivered, I packed my Staff Officers' Handbook and headed for Hannover Airport. By the time Christmas 1996 came along, HQ 7 Armoured Brigade had set out its stall in Poland, Atlanta, BATUS, Ladysmith, Kuwait, BATUS again, Grafenwhor, Sennelager (far too often), and finally - in the first armoured formation-level FTX conducted by the British Army since 1990 - Poland again. As we celebrated the New Year, I looked back with fondness on the six months I'd spent away from home. I then kissed my wife (pregnant again) and noisy toddler goodbye, and set off for Banja Luka. Another year went by. This time, I managed to spend only four months of it at home. By the time the team of lowly paid vandals from Whittle's Movers arrived at Hoppenstedter Strasse, and as I loaded wife (thankfully not pregnant), two sons, one dog and no cat into the people-mover, I reflected on a tour during which I'd spent fully 50% of the time available either on operations or training. Best job I've ever done, I thought (until I started this one, of course).

So, was I trained? Had the formulaic, GDP-orientated, reactive, befehlstactic world of 1 (BR) Corps been replaced, revamped and improved by the capability-driven, doctrinally sound post-Options Army?

You're all professionals, reading this. You know the answer, don't you? Of course we're no better than we were. If anything I would consider myself (having, don't forget, been the beneficiary of arguably the most complete and progressive collective training package the British Army of the late 1990s had to offer) less proficient in the planning and execution of war-fighting tactics and techniques than my predecessors of the 1980s. Not just me: I would apply the same criteria to my fellow staff officers, our clerks, and particularly our long-suffering Signallers. Hugely capable people, all of them, but lacking proficiency in their most demanding role. Why?

Consider this, I've already described the unparalleled training opportunities offered to me whilst I was with 7th Armoured Brigade. Despite these opportunities, during the period December 1995 to August 1998, I deployed in the vehicles which would take me to war, and reported to my parent formation, over the radios I would use in such a war, once only. I deployed in these same vehicles, with these same signallers, but without my parent formation, on two other occasions - in almost three years. When practising one's primary role so infrequently, certain things become inevitable:

1. When more than 50% of personnel in any organisation turn over between training opportunities, it is impossible to develop and improve procedures. There is simply not enough experience remaining in order to pass on lessons learnt. Instead, therefore, the same lessons are re-learnt every time. PXR after PXR point out the same things, but by the time the next similar set of circumstances come round, they've long been consigned to File 13.
2. Low-level skills - the kind that our predecessors considered to be so basic as to be hardly worth listing under 'Exercise Aims and Objectives' - are now beyond us, or considered so difficult that we congratulate ourselves if we manage to display them to any degree before ENDEX. Administration in the field, light discipline and vehicle camouflage and concealment, to select just three examples, are woeful when compared to the standards set ten or fifteen years before.
3. Core functions are performed more deliberately and less effectively. Change of control, for example, would take place every twelve hours or so (at most) between Brigade Main and Step-Up/Alternate HQs in the bad old days. By the end of our Polish FTX, we could just about hit a move every 24 hours or so (we could have moved more frequently, but would have virtually sacrificed all planning capability to do so). By the time we next had the opportunity to practice this, some nineteen months later, the expertise had vanished to the four winds, and it was all we could manage to change control every thirty-six hours and still call ourselves effective. Had we been any better, and wished to move more frequently, it would have made little difference: the locations to move into didn't exist, or were occupied by someone else. Some 70% or so of these locations were peacetime barracks locations, by the way, which don't really do that much for the recce/siting skills of signal squadron 21Cs, or the navigation skills of anyone else. I firmly believe that we were slicker in COMMHEAD NOVEMBER when we moved - and that towed a 200-strong Officers' Mess behind it.
4. Bad habits become unavoidable. We preach mission command, and attempt to convince ourselves that we allow subordinates freedom of action, but if you're the Brigade Commander (or COS), and you're only allowed to play with your entire train set once a year, then it's difficult to avoid the temptation to over control. This, of course, manifests itself in a Brigade Command Net which is rarely - if ever - silent once EMCON measures have been lifted. The large electronic arrow hovering above formation HQs and pointing downward would have been immediately obvious to EW assets in the 1980s. Unfortunately, our EW experts can usually, these days, plead a more pressing engagement down the road.

Some readers might opine that their experiences are far different, and that in their view standards are as high or higher now than ever in the past. I hope so: I consider myself a professional soldier, and it brings me no satisfaction to come to the conclusion that we are not as professional as once we were. There might be those turning puce and spitting out the word 'leadership!' To them, I would merely point out that the Army tends not to send its idiots to its only Armoured Division. I have never met more inspiring leaders, more effective staff officers, and more capable signallers than I did when serving with the Desert Rats, but there's a limit to what can be achieved when the opportunities to improve aren't provided. There'll also be some who'll agree with what I've said but murmur 'under-manning', and look with hope towards the horizon, when (by 2007, we're told), AG's HR Strategy will see us fully manned, and over-stretch will be merely an unpleasant memory. It won't make a blind bit of difference. All the difficulties I list above wouldn't have changed one jot if we'd had full manning (as a matter of fact, we were virtually fully manned anyway, thanks to massive sacrifices made at the Divisional Signal Regiment in order to keep Brigade Signal Squadrons effective). We're the wrong shape and size to play this game anymore - and one extra deployable Brigade - courtesy of SDR -won't change things enough.

A bigger Army's the answer - obviously (well, either that or the recognition that this high-intensity business will shortly be beyond us once we get above battle-group level). This bigger Army needs to be manned, and the only way these two things will happen is by forking out more money. If the cash is found from within the defence budget, something else has to suffer. If we cut equipment programmes, we push ourselves out of the high-intensity game anyway. Impasse. The only thing that's going to alter this situation is a big change of heart on defence expenditure by the Government of the day. And how does that happen? Same way it always has - we need to lose a war (or at least get a severe mauling before snatching victory from the jaws of defeat). A bit depressing, this conclusion, when I put two and two together and realise that I'll be the one doing the losing or getting the mauling. That's the trouble with Peace Dividends: they assume peace, and there isn't any.

There's a bright side. If there wasn't, I suppose I'd have to consider leaving and imagine what sort of state the Corps would find itself in if a large number of majors and lieutenant colonels decided to seek employment elsewhere? It doesn't bear thinking about. OK, first off, as an Army, we don't have to be as good as we once were - we only need to be better than anybody else right now. Patriotism being the last refuge of a scoundrel, I must consign myself to that fate. We're still better than anybody else. There are armies whose regression rate leaves ours standing - both within and without NATO. I know this is the philosophy of the kitchen sink, but I've done a lot of washing up over the past couple of years. Second, it doesn't seem likely we'll have to fight a war of national survival anytime soon (unless we're forced to square up to the jocks - in which case, I'm on their side, particularly if it's a Saturday night). Thirdly, although I didn't think my little bit of the Army was as good as it used to be, I saw plenty of evidence that other little bits of it were far better. I don't just mean the technology (though you should see what Challenger 2 can do: it actually makes the cavalry look earnestly professional; an epithet they despise). A battle-group, having undergone low level field firing on Bergen-Hohne ranges, followed by simulation training at Grafenwhor, manoeuvre training in Hohenfels, a pre-BATUS work-up in Poland, BATUS itself (which includes a superb TES phase) and, finally, manoeuvre training with at least two other units on the brigade Poland FTX, is trained like you wouldn't believe. It's scarily good. I firmly believe that our low-level capabilities - whether collective or individual - are outstanding.

Finally, of course, I'm the proud possessor of the most rose-tinted spectacles you can imagine. It is part of the function of the curmudgeonly old to decry the efforts of shallow youth. It is just possible, I suppose, that sitting for six weeks on Hill 309, or on the Ripon Barracks parade square, keeping the Herforder brewery in profit every night and sleeping by day, did not turn me into Guderian. Perhaps we weren't that good then, either. Perhaps we're getting better whilst we're getting worse (It does happen - look at television). If we are getting worse - even in part - then we should try and do something about it. Despite my strident claims above that only money can solve the big problems, I think some things can be done down at the coal face. I think we should concentrate less on esoteric concepts such as the nature of information management and its ownership, and the pure definition of G6 as a function, and more on doing well what should be done well. I think - heresy - that we should focus less on our technology, not more. (We were never more effective in 7th Armoured Brigade Main HQ than when the photocopier was broken. It forced us to be concise, and to get the message across quickly. QP24 and GP3 are bigger and better photocopiers, that's all. Decision cycles will become longer, not shorter. Also, because they're photocopiers, they'll break down all the time). Concentrating less on our technology will allow us to concentrate more on our people, and this is good. I think we are defined by who we are, not what we are. Whilst we struggle as a Corps to design for ourselves the perfect mission statement, to develop command support doctrine' and dispute ownership of this and that process, system or bit of kit with the rest of the Army, we run the risk of being derided as a bunch of techno-anoraks. Let's instead try and be respected for being good at what we've always been good at.

End of diatribe. This article was prepared in response to a directive from the Chairman of the Royal Signals Institution that units should provide articles for the Journal 'to make people sit up and take notice.' Readers will note that I am a devout believer in the dictum that shrill opinion is always more interesting than passionless logic: I look forward to reading responses in the same vein.

'Incidentally, to my knowledge, no-one has yet come up with a procedure entitled 'Communications Preparation of the Battlefield (CPB)'. Being both catchy and useless, it would exactly meet our current requirements. If I am the first to think of this then I hereby claim IPR. If someone else has already put out a paper on it, then shame on you.

MANNING THE CORPS
THE CHALLENGE OF THE NEXT MILLENNIUM

by Lt Col J. A. Terrington

Recent operational commitments have highlighted the requirement for robust CIS and bring into sharp focus the challenges, which Royal Signals face with the advent of Digitisation. In the near term we must retain and restructure in order to capitalise on the advantages which new equipment, such as TWACN and BOWMAN, will bring. Yet this must be done against a backdrop of extremely high levels of operational deployment and overall R Signals under-manning of some 13%. Furthermore this head line figure masks significant shortfalls in key Ptarmigan trades and deficiencies as high as 40% at certain ranks. What can be done to retain our manpower?

As ever the Corps manpower is in high demand and spread all too thinly across a diverse range of tasks. Almost all units are undermanned and ultimately this has driven a piecemeal approach to back-filling Units for operations. Such a policy, undoubtedly driven by necessity, generates its own problems further downstream as Units already culled for individual reinforcements are then themselves stood to for operations. The simple reality is that the Corps has too many commitments, which we need to publicise in a manner which the General Staff fully understand. Perhaps we should consider manning fewer units to Peacetime or Unit Establishment (UE), thus removing (temporarily) a number of units from the Corps ORBAT. No matter how unpalatable, such a move might have the desired effect.

The high use of Regular Individual Reserves (IRs), driven by under-manning and taut establishments, generates it's own difficulties as soldiers are removed from their parent chain of command and placed in other units, frequently creating a feeling of isolation. We need to identify the lowest level of formed contribution from one unit to another. The troop level of command seems logical for this. We need a more fundamental review of Corps structures, however, as it is clear that we do not have the correct equipment task organisation to tackle Peace Support operations effectively, let alone full war fighting.

Our system of 'trickle postings' is also contributing to wastage as soldiers return from one operational tour and are posted, only to find themselves deployed again from their new Unit. In some cases, tour intervals are now measured in weeks. MCM Div Desk Officers in Glasgow cannot be expected to have full oversight of operational commitments and this is best done at Unit level. We need time to take stock, however, until the current high level of operational commitments stabilises. The majority of our soldiers are now gaining valuable operational experience from the earliest days of their service, so perhaps the time has come to move towards a model of posting by exception, in order to create some short term stability.

Whilst the subject of financial retention incentives for key trades is well understood, the current allowance package for those deployed on operations remains an emotive and divisive issue. Soldiers with under three years service are not entitled to LSSA and the welfare telephone system is of little use for many deployed on isolated hill top sites. If long term Peace Support operations are to be the norm, then soldiers will reasonably expect improved living and working conditions both in and out of barracks. In reality, the investment and will required to deliver this is unlikely to materialise, consequently we might have to look elsewhere for solutions. We could learn something from how our Allies tackle these issues. In this respect, the American system of no tax charges for those deployed on operations might be a useful starting point which could provide a meaningful reward for frequent deployments; and long service. Ultimately, if we do not get the G1 package right, we face an uphill struggle in keeping our valuable manpower.

I hope this article stimulates some much needed discussion on potential ways forward in the retention battle. Unless we take action now, the combined effects of shortening tour intervals and worsening under-manning at Unit level, is likely to further reduce our operational capability to a critical level.

INSTALLERS AT THE READY

Capt (TOT) N. Baugh MBE

No one near a RAF base in Germany could miss the roar of Harriers and Tornado's taking off and landing. However, few people might realise that a unique Squadron of the Royal Signals is helping keep the jets in the air. Based at RAF Laarbruch and Bruggen - as well as at JHQ Rheindahlen - 220 Signal Squadron, part of Colerne - based 21 Signal Regiment, is the only Royal Signals Squadron formation completely dedicated to RAF support in its primary role. The task and job of keeping all ground communications up and running at RAF's Main Operating Bases in Germany. This vital role dates back to the 1960s when the 'RISTACOMW' or 'Responsibilities for Inter Service Tactical Communications' Agreement, was drawn up.

'With a unique planning and deployment capability, we are very much in demand,' says Squadron Commander, Capt 'Noddy' Baugh MBE.

'We provide a service wherever needed in the world. Aside from our permanent role in Germany, recent detachments have included the former Yugoslavia, the Falkland Islands, Ascension Island, Greece, Macedonia, as well as Exercises throughout the world.'

Handling these many challenges are just 98 Squadron personnel, as well as ten civilian staff including a full time draughtswoman, at Laarbruch, Bruggen and JHQ Rheindahlen. Squadron members, many of them young Signallers fresh from trade training at the Royal School of Signals are responsible for the entire cable infrastructure, more than 1000 miles of it at each airfield.

Cable maintenance involves monitoring a complex system of telephone and computer cable, spreading out from the telephone exchange through Main and Intermediate Distribution Frames and then underground right across the airfields. Some 5500 circuits are linked via Test Pits and Cable Huts to every building that needs communications. At the sharp end of this work are the Squadron's 70 'Tele Mechs'. Flexibility is the name of the game for these highly skilled technicians, of which the Royal Signals now boasts some 270. Equally at home with all kinds of cable and wiring, especially fibre optics, their vast experience reflects a 'multi-skilling' approach, covering a wide variety of communications functions from initial survey of the task, right through to implementation. Royal Signals cabling strategy now embraces Category 5 UTP cabling. Ideal in a military environment where taskings come up at short notice, the built in flexibility and redundancy of Cat 5 will allow signallers to 'flood wire' a building to meet a whole variety of operational requirements. A recent task to undertake the planning, procurement specification and implementation of a Headquarters build to commercial civilian standards in Petrovac, Macedonia has certainly highlighted the abilities of the Squadrons tradesman to all within the Ministry of Defence.

CIVILIAN TRAINING

Army Signallers have already received civilian Cat 5 training and the systems is being used, for example, permanently at RAF Bruggen on a Local Data Communications Network. This is the RAF main IT communications backbone on all stations, supported in the United Kingdom by civilian companies and at overseas bases where Royal Signals tradesman are based, by the 'Tele Mech'. Working closely with the RAF's Communications Information System Engineering Flight, and with the Deutsche Telekom, peacetime maintenance sees the Squadron dealing with cabling throughout the airfields, much of it fibre optic blown cable. When faults come to light they must be put right immediately, if necessary calling out a repair crew, day or night. Now in standard Royal Signals use is the U7 10 modular connection system.

Maintenance of operational cabling, in support of the 'Airfield Survival Measure' is another challenging Squadron task. Designed to withstand airfield attacks, and very heavy-duty, two 'ring cables' – 150kms in all - travel the entire perimeter of the airfields, linking up the various buildings, with each one's communications traffic routed in opposite directions. If one were disabled, all communications would be switched to the other, pending repairs. Bomb and blast proof Cable Huts allow the signallers to work in comparative safety, and the operational system is completely separate from that used in peacetime: none of the key operational staff can afford to be out of contact, whether it's the pilots, the flight engineers or air traffic control.

Away from Germany, typical detachments include Banja Luka and Split in the Former Yugoslavia, the Falkland Islands, Ascension Island and more recently is support of the NATO Troop deployments to Macedonia and Greece.

One fine example is a project at RAF Ascension in the Atlantic where a team from 220 Squadron, with support from our Regiment's TA 'Tele Mech' Sqn, 81 Sqn (V) are currently upgrading cable installations, both fibre and copper. Some 40kms of cable is being replaced and enhanced to provide the RAF with a backbone that will support the military communications well into the next century. At the same time, with colleagues from the Royal Signals Communications Projects Division, two new GPT Realitis exchanges are being installed and commissioned, and a new Operations centre is being established. The Squadron Ascension Island Planner, SSgt Adrian Jones has been planning this work for months, working closely with all the Services and Cable and Wireless to define the requirement and ensure full completion, with no loss of service to any customer.

The main task of Phase One was to establish a system of telegraph poles around the Travellers Hill accommodation areas. The buildings were then linked through an Aerial Network with a distribution feed in Phase Two. Through this system each of the buildings were connected with an upgraded telephone system. Phase Three required a poled aerial route with enough distribution points to connect the remaining accommodation sites and to assure communication with all buildings on Travellers Hill. The installation of a ducted wiring connection of modern Copper and Fibre Optic cables from Airhead exchange to Travellers Hill completed Phase Four. This phase also proved to be the most challenging task to the teams, who had to cross eight miles of volcanic rock between the two exchanges. This step boosted the former eight telephone trunks between the two exchanges to thirty channels, which can now be used simultaneously. Phase Five has recently been completed when the joint team connected the new GPT Realitis Exchange switches, which replaced the out-dated Monarch exchange switches. The last phase, which will officially start on 12 July and end 28 July, will finally connect Airhead Exchange and Travellers Hill with Georgetown. The Team will be working with the civilian Georgetown-based Cable and Wireless, which has supported the Tele Mechs in the past, and will complete what had begun under Phase Five. Modern Copper and Fibre Optic cables will provide the necessary capacity for future communications and will take the three exchanges' capabilities into the next millennium. By 28 July the 220 Sig Sqn and 81 (V) Sig Sqn will have renewed the forty kilometres of communication lines with 38 personnel. The personnel from Rheindahlen and Colerne were on two week rotations to assure a good turnover for both Squadrons. After the project is completed the system will be maintained by two resident Tele Mechs from 220 Sig Sqn, who are on a six-month rotation.

Even further afield, and rather cooler, a team is permanently attached to the Joint Communications Unit Falkland Islands. Here the manpower is primarily tasked with the support to the RAF Mount Pleasant Airfield and Headquarters. The Squadron also provides constant support to the various British deployments to the former Yugoslavia at Split, Gorni Vakuf Banja Luka and Sipovo. Many new projects are being considered to enhance present installations, which may be achieved later this year as manpower is released from other tasks. These have recently included setting up a communications infrastructure for the ACE Rapid Reaction Corps (the 'ARRW) REAR HQ in Skopje, and the ARRC Rear Support Command (RSC) HQ in Greece. Additional new and demanding tasks are expected and awaited as any peace dividend is developed within Kosovo. A Squadron Group under SSgt Les Chapman is permanently focused on this area of operations and commitment.

THE FUTURE

With the announcements at ministerial level of the Strategic Defence Review (SDR) and the impending closure of RAF Laarbruch, the Royal Signals have taken a positive step in the overall restructuring of 'Tele Mech' support world-wide. In addition, the Corps is undertaking a major trade restructuring programme, thus ensuring all tradesman are well prepared for the challenges that lie ahead.

This means that 220 Sig Sqn will close in Germany before the end of the year but will reform with its parent Regiment in Colerne, in a new role supporting the Joint Helicopter Command (JHC). The 'Tele Mech' manpower is being relocated within 16 Sig Regt in Germany and 30 Sig Regt in UK. This manpower will provide continual support to the RAF Airbases at Bruggen and Ascension and provide structured deployable sections, maintained at a high state of readiness, to deploy world-wide in support of any MOD task. Communications Planning staff based at JHQ Rheindahlen provide the planning focus to any task now and will remain so, for the foreseeable future.

The trade restructuring having focused on the present excellent skill set of the 'Tele Mech' has enhanced it further, so the tradesman can undertake harness and installation repair on the many Army vehicular communications installations. From a present trade group of some 215 posts, this new trade group, the 'installation Technician' - Inst. Tech, is likely to need some 400 + individuals in the future. It remains an excellent trade group at 'Installation Technician', for any young individual wishing to join the Armed Forces. Whatever the task, wherever it is in the world, the Army and RAF can rely on the 220 Signal Squadron 'Mechs' to see the job through, living up to the unofficial Corps motto of - 'First in, last out'.

APPRECIATION

Major General L de M Thuillier CB CVO OBE

Major General L de M (Pete) Thuiller has died aged 93. He was Director of Telecommunications at the War Office in the mid 1950s and Leader of the British Government Mission which went to America in 1960 to discuss civil and military satellite communications systems. For the nine months before his retirement and for nearly nine years after it, he was Assistant Secretary in the Cabinet Office organising the co-ordination of communications electronic policy. He was also concerned with the establishment of various international communications systems, including that used for the Queen's overseas tours. Leslie de Malapert Thuillier, always known as 'Pete' was born in India on September 26 1905. His father Lt Col L. C. Thuillier, was a descendent of a family of French clock makers who, at the French Revolution moved to Switzerland, and later to England. He was educated at Berkhamsted and Woolwich, before being commissioned into the Royal Corps of Signals in 1926. In 1930 he was posted to 3 Indian Divisional Signals at Meerut, India, but returned to the Staff College, Camberley in 1939. In the early months of the war, he was posted to the War Office where he was instrumental in establishing the Y Service. In 1941 he was posted to 10th Corps Signals in Syria soon to be transferred to North Africa, where he saw action in various battles including El Alamein. He was then in Italy from the landings at Salerno until the crossing of the Garigliano, after which he was posted to General Alexander's HQ, where he remained until the end of the War. Subsequently he was Chief of Staff N. Ireland District, GSO 1 at the War Office and CSO Air Formation Signals BAOR. From 1951 to 53 he was CSO in Egypt. In 1954 he returned to the War Office before becoming CSO Northern Command and subsequently Director of Telecommunications. He was a first class athlete. He rode in the International Horse Show and in the Royal Tournament; he played rugby for the Harlequins, Hampshire and Yorkshire and was well above average at squash, tennis and hockey. He married Barbara Rawlins in 1935 and they had a son and two daughters.

Brigadier W. M. Ponsonby OBE

Brig Wilfred Ponsonby, who has died aged 93 escaped from German POW camps three times; he was also an outstanding horseman, a first class motorcyclist, champion boxer and a brilliant conjuror and member of the Magic Circle. After the outbreak of war he was posted to 1 Armoured Division Signals, which was sent to France in May 1940.The Division was eventually surrounded at St Valery-en-Caux, and Ponsonby was taken prisoner. He made his first attempt to escape on the march back to Germany, but was recaptured by chance. After making two further temporary escapes he was put on the list for repatriation (when Germans were exchanged for ill British prisoners) as his captors thought he looked so unwell that he must have tuberculosis. In fact he looked no worse than he had done all his life. Ponsonby was later awarded the OBE for his work in helping other POW's in the camps. After the war he went on to have a distinguished career in NATO. Wilfred Ponsonby was born on 10 July 1905 in Nova Scotia, where his father, an officer in the Sappers was serving. The family had a five generation military tradition. He went to Shrewsbury and Woolwich before being commissioned in Royal Signals in 1926. In 1930 he boxed for the Royal Signals team that won the Army Championships. The same year he took the Army equitation course and became a riding instructor at Catterick. He himself won many races and rode four times at Sandown, twice in the Grand Military Gold Cup which he won in 1935 on Kicking Time. He was closely involved in the Royal Tournament, Olympia and the International Horse Show. On arrival back in England from POW Camp in 1943 he had time out to learn about the new, to him, equipment before being posted to the War Office as GSO 1. At the end of the War, he was posted as CSO Sudan and Eritrea and returned to Britain to command 11 Signal Regiment. Later that year he became UK Representative of the Western Union Defence Organisation, which became part of NATO the following year. He was closely concerned with re-establishing the communications system in Europe and became Chairman of the European Military Communications Co-ordination Committee. In 1952 he moved on to Scottish Command and three years later was posted to SHAPE. In 1957 he retired from the Army and worked for the Ministry of Supply. In full retirement he became a steward at Catterick Racecourse, and was heavily involved in acting and producing at the Leyburn Amateur Dramatics Society.

Seasons Greetings

CHRISTMAS MESSAGE FROM THE SOinC(A)

At this time of year we are reminded of the message, 'Peace and goodwill to all men.' This is particularly poignant as we reflect, not only on the close of the most vicious century in the history of mankind, but also on a year which has seen yet another major deployment to defend the lives and liberties of ordinary people in the tragic Balkans theatre.

'The price of peace is eternal vigilance.' Whilst it may be that national governments have not always been as vigilant as some with hindsight might wish, the soldiers, sailors and airmen of our armed forces have always been ready to play their part in maintaining the security of this nation and the defence of a just cause. Vigilance depends upon information, and information has always been the business of Royal Signals. Since its formation, the Corps has always been at the heart of our Defence capability. Whether in support of the national intelligence effort or the tactical commander on the ground, the men and women of the Royal Signals have played a vital part in world wars, withdrawal from Empire, regional conflicts and peace support operations.

This year has seen proportionally the largest deployment of the Corps on operations since 1945. In Macedonia and Kosovo our soldiers performed magnificently, not only technically and militarily, but also on initiatives designed to help the people of the province, activities vital to stability and the cause of peace. At the same time, our people sustained other operations world-wide and maintained our commitment to Northern Ireland where, despite the peace process, there has been little respite in the demand for robust operational communications. The Regular Corps alone could not have sustained this level of activity. Significant numbers of volunteers continue to come forward from the TA to serve both in the United Kingdom and abroad, and they bring with them a range of complementary skills and expertise which greatly enriches the units and headquarters with which they serve.

Our families too continue to make sacrifices and are perhaps too often forgotten in the 'lessons learnt' process, which follows recovery from operations. The wider Corps family, including the Association and the Institution each plays its part in sustaining the Corps and spreading the message of the competence of our people and the central role they play in Defence as well as providing us in the serving Corps with examples and role models.

But what of the future? We are at the beginning of the information age. In Defence, perhaps as never before, the efficient delivery of information services is central to the utility of the United Kingdom's armed forces in pursuit of security and international policy goals. We in the Corps have an immense opportunity, but with that comes increased responsibility to demonstrate that we have the necessary skills and profound understanding of the information business. There is much to do to prepare ourselves but I believe we should enter the new Millennium with confidence, certain that we will continue to play a central role contributing to the vigilance, which maintains the peace.

Laurette and I wish you all a very Happy Christmas and a successful New Year

THE MASTER'S CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

Rightly, the Signal Officer in Chief reminds us all of the Christmas message and the heroic contribution being made all round the world by the serving Corps towards the wider 'peace'. In my travels I have marvelled at the work of our young men and women in the field, and been lifted by their spirit and enthusiasm. Their professionalism and responsiveness is now a byword amongst allied forces and our own high command alike. The Corps has risen magnificently to the challenge of 'expeditionary warfare'. Never has the Corps' operational value been more recognised, or held in higher regard.

At the same time, I have watched in admiration as our leadership has moved to address the demands of the 'information revolution' and the future of the Corps whose time has surely come. But the serving Corps is not alone in this vital purpose. Out there is a vibrant, supportive Association, an Institution bristling with ideas and experience now directly engaged in shaping the future, and industry and commerce with a mountain of goodwill and commitment to help.

So my message, on this very special Millennial Christmas, is to the wider family of the Corps. To the 'old comrade' and the new; to the officer and the soldier; to the regular and the territorial; and to the families on whose backing we all depend. It is that these are times of exceptional challenge and unimagined opportunity; we need not just to be together, but to work together to build a great future.

Next year we have planned a range of special Corps celebrations to mark the start of the new Millennium. I do hope that you will take every opportunity to get involved.

Annie and I wish you all a very Merry Christmas

THE ARMY TAUGHT YOU NEVER TO GIVE UP, SO DON'T

So there you are in civvy street doing the same old thing day in, day out. But...why?...If it's the Army you're missing, then how about joining the TA? It's a vital part of the British Army.

There are two options open to you. First, you can join one of the Territorial Army Independent Units based in the TAVRA region in which you have decided to settle. An ideal route for those who wish to serve locally. Which Unit you join will depend on those available in the area you live in. Second, if you are leaving a Corps, you could retain your cap badge and become a member of either an Independent Unit as above, or a TA Specialist Unit. In either, you can maintain and develop the special skills that you have learned.

The minimum commitment as a member of the Independent TA is 6 weekends, a two-week Summer Camp and some weekday evenings. As a Specialist we ask only 2 weekends and a 15 day annual camp. In return, you will earn Army rates of pay and an annual tax-free bonus of up to £1050.

WHIZZ-KIDZ

THE MOVEMENT FOR NON-MOBILE CHILDREN

PUTTING YOUR BEST FOOT FORWARD
London Marathon 2000

If you've got the get-up-and-go to run a Marathon, why not join the Whizz-Kidz London Marathon Team next year? As one of the official charities at this year's Marathon, Whizz-Kidz enjoyed a great deal of support and a large number of cheers as their 750 runners crossed the finishing line. Next year, Whizz-Kidz hopes to see 800 runners complete the Marathon for them.

Beat the tedium of running on a tread mill or jogging week after week in the same park and take up this exhilarating and rewarding challenge to help change a child's life. Whizz-Kidz provides disabled children with tailor-made mobility aids, like wheelchairs, thus giving them the freedom of movement and independence that so many others take for granted. If you've never run before that doesn't matter as Whizz-Kidz has formulated a superb support package to help alleviate the stress of running a Marathon.

If you want to benefit from an experience of a lifetime and get non-mobile children mobile, please call the Hotline: 0800 600 9933.

If you would like to interview Christopher Craven, Charlie Waggett and Jules Walster from HM Forces, who together raised £5938, when they ran the Marathon this year, please call Katie Crichton-Miller at Whizz-Kidz Press Office: 0171 233 6600.

WANTED – BONE MARROW DONORS

Members of the Corps will be saddened to hear that one of our former Warrant Officers, WO2 Paul 'PC' Collins is currently fighting Leukaemia. Many serving and former members of Royal Signals will remember Paul as not only an extremely skilled Rugby Player but also as one of life's genuine 'nice guys.' At the time of writing 'PC' is in Frimley Hospital where he has just completed his fourth bout of Chemotherapy. You will not be surprised that 'PC' is fighting his illness and both he and his wife Tina are displaying tremendous courage and resilience. It is hoped that as a result of this particular course of Chemotherapy 'PC' will go into remission, thus enabling the next part of his treatment, a Bone Marrow Transplant, to take place. Potentially the most significant challenge for 'PC' is that to date it has proved impossible to find a Bone Marrow match to enable a successful transplant. Currently, The Anthony Nolan Bone Marrow Trust (a charity that exists purely by fundraising) holds the world's largest database of Bone Marrow Donors. Unfortunately, only 30% of registered donors are male and the Trust is desperate to increase its numbers of males aged between 18-40 (males can provide greater volumes of marrow and are much less likely to suffer from anaemia - a condition which would prohibit a volunteer from being able to donate). In order to identify a donor's tissue type a small sample of blood is required which is then processed to identify the bone marrow type. If, in the fullness of time, a compatible donor is identified the bone marrow will be extracted from the pelvic bones under general anaesthetic. The short-term effects may include some discomfort in the lower back but full recovery is within 10-14 days. The purpose in writing this article is to encourage members of the Royal Signals to register as potential Bone Marrow Donors; not only to hopefully produce a match for 'PC', but also to assist The Anthony Nolan Bone Marrow Trust in its overall battle against Leukaemia. The address for potential donors is:

Donor Recruitment Office
The Anthony Nolan Bone Marrow Trust
PO Box 1767

Additionally, Maj Graham Complin (Salisbury Mil 3212) is happy to pass on messages etc: to 'PC' and Tina and provide their contact details on request.
Many thanks .....

THE GAP YEAR COMMISSION (GYC)

Introduction by Lt Col I. C. Shuker
Main article by Miss Caroline Orlebar

Some school or college students, who intend to go on to university, take a year out after their A-levels (or equivalent studies) before entering university. This 'gap year' normally involves foreign travel, adventurous and challenging activities and, perhaps, the opportunity to earn some money. The Royal Signals, amongst several other Regiments and Corps, offers selected students the opportunity to fulfil all of these ambitions as an officer on a 'Gap Year Commission' (GYC) and without any further commitment.

Students aged between 18 and 19 before commissioning, with a confirmed place at a UK university or college to read for a recognised first degree, are eligible for a GYC. Having been interviewed by the school Army Careers Adviser, and provisionally accepted by a Regiment or Corps following assessment at a 'familiarisation visit', candidates will be assessed by the Regular Commissions Board (RCB) at Westbury in Wiltshire. The 3-day assessment tests the candidates' leadership skills, intelligence, knowledge of world affairs, and essay writing and communications skills. A good school or college report and head-teacher's recommendation is also required.

GYC candidates attend the RCB alongside officer candidates seeking career commissions but will be assessed for their extraordinary potential to be entrusted with the leadership of soldiers given only three weeks GYC training at the Royal Military Academy Sandhurst, compared to the eleven months training provided on the common commissioning course. Having been assessed as suitable for a GYC by the RCB, students will attend three weeks intensive training as officer cadets at Sandhurst in the October of their gap year. Sandhurst training involves leadership, battle-craft, skill at arms, signals skills, map reading and drill. On successful completion of training, the officer cadet passes out as a Second Lieutenant. A Royal Signals GYC Second Lieutenant, now on a salary worth more than £1,000 a month, will attend a one week Troop Commanders' course at the Royal School of Signals before joining his or her Regiment. There, the Commanding Officer will decide how and where to employ the young officer. Although the GYC officer is not qualified for operational duty, the CO will always seek to provide opportunities for as much challenge and responsibility as the officer is capable of accepting.

The Royal Signals offers a maximum of five GYC commissions each year. Some of these GYC officers may subsequently decide to apply for a career commission after university, and a full eleven months commissioning course at Sandhurst. Others may decide to pursue a career elsewhere but, we hope, will act as ambassadors for the Army and the Royal Signals. At the end of their commission, Royal Signals GYC officers are asked to provide a résumé of their year. The remainder of this article is the résumé of Miss Caroline Orlebar, who was a GYC officer with 16 Signal Regiment in Germany before going to Somerville College, Oxford in 1998 to read chemistry.

The Gap Year Commission (GYC) is a scheme run by the Army that gives the opportunity for young people taking a year out between school and university to sample and enjoy Army life and be paid. Recently I came to the end of such a year. It was an incredible experience. One in which I was challenged and rewarded with greater magnitude than I have previously experienced and am unlikely to again. I took part in numerous challenging pursuits, often only acquired in a lifetime of serving in the British Army. I had fantastic fun and have minimal regrets.

In July 1997 I left Roedean School, Brighton with a place at Sandhurst and a deferred place at University. I had four months to recover from the strain of A levels and to get fit. On 31 October, much to everybody's amazement I joined the Army. No one had underestimated the physical and mental stamina that was required throughout a month long Officer Training at Sandhurst. Such intensity made normal life highly pleasurable. Zero previous military knowledge and experience only added to the challenge. I learnt infantry tactics, how to shoot and clean firearms, how to be meticulous and punctual, how to survive with minimal sleep and how to run long distances with excessive weight. It was a challenging course. I left having learnt much more than they thought I had.

Passing out from RMA Sandhurst

By the end of November, rather alarmingly, I was a commissioned officer. Being sponsored by the Royal Signals, I was then off to Blandford for a week long 'Troopies' course. Here the network of comradeship the Army thrives upon became established. I met newly commissioned 'proper' Officers, some of whom I would meet up with later and would be of unconditional support. I was introduced to the signalling side of the Army and to Mess life. It was great fun. I was extremely lucky to be subsequently posted to 16 Signal Regiment at JHQ, Germany. With their unstinting patience and generosity I continued my Army experience. I acted the officer role as any might without the long formal training. It was a challenge to be on the commanding side of the fence having been at school for so long. We would go on 4-mile fun runs, fancy dress runs and have numerous parties. Still constantly mildly challenging, Christmas came as a welcome break.

Cycling to work at 16 Signal Regiment

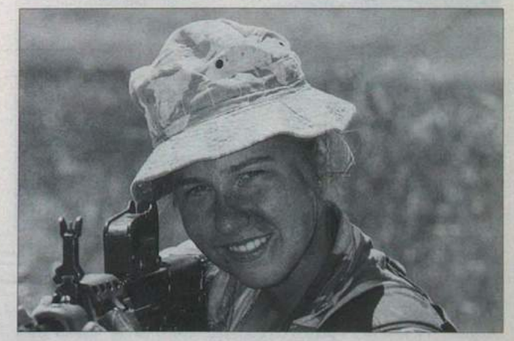
In January the signal side came into action. I acted as OC MAN Troop and to the best of my ability waded through first sight files in order to put my input into the system. The Ptarmigan Network - the one 16 Signal Regiment operates, was - but for an hour at Blandford - totally unfamiliar. I acquired a shady overall knowledge as I was informed at length about how each vehicle fitted in to the larger communication network.

'Get away as much as possible,' a fellow Second Lieutenant told me on my arrival. Nobody could have anticipated to what extent I would follow this advice.

February saw me in Igls, Austria participating in the unusual sport of Skeleton Bob-sleighing. I have written a piece on the specific sensations of Bob-sleighing which was published in The Wire (June 1998). They had my sights on the Winter 2002 Olympics. An exciting dream, but I was off to University the following October and the training would have coincided. This sport is to be recommended to those who can cope with a fast, white, frosty and potentially dangerous ice slide and can give a decent sprint start.

March was punctuated with Basic Winter Training in Bavaria. I learnt lessons in skiing, winter and social survival. I had some spectacular falls and witnessed blissful views. It was a snowy wonderland in southern Germany.

April in its entirety was spent on infantry exercise in Cyprus. Everything I learnt at Sandhurst was reinforced to my great satisfaction. I particularly enjoyed the use of a variety of firearms, live and blank, and the parading along the sandy paths in Cyprus. The people, weather, scenery and exercise made this month highly memorable. I was also able to visit Egypt, on R and R, during my stay.



Training in Cyprus

May and I was floating. First came a fortnight of jumping out of an aeroplane at Lippspringe in Germany. This was followed by a further fortnight of paragliding - walking off a mountain. The former was an exhilarating experience, the latter, a relatively peaceful glide down to earth.

Parachuting in Lippspringe, Germany

End June-early July, I was improving my limited skill at kayaking in the South of France. I spent a stunning three weeks of camping. The weather was unbelievable and the cool, glacial waters were crystal clear. I capsized frequently which was terrifying.

Kayaking in the South of France

On returning from that trip, I thought it was about time to further my sporting prowess at tennis. I entered the Army Championships at Aldershot from where I was picked to play for the Army at Wimbledon in August. The first day I played on clay, the second on the famous grass courts. It was a great thrill.

With the Army Tennis Team at Wimbledon

I had only one more thing to achieve and that was to organise my own expedition. Scuba diving was an adventure training activity I had not yet attempted, so I chose to take a group of 12 diving off Gibraltar at the end of August. After sporadic weekly training in the Blue Pool at JHQ, Germany, I had acquired BSAC novice level. Gibraltar was an ideal location; superb for diving, steeped in military history and using the pound sterling as currency. We lived aboard a boat and dived at numerous sites and wrecks. All the party came back having achieved at least BSAC Sport. There is also an account of this in The Wire.

Scuba diving in Gibraltar

By mid September, I had two weeks to go before starting at University. After watching the film 'Saving Private Ryan', the Officers and SNCOs of 16 Signal Regiment departed for an educational trip to Normandy to study the 1944 Landings. It was too good an opportunity to miss, so blow the pre-university reading, I was off again. This proved to be an excellent 4-day send off. I learnt loads of very interesting history and it was a highly worthwhile 'resettlement' course back into academic and civilian life.

I am now working very hard studying Chemistry at Somerville College, Oxford and often think back to the fun I had in the Army. I recommend the Gap Year Commission to any fit, enthusiastic person and challenge them to better my experiences. I am grateful to the Army for giving me such a splendid opportunity.

THE MAN FROM MANNING AND RECORDS

by Maj S. J. Turnbull

(with apologies to all my hard working comrades in the R Signals and Int Corps MCM Div)

Some time has passed since I last composed a column for this august publication, and those of you with long memories will remember my 'Man from the Ministry' notes compiled while I worked in the world of pay and allowances. Things change and after a 'holiday' in Cyprus for a couple of years, it is back to work for me. I now find myself sitting at one quarter of a desk in Kentigern House, Glasgow as a member of the staff of the R SIGNALS & INT Corps Manning and Career Management Division.

Now many of us, at one time or another, will come across the MCM Div, one way or another. Whether it is waiting with baited breath, or trepidation, for the results of a promotion board, or haggling to get that posting that is just right for the wife/husband/sun tan/dog/ or to 'hack off' Fred whose been posted to Benbecula or whatever. Sometimes we get what we want, other times the news is less good and I suppose that the way we feel about the MCM Div, reflects the success or otherwise of our last request.

So what is the MCM Div like? Well I was surprised. I had been able to visit on a number of previous occasions and on the face of it everything 'hummed like a well oiled machine', paper flowing steadily from one tray to another, with lots of happy soldiers being generated at the end of the day – Right? Well, partly right! Like all parts of the MOD, the MCM Div is a shadow of our former well-staffed MRO. First impressions (after all I've only been here two weeks!) are that we have some great people, mostly local, from the Glasgow area, most with a minimum of exposure to the Army at large, let alone the Royal Signals. Many of them are really well motivated and trying to do their best for the soldiers in the Corps. Yes! - Stop laughing - I mean it.

What is the MCM Div trying to achieve? Most of you will have been exposed to Mission Statements, some perhaps to management plans (no cringing in SHQ 259 Sig Sqn!) Well, here is the mission statement for the Royal Signals and INT Corps MCM Div: The R SIGNALS and INT Corps MCM Div Mission is 'to manage the R SIGNALS and INT Corps manpower assets to match liabilities in accordance with the Army's manning priorities and manage officer and soldier careers in a manner that ensures the total confidence of the Corps.'

We all know that we are working in an environment of under-manning, on 1 October 1999 the Corps was 928 soldiers short of it's full establishment. Many of the Corps are committed to operations and the restrictions that this creates serves to further complicate the manning and career management process. We all know the problems. So what can we do to make things better? One simple act would be to ensure that YOU, yes, YOU have lodged through your Squadron a current posting preference form with the MCM Div. You won't believe this, but less than 50% of all our soldiers have expressed a preference for their next posting. Next time your mate starts moaning when he gets posted, just ask him if he bothered to tell anyone what he wanted to do. If you don't ask, how can anyone know what you would like to do! Obviously, we can't promise that everyone of you will get his first choice for a next posting, but you do have a much better chance if you told us what you would like to do.

Enough of the sales pitch. Here are some highlights from the MCM world:

Retention incentives agreed for Royal Signals Technicians completing Class 1 qualification and/or passing for a Foreman of Signals.

The first new F board, which replaced unit G boards, will sit in Glasgow over the period 8 to 12 November to select Signallers for promotion to Lance Corporal.

Opportunities for extended service and LSL are very good and more soldiers than ever are serving beyond the 22 year point. In fact the Royal Signals have recently been given clearance to create a special technical LSL List. So if you are interested watch out for more information.

Revised Unit establishments have included over 200 Information Systems Operator and Supervisor posts and soldiers will soon start being selected for these posts from amongst the 151 that volunteered under SoinC's PD 31. If you are interested DO IT NOW.

That's all for now. Looking forward to future copies of The Wire, I hope to be able to explain the promotion board process in detail, publish results from the most recent boards and provide some hints and tips for getting the most out of your MCM Div. I also hope to feature a Promotion Wing of the month, throwing the spotlight on the parts and personalities of the Division. Look out for this column in future editions of The Wire.

(Welcome back Maj Turnbull - we look forward to receiving your on going copy, which is an important and 'up front' contribution that we are very pleased to publish. - The Editor.)

TEAM UPDATE - by LCpl D. Hankin

The team has finally reached the end of a very successful season. As always that's not quite the end, with the team busily preparing itself for the annual selection course held in mid November. New team riders for the next few seasons are then selected to replace those soldiers like me, who will be posted back to the Corps. With the selection course completed and new recruits chosen, the team then looks forward to a well earned break with Christmas and New Year leave, only to return and start the whole process over again. Good luck for next season, I wish you all the best!

THE 1999 SHOW SEASON - by Sig 'Marcus' Fiddes

The season properly started after five months of continuous training at Blandford, Bovington, and Chester. In this time all riders in the team have to learn and perfect any new tricks and rides that they are given to perform. With many of the tricks it's a case of trial and error. Team Sgt, Sgt Don Brebner has the task of finding the right people for the right trick. A great deal of the time is spent on this. Two or three people would try to crack one trick with the best being picked. With a few bumps and bruises, the worst being Cpl Bob 'funky monk' Sizeland having stitches to his knee due to an over extreme fire jump, the season began.

The SOinC's Opening show here at Blandford Camp was the first performance of the newly formed 1999 Royal Signals White Helmets, with the first public show taking place in Leeds at the Yorkshire Water Fun Day. The Leeds show wasn't the most spectacular of shows, but the team would go on to perform at better show grounds later that season. The Rheindahlen show was two weeks away and this was a show the team had been looking forward to for some time. It could have something to do with the cheap beer or was it the sunshine? (I don't think so!!). The first performance for the team was Saturday 15 May. The show ground was perfect and the crowds turned out in their thousands. The show was a definite high along with the after show party, things were going well. The party saw the Team Capt Gordon 'Judge' Newell kick out some pumping tunes from his decks and LCpl Gypo Hooper cooking the burgers. What more could a man want than a wheelie bin full of beer, cheers!

Admittedly your first year in the team is a hard one. The first year riders have the task of loading bikes and props. To forget one of the props costs the first years a crate of beer or two. So when we left the bollards (which we use to mark out the arena with) back in Blandford, when we needed them at Skipton, North Yorkshire the crates came in thick and fast. For the last ever Royal Tournament we remembered all the props, which was just as well because I don't think there would have been a brewery big enough to calm Sgt Don Brebner down. The Tournament was two and a half weeks long, with the first half week spent rehearsing. The rehearsals were not up to the teams usual high standards with many people falling off on the tricks and some riders getting too close in the fast cross over rides. Every person in the team was nervous to perform in front of over eleven thousand spectators twice daily, coupled along with royal dignitaries watching over was a daunting thought. Needless to say when it mattered the team produced the goods. The first show ran smoothly and the nerves subsided. The team continued to put on excellent shows to the very end, which in the second week proved harder and harder as time there was taking its toll. An up and coming show that the team were looking forward to was the South West motorcycle expo here at Blandford Camp. Performing alongside the team were Gary Rothwell, the Kangaroo Kid (Matt Coulter) and the Blue Flames childrens motorcycle display team. The crowds were probably the best we have seen understanding just how difficult the rides and the tricks are being mostly all motorcycle enthusiasts.

The final show of the season was not the best. On arrival to the Cotswold County Fair we were met with a quagmire. It was a challenge riding the bikes to the arena never mind putting on a display. As always we went out and produced the goods even if it was just a trick show. With the final show over, the team can now return to reality back in Blandford being able to enjoy weekends off, something last seen in April.

MUSICAL NOTES
THE CORPS BAND

Director of Music Maj. D. F. Wall LTCL BBSM psm CA Mus
Bandmaster WO1 A. Booth BA(Music) LRSM CA Mus

The Band's busy summer season began in May with a short tour of Northern Ireland. This was followed by engagements at the RMCS, Shrivenham, 3 UK Div Bulford and a Pass Off Parade in Lichfield. In June we were privileged to play at the RSA weekend here in Blandford, where we performed marching displays and paraded for the Master of Signals. These fairly routine engagements were followed by the tour of the decade, a six week tour of Canada. We were part of the Medman Exercise based at BATUS, supporting the Royal Scots Dragoon Guards. The band played to large and very appreciative crowds at the North American Showjumping Championships at Spruce Meadows.

Full Band conducted by WO1 Booth performing at Spruce Meadows

We also gave a variety of concerts at the Calgary Stampede, the Stampede Parade and Downtown Calgary, and this was repeated for the Medicine Hat Stampede. We even managed a short slot on The Canadian Big Breakfast show on TV, ensuring that the British Army was well promoted in Canada. We were incredibly well looked after throughout the tour and special thanks must go to Capt Gary Thompson of the RLC who arranged the whole programme for us. The Band, as ever, were keen to do some local sightseeing and were able to organise a short spell of R & R. Many of us headed for the Rockies where we saw tremendous breathtaking scenery, spectacular ice fields and even caught sight of brown bears. Again, local hospitality was extremely friendly and the local brew - from the Big Rock Brewery in Calgary - was sampled!

We returned to UK in August - just in time to see the Eclipse and to bid a fond farewell to the Assistant Bandmaster, WO2 Matt Brown, who has picked up his promotion and flew off to Germany to take over as Bandmaster of The Dragoon Guards Band. We wish him every success in the future.

After annual leave, we travelled to old haunts in UKSC(G), playing for the local towns, service schools and military and Anglo German venues. The disbandment of 220 Sig Sqn (AS) at RAF Laarbruch sees the end of yet another era in Germany, with the last of its Harrier bases gone, and with it the Signallers deploying to 16 Sig Regt, JHQ and 21 Sig Regt (AS), at Colerne. The Band's favourite concert was for the ARRC at JHQ who held an International Food Fair and the Band were required to sample delicacies from 14 different countries. As well as various Mess Dinner Nights including one at SHAPE the band played at Dulken Hospital. Local to JHQ, it now takes service personnel and their families and has a good relationship with the military.

Upon our return we had a new musician join the band. We bid a warm welcome to Musn Adam Scowen and his wife Jessica. We draw to the end of the Millennium, having completed tours of Kenya, Hong Kong, Cyprus, Germany, France, Denmark, Sweden, America, Canada, as well as events throughout the UK. We look forward to continuing to represent the Royal Corps of Signals throughout the world during the 21st Century.

ROYAL SIGNALS MOBILE PRESENTATION TEAM

OC Capt Jack Jennings
WO WO2 Bobby Snow
JNCO Cpl Billy Wardrope
JNCO Cpl Barry Hopgood

The Royal Signals Mobile Presentation Team was formed in February 1999 with a view to touring Schools, Colleges and Trade Fairs and presenting the many different facets of the Corps to the 13-18 year age group with a view to recruiting. The Team consists of four volunteers from different Trade backgrounds who give presentations on the role of the Royal Signals; including Digitisation, Fibre-Optics, Satellite and Radio Communications and Command and Leadership Skills.

The Three 'wise' monkeys go for the hard sell

Since March 1999 we have toured many parts of the United Kingdom, including London, West Midlands, Yorkshire, Blackpool and Newcastle-upon-Tyne and have given our presentation to over 200 schools. The Team has been very well received everywhere we go and we have surprised many a school teacher and pupil by the fact that the Army is not just 'Guns and Bullets' but also offers many young people a satisfying and rewarding career in Telecommunications. The Team is equipped with three Wolf Land Rovers and a wide variety of Telecommunications Equipment that has been kindly donated or 'signed out' to us from CIS Group and civilian companies such as Racal Radio, British Aerospace and Marconi Communications. Cpl Billy Wardrope in his new found role as industrial liaison has managed to get civilian industry to fulfil their promises and deliver hundreds of thousands of pounds worth of equipment with the offer of some free PR, and a bit of 'pressure'. A normal presentation involves three members of the Team briefing around 30 to 40 students at a time, each member having 20 minutes to present to part of the group details of how to apply to join the Corps, what qualifications are needed, what the job involves and what rewards are in it for the student, all this at least 18 times at each school!

Whilst most people reading this will immediately form the opinion that we are on a 'swan' the opposite is actually true. A typical working week involves leaving Blandford early on a Sunday normally to stay in transit accommodation, each day working long hours with very early starts to be at the schools before the pupils and of course the inevitable school dinners. On many occasions Capt Jennings has been mothered by the school dinner ladies and is often to be found at the front of the dinner queue demanding seconds of 'spotted dick and custard'. When out on the road Cpl Barry 'Gym Queen' Hopgood is responsible for the physical training of the Team and has also been heard offering 20 press-ups to any students who don't pay attention to his Radio Brief. Indeed, recently we have been used as a model for trainee teachers on how to interact with young people and control the more unruly elements of the classroom, Sgt Maj Snow, having hung up his pace stick for a duster and some chalk, has been called upon many a time to sort out a playground dispute over who is the hardest guy in the school. All in all, life on the team is very interesting and we certainly get to see parts of the UK not normally visited by the Army. Anyone thinking of applying to join the team should take into account that we spend a lot of time on the road away from camp working long hours. Any one is welcome to volunteer, as we are now looking for suitable candidates for the 00/01 team. See your RAO for details.

CENTENARIAN REG RANDALL VISITS THE MUSEUM

by Col (Retd) C. J. Walters, Museum Director

On 28 October 1999 Reg Randall BEM visited the Museum at the ripe age of 100 years and 2 months. Reg originally joined the Rifle Brigade in 1918 and saw service in the Great War as 6906814 Rifleman Randall. He went on to serve in India and Mesopotamia before his discharge.

At the outbreak of the Second World War he re-enlisted into the Royal Signals and spent most of his wartime service in the South of England providing communications for the gun defence and Royal Air Force communications systems. He reached the rank of Sergeant as a Technician before being accepted for a Commission; he went on to reach the rank of Lieutenant.

His early days in the Corps were involved with Radio Direction Finding, Searchlight and Anti-aircraft units in the gun defended areas of Portsmouth and Southampton. He recalls, 'In the early days, around the time of the Battle of Britain, I was sent to the Isle of Wight which we were told the Germans wanted as a re-supply location for the mainland for post-invasion operations. I was setting up comms for the guns and searchlights. After a short while I knew that someone was sabotaging my cables so one night I took a loaded rifle and lay in wait. It was not long before the culprit arrived on the scene so I prepared to shoot. To my dismay it was a female so, rather than shoot her, I apprehended her and handed her over to the RMPs. 50 years later I was invited to a ceremony on the Island at which the importance of this capture was announced by the Mayor. Apparently, this 'lady' had turned out to be one of the most effective spies ever to have been captured and my action had been far more important than I had ever known.' 'My other action that I regard of great technical innovation concerned the laying of an armoured cable across the Fareham Creek. We did not have the right vessel with which to lay the cable so I tasked my Sergeant with finding as many empty oil drums as he could. I then tied the cable to the drums and gradually we floated the cable across the deep water. Once it was across I cut all the ties and the cable sank gently to the seabed. Communications were soon 'THROUGH'.

Reg now lives near Exmouth and was brought to the Museum by ex-Cpl Thomas May 1961/72 who met Reg through the Torquay Branch of the RSA at his 100th Birthday Party. Thomas originally trained at Loughborough as a Special Operator (later Radio Op) and was one of the first to join the all regular Army. He saw service in East Africa as well as much of Europe before retiring from 7 Sig Regt. His father, Jack and two brothers, John and Billy, were all Royal Signals. We are thankful to him for bringing Reg to the Museum and we hope the day brought happy memories to you both.

Reg enjoyed a guided tour of the Museum and, after lunch in the Sergeants' Mess, was given a tour of Cable Systems Section, kindly hosted by HIO Mr Peter Rossall (Reg was once a Lineman).

THE MYSTERY OF FOEL GRACH - (or Where Has Fatty Gone?)
Foreword - Dear Readers, This is the story of the first adventure of the Five-Go-Doers of Basil Hill Preparatory School for Boys: Davey, Dicky, Johnny, Jimmy and Fatty. They all set out to have a whizzo time in Wales – three whole days of climbing really big hills, away from the clutches of their housemaster Mr Kelly, who had to stay behind to mark their latest homework instead…

Chapter 1 - It was excellent news for the boys of Basil Hill. Mr Hughes the Headmaster had very wisely decided to give them an additional holiday of three whole days! This was to make up for the cancelled school trip which should have taken place to the Peak District earlier in the year. 'What a super idea' exclaimed Jimmy, at the thought of walking up big hills in Wales. Dicky looked quite pensive however - after all, he was getting a little old for all this excitement! Meanwhile, in a quiet corner of the school library, Johnny and Davey were carefully drawing diagrams and maps with their best crayons on the back of an old cigarette carton which they had carefully concealed from Mr Kelly. Early the next morning our heroes met near the tennis courts, all ready to escape. Three days without having to listen to Mr Kelly's accounts of Canadian exploits in the Great War or how his MG is the fastest car in the whole of Wiltshire promised to be such fun! With thoughts of their big adventure in mind, our friends soon arrived in the beautiful mountains of Snowdonia.

Dicky, Johnny, Davey and Jimmy all prepared to start their big adventure

'Gosh, I'm jolly hungry,' proclaimed Jimmy, 'let's get some tuck before we start.' Just like his friend Fatty, Jimmy was always a little peckish! Having filled their knapsacks with lots of sticky-buns and ginger beer, our intrepid 'Go-Doers' headed into the mountains, happily following Johnny and his map. 'Come on Dicky, do hurry up!' shouted Johnny, Davey and Jimmy, who were already at the top of Pen Llithfig y Wrach – which is Welsh for Great Big Mountain, probably. Once Dicky had finally caught up, they all sat down together, had lashings of ginger beer and agreed that although it had been 'a beastly hard climb' it had also been 'such super fun!' Fatty incidentally, had already fallen way behind…

Laden down with sticky buns and ginger beer
Johnny and Jimmy take a well earned rest

'Bagsie my turn with the map', Davey exclaimed. Everyone agreed that Davey was terribly clever with a map, everyone except Johnny, Dicky and Jimmy in fact, but no one said anything! (Fatty still hadn't caught up by the way). As our young rag-a-muffins pushed their way along the ridgeline towards the ominous bulk of Carnedd Llewelyn, huge, dark, threatening clouds began to release buckets of rain and our intrepid adventurers soon became very, very wet. All except Johnny that is, who was by now clad head to foot in so many layers of top quality Lowe Alpine thermal and waterproof clothing that he'd been rendered quite deaf to the encouraging cries of his damp pals far ahead in the mist. They'd initially mistaken him for Fatty, so large and rotund had his silhouette become! Only the thought of scrummy Lancashire hotpot and tasty fruit pudding kept our boys looking up and driving on – especially poor Jimmy, whose tummy was now feeling very empty indeed.

Having conquered the 'beastly hard climb' of Pen Llithhg y Wrach, Davey enjoys the view

Our intrepid adventurers scampered over the rocks on the top of Foel Grach and eventually reached a little cottage-like hut. Soon our champions had their pots bubbling with tuck, the wonderful smell of which began wafting its way round the hut, under the door and across the mountain tops. 'I wonder where Fatty is?' said Dicky, prompted to thoughts of their portly friend by the lovely aroma. 'I wonder?' said Johnny, as he cooked his dinner on his top quality Trangia stove, 'It really is a mystery!' As they climbed into their sleeping bags, Jimmy said 'I'm jolly full now and exceedingly sleepy!' They all agreed that their little resting-place was hardly like a cottage at all really, but that it was none-the-less, a very comfortable little abode and they were all very happy.

Chapter 2 - 'Is anyone awake?' whispered Jimmy, repeating the question a little louder but still with no response. 'IS ANYONE AWAKE?' he shouted in final desperation. The rest of the party groaned and Johnny, as spokesman, responded 'We are now, you noisy buffoon!' Poor Jimmy had not slept well and promised himself that he would remember his sleeping mat next time. Poor Johnny had also not slept well, as he had foolishly decided to lay his top quality down-filled Rab sleeping bag between his two pals Jimmy and Dicky and the damp, stone wall of the little hut; he spent the entire night trying to fend off Jimmy's knees and Dicky's substantial backside, while at the same time avoiding being transformed into a plaster-cast of the wall. Soon enough, however, breakfast was being consumed, flasks were being filled and sleeping bags stowed in rucksacks. 'It seems so jolly strange without Fatty,' noted Davey. 'Yes it is,' said Dicky. (The fresh air and hard walking would have been so good for him he mused, in his usual honest approach to life.)

'Come on Dicky. Do hurry up!'
Poor Dicky shows he really is getting too old for all this excitement as he ascends Cwm Tryfan

Through the thick, damp mist the boys trudged south along the ridgeline taking in Carnedd Llewelyn, Carnedd Dafydd and Pen yr Ole Wen, before scrambling down into the warm and sunny valley below. Under the hard and unforgiving northern face of Tryfan, our heroes then took respite for a short time. Jimmy and Johnny thought Fatty would have been too scared to go into the mountains alone and decided they would walk along the Afon Llwgwag Valley floor in search of him. Three miles to the east was the little village of Capel Curig and – more specifically - Joe Brown's Café, which was hungry Jim's main objective really! Dicky and Davey decided they would stick with the planned route instead. It was jolly hot work, but Dicky and Davey soon ascended Cwm Tryfan and reached the spectacular ridgeline. An easy and very pleasant walk east over Y Foel Goch and Cefn y Capel soon had them reunited with Johnny and Jimmy.

Inside the warm café, with big mugs of hot chocolate and wedges of cake, they soon began to forget about all the hardships of the past two days and agreed that they would all go hill walking again very soon. Once back at school, our famous foursome went to find Fatty. 'Oh Fatty, you aren't half a lazy bones,' they all proclaimed. 'Watching telly, drinking ginger beer and eating pies will do you no good at all!'

FAREWELLS AND GREETINGS

The HQ recently bade sad farewells to Maj Frank Running, Mr Baz Hames and Mrs Val Craig. In turn, the warmest of greetings were extended to Maj Tony Shaw (who joins the TA Staff to 'do a real soldier's job' at long last), SSgt 'Dek' Painter (who joins the ND gang on a free transfer from 39 Sig Regt (V)), Mrs Sarah Pegler (who joins the Tupperware club in the Registry) and Miss Kate Westlake (who probably joins us because the alternative of having to say 'Do you want fries with that Sir' for a living was just too awful to contemplate).

CONGRATULATIONS

Sincerest congratulations to Capt (Retd) Ian Brownlee, who can now call himself Maj Brownlee – but only at weekends. Oh yes, Ian Brownlee – who was Kitchener's heliograph operator at Omdurman – is still the mild mannered, grey-suited SO3 ND of old during the week, but on one Saturday of every month, he slips into a filing cabinet, spins himself around like Wonder Woman and reappears as the green-suited, dagger-badged superhero of old ladies' dreams, Maj 'No more making the coffee' Brownlee of the TA Staff! Congratulations also to similarly recently promoted Maj Dave Drinkall, now the most overpaid part-time Army Officer, part-time used car salesman in the Corps. Dave intends to get to the bottom of another packet of corn flakes next week, where he hopes to find a plastic toy and a badge saying, 'I'm in the Kelloggs Klub.'

STILL LOOKING UP AND DRIVING ON TO THE MILLENNIUM

By the time this particular edition of The Wire has been published, Ex Autumn Belle 1 - the FTX aimed at preparing the Brigade for its deployment over the Millennium - will have happened and preparations will be well under way towards Y2K itself. For further information on the involvement of 2 (NC) Sig Bde on Op Surety, please contact Capt John Russell on (9) 4382 4343.

HEADQUARTERS
11 SIGNAL BRIGADE

It might be apparent to the more observant Wire reader that it has become a little more difficult of late to find members of the Headquarters in their offices. The cynics amongst you might put this down to the recent rationalisation of our office space. An event achieved with such rapidity that we are still waiting for the change of telephone numbers to catch up! However, the reality is that many of the Headquarters Staff are deployed to or involved in the extra work that has come with the appointment of Comd 11 Sig Bde, as Comd pan-Balkans CIS Strategy. Brig Cook was last seen boarding a flight to Skopje whispering something about 'more air miles' to his driver.

DELIVERING THE PJHQ PAN-BALKANS CIS STRATEGY

The need for the rapid commercialisation and/or contractorisation of CIS support in both Kosovo and Bosnia will be known and appreciated by many. The recommendation that the Commander and elements of Headquarters 11 Sig Bde deploy in November this year to provide the expertise currently provided by both HQ 1 Sig Bde and HQ MND(SW) led to a period of recce and preparation. The SO2 Log, Maj Rab Young, managed a quick visit to ensure that the there were no logistic problems for the team; shortest deployment recce in history, two evening meals and a promise to return (and no medal of course!) Currently 50% of the Headquarters Ops staff, SO2 Ops CIS-Maj Jim Foulkes, SO3 Ops CIS-Flt Lt Farid Khan and our SO3 CEC-Capt John Hiorns are now deployed to theatre for what will be an interesting and busy period. Back in Shropshire we look forward to their return. Particularly, SO3 COMSEC-Capt Jim Sykes, who now wilts under his extra work load. What was that school exam maths problem, 'If it takes five men six months to plan an Exercise, then it takes one man…'. When is Ex Able Condor 2000?

EXERCISE STAFF SAUNTER - a report by Maj Jean Payne TD

Ex Staff Saunter is the annual Brigade HQ 'practical map reading exercise'. Usually organised to take place in an upland area of UK on a weekend during the summer months, participants are expected to camp overnight, do their own catering and walk up to 15 miles a day. A consequence of these rigorous requirements is that participation in the Exercise is usually limited to the TA element of the HQ. Add an appalling weather forecast of heavy rain and gale-force winds and Ex Staff Saunter '99 was no exception to the norm with excuses coming thick and fast (broken toe, painting the house, working on my hand-over notes etc etc). On the Friday evening the gallant band of navigators (all two of us, namely Maj Jean Payne and Maj Catriona Millar gathered at the campsite in Edale prior to ensuring full hydration at the local hostel. Saturday dawned windy but still dry and after an excellent breakfast produced by the hired help, Maj (Retd) Andy Payne, the Exercise participants departed on the day's chosen walk around the 'Edale Skyline'. The walk gave ample opportunities to practice our map and compass work, at one point narrowly avoiding heading off into the peat bogs of Kinder Scout, saved by the realisation that the rapidly disappearing fell runners were on the path that we should be on. Like all well trained soldiers, by avoiding all the tops of the hills our route carefully kept us from being sky-lined, this also had the additional benefit of keeping us from being blown away by the rapidly increasing wind. By Sunday morning the promised rain arrived and it was time to implement Plan B, instead of further navigation on Kinder Scout, it was a chance to practice underground route choice, with the chosen vehicle being a boat. Speedwell Caverns were visited and we learnt all manner of useful information about lead mining and the cave systems of the Peak District, whilst travelling along the passages of a long abandoned Lead mine. After a short visit to Castleton we dispersed to home locations. Once again Ex Staff Saunter proved to be an enjoyable Exercise.

HAIL AND FAREWELL

The turnover of staff has continued with the arrival of four new majors and a chief clerk. August saw the departure of our DCOS, Maj Mike Wise who did not just leave the Headquarters but the Corps and Army as well. I give no credence to the rumour that the reason he gave for leaving is the boredom due to the short hours and numerous golfing days; it is amazing the way these rumours start. He leaves us for civilian life and will be missed for, amongst other things, his professionalism, his wide ranging abilities, his sense of humour and helpfulness. We wish him and Rebecca all the best in their new life and much happiness. His replacement Maj Steve Johns is now firmly in the chair. We wish him and Nicole an enjoyable tour. To Maj Jim Foulkes, who is our new SO2 Ops/CIS we offer our welcome; he had only been here five weeks when the Commander despatched him to Pristina; see you in six months Jim! We also hope that he and Mandy also enjoy their tour with us, and for the most part it remains accompanied.

We have also said our farewells to our COS, Maj Paul Hudson who has left us for Blandford and HQ R Signals. Paul's capacity for working long hours is almost legendary, so we hope Blandford can cope! We hope both him and Beth have an enjoyable tour in Blandford and a return to normal family life! His replacement is Maj Dick Sparshatt and we welcome both him and Louise to Shropshire. Our SO1(V) Lt Col Steve Potter TD having decided he has learnt all that was on offer in the Headquarters in the six months he has been with us, has left to command 35 Sig Regt (V). There is no truth in the scurrilous remark that he has had more telephone calls from this Headquarters since taking Command than he ever did as SO1. But there is a more positive rumour that he is coming back to finish his staff tour when his tour in Command finishes! You all know how these rumours have a habit of coming true! We wish him a successful and prosperous Command. His replacement is Lt Col Ian Puddy who stays with the Headquarters on promotion

We have also said farewell to our Chief Clerk, WO2 Kath Fenlon AGC, who leaves us on retirement. Apart from her helpfulness, professionalism and 'Bon Vie', 'Q' will be remembered for her willingness to write wire notes and her request for a 'Jimmy' as a leaving present. Our new Chief Clerk, WO2 Shaun Flannery, joins us from 15 Regiment Royal Logistic Corps on its closure; 'same station different barracks'.

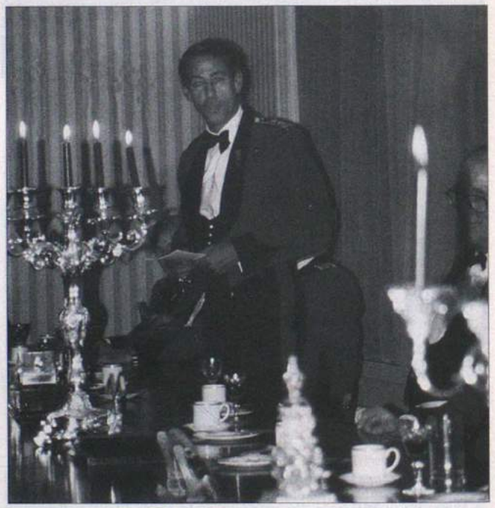
INVESTORS IN PEOPLE ACCREDITATION

The presentation of IIP plaques, flags and certificates in recognition of the Headquarters, 2 and 30 Signal Regiments achieving the Investors in People standard took place on Friday 22 October. The presentation was made by Mrs Angie Robinson, Chief Executive of the Shropshire Chamber of Commerce who expressed how delighted she was with our achievement, particularly in light of the heavy operational commitment throughout the Brigade during the assessment process. The presentation was followed by a lunch for the Headquarters military and civilian staff in the Officers Mess.

BRIGADE STUDY DAY 23 OCTOBER 1999

Friday the 22 October 1999 saw the Commander, hosting an informal fork supper in the Donnington Officers Mess for early arrivals. The theme for the weekend was 'Wherefore 11 Signal Brigade' and in all some 120 officers, warrant officers and guest speakers attended. Interesting and informative presentations were given by the home team starting with our COS, Maj Dick Sparshatt , 'The Brigade in Barracks' and the COs of 2 and 30 Sig Regts, Lt Col Chris Wakerley MBE and Lt Col Mike Lithgow MBE 'The Brigade on Operations'. The final session of the morning was a very full presentation on 'TA Mobilisation' by CO 34 Sig Regt (V), Lt Col David Hargreaves. It was so full it led to accusations of stealing thunder (!) from our first guest speaker of the afternoon Lt Gen Sir John Deverell KCB OBE, who as DCinC in IGTA, gave a talk on 'The Utility of the TA'. Further presentations were given by Brig James Shaw MBE, ACOS G6 HQ LAND, and Col Paul Acda, Col TA R Signals and on 'The View from Land Command' and 'The TA'. Brig David Lynam MBE, DEC(CC&II), (quote a catchy little unquote!) turned what could have been a very dry subject, 'The Equipment Programme' into an attention grabbing session.

After a quick change into Mess kit the penultimate event of the evening was a Keynote address 'The Corps Vision', given with his normal panache, by the SOinC(A). From this we were led by a Gurkha piper, courtesy 30 Sig Regt, to a dinner, that had been organised by our DCOS, Maj Steve Johns and our SO2 Log, Maj Rab Young, and which proved an excellent reward for our labours!



The Commander closes the day

TRAINING

CO's FAREWELL

Just about the last duty for the outgoing CO, Lt Col Terry Canham, was to start the final Commanders Run of the year which took place on Thursday 30 September 1999. The CO addressed the Regiment beforehand and awarded Regimental Sports Colours to Sigs Greenhalgh and Lake for Athletics, and Sig Muir for Swimming. He was then presented with a gift from the Junior Ranks by the youngest member of the Regiment, Sig Smart of Kohima Tp. She was to celebrate her 17th birthday the following day. The Regiment then formed a Guard of Honour for the CO, who was pulled along in the Regimental Boat, from RHQ to the race start area on the Craddock Playing Fields. This was a fitting occasion to say farewell to the CO who has been a strong supporter of the Commanders Run. He has been a leading light in the promotion of sport within the Garrison and his 'Sport for All' initiative has lit the 'Blue Touch Paper' for many individuals. The Corps sports teams will be reaping the benefits for many years to come. The Regiment thanks the CO for his dedication to duty throughout his tour and wish both him and Frances a more relaxing tour at SHAPE in Belgium.

THE INTER-SQUADRON CROSS-COUNTRY CHAMPIONSHIPS

This particular Commander's Run also doubled as the Harrogate Cup, Inter Squadron Cross Country Championships. The first 50 finishers from each Squadron would score towards the overall result. The running conditions were perfect for the 650 or so that lined up at the start. The CO started the race with the drop of a flag and only just escaped being run down by the mass of runners hoping for a good start. The competitors completed 15 laps of the Craddock and headed up the road towards Engineers Corner. The Permanent Staff were well represented in the leading pack, with Maj Brown (2IC), WO2 (SSM) Thomas (2 Sqn) and Sgt Newman (QM Dept). After three miles a group of three runners from 3 Sqn had forged clear and they managed to keep that advantage until the finish. In the last half mile the eventual winner, Cpl Brown (no relation to the 2IC), went clear to win by five seconds. The battle for Second place went right to the line when Sig Ratna managed to beat Cpl Templeman by one second. 3 Sqn went on to become the Inter Squadron Champions. The Runners Up were 2 Sqn followed closely by 1 Sqn. The race was a thrilling event, with the first 20 runners finishing within two minutes of the winner, the first 100 within four minutes. The Commanders Run is now mothballed for the winter and will be run again next March. Missing it already!!

1 SQUADRON - EXERCISE RAGING RHINO III

Ex Raging Rhino is a 1 Sqn Exercise for Phase 2 soldiers undergoing training at RSS. The aim of the Exercise is to instruct and reinforce basic soldiering skills and admin in the field. After the first timing amendment, the dogs of war arrived on area X. SSgt 'Beirut' Butler as IC Exercise split the troops into two groups. After some quick scoff and a map reading refresher it was out on the ground for a night navigation exercise. Pre-arranged timings were met by all but one section and on return some of the DS were heard to mutter something about 'officers, maps and geographical embarrassment' (sorry Ma'am). Sgt 'Twiggie' Twigg then dazzled the trainees with a noise and lights demo. Then off to bed for a quick five hour sleep unless you were the 2IC who allegedly was in bed for 2130hrs.

The next day took the form of a round robin with: Unarmed Combat, Section Attacks, Basha Building, Duties of a sentry and in spite of the bad (turning worse) weather, Sgt 'On ER ER Guard' Copley managed to keep their attention and enthusiasm with a little bayonet drill. Once this was finished it was kit on and into the harbour area that had been kindly organised by Cpl 'Mine's OK' Gillman. The position (appropriately named The Somme after the afternoon's rain) provided the setting for some strong character building. Shell scrapes looked like wading pools and bashas provided little respite from the horizontal rain. A change of socks, a warm meal, patrol orders and it was off for the tac night navigation to hone their skills. Cpl 'Compo' Compton is to be congratulated for managing to navigate between troop shelters on Warminster Ranges and returning his section less soaked than the others. Back in the harbour for night routine where the DS dispelled the rumours that sleeping in your wet kit 'ready for guard' was actually a good idea. The night passed without event apart from the odd soldier who needed slightly more encouragement to leave the comfort of their maggot for a turn on guard and the occasional interruption from Cpl 'AARRGGHH snakes' Askin.

The next day began at 0600hrs with a nice cup of tea brought round by the newly named SSgt 'Angry' Butler, except that he had forgotten the tea. Harbour routine continued with cooking, washing, weapon cleaning etc until they were crashed out by SSgt 'Very Angry' Butler for the navigation competition. Inspired by his encouragement, coerced by his threats (motivated by his promise of beer) the sections set off for the first leg of the competition. A good effort was made by all and in spite of (thanks to) the wettest weekend to date, many good lessons were learned.

EXERCISE CATTERICK CRUSADE

80 members of 2 Sq deployed to Salisbury Plain for a weekend of adventure and camping, under the label of Ex Catterick Crusade. The willing volunteers had been suspicious of the motives for the weekend jaunt, when they started to receive instructions in the art of packing a Bergen, navigation skills, ORP cooking, movement signals and how to put up a basha, by the Squadron cadre and section commanders during the build-up week. Their fears were finally realised as they were given a warning order on Wednesday evening culminating in orders on Friday before they deployed, given by SSgt 'Fran' Graham and SSgt 'Gaz' Cole.

The Section Commanders were a mixture of Tele Op (TG) and Tele Op (Sys) Upgraders who volunteered to give up their valuable free time to imbue the sections with the added bonus of their depth of knowledge and experience. The Squadron is indebted to their foresight and generosity. The two platoons (one from Iron Tp and one from Beaufighter Tp) were set down at the drop off point and had to make their way to the platoon harbour area. Beaufighter Tp managed to navigate with style and accuracy, however, Iron Tp made a few 'planned' diversions to admire the local flora and fauna. Eventually, both platoons were dug into their positions ready to deploy patrols during the hours of darkness. The patrols were successful, some even resulting in snap ambushes…

Maj 'Husky Voice' Tomkins deployed into the field at 0330hrs with the feeble excuse that she had had to preside as PMC at the COs dining-out. Her hip flask of port and marzipan petit fours went down extremely well - thanks Colonel! Saturday morning started with the traditional dawn attack by the enemy, masquerading as 2 Sqn cadre and assorted trainee SATTs. Bug-out skills were somewhat jaded, but WO2 (SSM) Thomas was floored by the mast guy ropes, before he managed to launch a smoke grenade into LCpl Yeomans' shell scrape.

The emphasis for the rest of the day was on teaching military skills to the trainees, on a round robin style circuit. All trainees and Lance Corporals alike hailed SSgt 'Gaz' Cole's Defence of a Communications Site stand as very informative and useful. Sgt 'Bob' Garlick's survival stand was popular to the non-squeamish, but not for Sig Smith 066, who turned white then green. Sgt 'Bob' Garlick would like to know if it was Sig Newton who took one of the rabbit's tails as a momento, as she certainly relished the gutting? The rumour concerning the black bag full of dead rabbits in the cleaner's cupboard, is true, but details will not be released to the press! SSgt 'Fran' Graham led the mine awareness stand and received avid attention from all trainees - aware that very soon they may be posted to a unit on tour in Bosnia, Croatia or Kosovo. WO2 (SSM) Thomas is to be congratulated for crawling through the mud 71 times to demonstrate how to throw a grenade, with Sig 'SAS' Fitten ably assisting behind the scenes (catching the grenades). Cpl 'Alfie' Alford's recognition stand highlighted the need for those with eyesight problems to bring their glasses on exercise! Unarmed combat caused a few bruises for the 'victims' who then got their own back during the skits.

There was light at the end of the tunnel, at the end of the day there was the evening barbecue and skits. Fortunately these were held under canvas during the downpour that occured after setting up new basha sites. LCpl Yeomans is to be congratulated on persuading his section to strip to 'Mess-Tin Order' whilst remaining fully clothed himself. Maj 'Husky Voice' Tomkins thoroughly enjoyed inspecting the section and a special mention must go to Sig Rich for his excellent turnout on parade! Sig Smith was volunteered by his section to be the only one in 'Mess Tin Order' to be inspected by the OC. Cpl Johnson's section performed an amusing take-off of Blind Date with three fine actors answering questions by the OC. The award for the best skit goes to LCpl Olver's section with their take-off of SSgt 'Gaz' Cole and Maj 'Husky Voice' Tomkins. Sig Norton must ensure that he never goes in front of his Tp SSgt or OC on orders….. WO2 (SSM) Thomas had wanted to act out the White Helmets with coat hangers as handlebars for the cadre skit. This idea was squashed by the cadre and instead the OC and the SSM bravely performed the 'Day in the Life of ….' sketch, involving a poncho, cold baked beans and a bucket of cold water. Sunday was devoted to Command Tasks where the Geordies of section 5, Sig Weallan and Sig Thomson, managed to make themselves understood and Sig Burke-Smith proved to be a capable leader. The scores at the end of the weekend for the best section went to LCpl Yeomans and section 6 and the most improved trainee to Sig Allan, narrowly beating Sig Fielding.

TRIANGULAR CONFERENCE 'GOES TO THE DOGS'

The excellent hosting by ATR Bassingbourn prompted the need for 11 Sig Regt to prove their social skills. To this end Maj 'Lou' Tomkins instructed Mr Elliott to arrange 'A Night at the Dogs'. The night began in true officer and senior style in that most were late, and those who were not passed the time in their respective Messes. Maj 'Johnny' Norris was lucky to make it at all in his death trap, and apparently was photographed on numerous occasions along the way. He finally arrived and the group set off all virgins in Dog gambling ways. Capt 'Outdoor man' Kenyon was convinced that being the owner of two dogs himself automatically qualified him to judge the winners. As a result SSM 'Racing Snake' Thomas decided to bet on whatever Capt Kenyon did not – that decision proved to cost him at least £3.50! The novice group added insult to injury when Capt 'Boggy' McAnulty decided that the hostess was a Kiwi, only to find out that she was in fact an Essex girl, so much for accent detection, but she is Northern Irish!! Maj 'Johnny' Norris didn't help by referring to the dogs continually as horses, nor did SSM Harriott when he stood up and dramatically announced 'There goes my mortgage' as his dog was losing, luckily Major 'thunderbird' Drummond saved him from the brink of disaster. Mr Elliott and Maj 'Lou' Tomkins proved to be the 'dark horses' of the evening whilst SSM Thomas proved to be the old 'nag', even after Mr Elliott advised that he bet on the hare. An excellent night was had by all, so it is now over to you Arborfield.

REGIMENTAL SPORTSMAN'S DINNER

Due to a strange amnesia phenomenon following the above event people experienced symptoms of sore heads, empty wallets and noise sensitivity. For that reason, this article is for the benefit of all those individuals who attended the Regimental Sportsman's Dinner as much as for those who did not attend. On the 15 September 1999 the inaugural 11 Sig Regt Sportsman's (any excuse for a party) Dinner was held in the function room of the Semaphore Arms. All food and drinks were free (which is always a bonus), as well as a target indicator that the event was extremely well organised by WO1 'Scouse' Sartorius. The food was prepared by our illustrious cookhouse staff who shocked us all by managing to prepare food which was hot, edible and even more surprisingly it wasn't pie and chips! In attendance were a host of Army, Corps and Regimental sportsmen and women including the Army drinking team elite in its field and other hangers on. There were also personalities from the regiment including, Lt Col Canham, Maj Brown himself an active sportsman and WO1 (RSM) Stonier. The dinner was held in order to acknowledge the sporting achievements of the Regiment's sportsmen and women after a very successful year of sporting endeavour. The main achievements for this year include:

ATHLETICS (Regimental Forrest Gumps)	Runners up Army Inter Unit Championships 5 Div Champions Morrison Cup Champions Highland Games winners of the team relay
BADMINTON (What can we say?)	3/5 Div Championship winners Army Championship winners
CRICKET (A bloke with big hands waiting for a tickle down the leg side)	3/5 Div Cricket Knockout Champions 3/5 Div League Cup Champions
HOCKEY (Umbrellas and white cricket balls)	Army Inter Unit Champions 3 Div Winter League winners
FENCING (Legal version)	Army Fencing Championships Aldershot: Inter Corp 3 man Team A – 3rd ,Team B - 3rd Inter Unit 3 man Team A – 2nd, Team B – 5t
BIATHLON (Blokes and gals good at two things)	5 Div Inter Unit Team Champions
TRIATHLON (As above but add one)	South West Modern Triathlon Masters Men and Open Team Winners Mens' National Open Champions
SWIMMING (Lycra clad Chicks, and less clad men)	Womens Army Inter Unit Swimming Championships
WATER POLO (You can lead a horse to water but you can't make it play polo)	Army Inter Unit Finals Runners Up
VOLLEYBALL (A sport for people who can't catch)	Div Womens' Champions Army Womens' Champions

These achievements and many more were highlighted in an address given by the CO, which also included specific individuals who excelled in their chosen sports. The speech culminated in the presentation of Regimental sporting colours and the awards for sportsman and sportswoman of the year. The Sportsman was Sig Dyson who represented the Corps and Regiment at cricket, played Regimental rugby and was a member of the team that won the British National Open Triathlon Championships. The Sportswoman was Sig Davies who represented the Army at rugby and athletics and was also a key member of the winning female Lanyard Trophy Team, unfortunately she was posted before we could get a photo. After the prize giving all those in attendance celebrated the Regiments sporting successes into the early hours, taking advantage of all the free lemonade! Sig Dyson was later taken ill with suspected Brasso poisoning after consuming copious amounts of the said lemonade from his sportsman of the year cup.

BRAEMAR GAMES 1999 - by Cpl Karl Hannah

After a very successful athletics season for 11 Sig Regt, there was only one thing left to do - to accept the challenge and go to the Royal Highland (Braemar) Games held annually in Scotland on the first Saturday in September, and win. Once at Braemar we found our accommodation, which we were to share with 17 Port and Maritime, RLC. Although only a scouts hut we found it to be a home from home. With no time to waste the sprint team donned their spikes and were off to check out the track. Not a tartan track in sight but a 300yard circular grass track with a grand and imposing arena lay before us.

The competition was an invitation medley relay for service units, consisting of a 150yd, two 300yds, and finishing with a 150yd sprint. The team was decided and training began. Apparently it was only a light session followed by a thorough warm down taken by ninja WO2 SSM ' I'll make you feel pain' Pete Tasker. On the Friday night in true soldier pre-event fashion we decided to see what the village had to offer, unfortunately there are photographs circulating to prove it. WO2 Tasker retired early, (he must have been worn out after beasting us!) and left the responsibility of care with Cpl Karl 'enjoy it' Hannah, who thought it necessary that we conduct a human relations exercise at the local disco before making it back to the accommodation.

The day of the big event arrived and all four sprinters were force fed breakfast cereal and toast ready for the big event. We qualified with a stylish 50yd lead and Cpl Brett 'Taz' Spruce was heard to say, 'That was easy and I only ran at 80%.' The afternoon brought the final with the stadium filled to its full capacity with 25,000 spectators. The patron of the games arrived and was none other than Her Majesty the Queen.

Adrenalin was pumping and nerves were high as the importance of the event came to light, our main opposition was a team from the RAF so we remained quietly confident. With the crack of the starting pistol, Sig 'Clint' Martin bolted like a startled rabbit and managed to pull away from the others before handing over to Sig 'Mike' Lake. A superb performance by Lake ensured a continuing lead before handing over to Cpl Brett Spruce who decided to give 100% this time. Sig 'Sid' Siddell then ran the final 150yds to a tremendous victory with an at least 100yd? lead over second place. Luckily the fabulous four had enough energy left for a lap of honour. The crowd went wild, especially their new found female fans. If it was good enough for the USA sprint team it was good enough for the Regiment, and it almost turned Sig 'Romeo' Lake into a pin up! The highlight of the day for Sig Lake the youngest member of the team was presented the Braemar shield by Her Majesty the Queen and Prince Philip. The shield itself dates back for many years and has only ever been won by the Corps on two other occasions. 11 Sig Regt now has made claim to it and with the Regiment's current record and determination to win, it is hoped that we will retain it next year.

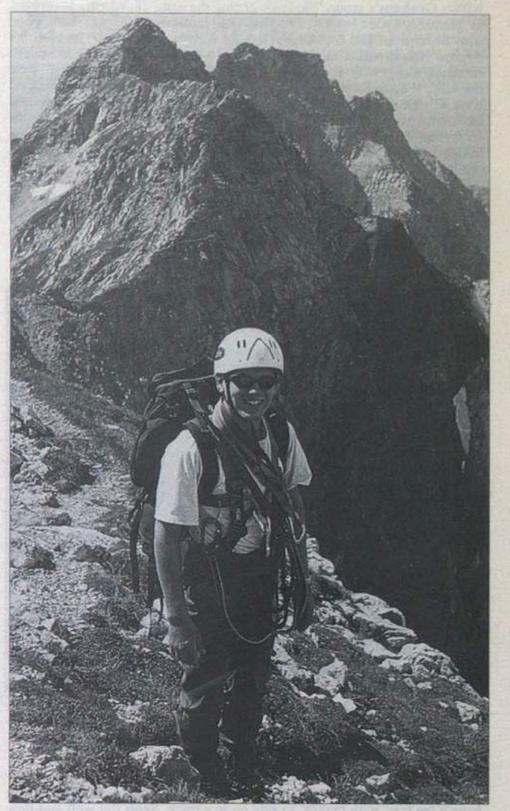
EXERCISE KLETTERSTEIG GRIDIRON 6–22 SEPTEMBER

Ex Kletttersteig Gridiron started off as an office escape plan for Maj Graham McNeill and before the Exercise was approved he had to promise to take 15 individuals with him to take in the sounds and sights of Bavaria and the Tyrol. Capt David Drinkall and SSgt Steve Crawford were his first two victims whom he persuaded to be instructors. The aim was to have three walking parties to complete as many klettersteigs, normally high ridge walking/scrambling paths which have plenty of protection secured to the mountain, in four locations and introduce soldiers to the alpine mountain hut system. At Blandford it is not that simple to find twelve volunteers who had the appropriate gap in their training programme to participate in the Exercise. So the various Troops worked well to provide a window of opportunity for 11 unsuspecting trainees and one volunteer, Cpl 'JR' Whitmey from the Tech Workshops who was into this mountaineering lark. To complete the team Sgt Andy Lockie or 'Admin Andy' who did a terrific job serving us tea and biscuits in bed first thing throughout the Exercise. I told them that technicians were useful for some things.

6 September - The escape from Blandford Camp did not start well, Sig 'Ski' Korzeniewski managed to fail his driving test that morning and faced the prospect of having to stay until he passed. Lucky for him that we were prepared to smuggle him out of camp at 1600hrs and finally the Exercise got under way.

7 September - The journey to BACB, Sonthofen was uneventful. Here we had arranged to collect vital climbing equipment which had not arrived. However, BACB did arrange an issue of their equipment which allowed us to travel on to Oberstdorf and set up camp ready for the next day. Sigs Richie Lambert, Chris Lowe, Tony Clark and Jon Hodson took quite some time to figure out how to erect an 8-man conquest tent. That effort proved to be easier than trying to cook their evening meal which resembled something I wouldn't feed the dog.

8 September - At last the first day climbing in the Alps. The Hindelanger klettersteig was the day's aim. All three groups decided that the cable car to the summit of the Nebelhorn was the only way to travel. Graham, Sig Tony Clark, Sig 'Ski' Korzeniewski, Sig Tim Dennant and Sig Will Browning started the day at the summit restaurant with 'kaffee and kuchen' taking in the clear views in brilliant sunshine. Once the sun block was applied it was time to make our way onto the klettersteig which was a short walk from the restaurant. David and his group, Sig Paul Jones, Sig Andy Jordan-White, Sig Dennis Long and Chris Lowe hit the rush hour traffic jam at the bottom of the first ladder which marks the start of the klettersteig, time to sit around and start to get nervous. Some individuals, like Tim, hid their nervousness by wearing dark sunglasses and making as much body contact with the rock as humanly possible. After a few cuts, scrapes and bruises a number of individuals decided that climbing properly might be a big help. There were no refusals at any point along the klettersteig, which was a surprise, and all three groups met up at the cable car station.



Sig Ski Korzeniewski at the end of the Hindelanger Klettersteig

At the Alpsee Station everyone volunteered to try the 'berg rollers', large adult sized scooters with industrial quality brakes, down to the valley bottom cable car station. All were warned to watch their speed at which Steve, Andy and Paul raced off. Half way down Andy had met a car coming up and had promptly crashed into the safety barrier breaking his collarbone, Graham had a blow-out in his rear wheel and had to walk most of the way down. The rest managed to make it down safely and without incident. That evening's entertainment was provided by Dennis at the indoor kartbahn. The electric go-karts easily reached 50kph and Dennis had to be reminded on numerous occasions that he was not in a dodgem, he was subsequently banned by the owner who was seen in tears when inspecting his wrecked go-kart.

9 September - It was a cold night and we were greeted with a superb weather to start our first two day walk. Unfortunately Andy had to remain at base camp with 'Admin Andy' and started practicing tasks single handed. Again it was up the cable car, this time the Kanzelwandbahn, and Steve's group Sig Richie Lambert, Sig Jon Hodson, Sig Scott Moran and Cpl 'JR' Whitmey stopped at the restaurant for 'kaffee and kuchen'. Apparently this was to revive Jon who had decided that maybe next time he will walk up and down the mountains as he did not feel terribly well when the cable car moved over any of the pylons. After three hours walking the start of the Mindelheimer Klettersteig loomed. Steve's group were leading and Jon had great problems persuading his hands to let go and grab the next rung up on the overhanging ladder. Paul, in David's, group decided that he couldn't go up or down until offered some gentle encouragement by David, the exact words were never discovered, but who cares they worked. Graham's group made it to the Mindelheim hut first at 1800hrs and made the arrangements for that evening. During dinner there was a definite buzz of excitement as stories were told and re-told with ever increasing exaggeration. Tony did take great care to point out that this living in mountain huts is much better than camping and cooking for ones self in the valleys. As it was an early start everyone had crashed out by 8 o'clock.

10 September - An early breakfast and on our way again in brilliant sunshine again. Dennis was trying to persuade David that he was going the wrong way, luckily the others in the group saw Steve venture off with his group following the sign for the Widderstein 2,500m, our next target. Dennis volunteered for more practice on map reading! On today's walk, within Graham's group 'Ski' was getting the hang of ordering skiwasser, he gradually spoke louder in English until understood by the waiter, good man to have around for Anglo/German relations. From the Widderstein Alpine Hut it was a mad dash up the Widderstein 2,500m in superb sunshine along with about 300 Germans and Austrians whom all chose the same time to ascend the mountain. Tim was miffed that there was no book to sign at the top, the rest of us only wanted a space to sit down and have lunch before the long trek down into Baad only 1,600m below us. Everyone met up at the restaurant closest to the car park consuming kaffee and kuchen. 'JR' has decided to start a mountaineer's guide book on 'kaffee and kuchen' in the Northern Limestone Alps.

11 September - The first travel day and a move to Seefeld via the American PX in Garmisch-Partenkirchen for those essential items to keep the team running well. 'Admin Andy' was getting to grips with this shopping lark although there were a number of items which none of us had ever heard of or seen before. He was made to sample any strange purchases before anyone in the walking groups was sacrificed.

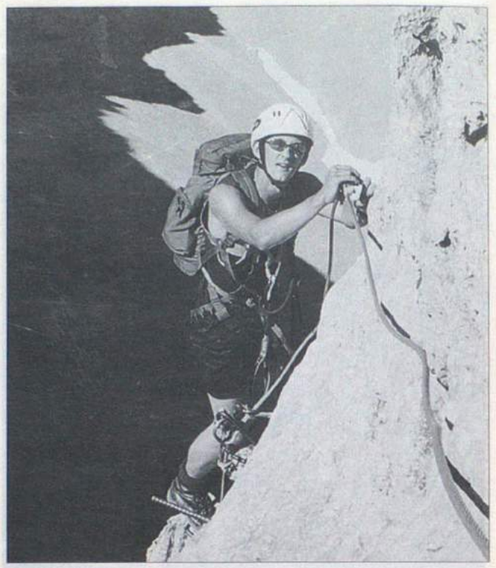
A quick stop at Leutasch to introduce everyone to a sommer roddelbahn proved good fun. It is similar to a bobbahn except that you have a tea tray, with brakes, to ride on in a track. Scott did well and flew out of the track at the first bend, he then went around asking what 'bremsen' meant on the signs prior to the bend, (Brake!). Andy was feeling brave by this stage and managed a couple of runs without further injury. There were a couple more who did not understand what was written on the track-side notices.

12 September - No need to say but the sun was out yet again, and out came the sun-block. A straight forward walk which Jon would enjoy as it started with a funicular train ride up the mountain but I forgot to tell him about the cable car from the Rossehutte to the Seefelderjoch. By this stage all the groups were starting to really enjoy the kaffee and kuchen phase prior to any physical exercise. Steve's group also noted that you had more weight to carry and in future decided that 'kaffee and kuchen' was alright at the end of the day. The Frieyungs Hohenweg klettersteig proved to be relatively straight forward except for the detour to the Kuhlochspitze 2,300m which required sure footedness up some very loose scree. The Solsteinhaus was reached by all the groups in plenty of time which allowed all the admin to be sorted out for the next day. Steve's group were all resting in the prone position when the other groups arrived and muttered something about 'kaffee and kuchen'.

13 September - It would take three hours hard walking to reach the start of the Innsbrucker Klettersteig which is marked by the Frau Hitt. Tony by this time was getting to grips with the map reading and was doing a good job of reading what was written on the signposts and following their advice, smart lad will go far. Steve led his group up the first climb on the klettersteig which looked relatively easy. However, Jon was still having problems making his hands let go and grab the rung above on the ladders especially the part which changed direction and went round a corner giving you a perfect view of the 1,500m drop onto the scree field below. Luckily Steve had thought ahead and loaned Jon the use of his bicycle clips which greatly improved 'JR's' sense of humour who was bringing up the rear. Paul also needed some of David's kind thoughtful words to ensure that he made it up the first climb. The first part of the klettersteig took 1.5 hrs and at least another four hours to complete the entire route. To ensure that we met the last cable car down to the valley the route was cut short. The tired faces at the restaurant confirmed that the correct decision had been made. Chris was also starting to have problems gripping the rock properly due to strained tendons in his left arm.



Sig Tim Dennant on the Innsbrucher Klettersteig

14 September - Time to move on again, this time to Kufstein for a three day expedition in the Wilder Kaiser.

15 September - No surprises this morning, the sun came up again and no clouds in the sky. Out came the sun block and dark sunglasses. The Sheffeurer start point was the Wilder Kaiser chair-lift which caused a number of problems for some individuals. Richie tried to figure out how to carry his walking poles and rucksack whilst trying to plant his bottom on the chair lift, a very interesting sight. One armed Andy couldn't close the safety gate as it was on the wrong side for his good arm to operate, he did look rather white by the time he reached the top. 'JR' was the old hand at most of the activities and definitely led the way to the start of the Sheffeurer north face and the klettersteig. The climbing was easy but 800m of constant up began to wear after two hours. What goes up must come down followed by a rather long walk to the Grutten hut.

16 September - The Ellmauer Halt 2,300m summit was 2.5hrs from the mountain hut and the first morning that the sun was not around to greet us, but that did not last long. The mist very quickly burnt off and out came the sun block. Dennis was getting better at sign reading and David's group started off in the correct direction. The other groups all had appointed map readers who appeared to just follow Dennis, dangerous! It wasn't long before we had to stop and don all our kit for the climb up the klettersteig. 'JR' had an interesting problem not far from the summit as to which route to take, up the gorge or along the open face with plenty of drop. Steve could rely on 'JR' to choose the long drop option and out came the bicycle clips again. As a direct result Graham's group who were following decided that the gorge would be far more interesting and cleaner. Once on the top all the Austrians seemed to be going back down the same way they had come up, what was wrong with the route along the ridge and down to the opposite valley? Well it did not take long to find out the answer, the klettersteig was seriously harder with limited protection. Tim by this time was gaining in confidence and preferred to lead Graham's group. His one handed swinging rock moves really impressed everyone especially Tim when on one occasion it was pointed out afterwards that he had failed to clip into the protection. The groups didn't make the Stripsenjochhaus until late to find the Austrian Army on manoeuvres and using the mountain hut as a base. Their mountain troops get issued with some very nice equipment, none of it went missing, honest!

17 September - The climb to the Goring Halt klettersteig was relatively simple due mainly to the mist which prevented everyone from seeing exactly how high they were. That lasted until 1100hrs, by which time the sun had burnt off any mist. By comparison this was the easiest climb in the Wilder Kaiser and all groups quickly reach the assigned restaurant for 'kaffee and kuchen'.

18 September - Travelling time again, and a welcome rest day for the weary. The injury list was growing: Andy with a broken collarbone; Chris with severely strained wrist tendons: Paul who looked like a leopard except his spots were red; Tim, now known as 'MIB', who didn't know how to take his sunglasses off. Back to Erwald and the attempt on the Zugspitze, the highest mountain in Germany, and a stay at the Tiroller Zugspitzebahn Camping. Once at the camping site Chris, Dennis, Jon, Paul, Will, 'JR' and 'Admin Andy' all looked suspiciously clean and well groomed. Upon investigation the cause was found to be the sauna, steam room, jacuzzi and rest room which was frequented by scantily dressed, no naked, women. This was the only time that individuals did not require hounding about their personal hygiene.

19 September - The first walk was a gentle stroll up a beautiful gorge to the Hollentalanger hut. Dennis was up to his old tricks again and caused all sorts of problems for David to sort out when trying to get his group through the turnstile into the gorge. His limited German of, 'Ein beer bitter,' wasn't getting him very far, he must learn another phrase

On the Zugspitze looking down the Hollental

soon! Once at the hut the only activity was sun worshipping and sipping skiwasser. The only restful day walk of the entire exercise with the prospect of a 1,600m climb to the summit of the Zugspitze 2,964m to follow.

20 September - An early breakfast and another outstanding day on the weather front. Jon was leading Steve's group with great confidence, no cable car to ruin the day, across some particularly difficult parts of the klettersteig. Everyone was very surprised at the permanent snow at the Hollentalferner which looked more like a small glacier with rather large crevasses. Richie was not very happy about the noises which the slow creeping glacier made, and would have raced ahead if he had not been grabbed by Steve. By this stage everyone had the confidence to move with ease on the klettersteig, a big difference from the first day on the Hindelanger. Once at the top Will realised that it was a little cold due to the altitude and wind, I think this was the first time he actually put a tee-shirt on while walking. The weather throughout the Exercise had greatly aided us in completing every walk planned in the ATFA, a very rare feat. The bad news for Jon dawned on him when he realised Steve wasn't going to walk down to the camp site. He did though manage to complete his last cable car ride sitting down staring at the floor which I am sure only made matters worse.

21 September - It was an early start yet again, but this was the last, and off to BACB to hand in the loaned equipment. Once that had been completed a programmed stop at Hiedelberg loomed and shopping at the PX. Both mini buses were packed but everyone seemed to squeeze in their latest acquisitions. Next came the dash for the 2100hrs ferry leaving Oostende for Dover, the next crossing was not until 0800hrs the following morning. After two traffic jams, one detour for petrol and an admin stop mini bus one driven by Steve, now known a 'Damon Hill' arrived at Oostende with 17 minutes to spare. 'Admin Andy' kept everyone guessing and cut things rather fine, leaving himself and seven worried passengers only three minutes to spare before the ferry set sail, lucky boy!

22 September - There were no further incidents and the expedition arrived back at Blandford Camp in the small hours of the morning. It was agreed to meet later once everyone had some sleep which proved a wise decision. There was a vast number of experiences packed into a short period which had been enjoyed by all, even the injured whom had plenty of alternative activities to keep themselves occupied.

THE ROYAL SCHOOL OF SIGNALS

AREA SYSTEMS GROUP

OC Maj Adrian Pearce
SSM WO2 (SSM) Tony Manktelow
FofS WO1 (FofS) Phil Cutforth MBE

It has been sometime since this particular Group within RSS contributed anything to The Wire and certainly Area Systems Group as we are now called has never done so. We have set fingers to keyboard in order to assure you that we are not all in Blandford for a rest cure and to embarrass as many members in the Group as possible to get the beers in. Area Systems Group consists of four Troops:

Kukri Tp who were too busy running the Group to write anything for this edition.

Battleaxe Tp who instruct in tactical trunk and fixed communications systems.

Sysex Tp who push the trainees to the limit on Ptarmigan field exercises.

Combat Support Troop who missed out when they were giving out imaginative names……

BATTLEAXE TROOP

Tp Comd Capt Phil 'Ravinelli' Day MBE
Tp SSgt SSgt 'Harry' Krishna QGS

There has been a period of change in Battleaxe Tp with Fixed Systems Tp being integrated into Battleaxe Tp under command of Capt Phil Day who has recently arrived on commissioning, and has repeatedly emphasised that he is a technical Tfe Officer not a TOT! This makes Battleaxe the largest Troop of SNCO's in the Training Division. His technical team is close at hand and comprises of WO2 (FofS) Robbie Windows (this is my twilight period) and SSgt (FofS) Karl Scaife to ensure that he is not led astray, apart from the compulsory visit to the golf course.

RADIO RELAY SECTION

Starting with a farewell to Sgt John 'Baby Smurf' Webber on posting to 7 Sig Regt and a hello to Sgt Max Wright, posting in from Sysex Tp. The beginning of the year saw the first Gurkha Radio Relay operators passing through Blandford with some excellent training results. Sgt Chas 'Papa Smurf' Cowell was able to improve his Language skills (Ram Ram to the guys in York) at the same time as looking after the youths of Bournemouth and organising 11 Sig's and the Corps dinghy sailing. Congratulations to Sgt Gaz 'Skeletor' Eastlake for crossing the 'fine line' and passing his RSSC, also to Sgt Mark 'The Chin' Tench on passing his Skillys course at Brecon. Sgts Shaun 'Stavros' Fleming and Mark 'Danny Ken' Yuill have had a busy period with the RSA weekend as lollipop men assisting the trainees with crossing the road. Meanwhile back at the ranch Sgt Andy 'Del Boy' Beel has been applying his MEL skills trekking around the Purbeck area, with the odd sideline here and there. Taking a look to the future, the section is preparing for the first wave of Area systems operators, starting in autumn, and the end of an era (the radio relay op as we know it). Sgt Chaz 'Papa Smurf' Cowell is preparing for civilian life due to leave the Corps after serving 22 happy years with the colours, good luck Chaz with the resettlement and a big pat on the back from the section. (Beers in).

RADIO RELAY BASIC COURSE (RYBR 3/99)

The end of an era has happened, almost unnoticed the last Radio Relay Basic Course has passed through the doors of Catterick Building. With the implementation of the new trades RYBR 3/99 is the last Radio Relay Course. The king is dead long live the Area Systems Operator!

DRAKE SQUARE EAST – TRADE TRAINING COMPLEX

SNCO I/C SSgt Mark Barrass

Located in the old Bowman building at Engineers Corner, the facility was initially put in place 18 months ago to cope with the otherwise overwhelming pressure on the Group caused by an increase in throughput. At the moment the facility and the staff of four run the training of Class 1 Tele Op (Sys) and assists with Class 1 Tele Op (RR) and Tele Tech Sys and command courses. The team is looking forward to running the training of the new Area Systems Operator in the New Year. This has coincided with the arrival of SSgt Mark 'What's Ptarmigan?' Barrass who replaces SSgt (now Mr) Terry Murrell who is now working in the NVQ office on camp – we wish him well in his new career. We recently completed a good RSIT inspection on our 18 installations, mostly dismounted, under the guidance of our 'tech bloke' Sgt Andy 'Power tools' Crabtree. We are now completing the instruction on what we hope will be the final two Tele Op (Sys) Class 1 courses.

SAT COMM SECTION

Mr Richard Boyd has now taken over Satcom section and Sgt Dave Davies has been posted in from 24 (Airmobile) Bde HQ & Sig Sqn (210). The next year looks like a busy one with the possibility of expanding to cover the training of the Military off-the-shelf Satcom Terminal (MOST) and two new terminals coming into service. This has heralded the arrival of Sgt Mary Hessell, who has moved over to Satcom Section from Tech Section. The UK/VSC 501 Enhancement programme is now all but complete and the training detachment, 'Umber' is now fully auto-tracking, which has made life easier for all the students, who previously had to climb up and down ladders every twenty minutes. In the months leading up to Christmas, DCSA will be conducting IP over Satcom trials and the validation of the new enhancements will continue. Anyone seeking more information on UK.VSC 501 courses or Satellite Communications in general can get hold of us on Blandford (94371) 2835.

FIXED SYSTEM SECTION

The following personnel have been posted into Fixed Systems Section: SSgt (FofS) Scaife, after passing his Foreman of Signals course. (Nothing like being thrown in at the deep end.) The following have left Fixed Systems Section: Maj (TOT) Doug Rackham - on promotion to work in the headquarters, WO2 (FofS) Overton - on promotion to civvy street after 22 years hard effort. He has kept in contact with the Troop and says he is doing very nicely thank you. Finally Sgt Bho 'Joda' Pradhan, off to start his Foreman of Signals course and Sgt Dharma off to Nepal to be in charge of the Nepal exchanges. The section has been under lots of pressure to deliver new subjects for the imminent merger of radio and systems technicians. The Section has gained four new Realitis exchanges and four new ISDX's for training purposes. These are being used to deliver training for both up-graders and basic technicians on how to operate and configure the Army exchanges, not to mention Cyprus and Falklands specialist courses. Work has been revolving around the faithful instructor PC, with a stag roster being implemented by Sgt Si 'Hans Solo' Welch to give instructors a fair chance to produce their handouts. Another activity organised by members of the Troop, has been sponsored parachute jumping for Whiz Kidz. The charity parachute weekend was organised by Sgt Dom 'Skywalker' Graham and raised £2500. Whiz Kidz organise large charity events all over the UK and if anyone is thinking of organising an event, they should contact Dom on Blandford mil 2585 for details.

SYSTEM EXERCISE TROOP

Tp Comd WO1 (FofS) Andy Owen
Tp SSgt SSgt Ian Lee

Primarily the Troop is here to instruct and assess Phase 2 trainees on working Ptarmigan detachments. We are also tasked with providing installations for FofS, YofS and Troop Commanders courses and putting on demonstrations. We are busy adjusting to the new format being implemented for the Phase 2 trainees. Therefore, after some minor glitches, the students should now reach the field army in a good frame of mind and with quality training behind them. RSIT again rears its ugly head so it's a busy time for us all. It has not all been hard work though and managed to get away for an excellent summer camp in Wales. To top it all off Sysex Tp won the Inter Troop Football for the fourth year running.

SYSTEMS SECTION

SNCO IC Sgt Dave Taylor

It has been a busy time at the systems garage Firstly, we would like to welcome Sgt Richie Morgan and Cpl Mick Heathcote and say goodbye to Cpl Rob Lyon who has a posting to PJHQ. Congratulations go to Cpl Daryl Tulk, for passing his Yeoman's selection and good luck on his course, also to Cpl Gill Ralley for her selection for promotion to Sergeant.

RADIO RELAY SECTION

SNCO IC Sgt Phil Cooper

Many changes have occurred in the last few months, with new faces and a new exercise format for the Phase 2 trainees. First of all, congratulations to Sgt Phil Cooper on his promotion, to Sgt Ian Strachan on his promotion and his posting to 4 CTT to work with Cadets

(we all thought he was one anyway!) Welcome to LCpl 'Woz' Wright and congratulations on the birth of his daughter Megan. Goodbyes go to Cpl Mark Gray, LCpl 'Ant' Morris and LCpl Gez Hinton who have all decided to hang up their uniforms and move on to civvy street. Goodbye also to LCpl Nelly Shillito posted to 4 Armd Bde and Cpl Daz Collins who moves on to 34 Sig Regt.

COMBAT SUPPORT TROOP

Tp Comd Capt (QGO) Navindra Bikramgurung
Tp SSgt SSgt Andy Craig

In what seems to have been one of the busiest periods in recent history, the Troop has seen many personality changes. Much work has gone on preparing for the new trades, Power Section with preparation for 16th Edition wiring qualifications and CSS with more fibre optics, structured wiring and LAN training. Sadly, the last ever Tele Mech course is well under way and due to finish early in the next millennium, the first Tele Mech+ (sorry Installation Technician) course having already started. We wish to take this opportunity to bid farewell and congratulations to Capt (QGO) Navindra Bikram Gurung as he departs on his long leave prior to taking up his post as Ghurka Major in Bramcote.

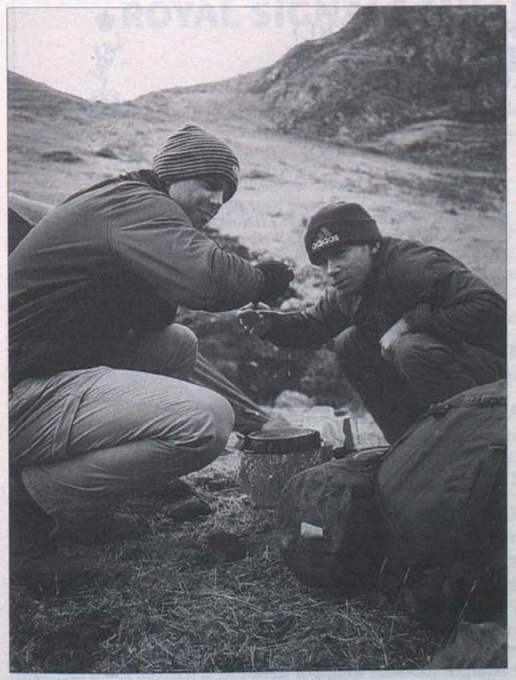
THE ROYAL MILITARY COLLEGE OF SCIENCE SHRIVENHAM

EXERCISE CORDILLERA PHEONIX 1999

By Lt Alex Hutton

Having finished the second year at the Royal Military College of Science and needing to fill a rather long summer break, five undergraduates decided to shun the possibility of one week walking in Wales and head out further afield. Peru seemed to provide an excellent destination, principally because it has a wealth of mountain ranges, in which you can experience high altitude walking, whilst remaining below the snow line. Add to this, spectacular scenery, cheap prices, Inca ruins and you have a fantastic place to visit. Consequently, come August 15, a team consisting of, leader Capt Andy Parfitt, Lt Alex Hutton, Capt Matt Everett RE, OCdt James King and OCdt Paul Stevens boarded a plane for Lima via Houston. The aims of the Exercise were to complete a circuit of the Cordillera Huayhuash (pronounced 'Why-wash') and to complete the popular 'Inca Trail'. The Huayhuash circuit is a 160km route that circumnavigates Peru's second highest mountain, Yerupaja and its surrounding peaks. The route covers altitudes between 2900 and 5100 metres, including six passes all over 4500 metres. The Inca Trail by comparison is far shorter, a mere 50km, ending at the Inca city of 'Machu Picchu and is therefore more of a tourist trail. Prior to attempting the Huayhuash circuit, we needed to acclimatise to the altitude.



Capt Andy Parfitt (Right) and OCdt Paul Stevens
enjoy their daily dose of porridge

The perfect place to do this proved to be Huaraz, 3100 metres up in the Cordillera Blanca. The Cordillera Blanca is the home of Huascaran, the highest peak in Peru. With 32 other peaks above 6000m it is a magnet for climbers and as the largest town in the valley, Huaraz has its fair share of 'gringos'. Whilst in the capital Lima we had found the clubhouse of the South American Explorers Club. Aside from being a good source of free coffee, they are the oracle for all things of a South American nature and had provided a card for 'Jo's Place'. Originally from Southampton, Jo has lived in Huaraz for the last ten years and was a font of local knowledge. He was also quite happy for us to, drape washing all over his back garden, use all his hot water, steal his copy of the Sunday Times and sit in his kitchen with a liberal supply of marmite on toast. All this was provided for a decidedly reasonable price of £2 a night per person and he therefore has the thorough recommendation of all team members.

After four days of acclimatisation walks the home comforts of 'Jo's Place' were left for the five hour bus journey to Chiquian and the start of the Huayhuash circuit. The guide book quotes the time needed to complete the circuit as twelve days, although this is on the understanding that donkeys are hired to carry most of the equipment. This is indeed what most sane people do and would also explain why for the first two days every local we met offered to hire us donkeys. They all departed in bewilderment when we told them that we were quite happy carrying our kit and fourteen days of rations (two days spare just in case). The first and last two days were mainly in valleys, gaining or losing height respectively, and consequently it was not until end of Day Two that the first snowy peaks were sighted. Altitude acclimatisation clearly progresses at different speeds for different people and for this reason by day 2Lt Alex Hutton had already earned the title of 'Team Railway Enthusiast' for a surprisingly realistic steam train impression, wheezing along at the back of the group. Day Three saw the first pass at 4700m and from here almost until the end of the circuit, it was a steady regime of a pass a day. Climbing up to the passes, however, affords some of the best views of the mountains and the scenery on these days was spectacular.

The team stops to admire the slopes of Yerapaja (6617m),
Peru's second highest mountain

By Day Four the daily diet of porridge for breakfast, soup with rice for lunch and a dehydrated meal for dinner was beginning to get somewhat dull. In fact for fast food freak OCdt Paul 'Burger and Fries' Stevens the situation was developing suicidal proportions. It was therefore no small celebration when on the evening of Day Four we found a local woman who was willing to sell us potatoes, which made an immeasurable difference to dehydrated shepherds pie. We were now on the Eastern side of the range which meant that all of the streams were principally snow-melt from the not too distant mountains and glaciers. This made for a rather chilly river crossing on Day Five, although most of the team were probably more concerned with staying upright and not going for a swim in the knee deep water. It was not unsurprising however, to find that OCdt James King 'cunning plan' to keep his boots dry by stepping into a plastic bin liner and attempting to shuffle his way across, proved to be a resounding failure. The water filter, which by Day Six was becoming increasingly difficult to pump water through, jammed defiantly by the end of the day. This put us onto our reserve method of purifying water using iodine, which makes for particularly foul tasting water. It was therefore decided to cut out two of the half days that we had planned to have and make a concerted effort to finish the circuit early. Consequently a longer than expected Day Seven made the possibility of using donkeys all the more appealing. The start of Day Eight entailed a 1200m climb over a distance of 6km up to a pass at 4800m and it had been decided before we set off that this factor alone made the climb a good candidate for our one try of what its like to be a civilian walker. We located an 'arriero' or 'man with donkeys' in the village at the bottom of the pass, paying him the equivalent of £13 to take three donkeys to carry four packs to the top of the pass. OCdt James King decided that using donkeys, even for 6km, was cheating and carried his pack to the top himself. The remainder of the team declined to join him in this feat, deciding that using donkeys for a morning was 'all part of the experience'.

Thankfully, Day Nine looked like a short day, beginning with what looked on the map like an easy 4km slope down to a river in the next valley. Three hours later we had part fallen, part hacked our way down to this river, having discovered that the path was a little more disused than we had anticipated. This put paid to our short day, although we consoled ourselves by stopping at the village of Pacllon and drinking their entire supply of coke. Naturally the sight of coke and some chocolate bars caused a crowd of children to quickly materialise. Unfortunately for them, we decided that we were too hungry and they looked to well fed to be able to prise any chocolate out of us. Finally on the last day, after the last 500m climb, the pain of which cannot be put into words, we arrived back at Chiquian.

The second part of the expedition was to walk the Inca Trail. This meant catching a flight from Lima to Cuzco in the centre of the country. Using a combination of bus and truck we made our way to the start of the trail and ran into our first group of tourists. Most tourists have no intention of carrying anything more than a day-sack and hire porters to carry their kit, pitch their tents and cook their food for them. We quickly discovered that for the best campsites we had to beat the porters to the day's resting place and pitch our tents first. Acclimatised though we were, racing porters who are exceptionally fit is quite a task. The cunning tactic we therefore employed was to get up and moving far earlier than the porters. This wasn't too difficult as of course they had to wait for their charges to wake up and have their breakfast first. The porters understandably have a counter tactic which we discovered as we arrived at 1030hrs on the penultimate day at the last campsite. Every piece of available ground had signs drawn in the dirt to reserve tent spaces. Naturally, all signs were duly ignored, a fact that launched Capt Andy Parfitt, into a heated debate with a porter on who should pitch whose tents where. Using a bit of pigeon Spanish, much gesticulation, some angry shouting and a bit of snappy tent erecting, the porter was 'persuaded' to pitch his tents elsewhere. Reputedly the best sight of Machu Picchu is at dawn from the 'Sun Gate', which is an hour's walking from the final campsite. Unfortunately, none of us can vouch for this as when we arrived just before 0600, the city was covered with cloud. This did lift later in the day allowing us some good views of the city. We were in agreement however, that Machu Picchu is a bit of an anticlimax after the Inca Trail . We all found that the most interesting and enjoyable part was the trail itself rather than the ruins at the end.

On return to Britain, it was universally agreed that the expedition had been both challenging and extremely enjoyable. Prior to the expedition all teams members, less Capt Matt Everett, had not gained any experience at high altitude. Peru provided the chance to ascend higher than is possible in Western Europe whilst not needing snow and ice skills. Peru is a country of fantastic scenery and friendly people. It is a great place to visit and can be thoroughly recommended as a excellent expedition destination.

NEWS FROM THE BALKANS

MULTI-NATIONAL BRIGADE (CENTRE) HEADQUARTERS & SIGNAL SQUADRON OPERATION AGRICOLA 2

Sqn Comd Maj P. D. Peel
RSM WO1(RSM) S. P. M. Mitchell

19 MECH BDE HQ & SIG SQN HAVE LANDED!

The Squadron is now fully deployed in Kosovo with departments and detachments spread to the four winds. Support Tp is split between two locations, Brigade Main at the Engineering Faculty and Echelon at the Bread Factory (who ate all the pies!).

NEWS FROM THE UNIVERSITY

Our arrival in theatre has coincided with the arrival of our new OC, Maj Peel and his wife Kay – welcome. We also welcome and congratulate WO2 (YofS) John Wright on his arrival and recent marriage to Kate (he is now spending a well-earned honeymoon in Pristina – nice!).

Life in the TECH/LAN/LAPD continues at a pace dealing with the numerous operational tasks that come our way. These tasks are wide ranging and include the laying of the cable infrastructure that supports the operation to soldering pairs of broken sunglasses! LCpl Andy Langan has managed to squeeze an entire tour's diseases into two weeks, firstly there was the case of tonsillitis then he stabbed himself in the hand before slipping into a mild case of food poisoning. He has now been removed from the 'sharp end' and is convalescing at ECH.....

BFBS are boosting the morale of all the soldiers within theatre by broadcasting requests from loved ones back home. The RSM is the latest recipient of one of these heart-warming messages – including the Boyzone song that accompanied it. The Foreman WO2 Andy Williams has been exercising his right of appeal under the Squadrons Equal Opportunities policy and categorically denies being a 'Welsh Git'. The 'teletubbies' fitness campaign is now in full swing but Foreman Ian Outterson has taken it a stage further as he has now enrolled on a Royal Marines 'Circus Strong-Man's' course. All he needs to do now is actually open the book.....

As a footnote the remainder of SHQ Troop would like to welcome Sgt Mark Brundle to the Operation, albeit late.....

HEADQUARTERS TROOP

Tp Comd Lt J. 'Chicken Chaser' Griffiths
Tp SSgt SSgt J. 'Puffing Billy' Smithurst

After four weeks well earned leave, the members of the newly formed HQ Tp returned to Catterick, ready to depart for some serious peacekeeping in the Balkans. Well most of them. Unfortunately Sig Tommo 'Gringo' Thomas and Sig Taff 'Tequila' Lado's grasp of world time zones meant that whilst everyone else was shaving off their holiday goatees and donning their berets, these two international adventurers were still sporting sombreros and droopy moustaches in Mexico. Anyway after this little hiccup and several delayed flights, (that of course were nothing to do with the RAF) we all arrived in downtown Pristina to take over the engineering faculty of the University from 204 Sig Sqn. The Troop was soon split up ready to depart to their various locations. LCpl Strasse 'My' Street took his merry band of armoured warriors to their Ech location, LCpl Chris 'Is anyone going to the Canadian Rear Link?' Bonham eventually whipped Sig Kate Addy and the rest of the radio room into shape, and Cpl Kev 'Fireman Sam' Kiff, LCpl 'Taff' Langley and LCpl Dave 'The rave' Moore looked after the SAN's. It was then down to the serious business of sorting out all the staff officer requirements. From signposting drains, to satellite TV, to stopping the conference room door squeaking, there was nothing too complex or challenging for SSgt J. Smithurst and his gang of Mr Fixits (apart from Sig '21D' Rakocevic raising the Squadron pennant). There was also a bit of comms to sort out as well.

Everyone has now settled down into a routine that should last at least 48hrs, but is definitely likely to change on arrival of another 200 staff officers from the National Support Element. The whole Troop is obviously looking forward to this immensely, and is sure they will continue the tradition of filling up the 'puffing billys' after using them, and not leaving empty water bottles in the wash tent. Meanwhile Sgt N. 'Hill 209' Hunt has nominated himself for at least two purple hearts after deploying to a patrol base in a Serb village for 36hrs. At the same time back in camp, SSgt J. 'Widow Twankey' Smithurst has been ensuring that everyone has freshly laundered underwear, whilst the locally employed cleaners are capable of a full muster parade in the morning. Throughout all this, the Troop commander continues to try and compete against the Brigadier's ADC in the 'Dress like the Chief of Staff' competition.

On a different note, congratulations must go to Cpl N. 'Scooter' Jones and Sgt A. 'Do I really have to go to Paris on a two week course?' Smith on their recent promotions. Best wishes also go out to the recent throng of troop marriages, including Sig G. '21D' Rakocevic, Sig 'Just trying to improve my Albanian' Cain and Cpl Gordon ' Anyone for boiled cabbage?' Alexander. No doubt there will be more tidings from the HQ Tp as we prepare for the move of the Headquarters at the end of October, the Pristina Millennium dome tent party, and the never ending quest for toilet ducks for the VIP ablutions.

ROVER TROOP

Tp Comd Lt J. E. Toze
Tp SSgt SSgt M. 'Zero parcels' O'Brien

Welcome to the Rover Troop Kosovo Experience. We begin our magical mystery tour around this land of delight and discovery with tales of daring as the members of Rover Tp spread themselves across theatre, from the high mountains of Goles and the Dr Dolittle RRB crew to the slipper city SWEBAT boys. From the culinary delights of fish three times a day at FINBAT and the mixed sauna tag team, to the infamous cabbage patch kids at CZECHRECCE. Not forgetting the dets at NORBAT, CANBAT, CANRECCE and KRWAU (Kosovo Rotary Wing Aviation Unit). Special mention must go to the troops very own special forces armoured RRB crew at Suvi Bunar North, who continue to undergo the harsh training regime of daily snake identification lessons and beer and TV deprivation. Not surprisingly the operational strain has begun to show on some members of the Corps Northern Squadron. Cpl 'Can I have a goat boss?' Mulligan, continues to harass the troop commander, who has been heard muttering darkly about postings to Benbecula. Sig 'Shaggy' Palmer has begun hunting mice with a machete whilst Sig Phil Moore continues to make the worst scoff in theatre. However, the Troop must take its hat off to Acting Field Marshall (Sig) Ayto for the army surplus self promotion scheme, nice try son. Back at the ech bat cave, the intrepid re-sup team strive to supply every demand however small or large it may be, from fuel to fly spray, carpet to cash. SSgt Mick O'Brien is rapidly becoming the Balkan 'Del-boy', and all KFOR bases have been alerted to the 'Scotsman bearing gifts', or not as the case may be. Of particular note was the water melon salesman who short changed him the equivalent of a few pence, being blissfully unaware of the Scots thrifty reputation. Sgt 'Mac' McGibbon has started a devious campaign of dropping his partner in crime in the proverbial, particularly with RMP sergeant majors, and parading naked at every opportunity (especially on the bread factory roof). The boss Lt Jez ' Lets have a briefing at 0130hrs' Toze continues to receive more parcels than the UNHCR, and cruises the highways in the protective custody of LCpl 'I can do a tour with four pairs of pants' Hankinson, although any more incidents on route dog and he may need a couple more pairs.

Congratulations go to Sig 'Media Queen' Knowles and Sig 'I've never seen so many naked blokes in my life' Kemp, who have both got married (although not to each other). Also promotion celebrations for Cpl Mulligan, Cpl 'Elvis the beast-master' Vickers, LCpl 'Nearly a Siggy' Langley and LCpl Thomas. Finally we look forward to floppy hat PT on Goles on Xmas morning and more of Cpl Kev Duggans 'Turdis' funfair rides.

ROYAL SIGNALS MILLENNIUM CELEBRATIONS AT BLANDFORD 15-21 MAY

A programme of sporting and social activities will take place at Blandford over the week 15-21 May, 2000, to celebrate the new millennium. The events will be open to members of the serving Corps, both TA and Regular, and all units are encouraged to participate. The programme will comprise of:

SPORTING COMPETITIONS

A number of sporting competitions will take place at, or around, Blandford and will include:

SOCCER	RUGBY	HOCKEY	GOLF	WINDSURFING
BADMINTON	SQUASH	SWIMMING	NETBALL	CRICKET
SAILING	TENNIS	BASKETBALL	JUDO	10 PIN BOWLING

Full details will be published nearer the date. In the meantime, if further information is required unit sports representatives should contact the relevant Corps Sports Secretary as listed in The White List.

ATHLETICS

The annual Morrison Cup Competition will take place at the Blandford Sports Stadium on 18-19 May, 2000.

ALL RANKS PARTY, FUNFAIR AND FIREWORKS DISPLAY

There will be a huge all ranks party at Blandford Camp centre on the evening of Friday 19 May. Entertainment will include live bands, discos, bars, restaurants, fairground rides and a fireworks display. The party will be open to all military personnel competing in or watching the week's sporting and athletics competitions and to those who are based at Blandford.

FREEDOM OF BLANDFORD PARADE

On Sunday 21 May a representative contingent of LAND units, drawn primarily from 249 Signal Squadron, will exercise the Corps' Freedom of Blandford. The parade will also involve a drive past by The White Helmets and include participation by Standard Bearers from a number of Branches of The Royal Signals Association. Spectators from the serving and retired Corps will be most welcome.

SHQ/RAO DEPARTMENT, PRISTINA – by Sig 'Stevie' Ware

First and foremost we would like to say farewell to WO2 'Tony' Barry and wish him all the best in his posting to 11 Sig Regt as RQMS. SSgt 'Steve' Behan has taken on the role as Echelon SSM and is doing a sterling job, as also is SSgt 'Foggy' Dewhurst who is running the SQMS. We've recently acquired the company of Cpl 'Spike I've done Kosovo on my own' Milliken on our team after he has already worked out here with the Italian, French, US and at the Apod and HQ KFOR. Sig 'Virge' Verrill has returned from R and R and is still on/off with his cyber chick Sonya from Canada. Our department recently ran a bingo night, which went down very well. The chefs were run away winners with the 250-DM flyer. Everybody's still working very hard though, and we're all looking forward now to our Ever-nearing return from theatre back to Krefeld for some much needed time off.

QUARTERMASTER'S (TECHNICAL) DEPARTMENT OPERATION AGRICOLA

QM Capt (QM) Ray Cory
RSM WO2 Neil James

Things in theatre have now entered the most hectic phase, the withdrawal of the Regimental assets to Krefeld. With stores stretched from one end of the country to the other, the task has at times seemed to be almost impossible. However, with the skills of the multi-regimental team that has evolved from this operation, things cannot possible go wrong (we hope). A fond farewell to Sgt Simon 'Gooner' Booth who is posted to 1 Div.

PS: Where is the real 0ET? PPS: Abbo will sort it out for you. Also goodbyes from theatre go to Sig 'Squeaky' Johnston (IV'd to Krefeld). Sig 'Chevron' Nolan, Good luck on your Tech course.

A warm welcome (picture the scene, its 40 in the shade) to new boy on the block Des 'Road Runner' Lang. Des who has just finished a marathon is now starting on his box of Mars Bars. Last and not least Hi to Sig Claire Patton and her mate Sig Olive 'Ginger' MacLeod. Oh, and Sig Chris Musgrave. Capt Ray 'I've been here longest' Cory has now returned back from R&R for a well deserved rest. WO2 Neil James who came out to cover the 14 days over the QMs R&R is still here seven weeks later. He's sorry now he only brought three pairs of pants. A mention must go to Sgt. 'The Gasman' McDonald, from 3 (UK) Div Sig Regt, who won the admiration and respect of the whole of Echelon for his ability to shoot the furthest in the great egg race. To close a thank you from all in the QM's to Maj Pierre 'allo allo' Britton, 1 Sig Bde, for the Photocopier and Hoover.

TECHNICAL MAINTENANCE TROOP

Well the 'Operational' Deployment is drawing to a close and whilst many peoples thoughts are on the impending return to civilisation and the pleasures that await i.e: Running HOT water and the like. TM Tp are still providing the highly competent and professional service which they have been providing since day one. To augment our strength there have been many new arrivals to help balance the gaps left by the departures to good old Krefeld. We would like to welcome SSgt Shaun Cook - straight from Northern Ireland and out to Theatre and his wife Belinda (who isn't in theatre!) Talk about out of the frying pan and into the fire! Also welcome to Sgt Paul Newell from AFCENT (about time he earned his T pay) and to LCpl's Dan Stein and Kev Taylor, both straight from the sausage factory. Welcome to one and all and we hope that you all enjoy your tours with The Flagship Regiment of the Corps!

With many elements of the Regiment now back in Krefeld several Troop members have left Kosovo to start the running of the Brand New workshops. After seven months of penance Sgt Ian Middlemiss (with a tear in his eye) bade a fond farewell to his 9 x 9 and is now as we speak (through forked tongues) trying to make sure that all the test equipment stays where it is (in the store room). Despite our hectic work schedule the morale of the Troop who remain to man the 'Thin Red Line' remains high, Capt (TOT) Dave 'Staff I need a Favour' O'Brian has recently been spotted wearing a rather natty pair of dessy wellies. 'It's what all the happening cats are wearing,' (Yeah OK). On the subject of Basha's Sgt Colin 'Save the black rat' Forester is nearing the end of his sponsored sleep out, 157 nights and still going strong, keep it up pal we know you can last out!

All work and no play as we all know makes Jack a dull boy so one Saturday evening the Troop organised an Inter-Departmental Games night. Due to the Two can rule several well known games had to be dropped. However, with a little bit of application and thought several new and untried games were put into the competition. The evening turned out very well. However, Sgt John Brady did have a few sticky moments explaining to the LAD that they couldn't get a double port as they had got the nail into the log first. (Two can rule lads!) The Stools was a favourite event for many people, Cpl Bobby Hill and LCpl Dan Hine were having quite an enjoyable time running the game especially when the QM got up to have his go. Everybody was rather impressed with the score he achieved (not bad for an old un) until it was pointed out that he was using the girlie weight!

Well if the movers can get it right we should be out of here very soon and we are all looking forward to our post Op Leave and Christmas at home with our families, to those of you out there in reader land who are deploying over here soon you can have it and ENJOY!

This current roulement of MND (SW) HQ and Sig Regt has seen the coming together of a variety of units from the Corps. It is a 20 Armd Bde deployment and 200 Sig Sqn are here in force with some 120 personnel deployed. Back-filling of the posts required has been provided by 249 Sig Sqn (AMF(L)), with 100 personnel deployed, and some 3 0 personnel from 1 (UK) Armd Div HQ and Sig Regt. There has a sizeable contribution from the TA, including 10 from 38 Sig Regt (V) - the CO's own unit.

Waiting for the off
The CO, RSM and others 'somewhere in Germany'

Despite the hectic state of affairs during the hand-over period and after, the Regiment has managed to keep up a steady run of events to break the 'ground hog day' syndrome in BLMF. First came the epic struggle between the Sgts' Mess and the Corporals. Events for the day ranged from basketball, football, rowing, volley ball and the obscure new Olympic sport of mat dragging. Sadly the event proved too much for some of the ageing SNCO's and the Corporals narrowly won the day which ended with a well deserved two cans. Next the Regiment played host to dignitaries from across Bosnia at the Multicultural Evening featuring the Royal Signals very own Capt Chris Preston blowing his own trumpet and a star impromptu appearance by Sig 'Elvis' Gallagher. Finally the All Ranks Vietnam Night which proved to be a huge success owed to the excellent enthusiasm shown by all in their fancy dress and the organisation of the event. The sangar style bar and the live band set the scene, and every one proceeded to have a brilliant night.

G5 PROJECTS - KULJAN1 SCHOOL

The G5 project at the Kuljani school has been handed over to the Regiment from the previous incumbents. The project has been well supported in the past and the efforts of WO1 (RSM) Terry Crane and Maj Ian Dudding have ensured that it has retained this level of support. Since our arrival in theatre there have been a number of visits to the school. These visits have involved the donation of outdoor furniture, painting of the school and the provision of a new roof. Most recently two new computers have been donated. Our resident PTI, LCpl 'Gym Queen' Douglas has also helped to run PT sessions with the pupils. Money for these projects has all been raised through the hard efforts of our predecessors and events run by soldiers now deployed with the Regiment. Soldiers from the Regiment have also willingly devoted their free time to help with projects at the school.

MND (SW) SIG REGT FOOTBALL TEAM

Since the arrival of the Regiment a real effort has been made to form a team from the various units deployed in BLMF. The team has so far played three matches with varying degrees of success. We managed to beat the Dutch 13G 6-1 in the first match and then lost to the Czech 13G 5-3 in the second one. By far the most enjoyable match has been against one of the local teams. Played on a very difficult surface it was a hard match with the likes of the Adjt, Capt Niall Stokoe doing his bit up front and Cpl 'I've got the best body in Banja Luka' Robertson posing in the middle of the park. The match ended in a three-all draw, but only after the referee, WO1 (RSM) Terry Crane, had awarded a penalty to the Regimental side in dying seconds. More games and match reports to follow.

It seemed like we had only been on our Hill Top Site for five minutes when the 12 Mech Recce team were on site checking it over, not that we were complaining. Most of the time here days just merge into a blur but we're already half way through the tour and the Golden Doss Bag Award could still be anyone's. The gym has recently been kitted out so when not asleep it's time to pump iron - Van Damme beware! As for the running routes there's more ups and downs than a David Ginola match. We have also acquired a Sat Phone system for calls to our loved ones. Being a cheap skate selling the phone cards and sticking to blueys is still the best option. The new additions to the det (Puppy and kitten) are growing fast and our weekly rubbish mountain has now been halved thanks to them. All that remains is for them to get properly det trained!

MOBILE TROOP - by Cpl Chris Noviss
Tp Comd Lt Paul Randell
Tp SSgt SSgt Steve Griffiths

Life on tour began at a frantic pace with Cpl Dave Thompson holding a runaway AFV 436 6km down treacherous mountain roads saving the life of the Troop OC - not quite important enough to earn another commendation! Not to be outdone the B Fleet sent forth LCpl Daz Walker who totalled the GOC's new Nissan Patrol, this all in week one! The carnage continued with LCpl Kelly MacGregor breaking her ankle and getting casevac'd. Once things quietened down the Troop embarked on Ex Mailed Fist, a brazen attempt to escape BLMF for 48hrs, deploying the Light HQ to Coralici and a RRB to Gola P. Things started to get interesting when the Troop OC became geographically embarrassed and we found ourselves in Croatia. After an hour spent trying to re-cross the border we were underway again, the HQ reaching Coralici and started comms testing under the guidance of Cpl Mat 'With Wings' Witham. Meanwhile the RRB crewed by Sig Neil Heritage and myself was still on the road. After coming across a JCO vehicle that had crashed, the opportunity to get off the Exercise was seized and we gave assistance until they were recovered, the RRB managing to reach Gola P before Endex.

The Troop returned to BLMF the following day and the escape committee is now planning for Ex Joint Resolve, a Div Exercise at the end of October. Aside from barbies, plastic palm trees, urinals, fire bells and the A Fleet's epic 360km road run to Drvar (with no breakdowns!!) life in the Troop continued to be a mundane existence with the exception of Sig Jim 'Elvis' Gallagher's first prize in the 'Dancing a jig in front of the GOC and assembled dignitaries whilst waiting on' competition.

Finally a fond farewell to the outgoing 501 crew Cpl Jase Beattie and 'Mac' MacDonald, LCpl Carl Turner and Sig 'Toby Juggs' Dudley and welcome to the Christmas crew of Cpl 'Loddy' Jones, LCpls 'Taff' Jenkins and Ben 'Elton' Whitley, Sigs 'Scouse' Bennet and 'Jaffa' Jefferson. Congratulations to LCpls Dave Haskell, 'Golden Boy' Samuel, Chris Noviss and 'Loddy' Jones on being selected for promotion.

On arrival in Banja Luka in August it was a case of, 'Oh no not again!' by the old sweats and 'What are we doing here?' by the first timers. FofS 'Just the man' Forbes started by explaining that he hates cowboys and the theatre Two Can Rule. The Troop quickly got to work on the discipline front with Sgt 'Where are my rounds' Tye gaining a mere £1000 fine. On the work front both maintenance teams have been out on the ground for several weeks on a winterisation programme which has proved to be highly successful on the communications side but not so good on the road runs as Sgt Gill 'I've got ANOTHER puncture' Brown can testify. With nearly half of the tour over everyone is now thinking where will we be this time next year and will Cpl Leanne Barker have tucked her shirt in by then or will Cpl 'Half a job' Hill actually complete a task. Finally hello to Sigs 'Basil Brush' Keen and 'Pochahontas' Pidhajeckjz (no this isn't a typing mistake!).

MOTOR TRANSPORT - by LCpl Mick Taylor

Since arriving on a four month tour of Bosnia in the infamous BLMF we have been on a non-stop roller coaster ride. With WO1 (TCWO) Dune 'Where's your seatbelt' Graham at the helm and Sgts Andy 'Peter Pan' Paling and Robbo 'Mines are Us' Robinson at his side the challenge is to control a crew of assorted soldiers pulled in from all arms. Along with the usual handful of R Signals lads, there's the RLC contingent and even a couple of Engineers. After the usual few days tip toeing around new faces, everyone got on fine with the usual characters coming out after the strictly enforced two cans. Sig 'Cheeky cockney con man' King has developed a bad habit of taking on the form of Frank Butcher the moment beer touches his lips and LCpl Mick Taylor who looks like being the only person ever to come to theatre and not travel a mile. The TCWO seems to have glued him into the chair in the Transport Control Cell. With the getting to know you time out of the way it was time for work, sorting the MT from the clapped out steam engine it was to the fine smooth running operation it is now. The learning curve for some of the younger drivers has been a steep one with the road conditions and local drivers never failing to surprise us with their driving skills which can only be compared to fairground dodgems at times. That said the lads have all managed well with only a few close shaves to confess to. Other than that things are going well and our time here is fast coming to an end. We're all looking forward to a break at Xmas and for the 249 boys sunny Norway awaits us sometime in January.

LAD - by WO2 (AQMS) Eddie McLellan

20 Armd Bde HQ & Sig Sqn have been deployed to the FRY for almost two months now. As lead unit the REME cover was to come from 20 Armd Bde REME LAD, and so to Bosnia I deployed 'pre-advance' with Sgt Ricky Goss of the URS, eagerly anticipating what was in store for us. Considering the last time I was in theatre was Op Grapple 1 (swing tilly light - pull up a sand bag!), I was to see a miraculous change in what I last saw as a war torn country! The hand-over was made easy by the outgoing unit having done much preparation (no big bones sticking too far out of the closet!). A few days of peace and it was time for the lads to arrive. No sooner was one flight in, than another followed and so on until all MND (SW) HQ & Sig Regt personnel were fully in barracks. It was noted that tradesmen had been attached from 249 Sig Sqn (AMF(L)), B Coy 1 Royal Scots, 6 RMP, 14 Sig Regt(EW), 1 Regt AAC, TA and Reservists. To top it all, the ED's have been attached to the LAD for administration purposes and God, did they need it! In their eagerness to get manpower into theatre, 249 had even cajoled their civilian fitter Andy 'Arthur' Pendragon into coming out as a reservist!! We are still trying to persuade him he's on holiday and when he gets back he should try for the 'Freebie' to Norway.

Joking apart, the lads have been magnificent, and have gelled together better than anyone would expect considering the widespread areas of expertise employed. Since arriving in theatre, they have reduced a large inherited workload (through stores demands - we're not slagging you off 1 Mech, honest!) and are finding more and more time to concentrate on the cosmetic side (No, not wearing make-up!). On average 300+ vehicles pass through the LAD per month with approximately another 70 for PRE. The URS lads are processing anything up to and above 1400 demands and the RSM is ordering more nut and bolt men and presentation pieces than we can cope with.

Life's not all hard work though. Being tasked as IC Adventure Training for the Regiment, most of the LAD Cfn and JNCO's have either been on or are going to BRAC to enjoy the rigours of manly outdoor pursuits. On top of this, we have been attending ES Leadership Training Days, EFP threshold tests, driver training for ED' ITD training, Regimental PT and much, much, more (Great sell, Q. Soon they'll all want to come here. NOT!).

It has been a busy couple of weeks for the rear party, with everyone deploying in the middle of August on Op Palatine. Back in sunny Paderborn the OC, Capt Nick O'Kelly, and Tp SSgt, SSgt Hank Capplenian have kept the rear party busy. Watch out MT, his knee is nearly fixed and as soon as it is he'll be on the first flight out.

On the function side we have had a popular barbecue and a picnic for the wives of the Squadron and Brigade HQ. All of these proved very popular (especially the bouncy castle for the 'Big Kids' amongst us, thank you Shelly and Sharon) and plans are set in place to have a function every two weeks for the duration of the deployment. The next big bash is planned for Halloween, so all of your wives will have dusted of their broomsticks in time to make it a really successful event. On Saturday 22 and Friday 24 September the wives committee hosted 'The Big Brew' in aid of SAFFA Forces Help in the Families Room and raised DM200. A big thank you to Anna Standen and Corrine Drew and all those that assisted.

We would like to welcome some new members of the rear party and Squadron. WO2 (RQMS) Beech and his family join us for 16 Sig Regt. Cpl Adele and LCpl Dave Robins join us from 7 Sig Regt accompanied by their son Lyndon. Hello to Sgt Jim Bean and his wife Tanya. Welcome also to Sgt Nigel Murray, Sigs Roy Brown, Bobby Hancock and Pte Leighton O'Callaghan. A big congratulations from the rear party to LCpls Si Harris, Dave Haskell and Dave Robins on their selection for promotion to Corporal. Finally congratulations to Sig Cath Blatcher on her recent marriage, and from all the Squadron wives 'Keep up the good work, keep the letters coming and for those who haven't already had it, looking forward to R&R'.

With more than two thirds of the Squadron deployed and no vehicles, having cunningly off-loaded our entire 110 fleet prior to deployment, you might be forgiven for thinking that life in Bulford was a little quiet. Not so. Approximately 30 of the Squadron have deployed with 7 Armd Bde HQ and Sig Sqn to Poland on Ex Ulan Eagle. Norway preparation continues, as this years deployment will be a full FTX as well as the usual Ski and Survival courses. There has also been time for a little light-hearted activities - including the new policy of opening the Squadron bar on Thursday after work. This is of course for the good and benefit of the Squadron as it raises much needed PRI funds.

HELICOPTER DUNKING DRILLS - by LCpl 'Johnny' Whitrow

Since the deployment of the Squadron to Bosnia, LCpl Nick 'You ain't seen me right!' Jenkins has decided to put our lives at risk at every opportunity with his crazy activities. His latest brainchild was Helicopter Dunking Drills at RNAS Yeovilton. This idea was met with a range of emotions from excitement to pure fear. A good example of the latter being Sig 'PJ' Lee who felt it necessary to test his breath holding skills the night before, finding to his horror that 12 seconds was all he could muster. His nerves exploded when, in the briefing at Yeovilton, the instructor remarked, 'You would probably have ten seconds air time if the helicopter landed in a muddy puddle in the desert.' After a quick change of underwear he was ready to go. The main thrust of the day was the actual simulator drills, four dunks ranging from the straight drop to the, 'Oh....let's roll you upside down and turn the lights off!' Even though there was much apprehension most of the team escaped unharmed, much to the disappointment of Doctor Evil - Nick Jenkins.

There were only two disappointments that must be mentioned for the purposes of public ridicule. Cpl 'Nic-Nac' Clifton the Squadron PTI, who, apparently through no fault of his own had a mechanical failure with his armbands and decided that one dunk was enough for him. Secondly there was the infamous breath holding champion himself, Sig Lee. Who, after some gentle persuasion by LCpl Johnny 'Get in there or I'll drown you myself' Whitrow, completed two dunks successfully. Unfortunately it came to an end when Sig 'Houdini' Robertson decided to take an unscheduled NAAFI break when we were 10ft deep, upside down, and in the pitch black - the thought of drowning crossed more than Sig Lee's mind. That said he did well, confronted his fears and survived. The day was an enjoyable break from the norm and we all took something away from the training - especially those who 'enjoyed' the near-death experience. A final mention for Sig Lee who managed to break his breath holding record by ten seconds. We eagerly await LCpl Nick Jenkins's next plan to reduce Squadron manning.

JEANS FOR GENES DAY - 8 OCTOBER 1999
by Sig Stokoe

On Friday 8 October, 225 Sig Sqn held a fund raising day for the Great Ormond Street charity 'Jeans for Genes Day'. This worthwhile cause is raising money for research and to make a breakthrough in finding effective therapies and long term treatments for the many recognised genetic disorders, including cystic fibrosis, haemophilia, sickle cell and baby in the bubble syndrome. Unfortunately some of these illnesses are life threatening and some hold no treatment as yet. Our role simply entailed the whole Squadron coming to work in jeans and paying one pound toward the charity. Money was also raised by myself and Cpl Cecil selling a variety of doughnuts, cakes and buns in the foyer of HQNI. The total amount raised was £300. I would like to thank everybody for donating towards the charity and all those who helped out with the running of the day itself.

THE BRAEMAR GATHERING
THE 1999 HIGHLAND GAMES - by Sig Grills

I had just returned from a week in the Brecon Beacons, only to find that it was a quick turnaround then I was back on the road again to travel to Scotland, for the impressive Braemar gathering. We set off bright and early in the morning in search of the Larne Ferry and from there to a brief admin stop at Sgt Jimmy Fox's house in Dundee, before arriving at our final destination of Barry Budden Training Camp. After we had quickly sorted out places to sleep and a quick change of clothes, we grabbed our best pulling kit and headed off to Dundee town centre for some hard training with a Dundee civilian team. After a couple of days of the Dundee 'Mardi Gras', we moved on along the long windy road to Braemar, encompassing some of the most beautiful views nature has to provide, ('Trigger' take note, drivers use both hands on the steering wheel whilst on roundabouts). After we established ourselves in a very Gucci campsite, with tents pitched, camp fire roaring and the team ready for some last minute training, we were disapprovingly informed that we were actually pitched in a car park. The bearer of the bad news just happened to be a bloke in a frock, (I'm told it's a kilt, but if it wasn't for the beard I think Cpl 'Dangerous Brian' McLean, would have tried to chat him up). So we moved again to a better spot just outside the village, next to the river and finally pitched our base camp there. That evening we went into Braemar for a route recce, during which time we had a look at the arena and the local hostelries. Whilst in town we met up again with two of the members of the Dundee training team. At this point we would like to express a big thank you to both Stevie and Davey, both from Dundee, for their help and the good festivities we all enjoyed whilst in Braemar. No doubt we will meet up again next year, so bring the beers lads. The day of the event fell upon many a sore head, as we upped sticks and moved to the venue for the games. The weigh-in was at about 9 o'clock, we weighed in about 20 kilo's short of the 640 mark. However, we naturally committed the team anyway.

Pre pull pep talk

Having been told to be back for 10.30, we strolled off as a team to make up for the missing weight by loading with big breakfasts and burgers, and sat outside a café watching the bands of the Pipes and Drums marching toward the arena. By this time, the town was alive with tourists and locals alike. We also met up with another friend of Sgt Fox's friends, who had just walked approximately 29 miles across the Highlands heading for Aviemore - only to be told that he was slightly off route and actually in Braemar! We returned from our food boost to the arena ready for our prearranged 10.30 start, only to be told that the timings had been brought forward for the first end to start at 10.00, thus the ATOWO refused to let us pull. We were then entered into the Falling Plate pull off. When our time came we marched into the arena only to face the mighty wrath of 4 R1R. We had a very good pull, but were beaten by two pulls to nothing.

15 Signal Regiment's Tug O' War Team in action

So that was the rather sudden and unfortunate end to our Highland Games, so from there we moved back to Barry Budden Camp, grabbed our kit and began a night's commiserating. Then it was back to the Province and back to work. Rest assured we will be back next season, intent on victory. Team members were: Lt 'Performance and cocktails' Balfour (Manager), Sgt 'Honest John' Fox (Coach), Cpl 'Knuckles' Nicholls, Cpl 'Dangerous Leprechaun' McLean, Cpl 'Go on love, do it for mummy!' Williams, LCpl 'Boy Wonder' Robson, LCpl 'Parmesan Milkshake' Wooton-Jones, Sig 'Mad Irish Fiesta Driver' Orr and finally myself, Sig 'Paddy Pantsdown' Grills.

EXERCISE MOUNTAIN FINN - by LCpl Milne

At 0430hrs on a dark, dismal morning in late August, ten members of HQN1 and 15 Sig Regt left Lisburn heading for the Brecon Beacons National Park. Ex Mountain Finn was designed to practice and test individuals in basic navigation skill, and develop teamwork and leadership skills. That was the plan! What should have been a simple, uneventful journey turned out to be something of an epic. After arriving on the mainland, we began the tedious journey along the M6 to Brecon. As we reached Wigan, both vehicles were in need of a fuel re-sup, so the hunt was on for the mandatory 'Shell Garage'. After what seemed like an eternity (and with the help of several police patrol cars and locals) we managed to locate what must have been the only Shell garage in that part of the North of England. Fully re-fuelled (vehicles and occupants) we embarked again on our journey. The remainder of the day was fairly uneventful until we reached the Brecon Beacons. Having driven the entire length (and occasionally the breadth!) of the country and with only 15 miles to go, it all went horribly wrong. Sig Jamie Goulty decided he would attempt to place his vehicle inside the rear of the preceding Minibus, learning the hard way that two into one definitely does not go! His vehicle was totally immobilised, but thankfully there were no injuries, and the job of shuttling ten personnel along with kit and adventure training stores began. Finally, at around 2100hrs, we had established a base camp at Tal-Y-Bont, and we settled down (or at least some of us did) to a well deserved night's sleep.

The following day we set out on our first walk, which was to cover a distance of about 20kms. The weather was not good, (what would you expect in Brecon in August?) and there were many shouts of, 'If it's not raining, it's not training!' etc. At the end of our first walk, we all returned to our base camp in order to prepare for the real training: Brecon by moonlight! We all passed that phase with flying colours, and the following day we awoke to scorching weather, which definitely did NOT help our hangovers. However, a good walk was just what we needed to clear our heads. A special mention must go to Sig Staple-Miles (S&M?) for being the Worlds biggest lightweight. On Sunday we took a trip to Hay-On-Wye, and conquered Hay Bluff (might as well have been Everest!) before attempting to educate ourselves in the town's bookshops and bookshops and bookshops.

Monday saw the biggest challenge of the week: 'The Fan Dance'. We had decided to finish in style, and climb to the top of Pen-Y-Fan, the highest peak in the Brecon Beacons, not once, but twice. The route was very straightforward, start at the bottom on one side straight over the top to the bottom of the other side, turn around and do it all again! The weather was extremely kind to us, and the temperature soared making the walking quite difficult. However, we all managed to more or less complete the route, and the view from the top of The Fan was well worth the effort. The day finished with a relaxing swim in Brecon, before returning to our Base Camp for a good night's sleep before beginning the long trip, tired and aching, back to Lisburn. Special thanks must go to SSgt Craig Marlowe, Sgt Nigel Smith and Sgt 'Tug' Wilson for organising a few days away from the rigours of 'Data Entry' and to Sig 'Paddy' Grills for being the man at the back!

HEADQUARTERS SQUADRON
MOTOR TRANSPORT TROOP

This last period has seen members of the Troop come and go in what has been a very busy time for those of us who are left. We welcome LCpl 'Laffs' Lafferty and LCpl 'Scouse' Latham who join us from 8 Bde and 3 Bde respectively. LCpl Shawn Watson and his lovely wife Tina, who have arrived from 21 Sig Regt, and then finally Sig Charlie Lister from 30 Sig Regt. May your tour be a happy one. Whilst LCpl Mick Partridge and LCpl 'Fitz' Fitzpatrick take it easy in Sunny Blandford on their trade reallocation course to Tele Mech. Congratulations and commiseration's go to Sig 'Huggs' Huggett for his commendable attempt at 264 selection - better luck next time. Impending postings are due for Sig Ian Holmes to 7 Bde, Sig Keith Lovell to 7 Sig Regt, Sig 'Huggs' Huggett to 249 Sig Sqn, Sig 'Tetley' Crossley to 11 Sig Regt and finally LCpl Gaz Evans to 2 Sig Regt. We all wish you well.

225 SIGNAL SQUADRON
NORTHERN IRELAND TRIATHLON CHAMPIONSHIPS 1999

Friday 10 September 1999, the big day. Had we trained enough? Had we packed all the kit? Would the bike hold together? All these questions and many more were running through our heads as we set off on a cold blustery morning. Ballykelly was our destination and with only three teams entered in the Minor Units competition the crack 225 triathlon team comprising Capt Nick Yardley, Capt Robin Carpenter, Sgt Chris Benson and Sgt Stu Murray had great aspirations of securing second place as news had filtered through that the ladies from 15 Sig Regt had pulled out. First into the pool was Capt Robin 'The fish' Carpenter, as he set off on the 500m swim everything was going according to plan. Then, after a strenuous three lengths he decided maybe swimming wasn't his thing after all and called it a day (how do Marines survive if they fall out of their boats?) The other three triathlon demigods successfully completed the swim and the 20km cycle ride, which turned out to be 20 miles with a gale thrown in for good measure. Next came the 5km run (Who measured this course?) and hopes were high of a good finish until Chris 'Omar' Benson ('Omar back, Omar leg') had to pull out with a bad back. Only kidding Chris. So only two of our legends finished but a good day was had by all and I think we have another convert to the sport in Capt Nick Yardley who appeared to enjoy himself no end.

SQUADRON HEADQUARTERS - by LCpl Quinn

The Squadron has just seen the arrival of the new Officer Commanding, Maj J. Tod, and has also gone through a bit of a revamp of its orbat. The 'real workers' within the squadron have been given the brand new title of Squadron Headquarters, which is a great improvement on the former title of Alpha Tp, which didn't reflect the grandeur that we deserve. Things have been hectic in the RQMS department over the last few months, what with the arrival of a keen new RQMS and also a Board of Officers, the department has been rushed of its feet. Welcome to WO2 (RQMS) Andy 'Got any fags' Hartley, who had to move all of 500 metres from 39 Inf Bde and Sig Sqn, hope you enjoy time with us in the stores world. Also a sad farewell to WO2 Paul 'Saddam the Taxi Driver' Downie, the old RQMS who has had to walk up a flight of stairs to his new all important position of SSM. A small message from the department to the SSM - Sir, you've changed! As expected the Board of Officers ran smoothly, due to the preparation involved in the weeks beforehand. It was nice to see Sgt Jimmy 'Och no, call the RMPs' Fox in work for a week or two during the preparation, glad to see you had time between Tug O' War, resettling and leave! The real work was put in by the JNCOs, namely Cpl Shane 'Old Sweat' Ackers, Cpl Ian 'I don't want to go on a road trip' Bennet and LCpl Jo 'Don't stress me out, I'm giving in smoking' Quinn. Well done everyone. The Squadrons' two resident drivers, collectively known as Happy Meal are still working long hours, and more importantly keeping us entertained. LCpl Kev 'Chip on my shoulder' James has finally put in his paperwork to sign off after threatening to do so for the past year, and LCpl Daz 'Nugget' Pullen is trying very hard to get himself certified officially insane. Capt 'Chippy' Carpenter is still doing his 'thing' in the Security Office, although he has lost WO2 Kev 'Crusty Old Tart' Connor, who has gone back to join the real world of the Territorials! Sgt Ian 'I'm nicer than Bob Palmer' Frame, and our resident clerk Alison are still making sure our mail gets through, and doing all the other fine things that clerks do in the Squadron Office.

ECHO TROOP - by Cpl Waites

September saw the hosting of the annual 15 Sig Regt Sports Persons Dinner. Echo Tp was well represented with SSgt Dunn, Cpl Waites and LCpl Halliday all receiving Regimental Colours for football from the Commanding Officer and Cpl Hill receiving Colours for Tug o' War. The Tug o' War team deserves special mention, being built around a core of Echo Tp personnel and doing well despite the stiff competition at the prestigious Braemar Gathering. The Troop also provided the meat of 225 Sig Sqn's successful CO's Cup Football, (SSgt Dunn, SSgt Piears, Cpl Waites, Cpl Hill, Cpl Burton, LCpl Halliday) and partially successful CO's Cup Rugby, (SSgt Dunn, SSgt Mars, Cpl Waites, Cpl Evans, Cpl Aldred, LCpl Marshall, LCpl Woodhouse) teams. Congratulations must go to LCpl Keen and LCpl Waites, who both passed the Section Commander's FIBUA Instructor course. LCpl Waites is the first female of any rank in the British Army to have passed this course. A brief hello to the many who've arrived and an even briefer goodbye to those who have left us.

GOLF TROOP

The past few months have seen a change in the structure of the Troop, with the amalgamation of the projects department (SECO) and IT Support Group (ITSG) into the Troop. Our new Technical Adjutant, Capt Ian Hargreaves with his 21C, WO2 (FofS) Tony Jenkins now commands the newly formed Troop. This new structure gives greater cohesion of technical support for the Squadron allowing improved co-operation and planning for all operational tasks. The projects section is now headed up by the newly promoted SSgt Gaz Walker with help from Cpl Phil Davies. The Information Technology Support Group is headed by WO2 George Murray with SSgt Paul Davey, Sgt Richie Gathercole, Cpl Dave Baldwin, Sgt Marie McChesney and Cpl Julie Phillips. Our new head of the workshop is the newly arrived SSgt (FofS) Simon Crowther who is being broken in with the help of his 'Fluffer' Sgt Stuart Murray and SSgt Bri Wilkins our Troop Staff Sergeant. Well done to Cpl Tony Cecil for coming off the board at last another Telemech Sergeant made it into the mess. Farewell to Cpl Tim Rigby who has left us on promotion to RAF Bruggen we all miss you. Welcome to a new batch of Techs Cpl Darren 'Toon Army Fool' Cranston, Cpl Matt 'Stalker' Williams, Sig Gaz 'The General' Stokoe and Sig Lee Stafford.

233 SIGNAL SQUADRON - SQUADRON HEADQUARTERS

Hello's: A warm welcome to both WO2 (SSM) Rob Dunseith from 7 Sig Regt and SSgt Kev Tierney 259 Sig Sqn. Sgt Robson also joins SHQ from COMMCEN Tp, to assist the SSM in running the squadron training wing. Goodbye's: A fond farewell to both WO2 (SSM) Shaun Day who is off to 4 Armd Bde and SSgt Jim Duncan on his way to 259 Sig Sqn. We wish them and their families all the best for the future. Congratulations and best wishes from all the squadron to the 2IC Squadron, Capt McColl (nee Walster), on her recent marriage. Finally, a quick 'hello-goodbye' to 2Lts Heidi Hughes and Elizabeth Maclennan who were attached to the Squadron for six weeks prior to starting their Troop Commander's course (lucky them!) Well, as Heidi managed to fit in two weeks in Andorra and Elizabeth a week in Scotland and a week patrolling with the QLR's, I think they both had an interesting and varied time. With the only low point being sea-sickness with the Navy (they were only on a loch!). Best of luck to you both.

MCKELVIE FOOTBALL - by LCpl Allen

COMMCEN Tp WIN! Yes COMMCEN Tp wins the McKelvie Cup 5-a-side football. It is true C Tp have won something, under the expert captaincy of LCpl Allen they won the title with a clean sweep beating all other teams in the Squadron. Now for the match reports (Highlights none bias?):

Game 1	C Tp vs TM Tp	1-0
Game 2	C Tp vs R Tp	4-1
Game 3	C Tp vs I Tp	2-0

Players that stood out and match facts:
Sig 'Cartman' Rhodes almost kept a clean sheet allowing only one goal past his goal-keeping talents (he was bigger than the goal!) Half-time came and words of encouragement were provided by SSgt 'I don't do losing' Gratrick, which had everyone too scared to lose. Other stars in the elite team (are you watching Kev) were Sigs Stevenson, Simpson, Pennock, Rodwell, Gorman, Pallis and Neesam the rumours that Gazza made a brief appearance have proven to be unfounded and finally congratulations to all. C Tp says bring on the next sporting challenge.

SUPERSTARS - by LCpl Peters
I, LCpl 'AX' Peters vow never to share a bright idea with anyone ever again, just one word to my old boss SSgt 'Jacko' Jackson on how we should hold a superstars competition. Next thing I know I've been told to organise a full day's competition, for the four Troops and SHQ, to commemorate 233 Sig Sqn 40th Anniversary on 1 September 1999. After two months of writing begging letters, tearing my hair out and harassing Sgt 'Robbo' Robson, the day of the event dawned. Regardless of the glitches and setbacks the entire day was a success. COMMCEN Troop won after competing in nine events which comprised of Golf, Football, Swimming, Basketball, Long Jump, Javelin, 200m Sprint and the piece-de-resistance a one and a half mile run followed by a gruelling gym test. The CO, Lt Col Rafferty, presented COMMCEN Tp with their well deserved trophy (another one yep hee), Capt 'Jules' McColl (OC C Tp) won an individual medal for best female over all. A good day was had by all.

THE HELLOS AND GOODBYES
Goodbye to SSgt 'Jacko' Jackson and Sgt 'Daisy' Mundy who leave NI smiling for the first time in 18 months. Sig 'Cartman' Rhodes who leaves us and is going to I Tp, to work on the help desk. Now we KNOW nothing is going to get done. Hello to SSgt 'Icky' Gratrick who arrives just in time to start a 'Save our Pegasus' Campaign with other Airborne members of the Regiment.

TECHNICAL MAINTENANCE TROOP
Once again we start with welcomes, goodbyes and congratulations to several members of the Troop, First of all a big welcome to WO2 Rick Gorman and wife Sharyn (yet someone else from 3 Div) taking over as Troop OC as well as Squadron Foreman, which should keep him busy what with sixty odd CR's to write! Next but by no way least is SSgt Flo Jarvis as the new workshops Staff Sergeant along with SSgt Kev Teirney who takes over as BTLO and Sqn Trg SSgt. Next in line are Cpls Al Walsh and Lee Rotherforth, LCpls Daz Flay, Steve Boyd, Lee Khair, Steve Perkins and Louise Parker (Pinky and Perky), Danni Tutton and Jay Lowe. Sigs Michele Raynor and Kerry Stewart follow up the rear (no pun intended). Welcome to the province we all hope that you have a safe and pleasant tour. Welcome also to SSgt Daz Ware on his return from yet another long period of absence. Just how he manages so much time off without even touching his leave is a mystery to us all. Recent escapees include SSgt Shaun Cook off to 7 Sig Regt via a Kosovo sightseeing tour. SSgt 'Bod' McDonald who once again managed to prove that records do occasionally get you what you want and went to AFCENT. Sig 'Hoss' Cartwright should have been on the beach in Cyprus along side Cpl 'Ant' Tranter and Sgt Ind but on the very day he was due to leave was posted to sunny Edinburgh instead! Cpl Sharon Lothian decided on a bit of greenery and went off to 1 Div and Sgt Kelly managed to find a sleepy hollow in the UK to finish off his service. Closer to home LCpl 'Aide' Field has moved the short distance across to India Tp so it'll be a while before we see him on PT again! Farewells on departure to civvy street go to ex-Sgt Cleggy Cleghorn and Cpl Al Hayhurst, we wish you both the very best of luck for the future. Congratulations go to Cpl Andy Carter and LCpl Sharon Pillans on promotion, and a well done and pat on the back to Sgt Dede Watts and wife Liz, on their new arrival Christopher (let the sleepless nights begin).
The Troop as ever has been heavily involved in the usual projects, activities and fastballs (which some say are to justify the extra pay) and on top of all this is the Squadron 'social activities'. The Troop has done rather well in the Squadron McKelvie Trophy sports competition coming second at the Football, Rugby, Softball and a first in the Hockey. More recently the All Stars Competition was not only a chance for everyone competing to embarrass themselves attempting the pull ups and dips, but also an opportunity for the SNCO's of the Troop to embarrass the JNCO's by beating them! After a bit of last minute rescheduling SSgt Mann has finally got the expedition to Andorra under way, and should hopefully be arriving in location as this is being written, details in the next edition.

CO Lt Col A. P. R. Roberts MBE
RSM WO1 (RSM) C. G. McGinley

Congratulations to SSgt Dave Watson who was recently awarded his Long Service and Good Conduct Medal by the Lord Lt of Co.Down. Also congratulations to WO1 Brotherston and SSgt Cassidy who were awarded with their Territorial Army Efficiency Medals.

DEPARTURES & ARRIVALS
At long last the final round of departures and arrivals is complete and the CO now has his brand new train set that he can play with for the next two years. August saw the change over of Adjutants from Capt Dominic Sharkey to Capt Andy Lucas as well as the arrival of Maj Graham Leyland as Trg Maj. The Regiment also welcomed into its fold WO1 Pete Hodson as Regtl FofS and SSgts Cassidy and Gallagher. Welcome to you all and good luck at 40. As well as Capt Sharkey we say farewell to SSgt Dave Watson, Sgt Brannon and LCpl Goodwin. Good luck to you all and many thanks for all your efforts during your time with 40 Sig Regt (V).

EXERCISE PEMBROKE FINN
Ex Pembroke Finn was the annual PSIs Adventure Training Exercise for 1999 and this year we decided to leave the wind and rain of N.Ireland and swap it for some more of the same at 14 Sig Regt (EW) Adventure Training Centre in Brawdy.
On arrival at Brawdy the Advance Party were met by Cpl Andy Anderton, who would take care of our every needs (what a good bloke!). The training consisted of walking the Pembrokeshire Coastal Path, a day of Sailing at Dale, a day climbing at Porthclais and an overnight canoe trip from Solva to Newgale. We also tried our hand at water skiing, sea fishing, golf and power boating. As with any Exercise of this nature some people deserve a special mention as a result of their strenuous efforts. On arrival it was decided that rank would take no place on the Exercise, 'Is that alright with you Sir? said Dave to the RSM, WO1 Chris McGinley, 'Just call me Cheryl', said the RSM. The REME Tiffy, SSgt John Voss (alias Jeremy Clarkson) did just that and called him 'Cheryl' for the remainder of the Exercise, much to Cheryl's displeasure. The evenings were spent at various social venues and Haverfordwest has lots of them (Not!), however, the evening spent at Brawdy Lanes deserves a special mention.
SSgt Harry 'Tenner says it isn't' Harrison decided to bet his life away on a game with SSgt Dave Watson. He lost badly and never really recovered. For the rest of the week he was a broken man, but then we're used to that by now. SSgt 'BJ' Finister mistook the event for the world championships and was duly dealt with by SSgt John Voss and his 'no rules' marking system. This almost brought BJ to tears, but after a few quiet words from LCpl John 'Dangerous' Dunwoody, BJ regained his composure and with a fresh layer of lipstick and eye shadow BJ went on to win well. Once the bowling was completed it was time to join Cheryl who was by now propping up everything except the bar. SSgt Harry Harrison had by now decided to take his bets to the pizza bar, betting Graham the manager that he couldn't make him a really big, no holds barred pizza. Graham gladly took up the challenge and within 15 minutes produced a pizza of monstrous proportions. What Harry didn't know was that Graham had doctored the pizza with chillies and chilli sauce. Ah lost again Harry, well never mind there's always next year! As the remainder of the lads suffered eating the pizza, Sgt Mick Simcock stood by with a fire extinguisher just in case. The team now led by Cheryl, decided to have a game of spoof. This was all new to Sgt Matt Murray who protested throughout the game that he didn't know the rules. The Exercise was extremely enjoyable and Brawdy really isn't that bad! Well, a week was okay.

ANNUAL CRICKET MATCH
The Annual Cricket Match between the Officers/SNCOs and the JRC took place at Ballykelly on 1 August 1999. Surprisingly the weather conditions were perfect and it turned out to be one of the warmest days of the summer. Having won the toss the JRC elected to take full advantage of the excellent conditions and bat first. After a slow start the JRC rallied to 80 for 4 after 11 overs. They ended up with 128 runs off their allotted 20 overs after some clever bowling by SSgt 'Googly' Harrison who ended up with a bowling figure of 3 wickets at the cost of just 9 runs. Top batsman for the JRC was Sig Trev Buchanan who scored 33 runs. It was now the turn of the Officers/SNCOs. The batting was opened by Maj Brian Houston and WO2 (SSM) McKnight who scored a total of 8 runs. This dismal start continued and the Officers/SNCOs were soon 15 for 3 off 7 overs. The match was all but over, however, the JRC had not banked on the efforts of SSgt 'Poacher' Cammack and Sgt Dave Evans who put on a magnificent partnership of 88 runs. Sadly for the joint team the remaining batsman could only bring their score up to 125 thus leaving the JRC victors by a margin of 3 runs.

39 INFANTRY BRIGADE HEADQUARTERS & SIGNAL SQUADRON (213)

OC Maj N. J. Borrill
RSM WO1(RSM) S. M. Lockwood

SQUADRON HEADQUARTERS
It has been an extremely busy period within the Unit over the past two months. Many hours of work have gone into preparation for the Marching Season and the dreaded Y2K date of 9 September 1999. The Marching Season was very quiet and although, for the troops drafted in it was uneventful, the support elements of the Squadron worked all hours to ensure the Comms infrastructure was there 'Just in case'.

FAREWELLS & WELCOMES
Farewell goes to WO1 (RSM) Lawes and his family who have gone off to Sennelager to join 200 Sig Sqn and to SSgt Leslie Skinner who has left on promotion to WO2 to join 47 Regt RA as RAOWO,in Thorney Island. We wish them well. A warm welcome goes to WO1 (RSM) Lockwood, his wife Dawn and the new addition to the family, Bradley. Also to SSgt Si Smart, his wife Rosheen and children Shannon, Keeleigh, Holly and Lucy who has joined us from HQNI, as Squadron Chief Clerk. We hope you have a good tour.

REGIMENTAL QUARTERMASTER'S DEPARTMENT
by Sig Pack
We've been given a new RQMS in the form of WO2 (RQMS) Kev 'No nickname yet' Belam, and YET another friendly face from 1 ADSR, LCpl Rik 'Nick Nick Nick Whiskey' Sherriff, in addition we also welcome Pte Keith 'This is a dream come true' Hardy from the Brigade Commander's Rover Group. After only one week in the Department he went through an identity crisis and changed his name from 'Richie Valentino' back to Keith Hardy - Enough said!! As for the rest of the Department, hard work was shown by both Sgt Sean 'Yogi' Hyland and Sig Faye 'White water, I love it' Edwards on returning form Ex Bavaria Finn with excellent suntans, but meanwhile back at the ranch Cpl John McGuinness and I were busying ourselves with keeping the Squadron running (Logistically speaking that is).

HELLOS AND GOODBYES - OPERATING SECTION
After a hectic marching season with everyone working at least 20 hours a day and with the other four on pager, I've finally got time to put pen to paper to compose our list of 'Hellos and Goodbyes'. Firstly we would like to welcome Lt 'Annabel' Taylor from 7 Sig Regt who has taken over the best job in the Squadron of Operating Section OC, quite an easy job by all accounts with the class of soldier she has to look after. The Section also welcomes Cpl 'Chris' Jones from 3 Div, Sig 'Gordie' Richardson also from 3 Div, what are they trying to say?, LCpl 'Vicki' Moran from 24 Bde and Sig 'Jenny' Sarsfield from 280 Sig Sqn who have all been lucky enough to be posted to either SYSCON or the COMMCEN. It's not too bad really, you only have two years to do! Rover Group have also asked me to welcome LCpl 'Geordie' Allinson who has made the vast trek all the way from MT to the Group. The biggest loss to the Squadron is Cpl 'Arthur' Buchan who has made his sad departure from us to JCUNI on promotion to Sergeant, Friday nights and leaving Do's will never be the same again! A big Good Luck and farewell also goes to Sig (now Mr) 'Si' Winchester who has taken the big step into joining Civvy Street and finally to Sig 'Jase' Manton who is promoted to Lance Corporal and is posted to 11 EOD.

DRIVE ALIVE 1999
On Thursday 2 September 1999, 39 Bde's Drive Alive Competition was held at the Maze Prison. 39 Inf Bde HQ and Sig Sqn entered a team comprising of 3 x RLC drivers. The team comprised of LCpl Allinson (Team Capt) RLC, LCpl Walsh RLC, Pte Wilkinson RLC. We arrived and were briefed on the different stands: First Aid, Vehicle Accident Contact Drills and Skid Car Training, all the stands had driver orientated themes relating to Northern Ireland.
I think the stand that everyone enjoyed overall was the Skid Car on loan from the RUC and the aim of this was not to knock over the cones on the course. We all seemed to do quite well even though the instructor thought that Pte Wilkinson may have been a joy rider before he joined the Army because he was that good. We completed the rest of the stands and we headed over to the prize giving which was conducted by Col Douglas R IRISH, Deputy Commander, 39 Bde. Surprisingly enough 39 Inf Bde HQ and Sig Sqn had come third out of 12 teams. We were pleased with that considering we had little practice. The results were as follows:

1st 46 NI WkShps
2nd 5 Regt AAC
3rd 39 Inf Bde HQ and Sig Sqn (213)

EXERCISE PENHALE FINN
by Sig Jamie Buyers and Sig Jenny Sarsfield
05 00hrs and we were bound for Penhale Camp just ten minutes drive away from the sunny surf capital of Cornwall, Newquay. The life style at this end of the world was a definite contrast to the hectic and restrictive life in the Province, so it was the ideal location to kick back and enjoy some arduous adventure surfing, I mean training.
Climbing, canoeing, trekking and of course surfing were on the menu for our ten days stay in Cornwall. The canoeing instructor being Cpl Wayne 'Speedo trunks' Addy from 177 SPL. The climbing was taken by SSM 'Smudge' Smith, from 1 Staffords. The NITL instructor was 2Lt Lucy 'Long Legs' Pim. Everybody was split down into two groups, my group being led by WO2 (Yofs) Dave 'Man from Atlantis' Brudenall and the other group being headed by Cpl Ken 'Milky Bar Kid' Johnston. The first day, for us, was canoeing the highlight of the day had to be when SSgt Paul 'Lycra boy' Robinson attempted to don the smallest wetsuit available, which proceeded to cut off the circulation to all major areas of his body. The day was spent mostly getting wet through, doing capsize drills and other escape methods. Once we had finished we were straight down to the beach for a bit of sunshine and surfing, where Pte Addi 'Water Baby' Lavery could not get enough on her body board. Our groups climbing day was blisteringly hot and the object was the further up you go the better suntan you got. There were some very good climbs set up for us ranging from easy to moderately difficulty. We also did some abseiling down an 80ft cliff to guess where .....the beach where we chilled out for an hour. The other group attempted the larger and more dangerous abseil of 150ft no problems though as LCpl Paul 'Universal Soldier' Wade had three goes. Again the day's activity was rounded off by a trip down the beach to top up on sun and surf. The activities moved onto the trekking' where group one left for two days. This was a very traumatic time for Pte Lee 'Whots it al aboot?' Bramwell as he was separated from his sidekick Pte Keith 'Yellow beard cut throat' Hardy. The trekking was ten miles each day along a coastal path that seemed to have more ups than downs than was expected. The going was quite difficult due to the very hot weather and rocky terrain, there were a few sore feet and blisters after the walk even the NITL instructor was exhausted after the day's trek.

A big Happy Birthday goes out to two of the girls, Sig Jenny 'Wonderbra' Sarsfield and LCpl Emma 'Country Girl' King, plenty of celebrating to do there. We were all entertained in the night club by Sig Jamie 'I'm still in Ibiza' Buyers dancing on the podium. The ten days were finished off by a surfing lesson at Watergate Beach by 7 Bays Surf School from Matt and the rest of the Aussie lads. By the end of the day most of us were standing and riding them in just like on the telly. Well maybe not!

CRICKET SENIORS vs THE JUNIORS - By Sig 'Gordie' Harrison

The pitch was marked out, the weather was booked and the deck chairs set out. The players and the crowd were all expecting a good day out and that is exactly what they got. The seniors turned up with their zimmer frames and shuffled on to take up their fielding positions. The juniors batted first with Cpl Pete Mayhead and Cpl Paul Howe showing the OAPs exactly how to knock the ball over the park. Eventually the seniors caught both of them out and Pte Mark Shaw and LCpl James Bond came on and started to pick the pace up a little. LCpl James Bond easily scored 30 not out and so it was then Sig 'Geordie' Harrison's turn. Sig Harrison was the juniors' secret weapon and scored 32 off 8 balls, 5 sixes and two singles. He made it look so easy. Pte Mark Shaw also scored 30 and it looked as if the juniors were heading for a huge score. All the other team members gave it their all adding to the total score. The seniors at this stage were bowling well, especially Sgt Dan Coles. They were gaining a steady amount of wickets so eventually the opening batters were back in. This is when the juniors really began to show their style. The seniors started to bowl 'dogs' dinners' so the juniors took advantage. The pairing of the game has to go to Sig Harrison and LCpl Bond. Sig Harrison scored 81 not out and LCpl Bond scored 56 not out. The juniors' score was tremendous. The seniors' innings was a shameful performance. They started confidently, well for the first ball anyway. They had all the gear but they certainly had no idea. The assembled crowd had a great laugh watching their weird and wonderful batting styles. None of the seniors made a lasting impression apart from the OC who was out for a duck. The best performance however came from Mrs Vera Hair who bravely stood in at the last moment. She made us crease with laughter and she will certainly be on the team next year. WO2 (MTWO) Hair also got a name for himself for not catching Sig Harrison out. A little piece of advice for the MTWO 'keep your eyes on the ball'. The score was a dismal 32 for the seniors to a fantastic one zillion to the juniors. It was a great day for all involved. A big thank-you to all that played and also to those who organised the event.

EXERCISE HIGHLAND FINN II 10 – 24 SEPTEMBER 1999

OIC Exercise WO2 (RQMS) Kev Tunstall
Instructors Sgt Eddie Porter
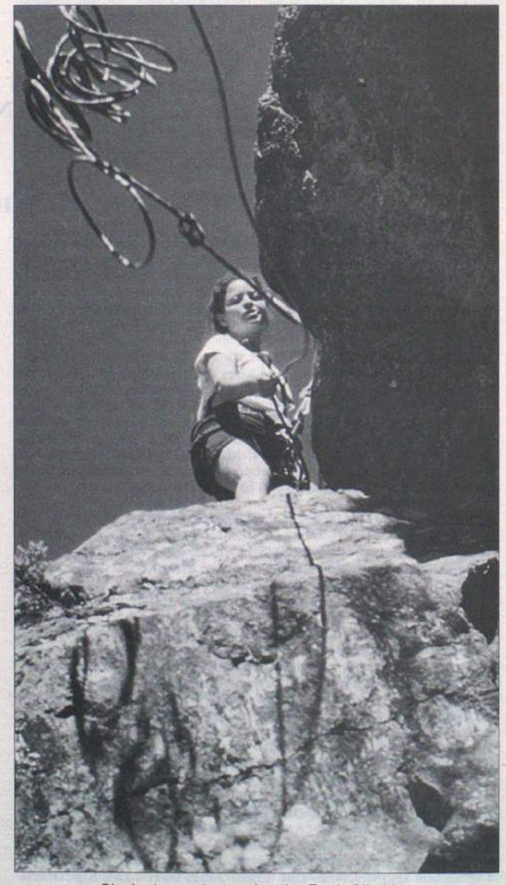
Sgt Pete Mills
Sig Mary Anderson

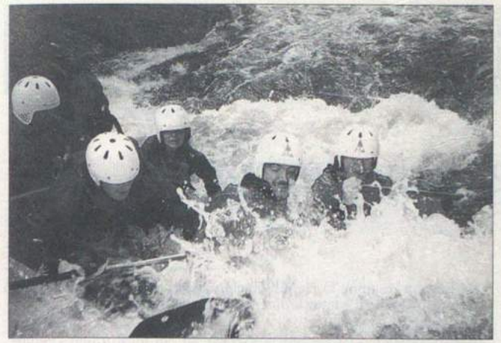
The Exercise was held in the Highlands of Scotland over a period of two one week blocks with twenty students attending each week. The DS set out early for Kingussie in order to take over the accommodation and set themselves up for the arrival of the first batch of students. The students arrived were briefed on the week's activities, and then unleashed on to the population of Aviemore. The RQMS and the remainder of the DS had an early night, as it was an early start the next day. Unfortunately they were woken by one of the eager students who stood at the end of the RQ's bed shouting 'S-M-A-S-H!' Sig Phil Parish was then told to go to bed and quickly.

Day One began with a nice gentle stroll around the base of the Cairn Gorm. Sig 'Flip Flop' Fowler decided that he would do the 10 mile walk in football socks and his disco moon boots. He finished the walk with blisters the size of Loch Ness and subsequently bought three pairs of walking socks for £30 but still took no further part in any of the mountaineering phase. The expedition on the Cairngorm mountain range took place over the next two days. Sgt Eddie Porter led the Group 1 and Sgt Pete Mills led Group 2. The OC joined this phase of the Exercise. The first group started at the Cafe beside Loch Morlich and proceeded uphill towards the ski centre at the bottom of Cairn Gorm where they stopped for refreshments. After a short rest they headed towards the top of the Cairn Gorm, a climb of approximately 600ft. At the top the group headed in a westerly direction skirting to the edge of Cairn Lochan, then headed to Ben Macdui, the highest peak in the Cairngorm range. Once at the top they had to work off compass bearings as the weather had closed in dramatically and the visibility was very poor. At one stage some other walkers on the mountain had to be rescued by Group 1. After the dramatic rescue Group 1 headed on to the westerly ridge of Ben Macdui then followed it down to Hutchinson's Memorial hut where they set up camp and waited for Group 2. Group 2 had set off from Braemar and followed the road to Victoria Bridge and then on to the bottom of Derry Hill. They then had a steady climb up to Derry Lodge and after a quick rest they continued the climb to Hutchinson's Lodge. The following morning both groups set out in the direction that the other group had taken the day before. Both had an extremely enjoyable expedition.



Sig Anderson instructing the Rock-Climbing

The following day the OC, after a hearty breakfast cooked by the RQ, headed back to Northern Ireland. The remainder set out for the Great Glen Waterpark for a day of watersports. The students were split in to two groups. Group 1 headed to the white water rafting on a local river.



The RQMS getting a little wet whilst on Ex Highland Finn II

The second Group stayed at the Loch side and had a go at jet skiing, banana rides, donut rides and canoeing. The first person to hit the cold water was Sig Mary Anderson, who was still dressed, keen or what? The white water rafting was enjoyed by everyone even the non-swimmers. After lunch both groups swopped over activities. At the end of the activities for the day the RQ and the DS provided the students with a barbecue and light refreshments. The last two days consisted of cycling or rock climbing. Group 1 headed out to Duntelchaig about 40mins away from Kingussie for a day of throwing oneself off a high rock face. The first route was a severe climb followed by an abseil. The three remaining climbs were top roping sessions, which allowed the students to participate in belaying and spotting. Group 2 set out from the ski centre at the bottom of Cairn Gorm on mountain bikes for a 40 mile cycle. The route was on and off road and extremely undulating. It was very arduous and the majority of the group found it particularly difficult to sit down that night. A big thank-you to the RQMS and all the instructors for organising an excellent two weeks adventure training. It was a great success and we all hope to attend again next year.

THE REGIMENTAL QUARTERMASTER'S DEPARTMENT
By LCpl Wardle

RQMS WO2 Kev Tunstall

It has been a relatively quiet period for the Department with only one sad farewell to LCpl Ben Gallimore who has seen the light and is heading off to Civ Div. Best of luck to you and your wife. Unfortunately no arrivals to replace him as yet. Since the last instalment of The WIRE not a great deal has happened apart from a mass exodus from the Department for a week's adventure training in the Highlands of Bonnie Scotland.

COMMUNICATIONS TROOP

Tp Comd Lt Jo Stewart
Tp SSgt SSgt Tony Taylor

Since the Marching Season is now over you would think that the frantic pace of work would settle down. However, this was when a large number of the Troop went away on leave, courses and adventure training. Unfortunately this has meant that for those left behind it has still been just as busy. Engineering Section have had worked piled on them by the FofS with antenna trawls on all the masts in the Brigade area. The technicians have been busy with the maintenance of the technical equipment in preparation for the next round of inspections. A large number of the Troop went on the Squadron adventure training in Scotland. In general they all returned very tired with a lot less money in their pockets. Now on to the hellos and goodbyes we have to say a very sad farewell to one of the key members of Engineering Section LCpl 'Noo Noo' Mier. He is off to University in Stirling to study Spanish and Education.....'Big Mac and fries please Noo Noo!' We also have to say good bye to Sgt Pete Mills who is of to 2 Sig Regt York where he was going to be the SQMS however now he is going to be in the MT or is it the Training wing?? Thanks for all your hard work. Also to LCpl Zoe Gallimore who is heading off to Civ Div with her hubby. Welcome to Cpl Danny Adams, LCpl Steve Binks, LCpl Tony Hodgson, and LCpl Andy Law we hope that you enjoy your tour.

Cpl Moore gives LCpl Glen a helping hand in the COMMCEN

SQUADRON HEADQUARTERS

Ops Offr Capt Seymour
YofS WO2 (YofS) Barnes
FofS WO2 (FofS) Brown

In the last few months there have been a few comings and goings in the Ops Plans and the AO of the Squadron. Firstly a sad and belated farewell to WO2 (YofS) Nigel Donohue who left the Squadron on promotion and to a place on the BOWMAN team at Blandford and welcome to his replacement WO2 (YofS) Bill Barnes. Also farewell to SSgt Billy Redman who has left the army for a career in civ div with a well-known telecommunications firm. Welcome to his replacement SSgt Ian Burton who has arrived from RSS. Good luck to the Squadron 2IC, Capt Seymour and his wife Ely in their move to the big smoke and Civvy Street. Good luck to Cpl Al MacDonald the ABTLO who is off to the better climate in the Falkland Islands. SHQ say a sad farewell to Cpl 'Brummi' Flute and Cpl 'Scouce' Woosey from the training wing and welcome to Pte Steve Wilson to the training wing from his short stint in the MT.

MOTOR TRANSPORT DEPARTMENT - By WO2 (MTWO) Hair

MTWO WO2 (MTWO) Hair
Tp Sgt Sgt Stanley

The last few weeks of the Marching Season were hectic for the MT so at the end of the last period of Increased Preparedness the troop wanted to scatter on leave and courses. Unfortunately the rest of the Brigade Headquarters and Signal Squadron had the same idea and it continued to be very busy with the normal shuttles to and from the airport. The MT have clocked up on average a staggering 70,000 to 80,000 miles a month. A huge thank you from the MTWO for all the hard work and commitment they have put into the MT for the last few months. It was good to see Sgt Stanley back from his four weeks sick leave after having his appendix removed. This baffled the MTWO who was on a life support machine and only got two weeks sick leave! Now on to the hellos and goodbyes. The Troop would like to welcome LCpl Shane McFadden from 21 Log Support, Pte 'Beefcake' Philcock from 3 CS we hope they both have an enjoyable tour of Londonderry. Farewell to LCpl Paul Lawler who arrived from 3 Inf Bde Sig Sqn and is now off to 21 Log Sup in Kinnegar, Pte Richy Street who is off to Bielefeld in Germany and finally Sgt Mark Guest who has left us for the sunnier climbs of Leconfield. Congratulations to LCpl Paul Lawer and Pte 'Strasse' Street and their wives for the two newest arrivals in the Troop, bouncing babies Josh and Eleanor.

NEWS FROM THE REGIMENTS

1 (UNITED KINGDOM) ARMOURED DIVISION HEADQUARTERS & SIGNAL REGIMENT

CO Lt Col E. M. Flint
RSM WO1 (RSM) Hymas

201 SIGNAL SQUADRON
Sqn Comd Maj Colin Lawrence
SSM WO2 (SSM) Kev Simmons

The last couple of months have seen a break in the Squadron's busy regime with the emphasis being placed on leave and adventurous training. The aim being to have a bit of fun and enjoyment prior to embarking on two major exercises in October and November. Many Congratulations go to WO2 Kev Simmons whose wedding finally took place and to the many new arrivals in the Squadron (both babies and soldiers).

EAGLE TROOP
Tp Comd Lt Michelle Hanlon
Tp SSgt Sgt Gerry McGachy

The months of August and September were another two busy months for the boys and girls of Eagle Tp. After the hustle and bustle of RIST the Troop received many good reports, in particular Sig 'Birt' Entwistle for the best PV in the Regiment (which was only to be expected from Cpl 'Jasper' Scarrott, his mentor) the Troop then went on a well-deserved summer leave. On return from leave SSgt Kev Greenwood departed to 212 Sig Sqn as acting SSM and Lt Michell Hanlon returned from a six-month holiday in Canada. We also saw the safe return of Sigs John Doran, 'Smudge' Smith and 'Speedy' Mann from Kosovo along with their epic tales of war. The Troop spent the last week of September in Bavaria on adventure training under the watchful eyes of Sgts Ian Conlan and Gerry 'It's not canoeing, it's kayaking!!!' McGachy. Both kayaking and rock climbing went well. Congratulations and a number of slabs are in order for Sgt Paul Garratt on promotion to Sergeant again! Also on the list are LCpls Paul Lomas, Chris 'Disco King' Glennard and Jenny Campbell on selection for promotion to Corporal, and last but not least congratulations go to Cpl 'Jed' Halliday on receipt of his LS&GC.

FALCON TROOP
Tp Comd Lt Chris Biddulph
Tp SSgt Sgt P. B.W. Hogg

To start off with the Troop would like to say a sad farewell to Sig 'Butch' Wimpenny, the best relay operator Cpl 'Stevie' Sparrow could muster, who is off to civvy street. He will be sadly missed. And a big hello to Cpl 'Taff' Thomas who has to fill the boots of Cpl 'Stu' Williamson and boy are they big boots, good luck to you 'Taff'. The Troop just returned from adventure training in Bavaria, where a good time was had by all, despite Lt Biddulph wanting to take the hill walkers up the biggest and steepest hills he could find, what's wrong with that? It was during the water skiing sadly that Lt Biddulph learnt that even he couldn't walk on water but a few of his Troop could and were really quite good at it.

KESTREL TROOP - by Sig Hearty
Tp Comd 2Lt Foote
Tp SSgt SSgt 'China' Cooper

On the 26 September members of the Squadron deployed to Bavaria for a week of adventurous training, not fully aware of what lay ahead. We arrived at approximately 1800hrs after a long drive where we were given the usual dos and don'ts of the area, one of these being the 0030hrs curfew with the bar closing at 2330hrs prompt. After the briefing it was time for the issue of kit for the relevant activity. Due to the long drive, fatigue began to set in therefore the remainder of the night was quiet in comparison to the forthcoming events. Monday morning 0700hrs reveille in time for breakfast at 0730hrs, where we also made out rolls for lunch. On this morning we were given a short brief by LCpl 'Wilf' Warnes and Lt Biddulph on the current climate conditions before embarking on our hill walking expedition for the day. We started with a gentle stroll down towards the foot of the hill where we realised what actually lay ahead. After setting off up the hill it wasn't long before certain members of the group including Sig 'The Slug' Gallagher began dropping back. The original climb set in the exhaustion which remained with many through the rest of the day. At the end everybody was glad to see the minibus back to camp knowing that in an hours time the bar would be open. Friday was a day of choice. Many people chose white water rafting and Hundelbahn which ended up being more dangerous than originally thought as Sig 'Fish' Fisher removed an area of skin off both his chin and forearm resulting in painful grazing. Saturday and time to return to Herford after a hard but rewarding week of adventurous training.

BAG vs RAF RUGBY LEAGUE - by LCpl Mick Hepworth

Despite the lack of enthusiasm for Rugby League in the British Army a squad of 19 players turned out for a two day trial for a game against the RAF. Trained by one of the Wiggan Warriors' coaches, Gary Eklestone, everyone put in 100%. Gary was very surprised by the hard work and knowledge of the game. I went along not expecting to gain a place in the team but just to gain some experience. To my disbelief only 19 turned up and Gary ended up playing us all. The training was hard but useful, we all learnt a lot about the game but it in the end all paid off. By the time Saturday came around my body was in bits. The nerves started to kick in but the excitement put the nerves to the back of my head. When the time came to enter the field we were all firing and ready to go to war. The game got under way and from the start we looked in control with a couple of early tries. By the second half the RAF looked tired and our fitness was showing with more tries. The RAF did manage to score two tries but never looked like winners. The final whistle came and the Army were the winners by a small margin, ARMY 72 RAF 8, but no one could take anything away from the RAF, they also have commitments and had to scrape a team together. If anyone is interested in starting a Rugby League team then I'm sure Jim Aspinal would be more than happy to give you any information on Herford 3699.

SUPPORT TROOP
Tp Comd 2Lt David Spencer
Tp SSgt SSgt Kev German

During September various Squadron personnel deployed on a weeks adventurous in Bavaria. The journey down was fairly uneventful apart from the usual trolley dash at the PX where it was just one big dash to the bargains. For the elements of Support Tp climbing was their main choice, a choice which started fairly slowly with a long safety and instructional brief on the first morning. The afternoon went a lot quicker as we progressed into the climbing phase. The first day ended with a well-earned meal and a few drinks in the bar. As the days went by we all progressed quite well and were now climbing reasonably difficult climbs. This meant that Sgt Conlan had to put up some more difficult climbs. On our R&R day 15 people from the Squadron decided to go white water rafting in Austria. There was two boats from 201 Sig Sqn and two boats from another unit. As you can well imagine there was some fierce confrontations between the two units. On the whole though it would be fair to say that 201 Sqn did come out on top by successfully deflating the other boats. Roll on the skiing season.

PARACHUTING

The beginning of September saw members of 201 Signal Squadron embark on a week of parachute training at Bad Lippespringe Parachute Center. None of us had ever participated in an activity, which was as nerve wracking as this was sure to be. The first day and the ground training begins, with the tension mounting as we get introduced to the rigs and the plane. With the first day of training everybody is getting restless, half wanting to get up in the plane, and half wanting to be RTU'd. The second day and the waiting is over as we all suit up for the first jump at 3000ft, the nerves had definitely set in. In a matter of minutes we would be lunging out of a plane with many a thought rushing through our heads, will the chute open, will I remember my reserves, will I LIVE! Afterwards all had survived and the only thing on the minds for most was the bar for a beer. The third day and there was bad visibility therefore the ones who were anxious to get back up were getting annoyed whereas others were happy to have their feet firmly on the ground. However in the afternoon the fog had lifted and it was back up again for the second jump. For the first time there was a refusal in mid flight by LCpl Ellis who was adamant at the time he had had enough, whilst Sig 'Liz' Brown sacked all landing drills and decided the buttocks would be the best option, not so. For everybody else the jumps went reasonably well. Enough time to pack the chute's before heading to the bar for a few beers. On the Thursday it was personal choice on how many jumps you wished to get in along with the speed in which you packed your chute. Cpl Chris Glennard being cocky as per usual attempted a perfect landing on the mat in the middle of the drop zone and in his moment he broke one of the rules of the sky and therefore was grounded! LCpl Ellis managed to bring himself round to get back up for another jump and all went well. The night was the end of course beers with a barbecue, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Friday was clean up day then off back to Herford for a well-earned rest.

211 SIGNAL SQUADRON
Sqn Comd Maj J. R. C. Bunce
SSM WO2 (SSM) Palmer

The Squadron is now properly manned again after the return of the majority of personnel attached to Op Agricola. It is time to say a fond farewell to SSM Angus Palmer who is off to the wild terrain of West Wales to beast 14 Sig Regt into shape as the RSM. The emphasis for the Squadron is now the Exercise season, as we kick off with Ulan Eagle and then Rhino Charge.

COMMAND TROOP
Tp OC Lt Karl Jeeves
Tp SSgt SSgt Kev Innes

Another exciting couple of months as the remainder of the recalcitrant soldiers return from the far reaches of the globe. All the best to Bdr Hoey, who leaves us to go back to the Gunners and welcome back to Sig Heap and Sig Robinson from a successful attachment in Bosnia.

MY SPECIAL ATTACHMENT – LCpl Lutkin

After only just arriving back from Bosnia with the Squadron and looking forward to maintaining my 436 for the first time, I was asked if I would like to do a tour with the Regiment again. Unfortunately it wasn't my own Regiment but the tour would be three months in Kosovo. After signing a disclaimer, I was quickly rushed to a training camp in UK, where I was issued with sunglasses, baby oil and several pairs of shorts. I boarded the plane and arrived in Kosovo where I was welcomed to blistering heat, from there I was shown my first class accommodation with all the mod cons including air conditioning and an en-suite bathroom. My main duties included swimming pool attendant/bar entertainment's manager. My first main task was to organise a Bingo Night with barbecue which was a success and resulted in my first gold star. Surely this meant that the tour would go smoothly from there on in, or would it! Suddenly out of the blue Capt Bland tasked me with organising an Irish Night on a tough budget. Not a problem, I thought, and rang up Cpl Danny Robinson, who, I knew after two sniffs of a portaloo, would provide as much Irish entertainment as anyone could handle. The night was a blinder, the tour a rip roaring success and I'd like to thank my sponsors, Skopso Beer, Boots the Chemist and Adidas.

COMMS TROOP
Tp OC Lt Morton
Tp SSgt SSgt Leach

Following a well deserved period of summer leave, Comms Tp are back! September has been a particularly busy month during which Lt Morton and Sgt Poyning competed in the Inter Unit Badminton Tournament hosted by 21 Sig Regt. Well done to Lt 'Dark Horse' Morton who has subsequently been selected for the Corps Team and for Army Trials. Sigs Hamilton, Waters and Gritt also undertook a sailing course at Kiel Yacht Club earlier in the month, although will someone please buy Sig Gritt a new alarm clock! The Troop would like to welcome our new arrivals, Sigs Brown, Hamilton, Kellett and Waters fresh from Blandford. Also welcome back to LCpl Royston (congratulations on the promotion to full screw) and LCpl Hutson who are both returning from Bosnia. Unfortunately we must say farewell to Sig McMahon who is going to 2 Sig Regt and to the following who are promoted and posted: Sgt Smith is going to 4 Brigade, Sgt Wilkinson to 16 Sig Regt and Sgt Howard to the unknown. Many congratulations and good luck for the future. Finally a swift hello and goodbye to 2Lt Harriet Hebble 'Roger so far over' thwaite who was attached to the Troop (for morale purposes if nothing else!). She returns to Blandford after two months where she is attending her Troop Commanders' Course.

REBRO TROOP
Tp Comd Lt Shakespeare
Tp SSgt SSgt Cox

During the last two months in RRB Tp, we have been lucky enough to deploy on a couple of exercises, one being the Y2K trials, which was in preparation for the millennium countdown. Four HF detachments deployed to various places including Paderborn and Gutersloh. The aim was to ensure and prove communications throughout the divisional area in preparation for the dreaded millennium bug. The second exercise was much less military orientated. Adventure training in Bavaria included climbing, canoeing, hill walking/beer drinking and white water rafting. These activities were enjoyed by all members of the troop including Lt 'Shakey' Shakespeare who put 100% in as usual. Not forgetting Sig 'Johnny la mule' Carroll who was doing his usual which is swamping after three pints (lightweight). Future months in the troop will be back to the busy schedule of preparing the vehicles for deployment on Ex Ulan Eagle in Poland during the months of October followed by a short break then on to Ex Rhino Charge in November. The Troop would like to welcome back Sigs Stevie Kodakie and 'Fordy' Ford who have just finished a tour in Kosovo and are not swinging the lamp much. Last of all we are unfortunate enough to have to say good-bye to LCpl 'The Bazzerker' Bazzard who's off to sunny Cyprus – Good luck. We'd also like to congratulate him along with LCpls 'Taff' Williams, 'Dangerous Dave' Wallace and 'Tomo' Thomas for their recent promotions to Corporal. Lastly we'd like to welcome Sigs 'Baz' Maitland, 'Jim' Freear and 'Grimace' Grimsey into the Troop.

212 SIGNAL SQUADRON
Sqn Comd Capt M. R. Purves
SSM SSgt (SSM) Greenwood

The past few months at 212 Sig Sqn have been as busy as ever, with the Squadron deploying personnel to Bosnia, Kosovo and the Falkland Islands. The personnel left in Germany have reformed in to two troops, Divisional Support Group Tp and Support Tp. A hearty farewell and good luck to Maj M. W. G. Adams who has commanded the Squadron since 1997 and to WO2 (SSM) Kemp, all the best in your new posts. The whirlwind arrival and departure (temporarily to the Falkland Islands) of the new OC, Maj C. MacIntosh and WO2 (SSM) Rook took place in September. Both are due to return to Germany in March, so we will save the formal welcome until then. With the Divisional training cycle about to start Exercises are quickly filling up Year 2000 wall planners. As always we are still finding time to squeeze in a little adventurous training and sport. Most recently claiming the title of 'Armoured Squadron Football Champions 99'!

DSG TROOP
Tp Comd 2Lt S. Gunson
Tp Sgt Sgt Sims

With the reformation of the Troop after the departure of the JCUFI crew, DSG Tp has started to come together. Work in the garages has continued, moving up to the highlights of the summer. The Troop Exercise was held on the driver training exercise at Minden North and introduced everyone to the thrills and spills of driving 436s. This was the first time the Troop had been together without detachments for driving courses and post tour leave. Everybody had a full and enjoyable two days with the emphasis on team building. Sig Dave Vakalala was the only person who managed to bog in a vehicle trying to drive a Landrover down a 436 track on the wrong side. LCpl 'Just pull harder' Tiplady did manage to recover it using his advanced DMI skills. The Troop Exercise had to be cut short to disappear down to Bavaria to provide Hunter Force for the Long Range Recce Patrol School in Pfullendorf. This involved flushing the enemy out of our AO. With the Troop split down into 4-man sections the competition was on for the Steely Eyed Killer award. This was won by Sig 'I'll get one of these idiots' Cunnington, who proved there is no substitute for hard patrolling skills (and a bit of luck). Most sections did encounter the enemy but the wooden spoon was won by LBdr 'Ex OP, trained killer' Clark. Moment of the exercise had to be Sig 'Helicopters' Knight and Sig 'Tea Cosy' Davies, who had a little chat with two enemy sections who walked through their ambush. The reason given for not engaging was that they were unsure whether or not it was the enemy and had a quick chat. This was despite the fact it was an 18-man patrol and friendly forces were no larger than five. Driving skills after the Troop Ex had definitely improved with Sig 'It's only a puddle' Giltrow and Sig 'What's the PIN' Bufton demonstrating that only the best drive for the Corps, certainly not these two! Finally hellos and goodbyes. Welcome to Sig 'Who' Locke, Sig 'Posh Birds' Issitt, Sig 'Community Service' Wilkes and back from Kosovo Sgt 'Tug' Wilson and Cpl 'Mac' McCallum. Farewell to LCpl 'Out with a bang' Law to 8 Brigade.

2 SIGNAL REGIMENT YORK

CO Lt Col Wakerley MBE
RSM WO1 (RSM) S. C. Keilty

HEADQUARTER SQUADRON
Sqn Comd Maj B. J. Dalton
SSM WO2 (SSM) P. V. McGarry

Yet another busy period for HQ Sqn keeping the ship afloat whilst the rest of the Regiment go medal hunting. A warm welcome to the new SSM, WO2 McGarry all the way from the Training Wing and to SSgt Morrison the new SQMS who also travelled a very long way from 214 Sqn. We also welcome back all those who have been on deployment to Bosnia, Kosovo and the Falkland Islands even if the stay in York will be short lived for some. Just when we thought the Squadron were getting back together again the nominal roll for the deployment to Bosnia in December 1999 hit our in trays. We say farewell to SSgt (SQMS) Al Yeaman to civ div, best wishes to you and your family for the future.

QUARTERMASTERS DEPARTMENT

QM	Maj B. J. Dalton
RQMS(GEN)	WO2 K. R. J. Smith
RQMS(TECH)	WO2 D. G. Simpson

It is with much sadness that the Department's notes must open with the tragic death of LCpl Tracey Stubbs. Tracey was in the process of leaving the Army at the time and our sympathies go to her family and friends at this tragic time. She was an excellent soldier and she will be greatly missed.

Since the last Wire the pace has not changed in the department. 214 Sig Sqn are still deployed in Kosovo and 219 Sig Sqn have now returned to York to ready themselves for a Millennium Bosnia tour augmenting 228 Sig Sqn (nee 216 Para Sig Sqn). Welcome back to Cpl 'Rocky' Mountain (don't unpack you're posted to NI) from the Falklands, LCpl 'Chippy' Williams and Sig 'Ollie' Oliver from Kosovo. 'Chippy' has now left us for the special holiday firm in Hereford, don't worry we've blackened out your eyes in all the Squadron photos. We wish him all the best for the future. Warm hellos to the following personnel; from 217 Sig Sqn SSgt Angus MacPherson, from Hereford LCpl Sarah Horton, from the factory, Sigs Louise Chandler and Roy Taylor. Once again the RQMS (Tech), WO2 Dave Simpson has left us for a small holiday. This time he's off to Kosovo to expand his medal collection, we will see you in a few weeks.

REGIMENTAL MOTOR TRANSPORT

MTO	Capt Hitman Gurung
MT SNCO	SSgt Swan

Sig Tutton took part in Ex Monchengladbach (30km tab) and finished overall in 8th position. Well done and keep it up! Sigs Wilkinson and Amar are now back from their six month tour in the Falkland Islands. Sig Mudd will be going to Bosnia just in time for Xmas, and finally goodbye to LCpl O'Mahony who is returning to 219 Sqn.

TECHNICAL MAINTENANCE TROOP

It has been an extremely busy year so far which has seen most of the Troop on deployment in Kosovo, Bosnia or the Falklands. We say farewell to; Sgt Mark Pryke and Cpl 'BJ' Jacobs who have both been promoted to Mr, Sgt John 'ex-AT RSM' Walsh who is now on his Foreman's course (three cheers for John, one for every exam attempt). Cpl Andy 'Thunder Thighs' Williams to 1 (UK) Div and Cpl Chris 'Easy life' Leggott to Blandford. Welcome to; SSgt Daz Evans, Sgt 'Jim' Davidson (original), Cpl Chris 'Razor' Stephen, LCpls Johnson, Bhawani, Brewington, Dodds, Edumundson and Gittins. We would also like to say, 'Hello, farewell and congratulations' to FofS Yam R on his posting and commission. Finally, a big pat on the back to SSgt Paul 'Tie my kangaroo down sport' Gardner for surviving an arduous four month barbecue in Australia.

TRANS-ANDEAN CYCLE CHALLENGE IN AID OF SENSE (THE DEAF/BLIND AND RUBELLA ASSOCIATION)

by WO2 (RQMS) K. R. J. Smith

I was unfortunate to be sat next to the RSM (WO1) S. C. Keilty at morning coffee in the Sergeants' Mess in June when we noticed an advert in the Daily Telegraph (I know what you're thinking, 'That's a bit posh for the mess'.) The advert read 'Fancy cycling across the Andes mountains in South America?' We did a double take and the next thing we knew our sponsorship papers had arrived through the post. The challenge involves cycling 500km across the Andes into Patagonia next March in aid of SENSE which is the Deaf/Blind and Rubella Association. The Patron of the association is Her Royal Highness, The Princess Royal. To compete we must individually raise through donation £2000. The summer saw us raise approx. £500 and we are now on our way, however, we still have a shortfall and any donations would be gratefully received. Cheques should be made payable to Central Bank 2 Signal Regiment and addressed to the RSM.

OOU TROOP - CAPABILITY DAY - by LCpl Morris

Well yet again 2 Sig Regt volunteered to help out on a charity event. Six members of HQ Sqn under the watchful eye of Capt 'Beanie' Lloyd helped set out a variety of fun games and activities in aid of Polio. Kohima Square was turned into a race track for the day and LCpl 'Mo' Morris, Sig Sandeman and Sig Jim McEwan performed their Formula 1 skills. Whilst the remainder helped with ten pin bowling, basketball and the obstacle course. Sig 'Scouse' Laird did his best to avoid getting chatted up by the members of the team whilst Sig 'Robbo' Robinson lapped it up. All in all the day went very well and all members of the team and the participants enjoyed themselves very much.

EXERCISE MONCHENGLADBACH MARCHES 1999 INTERNATIONAL MILITARY SKILLS COMPETITION

by Cpl Jobson, Sigs Clarke, Tinker, Sworowski, Scott & Pte Docherty

It all began at silly o'clock on the morning of Thursday 23 September. Eleven bleary eyed individuals met in the cookhouse at Imphal Barracks devoured a hearty breakfast and set off for JHQ Rheindahlen (which was nice!!). The drive was comparatively boring until arrival in JHQ when WO2 (RQMS) Kev Smith tried to get us killed by driving on the wrong side of the road. 2 Sig Regt entered three teams in this high calibre competition. Team 1 (male) consisted of WO1 (RSM) Sean Keilty, Pte 'Doc' Docherty, Sigs Neil Tinker and Shaun Tutton. Team 2 (mixed) consisted of WO2 (RQMS) Kev Smith, Sgt (SI) Brenda Berry, Sigs Crawford Scott and Gary Clarke.

Team 3 (mixed) Capt Georgina Tyndale, Sgt 'Bes' Beswick, Cpl Mark Jobson and Sig 'Ski' Sworowski

The first night involved team bonding in the historic city of Monchengladbach most notably the Gravel pit. Whilst explaining the historic value of certain establishments the RSM, RQMS and Sgt Beswick impressed us all with their vocal talents. Needless to say a good night was had by all as was the good name of the British Army. Friday was an administration day and pre-competition revision i.e: Tank and Aircraft recognition to name a few. Saturday arrived and with it the competition. Everyone was nervous yet excited and each team gave 100% throughout the day. The competition was long, hard and strenuous (which was nice!!), but the high morale was never shaken and rarely stirred. Activities through the day included: recognition to first aid, from grenade stalks through a forest to an assault course, from map reading to fire-fighting. Some of the stands were harder than others (the RSM shouting, 'A tank, and another one') on the recognition phase. Despite not knowing which stand was next the teams gave their very best, and it paid off. The three teams took home four trophies in total. These included 1st Male team, 1st Mixed team, 2nd and 3rd British teams. A long night of celebrations followed with the largest of the cups being put to good use. To cap it all we were made sole proprietors of the Gravel Pit (which was nice!!). The journey back was long and very quiet but all who participated thoroughly enjoyed themselves and have marked their calendar for next year.

Sqn Comd	Maj Compston
SSM	SSM Neighbour

219 Sqn have recently returned from the bleak conditions of the Falkland Islands in time to turn the vehicles around and prepare for another six month tour. This time to Bosnia where the weather is guaranteed to be no better than it was in the Falklands. Happy faces all round! The Squadron will be deploying with a number of new members, mainly the Squadron hierarchy; hello to the new OC, Maj Jamie Compston, the 2IC, Capt Georgina Tyndale, SSgt (FofS) Owen Leyland, SSgt (YofS) 'Stan' Winstanley and OC Falcon Tp, 2Lt David Haslewood. JCUFI challenged 51 Engr Sqn to a friendly game of Rugby, JCUFI won with a final score of 25-15.

'SOUTH ATLANTIC SADNESS' - by Sig Mark Soraine

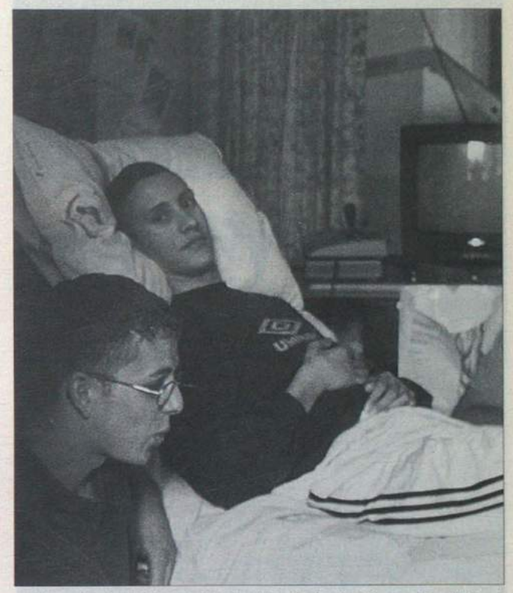
The Falkland Islands is probably not the most exciting place to spend six months of your Army life. However soldiers from 219 Sig Sqn deployed from February to August 1999 to form part of the Joint Communications Unit Falkland Islands (JCUFI). Arriving in the Falkland Islands we soon found our feet, but we quickly realised that the work was going to be quite different from what we were used to in York; work in the Falklands was very much trade related and 'hands on' as opposed to maintaining vehicles in the garages on a daily basis. The change in scenery and the colder climate were also a shock to the system. For many of the Troop it was their first tour and definitely the first time that they had worked with the RAF and the Royal Navy - this was in many cases an eye opener.

Many friends were made during the tour, both at work and play. Many people came and left, so we had a good deal of farewell parties, as well as the regular parties and 'hangar bashes'. It was on one of these occasions that a tragic accident happened to my best friend and fellow soldier, Sig Leon Creighton of Eagle Tp. Leon broke his neck, which has left him paralysed from the chest downwards. This accident has thoroughly changed the life of the very popular 19-year old Signaller. In my short time in the Army I have learnt that your friends at work tend to stick together especially when times are hard. Leon's accident proved no exception and a massive £3,000 was raised by those members of 219 Sig Sqn serving with JCUFI. Numerous fund raising events were held, including a huge disco attended by a few hundred people. But the most memorable event (and certainly the hardest!) was the Hercules pull, which proved a massive success. Unfortunately JCUFI were pipped at the post and trailed in second place to a very impressive engineer side.

The Falklands tour is now completed but the support for Leon continues. On returning to 2 Sig Regt in York members of the Squadron have regularly visited Leon. Each time he is visited his enthusiasm, motivation and humour have got stronger and his progress is without doubt amazing. With Leon's efforts and the support of his friends and colleagues he should go a long way down the road to recovery.



Many thanks to all those involved in this fund raising and to all those who have given their support to Leon. If anyone has any ideas for raising money or wishes to help in any other way, then please do not hesitate to call WO2 (SSM) Mark Neighbour on York military 2257.

TROOP NEWS - by LCpl Lawrence and LCpl O'Mahony

While most of the Squadron personnel were enjoying the cold winter of the Falkland Islands, other members of the Squadron deployed to Kosovo. The biggest talking point at this time was, 'If you have a Bosnia medal, will you get a different one for Kosovo?' Those left behind in York formed 'Out of Use Troop' and were mainly employed as the guard force for the majority of the summer months. Fortunately for LCpl 'Super Radio Relay Op' - (in his opinion) O'Mahony, he was able to escape this lifestyle by going to Mexico to get married. Meanwhile, for those in the South of the world the end of tour was in sight. Preparations for the handover/takeover to 1 (UK) Armd Div were under way and rumours of another tour in Bosnia began to emerge, something that was confirmed on arrival back from leave. The hand-over to the new JCUFI Sig Sqn was successful and 219 Sqn left the Islands in the hope that they would not be returning for a while. After what seemed a very quick four weeks leave, the troops arrived back to find plenty of new faces to increase the numbers for Bosnia including the new Troop Comd, 2Lt David Haslewood and the Troop Sgt, Sgt Hartley. There are also goodbyes to Cpl Purden and Sig Page. With Bosnia training, leave and some form of adventure training, the Troops continue to be busy until their departure in December.

2 SIGNAL REGIMENT
SULTANATE OF OMAN

LOAN SERVICE IN DHOFAR
ROAD RUN IN SUPPORT OF CHILDREN

Background - The ten British Loan Service personnel in Dhofar are all members of the British Armed Forces working in the Sultanate of Oman. The Royal Signals element in the South consists of a Major (Richard Sanders) and a WO1 FofS (Tony Woolaston) and both work as advisors in the Second Regiment Force Signals. The Loan Service Team based in Salalah, thought that it would be a good idea to raise some funds in support of children. The plan was to run from the British School in Salalah to Mirbat and back again on the 14-15 September 1999. The aim of the run was to raise money to be given equally to the Children's Ward of the Sultan Qaboos Hospital and the British School, Salalah. Many of the local firms, businesses, shops and banks sponsored the event and the individual runners collected donations from the community in Salalah and as far afield as Muscat. The response was excellent, raising 3,750 Oman Rials - approximately £6,250.

The Runners pose in front of the Spinneys banner
WO1 (FofS) Tony Woolaston R Signals,
Maj Richard Sanders R Signals, Sqn Ldr Jim Robinson RAF, WO2 Phil Sorrell RM, Capt (now Maj) Simon Lloyd-Davis PWRR
and WO2 Russ Hillis RLC

The Run - The runners started from the British School on Tuesday 14 September, where a small crowd of supporters had gathered to wish them luck. The route followed the main road to Taqah and then onto Mirbat. Shortly after the start a police vehicle provided by the Royal Oman Police joined the runners to act as a safety vehicle and stayed throughout the night. This assistance from the local police was invaluable and very much appreciated by the Team - a flashing blue light seemed to slow the traffic much more quickly than the hazard warning lights on the Range Rover provided by Landrover Oman. Shortly past the statues of the Horses that mark the boundary of Mirbat the runners turned to retrace their steps back to Salalah. Just 150 metres away stands the Fort that was central to the defence of Mirbat by soldiers from 22 SAS and about 25 men from the Dhofar Gendarmerie in July 1972. The return leg was probably the hardest part of the route as the rising sun took the temperature to well over 30 degrees centigrade. The run finished back at the British School on Wednesday 15 September, a total distance of 135 kilometres. During the event team member CSgt McCafferty RGBW was called back to Salalah because his wife was giving birth - some people will do anything to get out of a run! Congratulations to Tommy, Jackie and baby daughter Holly. The seven runners were WO1 Tony Woolaston R Signals, WO2 Graham Wood LI, WO2 Russ Hillis RLC, Maj Richard Sanders R Signals, Sqn Ldr Jim Robinson RAF, Capt Simon Lloyd-Davis PWRR and WO2 Phil Sorrell RM and aerial rigger Mick Bragg from Airwork Ltd looked after the transport requirements. The Team were received at the finish by a welcoming committee which included a photographer/reporter from the Oman Observer, the children from the School and the Military Pipe Band from the Royal Air Force of Oman, Salalah. Refreshments were provided by Coca Cola and Spinneys. The proceedings concluded with a presentation of the proceeds of the charity event to the Sultan Qaboos Hospital and the British School, Salalah.

The Sponsors - The main sponsors for the fund raising effort were the HSBC, Zubair Enterprises LLC, Coca Cola, Landrover, and the Holiday Inn, Salalah. Many other firms made very generous donations including Shell Oman, BP Oman, Shanfari Automotive Company, the Sawadi Beach Resort, Muscat Insurance Services, Oman Air, Gulf Air, British Airways, Spinneys, Oman International Bank, Bank Muscat Al Ahli Al Oman, Bank Dhofar Al Omani Al Fransi, the Family Book Shop, Eastern Stores and National Panasonic. The Loan Service Team would like to thank all their sponsors for their kindness and generosity in supporting the venture. Thanks are also due to the Commander of 11th Infantry Brigade for his support and the Commanding Officer of the Dhofar Division Headquarters of the Royal Oman Police for his help and advice and providing an excellent Police escort.

The major recent event has been organising the annual Kiwi Half Marathon, a task carried out admirably by the Families Officer, Capt Dave Stachini. A record number of people took part raising over £2000 for SSAFA. Congratulations to the Adjutant, Maj Al Long, on his recent promotion, on the delivery of his daughter Eleanor and on winning the speed to weight ratio prize in the recent Kiwi Half Marathon. Congratulations also go to the MTO, Maj 'Blackie' Widdows on his promotion.

202 SIGNAL SQUADRON
Sqn Comd Maj R. J. Quinlan
SSM WO2 (SSM) J. McNaught

The Squadron has had a fair amount of upheaval this autumn. We warmly welcome the new SSM Jim McNaught and his wife Allison to the Squadron, we hope you enjoy your time here with 202 Sqn.

Following the final arrival of Waterloo Tp personnel from Operations in Kosovo, we now look forward to reconstituting the Squadron completely in time for next year's Exercise season. Even during this hectic couple of months Squadron personnel have still been able to squeeze in an Exercise in Cyprus and a variety of adventurous training activities as covered in greater detail below.

OVERLOON TROOP
Tp Comd 2Lt K. Grice
Tp SSgt SSgt D. Oliver

The busy Divisional Main Armoured Troop of the Squadron are pleased to welcome back into the fold the rest of their soldiers who have been away on operational and other commitments. This has been another extremely busy working period, the highlight being Ex Lion Sun in Cyprus during the month of August. In particular we would like to welcome new into the Troop Cpl AJ 'That's not a proper name' Fazackerley who joins us from warmer climes, also we welcome LCpl 'OJ' Olejenik and Sig 'Helly' Anson who have also recently arrived in an effort to keep our vehicles on the road. A special congratulations also goes out to Sig Griffiths who was married to LCpl Marsh over the summer leave period, we wish you both all the best for the future. The Troop is now consolidating its man power in an effort to start exercising in earnest for next year, which is anticipated to be a busy one. By no small miracle the panzers are still going strong with only a few mechanical failures here and there. Let's hope the weather stays sunny on Salisbury Plain from now up to Christmas!

BUSSACO TROOP
Tp Comd Lt P. J. Simpson
Tp SSgt SSgt P. R. Howson

With the return of personnel from operational tours, Bussaco Tp numbers have rocketed again to over sixty soldiers. We have said our tearful goodbyes to LCpl Jamie Slade, who is off swanning at 30 Sigs, Sig 'Who ate all my pies?' Brown who hopes for a thinner life in Civ Div, and Sig 'Troll' Davies, who is deserting his liney heritage to become a re-tread Tele Mech. Ex Lion Sun and the period after saw a fresh influx of new blood. LCpl 'Duke' Newcomb, Sig 'Vanessa' Bird, Sig 'Bob' Wagstaff and Sig 'Johnny' Briggs, fresh from the factory, were warmly welcomed to the garages. Sig 'Carrot Cruncher' Liverton joins us from Germany, LCpl 'Taff' Morris from Bramcote, and Cpl 'Don' Brennan from 16 Sig Regt. With the hectic on-the-bus off-the-bus of preparation for operations no longer looming, the Troop has managed to get a bit of quality time away from the barracks. Staff College Demo is always a tricky thing at the best of times, and it was a fortunate few who managed to escape to the Yorkshire Dales for Ex Iron Cavern. After walking over the hills (mountains!), the group then went wandering in the caves under them. The caving suits were so snazzy, LCpl 'Paintballs don't hurt' Standing didn't want to return his. From the Workshops, the Techs go armoured! Congratulations to Cpl 'Melted' Dryden, Cpl 'Max' Maxwell, LCpl 'Angry Little Man' Annis and LCpl 'Punchy' Nicholls on passing their armoured driving course. Better luck next time to LCpl 'Wheeled' Lyon. Welcome to Sgt 'Max' Challis who will be taking over shortly from Sgt 'Liquid Lunch' Cheesman, soon departing to 30 Sig Regt.

WATERLOO TROOP
Tp Comd Lt Dave 'Lumi-stick' Jackson
Tp SSgt SSgt Tony 'Where's my manpower' Wringe

This month sees Waterloo Tp form up once more after most of its members have been hiding in the Balkans for the last 6 months with either 1 Mech or KFOR. A big thank you goes to Cpl 'Barney' Grumble who has kept the stores in order and stopped the rest of the Regiment from nicking all our kit, (why does nobody ever want to steal our panzers?) Hellos to LCpl Johnson and Sigs 'Devo' Devlin and 'Herbie' Hyde, who are slowly getting to know just how much fun track bashing and trundling can be. A sad farewell must go to Sgt Jim Watt who has been selected from a cast of one to join the newly formed 60 Sigs and congratulations on his promotion. At least now he will be the focal point of everybody else's moans and whinges. The Troop is waiting to see what is in store for us but no doubt it will involve many sleepless nights and long hours in the Sportsman's. Oh well, the sacrifices we have to make to become the second best-armoured troop in the regiment!

EXERCISE LION SUN 9/99 10 JULY–5 AUGUST
by Capt Pat Pritchett

A composite Squadron based upon 202 Sig Sqn, 3 (UK) DSR deployed to Cyprus on Ex Lion Sun between 10 July and 5 August. The aim of the Exercise was to practise the defence of communication and headquarters sites in a contingency operation scenario, in order to enhance the ability of the Squadron to defend HQ 3 (UK) DIV on Operations. The military aspects of the Exercise were to focus on individual, section and troop military tactics and live firing attacks and a Squadron level dry training FTX – the Climax Exercise. To enhance individual and team working, adventurous, sporting and fitness activities were combined with short cultural visits on and off island.

The Exercise was an enormous success, due primarily to the detailed organisation provided by the Squadron planning team. For the participating soldiers the experience proved to be an extremely worthwhile one, as the majority of the soldiers deployed had relatively little military skills experience prior to the Exercise. The Exercise served as a fairly steep learning curve at times, which all participants endeavoured to travel along. During the Exercise, the military training was arduous not least because of the terrain and the climate but those who took part felt a sense of satisfaction.

The FofS shows the Squadron how it is really done

Interspersed with the military training were periods of physical and adventurous training, predominantly water based but which also included parachuting and rock climbing. Enormous amounts of fun was had by those who participated in the off island cultural visits to Egypt and Israel which each lasted for three days and included a cruise to and from Limassol.

The R and R package was superb

206 SIGNAL SQUADRON

Sqn Comd Maj W. E. H. Adsett
SSM WO2 (SSM) S. T. Archer

206 Sig Sqn have had more than their fair share of OCs over the past year. Firstly Maj Paul Glibbery then came Maj Carole (with an 'E') Rankin and now comes Maj Bill Adsett. A belated farewell to Maj Glibbery and his lovely wife Tracey, since departing the Squadron, Tracey has given birth to twin boys, Louis and Jacques, congratulations to the four of you! Maj Rankin arrived in April and left in June for Kosovo for an interesting tour with 3 (UK) Div. On arrival back in the UK it was only a matter of weeks until the next in line came to the Squadron. Good luck to Maj Rankin for the future and have a nice time at ARRC in your Tax Free Golf.

Welcome to Maj Bill Adsett, wife Janet and children Jessie and Joe who have arrived fresh faced from a small office in Malvern with DERA. The Squadron hopes that your tour goes well and (like the Chinese proverb 'May you live in interesting times') that your time with the Squadron will be memorable.

BATTLE CAMP - by Mons Troop

Sunday 12 September 1100hrs and 206 Sqn depart on the second battle camp of the year. This one was to be an ITD battle camp different to our previous battle camp which was a glorious week in Dartmoor! The mood was set on the coach on the way to Tregantle Fort when we watched the training videos 'Saving Private Ryan' and 'Lock, Stock and Two Smoking Barrels!' We were all ready for our range work when we arrived. When I say all, that's not strictly true as LCpl 'Ned' Needham decided to stay longer than the rest at our service station stop and therefore had to find alternative means of getting to Tregantle!

Monday morning started rather rudely at 0630hrs with a 'gentle?!' SSM's lung busting session along the coast and near vertical hill sides. Deciding that most people's trainers were a little too dirty it was decided to do a spot of Sea Running. Luckily the sea was nice and warm, not! Monday and Tuesday were devoted to enhancing our already professional skills in NBC, First Aid, Map Reading and Weapon Training. Sig 'Casper' Price had his embarrassing moment of the week when, selected from a cast of thousands, he was chosen to treat a sucking chest wound on Sgt 'Mandy' Korchel. Needless to say the dressing was not attached as well as it could have been! NBC proved very interesting to both platoons, thanks must go to the instructors for dimming the lights as it really helped us to see the PowerPoint presentation! After some expert map reading instruction from SSgt 'Efficient' Bartleet and Sgt 'Phil' Cooper, Tuesday night saw the start of the Night Navigation Exercise. First back were LCpl 'Stevey' Jay and Sig 'Bracks' Bracken, not because of their map reading ability but because they conveniently lost all the grids of the checkpoints. Lt 'Olly' Gardner appeared to have booked himself into a crash 'Get fit' session when he was paired with Lt 'Fit as a Butcher's Dog' Irwin. They quashed any vicious rumours that officers and a map are a dangerous combination by coming in first and with all ten checkpoints. Other teams found that taking a short cut isn't always a good idea, when 'Barry' the Bull didn't take kindly to swarms of squaddies using his field to tramp through. Wednesday and Thursday were devoted to a round robin of ranges including the APWT, GPMG and Pistol Shoots. Much enjoyment was had by all, even if the weather did its best to put a literal dampener on things. Sgt 'SQMS for the Week' Batts did his bit by finding an endless supply of king-size Twixes, Fosters and John Smiths. Unfortunately, for him though, the Camp QM wasn't very happy that the lads had been playing as many games of pool for the price of one with strategically placed toilet paper in the pockets!

Finally the award for 'GOD'S TRADE' was awarded to the Tele Op Radio trade after completing an almost impossible task set by the OC, Maj 'Bill' Adsett. Special mention must go to the EDs on coming second even though they seemed to already know what the task was after some inside information (Does anyone know what trade the SSM is?). Special mention must also go to the Driver Linemen for their unique approach to the problem and the amusement they gave us!

INKERMAN TROOP

Following this year's deployments to Bosnia and Kosovo the Troop has finally re-established itself. Most of the Troop has spent the past five weeks on leave getting over their tours and putting on even more weight and topping up their sun tans. On returning we were given the good news of the Bulford Escape plan to the Falklands for six months starting next February. Oh the joys of 3 Div! The next few months will be spent turning around and sorting out vehicles from deployments along with a couple of Exercises on the Salisbury plain (as we've missed it so much this year). Congratulations go to LCpl Shaun Thomas on his selection to Corporal on the recent promotion board. Also well done to LCpl Jim Kemp, Sig 'Johno' Johnson and Sig Dave Durward who were sent on the leadership course with three days notice and all managed to come back in one piece. New arrivals to the Troop include Lt Gary Irwin, Sig Sam Hunt, Sig Alex Clarke and Sig Daz Tully who all join us from Blandford sausage factory.

222 SIGNAL SQUADRON

Sqn Comd Maj R. S. Appleton
SSM WO2 (SSM) F. Roberts

Once again it has been a turbulent time in SHQ Tp with many arrivals and people leaving. The first is a goodbye to Maj Mark Billingham off to Shrivenham to have no responsibility and get issued open toed sandals. Maj Bert Appleton has taken over and is already not making any changes what so ever. Ex Topham Hatt was run very successfully under SSM Frank Roberts. The OC and 2IC, Capts Sellwood and Hawes, decided that a visit was in order and manfully signed the visitors' book in the Purbeck Hotel after some strenuous drinking. An excellent week was had by all including the cable drum specialists Cpl 'Bodge it' Boden and Cpl 'Legit' Walton.

SHARJAH TROOP

Tp Comd Lt A. S. Johnson
Tp SSgt SSgt Baker/SSgt R. Lang

The Troop summer camp this year was Sharjah favourite, Weymouth. Although the camp was planned whilst deployment to Kosovo was ongoing, the Troop all got to partake in some or all of the activities. Cpl 'Drag Queen' Ward was the only disappointed man when he had to hand over a fully co-ordinated outfit complete with jewellery to return to camp. It has been an excellent time for promotions within the Troop with the recent promotion of Sgt Stu Ireland. In addition LCpls Andy Morris, Ed Howard and 'Mac' McDougall all selected for Corporal. Finally SSgt Ray 'Davros' Lang is handing over to SSgt 'Bru' Baker after 22 years in the Army, the very best of luck from the Troop in civvy street.

ADEN TROOP

Tp SSgt SSgt S. E. Littlefield

The Troop is starting to get back into the swing to Squadron life after it was placed in suspended animation for eight months. Lots of new faces are in the Troop, LCpl Knowles in from 1 Mech Bde and Sig Danny Hollis from Blandford.

OMAN TROOP

Tp Comd Lt I.V. I. Mullholland
Tp SSgt Sgt A. Hayler

The Troop has had a busy couple of months with the reformation of the Trunk Node as well as the odd Exercise as well. Sigs 'Suntan' Lewis, 'Heat stress' Alcock and 'Trig' Jackson all had the chance to show off their infantry skills, or lack of them in the Cyprus sun on Ex Lion Sun. Sig Alcock put on a star performance throughout the whole Exercise with his unconvincing impression of heat stress. In September a large part of the Troop took part in the Kiwi Half Marathon and the COs' winter sports competition with all putting in a great deal of effort and some skill. Congratulations to Sgt Andy Hayler, LCpl Burgess and Sig Brewer for completing the course. The Troop is glad to welcome back those just returned from Operations in Bosnia and Kosovo. It is about time that Sigs 'Old Lady' Brady, Webster and Leach got back in the garages and onto those Switches. Welcome to the Troop to Cpl Dave Knapman from 15 Sig Regt via Split. Congratulations to Lt Mullholland on her recent marriage and to Sig Ross Barry on his new born baby. A few beers are owed before the sleepless nights start to set in.

SCOTS CELEBRATE AT SPA

David Coultard was not the only Scotsman to have thoroughly enjoyed the Belgian Grand Prix at Spa! Watching the race from a sponsor's hospitality lounge was another Scotsman, 25 year old Sig Mark Learmouth, from 7 Sig Regt, Krefeld, who had won a VIP Grand Prix weekend for two in a competition run by the Key Magazine. 'I couldn't have asked for any better prize,' said Mark, 'It's the best prize I'll ever have in my life.'

Mark and his wife, Sarah, drove from their home in Krefeld, to a luxury hotel on the Dutch/Belgian border. There they were treated to a champagne reception before a gourmet dinner in the hotel's restaurant in a 13th Century renovated chateau. On Sunday morning Mark and Sarah were taken to the circuit in time to see the final practice session and to soak in the atmosphere of Grand Prix Day. Only a few metres from the track, they had a perfect view of the morning's practice session over the heads of thousands of excited spectators who had paid a great deal of money for their seats! Of course, champagne was available throughout the morning and at the fabulous lunch the VIPs enjoyed just before the race began. Surrounded by Europe's glitterati and dressed in the sponsor's red Ferrari Tee shirts, Mark and Sarah finally made their way out on to the balcony to watch the Grand Prix. Luckily, Sarah, who first met Mark when she was also a serving soldier, is as keen on Formula1 as he is.

As their memorable weekend drew to a close, Mark and Sarah returned to the chateau for a candlelit dinner and one last glass of champagne. The next morning saw their feet returned to the ground as they set off for Bradbury Barracks and the real world of regimental life in Krefeld.

For two hours, Mark and Sarah Learmouth had been giving their full attention to the Belgian Grand Prix. As David Coultard was being mobbed by crowds in the pits, Mark and Sarah finally took their eyes off the track and came back to earth

NEARLY HOME

CO Lt Col David Jones
RSM WO1 Smoothy

At the time of writing one Squadron from the Regiment and a command team remains in Kosovo. Those who have returned have quickly settled into Barrack life and are preparing themselves for another set of tours (Bosnia and the Falklands in June and July next year).

ASCOT DAY

Once again on Sunday 12 September the picturesque Krefeld race-course was the setting for the Regiment's day at the races. The day began with an address by the town Mayor followed by one from the CO, Lt Col David Jones, who spoke in excellent German. The General Officer Commanding UKSC(G), Maj Gen Elliot CBE was the Regiment's guest and dined with Regimental Officers and their wives in the VIP box. The Corps Band played immediately after the address and added tremendously to the occasion, one could see the German people tapping their feet to the unfamiliar sound of a military band.

The event was a plush affair and corporate sponsors use the day to entertain guests. The military presence adds much to the occasion and creates great interest from the people of Krefeld. There was a joint Officers' and Sergeants' Mess, a bar and a fish and chip stand (which was especially popular). The Regiment sponsored the first race and gave prizes to the jockey, trainer and owner.

The Adjutant bet on horse No.7, all groaned when this was announced, the groans turned to dismay when, much to everyones' amazement he won!! Blind faith does pay off. The RSM, WO1 Smoothy bet on an outsider with his daughter's name and is now refusing to give her any of the money. By all accounts the betting went quite badly, the more extravagant gamblers were disappointed that they couldn't put the Barracks down as security for their bet. Clearly a change in Service Funds Accounts regulations is required.

THE SOinC's VISIT

The SOinC, Brig Cedric Burton ADC visited the Regiment during his tour of Germany. He visited a number of Station departments and sent an E-mail to the Regiment in Kosovo, a facility that the wives and families are able to use. The Pictures show his visit to 232 Sig Sqn.

STOP ! News Flash the OC has just received his chest webbing, after waiting most of the Operation for it, at last the OC is hard as nails. Since deploying from Krefeld way back in February we have had on our books 241 soldiers from 9 Royal Signals Units serving in three countries. Up until 12 June our time was spent in Macedonia where our job was supporting the Brigade San Groups and TAC moving locations on numerous occasions waiting for the move to Kosovo. The CP lost the Yeoman, SSgt Gaz Tabor, for five weeks to Albania where his team did an excellent job supplying comms for the Albania Force. He returned just in time for R&R only to be recalled for the second time this Operation to help the Squadron move into Kosovo. The CP was also involved with providing comms for the talks between the Commander KFOR and the Serbs once the main agreement had been made with the OC Squadron and SSgt Acting Foreman (no pay) Rick Hannah and his team visiting the talks on numerous occasions. The white feather award goes to Sgt 'Taff' John who a couple of days before the rest of us moved into Kosovo on D Day decided to go home on R&R. Having lost the airport to the Russians the OC and the rest of the recce party decided to keep the main party hanging around on the road side over night. The SSM Rick Hughes being the big guy he is at about 0300hrs thought our armour protection had arrived only to get out of his vehicle and stop a convoy of Serbs in T55 tanks moving out (nice move Rick). For the first nine days of Operations in Kosovo the CP helped TAC support the Commander KFOR HQ as well as keeping tracks on the Brigade SANs moving up from Macedonia. On 20 June we handed over command to Main and 231 Sig Sqn. This has left us the SANs to look after with one SAN deploying to the airport with the Russians. We would like to say farewell to Maj Stringer on his posting to HQ 3 Div, thank goodness his farewell party has finished and our livers can recover. Congratulations to SSgt (SQMS) Pete Griffiths on being picked up for promotion to WO2, well done Pete and congratulations go to LCpls Rhodes, Hepworth and Johnson on being picked up for promotion to Corporal. We would like to say farewell to all members of the Squadron who have been posted in the last few months and welcome to the New Arrivals: Cpl Taylor, LCpls Chandler, Robinson, Holland, Stanley, Porter and Thompson, Sigs Malcom, Manion, Wells Williams, Whatmough and Davies.

Farewell to the departed: Capt Andy Greenfield - Blandford, Cpl Spittles - Blandford, Cpl Jones - NI, LCpl Mears - NI, LCpl Bovey -2 Sig Regt, LCpl Ferguson - 21 Sig Regt, LCpl Fitzpatrick -Swallow - NI, LCpl Robins - 200 Armd Bde & Sig Sqn, Sig Penney - 2 Sig Regt. We welcome the new OC, Maj Phil Baker and his wife Collette to 232 Sig Sqn we hope he settles in well and enjoys his stay at 7 Sig Regt.

VISIT OF ANGUS AND DUNDEE CCF

A contingent from Angus and Dundee CCF visited the Regiment from the 1-11 October 1999 and were hosted by 232 Sig Sqn. They took part in many activities which were hosted by Sig Claire Grant, LCpl Williams and co-ordinated with precision by Sgt Rob Atherton. As well as some low level military activities, including the assault course and SAT range the Cadets visited Phantasia Land, Eindhoven and took part in a host of leisure activities. The visit was very successful and culminated in a gruelling orienteering competition.

CHARLIE TROOP - by Lt Caroline Evans

Charlottenburg Tp, part of 229 (Berlin) Sig Sqn are now safely back in camp, following a very successful tour in Macedonia and Kosovo. As Trunk Node 011, the hub for communications in Kosovo, we occupied the 'Goles Heights', a mountain overlooking the Pristina Bowl. We formed strong links with the local people, particularly those from the village of Vragolija, near Kosovo Polje. With the inspirational motivation of Sgt Phil Davies, a handful of intrepid volunteers arrived in the village to find the school had been badly burned. Within minutes, the whole village turned out to help clear the rubble and scrub soot from the walls. This project, that started with no money and no resources, snowballed into a highly successful mission, thanks entirely to the energy and enthusiasm of the soldiers. It was an extremely rewarding time, amidst so much destruction, to be able to leave feeling we had given something back.

TECHNICAL MAINTENANCE TROOP

Tp Comd Capt (TOT) S. Johnston
Tp SSgt SSgt H. Evans

The Troop has been somewhat busy these past few months with preparations for deployments to Bosnia and Kosovo. Of course it's not all work, we do play occasionally. As a Troop we often get together to have some fun. Most recently a trip to Heatherton Country Sports Park was organised by Sgt 'Dusty' Miller, who recently arrived in the Troop on promotion from his TI Upgraders Course. The theme for the day was 'wacky races'. Although it was only go-karts it was funny watching grown men and women locked in a battle of speed and wits to see who would come out the overall champion. There were a few minor crashes but thankfully nothing too serious. Come the end of the afternoon people were quite exhausted and ready to retire to the bar for the obligatory beer or two. The next Troop outing will again take place at Heatherton but this time for a paintball competition.

The Troop would like to take this opportunity to thank the following personnel, Sgt 'Alfie' Davidson, Sgt 'Dusty' Miller, Cpl Chris Dicks and Sig 'Dinger' Bell for taking part in the Regimental Assault Course Competition. As a result the HQ Sqn team finished in a very creditable third place. The Troop would also like to congratulate SSgt Huw Evalls who is now away on a four week expedition to Nepal, on becoming the British Army Alpine Paragliding Champion.

As usual, we have our fair share of 'hello's' and 'goodbyes'. We would like to welcome Cpl 'Gunny' Gunn who joins us from 1 (UK) Armd Div, Sgt 'Mac' Macdonald who joins us on promotion from his TI Upgraders Course, Sgt Dave Evenden from Gutersloh and finally Sgt Glynne Kerr-Morgan who joins us from 264 (SAS) Sig Sqn. The only person we've said goodbye to these past few months has been Sgt 'Smitty' Smith who left us for the TA.

SQUADRON HEADQUARTERS TROOP

September has been a busy month for SHQ Tp with Exercises and Squadron Adventure Training. On behalf of the Troop I would like to say goodbye to the following people; LCpl 'Doc' Dixon, LCpl Joe Gallagher, and Sig Rachel Wells all leaving the Army for civvy street. Sig 'Webby' Webster on his really jammy posting to Berlardo Bridge, Scotland. LCpl Col Twells on his posting to 4 Bde. We wish you all the best in the future and extend a big welcome to Cpl 'Denny' Denton who has just arrived from 640 Tp.

Turning to other events, we see the return of the OC Sqn, Maj MZ, (no one can spell his name), WO2 (SSM) Jenkins and WO2 (YofS) Rutherford all returning from Op Agricola 1. The rest of us also managed to get away for some adventure training at Capel Curig in N. Wales, on Ex Whale Adventure This was fun yet demanding and challenging. I feel I should mention the efforts of the Sqn SQMS, Sgt Titus Reene for his excellent work in organising the Squadron adventure training. It really is amazing what can be done on a shoe string budget. Perhaps he should volunteer to run the Squadron fund.....

ROMEO TROOP

Tp Comd Lt Harvey Scott
OPSWO SSgt (Supvr R) White

A fairly quiet period for the Troop with the main focus for the month being the preparation for Staff College Demonstration 1999 at SPTA. The Troop were briefing on the Deep Operations stand along with other elements from the Regiment, including a Wildcat Jammer (handled masterfully by LCpl Young and Sig Woodrow of 640 Sig Tp) and the new Odette platform provided by 245 Sig Sqn (EW). This demo provided an excellent chance for the operators to refresh their skills on the equipment as it has yet to come into service in the Regiment. The standard of the briefings were highly praised and one comment of note from a visiting VIP after seeing a demonstration of the equipment was, "Thank God you're on our side'. The Odette crew for the week were Cpl John Winwood, Cpl Daz Whatmough, Cpl Kenny Smith and LCpl Karen Gunn. A big thanks to the support crew which came down but had a relatively quite week, except for Sig 'I thought the PV would fit under that hangar door' Jones who was the butt of all the jokes for the week.

Of a more relaxed nature was the Squadron's Adventure Training Exercise to sunny Snowdonia, which was attended by the majority of the Troop. This consisted of the usual mixture of arduous activities interspersed by regular visits to the Cotswold Outdoor Shop (we should have shares by now). A enjoyable time was had by all with local hostelries reporting an unexpected upward turn in profits over this period.

Unfortunately, we have a lot of farewells to say. Goodbye and good-luck to SSgt 'Pav' Burke who leaves us to join the RAF, Sgt Andy Ball and his wife Jane off to NI and Cpl Nicky Dawson en route to instruct at Chicksands. Last but not least, LCpl Ronnie Fardell who is leaving for civvy street, you never know he may actually turn into work on time once before he leaves!

It was nice to see the return to the clan of LCpl Hickenbotham and Sig 'Crutch' Crutchley after returning from detachments in NI and Kosovo respectively. Also welcome to SSgt Neil Sorley and his family fresh in from 3 (UK) Div HQ and Sig Sqn just made it for the lovely Brawdy winter). Finally congratulations go to Cpl Paul Browne and his wife Sarah on the birth of their second son Luke.

640 TROOP

Tp Comd Lt White
Tp SSgt SSgt Flaherty

Welcome to Sig Mark Watson and Sig Craig Rees who arrived in 640 Sig Tp in early September from Blandford, and also to Cpl Pete Byrnes who has joined us from Romeo Tp. Goodbyes to Cpl 'Denny' Denton who is now in the SQMS Dept, LCpl 'Smudge' Smith who has left us to join 16 Air Assault Bde and Sig Adam Welton who will be transferring to the Int Corps in the near future. Congratulations are in order for a few members of the Troop, firstly to Cpl Russ Ryan and his wife Donna on the birth of their baby girl Cerys on 29 July. Also to LCpl 'Tin' Foyle who got married to Beverly, and to Sig Gaz Robinson who married Samantha on Friday 13th of all days!

The Troop has been busy of late due to the change-over of the wagons from Series 3 Land Rovers (yes we are the last unit in the British Army still to have them), to either Wolf Defenders or Pinzgauers. However, we did manage a welcome break, when we went down to Penhale Training Camp for a spot of 'adventurous training' organised by Cpl 'Denny' Denton. This coincided with the Eclipse and the British Surfing Championships (nice planning 'Denny'). The first night was one to remember. After sorting out our personal admin. and various other points we all took a wander down to Newquay for a night out and to give LCpl 'Tin' Foyle a stag party. The night started off well but nobody is quite sure how it ended, although there are a few malicious rumours which involve talk of a lamp-post, a pair of handcuffs and someone's clothes being distributed to the gathering crowds. The following day, deep sea fishing was on the agenda. When we eventually boarded the boat we received lots of, 'Alright me lovers,' and, 'What's up my handsomes.' from the Skipper (strange bloke), before we headed out for deeper water. After being baffled by technical talk about tides, depths and various different fish, we put the rods over the side and the fish just kept on coming. Everybody caught something whether it be a seagull or a dogfish. There were a number of activities laid on throughout the week, mountain biking, hill walking and surfing are just a few, but I think the highlight of the week for most, was the total eclipse of the sun. It was such a spectacle and a rare thing to see and to be in one of the best places in the world to view it was amazing.

COMMS TROOP

Tp Comd 2Lt Murray MacDonald
Tp SSgt SSgt Brown

Comms Tp deployed in high spirits on Ex Whale Link on 9-15 August, to an unknown little training camp somewhere in Maidstone. We only had one minor hiccup on route which occurred at the RMAS POL point where LCpls Chris John and Stu Kelly took it upon themselves to give the Troop a lesson in how not to POL their trucks. 'Honest the head just fell off the end of the pipe!. Yeah OK, we believe you. After much emptying of jerry cans the Troop got on its way again. The aim of the Exercise was to refresh the Tele Op (TG)'s and teach the Tele Op (R) JMH which proved to be slightly more difficult than at first thought. The TG's were well educated in the ways of JMH (not!) but did manage to pass on a little of their knowledge to us Rad Ops.

When eventually the training phase was complete, Comms Tp scattered to the four winds with Dets deployed to Weymouth (mid season), Nottingham and Eastbourne to conduct an insecure RATT Ex. Once the Exercise proper commenced the Dets soon began to get their RATT and JMH skills down to a fine art, although the typing could have done with a little work. Overall the Exercise was a success, we all enjoyed ourselves whilst at the same time conducting valuable cross-training, gaining a good insight into JMH and RATT working.

EXERCISE WHALE ADVENTURE 1999
SUMMER MOUNTAINEERING PROFICIENCY COURSE
by LCpl Frost

Picture, if you will, sub-tropical heat, a warm sea breeze and an endless supply of hand prepared cocktails - then you would be as far from paradise as we were! Members of the course, LCpls Steve Frost, Dave Grimes, Glenn Roberts and Sig Sue Shand all had a rather wet time trudging around the welcoming, and gently rolling hills of Snowdonia with their ever smiling instructor Lt Ben White. Apart from the weather hampering attempts to conquer Snowdon and its outlying mountains everyone had a good time and enjoyed themselves, even when having to navigate the group through the thickest 'Pea soup' fog. The course itself was aimed at introducing the students to the basics of mountaineering. These included topics such as equipment selection., effects of altitude on temperature and wind, hyperthermia and hypothermia. The course also covered map reading practice and theory. If there are any budding mountaineers out there who are looking to do any Mountain Leader Training then this course is specifically aimed at helping you get a good knowledge of facts and figures that are needed at later stages in training.

EXERCISE LONG LOOK 1999
by LCpl Edwards

When I was informed that I was selected to participate in Ex Longlook 1999, I was very excited as I have never been to Australia before. The Exercise started mid April with a long flight half way round the world, arriving in Brisbane early on a Wednesday morning. After two days rest, I was out in the bush on battle camp. Once I had been trained on the Australian rifle, I was given a set of, 'Aussie' cams and told to join my section. The days were spent on section attacks and ambushes which proved to be great fun despite the few differences in the section drills.

After an excellent ANZAC Day, it was time for another exercise. This was a comms exercise and not another trek through the bush. The exercise was designed primarily to utilise both HF theory and practical skills. Much of it was familiar to me. However, there were one or two differences, the biggest of which was voice procedure. We were also fortunate enough to be given the opportunity to complete the obstacle course at a place called Ennoggra, which turned out to be very wet and muddy (good to see some things are the same in any army!).

It wasn't all work in Australia, however, I had the chance to visit Sydney, where I spent the day looking at all the sights. These included the Harbour Bridge, the Opera House and the Center Point. I also managed to see the Crown Casino in Melbourne, the Barossa wine valley in Adelaide and the very interesting war museum in Canberra. My 'home' during this phase was Toowoomba where the lads looked after me very well. I was always kept busy over the week-ends, going to fun parks like Dreamworld and Movieworld, and I also had a chance to go horse-riding at a friend's farm.

After another Comms Exercise I took a week's leave and went off to Alice Springs and Ayers Rock which was an amazing experience. The day at Ayers Rock started at seven in the morning, with a four hour journey (it takes ages to get any where in Australia). Once we had arrived I had a look around the cultural centre then came the climb to the top of Ayers Rock itself, which was totally exhilarating. To write about everything I did on Ex Longlook would take pages, these are just a few of the highlights and memories. Australia is a wonderful country and I am very fortunate to have been able to visit it. I would strongly advise anyone else, who gets offered the chance, to take it.

237 SIGNAL SQUADRON (ELECTRONIC WARFARE)
Sqn Comd Maj Dakin
SSM WO2 (SSM) Richardson

SQUADRON HEADQUARTERS

The Squadron hierarchy continues to drive the Squadron into the Millennium, or is it into Kosovo, Bosnia, Egypt, Sierra Leone, Kenya, Canada or Salisbury Plain? We continue to be very busy, deploying men, women and equipment to all corners of the globe. Recruiting is not a problem, its keeping them in Brawdy that is proving the difficulty.

Congratulations to the OC and Sarah on the birth of Daniel. That should cut down the weekends away adventure training. Congratulations are due to SSgt 'Shuggie' Hughes for his impending marriage.

Welcome back from Kosovo to SSgt Glen Kitchen, soon to assume command of the SQMS department with relief in place from Sgt 'Stanley Botham' Buxton Int Corps, the present incumbent. Congratulations as well go to SSgt, Kitchen on your impending marriage, it doesn't seem two minutes since your last one.

VICTOR TROOP
Tp Comd WO2 Matthews Royal Australian Signals
Tp SSgt SSgt Watters

Many of the Troop are away on Ops and fortunately they have taken all the Troop's equipment with them. We wait in anticipation for the delivery of the new equipment and vehicles. Also recently departed from our establishment are the one tonne VAMPIRES which were last seen been driven off the cliffs at Newgale Beach by the old and bold Troop members.

Congratulations to Cpl Mark Wright who successfully passed P Company and who should now be able to keep up on Squadron PT. Welcomes to SSgt 'Beaky' Newton Roberts, Sgt 'Chopper' Christopher, Sig Kerry Burrows and Sig 'Speedy' Tipple. Farewells to those that have got away, LCpl Al 'Bay-Weaner' Sharpe to 225 Sig Sqn and to Sgt Joyce Pankhurst to a full time job as a mother.

Our Australian attached Troop Commander, WO2 Bob Matthews, continues to count the days to his return to his homeland, at a time to coincide with Xmas on the beach! Although not yet gone he is already preparing us for his absence by spending as much time as possible touring in Europe, Cyprus and the UK. Leave us your address Bob as we are all coming to visit.

KILO TROOP

For those who noticed in the last Wire, but were non-believers, BROMURE is no longer a Troop asset. Proof is produced and you see before you the farewell picture of the said communications asset and its trusty crew before hand-over to Light Care and Preservation Troop. Corps members with interesting historical anecdotes on these pieces of equipment are asked to forward them to the Corps Museum to be displayed along side the equipment and Sgt Paul Woods who will be soon there himself.

5 AIRBORNE BRIGADE
RE-ROLING TO 12 MECHANISED BRIGADE

On 1 September 1999, 5 Airborne Brigade re-roled to 12 Mechanised Brigade. Those previous members of HQ 5 AB Bde WOs and Sgts Mess who have presented any memorabilia to the Mess between 1969 and 1999 are to contact WO2 Wales on Aldershot Military 4411, Civil 01252 349411 or Karen Bramley (4422 or 349422) if they wish to have their presentation pieces returned. If no replies are forthcoming by 7 February 2000, then the present Mess Members will decide if the item will be kept on the books of 12 Mech Bde Mess, donated to the new 16 Air Assault Mess in Colchester or donated to the Airborne Museum.

TANGO TROOP
Tp Comd 2Lt Waddell
Tp SSgt Sgt Woods

The last two months has seen the Troop expand to something like its establishment size. No longer is it at fire team strength but now with the cast-offs from Kilo Tp and the returning heroes from Kosovo and Bosnia we can field a couple of section sized teams. Welcome back from Bosnia to LCpl Drummond, Sig Wythes and Sig Magill. Congratulations to Sig '727' Clark on the arrival of his first-born. Life will never be the same again.

MOTOR TRANSPORT SECTION
MT Sgt Sgt Keenan
MT Cpl Cpl Stanley-Jones

The Troop continues to provide a holding bay for the Regimental MT's cast-offs and we welcome Sig Potter into the fray. Congratulations Sig Keith Barrows for not having gone AWOL for over two months. Welcome back to LCpl 'Big Lad' Campbell who is now challenging Sgt Dave Keenan as the 'courses man'.

RUSS CUP X-COUNTRY

The fourth of the keenly contested Inter-Squadron Russ Cup competitions involved all Regimental personnel in station running six miles around the adjacent airfield. The only X-Country involved was a quick detour around the football field with the course being flatter than the proverbial pancake. It was a typical windy day and if you weren't in the first two you were caught in a thunderstorm. The results were as follows:

Male Individual	1st	Sgt Bradley

WHISKEY TROOP
Tp Comd Lt Fi Stewart
Tp SSgt: SSgt Jez Clarke

The Troop have coped admirably with continuous change over the last couple of months. The old kit has moved out, the new kit has yet to arrive. Building up our strength in anticipation of our new lease of life, it has been a quiet period for Exercises, although the majority have managed to complete a week's adventure training either in Scotland or Wales. An ITD week at Castle Martin was wet, hard work, good fun and an excellent opportunity for the new Sqn OC to meet the Troop in their element!

Welcome back from Bosnia to Sig Nicolls, and from Kosovo to LCpl Fitzpatrick, LCpl Allen, LCpl Burns, LCpl Ellams and JT Jordan RAF. Welcome also to Sgt Andy Goodwin RAF, Sgt Kev Burn RAF, and Sgt Carl Elliot Int Corps. Welcome also to LCpl Gunn, who joins us from 1 (UK) Div HQ and Sig Regt and 'goodbye' and 'good luck' to Cpl Hirst, on posting to NI and to LCpl Lee Broughton best of success in civvy street. Congratulations to JT Russell RAF on her recent marriage. Happy Christmas and Millennium greetings to Sgt 'Splitter' Mortimer Int Corps, Sgt 'Jock' Marshalsey, and Sig 'Weak at the knees' Watson in Kosovo.

ZULU TROOP
Tp Comd 2Lt I. G. Rodger
Tp SSgt SSgt Si Donnelly

The last month has proved to be a busy time for the 'Zulu Warriors', with preparations for Ex Ulan Eagle in Poland and Squadron adventure training in the Snowdonia National Park. Within the first few days Sig Abbey and Sig 'Alton' Towers appreciated the finer points of trying to stay upright in a canoe, much to the amusement of the resident expert LCpl Stu Green. The ascent of Mt Snowdon was undertaken in heavy rain and low cloud, but that did not deter Sig 'Stretch' Heathcote switching to mountain goat mode and steaming off up the hillside. Just behind and at a reasonable pace Sig 'Winkypot' Thomson served as the team's 'ginger beacon' keeping everybody on the right course!!!

The second phase saw the arrival of even more Zulu's, led by Cpl 'Adonis' McMullan who provided some vital demonstrations on the best way to take corners whilst on a mountain bike. Sig Coles discovered the finer points of gravity on the indoor climbing wall, where his ability, to hang on that little bit longer improved dramatically. Running concurrently with adventure training was a Summer Mountaineering Proficiency Course, undertaken by LCpl 'Which Bearing?' Grimes and Sig 'Spot Height' Shand who say that it was the wettest summer days ever spent on the hills by either of them.

The Troop would like to welcome to the fold Sigs Abbey, Coles, Cownie and Fox. We would like to wish Sig Lee Parry all the best on his posting to civvy street. The Troop would like to congratulate LCpl Dave Grimes on coming top of the recently run Unit Cadre course and getting onto the first rung of the promotion ladder.

EXERCISE TALISKA DRAGON - ADVENTURE TRAINING
by SSgt Jez Clarke

This years adventure training for 245 Sig Sqn (EW) took place in the Kyle of Lochalshe on the west coast of Scotland. It was headed up by Capt 'Comd Comms' Ingram who spent the week on a yacht. His claim to always having comms wherever he has been, being maintained thanks to a Corporal from the LI who was there to switch on the set - a procedure beyond Capt Ingram. The UEL, instructor was 2Lt 'Muffy Magellan' MacDonald who could have become geographically embarrassed had Cpl 'Hilton' Smith not put the group on the right track by turning everyone around through 180 degrees.

To vary the hills walked the groups went further south to the port of Oban, the home town of Cpl 'Hilton' Smith who promised everyone a bed for the night, but after travelling for three hours declared he could only accommodate himself leaving the rest to find a camp site. Whilst in the area it gave an ideal opportunity to climb Ben Nevis, a feat Sgt 'Roundabout' Topham and Cpl 'Buck' Rodgers wished they hadn't started. A few natural adventurers were found during the week in the guise of Sig 'Village' Gregory who put SSgt 'Ski' Sharp under pressure on the rock face and LCpl 'The Fat Whale Hunter' Anslow whose competitive streak allow him to win the 'Lag the Bag competition'.

16 SIGNAL REGIMENT

CHANGE OF COMMAND

On 31 August 1999 Lt Col Gordon James, Commanding Officer 16 Sig Regt handed over his command to Lt Col Tony Morphet. Throughout his two and a half years of command Col James has taken the Regiment forward in terms of communications support to HQ ARRC and the Army in Germany, its sporting success and wider Corps reputation. The pinnacle of his command has been the Regiment's collective performance on Op Agricola. Col Gordon, Manuela and the boys leave Germany on promotion for Spain where he will assume the new appointment of ACOS G6 in Madrid. The Regiment's best wishes go with them. A hearty welcome is offered to Lt Col Tony Morphet, his wife Kathrin and their family arriving from Glasgow where he has served the last 18 months as SO2 then SO1 Soldiers at R SIGNALS MCM Division. May you all enjoy Rheindahlen (again!)

UKSC(G) SKILL AT ARMS MEETING - By LCpl Fatchett

Following the CORPSAAM, 16 Sig Regt's next shooting competition was the UKSC(G) Skill At Arms Meeting. After returning to Germany from the CORPSAAM, training continued at Arsebeck ranges in preparation for the UKSC(G) competition. Yet again SSgt Andy Dixon put together an excellent training package preparing the team for the forthcoming event. The competition itself was spread over a two-day period, with the incentive that the top four shooters would qualify for the Queens Medal Competition at Bisley. 16 Sig Regt proved a team to be reckoned with, gaining three out of the top six places in the individual competition. The team also came first in the pistol match, second overall in the rifle match and third for the combined rifle and LSW shoots. The Commanding Officer seemed very pleased with the new addition of silver, which will help fill the Regimental trophy cabinet!

As a result of the UKSC(G) competition and operational commitments, both LCpl 'Fatch' Fatchett and SSgt Andy Dixon qualified for the Queen's Medal Competition. Sig Steve Pearce also had the opportunity of a place, but after his recent marriage his wife did not wish to spend her honeymoon on the ranges! SSgt Dixon and LCpl Fatchett, however, travelled to Pirbright where they joined the other Royal Signals and Queens Gurkha Signals qualifiers. Capt Krishna from the Queens Gurkha Signals led the training on the Pirbright and Century ranges where the competition itself was to be conducted. The Queens Medal Competition involved five matches which were spread over a two day period. The competition was tough and the shooting of a high standard, bearing in mind that some of the best shots in the Army and even a few of the best shots in the country were competing. Thankfully the rain stayed away but the wind proved a hinderance to all shooters.

The competition concluded well with LCpl Fatchett and SSgt Dixon coming in the top Army one hundred, both winning a Bisley one hundred medal and badge. As a result of this year's competition, there are now twelve Royal Signals soldiers with the Army one hundred badge. The intention next year is to improve the number of 'badge' holders, by enlisting more 'young blood' from the Regiment. The competition has shown the potential which exists within the Royal Corps of Signals to develop better 'shots' who, in the future, could qualify for the Army team, and who knows one day even a Queen's Medal winner.

NIKUSTAK PRIMARY SCHOOL PROJECT - MACEDONIA
By Lt Connor

The Nikustak Primary School renovation project is still ongoing, but thankfully the end is now clearly in sight. This cannot come soon enough for SSgt Rab 'Not happy' Marshall and Lt Phil 'Not interested' Connor, who have remained in theatre to ensure its completion. The roof is now not only waterproof, but more importantly is pigeon proof, and the foot deep pile of feathers, pigeon corpses and droppings that had collected in the attic has now been relocated, albeit to the children's playground. A new tongue and groove ceiling has been fitted replacing the old one that was collapsing in several places, and showering its heady mix of pigeon detritus onto the children below. Work is still ongoing regards the new floor, but I can report the supporting joists have been laid and the floorboards have been delivered and should be down within the next couple of days. The builders are forever in a whirl of activity with all the other little jobs being done simultaneously. A new door has been hung, new windows fitted, walls prepared for painting and new electrics installed. It is all coming together nicely. A vast improvement on the original hovel and much to the satisfaction of the village president, who has made it his personal mission to ensure that the builders don't pinch anything - although I did see one get away with a sack full of pigeons destined for his oven. Within a few more days all work will be completed, plaque handed over, photos taken, and then back to JHQ for tea and medals.

16 SIGNAL REGIMENT SWIMMING TEAM - by Sgt C. Smith

During the recent BA(G) swimming championships the Regiment was lucky enough to enter a team under the illustrious leadership of Capt Lee O'Rourke. Due to operational commitments the male team consisted of a mixed bag of young hopefuls (WO1 Gaz Tomlinson) and old has beans (Sgt Pete Taylor), while the female team actually had individuals that could hardly swim. Still undeterred we set off for Hohne only stopping after we realised that we had left LCpl Jim Crawley in the guardroom drinking a cup of coffee. Fortunately we had only got as far as Herford when we realised he was missing! The morning of the championships came and whilst our leader was selecting who was swimming (and at the same time doing his best to avoid getting wet), the rest of the team was relaxing by the pool getting some kip following a hard training session the night before! The actual competition went well with a notable performance by Sgt Pete Taylor who won the 50m freestyle event. Every member of the squad gave 100% and in the end the female team gained a highly creditable place while the male team actually came second. The good news is that the team from 220 Sig Sqn that beat us are all moving to the Regiment later this year anyway! The highlight of the event came a week later with the publication of the Sixth Sense. The writing stated that the photo was of the captain of the winning 220 Sig Sqn side. That person, Capt Gary Johnson, has obviously put on weight and found the fountain of youth because in the photo was actually Capt Lee O'Rourke holding the water-polo cup that the organisers would not present to us because we were the only team to turn up!

HELLOS AND FAREWELLS

The last couple of months has seen a few old faithfuls disappear and some new faces appear in the Regiment. The most prominent of these, as already mentioned, is obviously the change in appointments of Commanding Officers. The Regiment is, however, also saying goodbye to Maj Alistair Ross, who will be sadly missed by all at 255 Sig Sqn - although as he has only moved to take up post in ARRC HQ, we still expect to see you from time to time in the Irish Bar sir! It is also appropriate at this point to congratulate Maj Ross on his recent marriage to Joyce and wish both of them our best. Farewells also go to Sgt Danni Thwaite, who is off to teach at sunny Blandford, Capt Steve Hutchinson who has become Squadron 2IC at 1Mech Bde, and Capt Lee 'I never get crated for being in The Wire' Hawkes who, after being OC Kowloon Troop and the Adjutant, is off to relax on JCSC at RMA Sandhurst! The hellos on the other hand go to Maj Burgin who has taken command of 255 Sig Sqn, Lt Francis-McGann, WO2 (RQMS) Robinson, SSgt (FofS)Duff, Sgt Ramsay, Sgt Manley and Sgt Dennis.

After the busy summer period of Brigade Exercises and Camp, the Regiment had hoped there would be a period of quiet. Unfortunately, it wasn't quite what we envisaged. A Regional Brigade Exercise, charity events, preparation for winter functions, along with the regular maintenance, training and recruit selection weekends all made for a very busy period. This was, of course, interspersed with one or two Brigade Commander's visits – all in the space of two months. Roll on Christmas block leave.

EXERCISE NORTHERN ROSE 1999

The Regiment was tasked to provide an EXCON HQ, mini TN and SCRA(T) coverage for 42 (NW) Bde's Ex Northern Rose 1999, which was taking place in the Kielder Forest area of the border region with Scotland. The first phase of the Exercise for the Regiment consisted of the centralisation of equipment and manpower required for the Exercise at Deysbrook Barracks, Liverpool. During this phase IBCP was carried out along with the establishment of a network to check out all equipments. For Sgt Phil Price, of 59 Sqn, this was the gentle introduction needed back to the field army after three years recruiting.

Friday 24 September, the day for deployment arrived and we all set off up the M6 to DM Longtown from where we would deploy to our Exercise locations. Leaving behind Maj John Miller (2IC Regiment) and his merry band of 'fresh rations only' Ops party to establish EXCON, the main body of field communicators moved to their locations on the exercise area. The mini-nodes were to be located in a quarry on the area of RAF Spadeadam, a radar teaching establishment. On arrival it was a hair raising experience for SSgt Jim 'Get off my train' Eddowes and his RR and Central crews to park their vehicles on the very edge of the quarry. Here we must mention LCpl Kev Cailes (Chef) and his admin crew for their speed in creating a warming and welcome meal.

Saturday morning saw comms established in double quick time and the SCRA(T)s were soon out and about the area checking out possible dead spots (local shops). Priorities on the Monday evening ran to the Merseyside Derby where many a friend was won and lost. All the MUFC members send their heartfelt commiserations to the Red side of the Regiment. With the Exercise in full flow many a low pass was made over our location by RAF and USAF planes which led to LCpl Stu Green getting somewhat excited. Even more so when tasked with establishing a HLS for an Apache helicopter which would visit the location. Due to its arrival in the dark and in 'whisper mode' LCpl Green would need to elevate his lights and then carry out the IR heat seeking drills (warm hands). Unfortunately it failed to find us. Special thanks to Sigs 'Lurch' Wilkes and Sheila Stanley for their Landrover acrobatics display. With a special mention in dispatches to SSgt Paul Langley who would like to talk to anyone who will listen to him. All in all a good and worthwhile Exercise for all the TA soldiers who participated.

The Squadron, together with elements of the LAD, completed an 'arduous' adventuring training exercise from Capel Curig in North Wales during the weekend 6 – 8 August 1999. Events included hill walking at Tryfan and dry slope skiing, canoeing and rock climbing at Plas-y-Brenin Outdoor Pursuits Centre. Maj Micah Cummings and SSM Paul Williams organised the aprés ski entertainment on the Saturday evening, to the satisfaction of all concerned. Who said 'the fun's gone out of the TA?' The Squadron was tasked with running the Autumn Regimental CMT weekend at Altcar Ranges. This was taken on with much gusto and fervour (sic), and culminated in an exceptionally good weekend. For a change the weather was fine, and all personnel attending managed to get round the various ITD stands and complete their Bounty Training objectives. The new CFT taken on the Saturday evening whetted everyone's' appetite for a drink later, and sorted out those who were fit from those who thought they were! Sgt Bowers and Cpl Jefferson (LAD) were the newly qualified CFT PTIs who 'pleasantly beasted' all and sundry to finish on time.

On the manning front the Regimental Assets of Radio Troop have been redeployed from 59 Sqn back in to 55 (HQ) Sqn as of 1 October 1999, and 711 Tp are deploying to Shrewsbury in the near future under the mantle of 35 Sig Regt (V). Personnel displaced by the move will be offered 'plum' positions in 55 (HQ) Sqn (if there are any) and if anybody out there has seen Lt Lynn Reardon 711 Troop Officer, please tell her.

EXERCISE MANCUNIAN ENDEAVOUR 7– 8 AUGUST 1999

Forty members of the Squadron travelled to the Lake District for the summer Squadron Adventurous Training Camp. The venue was the same as last year, with Denton House in Keswick providing the accommodation and the training took place in and around the local area. Denton House, which has for years been owned by the King's Own Border Regiment, is now the property of The Adventure Company, a long established Adventurous Training Organisation operating out of Low Grove Farm at the foot of Skiddaw near Keswick. Training was carried out in trekking, mountain bike riding, canoeing, wind surfing, water skiing and dinghy sailing. Some activities were more successful than others with the OC, Maj Ian Kelly and the 2IC, Capt Dave Titheridge, accompanied by Maj Tony Dowson from HQ 42 (NW) Bde becoming totally becalmed on lake Windermere. SSgt Maurice Aarons who was towing skiers with his speed boat nearby claimed not to have noticed their predicament and ignored their pleas for help. He is now on a two-week drill course at Pirbright to see if that will improve his powers of observation as well as his turnout and marching!

The remainder of the weekend went without a hitch with the canoeists being particularly fortunate in having WO2 Garry Wilson, a PSI with the King's Regiment at Manchester UOTC, as an instructor to teach them the delights of underwater escape drills and Eskimo rolls. The walkers, under the control of UEL instructors SSgt 'Rooster' Coburn and Cpl 'Spider' Smith, enjoyed two days of good weather. During these days they traversed Skiddaw, Lonscale Fell, Little Man and Grisedale Pike among other features, before retiring to the PSAO's favourite pub in the village of Braithwaite for a few well earned pints of the local bitter.

THE KRYPTON FACTOR ASSAULT COURSE
19 – 20 SEPTEMBER 1999

The Regiment was tasked with providing support to the Krypton Factor Charity Obstacle Course taking place at Holcombe Moor over the weekend 18–19 September 1999. As the nearest Squadron to Holcombe Moor (Holcombe Moor is just north of Bury which is north of Manchester) 42 Sqn was nominated to organise this event on the Regiment's behalf.

Two charities were represented over the weekend, The National Heart Research Fund on the Saturday and The Cancer Research Campaign on the Sunday. The idea being for four male/female teams from across the North West and North Yorkshire to sponsor themselves to complete the famous (as seen many times on television) obstacle course. The Squadron, with a little help from 103 Regt RA (V), based in St Helens, was responsible for running the obstacle course as well as providing administration, equipment and communications support. As with every high profile event, all necessary precautions had to be thought of to ensure not only that the event was a great success and that lots of money was raised for charity, but also that the safety of the participants was paramount.

at Holcombe Moor supervised by Sqn PTIs

The enthusiasm level from the participating teams was tremendous with 52 teams taking part on the Saturday and a further 48 taking part on the Sunday. The oldest competitor, who insisted on being in the first team, was the Mayor of Salford, Cllr Pennington, a very sprightly 71 years old! Also taking part was the MP for Withington, Cllr Goggins. The teams were from all walks of life with teams comprising Scientists, doctors and nurses, school teachers, bank clerks and shop assistants to name but a few. Teams were paying £100 a team to the sponsored charity that gives some idea of the amount of money raised. As a proportion of the money raised is donated to the Army Benevolent Fund, the whole Exercise was extremely worthwhile.

REUNION DINNER 25 SEPTEMBER 1999

The Squadron held a dinner on 25 September for all members of the Squadron past and present. This is the second such dinner held and is now firmly fixed in the Squadron calendar as an annual event. As well as ex-Squadron members, members of the Manchester Branch of the Royal Signals Association and the 42 Sqn ex-Officers Club were in attendance. The evening proved a great success and as we go to print the date for next year's dinner is under consideration and will be promulgated shortly.

FAREWELL

Although they left in June, the Squadron would like to acknowledge, through the medium of The Wire, the long and sterling service that has been given by our caretaker Mr Tony Holliss and his wife Maureen. Unfortunately Tony fell victim to efficiency savings measures being carried out by 42 (NW) Bde earlier this year and had to take compulsory retirement. Tony had been the caretaker with 42 Sqn for over twenty years and Maureen ran the Sgts' Mess bar for a great deal of this time. Always cheerful and friendly, nothing to do with the running of the TA Centre was too much trouble and they contributed far more than was actually required of them. They have moved to their hometown of Bury and Tony has found employment with the Corps of Commissionaires. All ranks of the Squadron wish them the very best of fortune and good luck for the future.

The PSAO, Capt Gerry Whelan with Maureen and Tony at their farewell function in the Sgts' Mess

CONGRATULATIONS

Finally the Squadron would like to congratulate Sgt Kevin Westall and his wife Helen on the birth of their daughter Helena and Cpl Ken Bryan and his wife Trish on the birth of their son Sean.

80 (CHESHIRE YEOMANRY) SIGNAL SQUADRON (V)

Sqn Comd Maj Stan Fitzgerald
SSM WO2 (SSM) Frank Hale

On the weekend of 17–19 September, members of 80 Sig Sqn embarked on a Troop Weekend. The aim of the weekend was to improve the map reading skills in a vehicle of our newer Signallers. It is all well and good to be able to map read on foot, but as we are a mounted unit (Landrover rather than horses!), it is a different thing using a 1:50,000 map in a rover around winding roads. This is something we get called upon to do very often; the newer soldiers do not get any practice at it, other than apologising for getting lost. The hope was they would learn to navigate with a few kind words from their SNCO driving for directing them down the wrong road.

The Pack was given a route card to Church Bay, near the end of the route, they passed 'The Church Bay', a local pub at which point they pulled in to the car park. Their hopes were short lived when they found out the field they were staying in was a further mile away, down the road in Church Bay, not at 'The Church Bay'. That would have been too much to camp in the pub, not such a bad idea when you come to think of it though! The idea of pitching the 12 x 12s next to the sea had been a 'nice' plan, but with a force 9–10 gale during the night, we had to use four bags of 18' spikes and two Bedfords to anchor the tents down. It worked well, as the tents didn't move and no one got wet!!

The Saturday was filled with a nine hour map course around the island of Anglesey, this was handy as long as they didn't cross the bridge back to the mainland, they couldn't be more than 20 miles away from the bivi area. There were two memorable points from the day's training. LCpl Adams and crew at one grid point went through a churchyard to find a clue, only to stumble into someone's wedding. The party were coming out of the church and getting ready for pictures as our gallant heroes came running through the church grounds, the vicar was notably bemused. In true army style, the passing soldiers gave their compliments to the blushing bridesmaids. That's one wedding with a touch of green, well DPM at least! Another task was to count the steps at South Stack Lighthouse, almost all commented that there were more coming up than going down, then again when you've just run down over 400 steps, going back up doesn't seem so appealing.

On Saturday evening we found time to hold a barbecue on the beach. 2Lt Cox thought I was joking when I said people were to bring their swimming kit, yet no one bothered changing as over half ran half clothed into the sea. The storm had brought six foot waves and fun was had by all, even if they did look like drowned rats. The local welcomed this invasion from Runcorn, especially on Saturday evening; the pub didn't know what had hit them. People don't normally dance to the music, yet 80 got up and strutted their funky stuff. The weekend went well, it was enjoyed by all and everyone learned something from the map reading tasks. The TA needs some breaks from the endless workload Ptarmigan gives us, to be an effective unit, we must look at new and different ways to train.

THE MOVE TO CRAMLEY

The Summer months are usually a period of tranquillity and peace when well earned leave can be taken from the hustle and bustle of daily life in the TA and the daily routine takes on a more relaxed and sedate pace. Unfortunately the upheaval and turbulence of a major move from Sutton Coldfield of our Regimental Headquarters and Headquarter Squadron including LAD into a new TA Centre located at Canley a suburb of Coventry, quickly dashed any plans for a quiet restful period of recuperation. While the move went relatively smoothly, our worst fears were quickly realised that space was at a premium and Canley was quickly dubbed Cramley. Despite the best efforts of the Quartermaster, Maj 'I don't have a Tardis' Rod Gladwin, additional space could not be found to house all elements within the new TA Centre and some assets had to be re-deployed to other Squadron locations. This was much to the dismay of Mike Tp who found their designated workshop was still occupied by the Band of the RRF and defended by the RRF Regimental Mascot. The mascot has now thankfully been despatched to the Tower of London and on a lighter musical note the Regimental Techs because of their displacement and after some initial resistance from the 'Fourmost' Foreman, have now adopted a new theme tune, appropriately it's called 'Show me the way to go Ohm'. Nonetheless the hand-over take-over ceremony went smoothly and Maj Tudor Hill took over the reins of Centre Commander from Lt Col Ian Kippen under the watchful gaze of Comd 143 Bde, Brig John King and other special guests.

The flag raising ceremony
A scene from the hand-over/take-over parade

Sadly, even though the Regiment is now firmly established at Canley, our links and long association with Sutton Coldfield in particular will be missed. On a happier and positive note, despite the move many members of the TA recruited in Sutton Coldfield have chosen to continue serving with HQ Sqn and the LAD and the Regiment is already building a rapport with the local Community in Coventry as well as maintaining important historical and traditional links with the City of Birmingham. Finally a special thank you is once again extended to WO2 Mick Kearney and his intrepid team of Chefs for providing an excellent buffet enjoyed by all after the ceremony.

Farewell old friend – the outgoing Hon Col with new CO

ALL CHANGE AT THE TOP

The winds of change have blown through the Regiment and many familiar faces have now sadly departed; but changes while often unnerving are nevertheless a refreshing, necessary and familiar part of military life that tend to lead us in new directions and challenging situations. Leading the way a very special welcome is extended to our new CO, Lt Col Steven Potter and Sally his wife fresh from 11 Sig Bde. We wish the CO and his family a happy and rewarding tour with the Regiment and are confident that many achievements and new friendships will be forged along the way. The Regiment is also delighted to welcome back Col Brian Foxon as our Honorary Colonel. Col Brian and wife Carolyn have a long and esteemed history with the Regiment and we all look forward to renewing a strong and profitable partnership. Sadly we have said farewell to the outgoing Honorary Colonel, Brig Ian Sim and wife Irene. Brig Ian has been a tower of strength during his term of office and especially during the past few months where his wisdom, leadership and sensitivity have been inspirational and maintained morale in the most distressing circumstances. For that we will always be grateful and forever in his debt. At a special dinner held at Canley TAC on Saturday 25 September we bade a particular sad farewell to Maj Colin Meikle who leaves the Regiment after sixteen years of devoted service to the TA. The fact that his departure also coincided with the presentation of his TD made the event a little more sorrowful at the loss of another Regimental stalwart. During the dinner we also said farewell to the Adjt, Capt Andy Talbot whose sense of humour, tenacity and exuberance will be sorely missed and welcomed his replacement Capt Bob Lovett fresh from Staff College. Turning now to the other key figure in the Regiment our illustrious RSM, WO1 (RSM) Kevin Winkles and family have now left the Regiment and the Army and has now joined the legions of civilians. Kevin took the Regiment to heart and was much respected by all ranks who will miss his unique brand of leadership, direction and guidance. Fresh from God's country we have welcomed WO1 (RSM) Geordie Marshall and wish him like all other new arrivals a happy, fruitful and rewarding tour.

OUT OF AFRICA

Sixteen members of the Regiment led by Capt Dominique Hope, took part in Ex Kwazulu Dragon, which took place between 21 August-6 September. This arduous trekking expedition took place in the Drakensberg Mountains, a rugged and spectacular region of the world, which are situated in the centre of South Africa on the Eastern border of Lesotho and the Kwazulu Natal region. The aim of the expedition was for the expedition members to trek at altitude to see and enjoy as much of the Drakensberg mountains as time allowed while stretching them both mentally and physically both as individuals and team members what follows is Dominique's account of the expedition.

The Exercise began with the advance party composed of Capt Dom Hope, Sgt Bill Lambert and SSgt Rob Thomas roughing it in Johannesburg. They ensured equipment, rations and other essentials were ready prior to arrival of the main party on Sunday 22 August. All was going accordingly to plan until it was discovered that the main party arrived less luggage, which was still at Heathrow and not due to arrive until a day later! Even though a critical day was lost we took advantage of the situation and visited Gold Reef City, a cultural centre on the outskirts of Johannesburg. Here we took the opportunity to explore an old gold mine and later watched some traditional Zulu dancing. When the luggage arrived the following day the expedition, which was split into three broad stages, set off in earnest - minus SSgt Martin Thackers' sleeping bag!

The first stage was an acclimatisation day in the Northern Drakensberg. This was achieved by walking up the Tugela Gorge to the spectacular falls. Unfortunately we were greeted by Snow rather than the blazing sunshine that we expected. The scenery though was breathtaking and the trek itself has some hair-raising moments, noticeably a 100m vertical metal ladder and pinned climb. As white as the snow Sig Kate McNamara even managed to smile about it eventually or was it a fixed grimace of horror!

The team taking a well earned rest along the Giants Cup Trail

The second stage was further South in the majestic splendour of Cathedral Park. Here we spent three days exploring key features in this magnificent landscape of dramatic and dangerous caves, gorges, peaks and ridges plus the wildlife including baboons and scavenging fox like creatures. Some of these nimble animals tried to steal rations from LCpl Lorraine Cantrell and Sig Charlotte Alderhouse's tent but only managed to attack a couple of packets of extra strong mints. The highlight though of this stage was our ascent of the imposing Cathedral Peak which stood at 3004m the highest peak in the area. We climbed as far as possible without climbing equipment eventually reaching Orange Peel Gap at approx 2900m. I have to say that sitting in the clouds with all round views in complete silence is a most exhilarating experience.

For the final stage we moved to the Southern Drakenbergs to complete our 5-day trek along one of Southern Africa's most striking walks the Giant Cups Trail from Sani Pass near Lesotho to Bushmans Nek, over 80km away. Here we experienced the full gamut of South African wilderness. We trekked through native villages, saw original Bushman Cave paintings, viewed natural wildlife such as cobras, eland, baboons, bok and bright coloured proteas, but also slept under the stars. The trekking here was at times tough and we seemed to be the only people around. Each day different members of the group became the leaders to experience planning and plotting a phase of the trek which proved to be invaluable. Singled out for their special performance are LCpl Brian Reid on his gentle pacing that is until he confronted a menacing cobra! Sig Steve Smith who now has a reputation for finding the alternative route to any destination and finally Sig's Lorraine Cantrell and Jo Kane who insisted on us viewing a marauding pack of wild baboons who were careering down the valley closer and closer towards us..... Having survived this encounter and at the end of the five days everyone was aching and tired with sore joints, blisters and seized muscles but looking forward to the final R&R phase in Durban and plenty of cold beer! The expedition was an undoubted success but this is thanks in no small way to the support given by external JSMEL's in the shape of Major Lorna Swinyard-Bain, AGC and SSgt Karl Cordiner, RE.

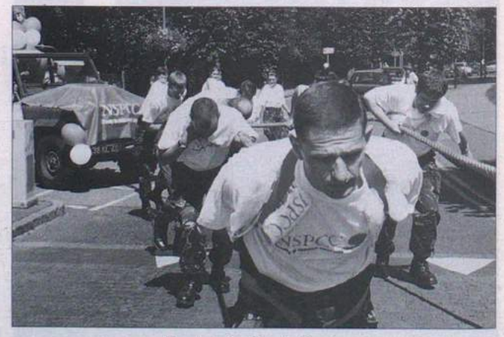
SQUADRON ROUNDUP

As I said in the leading article there was little time for relaxation during the Summer months and many activities took place throughout the Regiment that are deserving of praise and mention. 89 Sqn lead the way as well as providing valuable support to HQ Sqn during the Birmingham Discovery Day on Sunday 8 August they were also busy running a survival weekend with 48 Sqn being tuned to survival techniques taught by Sig Daniel 'Boone' Stacey, the Wright brothers and Cpl Kevin Bannigan.

Meeting the younger elements of the community at the Birmingham Discovery Day

The survival of the fittest - where is my next meal coming from?

This same intrepid team of instructors also joined the NSPCC fundraising team led by Cpl 'Wink' Watson and SSgt Andy Egan in Rugby on Saturday 21 August when they were all roped into a Landrover pull and fundraising fête that raised a magnificent £800 for the charity. There is absolutely no truth in the rumour that the attractive Carnival Queen had anything to do with there enthusiastic participation and some team members were anxious to pull her rather than the Landrover!



Fundraising fun in Rugby

Meanwhile further North & West 58 Sqn carried out Ex Signaller's Surprise in the Peak District. The Exercise, which was the brainchild of Sgt Jim Broomfield, and held over the weekend 21-22 August was a combined comms and initiative and leadership exercise that was hugely successful. It included establishing HF comms over a wide area whilst static and mobile, map reading and driving, a variety of command tasks and throwing new and old members of the Squadron into surprise situations that involved rail travel without losing valuable HF dets! Those who attended said it was great fun and are now looking forward to a repeat exercise spread over a wider area - once you harness this enthusiasm it's hard to control it. Now we are progressing towards the Autumnal series of exercises and training which will feature in the next edition of The Wire.

REGIMENTAL HEADQUARTERS
ANNUAL CAMP 1999 - FREMINGTON CAMP

This year's Annual Camp was held in Fremington Camp in Devon and was to be a two-phase camp. The first phase was to be trade training and the second phase an Exercise to train both managers and soldiers in problems that they may encounter over the millennium period.

Exercise Paranoid Dragon - was the first week of camp and consisted of eight days' Trade and Recruit training. Saturday 21 August saw the Regiment arrive at Fremington Training Camp and begin a day of classroom builds and settling in with the Regimental YofS wondering if a deployment of a week earlier might have been a good idea after all. By sunrise of Day Two things looked a lot rosier. The two main operator trade streams led by SSgt (YofS) Giles and Sgt Brookes got off to a fine start and training commenced in earnest. Day Seven saw the start of the inevitable Trade Boards with some worried looks on a few soldiers faces, after the final results were produced it would appear the week for most was a success and a well done to all students and instructors deservedly given. The techs got stuck into NCRS training under the TOT, Capt Dave Fraley and the FofS, SSgt Andy Burns. Although it was old hat to some, it was the first time the Regiment had done any serious 'Secondary' training since the introduction of NCRS in 1995. Meeting the system for the first time and experiencing their first TA Annual Camp were Sgts Steve Bibby and Jim Hawkins, from JCUNI and JCUFI respectively. Needless to say all passed with flying colours (even Sig Ronnie Cocker hobbling around on crutches). The team spent a well-earned R&R day at Westward Ho fishing and surfing with LCpl Kev Hall catching the most (even if they were crabs) and Sgt 'Ski' Skears thinking he was really mimicking those 'Old Spice' ads.

Exercise Bug Muncher – was a conglomerate Squadron deployed into the field for three days to train in MACP and MACC type tasks whilst living and working within a field environment. The tasks ranged from building a support hospital to recovery tasks. An added touch of realism was given by SSgt Phil Oliver the Regt Tiffy who managed to get the 14 ton recovery vehicle bogged in and had to be manually dug out by the troops. Of course no comments were made about ten packs for the boys! Prizes should be given out for role playing, as we discovered that WO1 Barry Weaver the TWO seems to be a closet Padre; although he could not convince the Squadron in defence that they required counselling for their difficult task. Also to assist in the training were a number of subversives. Wanted posters plastered over the training area eventually led the troops to the discovery that they were in fact Capt Carl Walker, WO1 (RSM) Joe Cox and the evil terrorist WO2 (SSM) Nigel Rees. The latter seemed to be either spotted or arrested on a daily basis but due to lack of evidence had to be released almost immediately. The Regiment learnt a lot in the three days about possible tasks that they could face over the millennium, and are now prepared for the tasks that they may face over the millennium period.

The New Year sees new starts for the officers and soldiers of 93 Sig Sqn (V) based in Blackburn. Officer Commanding, Maj Ross Parsell handed over the reins to newly appointed Maj Alan Unwin, now in his thirtieth year of service having attained every rank in the Squadron. A new Sergeant Major rose from the ranks in the new year promotions list. WO2 Neil Reid started out in the local Army Cadet Force and is every inch the determined, successful signaller which the Squadron is renowned for producing. He works for British Telecom in his civilian job. SSgt Heather Kenny, (a podiatrist) takes on the first female Troop Commanders role at the Manchester Tp, with Sgts Geoff Small (an expert welder) and Paul Walsh (an ex regular soldier who owns a white goods company) moving onto pastures new as Troop Second in Command at the Barracks.

The IT bug struck the soldiers of 93 Sig Sqn (V) recently as the Troops took on the latest advances in Information technology. Senior Squadron members, Sgt Fitzpatrick, SSgt Graveson and Cpls Macgregor and Cornthwaite taught Introduction to Computer Programming, Networks, PC Building and a beginners guide to the Internet. The guest speaker on Military Computer Security was SSgt Phillips from 42 Bde HQ in Preston. Information Technology plays an integral part of the Squadrons' role alongside Radio and Data Communications. Many of the troops use IT in their civilian employment and the training proved very useful.

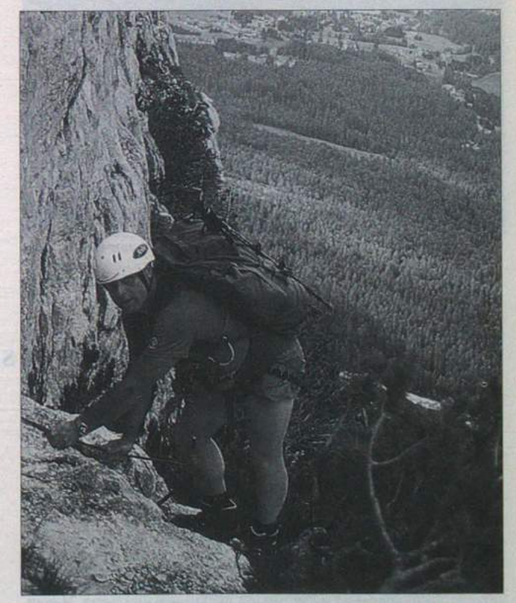
Ex Bug Muncher took place on Fremington Training Area during annual camp. This Exercise was designed to prepare the Regiment for Op Surety over the Millennium period.

HQ Squadron were tasked to provide the majority of the instructors, who carried out their tasks with enthusiasm, especially when it came to the issue of the new style 24hr ration packs. They ensured that the troops were not overburdened with weight and were only too eager to advise what to leave behind. Strange how many bars of chocolate and boil in the bag puddings were left for the instructors to carry. The QM is still trying to find out where they were put when the Exercise finished. It seemed that all the instructors had gained weight over Annual Camp and their wives have now put them on a diet!

EXERCISE DOLOMITE DRAGON 2

'Come to Italy for some gentle walking in the mountains of the South Tyrol' said the PSAO. 'I'll fly you out business class, with comfortable accommodation' he wheedled, how could we resist the carrot? Though I'll never admit to seeing the film 'Sound of Music' I've spotted odd snippets on TV and thought a 'holiday' in that area would be splendid, what was good enough for the Von Trapp family was certainly good enough for me - so I volunteered! One week away from the departure date and our final briefing. The PSAO, who just happened to be the JSMEL and OC of the party, was rattling on about 'kissers' with full harness and 11mm rope. Now me being slow on the uptake thought we were in for some lap dancing in the Italian night-spots, that is until he produced the said items and explained their use, 'My giddy Aunt, what have we let ourselves in for?'

We travelled on 11 July. Business class he promised, and so it was - all the way to Munich. Good food, complimentary champagne and a stainless steel cutlery set thrown in (fits nicely in the sleeve pocket of the combat smock). Clean but basic hut accommodation in the forest he promised - that was a big fib. First class chalet in the Italian town of Dobbiaco no less. We took one look and thought, 'When does the bubble burst - this can't be real.' We'd had a splendid journey, lovely accommodation and we couldn't see any big mountains so there was this false sense of well-being and joie de vivre. On Monday morning rain and cloud greeted our intrepid group as we disembarked from the local bus. 'Where's the mountain?' The JSMEL smiled that enigmatic smile and his eyes twinkled. 'That one' he said pointing upward. The clouds parted and as if by magic 'Strudelkopf' appeared, that was if you could crane your neck back far enough to take in the whole height - 6500 feet of jagged granite. 'So that's Pudding Head eh!' My Adam's apple bobbed in apprehension but sure enough, three hours later we were on the summit. We trekked through a tunnel near the top and on emerging were subjected to views out over a sheer precipice.



WO1 Barry Weaver – 'Are we there yet?'

It was heart-stopping, with a ledge on the left and a 'confidence wire' to guide you. You tend to watch were you're putting your feet! Back at the bus stop and feeling elated with a mountain well conquered, we casually asked for the itinerary for the morrow. With a nod and a smile he pointed, 'There, that one, Monte Piano,' he said. 'No, he's joking,' we thought, as we gazed upward on all 7000ft of it with no apparent contouring path. 'Briefing at 1830 and practice fitting of harness,' said the man. Never has a mind been so concentrated on how to fit a harness and tie the kisser to it. Tuesday the weather had improved - so had our nerves. Spectacular views and some decent photos were obtained. Still don't understand why Austria and Italy chose to fight on this mountain between 1915-17, the logistics must have been awesome. We used the Ferrata for the first time, (a wire and ladder route) to scale the summit and were feeling very proud of ourselves – two mountains climbed.

Entrance to the Paternkofel war-time tunnel

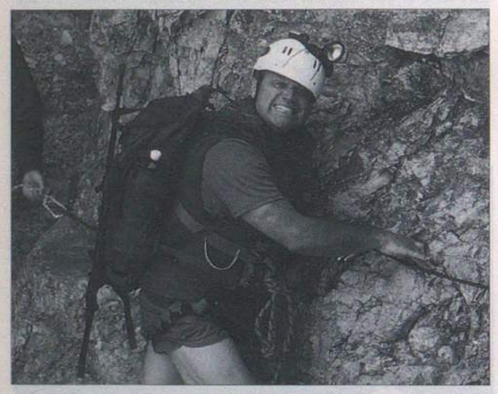
The next day was the Paternkofel with its 600m tunnel blasted out by Sappers during the First World War. Those soldiers must have suffered terrible hardships, living, fighting and dying on that formidable piece of rock. The images were beyond the comprehension of this party and we were saddened by the graves dotted around.



WO1 Barry Weaver emerging from the Paternkofel war-time tunnel

Out of the tunnel and close to the summit with the inevitable cliff to the left. Straight down it was, 'Oh to be an Alpine Chough'! 'Up we go' he said. 'Flying then, are we?' we said, 'Because there's nothing to hold on to.' We duly scaled the summit and were making our way down when the weather closed in. Wind, rain, cloud and even the odd thunderclap. Holding on for dear life whilst trying to get into waterproofs is not to be recommended but we made it. Thursday saw the Sextender Rotwand and at 10,000ft was the challenge of the week. A very tough climb - scree, wire, ladders and always upwards. Seven of the group made the top and young LCpl Tamsin Klinkenberg, very respectful of heights, still managed a smile - or was it a grimace. We could barely hide our delight when the JSMEL complained of feeling knackered - he is human after all and to prove it, that night we were treated to an excellent dinner and birthday cake to celebrate LCpl Catherine Smith's birthday. Sometimes life can be sweet. Friday would be a 'restful' day - he lied. Mount Strobel, a sheer face overlooking the Italian town of Cortina and although not the highest, quite the most difficult climb. Total exposure on some faces with the minimum of hand and foot holds and sometimes having to rely on the wire to pull ourselves up - awesome. The ladders and staples used to assist on some of the faces had been subjected to rock-fall so it did get a teeny bit hairy. Yours truly will take with him to the grave the panoramic view he got from between his spread feet of an athletics track 4000ft below and which he could have covered with his thumbnail - had he the nerve to prise his hand from the rock face. Now I know what its like to have disco legs without the music! The final day, a leisurely walk from Dobbiaco to Innichen and back, to stretch the legs and do some shopping. Sunday back home and sober reality.

In conclusion, would I do it again? Yes please. What a fantastic, humorous, heart-stopping, comradely eight days, led by a total professional who shared with us, quite unselfishly, his skill and knowledge of this outdoor pursuit and his love of a very beautiful piece of Italy.

HATS OFF TO RAMBLING 93

The start was early O'clock, the O standing for Oh my goodness it's early Sunday morning and it's still dark. After some extensive de-icing and gritting, walkers and safety crews from 93 Sig Sqn (V) left their frozen Barracks at Canterbury Street in Blackburn to wind their way across the Moors to Tottington near Bury. As part of Ex Two Towers, an HF communications and navigation exercise, the Squadron provided Land Rovers and safety crews for the Long Distance Walkers Association of Lancashire. Every January nearly 200 members sprint, jog, walk and sometimes crawl along the infamous and gruelling 25 mile boggy route which encompasses some barren, although tranquil scenery of Holcombe Moor and Tottington Reservoirs. Two teams of Signallers fought the elements and displayed great determination as they held their own, trudging through snow and peat, alongside the regular ramblers.

The route was marshy, up the knees in places and the weather held fine until crossing Bull Hill at Holcombe Moor Training Area. There it rained, rain turned into sleet, and sleet into snow, followed by a downpour of hail and a blast of icy cold wind. The teams were soaked, cold, aching and downright exhausted by the twenty fifth mile. The Squadrons Mobile Dets were in position at each of the seven checkpoints where they provided the walkers with a well earned cup of 'Squaddie' tea. Secretly sniggering at the walkers, they were not the least enviable. The walkers finally returned to Tottington to earn a certificate, a badge and two slices of Pizza. Next stop, the Pub! No doubt those who manned the Mobile Dets will be swapping with the walkers for the fun and games next year ..... Then again .....

EXERCISE BIG BREW

This year's Annual Camp consisted of a week of communications specialist training, and a second week of leadership, initiative and adventurous training. One of the second weeks' activities was a 24-hour Exercise consisting of three distinct phases. Phase One was a 15km march over Bodmin Moor collecting various items, which would enable the teams to drive a Landrover from the final checkpoint and take part in a number of initiative testing command tasks. Driving rain and 'pea soup' fog certainly tested the troops over marshland and difficult terrain.

Phase Two was a charity fund raising event called 'The Big Brew'. Our part in this SAAFA fund raising activity was to send ten teams, each to a supermarket in Cornwall and allow them two hours in which to raise as much cash as possible. The aim was to sell as many cups of tea as possible. On particular team based in Sheffield went to a supermarket in Helston, near Truro. They managed to get the local Mayor, the Royal Naval Air Station Culdrose 1st Lieutenant, and the Supermarket manager assisting in the event. After this charity event which raised over £1200, the teams completed a vehicle orienteering event/treasure hunt, and returned to camp. During Camp the Regiment said goodbye to Lt Col I. W. Griffiths and welcomed in, Lt Col N. P. Harrison MBE. We hope you enjoy your command of the Regiment. Sadly this was the last camp for two of the Squadron stalwarts, WO2 (SSM) Nigel Caldicott and SSgt Roger Huckerby. We maintain that Roger, at 61, is the oldest serving TA soldier in the world! The rest of the week entailed adventurous training of various sorts and everyone was well and truly tired by the end of the week.

Lt Col Ian Griffiths' final act as CO was to lead the officers in a gruelling test of football skills against the WO's and Sgt's Mess. It was 1-1 at half time. The Officers came out in the second half with the wind and fully refreshed. A potent 'it's only orange' punch for the seniors mess may have assisted them, but there was no disputing the final result. Officers 3 – WO's & Sgt's 1. An excellent performance from the Hon Col, Maj Gen A. H. Boyle CB for refereeing the match.

CAMP 1999 – PENHALE - EXERCISE TIN TRAIL

(A Ration Storeman's Nightmare)

Yes it was September 1999 and time for Annual Camp once again and getting off to a fine start with the MTWO pulling his hair out when convoys started coming at him instead of him overtaking them. We finally made camp at about 2000hrs on Saturday. The first couple of days were spent getting ready for Ex Tin Trail that was to take place over the period of 15-18 of September. A certain Ration Sergeant, who shall remain nameless, Sgt 'Barry' Baldwin was getting so excited he could hardly contain himself. There were others who got so carried away that one Master Chief actually thought he could fly, but failed miserably, broke his leg doing a Superman Impression. Seriously though, we hope you get better soon Andy (WO (RCWO)) Medley because we all look forward to some of that delightful cooking that keeps you GOING through the night.

LCpl Sykes dangerously near to the controls of a Gazelle

We deployed on Exercise to Predannack Airfield next to Lizard Point. Having very little cover and with the wind gusting from the coast we proceeded to set up HQ Sqn Echelon, and settled in for the next 48 hours. The rain, and plenty of it, did not dampen spirits. In fact I distinctly remember Maj 'Bill' Evans (OC HQ) saying he actually enjoyed his early morning dip, in his indoor swimming pool which he acquired overnight. On Day Two of the Exercise the calls came in to re-supply the Squadrons, the task was taken up by 'Dear old Barry' and his crew. He proceeded to go out and re-supply one of the Dets at one of the stunningly beautiful sites in Cornwall. He had taken a left hand drive Land Rover and was a couple of miles down the road when he noticed he was being followed. Unperturbed, he proceeded on, noticing that whenever he slowed down so did the car. Whenever he speeded up so did the car. After approx 30miles our Barry was suddenly ambushed by three of Cornwall's Finest (Boys in Blue) and shouts of, 'Get Out, Get Out, You have been Drink Driving' echoed around the trap which had been set for the vehicle. The man who was driving the car that had been following Barry jumped out of his car and was shouting, ' Yes that's him, I saw him falling all over the steering wheel, I have done my bit to stop crime'. Barry then took some time to explain that he had not. It was because it was a left-hand drive vehicle that the stranger had seen the passenger (LCpl Jayne 'Nodding Dog' Lindley), who was feeling the effects of fatigue and had been trying to keep awake. Her head was swaying from side to side as if she had been on the gin again. The police realising the mistake that the citizen of Cornwall had made were last seen chuckling into their doughnuts and coffee. As for the citizen his Final statement was 'Can you give me directions? I seem to have got lost'

It has been a busy few months for 64 Sig Sqn. There have been a few changes to the ORBAT and new arrivals. We welcome Maj Andy Smith (OC), Capt Les Jordan BEM (PSAO), 2Lt Richard Grieve, 2Lt Tom Howes, SSgt Stuart Couszins (SPSI), Sgt Warren Quinn, SSgt Dave Brown, SSgt Dave Bentley, Sgt Mark Marshall and an influx of many other former members of 3 DWR who have swiftly integrated into the ranks. Welcome to 64 Sig Sqn and congratulations on your excellent choice of sub-unit.

Sadly a few stalwart characters have left the Squadron in recent months, Capt Dave Poole MBE (PSAO) has retired after serving as PSAO with the Squadron for well over a decade. All the Squadron have expressed their appreciation for his vast contribution and we wish him all the very best. We have also said a fond goodbye to SSM Jimmy Mees, who leaves the Squadron after serving over ten years with 64 Sqn and several years more with 3 DWR prior to that. We convey our best wishes to Jimmy and his wife Mary who, for many years, ran the Junior Ranks

Club at Manor TAC. Other members of the Squadron to leave include Maj David Tomlinson (former OC) who moves to his new command at 87 Sig Sqn at Nottingham, SSgt Stan Kelly (former SPSI) who has finished his tour with the Squadron and moves to Germany on promotion. The Squadron also congratulates Sfan on his recent marriage to Bob, and to LCpl Schofield for successfully passing her PTI course earlier this year.

The Squadron deployed to Penhale in Cornwall for its annual camp. The main activities included the TARA Cup competition that 64 Sqn narrowly missed clinching the first prize, Ex Big Brew which 64 Sqn dominated, and the Orienteering Competition in which 64 Sqn again came first. Ex Tin Trail was the main comms Exercise of this year's camp. Ex Tin Trail was the Regimental Exercise phase of Camp that saw detachments deployed to various coastguard stations and Local Authority establishments to practice an ICP scenario. One such location included the Eclipse Control Centre underneath the Truro County Council Offices. This location was still set up for the recent eclipse activities and the facilities were outstanding. The Squadron appreciates the hospitality displayed by the authorities in Truro. The Exercise was a success and 64 Squadron detachments put in a quality performance. The Squadron performed extremely well throughout camp winning the vast majority of the silver available. A big thank you to all the team members and those who helped to train or run the events.

Maj Andrew Smith and all the management team at 64 Sig Sqn sincerely thanks all members of the Squadron who have contributed to such a successful year so far. A big thank you also goes out to the unsung heroes that support the efforts of soldiers namely; wives, husbands, partners and families that stay behind when we are away.

Camp 1999: Off we went to sunny, we hoped, Penhale Camp! As we approach Cornwall, surprise, surprise, it was raining. We began to wonder what the next two weeks would bring. The first week began with shakedown training that went quite well. We then deployed out on a communications exercise. This Exercise covered the whole of Cornwall and a fair amount of Devon. The other members could not believe some of the facilities that were offered. At RAF Portreath, Cpl 'I'm in the Sauna if needed' Blair is still trying to get the rust from her rifle!

The Squadron MIV (Mould) vehicles deployed in support of Royal Naval Air Station Culdrose, another Exercise that went very well. The main Comms Exercise went extremely well and integrated the new members of the Squadron with the existing members LCpl 'Reg' Holdsworth can now tell the time! During the exercise we were visited by the IGTA, Lt Gen Sir John Deverell KCB OBE. Our US National Guard visitor, SSgt Cathy Waddler, wondered how to salute this left-handed General, we were tempted! Saturday saw us back in Penhale Camp ready for the outgoing CO's final inspection. Yes, the heavens opened and the Squadron was inspected under a fire hydrant! The weather did clear, however, and an AAC Gazelle flew in and gave lots of covert recces and familiarisation flights. Pass the bag! The second week started with the TARA Cup. A multi-stand event, ably organised by Capt 'Gadget' John Pearson. The day went well, our visitors being Brig (Retd) P. I. B. Stevenson, the Secretary of the East Midlands TAVRA and Col R. Merryweather, County Chairman. Unfortunately the Squadron did not quite gain overall victory. Tuesday saw the sports competition. We came a close second in a lot of events but never quite managed to win. Better luck next year!

The Squadron party was held in the evening at Newquay, and as always everyone had a good time. Capt 'Tarquin' Rustidge even managed to find his way there unaided, and so back to Nottingham, and yes you're correct, it is raining. Roll on Camp 2000.

EXERCISE TURTLE REEF 1999 – GIBRALTAR
by Anon (Sig Gail Soar)

It's 4am in the morning. Bleary eyed, dirty and busting for the toilet. I emerge from my stony cold floor that, for me, was my bed for two hours that night. For the last twenty-ish years I had believed there was only one 4 o'clock in a day – how wrong could I be! As the sun forced its way over the horizon, once again reality hit me as to my surroundings. The dusty outline of the buildings came into view and the now too familiar smell of sweaty bodies hit me. A question I had often asked myself was, 'What was a Beauty Consultant from Nottingham doing in a showerless, toiletless, sweaty, hot dirty place such as this?' Many weeks ago I was overwhelmed with a sense of adventure and a desire to be 'one of the boys'. To be able to do things that no ordinary young lady would dare to do. And so through the gates of the TA Centre I went. Little did I know what they had in store for me. Five months as a recruit and I was lucky to be given a chance to be on what could be only described as an 'adventure of a lifetime'.

This adventure started two long weeks ago with an uneventful flight from Luton, arriving in a sunny Gibraltar. Ex Turtle Reef was truly underway. As we wound our way through the narrow streets to Camp, I pondered on what the Exercise would be like and how I would turn out, would they really throw me into a regime like 'GI Jane', or would I turn out more like 'Private Benjamin'. As our coach pulled through the gates a true sense of overwhelming excitement ran through me. Whatever was to happen to me in the next two weeks didn't matter, I was here, the sun was hot and I was raring to go. As the first week progressed I realised how little I knew and how much I had to learn. Day by day my understanding of army life grew, learning NBC, first aid, battle procedures, room clearance, FIBUA and tunnel fighting to name but a few. This intense training was hard, but incredibly enjoyable. During our initial brief I noted there were about 350 bars in 'Gib' and it became the mission of some to seek out each one. Although merriment was of paramount importance during these training sessions down the pub, some of us still insisted on physical activities during the evening. Not wanting to start any rumours, but I swear I saw Sig 'Sicknote' Young doing the 100 metres sprint down the road with a nubile Gibraltan Granny in hot pursuit! Did she get her man? Best ask Simon.

Tough, hard, mean and lean fighting machines took to the next phase of our training. 'Baywatch' style wetsuits in place, we took to the ocean waves for our adventure training, with a choice of banana boating, scuba diving, mountain climbing, ringo riding and many more. We all took turns in how wet and fast we could go, ending the day with a barbecue and a few beers – what a life! We prepared for the final mission: to attack the invading San Miguels and force their retreat back over the border. The mission started with an exciting beach landing, courtesy of the Navy (everybody loves a sailor, and now I know why!). Once the troops had regrouped they had to tab to caves and tunnels. I waited for the troops to start their assault on our village, as a recruit with such little military experience, I found this whole assault rather frightening but exciting too. The other people around me who were also playing enemy seemed so involved in their role that I found myself running around like a headless chicken. They kept telling me the horror stories trying to scare me even more. I was standing next to the window, and could see the troops coming closer. They were in range, but still couldn't see me. Another thunder flash went off and a cloud of green smoke enveloped the wall in front of my window. They had arrived. This was it – my heart was beating really fast, adrenaline flowed through my veins. All my training had come to this moment – what if I couldn't fire? What if I got a stoppage? As I saw a head over the wall my instincts took over and I blasted off a mag at the images to my front, squealing with delight. I'd done it! Overnight I'd turned into a mini-rambo. This was excellent, fear had gone and excitement had taken over. So much had happened during the exercise, blood, sweat and, definitely on my part, tears had been shed. But although I found myself out of my depth quite a lot of the time, I knew that the training I received had put me in good stead for the future. I hope that the guys who were with me enjoyed themselves as much as I did.

Our thanks go to all who organised Ex Turtle Reef 1999. We are grateful for all the hard work you put in, as we realise such an adventure could never have taken place without you all. My personal thanks to everyone who helped me through my many ups and downs and I apologise for being such a pain the ***!

SQUADRON TRAINING - DARTMOOR

The Squadron deployed to the moors on a sunny evening in late summer to practice Navigation and Communication skills. The night move carrying full kit proved to be quite eventful, and tiring for all those taking part. LCpl Pete Rendall managed to walk into a bog up to his knees (rumour control had it as chest deep), and LCpl Sheena White fell down a hole. Undaunted and uninjured all three teams made it to the bivi area, the last just after first light on a cold and misty morning. After a period of rest and feeding the teams set of via a series of checkpoints to visit the three stands. At Stand 1 (First Aid) they were met by Sgt Rob James with his customary smile and ever boiling kettle. Then it was on to Stand 2 (Command Task) with the Tech PSI, Sgt Norman, this appeared to be great fun.

Command Task - 'Don't push when I say pull!!'

Stand 3 was our own ex-Bootie, Sgt 'Scotty' Doyle and his observation area, the constant periods of mist and rain must have made this a challenge. Then it was on to the night time location, where after bivi-ing up and some food the Medics tent doubled up as the bar. Here the tired and footsore team members (LCpl Mark Scaum as always) had a chance to discuss the Exercise as they saw it with the OC and DS staff. Sunday morning saw the breaking of camp and the trip back to Bristol, miraculously the sun shone all the way home.

EXERCISE SILVER LYNX LONGMOOR

A Regimental Tactical exercise centred on the Longmoor Training Area, it was a tough weekend for those members of the Squadron that attended. There was a myriad of both real-time and Exercise play tasks to be carried out, along with all the guard and runner stags it is easy to see why many regarded the weekend as a sleep deprivation trial. Low points of the weekend, getting attacked whilst in possession of insufficient blank ammunition to have a decent fire fight. High points included the excellent standard of catering (as always) from the Chefs and Q staff and the LAD at Sunday lunch having a morale attack whilst watching 'Wacky Races' (57 Sqn and the RHQ elements) moving out of location.

SQUADRON ADVENTURE TRAINING (MOUNTAIN TREKKING)

Early on Saturday morning the Squadron met at the TAC in preparation for a day's walking in the Brecons. There were one or two rather thick heads from the Friday wedding of LCpl Sheena Wicks nee White (more to follow). Once all the kit was loaded and we were divided into two groups it was off to foreign lands. On arrival at the Storey Arms lay-by the local burger van was besieged by hungry troops looking for sustenance. The weather looked chilly and misty, but once more undeterred the groups set off along the mapped out route. There we were, all equipped with our kit including safety bergans, when we meet a group of Japanese tourists in trainers carrying nothing more than a camera and bottle of water each. They obviously knew what the plot was thought we, anyway after a good climb we reached the peak of Peny-Fan. Lo and behold the weather was glorious and allowed every body to enjoy the wonderful views, and to contemplate the route down to the pick-up point. On the way down both groups met up for a spot of lunch al fresco on a nice and sunny bank. The obligatory micky taking and the spot of sheep dung throwing ensued. Then like a troop of elephants (no offence Badders) all nose to tail we trudged along to the pick up point. Eventually the SQMS and his trusty side kick arrived to get us, and it was off to the camp site. Thanks to the two of them our tents had been erected, no mean feat considering all the different size and designs. Then followed an evening of relaxation, most people availed themselves of a basket meal and some beverages from the local hostelry (the 'Aberglais Inn'). It was here that we witnessed the strange trait of Saddle Napping by some local youths. The morning dawned with a change of weather, it was overcast and rainy, so it was back over the river Severn, with everybody feeling better for our spot of Adventure drinking OOPS training.

WELCOME

It is a good welcome to Capt Dewar the new OC LAD. She has come with lots of new ideas to improve on our already good LAD.

PROMOTION

Congratulations to Sig Davies on his promotion to Lance Corporal, this was well deserved for his work within the 'Q' stores.

BURMA STAR VJ PARADE IN BRISTOL

The SSM and Sgt Clarke along with three SNCOs from 57 Sqn acted as parade marshals for the Burma Star Association annual parade.

HONOUR GUARD

On the Friday morning prior to deploying on Adventurous training six members of the Squadron acted as an Honour Guard for Sheena's Wedding, at the Registry Office. They were as follows SSgts Sweetland and Smith, Sgts Clarke and Doyle, Cpl Cole and LCpl Davies. We would all like to wish Shaun and Sheena all the best for the future. As this letter goes to print we are all eagerly anticipating Camp, plus several more weekends to fit in before the Millennium (Op Surety). So there will be plenty more to report.

WELCOMES AND FAREWELLS

Congratulations to 2Lt Simon Durtnal for successfully completing his Commissioning Course and assuming the mantle of OC RRTT. Also to Sigs Ben Kent and Daniel Wallace who recently joined the Squadron having completed their initial recruit-training course at Cultybraggan. We would like to wish a warm welcome to Sgt Robbie 'The OC didn't say goodbye' Hall who has just made the transition from Regular to Territorial.

EXERCISE BONNIE LYNX 1999 (11 - 17 SEPTEMBER)

The Squadron deployed to sunny Garelochhead Training Camp in Scotland for the first phase of this year's annual camps. Sunday was spent preparing for the rest of the week's activities and included Local Cultural Acclimatisation Part 1, a visit to a local manufacturer to learn about their manufacturing processes and sample the product, if a bit old (between 17 and 30 years), however, it was very nice. It could be said that certain PSI's were culturally challenged later that evening. On to the serious stuff, the rest of the week involved military training, a comms exercise and adventure training. On Monday we discovered that the Squadron would need to be waterproof, the sun had gone south, we were on the ranges and it was raining (Local Acclimatisation Part 2). During the morning we undertook NBC training, which provided us with another layer to keep the water out and completed individual TOETs and zeroing of personal weapons. It turned out that the Squadron were indeed waterproof, all except for Lt Cranston who trusted his new combats to keep him dry and left his waterproofs back at camp. It was a very rare day indeed, it is not often that you get an OC, 2IC and Regimental Trg Maj 'stagging on' together in a sentry box made for one. After lunch, and just before we were about to implement the very wet weather programme, the rain stopped and the shiny thing in the sky returned. The Squadron carried out section defence drills, much ammunition was fired with gusto and enthusiasm, and many targets were hit (although not Fig 11s).

LCpl Lizzy Matthews and Sig Michael Cooper ready for action!!

Tuesday was the Adventure training day; activities included sailing, canoeing, power boating, hill walking and mountain biking. The water sports group had and excellent day with Sigs Van Nie Kerk and Bayer having mastered sailing lasers, tried something slightly more complicated, and learnt how to inspect the bottom of the boat whilst afloat. They hadn't quite grasped that both crew need to be on the same side of the boat.

Sigs Steven Van Nie Kerk and Michel Bayer,
What are you playing at? Get over this side now!!

The PSAO telling the OC and CO where the bank is!

Sigs Maxine Sample and Lucy Corr power boating

On Wednesday we practised our primary role, communications. Even the Squadron Officers were let loose on the equipment whilst the PSI's watched with trepidation. Our recent transferee from the RGJS, Sig Lucy Corr, tried her hand at communicating, to whom or what is anybody's guess, but it looks painful.

Sig Lucy Corr ex-RGJ on the Comms Exercise

The Squadron also entered the Royal Navy Scottish Units Volleyball Championships, having survived naval broadsides (RN PTIs serving) we managed a creditable fifth place. A visit to HMS Victorious later that day was very interesting, accommodation onboard revealed that maybe the barrack rooms at Garclockhead Training Camp were not so cramped after all. No one has put their name forward for the submarine service yet!

EXERCISE HIGHLAND LYNX 1999

The Squadron then deployed to Cultybraggan Training Camp (Ex WW2 POW Camp 21) joining the rest of the Regiment prior to starting a Regt Ex Highland Lynx, a simulated Peace Keeping Exercise. The Squadron was joined by elements from HQ Sqn and two US National Guards.

On the Thursday following Exercise endex; the Regimental Sports Day got underway with the Assault Course and Shooting Competition. The Squadron Select Team was given the last slot to complete the competition, just as they were about to start the heavens opened again! No problem, 5 Sqn's waterproofing and previous experience in such conditions paid off, the team beat all previous contenders over the course by a safe margin and to finish off in style, four out of five lads selected to shoot, scored 100%. 5 Sqn won the competition. After lunch the Squadron's sports teams performed excellently and came second overall. However, this was not without casualties as Sig Barnes developed a self-inflating cheek following a clash of heads, the 2IC, Capt Robertson, lost and found a fingertip after allowing it to become trapped between two hockey sticks. There was also the SSM's, WO2 Phillips nose which had a close encounter with a hockey stick, and he wasn't even playing. We were so short of players that the PSAO, Capt Bob Sheldon, had to step in when it came to the hockey to ensure victory, he claims to have been instrumental in something, what I do not know as I had left for Stirling A & E by then.

The 5 Squadron Winning Assault Course and Shooting Team

The second week included Recruit Training and the Squadron had two successful candidates who passed out on Thursday 23 September 1999. Well done Sigs Daniel Wallace and Ben Kent.

Sig Joseph Kent with Brig John Powell, Eastern Wessex TAVRA

The Squadron held its annual camp party at the Pinewood Inn in Helensburgh on Wednesday 15 September 1999. A most hearty and hefty eating and drinking session was followed by a Karaoke in which every member of the Squadron and guest had to have a go. The winner without any doubt was SSgt 'Robbie Williams' Kavanagh singing 'Angels', give up your day job Les, if you can drink the ten beers it took you to perform on stage.

'Soldier from 5 Squadron to Represent Army Canoeing Team'

Sig Steven Van Nie Kerk was selected to represent the Army Canoeing Team at in the Inter Service Championships in Nottingham held in August 1999. Sig Van Nie Kerk was a member of the winning Army Team. He took part in the K4 6k and K4 500m races. Well done Steven, we will miss you when leave us in November to join the Royal Marines.

Sqn Comd Maj Rosernary Tuhev
SSM WO2 (SSM) Phil Packer

A considerable change in the Squadrons PSI plot has occurred since the last article. It's a farewell to SSgt Tony Bentley (alias Big Flo, Boy Bentley and many other names), he will, however, still be around for sometime to pester us as he is on a combination of gardening and nursing leave! The Squadron will thank him properly for all the excellent work he has done for us closer to his final date (early next year). It's a welcome, however, to SSgt Tony Ward, who following a busy camp has already made his mark and been accepted by everyone in the squadron. A change has also been made with our Tech PSI, seeing Sgt Tam 'Head in the clouds) Ewart moving on to 63 (SAS) Sig Sqn (V) and the arrival of Sgt Lee Perry straight from his TI Course. Sgt Perry has in fact served with the Squadron before, in a TA capacity some ten years ago, on that occasion as an operator! Congratulations are given to SSgt Dave Williams on his well deserved promotion, and to the PSAO, Capt John Cullen on the birth of his grandson Jack (who he constantly talks about) both the promotion and the birth were overdue.

EXERCISE JUMP TO IT - by LCpl Dave Smith

Ex Jump To It, gave some members of 57 Sig Sqn, 39 Sig Regt (V) a chance to go parachuting under the watchful eye of our very own Sgt Tam '216 Para Sig Sqn' Ewert. The morning weather was excellent for parachuting jumping. All we had to do was wait for the appearance of the Bristol minibus. It was two hours late. When the minibus did arrive the excuse given was, 'We could see the place but could not get to it.' Said the map reader Sig Helen Winterson. We were introduced to our instructor, Nigel. He was a very experienced free-fall parachutist and a A330 airline pilot. The training was informal and interesting. During the day we learnt all about the canopy, the airfield, the aircraft, the exit drills and the emergency IA drills, if anything should go wrong. (Not a chance said Nigel). All topics are broken down into short lessons and are easily understood and picked up by everyone on the course. Once we had finished all the theory we had a short multiple choice test, which everyone passed even Capt Bill Ruffiven.

We were ready for our first jump, the radios were fitted to chests, bright orange boiler suits were put on, crash hats and finally our harnesses containing our parachutes. As soon as we were dressed we were checked and our equipment was checked also. We are now ready to board the aircraft. Five minutes later at 3500ft we were approaching the Drop Zone. 'Ready One and Two?' said Nigel. The door was shoved open and 'Number One in the door .... GO' roared Nigel. With that LCpl Sam Estcourt was gone. 'In the door.....GO' and LCpl Ali MacGilp was gone. All seven had gone then it was my turn. 'In the door .... GO' out I jumped. I tried to remember my 'one thousand, two thousand, three thousand, four thousand, check canopy' all I remember was thank goodness the damn thing opened. I grasped my toggles and I could fly, WOW this is something else. Pulling left to turn left, pulling right to turn right, I made my way to the play area. (The area you can manoeuvre safely in.) Once in the play area I turned left, right and right again, it was absolutely great. At 1500ft we had to make our way to the DZ. All too soon we were coming into land. The radio came into life, 'Number 8 10ft, 8ft, 6ft, Flair' I pulled both toggles in a downwards motion and touched down smoothly just like a pro, (so I thought).

I had a quick look round and made my way to the RV. Once we were all there, we crossed the runway, checked in, all out all in. Then the talking started, everybody talking nobody listening. Everyone thrilled and full of adrenaline, 'Lets do it again!!!!' someone said 'Too right I thought.' Unfortunately there was not enough time for another jump that day, but we were here all day on Sunday. On Sunday we woke and had breakfast and met our instructor. Before we could jump again we had to have a new lesson. How to pack our own parachute, (scary). The lessons are broken down into easy to follow steps. The instructors are always there to do the very important parts which students are not permitted to do. Once the canopy was packed we joined the Army Parachute Club for £10.00 and paid £4.00 for our next jump and we were ready to go again. Every 'static line' jump at 350011 will now cost us £4.00 the more jumps we do the more experience we gain, before you know it we will be free-falling at 1200ft, 'Can't wait.' Many thanks go to all instructors and helpful staff at Netheravon Camp. Many thanks to Sgt Tam Ewart for making it possible. The jumpers included:

Capt Bill Ruffiven	LCpl Marlin Dyer	Sig Vicky Hawkins
Sgt Tom Ewart	LCpl Ali MacGilp	Sig Sam Baldwin
LCpl Dave Smith	LCpl Sam Estcourt	Pte Paul Vallis
LCpl Kev May	Sig Helen Winterson

REGIMENTAL NEWS

Hello's and Goodbye's - The Regiment would like to welcome Cpl Ralf and her husband Paul who recently joined us from Blandford, we wish you well and hope you enjoy your tour. A welcome back goes out to the Training Major, Eric 'E Mail' Heritage who has just returned from a very eventful tour in Banja Luka. Good to have you back. December will be a very busy period for the QM Dept, the RQMS, WO2 'JP' Paterson leaves on posting to 30 Sig Regt, we thank him for all his hard work throughout his tour, and wish him and his wife Cheryl all the best for the future. A warm welcome to his replacement who joins us on promotion from Blandford WO2 Terry Parle. All the best to you and your family, we hope you enjoy your stay with the Regiment. Finally we say a short farewell to the QM, Maj 'Chopper' Aspinall MBE, who has managed to tunnel his way out of the Regiment, if only for a tour in Bosnia. Good luck, we know you'll be back!!!

Belated Congratulations - Sincere congratulations to the RSM, WO1 'Blod' Godwin and his wife Mandy Jayne on the occasion of their Wedding which took place on 17 October at Blackheath, London in 1998. At least we got the photo printed in time for the first anniversary.

Sqn Com Maj Barrie Corfield
SSM WO2 (SSM) Micky Mustoe

On 11/12 September members of HQ Sqn, took advantage of the late summer to explore the local countryside on a map reading exercise. Resisting the urge to linger at the first serial (the Red Lion Swanley village) they set out along seldom used footpaths to test their skills with map and compass. On the Saturday WO2 (SSM) Mick Mustoe and his group spent over four hours ambling around the four-mile course. The SSM insisted that they pace most of the route rather than adopt the age-old custom of 'winging' it. From a viewpoint in Farningham Woods they enjoyed Back Bearings and Bird Watching in equal measure. Cpl Jackie Morse (nee Smoker) was heard to say, 'We should do more of this,' and Sigs Martin Gross and Paul Swaffield nodded in enthusiastic agreement. 'Sad Anoraks' is a phrase that comes to mind…..

On the Sunday, WO2 Andy Church, formerly a CSM in 5 PWRR raced around the course in half the time. The course got off to a very quick start under Cpl Charlie Woo, but stalled somewhat when it was discovered that his son, Sig 'Baby2' John Woo had his map upside down. Later the team were tasked to find a large building on the edge of a field and were disappointed to discover that it consisted of nothing more than a pile of rubble and a rusting harrow. At this point Cpl Jason Bontoft voiced his displeasure at the age of the map; in fact it didn't even show the M25!

Meanwhile, back at the TAC, Sgt Julia Davenport led the Squadron Battlefield First Aid Training (just in case the Map Readers misread a grid and navigate off a cliff into the sea). All was going well, making full use of the new training package, until we came to the practical phase. LCpl 'Mad Dog' Tony Williams demonstrated how to put a casualty in the recovery position when he dislocated the shoulder of his victim – sorry casualty Sgt Mick Conn. Mick has long suffered from this old 'war wound' and fortunately recovered but we quickly switched from training mode to noduf mode. Inspite of all the simulated blood, we finished up with the customary testing even persuading the OC, Maj Barrie Corfield to participate.

FAREWELL

The Squadron says a fond farewell to LCpl Jackie Topley who leaves the squadron after six years service to begin a career with the Essex Police. We thank her for her service and wish her every success in her new career.

EXERCISE SILENT HOUSE

Ex Silent House was a weekend military training exercise held in the FIBUA village at Thetford Training Area. The Exercise which included assaulting buildings, grenade throwing and internal building searches of the special effect houses was organised by the SPSI, SSgt Jase Barsley. Although the Squadron agreed the training was tough, they all thought it was well worth the effort put in and it's the type of training they hope will be repeated. LCpl Richard Marsh, a recently qualified APTI demonstrated his latest military skill qualification by warming up the Squadron with physical training. He later led the Squadron over the 'Confidence' course, finishing with a TACFT. The Squadron completed the training with a dawn assault on the village.

EXERCISE REGAL TOWER

Ex Regal Tower was a R Signals Trade refresher weekend held at the Royal School of Signals Blandford. Training was held using Radio Group facilities, our thanks to SSgt (YofS) Jim Hawkins and COMCEN Practical using Data and Security Group, our thanks to WO1 (YofS) Kev Essen. Saturday evening the Squadron used the Bowling Alley on camp and then visited the 'Bright Lights' of Blandford. Sunday morning it was Trade Continuation training, concurrent activity was the use of the Command Tasks of the Leadership Course, courtesy of Capt Todd whom we thank for use of this excellent facility. Apart from the valuable training experience gained the weekend proved an excellent opportunity for the Essex Yeomanry Signal Squadron to visit and use the facilities of the Royal School of Signals.

Adventure Training - The second week of camp was to be spent Adventure Training combining, kayaking, mountain biking, rock climbing, abseiling and mountain walking Kayaking - The coach journey to Ullswater flew by, mainly due to watching Con Air on video and taking in the coach driver's comments on other road users. On arrival, it was time to don wet suits, which in true military fashion were all either too big or too small, or for the fashion conscious just not the right colour. That done it was time to select a kayak, which was not too tricky as they were all the same size, shape and colour. Unfortunately, Cpl Pete 'Haystacks' Allsop was unable to find a kayak big enough to fit his frame, so he would have to sit this one out. There was the normal cross section of abilities ranging from SSM Keith 'Snoozy' Wrate in the, 'Should I really be here category?' to a few highly competent kayakers. As expected the day started off at a rather sedate pace and became a mutiny on the high seas by the end of play. Most participants receiving a ducking before they had finished. The journey back became interesting when Sig Liz 'Essex girl' Blaber chose Scream as the video choice for the journey, which rendered hardly an open eye in the house.

Cycling & Rock Climbing/Abseiling - Having recovered from the video extravaganza of the previous day the second day of adventure training was split into two, the choices being cycling and rock climbing/abseiling. The cycle involved a navigational exercise of approx 52km (depending on the route taken!) and the rock climbing/abseiling gave a choice of three ascents and three descents, all graded. The Squadron was split into two equal halves of no particular denomination. The morning cycle was a fine weathered affair with everyone kitted out with state of the art mountain bikes (NOT!!) and NASA designed aerodynamic tortoises to wear on our heads for protection. Certain personnel were selected to navigate certain legs of our journey. There were some fantastic navigational skills employed, which left the group strung out over the countryside, doing a poor impression of the Tour De France. Sig Sean 'Roadsign' Walsh ignoring conveniently placed road signs and taking us on 5km detours was particularly well received by all and sundry. It became painfully obvious that we should have indented for some 'stabilizer' wheels for some of the Squadron who had evidently not operated a bicycle since passing their Cycling Proficiency badges at school many years previous. Disaster struck 15km out when SSM Keith 'Snoozy' Wrate suffered a broken chain and was then forced to push his bike for the remainder of the journey. For some inexplicable reason this seemed to lift the spirits of the remaining cyclists. The cycling group soon arrived at the halfway point, for lunch and a change of activities.

It was soon discovered that the climbing had not been quite as easy as everyone had been expecting seeing as Sgt Kevin 'Spiderman' Hancock had been the only person able to scale the dizzy heights of the climb. Lunch was suitably devoured and it was time for the new cyclists to depart, after an in-depth explanation of how the bikes worked it was 'tortoises' on and time to go. True to form, five minutes into the ride convoy drills had gone to tatters and the group became split. After some hectic cycling from the 'Gang of Six' at the back, the group became reformed. Then, in true Lake District style, the heavens opened with a downpour from which there was no hiding. This certainly gave us a chance to test the brakes out. Sgt Robert 'Why me?' Vincent suffered a chain fracture halfway back, which resulted in him having to be pushed to the local hostelry to await recovery, for some reason this put a great big grin on his face. The remainder of the journey was fairly uneventful although Cpl Pete 'Are you sure this bike's big enough?' Alsop won the competition for the most faces pulled on a bike in one afternoon. The afternoon rock climbing and abseiling was a greater success with many bodies scaling great heights in particular Sig Ian 'Sticky Hands' Liscoe.

EXERCISE CAVALRY CRUSADE 17 – 19 SEPTEMBER 1999

The first of three build-up exercises for Op Surety (Communication Support over New Year period) saw 265 (KCLY) Signal Squadron deploying to the cinque ports training area. Firstly, 887 Troop providing the NMC located at North Court Farm near Folkstone, having just had the NMC role re-instated they provided excellent net-management throughout the weekend meanwhile 884 Troop provided three out-detachments under detachment commanders Sgts Feather, Foy and Hancock. They were sent to work in conjunction with other out-detachments throughout the South East (provided by both 68 and 70 Squadrons) to ensure that communications over the millennium will run smoothly.

After the inevitable problems with livestock (Sgt 'Cow-hand' Feather attempting to re-enact the opening 'cow charging; scene from Dallas) the detachments went on to communicate successfully, demonstrating that the NCRS system will be able to maintain military communications over the New Year period. The only 'net-stopping' moment occurred on 'Caravan' Kev Hancock's detachment- Sig 'Mad Dog' Parente whilst chatting (in complete confidence) to Sig B*AR let slip that he was an Essex boy and was at that precise moment wearing white socks under his army issue. SCANDAL!!!

The last two build up exercises (to be conducted over October and November) will see detachments being deployed to actual Op-Surety communications areas.

WONDERFUL COPENHAGEN
INTERNATIONAL SJAELSO MARCH 5– 8 AUGUST 1999
By LCpl Jay

1999 saw the 26th Annual Sjaelso March and Shoot Competition held in Denmark and hosted by the Danish Home Guard. This was our second visit to the March, held in Sjaelso Barracks, 25km north of Copenhagen. A total of 84 teams from nine countries took part, with RAF Benson fielding the only other British team.

The March and Shoot Team

After a good start in the pouring rain, with Cpl Stu 'Put the map away, I know where we are' Searle mistaking a Little Chef for the barracks, we arrived in Denmark in an uncharacteristic heat-wave. With seven hours before the greeting dinner it was decided to 'put a few warmers into the bank' and set off for the sights of Copenhagen. It was good to see some old friends at the get together but Cpls Trev 'Where's the Porn' Jakeman and Jamie 'I thought you liked booze' Copeland (our on-loan Aussie), persuaded us to revisit 'Copie'.

Friday saw us on the range firing the G3 'musket' 7.62, which was a welcome change to us 'old school' but a problem for Cpl Lesley 'I'm just under tall' Jay. After hitting some very respectable scores, an admin/zedding/catching some rays period was called for before an essential confirmatory CTR of 'Copie' later on. Saturday meant the march, only 20km, but 28C, on roads and the only hills in Denmark. Luckily we found two watering holes en-route and finished in 3hrs 31mins, overtaking five teams on the way. LCpl 'Rosy' Roseveare and LCpl Al 'My vest isn't suspect' Shrewsbury were delighted to find an all female marching band was quartered in the same block on our return, until common sense and good taste prevailed. That night the customary Gala dinner was an excellent 'feast up' with platters of steaks, pork steaks and ham a plenty. LCpl Gareth Clarke honoured us by lowering the Union Jack at the sunset parade, before persuading two unsuspecting 'crab' techs to join us on another 'soiree' into 'Copie'.

After the standard, packing, hand-backs and farewells we recovered to the UK, after some panic gift buying, and so concluded a very successful exercise. The team achieved a very creditable 28 out of 85 (the top 18 were Home Guard!) and prepared well for our next visit to Denmark, ie got soaked through!! Roll on Runnel Stone.

2 (CITY OF DUNDEE) SIGNAL SQUADRON (VOLUNTEERS)

Since returning from Annual Camp in July, it has been business as usual for 2 (City of Dundee) Sig Sqn (V). The recently trained batch of B3 Tele Op (Radio) personnel and those who completed their Data module, along with the rest of the Squadron, have been kept extremely busy with a plethora of training weekends and comms exercises. The first of many weekends was to be a confirmatory Comms Ex in mid July for the newly qualified operators. This was not to be, however, as Barry Buddon was partially annexed due to the British Open Golf Championships being held at Carnoustie. The weekend did go ahead at an alternative location, but only after a spot of re-hashing of the training programme by the ever fluid WO2 (YofS) George Hume. The Exercise was a success, and the level of skills displayed by the new operators was a credit to the hard work carried out by the training team at Annual Camp.

A never ending trail of JOCOMMEX has been successfully completed since Annual Camp, indeed some of the HF Comms Detachments have clocked up more operators hours since Camp than in the past eighteen months. The Squadron has also been involved in training of a more tactical nature, with a trip to Otterburn Training Area, where a Military Skills weekend was carried out. Two Sections deployed from Dundee on Friday 13 August 1999 (unlucky for some as they were to find out) only to arrive into a fully tactical scenario at approx 1am the following morning. There followed an intense 24 hour period of training which culminated in two extremely well executed sect attacks upon enemy objectives, which were reached after a gruelling night of navigation.

It's not all been Comms, ranges and cam cream however! The Squadron was rewarded for its hard work over the past 12 months with a rock-climbing and trekking expedition to the Dolomites in Northern Italy, and a parachuting course for those with a head for heights. The parachuting course was run at Netheravon, and organised by our very own intrepid sky-walker OC, Maj Eric Blyth. The OC even managed to coax, persuade, bribe etc Capt Bob Davidson to take the Leap of Faith. The following is an extract from the aforementioned Capt 'You must be joking' Davidson's diary of events:

It was to Netheravon, home of the Army Parachute Association (APA), that ten members of the Squadron travelled in order to cast themselves adrift from a perfectly serviceable aircraft. There were two courses on offer, the Ram Air Progression System (RAPS) (or perhaps in my case the Complete Ram Air Progression System !!) course and a tandem course. Sgt 'Fearless' Forbes was first up to the challenge of a skydive on the Tandem course. This involved a comprehensive training package – well 20mins, following by in depth emergency procedures from his Tandem Master. 'I wear the parachute, you wear me – if we have a problem, Trust Me!' So it was, armed with this info, that he ascended heavenwards to 12,000ft. For those of you unused to poking your parts out of an aircraft door at such altitudes, you would be amazed at the effect the experience can have on vital bodily functions. However, undeterred by the faint clapping noise in the background, Sgt Forbes launched (was launched) into the slipstream swiftly followed by a video cameraman. After plummeting for approx 40 seconds, it was time to apply the brakes and from 120mph it's down to 10mph down and 15 across as the main parachute deploys. The sights and views over Salisbury plain can be breathtaking at 5000ft and indeed Sgt Forbes was heard to shout, 'I can see meh hoose frae here.' Well done, a try skydiver. Malcolm will let you see the video for a nominal fee.

What about the remainder of the brave heroes (and heroines – sorry Heather and Lesley). As they were leaving the plane on their own, the training was lengthier – a whole day in fact. It covered every facet of their jump from Aircraft Emergencies, the Exit, canopy control emergencies, in flight drills and landings. Word on the street from the instructor was that all did very well during training and they were released from training ready to do Battle in the Bar in preparation for the jump the following day. I myself had three skydives that day and was waiting with interest to see them jump. Well imagine my excitement, nae joy, when it was announced that they could all jump in half an hour – laugh I nearly died. I was obviously the only one to see the humourous side to this as by the look on some of the faces they would have preferred to be somewhere else. Off they marched to the kit store and later reappeared resplendent in brand new state of the art parachutes. Each seamed to be mouthing a Buddhist chant 'Look, Locate, Peel, Punch, Pull'. So it was down to the Brittan Norman Islander – their jump aircraft. Once all were seated uncomfortably, it was off into the wide blue yonder and up to 3800ft. Tension onboard mounted as the jumpmaster is given the call 'Running In' from the pilot – the signal that they are approaching the Drop Zone (DZ). From here the jumpmaster gives visual corrections to the pilot, '5 left, 5 right – Cut!' Then engines are throttled back and then comes the words no one on board really wants to hear (especially No 1), 'Are you ready to skydive', a numbed nod – 'OK, in the door – standby – Go!' Into free air goes 'Pte Kelbie' counting out the mandatory delay (one thousand, two thousand.' Oh happy day, a success, the canopy has opened and all is very quiet compared to the noise of the aircraft. Now, release the brakes, locate the DZ and take control of the canopy. All of our colleagues did very well on this course. It is nerve racking, it does take you out of the comfort zone, but the sense of achievement is immense. I asked Capt Bob 'I love this strut' Davidson for his comments prior to the jump. 'Help me,' came the reply, which I think reflects the level of commitment required. All in all a thoroughly exciting and worthwhile weekend enjoyed be everyone who took part. Indeed, two of the group have gone on to complete jumps at nearby Errol Airfield as continuation from the military system – Well Done Rod Hamilton and Chris Kelbie. If I receive enough names I will organise another vertically challenging weekend soon. Blue Skies!

Prior to deploying to Italy on Ex Tartan Dolomite, the expedition group had the opportunity to sample the delights of a thoroughly wet and windy weekend based at Dundonnell, as a preparatory weekend. The plan was to conquer An Teallach which boasts some of the most rewarding 'scrambling' in Scotland. The reality, however, was somewhat different from the Picture Postcard vision. The wind was fierce enough to drive the constant rain through the toughest of Goretex garments, and not many expected sleet in the middle of July. It was Scotland after all! The weekend did not turn out all wet as Sunday was spent climbing and scrambling over Stac Polly which is just a grown-ups' play area! The Exercise in Italy was a great success (well, almost) as the following paragraphs reveal.

EXERCISE TARTAN DOLOMITE 22 – 31 AUGUST 1999

On 22 August 1999, ten members of 2 (CofD) Sig Sqn (V) set out for the Italian winter resort of Cortina D'Ampezzo, a village set in the midst of the Eastern Dolomite mountains of northern Italy. The expedition was the dream child of WO2 (YofS) George Hume, who having climbed in the region three years previously went on to convince the OC, Maj Eric Blyth that the Italian Dolomites was the place to go. Here lay a mountain environment where extreme exposure and vertically challenging moments were abundant not to mention the mountain scenery that helped take your mind off the sheer drops. A ten day expedition was put together by the YofS, Ex Tartan Dolomite had a very achievable aim, 'taking all expedition members out of their individual comfort zones and placing them in a physically and vertically challenging environment', all this whilst introducing them to Via Ferrata scrambling. With the OC and Cpl Joe Wiggins passing their JSMEL (S) award weeks before we were due to leave, the Squadron Expedition remained self-supportive in terms of qualified leaders.

The journey by minibus to Stanstead, flight to Venice and hire car to Cortina was eventful to say the least. On arrival at Venice airport the group discovered that seven items of essential gear had been left at Stanstead (bergans containing three of the four expedition tents). Our admin day turned into a day of phone calls and telex messages. All kit duly arrived at the airport nine hours after our flight had landed. We arrived in Cortina D'Ampezzo late on 23 August, and after an 'erect the tents in total darkness competition' the group settled down for well earned night's rest in preparation for the week ahead.

Day 1 was a day of expedition admin, with a low cloud base Via Ferrata Michel Albino Storblel was chosen as the group's introduction to Via Ferrata scrambling. The campsite lying conveniently at the foot of the route which takes the most direct line up to the summit of Punta Fiames 2010mtrs.

Day 2 saw the group embark on the Ivan Dibona High Level Walk, the weather was magnificent with breathtaking views of the surrounding mountain scenery. This ridge walk took the group past old World War II remnants, and could be classed as a very strenuous battlefield tour, 'as long as you have a good head for heights'. All of the exciting sections are at the start of the ridge, and with the weather in the mid 30s the long walk of the ridge was not enjoyed at all, but the scenery made up for the pain.

Day 2 Expedition Kodak moment on the sun terrace of Rifugio Lorenzi (8000ft) prior to climbing Via Ferrata Michel Bianchi Days 3 and 4 saw Via Ferrata routes of varying degrees of difficulty overcome, in preparation for our expedition goal. The summit of Tofana di Mezzo lies at a height of 3244mtrs, and can be climbed by a number of routes. The expedition's choice of routes is described as one of the most difficult dolomite Via Ferrata, being long, extremely airy, and demanding both endurance and a familiarity with rock climbing. Six members of the Expedition set off from Rifgio Pomedes to climb Tofana di Mezzo by Via Ferrata Guiseppe Olivierie, class as a Group F ascent. Climbing up vertical walls, steep corners, exposed ledges all with nothing more than a guiding rope to clip onto this was truly a test of all our via ferrata skills which had been built up during the previous four days.

Maj Eric Blyth, Cpl Joe Wiggins and LCpl Chris Kelbie made up the first group and led off on this final day whilst WO2 (YofS) George Hume, LCpl Rod Hamilton and Sgt Daz Collins waited for a suitable gap to develop prior to climbing the first section. Less than two hours into the route and Group 2 were stopped in their tracks held up behind a couple of climbers. The 30min wait that followed was due to one of the climbers falling from this section in spectacular free-fall backward motion. Fortunately her protection held firm and with her husband breaking the fall she escaped badly shaken and bruised. Further up the climb Cpl Joe Wiggins also tested his gear and protection out on another vertical slab which surrendered nothing more that the protection in place as a means to surmounting this particular problem. The day provided a perfect culmination to a good expedition. The Expedition easily achieved the aims laid down prior to departure, and with Tofana di Mezzo being ascended by its hardest route all left with an immense feeling of self satisfaction, and a lot of mountain memories. Plans are already afoot to return next year. All in all, a hectic yet rewarding period of post Camp training which has been a resounding success for this latest chapter in the history of 2 (City of Dundee) Signal Squadron (Volunteers).

7 ARMOURED BRIGADE HEADQUARTERS & SIGNAL SQUADRON (207)

Sqn Comd Maj Andy Bristow
RSM WO1 (RSM) Colin Milne

Post summer leave and the Squadron's emphasis is on preparing for another Exercise in Poland. This combined with the ongoing support to the Brigade HQ and the longer term vision of operations next year provides us with some interesting times and challenges.

ALPHA TROOP
Tp Comd Lt Andy Hill
Tp SSgt SSgt James Runchman

After a well deserved leave, Alpha Tp were once again ready to tackle anything the Squadron hierarchy could throw at them. The first task was a deployment to Senelager on CAST. As it was the last Exercise with the unit for LCpl 'Pork Pie' Petty and Sig 'Romeo' Richardson, both were given a suitable farewell! After CAST, Alpha Tp was augmented by two Signallers from 249; welcome to Sigs Steve Hassett and Wayne Gibson - what sins they've committed, we'll never know! In a quiet week (?) following CAST, Lt Andy 'Cross-dresser' Hill organised a Squadron Families Day. The many activities included a dunk tank with a pillow fighting pole above it. Most impressive bout of the day has to go to Jenny Bisland for her victory over the OC Sqn, Maj Andy Bristow. A select few from the Troop (were) volunteered to take part in a Beating the Retreat ceremony in Bergen which proved to be an interesting event. Finally, a last goodbye. In addition to those mentioned above, a farewell and good luck to LCpl Mick O'Neill on his promotion to Mr and civilian life!

BRAVO TROOP
Tp Comd Lt Adam Corkery
Tp SSgt SSgt Dave Sloane

Firstly, welcome to the newcomers to the Troop; Sig Pam Dunkerly straight from Blandford and also to the lucky three on attachment from 249 Sig Sqn, Signallers Lawson, Nicholl and Cpl 'Titch' Meakin (who only left the Squadron two months ago). On return from leave it was straight back into the thick of things with the Brigade CAST Exercise which for us was not just a test of our ability to perform but also a chance for the new members of the Troop to get an insight into the way the Squadron works. On return from CAST it was straight into a training week for the Squadron to practice what we had learned from CAST, the days were long, the work was hard, the jokes were running out, but we pulled through and gained a lot from the experience. In the ongoing Squadron Inter-Troop sports competition Bravo Tp are trailing in the points but we are determined to make them up in the next few events. The Troop has also recently started the Rock Rat Climbing club which got off to great start with venues ranging from an indoor climbing wall to local crags and cliffs. The Troop now looks forward to Ex Ulan Eagle in Poland and eventually Kosovo in February.

OPERATIONS/ ES TROOP
Tp Comd Capt Jason Gray
YofS WO2 (YofS) Keith Parsons
FofS WO2 (FofS) 'Mac' McCallum

Firstly, congratulations must go out to Ops ES for leading the Inter-Troop Competition from the start. This lead is created by the winning of the basketball, water-polo, Land-Rover push and by coming a close second in the football. We were all kept busy on a recent CAST Exercise, where our newest addition to the tech family, Cpl Adi Worsdall was shown the ropes in an Armoured Brigade Signal Squadron. It appears that he didn't like the ropes that he was shown and decided that the best course of action was to go to bed for the week! Welcome also to Cpl Bas Park who, unbeknown to him, has been allocated the task of playing Santa Claus at the Families Christmas function. In contrast to these welcome arrivals, we have had a devastating loss in having to say goodbye to the greatest living tech, Cpl 'Puke' Thomas, who has now returned to Blandford after only a year and a half out of training . . . sprog! Warmest congratulations go to Cpl Richie Brown and his wife Corinna, who have just had their first child, and their not too distant posting to Blandford on his Class 1 and also to Sgt Jules 'Johnny Bravo' Thorne on passing RSSC after putting it off for so many years. A final thanks must go to the Ops O, Capt 'Squeaky' Gray for inviting us all to South Africa with him . . . NOT!

SUPPORT TROOP
QM Capt (QM) Dave Wilson
RQMS WO2 (RQMS) 'Eric' Udell

As always, the Quartermaster's department has been busy with the usual round of non-stop paperwork. The main office has had a bit of a facelift and is now on the way to looking something like it should. In fact, Sig 'Blodwin' Davies on returning back from his stint in Canada was heard saying he didn't recognise the place. No change there then Blodders!! Congratulations to LCpl 'Robo' Robinson and Karen on the birth of baby Joe. Whilst on the subject of arrivals, we take this opportunity to say hello and welcome to WO2 (RQMS) 'Eric' Udell and family, to Sig Ross Ardley and family and to Sig Allan 'Frenchy' Wilson. We hope you all enjoy your tours with us. At present we are gearing up for Ex Ulan Eagle followed by preparations for next years deployment to Kosovo. We still have time, however, to reflect on good times past. Just the other day the QM, Capt Dave Wilson was passing on his experience of reliable cars to Sig Ardley and was heard to say that the 'best ride' he'd had since arriving in Hohne was 'in the back' of a Mercedes estate at which point Cpl Carrick reminded him he was meant to be talking about buying a car! Still, the extra duties should keep Cpl Carrick busy for a while!

SQUADRON CHARITY EVENT
EXERCISE TABBING RAT 15 - 20 SEPTEMBER 1999

The team at the start of the TAB
(R-L): Capt Dave Wilson, Sig Andy Barker, LCpl Daz Pickard, Sig Steve Sharman, Sig Gaz Davies, LCpl Si Pereira, Sig Steve Homer, Sig Danny Richardson, Sig Krissie Strain, Cpl Andy Allen, Sig Stu Hill, WO2 (RQMS) 'Eric' Udell, Sig Rob Castles

It all started with Mrs Siobhan Peters, the Hohne Station Homestart co-ordinator writing a begging letter to all of the units based in Hohne for financial aid. As anyone who has been involved in the non public finances of an independent signal squadron will know, there is no money to fund anything apart from adventure training exercises and to keep the PRI shop stocked - and afloat! So the QM, Capt Dave Wilson, had the bright idea of 'tabbing' from Herford to Hohne, calling in at various barracks, towns and cities to raise the much needed funds.

A team of 13 soldiers volunteered to take part in the 186km march, which started at I (UK) Armoured Division HQ and Signal Regiment who are based at Hammersmith Barracks in Herford on Wednesday 15 September 1999. The march was formally started by the SOinC (A) Brig Cedric Burton OBE ADC and the proceedings were watched by the hierarchy of both the Divisional Signal Regiment and 207 Sig Sqn. The march covered the following route: Herford, Vlotho, Rinteln, Hameln, Hanover, Celle, finishing at Hohne camp on Sunday 19 September 1999 to coincide with the Squadron Families Day. The object of the exercise was not to break speed marching records but to raise money for two charities: Homestart, which supports service families that are experiencing difficulties and SOS Kinderdorf 2000, which is a German based children's charity. During the march, a total exceeding DM 9800.- was raised and shared equally between the charities and cheques were presented to the representatives of the charities at a reception prior to a Beating Retreat Parade that the Squadron hosted, which was held in Bregen on Monday 20 September 1999.

The whole event was extremely enjoyable and was a resounding success, we would like to thank anyone who is reading this article, that supported the event in any way for their generosity of spirit!

Seasons Greetings

16 AIR ASSAULT BRIGADE HEADQUARTERS & SIGNAL SQUADRON (216)

OC Maj I. Hooper
RSM WO1 (RSM) G. Hodgson

Fresh from the Brigade launch at RAF Wattisham in Sepetember, the Squadron prepared and departed for the inaugural 16 Air Asslt Bde Exercise, Ex Gryphon's Eye. In addition to this, the Squadron deployment to Kosovo continued providing communications support to 102 Logistic Brigade and their return in November will bring the Squadron in Colchester back to full strength. Hello to WO1(RSM) Chris Drew, SSgt Kev Read from Aldershot, SSgt Wheeler who was already a Colchester resident, and Sgt Frank Greenwood. A fond farewell to WO1(RSM) Geoff Hodgson to his appointment as Corps RSM, WO2(YofS) Mick Proud off to civvyville, SSgt Louise Spate to RAF Lyneham, and Sgt Aidie Watts off to 21 Sig Regt via Split.

ALPHA TROOP
Tp Comd Lt Jim Lambeth
Tp SSgt SSgt Chris McKenna

INS AND OUTS

The month of September saw a great deal of changes, not only in the Brigade but at a more personal level within Alpha Tp. Firstly the Troop said goodbye to Lt Dan Ashton who went off to be educated at Shrivenham. The Troop wishes him, Avril and the boys the best and hopes that he doesn't forget his humble beginnings in the Alpha Tp garages. There were several other departures prior to Summer leave including the unforgettable Tony 'Tastic' Taylor who left to join the ranks of civvy street. The Troop also said goodbye to Sig 'OJ' Olejnik and Sig Lavender who were posted to Bulford and Aldershot on promotion. We raised a farewell glass to LCpl 'Gunny' Williams who departed for a new life away from uniform and went straight off to work in Kenya with a contract communications company. Cpl 'Taff' Reed returned to Germany and sunny Sennelager with the Commsec Monitoring team, best wishes to him and Vanessa. Only a matter of minutes ago LCpl 'Chapstick' Chapman finally left for a career in London's Docklands. Along with the departures there are hellos. Firstly to Lt Jim Lambeth who assumed the role of Troop Commander having arrived from Germany. Also posted in are Cpl 'Stretch' Smith from 14 Sig Regt(EW), LCpl '408' Williams and Sig 'Pid' Downard back from BATUS, and Sigs Lawson, Kershaw and Bellamy who returned from a tour in Northern Ireland with 1 Royal Scots. The Troop also said hello again to SSgt 'Geoffrey' McKenna, LCpl 'Orangey' Wright, LCpl Chamberlain and Sig Crutchley (who's now in C Tp) who all returned safely from Kosovo.

MY ATTACHMENT - by 2Lt Knightly Brown

My attachment with 210 Sig Sqn began in April of this year with a baptism of fire. I arrived in Radio Sonde Camp, Cyprus at 0500hrs and by 0700hrs, was preparing orders for a platoon attack and then presenting them to 3Pl, my platoon for the next four weeks. Thank you SSgt Fairfield for all your help! As Capt Rachel 'Knowledgeable Ops' Harvey put it, it was just like final Exercise but with no command appointment change! Since my return to Colchester in May, I have been part of 210 Sig Sqn and saw the transition to 216 Sig Sqn in September. I have had the opportunity to visit Egypt, Cyprus, STANTA, SPTA and Otterburn. The latter as part of an escape and evasion exercise as the Hunter Force. My knowledge has increased through the help of Lt 'French Maid' Hamilton who is shortly back from his hero duties in Kosovo. There has also been endless advice from the troops, Cpl Reed and LCpl Horton, I have not signed off yet, despite your encouragement! Advice also came from all seeing, all knowing QM, Capt Steve 'Purple Pants' Clarke especially on squadron PT. As I've mentioned PT, I must also mention Lt Jim Lambeth and 2Lt Toby Courage, people who go tabbing in their spare time. I must include the excellent horse riding trip to Larkhill with LCpl Scadden, Sig Pye (IT think of you on PT!) and Sig 'I want to get off now' Williams. I'm sure my time with the unit will be of great use to me in the future, and when I've passed P Coy, I'll be back!
(Good luck young man – you've been listening to the lads – You will be back! Ed)

CHARLIE TROOP - by 2Lt Lumley

Charlie Tp has taken its place in 216 Sig Sqn, and it's members include Sgt 'Big' Al Combe, Cpl Ted 'Airborne Teddy' Page, Cpl 'Spud' Fawcett and Sig 'Air' Bourne. The Troop is commanded by 2Lt Toby 'The Press-up King' Courage who is on his first tour and is about to do his jumps course in November with Sig Shields and Sig Crutchley. The Troop has been on Ex Gryphon's Eye - the first 16 Air Asslt Bde Exercise -where they participated in practice jumps out of the Skyvan at South Cerney along with rigging vehicles and equipment on MSPs in preparation for the commencement of the Brigade Exercise where the Troop jumped as part of the Airborne Battle Group (ABBG) with the 1st Battalion the Parachute Regiment to set up signals as part of the test of the new Brigade's capabilities.

On edge

Geronimooooooo.....

K TROOP - by Cpl Smith

K Tp is still defending the empire against evil tyranny and continues to provide communications to HQ (UK) NSE on Op Agricola. The co-location of the HQ with 19 Mech Bde freed up a number of personnel, so on 16 September 1999, 15 war dodgers left the Troop and headed back to Colchester. A few have left since, leaving a hardcore element of 16 young, illustrious warriors and Sgt Owen who can recall when POL points were haystacks.

A number of incidents have occurred recently, few of which have been of a dangerous nature other than Cpl 'Common sense of a potato' Fernie trying to frazzle himself on a 16/24 gene and Sig Foster being allowed behind the wheel of a Landrover. LCpl 'I'm going to be a dad' Russell had an epic adventure a few weeks ago. It took him 21/2hrs to find his way out of Thessaloniki before heading back to Pristina. Whilst driving up the motorway he was acutely aware that there were a serious lack of KFOR vehicles on the road. On reaching the border checkpoint, LCpl Russell jumped out, pointed and said to the guard, 'Macedonia?' The guard replied 'Macedonia that way, this Bulgaria.'

Prior to HQ (UK) NSE moving to 19 Bde's location, the HQ had been sited in the Bottle Top Factory, which in its day had also produced all of Kosovo's dust and had been involved in a huge mouse breeding programme. Comd NSE was keen that everybody helped keep the camp clean including all the staff officers. It was on one of these wombling patrols that the Tp OC found a ½ft spanner and came up with the bright idea that it would prove to be a great gift to give the person who did the stupidest thing for the day. This has backfired as he is rarely seen now without his spanner but the following are all worthy of mention for their antics:

1. Lt Rob Hamilton - Missing a WOTAN briefing to the Brigadier because he couldn't lock his own crypto locker.
2. Sig Chris Butters - Reversing a vehicle over his own kit.
3. Sig 'Jack' Frost - Blowing five light bulbs on the trot before someone pointed out that 110V bulbs don't last too long with 240V mains
4. Sgt Dave Owen - For hiding the fact that it was his birthday because he was afraid that the Troop would fill him in.
5. Sig Shields and LCpl 'Rusty Roof' Wright - for picking up Euromux phones, forgetting to press the pressle, and getting all shirty with the Whitehall operators when they couldn't hear them and put the phone down on them.

The 'Spanner' of the day has provided much amusement during its short life, but seems to have gone into semi-retirement of late. Rumour has it that it was last seen in the hands of the 2IC 209 Sig Sqn, aka 'Dr Evil' (to quote Lt Jeremy Toze) during a record-breaking flight, ably launched by Cpl Scott Dernie. Whoops! The Troop continues to deliver first class comms to the staff users and will hand over all their tasks to 209 Sig Sqn come November. The Troop personalities are still in good form and morale is high. Lt Rob Hamilton is still smiling whilst Sgt Owen still chunters on about the number of muppets and space monkeys there are out here. Cpl Scott Dernie remains as IC Happiness and Cpl Smith still threatens to bludgen to death every RLC radio operator he sees for constantly breaking his beloved WOTAN system. LCpl Ted O'Donnell and Sig Gordon remain the porn kings of Kosovo, and Sig Bacon can still be found stealing other units wheel hubs. Finally a big thank you to Cpl 'Jack' Russell and his crew on SAN 892 from 3DSR who have helped us out on numerous occasions on covering duties and providing extra manpower. Welcome to K Tp, join our infrastructure as there's no Troopies here from 3 Div looking after you!

12 MECHANIZED BRIGADE HEADQUARTERS & SIGNAL SQUADRON (228)

SQUADRON HEADQUARTERS
OC Maj S. R. Workman
RSM WO1 (RSM) S. Jackson

For those of you that do not recognise the number 228, we should explain that we're the new boys in town! 12 Mechanized Brigade HQ and Signal Squadron (228) came into being on 1 September 1999. Previously, we had been known as 5 Airborne Brigade Headquarters and Signal Squadron. The birth of the new unit was marked by a parade before the SOinC. The Squadron received its pennant and promptly began removing all traces of the Pegasus. We are now the proud wearers of the symbol you see above – The Ace of Spades.

12 Mechanized Brigade HQ and Signal Squadron (228) has been incredibly busy since its inception. As well as re-roling, we are preparing to deploy to Bosnia on 1 December 1999. The lads were glad to learn that Sky Television is up and working in Banja Luka, so we will all have to make do with watching the Millennium celebrations in our CORIMECS.

Lt 'Doris' Day and Capt Gadget Wong before the drop

In early September, we did manage to 'take a break' in the village of Caythorpe for the annual Arnhem pilgrimage. A beautiful weekend provided the Squadron with an opportunity to take part in two parachute descents on consecutive days; a rare event, which the Old Comrades greatly appreciated. The Squadron's behaviour was impeccable and congratulations go out to all those that took part in and organised the last Caythorpe reunion to be organised by 216 Parachute Signal Squadron. Special thanks go out to the Officer Commanding, Maj Scott Workman, who, on the first descent of the weekend managed to land on the ambulance that eventually took him off the DZ with a broken ankle.

During the past few weeks, we have also had our fair share of entertainment. Bravo Troop was christened 'Barbecue Troop' as it nearly burnt to the ground as result of some frenzied works ticket cleaning. Not to be outdone, Alpha Troop earned themselves the nickname 'Aflame Troop' after an incident with four vehicle batteries, a cable, a Landrover chassis and a Signaller with the IQ of a haddock! The fact that the latter incident happened in front of the (by now wide-eyed) Officer Commanding and warranted an elaborate explanation from Lt Tom Day only made the audience's laughter all the more enthusiastic.

This month the Squadron says a fond farewell to Cpl Roughton on his posting to 264 (SAS) Signal Squadron. We also extend a warm welcome to the new 2IC Capt 'Jimmy' Hendricks and the new RSM WO1 'Action' Jackson.

ALPHA TROOP
Tp Comd Lt Tom 'Doris' Day
Tp SSgt SSgt Dick 'Magpie' Dyer

Septembers re-role of the Squadron, the arrival of six new panzers and preparation training for the now imminent deployment to Banja Luka, have ensured a frenzy of activity. It has been a busy period for Alpha Tp, with little time to reflect on the summer's deployment to Kosovo. The introduction of armour to Arnhem Barracks has been met with amusement and just a little bit of head scratching, many of the Troop familiar only with C-130 and well worn in boots as forms of transport. Warnings have been posted to police, camera, action, as Sigs 'Dangerous' Armstrong, 'Boff' Walker, Dan Fallows, Chris McGeorge and Andy 'Hitman-Gurung' Allen embark on their track licence course. Special mentions to LCpl Paul Clancy who is helping out at 16 AAsslt Bde for a month, Cpl Nick Ions on his Unit Fire NCOs course (made necessary by Barbecue Tp's recent fire-lighting spree) and to Cpl Eddy 'Judas' Cochran for abandoning ship and swimming to the Crypto Cell. Congratulations to Cpl 'I'm gonna sign off if I don't get promoted' Clancy for his recent selection for promotion. The Troop welcomes Cpls Nick 'Tracer' Ions and Clay 'Sick-chit' Austin, LCpls 'Phylis' Green and 'Tug' Wilson and Sig Phillip 'Chocolate' Williams. Hello also to LCpl Rick Turner who has defected from 'Bongo Troop' next door, and to Sig 'Ken/Big Daddy' Dodd, recently returned from his attachment in Colchester. Farewell to LCpl 'Crabby' Crabb as he heads for 7 Sig Regt and to LCpl 'Foxy' Fox now situated in Northern Ireland.

BRAVO TROOP
Tp Comd Capt Wong
Tp SSgt Sgt 'Toyah' Wilcox

The transition of the Squadron from the Parachute role to armour has been greeted with mixed emotions by Bravo Tp. Recently several members of the troop, the Aldershot four, led by Cpl 'Spud' Fawcett and aided by LCpl 'I was in the office' Ford, Sig 'Dime Bar' Dine and Sig 'Delbert' McDowell conspired to halt the proceedings by burning the building down, thereby preserving the memory forever. The plan was aborted only after Sig 'AAAAHHHHH!' Dine set himself alight, trapping LCpl 'The air was on fire' Ford in the MT office and the realisation that the stores were empty and none of their personal kit was available to 'disappear' in flames! Their case continues. Alpha Tp thought that this was a fantastic idea but thought that since we had done the building they would do the vehicles instead. They are awaiting summons! Meanwhile the refit proceeds along with some frantic redecorating, so much so that Cpl 'Lackey' Barker has considered starting a painting business and Alpha Tp are looking to the new 'BBQ Troop' for interior design ideas (its all in the labels luvvies!). Much amusement has greeted the arrival of the 'New' 43 series vehicles straight from the 1970's. All that is required now is the equipment to fill the hulls, although the new Troop Storeman, LCpl 'Trigger' Hunter, has been responsible for continual pressure on the FofS, WO2 (FofS) Lance Marshall, who is losing his mind! Meanwhile the stores sidekick, Sig 'Melly' Melville, has been dispatched to the Aldershot museum for AFV 436 spares. LCpl Williams, as the first 43 Det Comd, scoffs at all those who mocked him as they too depart for driver training. Those left in Aldershot commence hectic training for the deployment to MND (SW) where those refreshing challenges will be greeted with vitality and vigour! Well the handful that haven't been there before will, the remainder, 'Put those AF6848s back in the drawer, I tell you!' But seriously! Many congratulations to Sig 'I'll leave Roses on her pillow' McDowell on getting his Army Colours. Welcome to 2Lt 'Clearly better than Mike' Dickson, Cpl Langan, LCpl 'Firestarter' Ford (who is also the Unit Fire NCO), Sig Meecham and LCpl 'Taff" Davies who also comes off the promotion board with LCpl 'Hattie' Attwell! Additional back slaps to Sig Meecham and LCpl Sharp for passing P Coy.

SUPPORT TROOP
Tp Comd Capt G. R. Burrows QGM, BEM + BAR
RQMS WO2 (RQMS) S. Gorton

Firstly we must say a farewell to WO2 'Pie Muncher' (RQMS) Marshall who is posted as WO1 RSM 35 (Ready and waiting) TA Signal Regiment. A warm welcome to the new RQMS, WO2 (RQMS) Gorton. A goodbye to Sig 'The Airborne George Clooney' Cloney who was lucky enough to be posted to 16 A Asslt Bde. Hello to the two new blokes straight from the factory Sig 'Flossy Taff' Davies, and Sig 'Crash Test Dummy' Hunt. With the new Brigade forming, the work has been endless closing down 216 Parachute Sig Sqn's account and issuing to 12 Mechanised Bde. Too busy even to do PT according to 'the big bloke who is to be obeyed' Sgt 'Beating stick' Mullen. Commiseration's to SQMS 'Spence' Cave, as he hasn't said a word since he was ordered to take his maroon beret and his Pegasus off.

COMINGS AND GOINGS

The Squadron welcomes back to the fold from their roulement in Bosnia LCpl Mick Breydin, LCpl Daz Pond and Sig Lee Pearce. We also say a hearty hello to SSgt Andy Cannandine from 38 Sig Regt (V) Sheffield, SSgt Julie Strangways MBE our new Barracks Master Chef, LCpl Kara Hayhurst welcome back Kara! (she left 238 in 1995 as Sig Wright) with husband Al (Ex Corps) and baby infant Jamie and Sig Toby Green fresh from Blandford. Last of all Mr James Beaney who arrives as the EO (IT) and works in the ACISG end of the Squadron - welcome to you all!

We say a sad farewell to the following people: LCpl Gaz Winders who has started a new career in Satellite installation, Cpl Debs Walker who recently gave birth to a 7lb PTI William! Good luck Debbie the Squadron is all the quieter without you! After 22 years service SSgt Graham Owen has now embarked on what seems to be a fruitful second career and SSgt Paul Phippard, our ex Master Chef, now working for Primary Management in Blandford Camp - watch out you thinnies! Finally many congratulations to Cpl Steve Hook on his recent marriage to Jo.

EXCHANGE VISIT OF LT J. WRIGHT ROYAL AUSTRALIAN SIGNALS
by Cpl of The Gun Store, Viagra and Bar (Bart to friends)

Once again it's holiday time in the sleepy hollow of Radio Tp. For the few of us who are left here, all was peaceful and quiet, leaving me plenty of time to catch up on mundane jobs: issuing mobile phones, letching down the Kings Road and getting ready for the total eclipse of the sun. When all of a sudden, the silence was broken by the sound of the lesser-spotted colonial Aussie 'Good Day Cobblers.' I, in my capacity as old git with good looks was taken back by this strange looking creature from the depths of the Australian Outback, dressed in jeans and an Hawaiian shirt looking quite the ladies man, but half the weight of crocodile Dundee! With my ball and chain removed, I was tasked to escort Lt Wright around several sights of London which most British citizens who are eligible to vote would never achieve in a lifetime, unless they'd slipped their Member of Parliament a bung. What impressed me the most, which was quite amazing, was that he was not a Manchester United fan. Back to the story in hand. The week started by visiting all the departments in the Squadron and shown the role we have to play in the big chess game come the final hour.

Tuesday: We visited the National Army Museum that of course is free to serving members in the forces, that evening he visited relatives and friends (unlucky them) who didn't get deported to the colonies.

Wednesday: We visited Big Ben (Westminster Tower), and climbed the 300 and odd steps to the top to be deafened by the 196 decibels of its chimes at 1100hrs, quite a moving experience, and believe you me; I mean moving. We then proceeded to try and infiltrate Parliament, in order to have a nose around only to be escorted to the front door and told to, 'Bog off!' If I had studied my programme of events, I would have noticed that on Thursday morning we were due to visit the Palace of Westminster.

Thursday: We arrived to find that: our passes had not been left at St Stephen's Gate. Getting all agitated we did notice that if you were any nationality that didn't speak English it was easy to gain access. We eventually gained access and had a good tour by guiding ourselves around The House of Commons and Lords. The highlight of the day was sitting in the Prime Minister's seat in The Commons and promptly been told to stand up (It had to be done). We had such a tight schedule, we swiftly moved on to the Tower of London to meet the Chief Yeoman Warder, Mr. John Keohane. (ex-Corps you know!) Who kindly let us bypass the long tourist queue. I myself was quite amazed how much knowledge Lt Wright had regarding the Tower especially Traitors Gate where like deja vu he had been here before some time in the 1800's when he was a young child, being told he was going on a journey in a large boat. That night we were invited back at 2100hrs for the ceremony of the keys which again was quite a sight to be seen, then invited to the mess. It was a pleasure to escort Lt Wright around London, as the OC Squadron said on his de-brief ' I don't know who enjoyed it the most'. Personally I couldn't give a Castle Main XXXX, as the saying goes, he who thinks Australian, drinks Tetley's. Next challenge Lady Speakers chair ha ha!

SUMMER CAMP 1999
IN THE LAND OF SUN, SEA AND PASTIES
by Sig 'Mac' McGregor

On a cool bright day, we headed out from our little enclave of sanity in the nation's capital. To Cornwall we were headed; to taste the joys of sailing, surfing and gliding. Perhaps even to sample the local brewer's fayre?

Our outbound journey was interrupted by our arrival at the scene of a nasty road traffic accident. Without so much as a second's thought, the team all swung into action and started treating casualties as well as controlling the traffic, until the emergency services arrived. For some 45 minutes, LCpls Pete Fagg and Lee Lester performed Cardiac/Pulmanory Resuscitation. Despite their awesome efforts, it was not possible to revive the lady. Our thoughts go out to her family.

On arrival at Penhale Camp we found the advance party had not only prepared the camp but also performed a detailed recce of the centre of Newquay at night. This proved to have been a very worthwhile task for the conduct of Cpl Steve Hook's stag night. Details of which are of course of a confidential nature.

Over the next week we variously sailed, canoed, glided, surfed, golfed, mountain biked, scuba dived and windsurfed ourselves into a very relaxed state. Congratulations go out to Sig Jenny Mills for conning a lift out of the Air Ambulance for a measly six stitches, SSgt Hadley for his hole in one and the Irish team for winning the sandcastle competition. Thanks to the Training Wing and DS who managed to turn a military run camp into a fun event. See you all next year.

MIKE TROOP
Tp Comd Capt (TOT) Bob Nicol
Tp SSgt SSgt Andy Cannadine

At last! Mike Tp have eventually got someone to carry out the Troop SSgt's responsibilities on a permanent basis. A big welcome is extended by all to SSgt Andy Cannadine who has just completed an arduous tour with 38th (City of Sheffield) Signal Regiment (Volunteers). Thanks to Cpl Paul Bone and Sgt 'Twiz' Twizell for standing in.

On a sad note, the Troop would like to say a big thank you and a fond farewell to SSgt Graham Owen who has left the army after completing his 22 years, falling on his feet as always, getting a well paid job with NTL. The Troop wishes him, and his family, every success. Thanks go to Sgt Chris Jacobs for organising Graham's leaving do. He would like to quash any rumours that he is planning a new career on the after-dinner speech circuit.

Mike Tp is at present stretched covering many tasks. The task of making London District's IT equipment millennium compliant has fallen on the ACISG department with Cpl Dean Spiers, Sig Keith Ford and Mr Justin Watson covering all units within the M25. The FRT is equally busy covering its usual assortment of (biscuits) tasks. The PA Section, headed by Mr John Aked and Mr 'Del' Tyrrell, has been keeping busy. A very demanding job of providing PA systems for the Royal Navy's 'Festival of the Sea' celebrations in Plymouth is their latest conquest. They should be congratulated on a tough job well done. At last! A smile comes to the face of Mr 'Del' Tyrrell having been informed that the fashion police are out to get him. Not to mention the posing question of 'where am I to put this now?'

Sig Piers Daw and 'Del Boy' Tyrell working out, what goes where?

Radio Sect comprising Cpl's Paul Bone and 'Gordy' McNeillie travelled to Bodney at the start of September to provide radio coverage to the Household Cavalry Mounted Regiment during Ex Try Out - one of their more enjoyable annual taskings. We now look forward to the ceremonial season, and all that this brings. Good luck to Sig Ayesha Muhammad who is off on a six month detachment as a recruiter for the Minorities Recruiting Team (EMERT). Happy Hunting! Finally, congratulations to Sgt Cory Pennicott following his recent marriage to Charlie, all the best for the future.

OSCAR TROOP

Tp Comd Maj Dave Gilchrist
Tp SSgt SSgt Karen Ripley

Life continues at its usual frenetic pace for the 'engine room' Troop of 238 (London) Sig Sqn. COMMCEN rationalisation is now public and our military manning as well as civilian COMMCEN Officer grades have been reviewed. Yes you have guessed it we are further reducing in numbers and once the civil service interview board has taken place we will start to look something like fit for the new millennium. The main thrust of the Troop now being with the COMMCENs and ADA has meant of course the demise of the Operator Assistance Centres and the 30 staff that diligently manned them. Despite all the upheaval the Troop made an extra special effort to get away on Adventure Training this year and whilst only 12 members attended Ex Pembroke Cockney Relief in mid-August I believe a good; albeit exhausting time was had by all. The report by LCpl Pete Fagg follows:

Well, we departed on Sunday 15 August at 1000hrs heading for 14 Sig Regt down in deepest wild west Wales where we all arrived in Brawdy safe and sound under the organisation of Sgt 'Chalky' White. Upon arrival we set to work on the activities for the week, with the Troop split into three groups each group rotating around different activities each day. On day one we did a small coastal walk around Wales (sorry around the bay), the weather was fine and Sig 'I've got comms' Ian Slight proved that he could get Cellnet in Wales and was very happy!

On Day Two we all split up. Group 1 did windsurfing under the command of Maj 'Surfs Up' Dave Gilchrist (a very wet affair by all accounts) whilst Group 2 did dinghy sailing under the command of SSgt Si Hadley who had come down specially from Sqn Trg Wing to help out. Another wet affair except that is for Sgt 'I'm not getting my feet wet' Debbie Gosnell. Group 3 did mountain biking under the command of Sgt 'Chalky 'My bum hurts' White and his 2IC, Sgt Sandra Thompson, this went well apart from a small problem with Sig Jenny Mills who won't be borrowing Sig Ian Slights' bike again in a hurry! Day Three we all swapped activities and on Day Four we did another shorter coastal path walk followed by a spot of rock-climbing. In the evening a number of adventurous Troop members headed up by the boss went on an overnight canoeing expedition. This entailed paddling around the coastline until they found a secluded very remote beach, set up camp, built a fire and had a barbecue. Slept under the stars overnight before paddling back the next morning! Day 5 we spent sight seeing and had the annual Troop bowling competition on the Brawdy Lanes that evening. Sgt 'Chalky' White had to relinquish his crown to Maj 'Surfs Up' Dave Gilchrist who managed to just beat Sgt Fergie 'I'm going on an expedition' Anderson! Another barbecue topped off with the local hostelry visit completed an excellent week away from work in busy London!

WINDSURFING - CORPS CHAMPIONSHIPS

Stop press item - the Sqn managed to retain its Minor Units Team Champion Title at the Corps Windsurfing Championships held in Portland Harbour in mid-September. The team of Sigs Ben McFaul and Piers Daw along with Maj Dave Gilchrist brought the trophies home again including runner-up novice and heavyweight! Sig Ian Slight also came along as a very new windsurfer and intends to pose a real threat next year by bringing home the Corps Novice title!

Under blue, sunny Welsh skies
the coastal walkers take a breather!

CRICKET - by the Chief Clerk Mr Tel Marsh

Congratulations to the 238 Sig Sqn Cricket Team who were crowned London District Minor Units Champions for the 1999 season against HQ London District. After winning the toss, the team captain, Sig Ford, put HQ Londist in to bat and then saw the bowlers demolish the batting team for a paltry 64 runs inside 18 overs. WO2 (YofS) Neil Stewart was the pick of the bowlers, taking three wickets inside two overs of pure hostility, ably supported by some magnificent fielding by the rest of the team. Requiring 64 runs inside 30 overs, Sig Ford and Sgt 'Chalky' White steered the batting side home to the Championship title within 11 overs. Well done to what was a superb all round performance by the team after a long arduous season! A special mention must go to the newly promoted Chief Clerk, Mr Terry Marsh, whose valuable experience held the team together!

241 SIGNAL SQUADRON

Sqn Comd Maj (Tfc) Dave Wright
SSM/Ops Offr WO2 (YOFS) Wilf Wedge (Martin)

This has been a very busy period for the Squadron. We are two thirds of the way through closing the Operator Assistance Centres. Preston and Shrewsbury closed on 28 May and Brecon closed on 28 August 1999. The photograph shows Mr Vic King, OC CIS Troop, with staff both old and current from Shrewsbury OAC on their final day.

Exercise Mercury Dragon was an adventure training Exercise at Capel Curig Snowdonia. All the military staff and a number of the civilians spent three days walking the hills including Snowdon. Mr Paul Walton, the MET leading hand from Donnington, enjoyed it so much he has already volunteered to take leave for next year's yomp?

Maj (Tfc) Dave Wright

The Sqn Comd, Maj Dave Wright, seen here posing as Capt Birds Eye, had shingles on the face we are told and the MO said that he was excused shaving for six weeks. A likely story!

Presentation of the Imperial Service Medal to Mr Des Taylor look place at the Barracks Brecon. Lt Col (Retd) John Billinghant had the honour of presenting the medal to Des who had served for 26 years with the civil service before being medically retired.

Mr Des Taylor and Lt Col (Retd) John Billingham

Finally some hellos and goodbyes: Hi to: LCpl Sheppard (Now Cpl) from 259 Sig Sqn, LCpl Leet from 3 Inf Bde, Mr Mark Lupo as the CIS Response Team at 160 (W) Bde Brecon. Bye to: Mrs Sue McCarles who worked in Brecon COMMCEN for 29 years (many of them as the Supervisor) moved on to Corsham. Miss Karen Hudson also COMMCEN Brecon who is posted on promotion to CO3 to work in a RAF COMMCEN, Sgt Donna Scaife a sad loss from ADA Donnington to RSS, Mrs Pauline Taylor from our Civ Admin office retiring after 25+ years. Plus all the staff from OACs Preston and Shrewsbury we wish you all well in your new careers and Thank You for many years excellent service.

251 SIGNAL SQUADRON

Sqn Comd Maj John Oakes
SSM WO2 (SSM) Gary Smith

HAIL AND FAREWELL

Departures and arrivals have certainly picked up again over the last few months, with eight new arrivals and four departures:
Welcome to the Tech Wksp, SSgt Rick Owen posted in from Royal School of Signals, Blandford Sgt Loz 'Jabba' Moore from 1 UK Div, Sgt 'Titch' Webb from 15 Sig Regt, Sgt Stu Sanderson from 200 Sig Sqn and Sgt Stebbing from 280 Sig Sqn. To the COMMCEN Sgt Steve Gill from 280 Sig Sqn, Cpl Sarah Dyer from 238 Sig Sqn and LCpl Mark Sheath from AFCENT. Farewell to Sgt Ray Carter posted to HQ LANDCENT, Sgt Dai Rennison to 242 Sig Sqn and LCpl Sally Patrick to 238 Sig Sqn. Also welcome back to Sig Brett Merrick back from Op Tour in Bosnia.

CONGRATULATIONS

The Squadron have seen a few well deserved promotions of late and our congratulations go to the following: Sheena Coldwell on promotion to Sergeant, Mark Sheath and Julie Bateman both of whom came off the Corporal's Board. Well done to one and all. Last but not least, congratulations to Sgt Daphne Clash for being selected to represent the Army in the Inter Service Triathlon Championship in August 1999. Daphne came a creditable third place for the Army and seventh overall.

HQ 4 DIV FUN DAY - by Cpl Sue Neate

251 Sig Sqn were once again invited to participate in HQ 4 Div's annual fun day, after walking away with the trophy last year our hopes were high to keep our sticky mitts on it again this year! So on Tuesday 6 July 1999 a merry bunch of Military and Civilian staff united together and were boldly led in our cops and robbers outfits by our team captain, LCpl Jules Bateman to face the strong competion.

A great day was had by all, not only did the sun shine all day and the barbecue and beer go down a treat, but the games and enthusiasm of all teams made it a day to remember. Spectators looked on in bemused interest - why were six players on each team wearing boxing gloves trying to play rugby?, and was it really necessary for the opposition to keep rugby tackling Cpl Wendy Boardman to the ground even when she was no where near the ball!!! As for SSM Jim McNaught, how he explained the whiplash marks all over his legs to the wife we will never know!! Mind you Sir, you have always been one to say, 'No pain no gain', and my god that must have hurt!! Sadly we did not retain the trophy but who cares there's always next year!!

251 SIGNAL SQUADRON DIG DEEP IN THEIR POCKETS

Trying to keep our PRI funds out of the red these days is a task and a half for the 2IC, Capt (Retd) Katie Munnoch. With the Military element of the Squadron dwindling by the month we have yet to manage to think of a reason why the civilian element should contribute. Anyway with the cries of, 'You have got to stop spending,' ringing in the PRI Committees ears, they have at last redeemed themselves with a couple of great fund raising events of late. The first being a car boot sale run by Sgt Daphne Clash back in August 1999. Most members of the Squadron rummaged through their attics and garages and came up with the most obscure items to sell! But sell they did, remember your junk is always someone else's gold! The grand total of £114 was raised. This coupled with a Squadron car wash day led by Sig Dave Hunter and his mottly crew, who braved the not so sunny elements early in September 1999 (actually it was almost monsoon weather!). They had a hard day's graft but always managed to keep a smile on their face even when the donation was no more than a couple of quid for washing something the size of a bus!! Thus another £104 was added to the PRI fund with a now very happy 2IC giving them all a well deserved pat on the back.

JEANS FOR GENES DAY - by SSgt Glynis Watton

The country wide charity Jeans for Genes Day was once again organised for our Squadron by Mr Derek Keen (CO1) Comms Tp. After last years fantastic effort of raising £869, a lot was riding on his pride to better this amount!! 'A THOUSAND POUNDS is what I want,' he was heard to say!, So to cries of 'You'll never do it Derek' ringing in his ears his sight was set on proving us all wrong, and prove us wrong he did. Once again the day was a resounding success. It was hard work for himself and his team to get the day organised, but of course the back ground work was done weeks before with numerous trips around all the shops of Aldershot to entice them into giving their support with generous donations of prizes, ranging from £50 donation (Rushmoor Taxis) to the more moderate contributions of £10 vouchers (Mothercare and M & S), not forgetting of course the 250 sausages donated by Iceland for our barbecue stand. There was also a widely popular 'Beanie Bear' donated and closed bids were offered through the Inter Net and phone calls, the highest bid was for £51.

The day arrived and Derek could be seen on his knees on 4 Div lawn praying that the rain would stay away..... it did. It was a great turn out by 4 Div and surrounding departments. The demand for the infamous 'bacon butty' stall was colossal, due to the fact that the NAAFI wagon had been threatened the day before by WO2 (YofS) Billy Cardwell not to make an appearance! The girls on the Tombola stall led by Chris McKenzie and Susan Cameron were exhausted by the end of the day and had made £147.90. Well all good things must come to an end and this brilliant day ended on a high with Mr Derek Keen announcing that a total of £1,250.60 had been raised and will be presented to the Jeans for Genes charity (medical research into blood disorders such as sickle cell) soonest. A big thank you to everyone who supported this worthwhile charity.

280 (UNITED KINGDOM) SIGNAL SQUADRON (LANDCENT)

The majority of the Squadron has now deployed as part of the HQ LANDCENT augmentation to KFOR2. Members of the Squadron have now deployed to various locations in Kosovo and Macedonia. There also remains a Squadron detachment in Bosnia.

BRAVO TROOP

Tp Comd Lt Lindsey Calderhead
Tp SSgt SSgt Graeme Weavers

It has been a hectic period for Bravo Tp as members of the Troop deployed to form part of KFOR2. Firstly we would like to welcome new Troop OC, Lt Lindsey Calderhead who arrives from Blandford. Congratulations and farewell go to Sig Jeanette Lloyd who will start her new post at 14 Sig Regt as Lance Corporal and we wish her all the best there. We must also say farewell to Sgt Ivor Moore who is due to start his new post in Chicksands in late October.

Peroxide blonde Sig 'Ski' attempting to win an Oscar for his world famous portrayal of 'casualty under trailer'

VISIT OF THE SOinC (A)

Preparations for the forthcoming Kosovo deployment provided the focus for activities within the Squadron in September during which Brig Burton, the SOinC (A), paid a visit. Alpha and Bravo Tps' pre-deployment training involved revision of mine awareness and battlefield first aid that culminated in a vehicle in a minefield scenario. Fun was had by the DS in 'modifying' a vehicle damaged two months previously thanks to Cpl Keith Betts performance during an afternoon of off-road driving. During the visit the SOinC (A) was treated to the troops impressive amateur dramatics, with Oscar nominations for Sig 'Ski' Smiejkowski who, very enthusiastically, played the part of a traumatised casualty. Artistic use of fake blood, smoke and thunder-flashes together with the help of SSgt Tony Barker and Sgt 'George' Stebbing completed the scene. The subsequent lunch in the Sergeants' Mess provided a good opportunity for a presentation of the LS&GC medal to WO2 (YofS) Carley and farewell presentation to departing Sgt 'George' Stebbing.

The SOinC(A) presents Yeoman Carley with his LS&GC Medal in order to remind the Yeoman he is getting old!

SQUADRON FIVE-A-SIDE FOOTBALL COMPETITION

Saturday 11 September saw virtually all the Squadron families attend a Five-A-Side Football Competition and Barbecue prior to the deployment to Kosovo. The excellent weather provided a good day out on the field in Francisca Barracks. In total, seven teams entered and, overall, a very high standard of play was achieved with some closely fought games. The female team, which included both females of the Squadron and some wives, proved not to be the walkover that people thought they would be. However, the semi-final contenders consisted of two Alpha Tp teams, the MT and an SHQ team. It was SHQ and Alpha Tp though, that lasted through to the final and after several near misses and some particularly competitive tackling, Alpha Tp eventually struck victory with a golden goal. During the games there was much competitive spirit displayed although unfortunately this resulted in SSgt 'Vinny' Vincent finishing the day with a broken leg from which the Squadron wish him a speedy recovery. It was an excellent day that was nicely finished off with a barbecue and a few drinks. 'Thanks must go to the Alpha Tp lads and lasses who set it up' (even if they did win in the end!).

RAF BRUGGEN 10 MILE ROAD RACE

The Bruggen 10 Mile Road Race was this year held on Saturday 11 September. The Squadron entered four competitors, Lt Lindsey Calderhead, Sgt 'Ned' Kelly, Sig 'Ossy' Osbourne and, in a typical military fashion, visiting OCdt Oscar Holloway found himself volunteered to make up the fourth team member. The race proved to be more gruelling than expected as the weather that day was particularly hot with temperatures of 31°C. Thus, competitors were generally prevented from achieving good times. Nevertheless Sgt Kelly was first from the Squadron over the finish line with a time of 1.09:30hrs. Lt Calderhead finished in a creditable seventh position in the females with a time of 1. 15:00hrs, OCdt Holloway completed the race in 1. 14:00hrs and Sig Osbourne in 1. 16:00hrs.

JOINT COMMUNICATIONS UNIT (FALKLAND ISLANDS)

Farewell 219, Welcome 212

OC Maj M. G. W. Adams
USM WO2 D. Rook

1 (UK) Armd Div HQ & Signal Regiment (208 Sig Sqn) returned from JCUFI in February 1999, having handed over the Army Element Roulement Squadron to 2 Sig Regt, (219 Sig Sqn). Amongst the other proposed deployments for 1 (UK) Armd Div HQ & Sig Regt were troops to Op Agricola and Op Palentine, so it came as a surprise for 212 Sig Sqn to be warned off to relieve 219 Sig Sqn. In May the Recce element comprising of Capt Jason Nichols, SSgt Shean (that's pronounced Sharn!) Dewar and SSgt Mal Pavier deployed to FI. A subsequent 'soggy' Recce by the new OC, Maj Chris McIntosh and new SSM, WO2 Dave Rook encountered the Rugby socialites of 219 Sig Sqn in the form of the Maj Dave Gaul, WO2 (USM) Mark Neighbour, SSgt 'Chalky' Meek, Sgt 'Rocky' Mountain and Sgt Shaun Pargin.

The advance party deployed with the OC, Maj Mark 'Can I just tell you I was there two years ago and I am only there for six weeks' Adams on 16 August. After saying goodbye to loved ones the ever so not enjoyable flight from Brize Norton went without a hitch, (well at least the OC remembered his passport this time!) We were all met by the happy smiling faces of the OC, USM and our 'Mr Contact' from the TA, Sgt 'Father of Spike' Mason. Once everyone was settled in to their accommodation a welcome party was held in the JCUFI Bar 'Sharkies'. Cpl 'Bam Bam' Blakey introduced the newly arrived power section led by Cpl Dave 'I give good haircuts, honest!' Turton to the 'Shackle'.

With the hand-over take-over complete and 219 Sig Sqn away safely enjoying their well-deserved R and R here we are. The out detachments are constantly visited to ensure that the RRB crews at Mount Adam and Campito plus the 'Siggy' at the RAF sites of Mounts Alice (Cpl Duffy), Byron (Cpl Bartle) and Kent (Cpl Franklin) have not gone 'RAF native'. On the sporting front we are aiming to keep up the good work started by 219, with the CBFFI Cup Badminton competition being held recently managing a semi-final place in the plate. Currently standing in third position out of the 12 units involved.

THE ROCK HOPPER CHALLENGE – By LCpl Welsh

The Rock Hopper challenge is an event organised by the Resident Rapier Squadron here in the not so sunny Falklands. The challenge is an orienteering course covering around 20 square miles situated around the Mount Pleasant Airfield area. Checkpoints were dotted around the countryside, from Pleasant Peak all the way down to Mare Harbour. Though only ten teams registered, JCUFI managed to provide three teams, the first team, 'View From' consisting of WO2 (USM) Rook, SSgt Pavier, Sgt Arundel and Sig Sullivan. The second team, 'Fourplay', was an all Officer affair consisting of Capt Ball, Flt Lt Dique, Capt Emmerson and a very hung over Lt 'I'm number 3 spot' Henderson. Last and definitely no means least were the 'The Stray Dogs', the Elite Telemechs from Line Section. This stalwart team was made up of Cpl 'Scratchy' Lees, LCpl 'Lethargic Les' Welsh, LCpl 'I am a PTI you know' Farrow and Sig 'Dreamboy' Lake.

Stray Dogs return to the Kennel

There were two classes of competitors The Racing Snakes and the Normal People, sorry I mean the Bimblers. At 0915hrs, maps in hand, both classes burst on to the moorland surrounding MPA like a bunch of blind lemmings desperately hoping to trip over a checkpoint. The checkpoints were some considerable distance apart and thus the key to success was to plan your route carefully. The first checkpoint we arrived at was at Poon Hill Rapier Site, we were the first team to arrive closely followed by the Fourplay team. Upon the arrival we got our stamp and were promptly presented with a questionnaire on sport general knowledge and.....Star Wars!. Our resident Jedi Master, Chris Lees finished off the question in quick time and before we knew it we were half a mile in front. Two Checkpoints later we were on the long road to Mare Harbour with a short stop at the Rapier Site for an Observation Test.....This consisted of studying 25 objects for 1 minute then writing down what we had observed. We were quite proud of our 20 out of 25 score until we heard that the View From team got full marks earning them the Brainy Trophy and the end of the day. By 1500hrs, We were all tired and poor lethargic Les had blisters and was struggling but urged his friends 'Leave me .... I'll be ok.....go on with out me, lads'. We arrived back at the RRS twenty minutes later and on time, having completed eight of the 12 checkpoints we waited for the results which were announced over a beer in the 'Dog and Badger' as follows;

1. 3rd in the Racing Snake class - View From.
2. 2nd in the Bimble class - Stray Dogs.
3. 7th place in the Bimble class – Fourplay.

It was a good hard day and everyone enjoyed it, Anyone coming to the Falklands should join in the next Rockhopper but be prepared for blisters. Finally I would like to thank Capt Johnson of the 'formally known as' 220 Sig Sqn of RAF Bruggen as if it wasn't for him we would not be here enjoying ourselves and nursing the blisters.

ALPHA TROOP

Tp Comd Flt Lt A. Cooksley RAF

Alpha Tp at has seen a new initiative of All Arms Signallers deployed with 212 Sig Sqn to the fill posts in RADCON and at the Rebro sites of Adam and Campito. So far a resounding success in that all cap badges from the RA, AAC, QRH, LD, RTR and RMP have shown their excellent trade skills in support of Ex Purple Strike, a live firing exercise for the Roulement Infantry Company. Although unfortunately at the time of going to press Sgt Baz 'Wot no box' Lawson RA and his crew of LCpl Cowley, Tpr Porter and Gnr Boyle are still stuck on West Falklands dependent upon the Chinooks' capability to lift the Rebro, or not. A Tp have waved farewell to the 212 Sig Sqn South Georgia crew in the shape of Sgt 'Billy' Duggan, Cpl Brittain, Sig Sheidecker and Cpl Collier. We welcomed back the 219 crew of SSgt Messenger, LCpl Edmonson, Sig Mathews and Sig Samson. Many thanks for their efforts and gods speed back to York.

BRAVO TROOP
Tp Comd WORS P. Jackson RN

Bravo Tp are responsible for running the theatre COMMCEN, with much varied ship to shore and ground to air circuits plus the ISDN network. With the R Signals operators split between the three Watches, a full integration under different service DSOs has ensued. It has not taken long for the new Army Element to be indoctrinated in to the Navy Speak of 'The Galley' - Kitchen, 'Wet' - Brew, 'Heads' – Toilets, 'Lost the Bubble' – Out of control, 'Deckhead' – Ceiling and 'Killick' – Full Screw. Further reports of Watch outings and functions are to follow.

CHARLIE TROOP
Tp Comd Lt L Henderson R Signals

Charlie Tp is responsible for a number of support elements to the Comms systems within the Falklands. The Falkland Island Trunk System (FITS) team are led by Sgt 'Kitch' Kitchener with Cpl Cleary, LCpls Loates and Savage usually being deployed at rather unsociable hours when the SYSCON team deem it necessary. The Falkland Island Trunk Exchange Network (FITEN) team is another rapidly deployable section of C Tp with Cpl Buchanan, Cpl John, and LCpl Mountford.

Power Section led by Cpl Turton and LCpl 'Slim' Humphreys are in the thick of the Generator refurbishment plan. Sigs Philips, Sullivan, Ragni and Beazley have all been deployed to Mount Moody to assist in the rolling generator swap that has begun now with the less hostile weather. Line section is comprised of 12 Telemechs from around the Corps, at present detached from 220 Sig Sqn and 259 Sig Sqn are very busy tradesmen with numerous improvement projects around the airfield.

DELTA TROOP
Tp Comd Flt Lt Dique RAF

Delta Tp is responsible for the Ground Radio Communications around the Airfield. The Aerial Maintenance Section which support the Island in its extensive variety of Aerials and Antennas for all three Services. Finally, the IT Section supports over 1200 PCs throughout the Islands. This includes the newly installed WRVS Internet connection, numerous WANS, LANS all supported by a combined R SIGNALS and RAF team of eight personnel.

EXERCISE LEMMINGS LEAP 1999
By SSgt John Greenwood

ENGINEERING SQUADRON

As a newly arrived Staff Sergeant within Joint Service Signal Unit (Ayios Nikolaos) I was not particularly surprised when my OC remarked to me, 'Ahhh Staff, I may have a little job for you.' So it was that three months later, after a mountain of paperwork, humping and dumping, sweating and cursing, it was at 0700hrs on the morning of 28 June 1999 that I awaited the arrival of 23 participating troops at the Lemmings Scout hut, Happy Valley.

After a welcoming brief the troops were split into two main syndicates and dispatched to their mornings activities, rock-climbing and water-skiing. It was at Tunnel Beach that Mr Demetrios, of the Military Training Wing (M'rW), provided a morning of hi-speed thrills on water skis and a banana boat. After a couple of hours under the expert instruction of Mr Demetrios a few hardy souls finally mastered it and were even posing one handed as they screamed around the bay. Each session of water-skiing finished with an hour of mayhem on the banana boat. Sgt Steve Robinson appeared to be going for some kind of falling-off record and spent more time treading water than actually riding on the boat. Needless to say this proved to be an extremely enjoyable activity and many a story was told over a beer that night.

The other syndicate, at this time was negotiating the tricky climbs of the local crags. Happy Valley has two or three interesting rocky outcrops which, with the benefit of a couple of hundred metres of exposure to the sea behind them, are certainly capable of inducing a little bit of disco leg. Sgt (SI) Nicky Pearce and Sgt Carl Elliot who were instructing, managed to gain maximum training benefit from the most innocuous looking rock faces. LCpl John Barber was one of the few people who managed to tackle the second route that included a small overhang. Allegedly the belayer provided a little bit of assistance but this was never proven and LCpl Barber still holds the 'Spiderman' trophy for the week.

In the afternoon the first syndicate donned their buoyancy aids once again in order to sample the delights of sea canoeing. Sgt Pearce by now had quickly removed her rock-climbing hat and was joined by Cpl Rick Watson of GEE Flight, RAF Akrotiri in order to instruct in this next activity. The first group were hampered by rough water and forced to remain in the small harbour. Throughout the week other groups were blessed with more favourable conditions and achieved greater success out on the open water. Officer Commanding, Engineering Squadron, JSSU(AN) Sqn Ldr Ian Virkwood will not, however, be rushing to transfer to the Royal Navy for a life on the ocean wave! The following afternoon, after a repeat of the morning's activities we all boarded our transport and headed off to the Akrotiri peninsula in order to enjoy a try dive, courtesy of the RAF Akrotiri Sub Aqua Club. Cpl Dave Flet, greeted us as we arrived and the first group were briefed and squeezed into wetsuits - 'What do you mean this is a large?!' For those of us who were experiencing diving for the first time the experience was absolutely marvellous. Once you become used to the fact that unlike elephant seals, human beings do not become creatures of grace and elegance underwater, the 12-15 minutes spent following one of the experienced instructors around a marked route was superb. The route encompasses a submerged helicopter, speedboat, thousands of fish - including moray eels - and even a fire engine!

The next morning was time for change-round and after a brief introduction to archery, under the auspices of Lt Col (Retd) John Drew, with varying degrees of success being attained, Group 1 climbed onto the coach as Group 2 climbed off. The rest of the week followed suit in similar fashion. Many younger personnel were introduced, some for the first time, to some of the activities that are available on island and even 'The Old and Bold' joined in with equal enthusiasm. The Exercise was declared a success. Huge sighs of relief all round for the instructors - Safe and worthwhile adventurous training had been achieved and hopefully a precedent set for future camps. The problems of adventure training at unit level on island, whilst difficult are certainly not insurmountable and the end results certainly justified the hard work.

NEWS FROM THE TROOPS & CADETS

608 SIGNAL TROOP

Tp Comd Maj (QM) G. L. Hegarty
Tp SSgt SSgt J. M. Hamill

There is something to be said for professional anonymity – it allows much to be achieved without the additional effort of being seen to achieve it. However, there is a limit to the number of times one can patiently answer the question, 'Who are they?' when the name 608 Signal Troop is mentioned. Hence, on a bright spring morning in 1998, this small band of quiet adventurers announced their presence to the world from the hallowed pages of this very publication. We explained who we were, what we did and introduced the individual members of the Troop to the interested reader. For a time there was some, slight, acknowledgement from the rest of the Corps, but all too soon the article was forgotten and the questions returned. With the Millennium approaching, we felt it a good time to remind the outside world of our existence and to inform the curious amongst you of all that has happened within this tiny unit.

It has been a very busy eighteen months within the Troop. We are tasked directly from QMG Andover and they certainly haven't forgotten who we are. Last year saw heavy involvement in the MAPPS project, with the Troop serving as an intermediary between the contractor and the rest of the Corps. This involvement finally over, we were plunged into the arduous struggle of the ERV modification programme, which has not yet released us from its demanding grip. This year has seen the Troop contributing, in common with many units, to the deployment in Kosovo - preparing and dispatching Troop assets out to theatre. All this against a background of our continuous task of preparing and maintaining a war maintenance reserve for the Ptarmigan fleet. The new millennium promises to be just as demanding and with the exciting developments within the Corps as a whole, things here are anything but tedious.

This time has also seen a great many changes in personnel – an unusual occurrence within the Troop – including a complete change in the Troop's management team. Maj Don Holmes was promoted and posted late last year to 37 Sig Regt and SSgt Pete Farrington left the Army at the same time upon completion of 22 years colour service. We wish them and their families all the best in the future. The current OC of the Troop is Maj Gerry Hegarty who joined us at the beginning of the year from Northern Ireland. His strong leadership and vast wealth of experience have been of great benefit to the Troop during this testing time. However, some of the more sedentary members of the unit were dismayed and confused at the amount of running that we suddenly seemed to be doing and we were even more astonished to find ourselves completing the Tewkesbury half marathon this summer. Joining the OC on the 608 management team we welcomed SSgt Jim 'No questions asked' Hamill who has proved a superb 'Mr. Fixit' during his time here. Sadly he has been short-toured and we will lose him in the new year. We must also say goodbye to Sgt Neil 'Cartman' Shrimpton who finally passed his RSJCC this year and leaves us for the bright lights of 11 Sig Regt.

The workshop side of the Troop continues to be headed up by Sgt Neil 'Scrapyard challenge' Parkinson intent on proving that, given the right tools, you can motorise anything. In this endeavor, he is aided by our extremely long serving ED, LCpl 'Taff 'Gippo' Thomas and our other technician, Cpl Lee 'Chatline' Thompson. In the stores, Cpl Bill 'Comfy Chair' Edwards, maintains an air of determined calm, despite the inherent stress of the job and the astonishing amount of caffeine in his bloodstream. When last we wrote, we welcomed LCpl 'Manic street preacher' Efans to the URS store. Unfortunately, we have now lost his sterling communication skills to civvy street and welcome in his place, LCpl Bob 'Social Secretary' Paterson. While she has adapted very well to this unique unit, we are bewildered by the amount of pot plants one desk can take and slightly concerned that we no longer need to answer the telephone. Completing the Troop personnel is our attached RLC vehicle specialist, LCpl Andy 'No Commitment' Guild whose annoyingly cheerful disposition belies the uphill struggle of maintaining 120 plus vehicles. The social and sporting life of the Troop continues out of all proportion to its size, and a most successful summer camp in August provided a perfect release from the pressures of work. This year also saw the Troop obtain its very own shady watering hole, and a great deal of time and effort have gone into making 'The Bodgit and Scarper' a wonderful focal point for the majority of our social functions. The unit continues to play a full role within the RLC depot and recently contributed to the DSDC Ashchurch Open Day by providing a delicious barbecue for the unsuspecting public.

In our last contribution, we issued a challenge to the rest of the Corps. We believed we could field a fairly strong golf team and were keen to test our mettle against any that might stand against us. To our lasting disappointment, not one reply did we receive. Therefore, at the risk of seeming confrontational, 608 Signal Troop reissue the challenge of a golf match, at any reasonable venue and against any caliber of team, in the hope that someone will finally accept.

In order that we may finally lay to rest the ghost of anonymity that has haunted the Troop in the past, let us be absolutely specific on this point. 608 Signal Troop is an independent signals unit located within the DSDA vehicle depot at Ashchurch. This is a small village to the east of Tewkesbury, itself a charming Gloucestershire town, north of Cheltenham, just off the M5. To allay any further confusion, one of the first things that the OC did upon arrival, was to ensure that the Troop itself was more than adequately sign-posted (in Corps colours) from the depot gates to the door of his office. (Whether this has more to do with his RD background or the nightmare he had finding the place on his first day, has yet to be determined.) In any case, that is who we are, and where we are and we can only hope that never again must we answer the question – 'Who on Earth are 608 Signal Troop?'

Tp Admin NCO Sgt Chris 'Kidney Punch' White
Tp Stores NCO Sgt Lee 'Wot trade?' Harris
Tp Wksps NCO Sgt Simon 'Dodgy Seam' King

Who are they you may be asking yourself .. well we are a small troop consisting of at present 13 Tele Technicians (Sys) of various ranks. Although we are only half a mile from 16 Sig Regt we are nothing to do with any of the Signals Regiments and work from within the ARRC. We have only been around for six years and having a Staff Sergeant (FofS) in charge we are not very high profile.

We are 'run' by the four SNCO's listed above. FofS 'Arry' Arundel has only just arrived at the unit along with his wife Sally. They arrived just before we deployed to Kosovo but this meant we had to say goodbye to the old FofS, SSgt (FofS) Bill 'Where are my glasses' Johnson and his wife Janet. To start with we have Cpl Paul 'During the war' Barr who has, I should mention, been in the Army longer than lightweights (in fact he got his full Corporal in 1980!) He has been with the Troop since it formed! Next we have Cpl Paul 'Windup King' Drysdale who has an amazing knack of conjuring practical jokes and witty little windups. Cpl 'Burpees' Boyle and Cpl Chris 'Knees to cheek' Healey both see themselves as budding PTI's. Then we have the Troop Scouser, Cpl Derick Daniel Joseph 'Yeecha!' Costello who is always good to have a laugh with and LCpl Dean 'du-ean' Chodan who is always good to laugh at! Not forgetting LCpl Mike '40 a day' Dawson, Cpl Gavin 'Snakester' McArthur and LCpl Rosslyn 'Basketball Queen' Beattie.

Most of the Troop are out in Kosovo at the moment and those that aren't have nearly all been out there apart from Cpl Paul Barr who cannot be levered away from his stores and mainly his computer! Cpl Healey finally got out to Kosovo after being sent his white feather signed by the rest of the Troop!

Sgt Simon King who was at the Plastika (Yugo) factory, Pristina and Cpl Paul Drysdale who was at KFOR Main, Pristina have both just returned to JHQ (where we are based). After stopping off at Skopje to have a McDonalds or three and send one upcountry which I believe stank out the WRV when they opened the box and the smell of McDonalds was around for quite a while. There was a small Det of four of us at the Plastika (Yugo) factory, which dwindled slowly down to one man (Sgt King), and his Leatherman, not even a vehicle or stores. Whilst there were still three of us LCpl Dean Chodan gratefully accepted a present from the locals and started showing it off until he got told to put it down and slowly walk away. It was a loaded and extended Russian 64mm anti tank weapon, which he was very chuffed with!!! Luckily we work fairly close with the Royal Engineers (Another none RLC cap badge in a RLC unit) and they controlled the situation and cordoned the area off. Thanks Dean.

CITY OF EDINBURGH UNIVERSITY OFFICER TRAINING CORPS

TARTAN VANOISE

by 2Lt Bermingham, R Signals Cadetship

FUN, FROLICS AND FONDUE IN THE FRENCH ALPS

The CEUOTC rock climbing/hill walking expedition of 1999 was held from 12 to 26 August in the Vanoise National Park. Ten Officer Cadets were chosen to participate, from a healthy response within the unit, plus three instructors and myself. Our able rock climbing instructors came in the form of Maj Fergus Murray (MIA) and WO2 Andy Evans (JSRCI), hill walking was conducted by myself (a lowly UEL) whilst 2Lt Hart had the best of both worlds being JSMEL(S) and RL(T).

As far as expedition planning went, I had organised participants, instructors, food, accommodation (albeit tented), travel, kit but I forgot the big one - I hadn't booked the weather. Fortunately we only lost a day and a half to torrential downpour, with one ensuite swimming pool cum tent. With devilish cunning we made the most of our soggy situation by transforming our vehicles into lounge/classroom with adjoining kitchen. As we now fully appreciate, the climate of August in the Alps works from one extreme to the other, so when the weather was fine even our token ginger managed to turn a hint of golden.

On to the agenda. The first four days were spent near Notre-Dame-du-Pre, a tiny village with roads to match. Rocher du Glaisy was the name of the climbing site which had 14 separate crags of varying grades which was perfect for our needs. The majority of the Officer Cadets had minimal previous experience but within three days were competently leading Grade 4's and top roping Grade 5's. The following six days were spent at Pralognan-la-Vanoise, the capital of the region, which held the Olympic Curling competition in 1992 and still has not forgotten it! Here a multi-pitch and hill walking rotation was organised. The multi-pitch routes at Falaise de la Fraiche were not as easy to identify as they might have been, an open mind was necessary when attempting to interpret the guide book. For the instructors it was a bit like and pick and mix, they were never quite sure what they would be climbing next. The walking routes were, in contrast, very well marked and afforded fantastic views of the surrounding area including that of Mont Blanc. Each walk covered approximately 17km with about 1200m of ascent, including ascents of Petit Mont Blanc (2677m) and Le Petit Marchet (2568m).

By the end of the expedition most people had been bitten by the Alpine bug and on the final day were seen raiding the multitude of climbing shops in search of kit. A very big thank you is to be extended to the instructors Maj Murray, WO2 Evans and 2Lt Hart whose agility and style on the rock face gave us something to aspire to, even if not emulate at the time.

63 (SAS) Signal Squadron (Volunteers)

The Squadron is a R. Signals TA Unit providing communications support to 21 and 23 SAS (V) Regiments. We can offer interested individuals, leaving the Regular Army, the chance to continue using the many skills acquired during their service, whilst at the same time maintaining their links with the Corps.

You will be expected to train for a minimum of 27 days a year, this includes a 15-day camp and a number of selected weekends. You can also volunteer to parachute, should you wish. You will have an unrivalled opportunity to travel abroad, (last year we exercised in eight different countries). If you are interested and live in the South East or London area then telephone 0800 163925 for further details.

HAMPSHIRE & ISLE OF WIGHT ARMY CADET FORCE

ANNUAL CAMP 1999

Despite some very poor weather conditions throughout, Signals training featured prominently at the 1999 Annual Camp of the Hampshire & Isle of Wight Army Cadet Force held in August at Knook Camp, near Warminster, Wiltshire. Two Cadet Signallers courses were held on successive weeks when at the end of the courses, 22 and 14 cadets respectively were awarded their 'crossed flags' badges.

Cadets from the Portsmouth area who passed their 'Crossed Flags' test, with their instructors

Cdt Cpl Samantha Breer from 4 Troop, Hythe

The Course organisers, Maj Mike Vokes - County Signals Officer, and his assistant, 2Lt Mark Davies, received much valuable assistance in the running and testing of the courses from NCOs from at the Royal School of Signals.

During the first week, line training was provided by Sgt Croxon and Cpl Bradley of the Line and Systems Group and testing arrangements were arranged by Cpls Parker and Vanadel of Radex. During the second week, Cpl Bradley returned with his line training road-show, which was again much appreciated by the Cadets. Sgt Render from sponsor unit, 249 AMF (L) Sig, Sqn, visited Knook to adjudicate for the tests. During the first week a visit to the camp was made by Col John Ewbank and Maj Andy Bowering. of HQ Royal Signals, when the basic course was inspected, as was advanced HF training being organised by SSgt Adrian Benson of Hampshire & Isle of Wight ACF. Trained cadets used the PRC 320 sets to gain further HF experience operating on the ACF/CC17 National Radio Net.

LEYBURN GIRL IN ARMY CHAMPION ROUNDERS TEAM... BUT ONLY JUST!

LCpl Tracey Mills (26) is a member of the Army's championship-winning Rounders team! Tracey, who is serving with Headquarters 1 Signal Brigade, plays for the Rhine Area Support Unit who beat Winchester Garrison in the finals, held at Winchester in early September. She made it to the finals just in time - she returned from a two month tour of duty in Kosovo on the Sunday before the championships! In fact, she was officially on her post-Kosovo leave when she was playing for her unit team! 'The team did well even to get here,' said Tracey, 'But once we got here, we played really, really well and I think we've surprised a few people, including ourselves with our success!' In her three year Army career, Tracey has seen service in Northern Ireland, the Falklands, Macedonia and Kosovo. Whilst she was in Macedonia, she helped build the refugee camps and she was there when the first Kosovo refugees poured over the border. In a matter of days, LCpl Tracey Mills had moved from the horrors of Kosovo to being a member of the Army Rounders championship team. She's not short of variety in her life!

THE REMARKABLE STORY OF SIGNALMAN OH

By Edward Hughes

I first heard about this story when my duties took me to Germany in the late Autumn of 1959. I was there on special service with the 6th Infantry Brigade under the command of the famous Brigadier, Brig Michael Carver, later to become Field Marshall Lord Carver, Chief of Imperial General Staff. My connection was with Brigade Intelligence, and I became involved in the translation of an amazing document concerning a mysterious character with the odd name of Gin Oh, who had apparently disappeared somewhere in Europe. I recall that a few days after I commenced work on the document, the man named Gin Oh was seen somewhere in Turkey, so my involvement was terminated swiftly, and with an air of secrecy. The document was returned post haste from whence it came and I was never told why a translation was required.

After many years, and some research, I have discovered that Gin Oh was a young Malaysian Chinese, born in Penang, who had done less than brilliantly at school - a mortal sin in the eyes of most Chinese parents - and had decided that his best chance in life was to run away and join the British Army. No doubt influenced by the presence of thousands of British troops in his homeland (Penang was a British settlement until 1957, when along with another territory, Malacca, it was ceded to the newly formed Malaysian Federation). Gin Oh became so obsessed with the idea of becoming a British soldier that he had packed his few belongings and set off to hitch-hike from Penang, in Northern Malaysia, to Catterick Camp in Yorkshire, where he had heard that the Royal Corps of Signals were looking for recruits. I believe it was his parents who alerted the authorities to his disappearance, but with the then paranoia about Communism which was rife throughout the whole of society, and the military in particular, an errant Chinese man on the loose and making his way to England was an obvious cause for concern. (I remember that at the time of my very brief involvement in the affair, no lesser personage than the Under Secretary of State for Defence, Mr John Profumo was to be seen at Brigade HQ, indeed, I saw him myself on the front steps).

Gin Oh had read in his newspaper that a certain man wanted someone to travel to Europe with him, so he left his job and went to meet the would-be traveller. They set off together, on route first to India, but Gin Oh's new friend was arrested as a smuggler after only three days of their journey. From then on, the young Chinese man was on his own. With very little money and no idea which way to go, he managed to make his way to Madras, then Delhi, and on to Karachi, capital of Pakistan. The misery and deprivation he suffered along the way can only be imagined by us who were not there. Unable to find work in the capital and with very little money left, he eventually managed to get visas for Persia (now Iran), Greece and Turkey. Along with a new friend he had met in Karachi, our intrepid would-be soldier smuggled himself on a train to Quetta. They were soon thrown off the train, but managed to hitch a ride on another train to Zahidan (Iran), a most unpleasant journey cooped up in a goods van in the stifling heat. Gin Oh then met a Pakistani who advised him to travel to Teheran, via Meshed. He managed to swap his jacket for a ride on a bus to Meshed, and then again smuggled himself aboard a train bound for Teheran. Discovered during that train-ride by a ticket inspector he feared he would be sent off in the middle of nowhere. But this time the Gods were smiling and the kindly ticket collector staked him for a meal, one of the very few he was to eat during his amazing trip. On to Tabriz, Mount Ararat, Khoi and Banzangan, where he had trouble with the police because his papers were not in order to get him into the next country, Turkey. With the help of a young German tourist on his way round the world and a ten year old Greek urchin who stole him onto a bus, he made his way to Thessaloniki. He now went in desperation to the British Embassy because he was near starving. Mistake! The British were all set to send him home when he escaped and set off for Athens. Then came an arrest, but a kindly policeman gave him some money for food and he was off again, slipping away while no one was looking.

After many more weeks of hunger and misery. a sympathetic foreigner gave him ten pounds and he made his way through Switzerland and France where an English doctor took pity on him and paid for his aeroplane fare to England. Once in London he made his way, ragged and forlorn, to the army HQ in Whitehall and after many months of hunger, heat, cold and other miseries, like being eaten alive by mosquitoes, Gin Oh was sent to Catterick Camp where he joined the Royal Signals. I have now lost touch with the story and have no idea what has happened to him since, but if any ex-Royal Signals men can shed any light on the matter I would be very pleased to hear from you. You can contact me c/o Keith Hind, 36 Doncrest Road, Donwell, Washington, TYNE & Wear, NE37 1ED, Tel: 0191 417 1398.

NOTES FROM THE AO'S DESK

On behalf of everyone at Association Headquarters, may I wish all Life Members, Associate Members, and their families, all the very best for a Merry Christmas and a Happy, Safe New Year. May I also take this opportunity to thank all Branch committee members for their hard work during 1999. Association Headquarters could not function without the valuable contribution from Branches and their continued support is gratefully acknowledged and appreciated. If you do not belong to your local Branch, why not get in contact with them? I am sure that a warm welcome awaits you there - and you never know, a Branch member might just live near to you and you never even knew it. Contact the Association HQ for the details of the relevant Branch Hon Secretary. If you do belong to a Branch, perhaps you could volunteer to serve on the committee.

Branch News - Colin Bell has been elected to succeed Ernie Cowan as Hon Secretary of the Spennymoor Branch. Colin can be contact at: 13b Thorngate, Barnard Castle, Co. Durham, DL12 8PY, Tel: 01833-690 397. Our thanks go to Ernie for his hard work whilst in office. Wilf Scurr, Hon Secretary of the West London Branch has a new telephone number; 01932-457 521. Col Cliff Walters informs me that over 200 attended the Association of Harrogate Apprentices' inaugural Reunion at Harrogate in October. Ill health has forced Brian Podmore to stand down as secretary of the Shropshire Branch. Branch Chairman, John Wall MBE will hold office until a volunteer is found to succeed Brian. Anyone living in the Shropshire area, who would like details of the Branch's activities, should contact John on 01743-350 606. Brian Overland is holding the Peterborough reins whilst Bob Rowland recovers from his unfortunate accident. We wish Bob a speedy recovery and return to office. Brig R. H. Borthwick has contacted Assn HQ to say that the 'North Africa & Italy L of C Signals Reunion Club' recently held its last Reunion and has now 'closed for business'.

Branch Secretaries - A special thank you to those of you who send in their Branch newsletters. We do enjoy reading them and quite often we glean useful information about members from them. Keep up the good work. Thanks also go to all those Branch members and Standard Bearers who, over the past year, represented the Corps at the funerals of our former members.

Annual General Meeting - The next AGM of the RSA will be held in Chelsea Barracks, Chelsea Bridge Road, London starting at 1030hrs on Saturday 8 April, 2000. Nearest underground station is Sloane Square. All Life Members of the Association are cordially invited to attend. To assist catering needs, those who intend attending are asked to give their name and vehicle details (if applicable) to Assn HQ - Branch Secretaries are asked to consolidate returns from their members. Any points for the agenda must reach Assn HQ by 1 March 2000. All Branch Secretaries should, by now, have received the calling notice for the AGM/Branch Reps Meeting - if not let Assn HQ know.

REUNION 2000 - Is your name on Assn HQ's mailing list for details of the Annual Reunion to be held at Blandford on 24/25 June 2000? Ring 01258-482090 to find out. We hope to issue the instructions in March and they will be sent to those who have asked for their names to go on the mailing list - it should not be assumed that attendance at this year's Reunion will mean the details being automatically sent.

1999 Reunion Video - Thanks for their patience go to all those individuals and Branches who ordered a copy of the 1999 Reunion video. Having seen the production process, I can now well understand just how much time and effort goes into making a 20 minute tape. Copies are still available from Association HQ.

Junior Leaders, Denbury - Rumour control says that there might be a Reunion in 2000 for those who were Junior Leaders at Denbury. Other than that, I know nothing - if anyone has any further details, I would appreciate receiving them. Don't forget, my 'Register of Postings' has quite a list of those who were Junior Leaders.

Cenotaph Parade - Mrs Jacqueline Wood is researching the significance of the Festival of Remembrance ceremonies, in particular the Cenotaph Parade. She would like to hear from anyone who attends the Cenotaph Parade, who would be willing to share their experiences of this special day. She promises to reply to anyone who takes the trouble to get in touch. Jacqueline is at: 5 Forest Houses, Dunsop Bridge, Clitheroe, Lancs, BB7 3AZ, Tel: 01200 448 671. Michael Aimable has already contacted Mrs Wood with his experiences on the subject. Thank you Michael for again volunteering to act as 'right marker' on Horse Guards Parade.

Life Members - Amongst those Life Members, from whom we have recently heard for the first time in many, many years is Mr G. H. Salmon, who served 1930 - 1946. Gordon would be pleased to hear anyone who served with him in 'F Boys Coy' in 1930-34. 'Relay through Assn HQ'. We have also had the first contact since 1959 with (Cpl) Michael J. Butler, who was admitted to the Royal Star & Garter Home, Richmond in October.

New Life Members - A warm welcome is extended to those new Life Members of the Association listed below, we hope that those shown under 'RHQ Branch' will contact their local branch for details. To those recently discharged from the Corps, we wish every success in their second career and trust that they will stay in touch with their Association.

ALDERSHOT BRANCH

The day dawned warm and sunny and no doubt we were not the only ones relieved and delighted by the very agreeable turn the weather had taken. It was the occasion of our visit in August to the final rehearsal of the Sovereign's Parade at the RMA Sandhurst, very kindly arranged for us by Col Paddy Verdon OBE at Academy HQ. Friends came from East Kent, Reading and West London Branches to enjoy the parade and afterwards, the picnic in the cricket pavilion that had kindly been put at our disposal.

In September we visited the State Apartments at Windsor Castle. Again we had the pleasure of the company of Members of the West London and Reading Branches and the Aldershot Branch of the WRAC Association. The visit was ably organised for us by Carole Thomas who had arranged for the party to be conducted by one of the Military Knights. It was all very impressive and the occasion was not diminished by the downpour which accompanied our exit from the Castle to an establishment by the river for a good pub lunch.

EAST KENT BRANCH

WEDNESDAY 4 AUGUST, VISIT TO SANDHURST

East Kent (and in particular Stodmarsh Road) have had very little rain over the past five weeks but the threat of heavy thunderstorms coming from the West, whilst being needed here, merely increased the fear that the weather might be so bad at Sandhurst for the Sovereign's Parade that it would be cancelled and what would our 25 members do then. having travelled by bus all the way there? So the fact that the bus was twenty five minutes late in arriving at the Start Point was a minor inconvenience, though the Ballantynes at Rough Common feared the worst and the gallant Chairman's party standing forlornly on the roundabout at Junction 2A, on the M26 were on the brink of a heart attack. However, all aboard, we sailed on in brilliant sunshine to Sandhurst, calling in at Sainsbury's for a well needed cuppa or for those that had forgone breakfast, a welcome snack. It so happened that the tour operator (Hon Sec) had been an incumbent at the RMAS in years gone by and was able to give a commentary on life as he had seen it (nothing much changes at RMAS).

Walking across the lawns as Concorde flew over, we were soon in our seats overlooking the Old College Parade ground and it seemed that with the presence of the Aldershot Branch, most of the spectators were from the Corps. Just before 1100hrs the 800 or so Officer Cadets (about a third ladies) dressed in Blues with white gloves and belts, marched on to the stirring music of the resident band. They were in two Divisions, the Senior and Junior, distinguished by the former carrying swords and the latter rifles. The Colours marched on and the Commandant took his place on the saluting dais. The Adjutant on his grey took command and the parade went through the inspection, the march past, in slow and quick time with some intricate manoeuvres at each corner. There then came the presentations a LS&GC to the Yeoman of Signals at the Signals Wing, Sandhurst and the Queen's Medal to a R. Signals Cadet.

The Junior Division presented Arms as the Senior Division inward turned and slow marched up the steps and through the massive doors of Old College to the strains of Old Lang Syne and as the volume decreased to a whisper, the Adjutant on his horse followed them up the steps and into the College before the doors closed behind them. The Parade marched off and we all walked back across the lawns to the Cricket Pavilion were we, along with members of the Aldershot Branch, spread our picnics on the tables and benches provided. Then it was back to the bus and home. It was probably one of the largest formal army parades that you will ever see anywhere these days and carried out with the precision and pride that the RMAS is renowned for, not only in this country but overseas from where many cadets come. Those that did not attend, really did miss an occasion.

SUNDAY 12 SEPTEMBER

Nearly seventy members brought their tables and chairs to Antrium Lodge for the barbecue and Photo Competition. The bar and barbecue were provided by the Tanners of Wingham and judged to be the best yet. David and Sheila Geary had planned the Photo Competition meticulously and there were about one hundred entries all anonymously posted on the atrium glass doors under four categories -Faraway Places, The Younger Generation, Fur & Feather, and a Pleasant View. There was also a display of early photographs of the ten Committee members, which members had to equate to the present day. At 1300hrs the entries closed and everyone then voted for what they considered to be the best. The Geary's, greatly helped by Elizabeth Woodrow worked out the winners. Jimmy Hand was the only one to get the Committee members right (insight or inside knowledge) winning an antique but working camera. By a stroke of genius, Sheila Geary won a £15 token with the best photograph. The raffle table organised by Marion and Vincent de Rose groaned under the weight of prizes and took over £100 from generous members. It was so nice to see so many of our older members such as Robin and Irene Hood, Ted and Joan Carn, Eileen Woodcock, John Raymond and others who have recovered from recent hospital sojourns such as Pamela Hand and Dennis Murphy.

NEWS OF MEMBERS

We congratulate Charles and Gladys Baker upon their recent Golden Wedding and Robin and Irene Hood for their Diamond Wedding. Bob Mitchell was back from Italy for a week or two in August. He is now living with his daughter who runs her own Ballet School there but he hopes to be back with the Branch for the Remembrance Day Parade in November. Trevor Allison has just come back from an international conference on the 'Y' Services operating during the Cold War in Berlin. There were representatives from the CIA, KGB and our own intelligence services and the conference took place at Teusdeisberg. He has, as can be imagined, a host of good stories and will be first on our list of speakers for future events. Mike and Jo Barrett have been on a cruise round the Baltic (without meeting a container ship) but did by chance meet up with Maj Gen Alan Yeoman (Chairman RSA) and Barbara on the same cruise.

NEW MEMBER

We are delighted to welcome Mr and Mrs Keith and Valerie Loney of Sevenoaks. Keith served as a National Serviceman from 1954-56 which was extended by the Suez Operation where he served with GHQ MELF having been with 2 Wireless in Cyprus.

VALE

It is with great sadness that we report the death of Col John Francis known to nearly everyone in the Corps. He died on 9 September after a long illness. Col John served from 1944 to 1978 and then as Regimental Secretary until 1987. Living in Maidstone he joined this Branch and became the Chairman until he and Jean moved to Dorset.

GLASGOW BRANCH

The photo shows Ewing Duthie presenting Sid Soco with a bottle of Scotch whisky. It has a specially printed label with Sid's name on it, on the occasion of Sid's retirement. The photo was taken when the Glasgow Branch attended the 1999 Reunion at Blandford. Sgt L. Younger and WO1 RSM S. Stonier are watching the presentation.

A total of 26 members, family and friends were on the coach on Sunday 15 August, to accept the invitation to see the Central Band, and the Massed Pipes and Drums of the Royal British Legion, Scotland, beating the retreat on the esplanade of Edinburgh Castle. Prior to the event the party had a meal at the Royal British Hotel on Prince's Street Edinburgh, where they were joined by the Branch's Honorary President, Maj Gen A. A. G. Anderson CB and his wife, Margaret. Ivana Muir the Branch Secretary, sold raffle tickets during the journey. The draw being made at the Hotel. Annice McWaters was pleased to have won the teddy bear as she recently become a grandmother, her husband Eric, the Branch Treasurer, is now a grandad. Congratulations to you both. Though it was cold the rain held off. The platforms erected for the tattoo are pretty high up and the cold wind required everyone to have windproof clothing. It was quite a spectacle to see the bands in all their different tartans and the standard bearers with the different Branch Standards, with the lone piper high up on the castle ramparts, playing the evening hymn, at the end of the show. The salute was taken by Maj Gen Strudwick CBE, General Officer Commanding the army in Scotland and Governor of Edinburgh Castle.

Our next venture was an invitation from 32 (Scottish) Sig Regt (V), to visit the Regiment at their Annual Camp in Cameron Barracks Inverness, on Tuesday 14 September. Originally ten members were going but two dropped out at the last minute due to illness. So in pouring rain, four cars left Glasgow on the Monday for the long journey, stopping at Pitlochry for a cup of tea and a sandwich. The billet was very comfortable and we were welcomed into the barracks by SSM Karen Swan and later by WO1 RSM Angela Hillborn. Then a meal and later the WO's and Sgt's Mess, for a little liquid refreshment. Next day the sun shone out of a cloudless sky, which allowed us to attend outdoor demonstrations, where we were shown the latest equipment in use in the field. Then we were allowed to fire the weapons in the static indoor laser simulator range. Incidentally, the female NCOs and soldiers acquitted themselves with excellent scores. The members also used the shortened version of the rifle, to fire and try to hit moving human targets out in the open. The target soldiers were kitted out with equipment which, when we hit the target, triggered a sound on their equipment telling them they had been hit and fall down to allow referees to count casualties. We then had a go at driving a 4-ton truck, with a trailer attached to the front by a metal pole to be manoeuvred into a space marked with cones, without knocking the cones over. I understand that the members all managed the task, especially Monty Bryden in our section, who had previous experience of driving these vehicles, and did it with aplomb. It was no easy task climbing into the vehicle for the older members. Later we were taken on a trip to Fort George. This was very interesting to those of us who had never seen it before. Bobby Gillchrist, who did his recruit training in World War II there, did not have fond memories of it, and told vivid tales of his experiences. This scribe was fortunate in being able to purchase from the museum, a Lledo model van, (which had been especially commissioned) by the Queens Own Highlanders, to add to my collection.

On the Tuesday evening we were invited to an informal evening in the WOs and Sgts Mess, where we met members of the Regiment from the other areas and those attached to the units. It was a very enjoyable evening, made so, by the hospitality of WO1 RSM Angela Hillborn and members of the mess. The RSA Members wish to thank the Regiment for inviting them for the visit, and we appreciate the time and effort it takes to cater for us old 'uns, to find interesting things to occupy us during our visit, whilst keeping a busy schedule on Exercise. The journey home was the reverse of the journey to Inverness, the sun shone all the way and it was a fitting end to a worthwhile journey.

The members have an invitation from the city of Glasgow Royal Naval Association, to attend the dedication service of their Branch Standard, in Glasgow cathedral on Sunday 24 October, with a civic reception afterwards hosted by the Rt Hon The Lord Provost Alex Mosson and Glasgow City Council in the city chambers. Arrangements are already in hand for the annual St Andrew's dinner/dance on 27 November. The Burns Supper was also mentioned at our last meeting in August, for January 2000, and we haven't even had Halloween, Guy Fawkes Night or Christmas yet! But, I suppose it's good for the committee, that Branch Members take a forward interest, as long as the events arranged, are well supported.

GUERNSEY BRANCH

Our last contribution appeared in print in the June edition and sadly we have to start this update of our activities with the news of the death of three Branch Members. Our Founding Chairman, Capt John Rudkin passed away on 17 June 1999. His funeral Service, followed by private cremation, at the Castel Parish Church on 24 June 1999 was very well supported by Branch members led by Chairman, Mike Brock and his wife Sue. John's coffin, draped with the Corps Flag, was accompanied by Dave Bichard bearing our Standard escorted in turn by Tom Remfrey. The faultless playing of the Last Post, which would have met with John's wholehearted approval, proved a fitting finale. Capt Tom Freeman passed away on 23 August 1999. His funeral Service at the Vale Parish Church on 27 August was well attended by Branch Members led by Mike and Sue Brock. The Branch Standard was carried by Dave Bichard and escorted by Tom Remfrey and was lowered during a fine rendering of the Last Post which brought an end to the Service. We received a report, subsequently confirmed by his married daughter, that Mr Bert Green had passed away in July 1999. The loss of three of our members, in so short a space of time and in such a small Branch, has been felt keenly by all of us.

In April we paid a formal visit to Guernsey Telecoms which had been arranged by our Vice Chairman, Alec Forty, who at one time during his working life, had been the head of that particular organisation. Perhaps it was his influence but we were regally received and escorted through the various departments. It proved to be a real eye-opener and, for those not computer literate, a chance to access the World Wide Web for the first time. The Royal Signals site was accessed without difficulty and the whole evening was voted a great success. On 6 May we held our annual Liberation Day Dinner at St Margaret's Lodge Hotel. We were delighted to have the company of Maj Gen Alan Yeoman and Barbara who this year joined us in a private capacity. It was a pleasant opportunity to renew old friendships and to establish new ones. Once again we are indebted to Dave Bichard and Kathy who made all the necessary arrangements for what proved to be the usual success. So popular was the Bowls evening held last year that a repeat visit was rapidly proposed, carried and arranged for Friday 10 September. Once again the organisation, coaching and overall supervision was ably carried out by Alvaro Salazar and his wife Betty who ensured the evening went with a swing. A supper break was taken halfway through the evening, followed by a small knockout team competition with the winning pair being presented with a bottle of wine apiece. Modesty prevents me revealing the name of the winner (for the second year in succession) having been partnered with a charming lady guest as a safeguard against the same team winning. I understand that I am to be barred from playing next year! Thank you Alvaro and Betty for another fun evening. A Pub Lunch, held at La Favorita Hotel on Sunday 3 October, was well supported and thoroughly enjoyed. A very regular guest at Branch functions, Mr Ernie Hobbs, was missing having been admitted to hospital the night before. We wish him a speedy recovery and look forward to seeing him back with his partner ere long. Thank you again Dave and Kathy Bichard for another well organised function.

In summary a quiet but enjoyable social period but with much of the gloss dulled by our sad losses in the latter half of the year. On a more reassuring note we are pleased to report that Vic Jinks, who recently had to attend hospital treatment in the UK, is back at work and maintaining good progress. We are now looking ahead to our Committee Dinner at the end of November and our annual Christmas Dinner on 9 December. More about those functions in the New Year. Finally, the Chairman, Committee and Members of the Guernsey Branch wish you all a very Happy Christmas and the best of Good Health and Prosperity to see you through the first year of the new Millennium.

SHEFFIELD BRANCH

AN EVENTFUL YEAR

The AGM, a necessary evil, passed without controversy no one wants a job so the current team are in post until we become incapable, it seems. In April the Branch members were able to visit RAF Fylingdales for a superb audio/visual presentation given by Sqn Ldr (Rtd) Chris Carvell, followed by a tour of the facility. For those who have not crossed Fylingdales Moor recently, the 'Golf Balls' have gone but not before some organisation wanted to have them preserved as a national monument. Their replacement is not so imposing, looking like a cross between an Egyptian pyramid and a shipwreck. There are warning signs to beware of the rabbit holes, I don't know what size the bunnies grow to, but after 35 years of high levels of electromagnetic radiation they may be big enough to drag the unwary underground. This was followed by supper at the Fox and Rabbit. 'I'll tell you when it's closing time,' says the landlord, 'Never you mind.' Arrival back in Sheffield around 2am! The Annual Dinner as held in May in the WOs & Sgts' Mess of 38 (City of Sheffield) Sig Regt TA, to whom we are continuously grateful for the use of their facilities. June and the Annual Reunion always a problem with more bids than places available. This a perennial problem in Sheffield and we now recognise that a system needs to be agreed democratically of course. 'Pigs might fly!'

In September we were, after two or more years of planning, able to visit the Tower of London, courtesy of Yeoman Gaoler Tom Trent, to whom we are most grateful. (What a strange hobby - collecting dominoes). This was followed on Sunday morning with a visit to the Royal Hospital Chelsea, where together with the London Branches we took part in the annual Governor's parade and service in the Chapel, followed by refreshments and a curry lunch. A remarkable event took place during lunch, I was approached by an In Pensioner who asked, 'Was one of your members wearing a Sierra Leone Independence Medal?' I replied that if there was it would be Harry Mercer, we would go and find him. On finding Harry he looked up and said, ' Good Lord it's 'Taffy' Griffiths.' It transpired that they had not met since 1961 in Sierra Leone where they used to run the camp cinema, largely for their mutual benefit I gather. Let's hope we can organise a return visit soon to Chelsea. In October we hold our annual pie night, 'Desperate Dan Cow Pie' with mushy peas and mint sauce. 'Save some for the Chairman this year!' The year ends with the Christmas Social of course, and then it's the Millennium. How do we keep going.? Ideas for next year on a postcard please.

SOUTHAMPTON BRANCH

Our programme of events has continued through the summer. On 4 August about twenty members of the Branch attended the rehearsal of the Passing Out Parade at RMA Sandhurst. For those of you who have not witnessed this event, it is a most impressive spectacle, carried out with all the professionalism that we still expect and receive from today's army.

At our monthly evening meeting on 19August our Chairman, George Packer, presented a cheque on behalf of the members to Wayne and Laura Broadhurst who were to be married on 4 September at Rownhams parish church. Our programme of after lunch speakers continued when Col Andrew Carter, Regimental Secretary, paid a visit on 7 September. About thirty members and partners heard him talk about The Association and its Relationship with the Regular Army and the Benevolent Fund. This proved to be an interesting and enjoyable event as Col Carter has the ability to be both informative and humourous. It was reliably reported that not one member of the audience went to sleep!!

Mrs Debbie Carter, Col Andrew Carter and Brig Johnny Clinch (Branch President)

On 16 September some of us paid our second visit to the White Hart at Cadnam to enjoy their excellent food and to play a few games of skittles. Prizes were awarded for the lady and gentleman with the highest score and also to the player with the lowest score. Everyone present agreed that the evening was a great success and would look forward to the next time. The social activity at the Branch has increased considerably during recent months and there have been a number of well attended and successful occasions to record. Unfortunately, our Social Secretary has had to stand down due to various pressures but hopes to remain an active member of the Branch.

TORBAY BRANCH

On 23 August 1999, the Branch had the honour of representing the RSA at the celebration at Exmouth, of the 100th birthday of Mr Reginald Randall BEM. The Branch held a small parade in Reg's honour, who in turn inspected the group. Reg was then presented with a gift on behalf of Association Headquarters. Our photo shows Reg in the centre with (left to right) Tom Evans, John Goodman, Norman West, Jack Livesey, Ossie Osbourne, Bernie Goodman, Hugh Cauldwell and the Deputy Mayor, Ron Mudge.

Reg became of military age in 1917, where upon he joined the Infantry. After training he was sent to Mesopotamia, having been there some time he was transferred to India (Lucknow, Benares and Cawnpore) with his Regiment. He decided to leave the Army in 1923 and returned to England.

Soon after his return he joined the TA and as he was interested in Technology, he joined the 5th Ack Ack Division Signals and shortly before the Battle of Britain, was posted to the Isle of Wight, where he was put in command of a section which was operating at the RDF Station at Ventnor. During this time the section was attacked several times and was finally put out of action by Stukkas. Reg had a lucky escape whilst sheltering in his slit trench when a bomb landed next to him but having a delayed action, it exploded the next day.

During his time on the island, his section lost all communications and upon investigation it was found to be sabotage. In Reg's words, 'I could not tolerate this and laid in wait with a round up the spout of my rifle.' Eventually he observed a person attempting to cut wires and was about to shoot, when he realised it was a woman, because of this he did not shoot, but reported the matter to the MPs. They in turn arrested the woman (Mrs O'Grady) and on searching her home, found further evidence of her activities. She was charged and brought to trial at Winchester Crown Court. In Reg's own words, 'I was sat in court and the Judge put on his black cap and sentenced her to death,' Reg was chief witness in the case. Later Reg was transferred to the Portsmouth/Southampton Area, where he was kept very busy. Again in Reg's words, 'Command appeared quite pleased with my activities and recommended me for a medal, and subsequently I went to Buckingham Palace with my wife to receive the medal from King George VI.'

WEST LONDON BRANCH

On a fine sunny Sunday in September when we paraded for morning service at the Royal Hospital Chelsea we were joined by the Sheffield Branch who were on a visit to London. Their Standard Bearer was afforded the privilege of parading his Branch Standard and their Secretary, Ron Simmons commented on our large turnout, forty marchers led by Col John Eversfield, with non marchers waiting in the wings. The parade and gathering included Members of East London, North London and Reading Branches and 31st Signals Association. After the parade we retired for drinks with the InPensioners, followed by seventy five of the Corps family enjoying a very good curry lunch.

A few weeks after our Chelsea attendance we held an 'In Pensioners Evening' in Hounslow Barracks at which some of the In-Pensioners were our guests for a social evening with a lot of singing, dancing for the most nimble, and a buffet supper. The enclosed photograph taken at the Parade at the Royal Hospital Chelsea has been sent me by Maj Ron Miller, Chairman of the West London Branch with the request that I pass it to The Wire.

THE MIDDLESEX YEOMANRY ASSOCIATION

A quiet summer period for the Association gave our Chairman-George Key, and Secretary-Andrew Bridges, the opportunity to catch up on their stamp collections. Can we also put the record straight, it was Col Ted Scarlett, (not Tim), who led the Association contingent at this year's Cavalry Memorial Parade at Hyde Park.

It is with great regret that we report the death of Des Hall. There is a history of Des's career to be found in the 'LAST POST', he will be sadly missed.

The Association Band is still getting itself together after the upheaval of the move from Acton to the TA Centre, Flayes Bridge, Southall. They are always on the lookout for good military band musicians. If you know of one send them along. Rehearsals take place most Sunday mornings. The Band Sergeant Major is Bob Lowe and he can be contacted on 0181 904 6188. By the time you read this we will have had our Annual Dinner and paraded at St Paul's Cathedral, but more about that another time.

12th, 15th & 18th AIR FORMATION SIGNAL REGIMENT'S ASSOCIATION

We had another enjoyable meeting at the Delaware Pavilion in Bexhill on Thursday 7 October, despite a reduction in numbers. Five Members attended, and five more sent apologies for absence. Tony Ranger, who is unable to travel far, very kindly sent a generous donation, as did Paul and Toby Stickley who, unfortunately, had to attend a family funeral. After deductions for local expenses I am able to forward a cheque of £30 to Dennis Egan for Association expenses on behalf of our Branch. The expenses book was signed by the senior ex-NCO, Bill Smith, who, incidentally, made his first appearance at one of our meetings and said he thoroughly enjoyed himself.

Have you all got your 2000 diaries handy? Make a note for 13 April for our next get-together at the Delaware Pavilion in Bexhill at 1100hrs and anyone being late will be placed on a charge! We're getting known by the staff there now, and the Assistant Manager has told me to ring up a few days before hand and he'll get a table organised in the big dining room for us, so that we don't have to sit in the cafeteria first before moving into the larger room later on. Has he, perhaps, had complaints from other customers that the ex-soldiers are monopolising the tables and covering them with photographs and maps? I'm still waiting for Members to send me amusing anecdotes about their service. Don't tell me there aren't any, because if you'd been at the last meeting you'd still be laughing at some of the stories told there. Come on, lads, share those tales with the rest of us. Don't worry if you're not an author; just jot down the relevant facts, with dates, places, and personnel I'll knock it into shape so that we can all have a good laugh at it. I refuse to put into writing, though, the time that I ran a three ton truck into the back of another one in the middle of miles and miles of desert, '…nuff said!'

Don't forget the date of the next meeting - Thursday, 13 April, 2000. That's next century, in case you don't know, and some of you chaps who've never attended one of our get togethers, please try to come. I promise you'll enjoy it.

31st SIGNAL REGIMENT ASSOCIATION

We are still very active, getting out and about. Regimental Camp Visitor's Day on 22 July saw Association members roughing it at Nescliffe Camp, Folkstone. Our Chairman, Col Donald Crawford, was heard to mutter that it was, '...tougher in his day.' Our thanks go to WO1 (RSM) John Gibson for his route-card and map, which prevented some members going through the Channel Tunnel. Sunday 1 August saw us having lunch on the Mid-Hants Watercress Line, steam railway. Good weather, good food, good wine and good company made it all worth while. Sunday 5 September saw us supporting the West London Branch at the Governor's Parade, at the Royal Hospital Chelsea. The Royal Signals contingent was led this year by Col John Eversfield.

Col John Eversfield in counting mode

Afterwards we had a chance to share a pint or two with members of the Sheffield Branch, who were visiting London. Our thanks to Dave Thomas (PSAO) for all his help with our Cheese and Wine Party on 9 October. On 17 December we will be back on the Watercress Line having Christmas Lunch with the Reading Branch.

Your starter for ten, on 15 April 2000 our Annual Dinner is somewhere in the London area? A small clue - it will not be at the Duke of York's HQ because Mercury House will be in the hands of the property developers. Our Secretary, Henry Holman, has been seen pulling his hair out in frustration! Our trip into Europe next year, organised by Dusty 'Plan B' Miller will be to Brussels on 26-28 May 2000. The visit will include the V2 Rocket sites at La Capole. It should be interesting, because we were very good at getting rockets?! There are many other goodies in next year's Social Calendar, but more about those in future issues.

The Committee wish all serving and ex-members of 31 Signals, a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

19th SIGNAL REGIMENT ASSOCIATION

In a break with established tradition, the Association's seventh annual luncheon was held at the North Stafford Hotel, Stoke-on-Trent, on September 9th. This attracted some 52 members, a number from Scotland and the North of England who had not attended an Association Luncheon before - resulting in a brisk sale of regimental ties! After Col Colin Gilbert, the Association President had given a short address of welcome, Mr George Brew, the Chairman, sought members opinions for holding the annual luncheon on alternate years in the London area and in a venue in 'The North'. This suggestion met with almost universal approval. After lunch the 'Yorkshire Chapter' treated us to a slide show bringing back memories of the Singapore of old. For this we were joined by the ladies who had returned from their visit to the factory shops. For many of them this was a new view of the place where their husbands had spent their formative years.

THE GENTLEMEN OF BEVERLEY, CATTERICK GARRISON 19 AUGUST 1999

Thursday 19 August 1999 dawned with typical Catterick weather, rain with a blustery wind for the First Reunion of the Gentlemen of Beverley 1950 to 1954. The rendezvous was at the Dalesman Families Club on Loos Road in Catterick Garrison. This was with the kind permission of the Army Welfare Services and Mrs Boardman the Community Worker who is also the Manageress of the Club, to whom we offer our thanks and best wishes. Thanks must also be expressed to Mr Stan Perkins who arranged the venue and the buffet lunch. Without his invaluable assistance the author would have had to make several trips to Catterick, 'Thanks Stan.'

Some twenty-one Ex Boys attended with their wives and partners, with five invited guests including Maj Gen Archie Birtwistle, Brig Graeham Jackson and Maj Edinger who was a very unhappy Troop Officer in the far off days of the fifties. After 49 years meeting each other again was a little strange, our minds were still set in the 50's and remembering each other as lads of 15 to 17 year old. Most of us looked a lot different from those days, being greyer/balder and somewhat stouter in girth but many mannerisms were still recognised from those far off days. Much catching up was done about who had been where and what we had been and what we were doing now. Many tall stories were re-told of Beverley and what had happened since we had left. The lamp was swung a time or two. Luckily steel helmets were not needed too often, although there was quite a lot of Blanco, and chalk dust in the air after lurid tales were recounted of 'Uncle Bob Humphries'.

A raffle was organised by Ray Toyne and his good lady and £47 was raised and together with the profit from the catering bill a total sum of one hundred and six pounds was donated to the Ex Beverley Boys Association to assist the Secretary defray expenses accrued organising the 50th Anniversary Reunion at Beverley next year. The winning tickets were drawn by Mrs Margaret Bishop and Mrs Cawthorne the wife of a guest. This was accompanied by loud and prolonged shouts of fiddle (needless to say this was outside the jurisdiction of the author). The festivities started to close down about 1600hrs due to most of us wanting to beat the rush hour on the A1 but the consensus was everyone had enjoyed themselves and were looking forward to the next Reunion at Beverley.

The year 2000 marks the formation of 6 Boys Training Regiment Royal Corps of Signals and it is hoped to hold a longer event over two or three days. There are at present 91 members of the Beverley Ex Boys Association, SO COME ON LADS let's try and recruit many more by use of the bush telegraph, E Net, jungle drums and any other form of communication to establish contact with as many Ex Boys as possible, after all there were over three thousand of us who went through the gates at Beverley and lived to tell the tale of how we survived. We are supposed to be communicators remember?

THE 1960s 16 SIGNAL REGIMENT REUNION CLUB
60'S 16ERS 1999 REUNION

Jackie Hurley reports

Friday 3rd September - The 1999 Annual Reunion was at the Lord Mayor Treloar College in Alton, Hampshire for the second year running, giving Krefeld a reprieve from the onslaught of ex-16 Signal Regiment members. After the usual, last minute 'short cut' I arrived at the College to the strains of 'REME' Harper in full voice entertaining the troops, (no change starting the party early then)! He was assisting the entertainer, Peter Brennan a professional singer/guitarist, hired for the evening, it was a late but good start to the week-end.

Saturday 4th - More members began arriving and the final total over the weekend was 52, not bad and increases with new faces each year - there are now 209 contacts on the list. Bridget Wilson (nee Smith) who had kept her one and only photo from 16 Signal Regiment, finally had the names of all those on it within minutes of passing it round. Jim Brooks and Barrie Clerehugh came from Germany but only after watching their first boat sail into the sunset. (At least we think that's what Jim said, still more Scottish than the Whisky), Ray 'Ginge' and Pat Lyons (nee Orris) made their mammoth journey from South Africa, fitting the reunion into their busy schedule. - Hope the video turned out OK, mine didn't. Winston 'Rocky' Rock another new face this year, who spends six months in the UK and six months in Barbados each year, now has lots of people wanting to visit him -wonder which part of the year? Nick and Denise Nicholas (nee Macrae), discovered Nick had worked with Chris Cottam for a while but never actually came across each other. By the way Nick, John Farrell said he will share his LS & GC with you - for a fee!

The weather was superb for the whole weekend and so with Pete Weedon placed on duty to welcome arrivals during Saturday - Frank and Mrs Webber, Tom and Rose Bean, Lorraine Ward (nee Laurie Torrie) and many others - the rest of the party set off for town or new watering holes. Tom Thornton whose sense of humour has not diminished held court at the White Hart and soon had everyone crying into their beer. Tom was a Funeral Director at some stage in his 16 Sigs after-life and the pictures conjured up by him were hilarious. In the evening, the now usual scramble for photo's occurred, some muttered about valuable drinking time lost! Perhaps with so many attending, we should go for group photograph only. After the photo-call, we were assembled away from the dining room and told the Master of Signals had arrived to say a few words. Shock, horror, yet more drinking time lost! When on centre stage steps Tom Thornton who proceeded to treat us to half-an-hour of great entertainment. We weren't quite sure if he'd adapted his jokes to personalities or if the stories were really true. Some tales had been heard in the pub that afternoon but were still hilarious second time around, although you forgot to re-tell the one about the knotted string Tom!

As we sat down for our evening meal, a disturbance look place as a policeman chased a thief round the dining room. All in a weekend's work for Ian Radford (the policeman in shorts and flashing helmet) and 'REME' Harper (A pirate with one leg and a parrot!) What will they come with next year, their double act is fast becoming a feature at reunions. Who needs paid entertainment when, as Tom Thornton had earlier noted, while most units had at least one 'character', 16 Sigs seemed to be full of them. The evening went very well with a 60's disco, 60's quiz (devised by Lorraine Ward and John Farrell) lots of laughter and swallowing of the grape juice. Elizabeth Gibb (nee Evans) and Anne Ferrier Fossett along with a few others rekindled memories of dancing round their handbags (though weren't the original bags Army issue?) I couldn't afford a 'civvy' one after paying for John F's beer).

Sunday 5th - Recovery rates after a good night is a little slower these days but the AGM finally took place prior to everyone making their way home. The sad note to this year's reunion, was to hear of the death of Bill Schofield earlier in the year and Dick Burt who lost his battle with cancer just the week before our reunion weekend. Dick and Audrey Grainge (nee Branbrook) along with 'REME' Harper attended Dick Burt's funeral to represent the reunion group. The staff at the College had once again made our weekend successful and so to show our gratitude, a collection was taken and placed in a beer-mug, meanwhile any subscriptions being paid were also collected in a beer-mug. Evelyn Radford (nee Bertie) stepped in to present beer mug of money to the staff - luckily it was realised fairly quickly that the staff had disappeared with the subs. Evelyn denied she was confused due to a hangover! Thanks to Ricky Gordon and his family for yet another great week-end and of course to Chris Bartlett for all the organisation, a hard task but much appreciated. Chris is hoping - dependant on commitments, for both 7 and 16 Signal Regiments - to hold the next reunion in Krefeld and is looking at around September 2000. Keep a space in your busy schedules for a confirmation of the date, as the attendance builds there may be some limit on numbers. Have a good year, keep in touch and let's look forward to our fifth reunion, but it will be the first of many in the new millennium.

BEVERLEY BOYS REUNION

Saturday 25 September 1999

David James-Bailey (22569039)

Down the curving stairway into the ballroom of the Victory Services Club in London they came, some on their own and others with their ladies, but without exception all showed a mix of expression, ranging from bewilderment to curiosity at the sight that was unfolding before their eyes. Gathered together for the first time, in many cases for 49 years, were 67 'boys' from what was known as 6th (Boys) Training Regiment, Royal Signals, which for some five years was based first in Richmond, Yorkshire as No.1 Boys Selection Squadron and then at its proper home in Victoria Barracks at Beverley in East Yorkshire, where it stayed until mid-1955.

They came from all over - as far north as Blythe in Northumberland to Southampton, from the Channel Islands and Germany. Australia even sent over one of its adopted sons in the form of Pete Harris although it is still uncertain whether they did so out of compassion or whether they were trying to tell him something! His determination to be there is worthy of a mention alone. What an inspiring sight and what an incredible experience to again see and speak to friends and colleagues only recently remembered fondly through the medium of photographs and other pieces of memorabilia. In many cases recognition came easily and overshadowed the fact that we had all 'aged little' - because of course we had aged together. It mattered not that some had little or no hair, or that others didn't seem to be as tall as we remembered them.

Tony Hull was the person responsible for this spectacle and for the next six hours the ballroom hummed with the hubbub of voices recalling and recounting experiences and memories of times held special to all those present. There was much laughter and it is quite possible that perhaps the odd tear wasn't far away either, but one thing shone out above all else and that was the sheer joy and delight of all those present at meeting again those others who had shared the two and a half years at Beverley - and survived to tell the tale! They were good years, tough mind you, but as someone put it, 'We were good at what we did', and the Corps was the richer for the many good Seniors, Warrant Officers and Officers that came off the 'production line'.

Certainly 'Col' Keddie would have been proud of the day had he been there, and it says a lot of the esteem in which that gentleman was held that he is still remembered with such affection by all who served in the Regiment.

It would be unfair not to mention the part played by the Victory Services Club. The lunch was excellent and we were all very impressed with the military precision with which the Function Manager controlled his Staff.

Next year is the 50th Anniversary of the formation of the 'boys' unit and it is fitting that if possible the venue should be in Beverley. To those of you who were unable, for whatever reason, to be with us on Saturday 25 September we extend a heartfelt wish that you may be with us at that meeting. We look forward to seeing you then and finally, none of the foregoing would have been possible without Tony Hull and his supportive wife, Beryl. The writer is well aware of the effort they have put into getting the day organised, as indeed they have done with everything else connected with the Beverley Ex-Boys Association, and on behalf of us all we ask you both to accept our sincere thanks for your tireless endeavours on our behalf.

KOREA - THE FORGOTTEN WAR
THE PERSONAL REMINISCENCE OF REG BRIGGS OF PETERBOROUGH RSA AND OF HIS PERSONAL REUNION AT THE KOREAN VETERANS ASSOCIATION INTERNATIONAL REUNION LONDON, JULY 1999

'The Korean War is one of the most important and dramatic conflicts of the twentieth century. United Nations troops suffered 142,000 casualties to restore the independence of South Korea after the Communist invasion of June 1950.' Max Hastings: The Korean War

I joined the Royal Signals as a boy soldier aged 16½ and did my trade training at Harrogate and Catterick to become an OWL (Operator Wireless and Line). My first overseas posting was to be in N. Africa. Several months later in Tripoli one morning, the CO asked for volunteers to go to Benghazi where we would join the 28th Field Regiment RE. We would then go to a country called Korea where a war had broken out. If I remember correctly the entire Troop volunteered. We would be known as NAN Troop. I, like a lot more hardly knew where Korea was, joined Royal Signals to see as much of the world as possible and this was my chance to see the Far East.

We sailed from Tobruk many months later in the troopship Empire Orwell. There were other Royal Signals personnel already on board who soon joined up with us. One, a Radio Mechanic who became a very good friend, was called Peter Clay. Other names I remember were Drabble, Tilley and a Reservist called Reg Minton. I had a great respect for these Reservists who had served in the 1939/45 War and I learned a lot from them. Bonds were formed of the type that were never really broken. Arriving in Korea we waited for the equipment to arrive then started the move up to positions North of the capital, Seoul.

As very young soldiers we saw the first signs of war-knocked out Russian tanks, refugees and burnt-out towns and villages. Korea was then a very poor and rural country. We had several positions before the line became static and we were in position just South of the Imjin River. Several months later in January 1952 Peter, as I knew him, was posted to take charge of the Radio Mechanics up at 28 Brigade and I thought I would never see him again. I did know that Peter was planning to train for the priesthood on returning to UK. I spent almost two years in Korea before returning to the UK in April 1953. I had lost contact with Peter until, out of the blue, on the morning of Tuesday 8 May 1999, my wife Margaret gave me the mail containing information about the Korean International Reunion in London and a mysterious letter bearing Canadian stamps. I began to read it. I am not one to show emotion but I had tears in my eyes. It was a letter from Peter Clay, now called Colin, and he was now the Rev Canon Colin Peter Clay and is Chaplain at the University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon and had been in Canada for over 40 years.

He was asking if I was the same Reg Briggs he had known in the Imjin valley some 47 years ago! He had seen my name and photograph in a copy of The Wire sent to him by a Terry Wilkins? Ex Royal Signals? Colin was planning to attend the International Reunion and would arrive in England on the following Friday. He would stay in Norfolk, not far from my home in Peterborough. It was a wonderful feeling knowing that someone you knew all those years ago in difficult circumstances was alive and well and coming to England!

Needless to say we met on Peterborough station and repaired to an old English pub with our respective wives for an enjoyable lunch. It did not seem 47 years since I had last seen Colin. We could chat to each other as if it had only been yesterday that we last met. Did I remember 'Bed Check Charlie', an old Chinese piston engine aircraft that used to come over the lines machine gunning and dropping small bombs at about 10oclock? Did I? Memories came flooding back. Crossing the Han River, the bridge blown and only a narrow track laid, the Yanks wanting to push the truck over the side, just because the engine had stopped, with me still inside! Getting stuck in a minefield with the Radio Vehicle. Out with the Colonel one night forward of the Leicesters, pitch black. 'Wait here!' Two hours later, a shadow, shoot? No! The CO's back. Climbing Kamak-San, over 2000ft, with the new radio 62 Set. It took 15 porters to get the equipment to the top. I was 'Tail end Charlie', a burst of gunfire behind me almost caused a change of underwear. Having set up the 62 Station I can remember standing almost on top of the mountain looking at the cloud below, a really beautiful sight, very still, Korea, The Land of the Morning Calm, then the 25 pounders opened up!

The first casualty in RHQ was a young Sapper shot, some did not return home. Many years later I revisited the area and the young Sapper's grave. The Korean people treated us like heroes. Remember the very cold winters, a biscuit tin with a diesel and water drip, get it wrong and there was quite a bang and a few Al Jolson look-a-likes. An American Field Hospital, new razors, toothpaste, toothbrush, great. R and R leave in Japan, Ebisu Leave Camp, a bath, clean clothes, beer halls down the Ginza.

INAUGURAL MEETING OF THE ASSOCIATION OF HARROGATE APPRENTICES

by Col (Retd) Cliff Walters, Chairman

The Association of Harrogate Apprentices (AOHA) recently reformed after a gap of about 30 years. The inaugural meeting took place at the Army Foundation College (AFC), in Uniacke Barracks, Harrogate on 8-9 October by kind permission of the CO, Lt Col Ian Smith MBE PARA. Membership of the AOHA has now reached over 300 and, including wives and guests, over 200 met on this occasion. The weekend reunion commenced on Friday evening with a very social evening in the WOs and Sergeants Mess. It was ever thus in the Sergeants Mess!

The brunt of our hard work at the Harrogate end had been done by Bryan Maltby (57B) and Terry Cawthorn (54A). Maj Mick Davis, currently serving at the AFC, gave us tremendous support in putting together an excellent programme. Those attending ranged from the early days of 1947/8 when the School was opened to the comparative newcomers, like myself, who did not arrive on the scene until the 1990's. The Secretary, Dougie Dickason (54A), was on hand to ensure that everyone received the correct coloured badge according to the decade in which you commenced at the College. Chris Longmore was checking his nominal roll to ensure that both subs and reunion fees had been paid. Alan Lafferty (60C) was looking for more new stories for the Newsletter. It was very noticeable and encouraging to see so many ties of Sappers, Gunners and the occasional Infantry unit. We hope not to see them too often because it was decided at the AGM that the AOHA tie should be resurrected - to be actioned by the Chairman! The morning church service was attended by over 150. One piece of nostalgia was the repeating of The Apprentices' Prayer that was introduced in 1949 and has been used on many occasions since then. Our tour of the AFC, which was conducted by six very bright Army Students (ASs), included firing on the indoor Skill at Arms Trainer (SAT). Most people found no problems in getting into the prone position but returning to the vertical was occasionally problematic! It was also noted that there was a distinct waste of 'ammunition'. We visited the education facilities only to find that not much has changed except that SUMS is now called Application of Numbers and English is Communication Skills.

Our reunion ended with an excellent lunch in the Sergeants Mess by kind permission of WO1 (RSM) I. Hindley. We all departed having discussed and reminisced with many old friends. After all, that's what it's all about. Anyone wishing to join AOHA should contact Douglas Dickason, 25 Cherry Waye, Eyethorne, Dover, KENT CT15 4BY. We are also on Internet: www.royalsignals.army.org.uk/museum. Our next reunions are Blandford 24-25 June 2000, and Harrogate 13-14 October 2000.

Anyone who can help with the current whereabouts of Kevin Stevens (244 ...) or Sgt R. L. 'Bob' Witherstone, is asked to contact Mrs Wright at 32 St Andrews Crescent, Rokerby, Rugby, Warks CV22 5PH.

Adrian Streather is trying to contact anyone who remembers working with his father Herbert Anselm Streather, a civilian who worked with the Corps and the Army Air Corps in Middle Wallop from 1950 to 1972. Herbert spent many years at Southern Command, Wiltshire and at Aldershot. The only name that Adrian can remember, of the many people that worked with his father is Capt Catchpole. He realises that most of the people that worked with his father will now have retired and he is not sure whether he worked for the Post Office or a MOD Office of Communications. Adrian is writing a history of his family and would like to find out at what and with whom his father worked during those years. Unfortunately as his father passed away last year he can no longer ask him. One of the few clues he has is that his father was in charge of the modernisation of the army switchboard communications and he can also remember that he used to travel to and from work in a Signals Corps Mini or similar vehicle. Until he purchased his own car in about 1967/68, but he still tended to use an army car for work. In 1972 Herbert emigrated to Australia and did no more work in communications. If anyone can help please contact Adrian at either Güetli 1269, CH-9428, Walzenhausen AR, SWITZERLAND or Email: adrian.streather@rheintalflug.com

Shaun Wood is seeking the present whereabouts of his former pal, Paul Howarth, with whom he served in 1 Armd Div HQ & Sig Regt in the late 1980s. Anyone who can help is asked to contact Shaun at: Zum Bruchdeich 35, 28197 Bremen, GERMANY.

Dear Sir,

I obtained your address from Mr Horlington, from Walton-on-Naze. I am writing on behalf of my brother Matthew Kelly who is blind. He is ex-Post Office and was called up in 1941 and sent to the Middle East. His number was 2378685 and he was with 4 Wing '1' Coy 3rd AFS MEF in 1944. He was in Greece and whilst there most of the men were taken prisoner in Kifissia. Luckily for him and a few others, they were on another airfield to the South of Kifissia. He has asked me many times to try and find out what happened to the men taken by the Communists.

By the way he met a young lady from Athens and they married in the Cathedralin 1946, sadly she died about 15 years ago. His address was: 4 Wing 'C'Y'-Coy AFS CMF when he was called up he was at Ossett Yorks, and most of the others were from Scotland.

I have written so many letters, and still hope someone can help to solve this problem, people are very kind and suggest sending letters to so and so. Should anybody be able to help please write to the above address. With best wishes .....

Dear Sir,

A recent visit to the Royal Corps of Signals Museum at Blandford Camp, which I greatly enjoyed and admired, has encouraged me to the point of endeavouring to locate the present whereabouts of a war-time friend who served with the Royal Corps of Signals.

At the relative time he was a Signalman serving with the Royal Corps of Signals and I was serving with the Royal Air Force. His name is William Victor Smith and he was stationed at Uxbridge during the period part 1943/1944. He hailed from the Kennington, Brixton area and beyond that I have little to work on.

There may well be a reader of your excellent magazine and journal who may have served at Uxbridge or elsewhere alongside William Victor Smith or even be aware of his, or any of his relatives, present whereabouts. I would be very appreciative of any help and information which you or your readers can give.

Yours truly .....

CORNWALL PL31 2EL

Dear Sir,

On receipt of my copy of The WIRE, October 1999 and on turning to page 493, I was surprised to see photocopies of the photographs I had submitted to the 'Morning Calm' had been sent in by Reg Briggs.

Firstly, through your magazine, may I please thank Reg for submitting the photos, on my behalf, for inclusion. I rang Reg to tell him that I had now been able to recognise those in the photos. Me - rear left, Jack Taylor, Toby Seymour, Gabriel, Dallimore and front Pat Johan.

I am still in contact with Pat Johan and Toby Seymour but have not yet contacted the others. I thought, perhaps, through the auspices of THE WIRE contact might be made with the others. I have checked the BKVA membership roll and they are not recorded. Here's hoping that they are members of a Branch of the RSA.

Dallimore and Gabriel were from the South Wales area. Jack, I believe, came from the Midlands area. Should I hear from any of them I will let you know.

Thanking you once again .....

Dear Sir,

A RATHER UNUSUAL REUNION?

I noted the reunion of five Royal Signals Officers who were commissioned from the Royal Military Academy Sandhurst on 12 July 1949. A somewhat similar reunion took place at the United Oxford and Cambridge University Club in Pall Mall, London on Monday 11 October 1999. On 30 July 1949, thirteen of Course 230 of the NSOTW (National Service Officer Training Wing) were commissioned into Royal Signals at Catterick with Emergency Commissions. Two of them (Richard Muir and John Cunningham) had the idea of a reunion and, thanks to their hard work, all but two of the thirteen were traced. They also managed to trace Richard Rahilly who was the Course Officer for Course 230. Finding a mutually convenient date for a meeting proved to be virtually impossible and we had to accept 11 October as the best compromise but still Richard Rahilly and Nigel Sylvester were unable to attend. Bob Briggs and Dennis Oakley have not been traced and, sadly, three (John Billison, Norman Short and Tim Woodgate) are believed to have died. The remaining seven were able to attend the excellent lunch arranged by Richard Muir and to enjoy an exchange of memories. Those present were: Ken Chenneour, Roy Clifford, John Clifton, Tom Cunningham, John Fisher, Richard Muir and Robert Scaddon.

Richard had arranged a poster-size blow-up of a picture taken during an escape and evasion exercise - unfortunately, most of us had changed too much for the picture to be of any great help but the name badges supplied proved a great help! It is hoped to arrange a repeat meeting in July 2000 - probably in the Catterick Area.

Yours faithfully .....

Dear Sir,

The following is submitted for publication in The WIRE, if considered suitable. I fully agree with the contents of the letter by Keith Hind headed 'Happy New Millennium' in the October edition of The WIRE.

In March this year I had a letter published in my local newspaper which also stated that the next Millennium will begin on 1 January 2001. I also sent a copy of my letter to The Millennium Commission. An extract from the Commission's reply to me is as follows:

> ...when it established the Millennium Commission the Government of the day was quite clear that the third Millennium commenced on 1 January 2001, and the then Secretary of State for the National Heritage made a public statement to that effect. The year 2000 will see the close of the second Millennium and the year 2001 the start of the third.

In January 1991 an earlier letter of mine published in the same newspaper concluded, 'When will the media decide the end of the 20th Century has arrived? Will it be, as I suggest, on 31 December, 1999 at midnight or at the correct time of midnight on 31 December, 2001?

Yours Sincerely .....

Aldridge - TA Col George Aldridge OBE, was awarded a military OBE for his painstaking work breaking Japanese codes during the Burma Campaign of the Second World War. He joined the army at Woolwich and was commissioned into the Royal Signals in 1930. He served in Northern Ireland, on India's Northwest Frontier and was in the sub-continent at the outbreak of the Second World War. He was involved in the development of signalling systems and worked on intercepting and deciphering Japanese codes, during the Japanese advance through Burma towards India. He also saw service in Palestine and England and was sent to Belsen Concentration Camp soon after the German surrender. The sights he saw there horrified him. George worked in the War Office until 1949, when he felt that he should put his Christian beliefs into practice. Wherever he travelled, he attached himself to Anglican churches and lived the life of a charismatic Christian, a term he preferred to Evangelical. In 1974 he moved to Edinburgh, before moving to Peebles a year ago. In 1981 he and his wife heard about a young diabetic Romanian girl, whose health was at grave risk, under the conditions at that time. They made sure that she was supplied with insulin and were particularly proud when she became a senior doctor looking after diabetic patients. George Aldridge learned Romanian, undertook a correspondence course in gardening (with the Horticultural Society), studied science with the Open University and loved walking in the countryside. A tall, quiet man who loved God and wanted to share this with others. He is survived by Claris and two children from an earlier marriage.

Barratt – William 'Bill' Barratt who died on 4 July 1999, aged 85 years, served in the Royal Signals for a period of 22 years (1937-1959). Born in Newcastle-under-Lyme, the youngest of a large family, he left school to work in the potteries as a tile-maker. Like many of his peers, the 1930's recession hit hard and he found himself out of work and faced with the choice of unemployment benefit or military service. The latter offered him the greater challenge, as well as greater immediate benefits, plus, for Bill in particular, the opportunity to see the world.

This, indeed, was the case and Bill travelled far and wide over the next few years but without foreseeing a World War or the four years he subsequently had to endure as a prisoner of war under the Japanese in Malaya. Although he survived the cruelty, abuse and harsh living conditions which saw the demise of many of his compatriots, he emerged in 1945 never to be the same person again. During his time of internment, Bill maintained a diary, vividly portraying the difficulties, heartache and tragedy which took place as a matter of course in the mines in which he was forced to labour. Those diaries now provide a truly humbling insight into what he, and his fellow captives, endured at the time and serve to remind us all of mans inhumanity to man as well as explaining why Bill became the man he did in his later years. Despite Bill's suffering he continued to serve in the Royal Signals after the War with his army service finally ending in 1959. He retired from Catterick, holding the rank of WO1 and subsequently relocated to Bristol and took a position in the Civil Service before finally retiring in 1978. His health diminished gradually after that, with the War and his captivity under the Japanese coming back to haunt him in later years.

Throughout Bill's life, he remained a keen sportsman, willing to try his hand at any event but he particularly enjoyed swimming and football having once had trials as a goalkeeper with Stoke City after leaving school. A decent and dignified man to the last, he married Gladys in 1949, by whom he is survived, together with his daughter Jean, son Alan and two grandsons, Dafydd and William.

Atkinson - Brig A. L. 'Flags' Atkinson OBE who died on 16 August 1999, in the Nuffield Hospital aged 87, served the Corps with distinction for 30 years and was a Military Knight of Windsor from 1977 until his death when he was the Senior Knight. He was educated at Choriton High School and Manchester University where he obtained his BSc. He joined the Royal Signals in 1935 as a university entrant. He spent two years with 3 Divisional Signals in Bulford before being accepted for secondment to the King's African Rifles. For a few months in 1940 he commanded 12 (African) Divisional Signals, later reverting to Second in Command. During 1941-42 he continued to serve in African formations including 21 (EA) Brigade Signals and 11 (EA) Division. In 1942 he left Africa for India to become 2IC of 10 Indian Divisional Signals. After attending the Staff College in Quetta, in 1943 he commanded 19 Indian Divisional Signals in Burma before returning to England in early 1945 to join 47 Divisional Signals. In 1946 he was posted to Prague as GSO2 Liaison and 18 months later he returned to the Far East to become DAQMG HQ North Malaya Sub District where operations were in progress. In 1949 he returned to the UK to become Brigade Major of the Signal Training Centre. In 1951 he held the prize command of 1 Commonwealth Divisional Signals in Korea. It was his task to raise the headquarters elements and 1 Squadron in UK and, on arrival, to absorb the signal troops which had previously been in action. In his Corps history, Gen Nalder comments:

> 'The situation facing the Commander, Royal Signals was in some respect not unlike that on the Western Front in 1915. He had to take special measures, not only to protect the lines against enemy fire and the approaching winter conditions, but above all to tidy up battalion areas. Here a tangle of derelict cables was rapidly making orderly maintenance impossible. Eventually after order had been restored the division maintained between 3,000 and 4,000 twin cable miles'.

After a year in Korea he returned to England to become the Commandant of the Signals Wing, School of Infantry. He attended the Joint Services Staff College in 1953 which led to his appointment as GSO1 Inter-Service Planning Team. He was then for a short time a GSO1 in the Signals Directorate before moving again to the Far East for yet another command appointment this time with the Hong Kong Signal Regiment in 1956. In 1958 he became GSO1 Signals Division at Allied Land Forces Central Europe and thence, following his promotion to Colonel, to the Chairmanship of the European Frequency Agency. In 1961-62 he was the Chairman of the Communications Electronics Committee NATO, in Washington DC. On promotion to Brigadier in 1962 he assumed his last appointment as CSO Southern Command. He retired from the Army in 1964. In November 1977 'Flags' was appointed as a Military Knight of Windsor where he was to spend the rest of his life. He undoubtedly became one of the characters of the Windsor scene. He regularly attended chapel and was not unknown to 'tell off' any cleric who chose to deviate from the strict rubrics of the 1662 Book of Common Prayer. In his address during the interment of 'Flags' ashes in St George's Chapel, Canon John White commented:

> 'It was a sense of order and of discipline, which was a chief mark of Brig Atkinson's life amongst us here at this College. He was an ordered man, he believed in order, and sticking to the rules of the Military Knights, and also to those, now slightly old fashioned, rules of courtesy which oiled the military society in which he had lived out so many of his days. Nearly, despite himself 'Flags' engendered amongst us not simply respect, not simply quite justified admiration for his achievements in the past and his courage in the present, but essentially a response of love.'

Francis – Col John Francis who died on 11 September 1999 was a most popular and capable officer who made a major contribution to the Corps both as a serving officer and as Regimental Secretary. John Francis was born on 2 June 1926. He followed both his grandfather and father by serving in the Indian Army. Following his commissioning at Mhow in December 1945 he spent three years with 2nd Indian Airborne Signals in Karachi, Lahore and Lucknow. After Indian Independence in 1947 he joined 235 British Independent Brigade which was involved in trying to keep the peace between the Hindus and Moslems in the Punjab. During this period. John attended a Regular Commissions Board in Madras. The train journey back to his Brigade in Karachi took nearly a month due to the chaos and fighting. John left Karachi in April 1948 on the Empire Fowey, the last troop ship to leave Pakistan.

In the 1950s John served as Adjutant to 3 Training Regiment in Catterick which expanded to a strength of 2500 at the start of the Korean war. He increased his experience as an adjutant with 21 North Midland Signal Regiment TA in Derby. This was the beginning of a long and happy association with the TA. Following this he was posted to the Commonwealth Brigade Signals in Korea only to be recalled after a few months to attend the Staff College, Camberley at the early age of 29, the youngest of his year. On graduation he was posted to the Intelligence Staff in Hong Kong as a Major, at 31 the youngest in the Corps. He thoroughly enjoyed the glamour and bright lights after years of the austerity and rationing of post-war Britain. In the 1960s John completed a number of postings in the UK and Germany, of particular note was the command of the Main Divisional Squadron of 4th Divisional Signal Regiment in Herford. In 1964 John spent a year at the US Army Staff College in Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. He found this a pleasant sabbatical from regimental duty and an opportunity to make many friends amongst the 'allies'. Unlike the pressures of Camberley, the social life at Leavenworth was very demanding and great fun, and there was not much time, nor fortunately the need for much studying.

In 1967 John was posted to command 38 Signal Regiment TA in Sheffield which included many of his friends from his time as a TA adjutant. This was a time of a major reorganisation of the TA and he was faced with the challenge of recruiting and training some 400 'volunteers' to add to the less than 200 core of experienced TA soldiers. High Command was far away and he seized the chance to exercise his regiment all over the UK. John was a excellent CO. He loved the job and was able to imbue high morale and enthusiasm into all he commanded. In 1981 John felt very honoured when he was appointed Honorary Colonel to his Regiment. John spent two and a half years in Brussels as GSO1 UK MILREP, NATO before being promoted Colonel in 1973. He was then sent to Washington to be Liaison Officer to the US Army for communications, electronics and computers. He then returned to Brussels where he held two appointments before taking early retirement in May 1978, having served the Corps for 33 years.

In the same month he look up the appointment of Regimental Secretary Royal Signals. At that time Her Royal Highness, The Princess Royal first became Colonel-in-Chief of the Corps. John made the detailed arrangements for over 50 Royal-visits, and always accompanied The Princess and the Master of Signals ensuring that HRH and the Corps enjoyed these special occasions to the full. At Regimental Headquarters he introduced computers to all activities. At the behest of the Corps Committee, he integrated the formerly separate parts of RHQ into one body, and in the process became General Secretary of the Association and Secretary of the Institution in addition to his role as Regimental Secretary. He was instrumental in finding the new and last location for RHQ in London in Regency Street having been evicted from the Duke of York's HQ. When he resigned in 1987 he was presented with the Silver Medal of the Royal Signals Institution, the Corps' highest award for services to HRH and the Corps; an unusual distinction for a retired officer. John was never a great sportsman, but following his early experience in the air with Airborne Forces he became a glider pilot and later obtained a private (power) flying licence in the USA where he enjoyed exploring the Mid West in light aircraft. In the early 1990s John moved from Kent to Tolpuddle in Dorset to his last home. He became very active in the local community and spent much of his time on DIY. He retained his links with the Corps as a very active and well respected President of the Dorset Branch of the Royal Signals Association. On 1 May 1948, on his return from India, he married Jean, his fiancée of three years. John was a great family man who look great pride in the success of their two sons, Andrew and Julian and great pleasure from their grandchildren.

John's funeral took place at the church of St John the Evangelist on 17 September. The large number of members of the Corps who attended was a just recognition of the esteem in which he was held and a fitting tribute to a man who served the Corps with energy and zeal in various capacities for over 54 years. He, was a true gentleman.

Dalziel - Sgt Edward Francis 'Ted' Dalziel Born 17 October 1910, died 8 September 1999. Ted joined the TA (Cardiff) at the age of 18 and the Royal Signals in September 1939. He achieved the rank of Sergeant and remained a non-commissioned officer through his own choice. He served in the 61 Medium Regiment RA and is listed under the OR Roll in the 'History of the 61 Medium Regiment, RA' published in 1950. He also served in the 52 Divisional Royal Signals. He was a member of the British Expeditionary Force and saw to the evacuation of his section from Dunkirk on a small fishing boat 'The Lord Gray'. He later became a member of The Dunkirk Veterans' Association. He participated in football and was an excellent athlete, winning many trophies and medals during his years with the army. He continued with the TA after the war and served on the benevolent and social committees based at Park Street, Cardiff. He was made an Honour Member of the RSA in 1972. The Association provided an Honour guard at his funeral bearing colours from the RSA and the Dunkirk Veterans' Association all of which added greatly to the dignity of the occasion and was deeply appreciated by his family.

Butt – SSgt K. W. Butt Ken was born 16 June, 1922. Sadly he passed away 2 November, 1999, aged 77 years. He enlisted in 1938 and served in Burma, Mauritius, Egypt and France. After serving 24 years he was demobbed in Catterick. He leaves behind his wife Queenie, five sons, six daughters 29 Grandchildren and 47 Great Grandchildren.

Freeman - Capt Tom Freeman was born on 1 June 1921 in York. He joined Royal Signals on 16 April 1941 and trained as a Lineman. He was posted to N. Africa in December 1941 but the troopship was diverted, via Capetown, to Singapore. However, after the ship was bombed by the Japanese they eventually landed in Java and Sumatra and from there he was evacuated to Australia in February 1943. He then went on to India and Ceylon. Tom was commissioned in India in 1943 while serving in a SIGINT unit. He was posted to Burma in December 1943 from whence he was repatriated as 'time expired' (over 3yrs 8mths). The war was still on and Tom joined 1 Independent Admin. Coy (1IAC) as Adjutant and was in Minden, Germany at the time of the German surrender. He undertook Air Mobility training before his discharge in December, 1946, where he was still serving as Captain and Adjutant of 1IAC. His decorations included: 1939/45 Star, Pacific Star w/clasp 'Burma', The Defence Medal and the General Service Medal. Following his Army Service Tom took up employment as a civilian teacher and joined firstly the W. Yorkshire Regt TA in 1954 and subsequently the Army Cadet Corps in Tadcaster. He married Carolyn on 2 December, 1972 and the family moved to Guernsey in 1983. Following work in the Probation Service, Tom was sworn in as a Special Constable and retained his links with Royal Signals by becoming a staunch member of the local Branch of the Association. At various times Tom held office as Vice Chairman, Committee Member and Wire Correspondent and his interest in the Corps never waivered. It was whilst on holiday in France in August, 1986 that Tom, paying a visit to the camp toilet at night, fell into a ditch and broke his back. He was air evacuated to Odstock but had been paralysed from the neck down since then. He was particularly pleased to receive a visit at home, last year, from the Association Chairman, Maj Gen Alan Yeoman. Tom was an uncomplaining example to all of us of how to cope with adversity and he will be sadly missed by friends and colleagues throughout the island and beyond. We extend our sincere condolences to Carolyn, Lucy and Simon.

Hall – WO2 (RQMS) Desmond John Hall, MBE. Des Hall died on 13 June, 1999. He was 76 years of age. Des first saw Military Service when in May 1938 at the age of 15, he joined the 4th Battalion of the Queen's Regiment at the Barracks in Mitcham Road, Croydon. He joined as a Drummer Boy under the command of his father who was the Drum Major. He was mobilised for the duration of the Munich Crisis. In August 1939 he was again mobilised and posted to Avonmouth where his true age was discovered, and being too young for active service, he was sent home! Des waited a few months and then, putting up his age again, he went to the Recruiting Office in Poplar Walk, Croydon and this time volunteered for service with the Buffs (The Royal East Kent Regiment). There was a spot of bother when, having enlisted, his undeclared previous service was discovered but it would appear all was forgiven!

In 1943 the Young Soldiers Battalion in which he was serving disbanded and Des was posted to the Royal Signals. In July of that year he embarked from Liverpool for the Far East where he was to spend the next three years serving in India, Burma and Indonesia. He returned from Bombay in September 1946. His wartime enlistment ended in October 1948 when in the rank of Sergeant he transferred to the Territorial Army. He served with the Royal Signals TA in London firstly in Clapham with 2 Corps Signal Regiment TA and then at Fulham House with 47 Signal Regiment (London) TA. In 1961, at the Reorganisation, he went to 47 Signal Regiment (Middlesex Yeomanry) TA where he was promoted WO2 (RQMS) in 1962 serving in that capacity through the subsequent re-organisation and the formation of the TAVRA, with 31 (Greater London) Signal Regiment (V) until his retirement in 1972. His long and valued service was recognised both in 1962 with the presentation of a Certificate of Merit by Field Marshal Earl Alexander of Tunis and in 1971, he was invested with the Insignia of a Member of the Order of the British Empire by Her Majesty the Queen.

Immediately after his retirement from the Royal Signals, Des promptly joined the Sea Cadet Corps. He served as a Lieutenant, Communications Officer. As a Marksman, Des was a first class shot and won many trophies, being, at different times, Champion Shot in both London District and Eastern Command. He also held the Royal Signals 50 Years Badge in consideration of fifty years active membership of the Corps. In civilian life Des worked for the majority of his civilian career with the accountants Ernst and Young where he was Office Services Manager. He was also a hard working member of many organisations and associations allied to the various aspects of his long and distinguished military career, all represented at his Funeral Service at Worth Crematorium.

To his three sons, grand children, great grandchild, brother and all other members of his family we offer our sincerest condolences.

Hooper - Sgt Arthur Hooper - It is with deep regret that we inform you of the death of Arthur Hooper, ex-Sergeant of the Corps. He died on 13 May 1999 at the age of 82 years. Arthur was a founder member of the Chesterfield Branch of the Association. He will be sadly missed by his widow Muriel and his sons Paul and John, along with our Members. At his funeral on 21 May, members from the Local Branch of the Royal British Legion, Fellowship of Services and other Regimental Service Associations formed a Guard of Honour at the chapel and were led into the service by our Branch Standard and Standard Bearer.

Arthur joined the TA in 1933 at Chesterfield and trained as an Operator Wireless and Line with No. 2 Company of the 46th North Midlands Division, Royal Corps of Signals. 1939 saw him mobilised just before the outbreak of WWII and moved to Bakewell in Derbyshire. From there he drove to Mons Barracks in Aldershot, with a Rolls Royce previously owned by Sarah Butt from Bakewell. Whilst he was with the 236 Section, Royal Corps of Signals they joined 60th Field Regiment Royal Artillery and he embarked for France with the British Expeditionary Force. Later he look part in the evacuation from Dunkirk on the LNER cross Channel Ferry, 31 May 1940.

It was then off to the Middle East, via South Africa on Operations in Iraq, Syria and then Egypt. He then crossed the wire into Libya, with the 7th Armoured Brigade, as a part of Operation Crusader in the November. He fought at the airfield at Sidi Rezegh where several members of 236 Section were wounded, one fatal and others missing. Then he was taken out of the Line at Christmas 1941 and it was onto India where he landed in Bombay and then travelled on to Poona. Here he took part in the Jungle Training for the 2nd Chindit Expedition at Ranchi. It was whilst here that he was promoted to Sergeant at the Main Signal Office for the Rear Headquarters of the Wyngate Expedition.

Finally it was back to the UK and on a Pickfords draft to join the 52nd Lowland Division in Germany, after the surrender, before being demobbed on 21 December 1945. Arthur rejoined the Signals TA in the mid 1950s and served for several years in Chesterfield.

Jamieson - SSgt Edward John Jamieson. It is with regret that the Glasgow Branch announce the death of 22569295 (AER) SSgt Edward John Jamieson a life member of the RSA - although Eddie had not yet become a member of the Branch, due to circumstances of family illness and distance to travel, he was well known to some of the members. Eddie died suddenly in hospital after a short illness, in his 80th year. Eddie as he was known, was deferred for call up in 1940, due to his work with the GPO Engineering section, installing the Defence Teleprinter Network in various parts of the country. He was then called up in 1942 and served from 1942 to 1946 with London District Signals, No. 8 Multi-Channel Carrier Section, No. 2 War Office Signals, and was for a time stationed in the underground labyrinths of Whitehall, and the caves in the Cliffs of Dover. On the Normandy landings he was attached to a section aboard a cable ship, laying a submarine cable across the English Channel to Utah Beach, and relays to Dieppe. He finished his service in the rank of 2386759(13) Corporal.

Whilst serving in Dieppe shortly after the Normandy invasion, he met a French girl Paulette whom he married in France in 1946. After demobilisation in 1946, Eddie and his bride returned to Scotland, eventually settling down in Beith in Ayrshire. He had returned to his employment with the GPO Telephones, where he had started in 1934 as a Youth in Training (Engineer Apprentice). He worked in Pitt Street Glasgow and in Glasgow 'F' Repeater Station also in George Square Glasgow with the Circuit Provision Group. In 1952 Eddie joined the 50 L of C Regt (SR) where he was given a new number, 22569295. This unit was changed to 82nd Signal Regt (AER) where he served as a Staff Sergeant, until 1967 when the Regiment was disbanded at the re-organisation of the TVAR. Eddie's decorations include the 1939/45 Star, France and Germany Star, the Defence Medal, the War Medal 1939/45 and the AER Efficiency Medal. He also held the Normandy Medal, Frontline Medal, Normandy 50th Anniversary Medal and a Medal for Faithful Service.

A service of Thanksgiving was held in Beith High Church, Beith, Ayrshire and the minister the Rev Fiona Ross also held a short service at the graveside in Dalry Cemetery. There was a large turnout of Eddie's friends at the church and at the graveside. The Royal British Legion Scotland Standard and the RBLS Union Standard Bearers, escorted the coffin in and out of the church and to the graveside. The Standards were lowered in salute at the cemetery. The RBLS members laid a wreath of poppies, as a tribute to one of their most energetic workers, whose hard work for the RBLS local branch will be sadly missed. The Royal Signals Association Glasgow Branch Chairman, Bill Taylor, with three colleagues were also present, representing the RSA who laid a wreath of poppies with the Corps badge centrepiece, as a tribute to a life member of the RSA. The sincere condolences of the Glasgow Branch members, especially those members who knew him personally, are offered to Eddie's widow Paulette, son Robert, twin daughters Monique and Francoise, their families and the ten grandchildren.

Rudkin - Captain John Barry Rudkin passed away peacefully on 17 June 1999 at Summerland House Nursing Home in Guernsey. John served in the Corps between 1943/1947 and during that time he led a military mission to Hungary. He suffered head injuries when he was thrown from his motorcycle while leading his men and was subsequently cared for by the Russians. He underwent extensive head surgery and subsequently suffered a mental breakdown but fought his way back to good health. At the end of the war he returned to the Wirral where he had been born, completed his training as an accountant and worked in the UK before moving to Jersey and partnership in an accountancy firm. Some 23 years ago John met Anita and moved to Guernsey to assist her in running her hotel. John was a gifted and cultured man who taught himself music and subsequently gave lessons to others, built his first organ himself and took flying lessons at the age of 52. He served as French liaison officer for the Guernsey Chamber of Commerce and served on the committee of Le Corcle Francais de Guernsey. John was a talented public speaker and in Jersey had assisted the local television staff to improve their performance. In Guernsey he became a reader for the audio news for the blind and at the time of his death was serving on the committee of the local Institute of Directors and as a non States member of the Electricity Board. John was the founding Chairman of the Guernsey Branch of the Royal Signals Association and remained in that post for 19 years before ill health prompted him to stand down. He was proud to have been awarded Honour Membership of the Association and the certificate was presented to him, together with a carriage clock to mark his years as our chairman, at our Dinner in May 1997. John continued his interest in the local Branch of the Association to the very end and always enjoyed visits from Branch members and the news which they brought. John was, in every sense, the epitome of an Officer and a Gentleman of the old school and he will be sadly missed by his colleagues and comrades and not least by his loving partner, Anita and her family, to whom we offer our most sincere condolences.

Stringer - Maj (Tfc) (Retd) A. 'Paddy' Stringer one of the Corps' longest serving Traffic Officers passed away in March 1999 after a brave battle against cancer. He was a true 'Signaller' who gave nearly 41 years of his life to the Corps. He was a fine Regimental soldier, an excellent Operator, Yeoman and Traffic Officer. In addition he was also a gentleman and great character who was fond of playing practical jokes on his contemporaries. 'Paddy' was born in Belfast in 1931 and joined Boys Training Company in September 1945 just three months after his 14th birthday. At the end of 1948, when Boys Training Company closed, 'Paddy' was sent to Harrogate. However, he escaped early in 1949 back to Catterick, to finish his training as a Keyboard Operator at 4 Training Regiment. Like most 'Ex Boys' his first adult posting was to War Office Signal Regiment. It was there during an A1 PT course at Kingston that he met Phyllis the future Mrs Stringer.

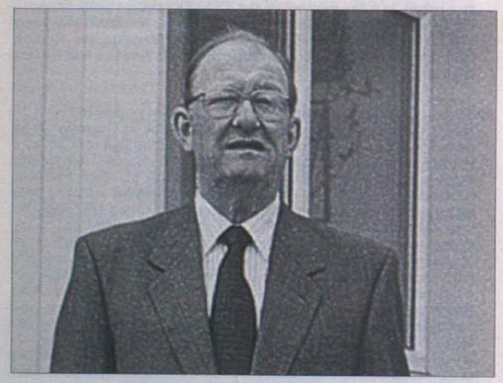
After that he rose steadily in rank as he went to Singapore, Catterick, Verden/Aller and back to Singapore. He returned to Blandford for Number 3 Yeoman of Signals Course in 1962. On qualifying he was posted to Malta where as the President of the WOs and Sgts Mess he was responsible for hosting Bobby Moore and members of the England football team fresh from their triumph in the World Cup. In 1966 he moved back to Gloucester staying there until Robinswood Barracks closed. At this time, September 1969, 'Paddy' was commissioned as a Captain (Traffic) and posted to the 3rd Division at Bulford. 1972 saw him off to 22 Regt at Lippstadt with a further move to SHAPE in Belgium. His next move came in 1978 to 7 Regiment at Herford where he was the Manager of a very successful 7 Regiment Soccer team. For what turned out to be his last posting 'Paddy' moved to HQ DCN at Rudloe Manor in 1981 where he stayed until retirement in March 1986.

On retirement 'Paddy' and Phyllis moved into the Gorsley Post Office and stores, Ross on Wye. where they quickly settled into the community. 'Paddy' became a member of the Parish Council and also Chairman of the Lea and District Branch of the Royal British Legion. During this period there was an attempted armed robbery at the Post Office and 'Paddy' was awarded a Certificate of Valour, for resourceful and courageous conduct, for his part in foiling the robbery attempt. During retirement he has been an enthusiastic member of the 254 'Ex Boys' club re-unions. Probably what best sums up 'Paddy' the man is a quote from a letter from the Group Captain commanding at HQ DCN.

'Only an Irishman would think of organising a Turkey Dinner in a Greek restaurant underneath an ancient Roman city.'

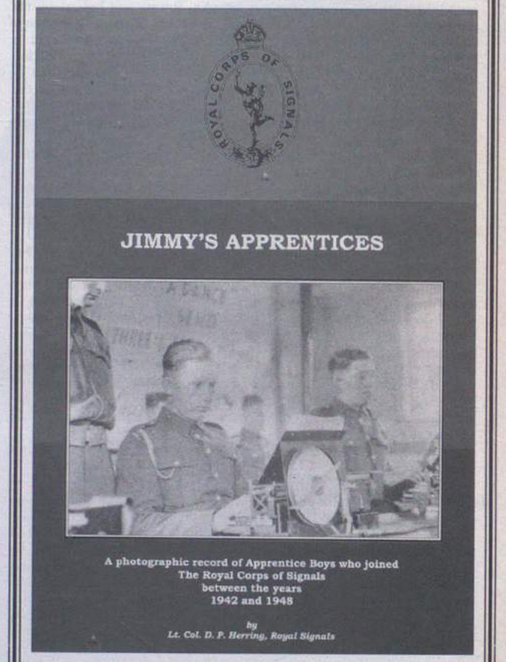
I was the NCO boy IC 'Paddy's recruit barrack room and well remember that his ambition then was to finish his Man's Service as a Sergeant. Meeting him nearly 35 years on as a Maj (Traffic Officer) shows that he far exceeded his initial ambition on joining the Army. An excellent example to all present and future apprentices. 'Paddy' leaves his widow Phyllis, a daughter and three sons, six grand children and one great grandson. At this difficult time we offer Phyllis, who supported 'Paddy' and the Corps for nearly forty years, our most sincere condolences.



Wainwright - It is with deep regret that we inform you of the death of Lt Col F. A. Wainwright on Saturday 31 July 1999 aged 80. He served with the Royal Signals from the 15 July 1939 until his retirement on 10 May 1974 aged 55. He then served at UKLF Wilton for the next ten years as a Retired Officer. He enjoyed good health for the next fifteen years of his retirement until February 1999 when he was diagnosed as having terminal liver cancer and passed away at the end of July this year. His is sadly missed by all his family, friends and former colleagues.

Whitfield - Sig Sydney Whitfield it is with great sadness that the Newcastle and District Branch announce the death of Syd Whitfield who died suddenly on 5 June 1999 although he had been fighting various health problems for the last two years. Syd who was born in 1919 in Saltburn by the Sea, lived for some time in the Lake District, which he never lost his love of, he then moved to Middlesbrough. He joined the Royal Signals in 1939 and served until 1946 seeing action in North Africa, Egypt, The Sudan, Abysinnia and India when he joined the Indian Signals. He was awarded the Africa Star, Defence Medal, European Medal and later the Territorial Long Service Medal. Syd had a great (and sometimes wicked) sense of humour and said he survived the war by not being in the wrong place at the wrong time. After the war he spent some time in Germany before returning to England and qualifying as an Electrical Engineer, working at BICC in Newcastle until his retirement in 1980. He then became a very active member of the Royal Signals Association, British Legion and the Fellowship of Services. Until he became less mobile in later years, Syd regularly attended the Catterick Re-unions and represented the Newcastle Branch at the Branch Reps meeting in London in April each year. In October last Year Syd presented a new Standard to the Branch. Syd married Betty Deans in 1947, had two children, Ian and Wyn. Betty died in 1989, something he never got over and he talked of her often. In 1995 Wyn died after a very long and determined fight against cancer. Ian has lived in Australia for a number of years. Syd was very easy to talk to and made friends easily. He was a lovely man and we miss him. We offer our condolences to his son Ian.

McCombie - William McCombie died on 24 August aged 78 years. Bill joined the regular army in about 1937/38. He enlisted in the Royal Signals. He served in North Africa as a dispatch rider, was wounded, served in Italy and Crete and later he served with 1 Airbourne Division Signals stationed in Caythorpe, Lincolnshire where he met and married a local girl. On discharge he worked for a local builder. He moved to London where he was a driver on London Transport. He leaves two sons to mourn his loss.



JIMMY'S APPRENTICES

This book which contains captioned photographs of some 800 Apprentice Tradesmen who joined the Royal Corps of Signals between the years of 1942 and 1948, together with a short history of the Boys since 1920 has been compiled by

LT COL D. P. HERRING

It will be of interest to all those and the families of persons who entered the Service at that time. Family historians will be interested to see just what their ancestors looked like at the age of 14 years.

This record is unique in that it covers a period, when the country was under threat of invasion and it is conceivable that these Boys could well have had to fight for their country should this have happened.

243 SIGNAL SQUADRON

U TROOP NEWS – by Cpl Jim Gray

Arrivals - A big Hiya to SSgt Marriosn Zaar fresh from 38 Sig Regt (V). Is it me or are all U Tp Staffys supposed to have Dutch spouses!! How B'zaar.

Departures - Fond farewells to SSgt 'Taff' Burdge on promotion to 7 Sig Regt (watch out for his wicked laugh), Cpl 'Pinky' Floyd we will miss the 'crippler' and Cpl Amanda Robertson to Civ Div (Don't worry Amanda, your call up papers will be in the post). Soon to depart on their re-trade courses are Cpl Jim Grey and LCpl 'Taff - the druid' Gibbard, radios? - that'll be the box with knobs on lads!

Significant Events - Ex Bruno Warrior 1999, this year brought to you by 238 Sig Sqn, with the colourful team lead by Capt 'Don't tick me off I'm Ginger' Carrol, ably assisted by SSgt SI 'Innit' Hadley and Sgt 'Scoffs' Schofield. This year's theme was based around the 'battle shot', with some varied and interesting shoots conducted at Hyde & Lyde in Kent (wot no Sennybridge?) we surely missed the horizontal rain, wet bogs, wet kit etc. The shooting revolved around a fire team competition. The winners this year being Cpl Rob Love (again) and his team. Best overall shot of the week went to Cpl Jim 'The dirty sneaky sniper' Gray after a very tense 'shoot off' on the final day, he was chuffed to NAAFI breaks when SSgt Hadley magiced a trophy from his smock. U Tp personnel would like to thank 238 Sig Sqn for a Pukka Camp! Cappiche!?

MENCAP VISIT - by WO2 (SSM) 'Paddy' Morrow

On Wednesday 18 August 1999 the unit played host to a number of young people from the local MENCAP organisation. The day was put together by WO2 (SSM) 'Paddy' Morrow with the aim of providing an opportunity of a fun day out for a group of young people with learning difficulties and to present a cheque for the sum of £1161.11 to MENCAP. Our thanks go to 238, 241 and 251 Signal Squadrons for their efforts in assisting in the raffling of large cuddly toys, which raised a significant amount of the moneys presented on the day.

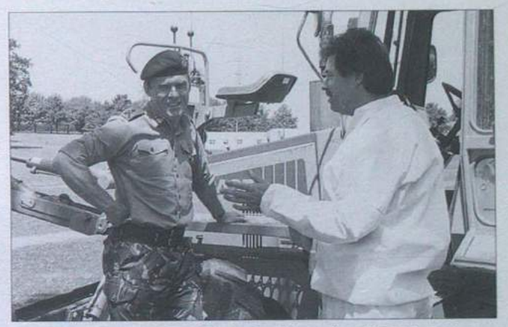
The visitors look on as the OC and SSM hand-over the cheque to Annette Abdouramane from MENCAP

The visitors get to grips with a BV206

The day itself began with the SSM giving an impromptu interview with the local radio station (fame at last). On their arrival the visitors were issued with coveralls and helmets and after a round of photographs they set off to get involved in a series of activities which ranged from a ride in a BV206 supplied by 249 (AMFL) Sig Sqn to having a fun shoot on the SAT. The SSM undecided on what to give our guests for lunch, presented them all with a 'death pack' from the cookhouse which they all enjoyed. The day culminated in the SSM presenting the visitors with a framed group photograph as a reminder of their visit.

DCINC VISIT TO 2 (NC) SIGNAL BRIGADE

On Friday 2 July 1999 the OC, Maj Andy Walker, and two members of our Installation and Support Troop (I&S Tp) (formally our Signals Works Services Troop), Mr Steve Ladd and Mr Bob Hastings both Maintenance Electricians Telephone (MET's) were given the opportunity to brief Lt Gen J. F. Deverell who was visiting HQ 2 Sig Bde, on certain aspects of the work carried out by I&S Tp. The General was given a briefing on the workings of the K660 Trenching machine and an insight into Fibre Optic splicing. The team almost had to put the trenching machine to work for real, when a nearby gas pipe was ruptured by contractors working in the area fortunately their services were not required!



Mr Bob Hastings explains the workings of the K660 Trencher to Gen Deverell
